Apron Shower Success for Trinity W.A. Meeting Held Thursday Last

Mrs. John Bogart and Mrs. M. F. Smith welcomed the many friends and members who attended the highly successful apron and money shower held in the dining hall of Trinity United Church by the Woman's Association on the afternoon of Thursday last. Following the recital of the Lord's Prayer in unison, the devotional period was presented by Mrs. A. E. Smith.

The business, in charge of Mrs. Alfred Jarvis and Mrs. Duncan McElheran, dealt chiefly with plans to modernize the small kitchen.

It was decided tentatively to quilt a quilt for Red Cross which has had a great drain of present supplies.

Mrs. H. E. Merkley reported 29 calls made by the visiting committee and the flower fund was collected by Mrs. Graham Smith.

In the absence of Mrs. W. B. Hamilton, Mrs. H. E. Durant and Mrs. H. E. Merkley announced the donations received during the afternoon to amount to $22 and 40 aprons.

To piano accompaniment of sister Verna, Helen and Carol Merkley sang duet in their usual pleasing style.. A piano solo by Carole Smith was well received. A humourous reading presented by Mrs. R. A. Mitchell evoked many chuckles in the audience.

Following the Mizpah Benediction, tea was served from a charmingly appointed table, the decorations being in the Valentine motif.

Assisting Mrs. H. E. Durant and Mrs. H. E. Merkley were: Mrs H. Kittle, Mrs. George Johnston, Mrs. Andrew Carruthers, Mrs. Lloyd Merkley, Mrs. A. E. Smith, Mrs. Arthur Ball, Mrs. John Price and Mrs. Arthur Bailey. —S.C.

And The Walls Came Tumbling Down

The final chapter of the history of a school was written late Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 9th, when the walls and chimney of S. S. No. 12, Morewood, gutted by fire a week ago, were razed by dynamite.

Permission having been given by the insurance adjusters, the Area school board lost no time in deciding to lower the remaining walls, one having already fallen in, in orded to prevent serious injury or perhaps death to village children and others.

Ralph Smith of Chesterville was in charge of the explosives. He was assisted by some members of the community. Fifty-six sticks of Nobel's invention, divided into nine charges were used to complete the job satisfactorly.

As an observaton, costing $15, approximately, to lower the walls and chimney, how many times will this be multiplied to erect walls, roof, etc. to replace this 56-year-old structure that has so well attended to the needs of the Public School children of S. S. No. 12?

Seguin Farm Scene Ayrshire Barn Meeting

A large group of interested farmers gathered for the Grenville-Dundas Ayrshire Breeders' barn meeting, at Mr. P. H. Seguin's Oxford Mills, on the afternoon of Wednesday, February 3rd. Two years ago under the herd classification plan for type, twenty-one animals had an average score of 84.5 percent. The herd has been built up on a basis of a few Club calves purchased twelve or thirteen years ago.

Through the generosity of several merchants, valuable prizes were awarded. Town Hall, Winchester Scene Hospital Aux. Meeting

A very well attended meeting of the Winchester District Hospital Auxiliary was held in the Winchester Town Hall, Thursday. Feb. 4th.

Mrs. Ledgerwood, president, opened the meeting with words of praise and encouragement for the hospital and especially the auxiliary work.

It was decided that $10 would be sent to the Rhymus Memorial in Brantford. This memorial, being set up by the Ontario Women's Hospital Auxiliary Association is to take the form of a furnished hospital room in Brantford. Mrs. Rhymus gave forty years to hospital auxiliary work.

Miss Wilson's hospital report showed total admissions for January as 128; discharges, 136; average, 37.7. Meals for January were 5,240. Blood transfusions, 18. The laboratory staff were so busy they were unable to have a report ready.

Miss McConnell's sewing committee did 110 pieces of sewing in 2 days. Ormond and Inkerman units and Matilda W.I. have sewing out. Other units are planning sewing bees at the hospital.

Miss Elliott's report showed that the auxiliary has raised over $2000 in 4 months. Miss Coons, purchasing convener, reported $186.25 worth of linens purchased, 3 pairs drop bed sides and a collapsible wheel chair on order. On the advice of Dr. Stoddart, radiologist, a new type of marker for X-ray films is being ordered.

Three Fires -- One House

Chesterville firemen came arunning again Friday night in answer to a summons of fire on Church Street. Mr. and Mrs. Bert Harper returned home shortly after the midnight hour and were greeted by smoke and fire when they stepped inside the house. The fire brigade arrived promptly and found the fire under control but a second small blaze was discovered at that time under a sink. It was soon put out.

The firemen had just returned to their homes when the siren whooped again and again they arived at the Church Street house to find a dying blaze in the attic.

There is no easy explanation for the three fires in different locations in the same residence. Fire Chief Hehir, following routine, got in touch with the Fire Marshal's office and asked for an inspector to make a check. That was to be done this week when an inspector became available.

Chief Hehir assured the Record that he made no quotations as have appeared this week in some of our daily papers and deplores the impressions and suppositions that have been made as a result.

OPP Constable Wm. Hunsburger is firm in his "no comment" stand.

The Berwick West Farm Forum held their regular meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. Swain with 17 members and friends in attendance. After listening to the broadcast, reading of minutes and correspondence of the last meeting, the topic "Barriers of Trade" was discussed. All agreed it was a very difficult topic for the average farmer to comment on. In 1947 there was a worldwide movement for freerer trade. This was the result of an international agreement known as GATT, (General Agreements on Tariffs and Trade, the result of a conference at Genevr, 1947). There are 35 countries taking part and Canada and the USA are members of the union.

Members gave the following answers to questions asked: We believe that free trade between us and the United States might be beneficial to the farmers of our area, one reason being the large population of the USA.

Canada as a whole might benefit by complete free trade with the United States in all products thru the Customs Union.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Swain for the use of their home and the lunch. A few words of welcome were extended to the visitors

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Kearns. The topic: "What Brand, Madam?" Visitors are always welcome

Mr., Mrs. Hugh McMillan Entertain Elma W. I.

The February meeting of the Elma W.I. was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McMillan. A large crowd was present as the members were entertaining their husbands at this meeting.

The meeting opened with the Ode and the Mary Stewart Collect in unison after which correspondence was read and business discussed. Penny-round-up bags from the Canadian Mental Association were distributed to the members.

The roll call, 'why I like my wife to be a member of the Elma W.I.' was answered by the husbands with some very good reasons.

The playing of progressive euchre at nine tables followed with the ladies' first going to Mrs. Ray McPherson; ladies' low, Mrs. Harold Pemberton; gents' high, Mr. Arthur Folkhard; gents' low, Mr. Wendall Harper.

Lunch was served by the ladies after which a vote of thanks was extended by Mrs. Egerton Barkley to Mr. and Mrs. McMillan for their hospitality and by Mr. Bernice Froats on behalf of the husbands.

The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Donald Dillabough with Mrs. Ray McPherson as convenor.

The forests provide a third of all Canada's primary production.

OPINIONS . . .

Ours and Others

CHESTERVILLE, ONTARIO, FEBRUARY 11, 1954

Who Works For Nothing?

Our new council has found its stride in the year's affairs with two regular meetings under its belt. The mixed sex group seems to be working in complete harmony as everyone had hoped.

One small item sticks in our craw, though, and this is the best way we know of clearing our throat. This "without remuneration" business is getting more and more difficult to understand with each repitition. Councillor John Turner has offered to act as works foreman "without remuneration", presumably in an endeavour to help the village finances to the extent of saving the wages of a supervisor. We question the economy to be effected by the councillor. We also question the point in stressing the "no remuneration" business.

The last two years have seen council taking the step of having a member of council appointed as paid supervisor of town work. The cost to the municipality has been small and the benefit large. Mr. Page acted in that capacity in those years and his efforts were always aimed at economy if it could be attained, but a good job done was the first object of his supervision. Mr. Page was in the fortunate position of being able to spend a lot of his time on town projects, almost a necessity if adequate supervision was to be given.

Mr. Turner, a member of the Roads and Bridges Commission along with Councillor Marcellus, by reason of his seniority in council is naturally in line for the works foreman appointment. But Mr. Turner, like the majority of us, has a living to earn and his working hours are standard with most of the community. We wonder if he can find the necessary time that proper application to the commission's work will entail? Hired day labour is the same today as it was last year and the year before. If it is not almost constantly supervised, shovel handles will get a permanent bend but not from shovelling. Who is going to direct hourly progress of any job to make the most efficient use of labour? Who will be on hand to check in and check out times on the various jobs as they come up? When South Street receives its black-top, a village representative will be needed there on the spot for the duration of the job. If the hoped-for street can be cut through between Howard and Hummel, a full-time supervisor will be needed for quite a while to oversee the project. Can Mr. Turner afford to apply himself faithfully to these items "without remuneration"? We doubt it.

What to do? Let Harry do it! The village clerk is a highly paid man. He gets something like $1500 a year (Morrisburg pays their clerk $3000 a year) and surely his regular duties that only take about 50 hours a week will allow him time to do the supervising. We think it would be rank imposition to saddle Mr. Hummel with any more responsibility. Mrs. Marcellus is more than willing to do her share of the commission's work. But she is one of the juniors of council and it would not be fair to ask her to do more than is rightly her duty.

It boils down to this. Lets forget this "without remuneration" and recognize a few economic facts. To get value in full for money expended on the village roads and bridges and other items, we need a paid supervisor who has time to earn his salary. It will not be economy to let hired help set their own pace on the job. In the end, it will cost far more than a supervisor's wages and the job will be half done.

The Mistletoe Bough

By Amelia MacMillan Lambkin

(The Authentic Story)

In the recent December 24th issue of the Record, there appeared a column titled "Christmas Songs" in which was given brief sketches of a few old Christmas songs, one of which was "The Mistletoe Bough" and this was quoted as being a 'legend.'

I feel sure that many who, like myself for many years believed the story to be a 'legend'. will be interested to know that this story is really a true happening which took place back through the centuries in Somersetshire, England. Tourists may visit the ancient cemetery where Lord Lovell and his bride of a day are buried and may read the tragic story carved on the table of marble which stands atop the graves.

I give the authenticity of the happening because of its having been given me by two authoritative sources — one, Mrs. Emily Stonehill, wife of Dr. Stonehill, both of whom were early missionaries throughout the larger cities of the British Isles before coming to Greater New York's Chinatown of fifty years ago.

Mrs. Stonehill was born and reared in Somersetshire and to her the old story was a familiar one, as she, together with every other child raised in that community, had heard it told and retold, and later when set to rhyme and music, it had become a ritual, as families gathered about their fireplaces and as the Yule log burned brightly on Christmas Eve, their voices rang out in the well-known, old song, "The Mistletoe Bough." It would seem they wished to commemorate the tragic passing of the lovely girl-bride and the long lonely vigil of her inconsolable bridegroom.

The other woman who implemented the truth of the story was my cousin, Rebecca Talbot-Perkins, whose father was one of the Talbots of that section of Somersetshire, and naturally the tale had been told her from a child. Later when she and her husband visited her father's homeland, she made it a point to find the old cemetery and the graves of Lord Lovell and his bride. She read and copied the wording of the old tale as it was chiselled on the marble tablet as it kept guard over the ancient graves.

My cousin told me that at that time, almost anyone you asked about the tragedy could and would direct you to the cemetery. It seemed a part of Somersetshire tradition which carried on through the centuries.

During the ten years I had charge of the charitable Home-For-Girls in Brooklyn, we had each year, a beautiful Christmas tree, and a fine concert for the girls and each year Mrs. Stonehill and Talbot-Perkins came forward as a part of the entertainment and told the girls the old story after which we all joined in singing "The Mistletoe Bough."

I never could quite reconcile the tragic song as belonging to, or in any way being in keeping with Christmas Eve festivities. However it seemed to be very entertaining to the girls and was performed annually at the Home's Christmas party.

So you see why I wanted to share with you my first hand information about the old song, "The Mistletoe Bough" written about a real happening back through the centuries in old Somersetshire—and is not a 'legend.'

The Mistletoe Bough

The mistletoe hung in the castle hall
The holly branch hung on the old oak wall;
And the baron's retainers were blithe and gay,
And keeping their Christmas holiday.
The baron beheld with a father's pride
His beautiful child, young Lovell's bride;
While she, with her bright eyes, seemed to be
The star of the goodly company.
Oh! the mistletoe bough!
Oh! the mistletoe bough!

"I'm weary of dancing now", she cried;
"Here—tarry a moment—I'll hide, I'll hide!
And Lovell, be sure thou'rt first to trace
The clue to my secret hiding place."
Away she ran—and her friends began
Each tower and nook to search and each nook to scan;
And young Lovell cried, "O! where dost thou hide?
I'm lonesome without thee, my own dear bride."
Oh! the mistletoe bough!
Oh! the mistletoe bough!

They sought her that night, and they sought her next day,
And they sought her in vain, while a week passed away;
In the highest, the lowest, the lonliest spot,
Young Lovell sought wildly—but found her not.
And years flew by, and their grief at last
Was told as a sorrowful tale—long past;
And when Lovell appeared, the children cried
"See!—the old man weeps for his fairy bride."
Oh! the mistletoe bough!
Oh! the mistletoe bough!

At length—an old chest, that had long lain hid,
Was found in the castle—they raised the lid,
And a skeleton form lay moulddering there
In the bridal wreath of the lady fair!
Oh! sad was her fate—in sportive jest
She hid from her lord in the old oak chest;
It closed with a spring!—and dreadful doom,
The bride lay clasped in her living tomb!
Oh! the mistletoe bough!
Oh! the mistletoe bough!

A father and son were watching a wrestling match on TV. The father was so impressed by the strength and lion-hearted courage of the two wrestlers that he exclaimed: "Son, maybe that's what you should be when you grow up."

"Yes, Dad, that's exactly what I want to be—an actor!"

LITTLE STORIES TOLD IN FUN

The well-dressed couple in their late thirties, entered an exclusive furrier's and asked to be shown mink coats. After an hour or so, the choice had narrowed on two coats, one considerably more exsive than the other.

The saleswoman, discreet and impersonal until then, suddenly became overcome with visions of the fat commission she would receive if the more expensive coat were sold, and blew the sale.

"Take this one, Mrs. Adams," she urged in the tones of a confidante.. "Spend his money. If you don't, he'll only spend it on his second wife.."

The freeze decended as Mrs. Adams shrugged off the coat."I am his second wife," she said icily, then left the store. — Wall Street Journal.

An experimental jet fighter was being put through its altitude test flight when it exploded thousands of feet above the air force base. The pilot was besieged by reporters for an account of his escape and, most of all, how high he was when it exploded. Since the latter happened to be top secret, the pilot was having a time keeping it so.

Eventually, in desperation, he said, "It is my duty to refrain from telling you the altitude figure, but I will tell you this. I missed three good meals while swinging to and fro in that slow, slow parachute!"

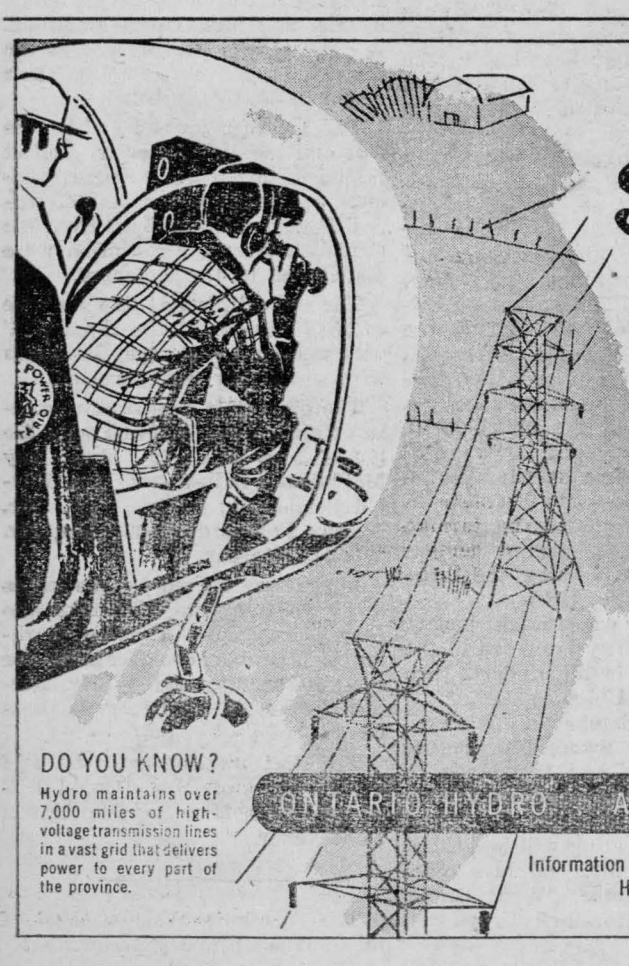

The minister was trying to get an appropriation of $200 for a new chandelier. One old fellow on the council refused his consent.

"Just why, Henry, do you persist in your disapproval?" asked the pastor.

"For two reasons," said Henry. "First, $200 is too much money, and, second, I don't think there's anyone in our whole congregation that can play a chandelier."

It was the ten-aged girl's second date with the ardently inclined boy. Before he let her out of the car in front of her home he pleaded for a goodnight kiss and she said, "Have you ever kissed any other girls?"

With amazement on his face the youth replied, "Sure, I've kissed girls before I met you. You don't think I'd use you as a guinea pig, do you?"

BY ORDER OF THE COUNCIL,
Township of Winchester.

NINE-YEAR-OLD Raymond Badger of Weston, Ontario was selected as the 1954 TIMMY to represent the thousands of crippled children in Ontario during the forthcoming Easter Seal Campaign which will be held from March 18th until April 18th. Campaign which is sponsored by over 190 service clubs associated with the Ontario Society for Crippled Children has an objective of $500,000 for the province.

"Timmy" Chosen for Campaign Ontario Society for Crippled Children

Raymond Badger of Weston, Ontario, a nine-year-old youngster who doesn't let a cripple's brace stand in the way of enjoying life as a schoolboy who gets into everything that's going on, has been chosen as Ontario's Timmy during the forthcoming Easter Seal campaign.

As Timmy, young Ray will represent all the thousands of handicapped youngsters in Canada for whom the campaign, sponsored by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, will seek $500,000 between March 18 and April 18. Associated with the Society will be 195 service clubs scattered across the province.

Ray is the eighth youngster honoured by being selected as Timmy since the Society started its annual campaign in 1947 with one of its young proteges as a symbolic leader. Through the Weston-Mount Dennis Rotary Club, Ray was brought to the attention of the Society, and the club paid for two lengthy stays at the Hospital for Sick Children, bought him his brace and two pairs of special shoes, and sent him away each of the last two summers for a vacation at Blue Mountain camp, one of five crippled children's camps owned and operated by the society.

More than two years ago Ray's hip began bothering him and an alert family doctor diagnosed the trouble as Legge-Perthes disease, a bone condition which can become very serious if unattended. Today Ray wears a brace which relieves the hip of his weight while it is mending, and some day, it is hoped, he will be able to abandon the brace entirely.

Ray is a big boy for his years, 5 feet 3 inches tall. He is a grade four student at Melody Road school and, according to his teacher, is an above average student. He is an avid sports fan, and follows the Maple Leafs hockey team religiously. He is looking eagerly to the annual sportsmen's dinner which preludes the Society's annual appeal, because then, he hopes, he will meet most of his favourite athletes. He takes part in some sports himself, despite his leg-brace, and plays goal-tender for his grade team in the school soccer league. He is a fair swimmer and last year at Blue Mountain Camp passed his Beginner's Tests and has completed half of the Junior,s which he expects to finish this year. His favorite hobbies are woodcarving, collecting match-box covers and watching TV.

Ray is confident that he won't wear his brace for very long, because he is firmly determined to be a soldier when he grows up. He takes considerable kidding from his father, Leslie Badger, a service department specialist with the Mall Tool Company. Mr. Badger was in the navy during the war, finishing his service as an anti-sub instructor.

"Ray's a good keen youngster," says Mr. Badger and Mrs. Badger echoes his attitude. "He has never complained and he gets along fine with all the family, an older brother and three younger sisters. We're very proud that he is to be Timmy this year."

District Commander Visits Winchester Branch of Legion

Ian Beresford of Gananoque, District Commander of District G of the BESL, paid his official call to Winchester Post 108 of the Canadian Legion.

Introduced by Carl Laushway, the commander spoke of the importance of the drive for membership which was to be launched within the province in the month of February.

The importance of co-operation with service clubs, other organizations and the churches in community welfare projects was also stressed by the speaker. He said that the International Goodwill Day, when members of American and Canadian Legion Posts will meet to discuss relevant problems will be held in Kingston on May 22.

De Fenton of Iroquois, District Chairman urged the branches to build up their reserves, which he thought might be needed to assist unemployed veterans within the next couple of years.

A meeting of the presidents of branches is to be held in February designed to create a Zone Council, which will function to promote greater activity and unity within the Zone.

Zone Commander Ernest R. Summers said that he had appointed G. Elsworth Summers as Zone Chairman of the Membership Drive Committee.

The Branch decided to purchase hockey socks for the Pee-Wee hockey team.

Huge Real Estate Deal In Power Project

Construction of the St. Lawrence power project will involve as an incidental a $12,000,000 real estate transaction in St. Lawrence county it was revealed last week at the office of the New York Power authority.

John E. Burton, authority chairman, said costs studies are now being made relating to the lands which will be flooded by the back-up from the dam and power houses at Barnhart Island.

He pointed out that the authority now has an estimate that this phase of the program will entail the expenditures of $12,667,000 but he added that this item came from a schedule prepared by the army engineers.

To what extent the cost picture may have changed since the corps arrived at this figure, the authority is now endeavouring to acertain, Mr. Burton implied.

Mr. Burton says the authority will acquire or obtain easements, on everything up to 249 feet above sea level. Some thought is now being given to making this 250 feet, he said, but clearance is certain up to 249. Whether another foot of "cushion" will be added remains to be decided.

Land-acquisition on the American side will not be as expensive a proposition as on the Canadian. Except for Waddington which will be slightly affected. there will be no community flooding. On the north side of the river, on the other hand, eight villages or hamlets will be inundated to some degree. Iroquois will be flooded out and Morrisburg will be substantially affected.

Perhaps one of the most valuable pieces of property that figures to be flooded out is the Ogdensburg mansion on Ogden Island, Waddington. This owned by the Howard family and is a place of some historical significance.

Mr. Burton said the lands to be flooded would run from the damsite at Barnhart Island all the way upstream to Ogdensburg, 35 miles to the west. The lake to be formed will be as wide as four to five miles.

It has been pointed out by sources close to the authority that in some instances it may not be necessary to buy the lands in question. Easements would cover these instances.

The record of the court case in which the federal court of appeals recently upheld the authority's license, issued by the Federal Power Commission, contains the reference to the land acquisition question program.

Franklin Leeburger, the Power authority chief engineer, was asked if the power project ($600,000,000 of which the authority stands half) took into account the acquisition of lands and damages on account of injury.

"I don't know that I can answer that directly," Mr. Leeburger replied. "However, Item 15 (a) of Exhibit N, revised, 1952, of Item K, has in it a subheading, "Acquisition of land in the United States to be $12,667,000," and it may well be that the acquisition of those lands would include the type and description of costs that you have just referred to."

Two librarians were checking the condition of the books on the library shelves when they noticed that one of the books was badly mutilated.

"What a shame," one librarian said, "the last six pages are missing from this book. Do you think we should throw it away?"

"Let's save it," the other libririan replied. "One of our readers is always asking for books with surprise endings and this one will be right down his alley."

Mrs. D.K. Fetterly Dies Morrisburg Native

The many friends in the Morrisburg district of Mrs. Donald K. Fetterly heard with regret of her death on Jan. 28 at Saxonburg, Pa., where her husband has been a Lutheran Church pastor for 23 years. She had returned to Morrisburg at frequent intervals to visit relatives and friends.

Born at Morrisburg, she was the daughter of the late John Saddlemire and his wife. She graduated from Morrisburg Collegiate and was later married to the Rev. D. K. Fetterly, also a native of the Morrisburg district, who survives with one son, Major D. John Fetterly, USAF, Austin, Texas and one daughter, Mrs. Lyle Lassinger (Ruth), Saxonburg; also two sisters, Mrs. Roy Swerdfeger, (Hattie), Williamsburg and Mrs. Frank M. Powell (Ursula), St. Catherines. There is also one granddaughter.

The funeral service held Feb. 1 was largely attended being conducted by the Rev. G. Lawrence Himmelman, D.D., president of the Pittsburg Synod of the Lutheran Church. Dr. Himmelman was a member of the Rev. D. Fetterly's first congregation in Nova Scotia.

Poor Decision

Throughout the evening meal, neither had spoken. But as soon as the dishes had been cleared away and they were seated before the fire, the husband's face had lost some of its hardness.

"You know, dear," he said, breaking the long silence. "I've been thinking over our argument."

"Well!" she snapped, without looking up from her sewing.

"Yes, dear, I've decided to agree with you after all," he said meekly.

"That won't be any good," she sniffed. "I've changed my mind."

It had rained hard. The windshield was sprayed with muddied water and the car had narrowly escaped several collisions. "Wouldn't it be a good idea to wipe off the windshield?" asked the anxious passenger.

"Not worth the bother," replied the driver, cheerfully, "I left my glasses at home."

"I liked that telephone man, mummy!"

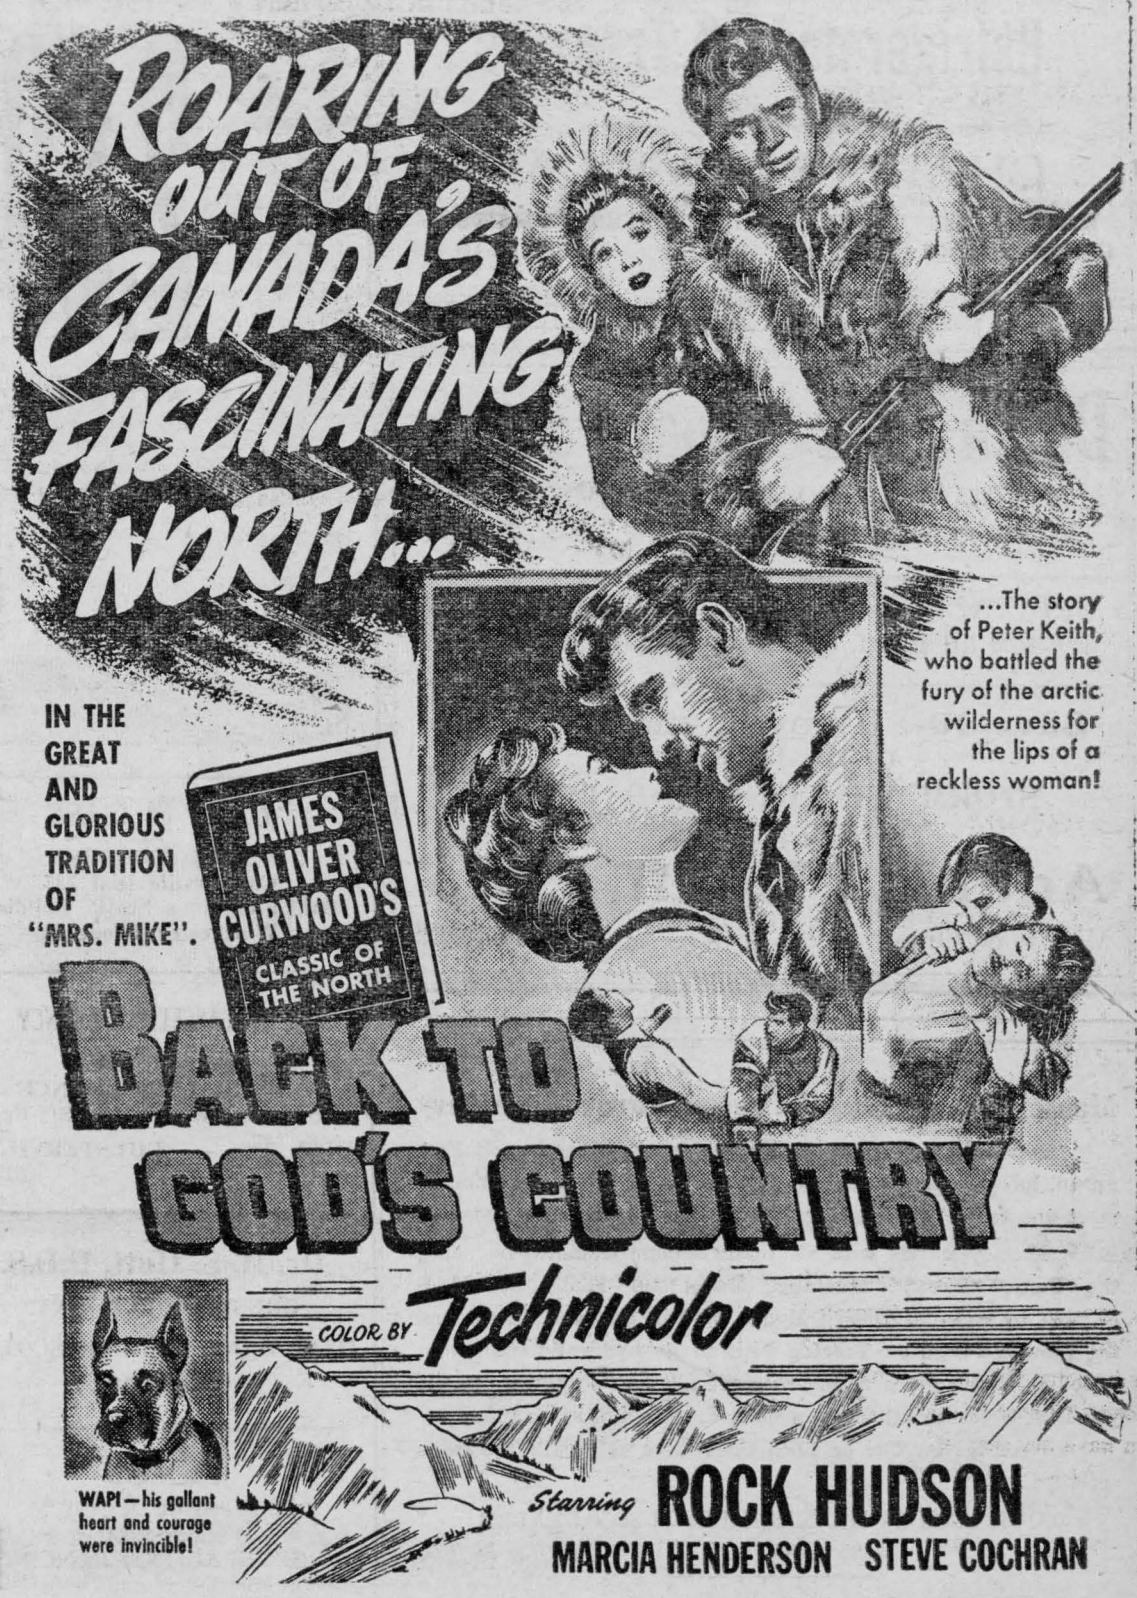

We're glad our telephone man made a hit, Pauline. Lots of grown-ups tell us the same thing — how courteous and obliging Bell people are.

Whether it's the installer, the operator, or the girl in the business office, Bell people like to make you feel they are glad to be of service.

They know that good telephone service is made even better when they are friendly and considerate... even with little people like five year old Pauline.

SCIENCE PREPARES FOOD FOR THOUGHT

What you like for dinner? A nice kangaroo steak, maybe; A dish of Maryland fried agouti? Or how about some tasty stewed rat with creole sauce? And what vegetables with it? A nice order of algae made flavourable by our special process?

You should live so long. Nobody has to eat these unorthodox foods now. But stay out of that time machine, because they may be destined to become the foods of the future. A Cornell scientist suggeststhe possibility. As the population grows and man has to look for new foods, says S.A. Asdell, the kangaroo, the agouti and the rat may become major food sources. However the thought of them may affect you, our great-great grandchildren may really go for them.

Food was just one of the many subjects discussed at the 120th meeting recently in Boston of the American Association for the advancement of Science. Another one, which we'll come to in a minute, was how science can improve newspapers. Still another was why science so often runs second to intuition, or something in such matters as determining aptitudes for leadership, how to run a business, and what the government should do. But that is another story.

To get back to food, a couple of other scientists spoke highly of the lowly alga—which comes in many chlorophyll-laden forms ranging from seaweed to the scum of stagnant ponds—as a future food source. It is rich in valuable nutrients. Fantastic quantities of it can be produced in a small area. But some algae are virtually tasteless, and after you have tasted others, you wish they were tasteless too. But science,it was suggested, can probably remedy this minor defect.

To improve newspapers, it was suggested that editors print in heavy type the one word in each sentence which the writer would stress if he were saying the sentence aloud. Tests are alleged to show that readers understand 20 per cent more when printed material gets this treatment.

THE TOKEN

By Frances Anater

A RAINBOW shining bravely in a cloud
When stormy skies hang dreary, brooding, low
Is Truth fulfilled, the Promise sure and proud
God made to Noah countless years ago.

When heaven's windows swiftly opened wide
And fountains great and deep broke up and raged
The ark and chosen crew rode out the tide
Of waters roaring, tossing, unassuaged.

No more, He said, shall all of earth and man
By mighty floods be wrapped in death's dark shroud.
In faithful proof of His eternal plan
He pledged a token rainbow in a cloud.

CANADA'S CHANGING CLIMATE

The climate of Canada has been getting warmer, says Geo. W. Robertson, meteorologist for the Division of Field Husbandry, Soils and Agricultural Engineering at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. A study of long term weather records at six stations in different climatic zones across Canada reveal that both summer and winter average temperatures have risen during the past forty-five years. In general this warming up amounted to one or two degrees but at Fort Vermilion in northern Alberta it was nearly five degrees!

The temperature data for this study were taken from the records of six weather stations located at Experimental Farms across Canada. The stations are: Napan, N.S .; Ottawa, Ontario; Brandon, Manitoba; Lethbridge, Alberta; Agassiz, B.C. and Fort Vermilion in extreme northern Alberta.

During the summer season, May to October inclusive, the mean temperature for the six stations increased from an average of 53.0 degrees during the first 15 years of the 45 year period, to 54.3 degrees during the past 15 years. Similarily during the five winter months the average temperature warmed up from 18.4 degrees, to 20.3 degrees. The average temperature at the six stations for the unusually mild winter of 1952-1953 was 24.' degrees, 4.3 degrees higher than the average for the past 15 years.

Ottawa records show the least change of the six stations studied. During the winter the average temperature at Ottawa rose from 20.0 degrees in the early years of the period studied, to 20.7 degrees during the past 15 years. During the past five years, however, the average climbed to 23.6 degrees.

Summers at Ottawa have actually been getting cooler although the trend during the last few years was rather indefinite. The average temperature dropped 0.7 degrees from 57.9 in the earlier years to 57.2 for the past 15 year period.

What has this small but upward trend in temperatures meant to farmers? The extra warmth during the summer months has aided in hastening growth and maturity of craps. In some cases growth and time required for maturity is decreased by 5 per cent for every increase of one degree in temperature. The frost free period has been getting loinger as a direct result of the trend towards higher temperatures. On the average the period between the last spring frost and the first fall frost has increased about 12 days for the six stations studied. The increase was at Agassiz where the average frost free period increased by 40 days, from 183 in the period 1909-23 to 223 days during the last 15 years, At Fort Vermilion for the same years the average frost free period lengthened 10 days from 66 in the early years to 76 days during the latter years. As a result of this general trend towards warmer weather and a long frost free season crops trend to mature earlier and the risk of frost damage is reduced.

Two men on board ship were passing the time relating stories of their absent-mindedness

" I'm really absent minded said one of them. "I have names and telephone numbers written down on my memo pad but I can't remember what people they represent. A few weeks ago, having a little spare time, I found the name and address of a man which baffled me, so I wrote to him asking if he had heard of me, and if I was to do something for him."

"What happened?" asked the other.

"Well," was the grim reply, "he wrote back a cordial letter, saying that I had already done it. He was my wife's first husband."

Two country bred brothers were having a reunion. One of them had married a small town girl and lived on a farm. The other had married a girl from New York and lived there.

"They're a lot of rabbits around where we live," related the farm fellow. "You remember what fine eating they make. Sure are economical too, just the price of shotgun shells. But that wife of mine—she throws a fit as soon as you say rabbit. Steaks and lamb chops, that's what she's interested in."

"My wife's the same way," confided his brother. "Practically kills me when I mention rabbit. With her its mink or nothing."

COLORFUL ICE CARNIVAL HELD IN RUSSELL ARENA

The Russell Lions Club sponsored a successful carnival at the Russell arena. Ken Millar was the chairman of the carnival and committee members were Warwick C. Legge, Robert Rowan and Garland Hall.

President Allan Tanner extended a welcome to all present. Other Lions assisting were John Twiname, W. Donald Hay, Tom Thompson, Hector Deguire and Donald Graham.

Judges for costumes were Mrs. Allan Tanner, Mrs. G. Irwin McCaffery and Fred Scott.

The Lions gave a treat of ice cream bars to all children present. Great credit was given to the teachers, Miss Louise Stearns, Miss Doris Warren and Charles Kenny for the school pupils' work on the school floats.

The winner was the Valentine float by the junior room in charge of Miss Warren.

The individual float was in charge of Misses Deanna Adams and Nancy Legge.

The youngest skater on the ice was three-year-old Donald Honey, who was dressed as a little clown and his tumbles in skating caused great applause from the spectators as did the performance of his five-year-old brother, Eric, who also was derssed in a clown costume. Four-year-old Bobby McNaught also received a hand from the audience.

Among the best costumes in age groups and for the open class, winners were: Heather Jean Twiname, Eric Loucke, Claudette Cloutier, Norman Kincaid, Meryl Waddell, Barbara Brunton, Donald McCaffery and an Ottawa guest, Susan Lee Jackson bringing a touch of Spring as a Flower Pot of blooms.

Winners in the races included Eric Loucks, Gladys George, Barry McVey, Eleanor Phair, Kenneth George, Betty Graham, Dorthea Phair, Rene Cousineau, all firsts; second places were won by Robert Cosman, Judy Rombough, Wayne Rombough, Patsy Ford, Bruce Loucks and Nancy Legge.

A broomball game was enjoyed with the local Lions and community men. The game ended with no score.

Two girls' teams played hockey and ended their game with a one-all score. Ernest Adams was the referee. Captains of the teams were Miss Doroothea Phair and Miss Jeanette McDonald. The goals were scored by Arlene Walker and Nancy Legge.

The young bride placed the Christmas turkey carefully on the table for dinner.

"This, my dear," she exclaimed "is my first roast turkey."

Her husband looked in admiration. "Marvelous, darling" he said. "And how wonderfully you've stuffed it!"

"Stuffed it? It wasn't hollow."

The little car was speeding along the road, but every 40 yards or so it would hop a few feet into the air and then rush on again. At last a puzzled policeman halted the car.

"Am I crazy or is there something wrong with your car?" he asked.

"The car's all right," said the driver. "It's me. I've got the hiccoughs."

A BULL EXERCISING RING — Its not too difficult to arrange an exercise pen for one bull, but it becomes quite a problem at an insemination station where there are many. This is how it is done at the Insemination Plant at Milner, B.C. The ring is ovan in shape, one-eleventh of a mile in length, and has an asphalt floor. The sides are 3inches apart and the roof is low and of solid construction. The narrow passageway and low roof prevent the bulls from turning or rearing up and all they can do is to follow one another around the ring. "Cutting gates" are provided to let the bulls in and out one at a time. Plans of this structure have been supplied to Finland through FAO and a similar exerciser is being built in that country. There are now 23 insemination stations throughout Canada at whch exercsing bulls is a problem. Dept. of Agriculture Photo

CLEANING THOSE WINDOWS

The sun, as well as rain, can undo the work of the best window washer. The following pointers are offered housewives:

Wash windows when the sun is not shining directly on them to cause uneven evaporation of the cleaner and give a streaked surface. It's more economical to use a soft paper instead of a cloth, but both must be lint free.

A good cleaning solution can be concocted from one tablespoon of washing soda dissolved in a pail of clear water. On a very cold day, moisten the cloth with alcohol or kerosene. Kerosene is a very efficient, inexpensive cleaner.

Whiting or some prepared cleaning paste may also be used on windows with good results. Let the cleaning agent dry, then wipe off the powder which removes the grease film, leaving the windows bright and clear.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Hydro Home Economist

Hello Momemakers! Valentine's Day will always be the time to remind the gentle sex that chivalry is not dead. Yet, we like to circle the day to remind us that our job enrolls us as a member of that group making the largest single contribution to the art of homemaking—home ecnomics. There are an increasing number of home economists-in-business especiaally in Ontario who are doing splendid work and their companies value their services.

We are taking the opportunity of introducing you to a limited number of home economists whose work is geared to help you. In the dairy business there is Marie Fraser of the Dairy Farmers of Canada, Annette McMonagle, Milk Foundation and Eileen Campsell at the Borden Company. From CBC you hear Ruth Harding. At Baker advertising Agency there is Helen Gagen, and at General Foods Company, Betty Kirby. Martha Logan of Swifts and Brenda York of Canada Packers give demonstrations and check information to be authentic. Two leading magazines and a weekend paper each have a staff headed by Katherine Bayley at Canadian Home Journal, Marie Holmes at Chatelaine andMarjorie Ellwood at the Star Weekly. Perhaps you may meet one of the home economists with the electrical manufacturers— Marie Loise Bertois of Westinghouse, Elaine Collett of Moffatts, Patricia Ellison of Frigidaire, Yvonne Bateman of Guerney and the gas company have Betty Bright in Toronto. At London Public Utilities there is Thelma Stein and at Galt Utilities, Barbara Piott. Other members of our group are Jane Rittenhouse with H. J. Heinz Co., Corinne Trerice with Bakery Foods Foundation, Mary Humphries with York Knitting Mills, Betty Williamson with Lightning Fastener and Kay Kipling with T. Eaton Co.

The simplest and most direct answer to the question, what is a home economist would be—a graduate who holds a degree in home economics or household science. That is to say, a graduate whose course has included sciences such as chemistry, biochemistry, physiology and bacteriology, as well as the study of family economics, home management, child development, food and nutrition, diet therapy, textiles and clothing and related subjects. This training provides a background for these specialists, many of whom have chosen teaching, food service or dietetic professions. The phase of those members we have listed today concerns Home Economists in Business and without a doubt it is all the more interesting when we are associated with you, the homemaker who puts home economics into practice. Our aim is to provide a digest of homemaking that is practical, authentic, timely and interesting.

A hiker making a trip through the woods of Northern Maine was walking along one day when he saw a column of smoke in the distance. Making his way toward it, he found an old hermit sitting outside a cave, cooking some food The hiker was asked to share the old man's meal and after they had eaten, the hiker seemed curious about the hermit's existence so far from civilization.

"Don't you ever get lonesome away up here?" he asked.

"Ye,s I do," admitted the old man, "but I manage to keep myself amused."

"How?" asked the visitor.

"Well," said the old man, "I've got a couple of good jokes I tell myself.

PLACE IN ROTATION FOR APPLYING FERTILIZER FOR HAY CROPS

In establishing hay stands, application of fertilizer for the nurse crop and the new seedling of hay species is a common and recommended practice. However, in many instances additional fertilizer or manure as a top dressing on hay land will give good results.

In seven tests conducted on different soils by the Field Husbandry Division, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, the average yield the first-year legume hay was increased from 1.92 tons per acre on plots receiving 300 lb. of4-12-8 fertilizer at the time of seeding to 2.27 tons on similar plots except that an additional 300 lb. of 0-12-8 fertilizer was applied in the fall following harvest of the oat crop. In an other series of plots receiving the equivalent of 300 lb. of 4-12-8 fertilizer per acre but with the nitrogen and one half the phosphorus and potash applied at the time of seeding and the other half on the oat stubble, the yield of hay was 2.14 tons per acre. The decrease in the yield of oats resulting from withholding one-half the quantity of the mineral elements was only 1.6 bushels per acre. In a recent test seeded in the spring of 1952, the yield of the first year alfalfa hay was increased from 1.25 tons per acre on untreated plots to 2.99 tons where phosphorus and potash were applied at the rate of 120 lb. P205 and 100 lb. K20 per acre at the time of seeding. Where this fertilizer mixture was not applied until the following spring,, the yield of hay was 3.25 tons. However, considering the yield of oats used as a nurse crop as well as a hay crop, it was better to apply one-half the fertilizer at the time of seeding and the remainder on the oat stubble in the fall. This procedure resulted in a yield of 3.30 tons of hay per acre, and a yield of oats similar to that obtained on the plots receiving the full rate of fertilizer at the time of seeding.

On older hay stands where grasses predominate, nitrogen should be included in the fertilizer. Where available, manure may be used to good advantage instead of fertilizer on hay stands. To obtain good hay yields this crop must receive consideration in arranging the fertilizer program.

SAVE THE TAILS OF LITTLE PIGS

The tail of the little pig is of little value to the packer or butcher. But without this small apendage no pig can attain the ultimate in form, balance or poise, that means so much to the eye of the feeder, breeder or show-ring judge. To the observant feeder, tightly curled tails are also an indication of good health and thrift, while straight uncurled tails convey the opposite meaning.

Observations made at the Dominion Experimental Farm, Indian Head, Sask., says W. W. Cram, indicate that loss of tails usually occurs during the first month of the pig's life and that a large proportion of such losses is caused by a form of external infection.

Little is known regarding the infection which causes the tails of young pigs to dry up and fall off. It appears probable that it may be a form of parasitic fungus on straw which has the ability to transfer to, and live on, the skin of young nursing pigs.

The first sign of this type of infection in young pigs is usually a small spot or scab on the upper side and near the root of the tail. From this small spot the infection rapidly spreads around the tail to form a narrow, dark-coloured band which completely girdles the tail, generally within two to four days. When the girdling is completed, circulation within the tail is stopped or impeded and the tail dries up and falls off within a short time.

Experience at the Indian Head Farm has shown that such infection can be controlled effectively and the tails saved by the application of tincture of iodine during the early stages of infection. Treatment on two or three successive days is advisable. Care should be taken that the entire infected area and the region surrounding it is well painted or coered with iodine. If treatment is delayed until complete girdling of the tail has occurred there is little chance of success.

CREEPING ALFALFA PROVES HARDY

Plant breeders are working to pasture types of alfalfa which will persist under grazing. There is also a possibility that such a type might be developed to be more adapted than existing varieties to shallow or poorly drained soils.

Rhizoma, a creeping-rooted type developed at the University of British Colombia, has not shown so much of the creeping habit in tests in Eastern Canada. Creeping-rooted alfalfa strains are being developed at Swift Current from crossing creeping rooted plants of a Siberian strain with plants from the Ladak variety. The Swift Current Station has a few strains of this type in tests at a number of Experimental Stations across Canada. These strains are showing a more definite creeping character than Rhizoma. Single plants growing in spaced planting may show a spread of from 3 to 5 feet in two years' time.

At the Kapuskasing Station in northern Ontario, where winters are severe, Rhizoma has compared favourably with varieties such as Grimm, Cossack, or Ontario Variegated. Under unfavourable conditions in the winter of 1952-53, Rhizoma came through the winter with only 8 to 9 per cent winter killing compared with 25 to 35 per cent in other varietes. This was attributed to the wet fall in 1952. Based on this fact, M. R. Wiancko, in charge of forage and field crops at Kapuskasing, believes a creeping-rooted alfalfa might be developed that would do better in low level, poorly drained areas of the clay belt than the ordinary tap or deep rooted varieties. He already has under test the new strains with more definitely creeping rootstocks that have been developed at Swift Current.

Pulp and paper generates an eighth of the national income.

As with farm crops, the period of tree growth varies greatly.

LIVED IN RAGS HAD FORTUNE

More than $500,000 was found Sunday in the home of an 86-year-old woman who was brutally beaten last Wednesday in Detroit.

The woman, Mrs. Carrie Wherritt, dressed in rags and lived alone.

Police counted $291,800 in cash and estimated there was at least that much more in securities in a safe in her bedroom.

Mrs. Wherritt, still in a serious condition in hospital, offered no explanation of the large sum of money.

The cash was in $500, $100. $50, $20 and $10 bills.

Police found Mrs. Wherritt sprawled on her bedroom floor after a neighbour reported she had not seen the aged woman for several days. The safe lay beside her.

Detectives said they thought the woman was beaten for refusing to tell the robbers the combination of the safe.

Proof

The teacher was giving a health talk to her class, and warned her pupils never to kiss animals or birds.

"Can you give me an instance of the danger of this, Sam?" she asked one boy.

"Yes, Miss, my aunt Alice used to kiss her dog."

"And what happened?"

"It died."

"Maybe you left your lunch bucket home"

Our cartoon represents a situation that persists in many homes —the husband complacent and happy after a day's work well done, but the good wife with a worried and frustrated feeling because her work has been so much more difficult than necessary.

A little thought and planning, plus a few $$$ for material, (with your own labour) and you can have a warmer house with insulation, storm windows and doors, a shiny, modern up-to-date kitchen, newly painted wall-trim and floor surfaces that are so much easier to keep clean, etc.

Its a myriad of little things that can make all the difference. Think of them now—do them today—enjoy them for months to come.

Just ask us! We can supply any of the material you require—you have the benefit of our experience for nothink.
