Tuberculin Test, X-Ray Explained

Dr. John A. Thomson, Medical Advisor to the current Mass Tuberculin Testing and X-Ray Survey in Stormont and Dundas Counties, today issued a statement explaining the use of the tuberculin test and miniature x-ray films in the survey.

"Persons who receive a tuberculin test, are asked to return to the clinic on a specific day to determine if there has been a reaction to the test", Dr. Thomson said. "All persons who have a reaction, and all persons over 40 years of age, are then asked to have an x-ray. Diagnosis of tuberculosis is seldom made on the basis of the miniature films taken at the mobile x-ray units", he added.

"The small films used for mass x-raying of this kind, represent a great saving in time and money. Their purpose is to screen out cases that show suspicion of tuberculosis or some other abnormality" Dr. Thomson explained.

"When a person's film is negative, that means that he is free of tuberculosis at that time. A notification to this effect will be sent to the individual. If the film reveals suspicious abnormalities, a larger x-ray must be taken for further study, to find out just what the trouble is. It does not mean that the person necessarily has tuberculosis".

All persons whose films have such indications, are asked to attend a special clinic at an appointed time, in order for a larger film to be taken and further investigation carried out.

The Stormont and Dundas Counties Tuberuclin Test and X-ray Survey which starts on September 9th will continue until October 16th.

MOURN DEATH OF MRS. M. SEELEY

Mrs. Mackenzie Seeley, an area native and a resident of Morrisburg for the past eighteen years, died at Oxford Private Hospital, Kemptville, Saturday, August 30th, following a lengthy illness. Four months ago, she moved to Oxford Mills to be with her daughter, Mrs. Basil Glover. She was in her 88th year.

The former Ella E. Beckstead was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs Ralph Beckstead of Glen Becker, north of Morrisburg. In 1900 she married Mackenzie Seeley, a Matilda Township farmer who predeceased her 21 years ago. Following the death of her husband, she remained on the farm until 1946, when she moved to Morrisburg to reside with her brother, Mr. Allen Beckstead and Mrs. Beckstead.

Mrs. Seeley was a kindly and a friendly person. She had a keen intellect and was famed throughout the village for the beautiful braided rugs she made. She was a member of Lakeshore Drive United Church and was especially associated with the S.S.S. women's group. The wealth of floral tributes and messages of sympathy testified to the esteem in which she was held.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Basil Glover (Lena) at Oxford Mills, and two brothers, Allen Beckstead and John C. Beckstead, both at Morrisburg, and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral service was conducted Tuesday, September 1, at Fizsimmons' Funeral Chapel, Iroquois, with Rev. James Osborne of Oxford Mills officiating. Burial was in Spruce Haven Cemetery, Brinston.

Pall bearers were: Kenneth Beckstead, Harold McIntosh, Ted Beckstead, Oliver Garlough, Clifford Seeley, Rae Seeley.

Former Resident Passes Suddenly

A former area resident Mrs. John M. Kittle, passed away suddenly at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. W. Warner, Smiths Falls. She was in her 79th year.

Eva Viola Fetterly was born November 11, 1886 at Williamsburg. A daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Fetterly, she was twice married. Her first husband was the late Alexander (Sandy) Gordon of this area. Her second husband, the late John M. Kittle, predeceased her several years ago. Her entire married life was spent at Grantly. In 1949 she moved to Aultsville, where she resided until Seaway demolition when she moved to Smiths Falls to make her home with her daughter.

Mrs. Kittle had a sharp mind, a prodigious memory and many hobbies. She was a great reader and was well versed in Biblical, historical and geographical subjects as well as events of the day. She was a keen amateur gardener, an expert in the handicrafts of quilt and rug making, a participant and observer in Little Theatre work. She enjoyed travel, both armchair and real.

Since her seventieth birthday, she had travelled to Long Island, Texas, New Mexico, Tancook Island in the Atlantic Ocean and to Mexico. Many of her trips were made by jet plane. She enjoyed writing about her travels and had several articles and poems accepted and published under the pen name of "I'va Dell".

Three of Mrs. Kittle's brothers, Grant, Arthur and Pliny Fetterly, served overseas in World War I.

Arthur and Pliny returned to Canada but Grant is buried in England. Since that time she was very proud of her birth date.

After an absence of many years, since in 1920 her brother Arthur, after being invalided home, had been forced to live in Texas because of his health, in 1957 the brother and sister enjoyed a happy reunion.

Mrs. Kittle is survived by one son Byron Gordon of Cornwall and two daughters, Mrs. C. W. Warner (Marion) Smiths Falls and Mrs. Jas. T. Greene (Doris) of Clarkson. She leaves three brothers: Arthur of El Paso, Texas; Pliny, of Hamilton, Ont.; and Hamilton Fetterly of Waterloo, Ont.; and two sisters: Mrs. Ewen Munro of Cornwall, Ontario, and Mrs. Harry Thomas of California, U.S.A. Three brothers, Grant, Miles and Hugh, predeceased her.

Among the many relatives in this district are two cousins, Mrs. Chas. Crober and Miss Grace Fetterly at Morrisburg.

The body was at Smiths Falls Funeral Home and later at Brownlee Funeral Home at Finch. Funeral service was held in Grantly United Church, with Rev. H. M. Beach her pastor for many years at Grantly officiating. Assisting were Rev. John Arbuckle of St. Andrew's Lutheran Church, Smiths Falls. The choir of Grantly United Church, attended, with Mrs. Donald Kyle of Colquhoun, as soloist. She sang "The Old Rugged Cross".

PEE WEES LOSE IN FINALS GAMES TO END SEASON

The Morrisburg PeeWees lacrosse team lost their last two games to Long Sault to lose the best of five final series 3 games to 2. Long Sault now advance against the winning team from Cornwall Minor Lacrosse Association and the winner of that plays the winner from Ottawa for the ELA crown.

For the Morrisburg team it was a tough series to lose as they led 2-1 after three games and then lost 7-6 and 10-2. The local boys played the first four games of the series without the services of Tom Dawley and he was way below par in the final as he was still limping on an infected foot. Russ Cameron again came up with a solid effort in goal for Morrisburg and should be even better next year.

The Lacrosse Association would like to thank all those who had any part in the success of the past season, especially those parents who drove to the out-of-town games, and the Morrisburg Leader for the publicity accorded the teams.

"US OLD-TIMERS"

Those of us over 40 years of age can be proud of our accomplishments. Collectively, we have supplemented and strengthened the heritage left us by our fathers. The result is a country that is well developed, yet fast growing and still measured largely in terms of its potential.

Individually, we have all made our own kind of sacrifice for our children. We have all worked to give our sons and daughters the kind of life we ourselves were not fortunate enough to have — education, standing within the community, for some of us even enough food.

Others of us left our own countries to make our homes in this land. We left our friends and the life we knew to make a better life for our families.

And, we brought some bad along with the good.

Since we were born in an era of much more tuberculosis and since we have lived a longer time during which to become infected, we now are the chief source of TB infection to others. Many tuberculosis victims are infected by members of their own family, primarily by older persons.

Nor can we know who among us may be innocently victimizing our own families for tuberculosis may be symptomless, even while contagions. Yet it can be discovered with x-rays.

When we go for our chest x-ray examination, we can proceed for no better reason than to protect the health of those for whom, most exclusively, we have worked a lifetime.

Those who do not submit themselves must think little of their contribution.

Report on Canada's Parliament . .

By Mrs. R. W. Wadds, M.P.

Most of us on the Conservative benches in Parliament have paid little attention to the Government charges that we are filibustering on the flag debate. In politics one gets used to words being used for a purpose. Filibuster is a word with unpleasant connotations. It suggests obstruction, a mulish stubborn ness without hope of negotiating and a pucity of ideas with which to go on to any sort of compromise or conclusion.

There are mayy different ways to filibuster. The most obvious is a steady stream of talk, by one man if the rules allow, or by many if length of speeches are limited.

The same result of prolonging the issue can be achieved by throwing in points of order, demanding rulings from the Speaker, challenging these rulings so that a time-consuming vote must take place on the Speaker's decision. Jules Gregoire, Lieutenant to Creditiste Leader Real Caouette, is a past master at this type of filibuster.

A situation where all Members of a Party wish to speak on a certain subject cannot and should not be called a filibuster at the outset. This is the situation we have on the flag debate. Mr. Pearson proposed what is commonly referred to as the "Pearson Pennant" and which is now well known to have three maple leaves on a white back ground with blue bars at either end The Liberal Members had apparent ly agreed amongst themselves that they would accept this flag, and by not speaking on it would shorten the debate and therefore speed its passage through the House of Commons.

There have been, of course, a couple of well publicized exceptions The Hon. Mitchell Sharp whose temper led him into an explanation of the Government's feelings. The other exception was Mr. Ralph Cowan from York-Humber, a Toronto Riding, who is known to be an out-and-out Red Ensign defender. Mr. Cowan made a more fiery defense of the Red Ensign, even than some Conservative Members, saying that this was our flag by Order in Council in 1945; that it should be distinctive for anyone; that this is a sudden political action of the Government. He reported on many Liberal meetings and reviewed a great deal of Liberal campaign literature to prove that the flag question had not been mentioned. Mr. Cowan said that he disagreed with the present argument that adopting a new and distinctive flag was go'ng to restore unity in this country. He criticized his own Leader, Prime Minister Pearson for saying "The time has come to reach a decision on the official Canadian flag in the interests of national unity and to give Canadians a much needed sense of pride and confidence in their country", and answered him saying - "I should like to point out that I for one, have a sense of pride and confidence in this country, as I believe millions and millions of other Canadians have pride and confidence. I have not seen anyone running around with head down, despondent over the fact that we now have the red ensign as the national flag, as it was okayed by the Mackenzie King Government in 1924 and again in 1945".

There undoubtedly are other Liberal Members who have some such feelings, but they have stayed quiet under Party discipline.

The situation could develop into a filibuster, but just because Conservative Members wish toexpress their opinions does not mean that the debate so far has been a filibuster any more than any other issue heavily debated.

A flag should be a sign of unity. Every effort should be made to see that a flag is chosen under which the greatest percentage of Canadians can unite. By sincere honest expressions of opinions, various parts of Canada come to understand one another better. With goodwill it should be possible to find common ground.

It is quite obvious that a Committee would be a less cumbersome group than the House of Commons. I personally see no reason why a time limit is needed on this important negotiating. As was wisely said by one of the speakers, as long as thsi debate takes place on the floor of the House of Commons, there cannot help but be a good deal of politics involved. Using other means towards a solution would be recognizing this fact and making some attempt in what seems to me to be the right direction. We need a non-political flag, in fact a flag to remind us that Canada is bigger than any one political party.

Nearly 5,000,000 cars and trucks have been built at the huge assembly plant of General Motors of Canada in Oshawa since production began in 1908.

NEW TELEPHONE EXCHANGE BUILDING OPENED AT WILLIAMSBURG

Group of citizens including township officials pose with officials of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, before the new telephone exchange building at Williamsburg, which was opened for inspection on Friday and went into service on Sunday. Building was started one year ago, and equipment required extensive testing. Its functions were explained to the group. (Photo by Smith, Morrisburg.)

Telephones in Williamsburg were connected to a new dial exchange on Sunday, August 30th.

L. M. Holtby, local Bell Telephone manager explained that the move to a separate exchange was anticipating rapid growth in this region which could cause telephone congestion in the future.

The immediate effect on William sburg customers will be slight. More individual and two-party lines will be available but perhaps more important will be the knowledeg that the new exchange has the capacity to serve the community for many years to come.

A new exchange, of course, means new telephone numbers which go into effect immediately. They begin with 535 followed by four other digits and are listed in a recently issued supplement to the district directory. Calls between Williamsburg and Morrisburg will continue to free of long distance charges and monthly service rates will not be eaffcted.

The transfer on Sunday is the culmination of over a year's work, mostly behind the scenes. The local wire and cable system was thoroughly examined and reinforced, foundations for a new dial exchange went in nearly a year ago, and complex dial switching apparatus had to be installed and undergo the comprehensive testing period.

Telephone History In Williamsburg

Williamsburg telephone history goes back to 1885 when Mr. Casselman, the postmaster, broached the subject of a long distance line between his community and Morrisburg with Bell Telephone management. In 1896 this service became available when a line was built between Morrisburg and Winchester which passed through North Williamsburg and Chesterville.

Eleven years later, in August of 1907, the telephone directory lists nine customers and W. C. Strader as manager:

4 Deeks, J.H., Merchant, Williamsburg.
5a Ford H.W. & Co. Merchant Bell Tel Pub. Stn. Bouck's Hill.
2b McIntosh, J.E., merchant, Dundela.
1b Merkeley, J.H. agent Williamsburg.

W. C. Strader looked after local telephone affairs until 1919 from his store where the switchboard was located. His son, W. C. Strader described the old telephone system like this: . . . the old switchboard was lhung on the wall. It had three or four rows of shutters as I recall. It was dark wood. Balls of fire used to fly off it during a thunder storm. I remember Dr. Locke, who was sitting on the counter at the front during a thunder storm, warned us not to go near it"

And telephone service was provided from 8:00 a.m. to 10:00 p.m. on weekdays and closed down on the Sabbath.

The telephone directory of 1910 includes Dr. M. W. Locke, a world-famous Canadian foor specialist. His nmber was "1". Dr. Locke's fame helped to increase local telephone traffic as thousands flocked to his consultation rooms.

In 1920, the Williamsburg Branch Commercial telephone office was closed and subscribers were connected to the Morrisburg exchange where David Henderson was local manager. The switchboard was in his drug store.

After Mr. Henderson's death in 1948, M. D. Wilson took over the drugstore business and Mrs. Mildred Tousaw became the local representative for the Bell. Dial telephone service came to Morrisburg in 1957.

Why willows root easily

Most everbody knows that you only have to stick a willow cutting into the ground in the spring to get a willow tree in your garden.

Willow roots well without added growth aids because it contains its own rooting stimulants.

Dr. M. Kawase of CDA's experimental farm at Morden, Man., says that the stimulants dissolve out of willow cuttings when they are steeped in water. This was proved by using the water to stimulate root development of a mung bean cutting, a sensitive test plant. The stimulant in the water even hastened rooting of other willow cuttings.

But the interesting thing to Dr. Kawase is that the willow rooting stimulant differs from the growth-promoting hormone found previously in plants and named indole-3-acetic acid. The hormone aids the mung bean root growth only slightly but the mixture of hormone and willow stimulant promotes rooting more effectively than either alone. The stimulant also showed other characteristics different from the hormone.

Now attempts are being made to isolate or concentrate the stimulating compound or compounds. Previous reports on hard-to-root cuttings show that they have apparent deficiencies in plant nutrients, vitamins and root-promoting substances other than hormones. If the willow stimulant is in the last-named category there are hopes that it may prove useful as a universal root promoter. However, Dr. Kawase cautions that root-promoting substances so far extracted from the willow cuttings have been tested only with a few kinds of cuttings but with success.

Show little interest in politics as career

In a poll conducted in a McGill University summer class only two out of 60 students indicated any interest in elective office. Among many, we are told, there was "disinterest and cynicism" over politics at every level.

Do these young people think that public service is dull and uninspiring; that all the great definitive debates have been held and resolved; that all the exciting battles have been waged and won; that all the momentous reforms have been instituted? They should spend an evening on Parliament Hill or in a provincial legislative assembly.

Now as in the past the field of politics at all levels offers more opportunities than most others for new ideas, for innovation and reform and most of all, for great exertions and great accomplishments.—

Verne Trewin, of Ottawa, whose life was saved by a rare kidney transplant, and his wife, say goodbye to nurse Sue Montabone of the Royal Victoria Hospital.

EXPLORATION OF THE SEA

We hear a lot these days about the sea around us.

Not only is it the last great, and virtually unexplored, physical frontier that remain to challenge the energies of men; we are told that it is a vast repository of mineral wealth that will maintain the civilizations of the future long after land supplies are depleted.

It may be a distant day when minerals from the sea assume this role, and an even more distant time when men are forced by population pressures to take up living on or under the sea, as many predict will happen.

Already the increasing need for fresh water for industry and irrigation and everyday use is lending urgency to the development of economically feasible methods of extracting it from the sea.

The harvesting of food from the sea, is becoming a more and more important factor in the race between hunger and population growth.

We think of the sea as illimitable, just as men considered the New World four centuries ago. Like the exploited frontier, however, the sea is not inexhaustible, except perhaps in terms of water.

The best fishing banks are crowded with the boats of many nations. Iceland and Britain have been at odds over fishing rights and methods, as have the United States and Japan and Russia and other nations.

Even as the land is not uniformly productive, so it is with the world's oceans. Waters once teeming with fish have been known to become barren, whether through unexplained causes or through the actions of men. The economies of many peoples have risen and fallen with the changing fertility of the sea.

Hunting of the seal and whale, once wide open, has had to be regulated lest these creatures join the long list of animals—some of them sea animals—that have been driven to extinction by men.

Fishing of the sea is still largely a "catch as catch can" pursuit. One concerned party, Dr. Donovan B. Finn, a former fisheries official with the United Nations, has called for taking some of the effort now going into competitive exploitation of the sea and putting it into "a co-ordinated world wide study of the sea and its living resources."

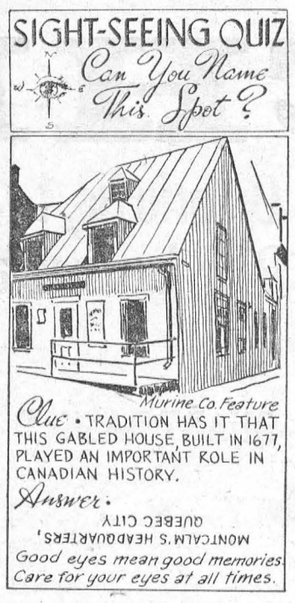
The United States and the Soviet Union are presently taking the first steps toward a co-operative investigation of desalting sea water.

Twelve nations are engaged in a two year survey of the Indian Ocean with a view toward increasing the fish harvest so vital to the countries bordering it.

Perhaps these things can be the precedents for launching, not too far in the near future one of those world wide scientific endeavors like the International Geophysical Year—this one to be devoted to a broad-scale exploration of the sea and all its economic facets.

Such a "year of the sea" would range from a survey of its mineral wealth to the problems of fishing and atomic waste disposal, food to the working out of inter-from discovering new sources of national codes to insure wise use of the sea's resources.

It is a challegene that must be met . . . now.



Blind's "eyes" barred from restaurants

"When you go into a restaurant, you don't leave your eyes on the sidewalk, do you?"

The question was asked by Marcelle Rodden, Montreal, blind, but trying to lead a normal life with the help of a guide dog.

She was complaining that some restaurants refuse to allow the guide dogs to accompany their masters. For while a Montreal health bylaw bars animals from eating places, it excepts guide dogs.

Among the 25 blind Montrealers with guide dogs discussing their problems, some said that apart from restaurants, some chain stores also refused to admit them, and some had been passed by buses.

All had had some experience with waiters addressing their sighted companions instead of talking to the blind person, as if he were deaf as well.

Armand Martin, a blind night club pianist, said customers often ask the sighted musician who accompanies him "does he play this?

George Cohen, a public relations man said:

"It's up to the people with guide dogs to pave their own paths and open the door for others. You have to educate the public, sell them."

FUNNY & OTHERWISE

Two Irishmen driving through the country noticed that many of the barns had weather vanes in the shape of huge roosters.

"Pat," said one man to the other, "can you tell me why they always have a rooster and niver a hin on the top av thim barns?"

"Shure," replie Pat, "an it be because av the difficulty they'd have in collicting the eggs."

Mike tripped and fell into a deep drain. His companions rushed to his assistance and found him lying motionless at the bottom. Pat got down beside him and giving him a shake, asked: "Are ye dead, Mike?"

"No," replied Mike, "but I'm spaichless."

Four-Time Winner of the Masters

3 STEPS TO PROPER POSTURE

The golfer who crouches too much at address (1A) will probably lack consistency. There is too much temptation for him to raise and lower his body during the swing. The golfer who stands upright and rigid (1B) lacks flexibility and probably will not generate much clubhead speed and distance.

For proper posture, I advocate this 3-step exercise:

1. Stand upright with your arms and club extended in front of you (#2).

2. Bend from the knees so that your entire body lowers about one inch.

3. Still retaining this flex in your knees, bend forward from your waist until your club lies flat on the ground (#3). Keep your back straight and let your posterior protrude in back. Now you are ready to swing with speed and ease.

117 Seed varieties offered growers in five years

Tangible results of plant research for the Canadian farmer are the new varieties developed and the recommendations for growing them, Dr. J. A. Anderson recently told the Canadian Seed Growers Association.

The head of CDA's Research Branch said 117 varieties had been introduced to Canada in the last five years — 22 originating from abroad but tested here, nine developed by agricultural colleges and faculties in Canada, 86 produced by CDA scientists.

One of the outstanding varieties emanating from CDA was Selkirk wheat released 10 years ago and recommended to areas subject to stem rust. Selkirk was the outcome of a quarter century of research in depth into the nature of rust itself and the genetics and inheritance of resistance factors in the host. Probably the work cost in the vicinity of $10 million.

Dr. Anderson said the returns are already 100-fold and will steadily increase. It was estimated that Selkirk had saved wheat growers one billion dollars and probably U.S. farmers benefited equally.

PUBLIC NOT AWARE OF EFFORT NECESSARY TO PRODUCE NEW STRAIN

The former director of the federal Grain Research laboratories at Winnipeg said he was surprised at how blithely people talk about producing a variety of higher yield—say a new wheat for the north. The genetic factors affecting yield are so numerous and their interactions are so complex that comparatively little progress has been made in setting out the genetics of yield. To gain the knowledge and depth of understanding needed to make breeding for yield a science rather than an art would require a massive research effort and ten years of careful breeding with the aid of advanced statistical methods and a computer.

He described the deciphering of the genetic code as the most exciting area of biological research today.

Farmers, he said, need scientists who can seize new knowledge, new tools and new methods as they develop and apply them to the problems of today; scientists gifted with foresight who, if they cannot forestall the developing problems of the future, can at least make plans to meet them.

He had found the contribution made by scientists to agriculture ir Canada beyond assessment. There was no crop or animal in the country that had not benefited from their efforts.

What's new in men's Wearing apparel

"Elephant's Paw"

Well, according to Tailor and Cutter, the bible for men's fashions which is printed in London, the tight-pants set are due for a shock. The latest in styling from Italy is the "flare line."

Tailor and Cutter says that early information on the Fashion, Trade Fair to be held in Italy in September reveals that although the trouser line in Italian-style will still be predominately slim, a break-away in widening of the trouser bottom is planned. The wide-bottomed pants will be called "the elephant's paw."

It may be of interest to the younger set that bell-bottomed trousers are almost as old as the navy and were in demand in the early 1920's by the cool cats of the day, who were called sheiks. The sheiks jumped from bell-bottoms to similar pants with black cuffs and thence to even wider styles that featured at least 24-inch leg widths all the way up.

The sheiks had almost as much hair as the present mods but they kept it slicked back with the greasy stuff out of reverence to Rudolf Valentino, the movie idol of the period. Even their name came from one of his pictures.

Linen in made from the flax plant.

Your Life and Mine

Problems need calm approach

by phyllis mitchell

THE WAY problems are approached usually indicates the nature of results obtained. Anger may cancel success, but calmness allows positive factors to work for us. It is always important to remember these truths when we are caught up in annoyance.

A woman who was disturbed by her husband's weekend activities commented: "I have never said anything to him about it, as I thought it would make him all the more determined. Also, I thought if I did start to speak my mind I would scream at the top of my lungs." Of course, if she were to do so it is hardly likely the outcome would be beneficial. Probably tension would be seriously increased.

Fortunately, the reader was wise enough to be silent, and she added "words said in anger can never be retracted, but there are times when things should be said."

It is certainly true that discussing problems calmly is one of the keys to solving them. Yet we are often hesitant to open up the subject with the one concerned. It is regrettable because when communication between two people breaks down the relationship suffers. Problems that do not need to be prolonged may grow out of proportion to their real status simply because one person does not understand the feelings of another.

Recognizing a need for discussion, another woman who could not bring herself to mention her feelings to her husband, wrote a letter and put it in his lunch box. It was the beginning of new understanding between them.

If you have something to say, pray for wisdom to choose the right words. Select an appropriate time, and make your comments gently. Do not emphasize the faults of the other person. Mention the good qualities involved and then explain your concern. Do not be discouraged if some annoyance arises. It will pass. Concentrate on love and calmness, and your words will not be lost.

KETCHUP? MUSTARD? CADMIUM?

Outdoor cooks using discarded refrigerator shelves for grilling run the risk of poisoning those who eat the burnt offerings. Many metal household products are coated with cadmium, which can melt under the high temperature of burning charcoal and stick to food being broiled on the makeshift grill.

TAILGATERS TRESPASS on the protective space behind other cars by following too closely.

They caused over 7,000 accidents in Ontario last year because they didn't leave a safe stopping distance between cars.

Safe stopping distance is at least one car length between your car and the one ahead for every 10 miles of speed. At 60 miles an hour you should be six car lengths behind the car in front of you.

If a tailgater is following you too closely, here's a tip from the Ontario Safety League. Slow down a bit to leave more space between your car and the one ahead. With extra stopping room in front, you're not so likely to have to come to a quick stop . . . and not so likely to be rear-ended by the tailgater.
