Routine Matters Considered at April Council

All members of council were present with the reeve Monday evening for the April meeting. Business was routine.

Hydro affairs were handled in the first part of the session. It was decided to write off some small accounts which were not collectable, to the extent of $19.60. Correspondence was read regarding the rehabiliatation and repair of hydro lines in the municipality. The figure of $10,000 had been set as the maximum to be spent on the system this year. Ontario Hydro enclosed a contract to do the work, and suggested the tree trimming and removal be authorized as soon as possible. There were eight trees noted that needed removal and a total of 298 trees that needed attention.

13th Bill Low at $313.93

The village hydro system received $146.90 from Bell Telephone as pole rental fees. The final bill had been received from Ontario Hydro for the cost of power to the municipality. This year an additional $313.93 was needed to close the account. Last year the amount was much higher.

It was decided to place an advertisement in the Record notifying the public that new higher hydro rates went into effect on April 1st and will appear on the May billing.

Delegations waited on council when the council meeting opened. The first group representing Chesterville Community Centre Board asked council to relieve them of the responsibility of paying for the power used by the street lights in the park. After some discussion, this was agreed to.

Milk Merchandising By-law

Mr. Carl Merkley presented his case to the members in the matter of protection against other persons selling milk in the municipality. He asked council if they would consider some form of by-law that would strictly regulate the merchandising of milk. Mr. Merkley's position was that he had made a large investment in equipment and property and was delivering a good product and should thus be protected against the inroads of competition. Council found the problem a hard nut to crack. Much discussion ended with the word to Mr. Merkley to return to council with a tentative by-law drawn up by his solicitor and then council would reconsider the question.

A grant of $30 was alloted to the Dundas Advisory Board of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Messrs. Wm. Fulton and Jas. Sullivan asked the town to proceed with the hydro service for the new construction rising on South Street. Clerk H. C. Hummel outlined the necessary steps to complete the transaction. The two gentlemen further asked consideration of council in regulating building in the South Street area, with a possible minimum of 900 square feet allowed for any new building. The proposal was viewed with favour after some discussion and the matter laid over for final settlement.

Parking Lot Discontinued

Council sadly recognized the fact that John Q. Citizen does not take kindly to a parking lot when there is a possible street available. Notice was received from the owner of the parking lot property that he wished the contract to be cancelled and council concurred.

Appreciation was expressed by council for the special grant rereceived from the Ontario Government.

The annual notice was to be placed in the Record regarding the beginning of Daylight Saving Time to come into effect this year on Saturday, April 30, at midnight.

General discussion followed on several matters: parking on Casselman Street during Music Festival days; a report of the housing survey committee; discussion of a $2-an-hour feet to be charged for the new village sump pump.

Township Council Awards Bridge Contract To Sullivan Bros.

The regular meeting of Winchester Township council was held in the Presbyterian Hall, Morewood, on Monday, April 4, with all members present. The minutes of the last regular meeting were adopted as read and signed by the reeve.

It was decided to have a by-law passed to regulate and govern junk yards and dump yards in the Township of Winchester.

Council decided to have the regulations governing half loads on roads strictly enforced after April 4th, 1955, in the Township of Winchester and the road superintendent was instructed to have necessary notices erected.

By-law No. 852 a by-law to increase the road superintendents salary from $175 per month to $190 per month retroactive to January 1st, 1955, subject to the approval of the Department of Highways, was finally passed.

By-law No. 853, a by-law for the maintenance of the Summers-Baker drain and for borrowing on the credit of the municipality the sum of $3,815.64 for completing same was provisionally adopted and the clerk instructed to have the by-laws printed and served or mailed as provided by Section 25, of The Municipal Drainage Act.

The road superintendent and clerk were instructed to advertise for tenders for 8,000 cu. yards of pit run gravel and 4,000 cu. yards, more or less, of crushed gravel delivered on the roads in the township.

The engineer's report on the Belisle drain was read and adopted and the clerk instructed to have the necessary by-law prepared.

Tenders were opened for the construction of a bridge over the Castore River, east of Ormond, and the contract awarded to Sullivan Bros., of Chesterville, at $12,356.00.

Council gave a grant to the Chesterville Legion No. 343 to assist them in the building of a Legion Hall and a grant of $100 to the Dundas County Advisory Board of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

The following accounts were passed and paid: Roads and bridges, $3,483.29; relief and charity, $205.10; foxes, $18; Chesterville Legion, $500; Institute for the Blind, $100; fire, $85. Total expended on roads and bridges to April 1st, 1955: $10,303.76.

Council adjourned to meet in Winchester on Monday, May 2nd, at 10 : 30 a.m.

Mr. Hosea Droppo Rotary Guest Speaker

Mr. Hosea Droppo, principal of Chesterville Public School, was guest speaker at the local Rotary Club meeting last Monday night. Mr. Droppo's topic was "Modern Aspects of Elementary Education."

One of the special aspects of the talk was the new and old methods of teaching reading. The speaker stressed both the phonic method and the sight method and the efficiency of these methods for the capacity of the various types of students.

The speaker stressed the need for special facilities to give each type of pupil the opportunity to achieve the best possible results. The existing school plant is no longer able to accommodate the student body efficiently in Chesterville.

Polio Shots Given Wednesday Here

School children of Grades I and II received their first injections of Salk vaccine this Wednesday here. Two following injections will be made in the next month.

Dr. H. Justus was the doctor in charge of the work here, assisted by Public Health Nurses M. Baillieul, of Stormont, and J. Kennedy, of Winchester. Mrs. Gordon Lannin also assisted the doctor.

Most of the small children showed a remarkable lack of worry about the "needle." This generation is getting more used to getting hypodermic injections than some of the older children. As a result there is less fuss when a mass injection is necessary.

Evening Auxiliary Holds Thank-offering Meeting Mrs. Harry Coote Smith is Guest Speaker for Event

"It was one of the most thrilling experiences of my life," Mrs. Harry Coote Smith said as she told of the Second Assembly of the World Council of Churches which was held at Evanston, Ill., in August, 1954, where for 17 day hundreds of delegates from Protestant churches all over the world met together to discuss ways and means of coming together that Christ's prayer "that they all may be one" may become a reality.

Mrs. Smith, a graduate of Toronto General School of Nursing, who taught in Velore Medical College in India, now lives at Oakville and is secretary of the Dominion Board of the W.M.S. of the United Church. She was guest speaker at the Easter Thank-offering service of the Evening Auxiliary which was held in the dining room of Trinity United Church on Monday evening

Illustrating her address with beautiful coloured slides, Mrs. Smith told of the two weeks she spent in Evanston. She described many of the sessions and related the findings of several of the commissions. She described as "exciting" the half hour she watched as the various delegates in their native costumes filed into a large church singing in their own language "A Might Fortress is Our God."

Climaxing the entire conference was a service in Soldier's Field, Chicago, when 125,000 Christians met together to enjoy massed choirs, pageantry and a service of re-dedication. Mrs. Smith, who is an outstanding speaker, held her audience spell-bound for almost an hour and a half as she related her thrilling experiences.

She was introduced by Mrs. Gerald Gilbert, while Mrs. R. A. Mitchell expressed to her the thanks of the Auxiliary

Mrs. Fay Shaver presided over the meeting. A trio, comprised of Mrs .Eric Casselman, Mrs C. A. Graham and Mrs. F. M. Cass, accompanied by Mr. P. G. Hewitt, sang "I Heard an Old Refrain." The worship was conducted by Mrs. B. Lapp and Mrs. C. A. Graham and Mrs. Geoge Olsen received the offering.

During the business period the secretary read a letter from St. Andrew's Presbyterian W.M.S. inviting the Evening Auxiliary to attend their Thank-offering on April 29th. The members were pleased to accept the invitation.

The president announced that the committee in charge of the May meeting would be Mrs. Fay Shaver, convener, Mrs. H. K. Graham, Mrs. Hilton Reid, Mrs. A. Butcher, Mrs Hugh Marcellus, Mrs. Haldane Durant and Mrs. Dalton Casselman.

Mrs. T. D. Ross, on behalf of the Afternoon Auxiliary, thanked the Evening Auxiliary for having been privileged to attend the meeting and hear Mrs. Smith address.

Following the programme refreshments were served by Mrs. M. E. Johnston, Mrs. [illegible] Mrs. Gerald Gilbert, Mrs. B. Lapp, Mrs Leroy Smith, Mrs. Hulbert Henderson and Mrs. C. Allison Graham.

The meeting closed by saying of the rosary for Father MacDonnell, for a speedy recovery. Mrs. Peter Manley thanked Mrs. Chevrier for the use of her home for the meeting.

Eastern Ontario Cattle Breeders Hold Annual Meeting Heredity Stressed as Major Cattle Breeding Factor

Professor V. A. Rice, head of the Animal Husbandry Department of the University of Massachusetts, addressed the eighth annual meeting of the Eastern Ontario Cattle Breeders Association at Kemptville on factors in breeding.

He was introduced by W. P. Watson, live stock commissioner, Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Line breeding, said Prof. Rice, was an intelligent way to improve a herd and an artificial breeding unit ensured that few mistakes were made than in individual breeding on a farm.

When three good sires were used in a herd, a good herd would result over the years. The record of one animal was not enough to make a good herd; an inheritance record had to be made of the brothers and sisters of the animal. Heredity was 75 per cent and environment 25 per cent of the whole matter in breeding.

J. Frank Casselman, president of the Eastern Ontario Cattle Breeding Association, was chairman for the meeting and Dr. R. J. Smiley, the secretary-manager in his report stated that there had been a large increase in cows bred and artificially bred animals were making good showings at many fairs, due much to the good work being done by the technicians of the unit.

There had been a steady increase in the business of the unit during the eight years it had been formed. One new sub-unit had been formed and there were now 24 units with 378 new members in 1954.

Herefords Increase

There had been 39,308 cows bred in the breeds of Holstein, Ayrshire, Jersey Guernsey, Hereford, Shorthorns, Dual-purpose Shorthorns, with the biggest increase being in the Hereford breed.

Some consideration was being given to frozen semen and a holding unit which would be started here in about six weeks 'time. The growing of feed on the Unit land had helped to keep the bulls in better condition that ever. It was the hope that as soon as conditions permit that building of a large laboratory, office and breeding room would take place.

A. M. Barr, principal of the Kemptville Agricultural School, besides extending a welcome to the breeders, as chairman of the Bull Buying Committee, praised the work and ability of Dr. Smiley and also gave the various reasons for making changes from time to time in the bulls at the station.

During the past year new bulls had replaced others as follows: Ayrshire, 1; Jersey, 2; Holstein, 4; Hereford, 1. Carriers of red factor had been given careful attention and at the strong request of a number of the association members one such bull was being kept at the station.

W. P. Watson stated that 70 per cent of income in Ontario was from live stock. After being low in 1915, the cattle population was now at about the height of the cycle and might remain so for the next few years.

OPINIONS . . .

Ours and Others

Mr. Harris' New Budget

The new budget, handed down Tuesday night, had some welcome news at last for the hard-pressed wage earner. A sweeping reduction of 3 to 13 per cent in personal income taxes should make a lot of people happy, with the average salary seeing a cut of 12 to 13 per cent. The old age pension levy of 2 per cent still stands.

The remarkable thing about the budget is that the Minister can feel confident enough in Canada's economy to lower the government's income in the face of an estimated deficit this year of about $160 million. According to Mr. Harris, it is relatively simple. All signs point to an increasing worth in the products and services of Canada, so much so that the greatest year yet is predicted ahead in value of gross national product. With that figure reaching an astronomical $26 billion, the finance minister is confident the books can be balanced even with the reductions that will come into effect July 1.

The cries of the auto makers and the tire and tube manufacturers have been heard throughout the land of late. Mr. Harris had a sympathetic ear, it would seem. The excise tax on cars was reduced a little to make a saving of perhaps $75 to $80 on the price of a new car. The tax on tires and tubes is removed. These tax reductions are to be in force immediately.

Some quarters of thought seem to think the finance minister is indulging in something called "deficit financing." Perhaps the new budget is, but we don't think so. We like to think our government has a little more faith in the people of Canada than some of the doom-voiced critics.

Hope at the South Pole

Colossal undertakings have a way of disappearing into the back pages of the newspapers before the jarring of the cold war. And yet, take the Antarctic explorations.

A British Commonwealth expedition will soon try to go 2,000 miles across that bleak, icebound continent with a stop at the South Pole. And even now the little United States Navy icebreaker Atka has nosed through the icepack to Queen Maud Land. It is clearing the way for setting up observation posts to probe outer space, one at the pole, says the Christian Science Monitor.

There was a time in a quieter day when either of these planned exploits would have captured the world's imagination and held it for days. But now hydrogen bombs and nuclear submarines are being tested, coveys of robot-piloted jets flit over oceans and continents, and the latest missile looms on television.

We overcome the physical now with a twist of the wrist. The machines do the work, and the vital concern of man is in the area of morals. To control downward tendencies that would pervert the use of the machines. To regenerate human thought.

But may we take a moment to remind you of Antarctica? In that glaring waste the Commonwealth expedition will soon undertake one of the last major explorative ventures left to mankind. And the American move to the pole will be one of the most elaborate expeditions in history.

To us it is exciting. Why? "Adventure?" Yes. And it calls for selfless co-operation, perseverance, and intelligence under hardship, a situation often missing in this new age. But, more than this, it is men doing marvelous things— but peaceful things.

Street commissioners have ambitious plans regarding the cleaning of our streets when the last ice heaps disappear. It will be a relief to see the end of last winter's sand and dirt.

If There's a Will—There's a Way

Men and women have made wills since time immemorial. It is said that the earliest bequests in history go back at least 3,000 years, and lawyers still point to Aristotle's famous last testament, written in the year 322 B.C., as a model of concise phraseology which left no loopholes for brawling among his descendants.

Here, both from modern files and from the pages of history, are excerpts from the last wills and sometimes whimsical testaments of the great, the near-great and the peacefully anonymous.

Francois Rabelais, the immortal French satirist, who died poor, was in no way perturbed by his lack of worldly goods. His will, still preserved in Paris runs: "I have nothing. I owe much. The rest I give to the poor."

The longest will on record is that of Phineas T. Barnum, one of the greatest showmen of all time. Garrulous in life, he was not to be denied his say even in death. his last will and testament runs through 53 closely written pages of minute instructions as to the disposal of all his circus property—elephants, monkeys, even the huge tent pole which kept up the "Big Top."

A businessman who lived in New Orleans in the late '90s made up for a lifelong frustration in his will. All his life he had wanted to be an actor, but his family apprenticed him to a shipping firm and there he stayed all his life although his heart was behind the footlights.

At his death he left the bulk of his fortunte to a group of local drama-loving friends to perform "Hamlet" once a year as long as the money lasted, with the stipulation that his skull ("Alas, poor Yorick") should be carried in every production.

Leaves Birthday

Robert Louis Stevenson, dying a slow death on a Pacific island bequeathed his birthday as a legacy to a young friend because she complained to him hers fell on Christmas Day and as a result had been cheated of presents all her life. A clause runs: "If, however, she fails to use this bequest properly, all rights shall pass to the President of the United States."

Proven wills have been made on eggshells, human skin, pieces of wood, and in one case at least, in minute writing by a prisoner on a finger nail which he tore out just before committing suicide.

In Maryland a long-term prisoner wrote his last well and testament on the wall of his cell and, in the lawsuit which ensued, interested relatives paid for the whole wall to be torn down and brought into court as "Exhibit A."

In Australia in the 1t9h century a gentleman named Francis Reginald Lord bequeathed to his widow the sum of one shilling and nothing more "so she can use it as tram fare to some far place to drown herself."

In Berlin in the '80s a woman, afterwards held to be insane, had a 200-word will tattooed on her back.

In 1927 a Mrs. L. P. Oldham of Oklahoma City left to her daughters nothing but "my sunny disposition, my sense of fairness and my beautiful neck."

Some time ago a religious lady living in Cherokee County, North Carolina, left all her estate to God.

Her close relatives were, of course, aghast, but the sherriff of the county went through the official business of filling out the necessary forms and summoning God to appear at the probate office to sign the necessary papers.

After failing to find the beneficiary, he disposed of the case by inserting in the appropriate space on the official form: "After careful and diligent search by the Sheriff and his staff, God cannot be found in any part of Cherokee County."

Light Along The Way

More glorious words have never been heard than those of the angel who said: "He is risen." In the fact which they embodied man's most pressing problems of sin, death and judgement were finally satisfactorily met.

Sin is an ever present thing shutting out the Light in spite of all man tries to do. It lays hold of his most cherished dreams and dashes them to pieces on the ugly rocks of greed, envy and selfishness. Sin is an insidious thing that destroys the proper relationship that should bind man to God and to his neighbour. It breaks forth in the destructive power of atomic bombs, and quietly heightens the hatred which set men against each other. But in the risen Christ sin has been conquered. It was hurled against Him in all its terrible ugliness, but He rose victorious over it. This victory He will share with those who walk with Him. Man can know righteousness and goodness through the risen Christ.

Likewise, the hopelessness of death, through the living Lord, is over-shadowed by new life. God so loved the world that He sent His Son that men might see and He raised Him from the dead that they might have hoped. John makes this clear by assuring us that we cannot drift beyond His love and care, for God's power is present even in death. Because of the resurrection of our Lord we can look forward in hope.

Man's love of justice demands that evil be punished and good rewarded. We cannot read the story of Christ's suffering and crucifixion without realizing that the evil men did then brought its reward. Neither can we see the Risen Christ without recognizing that the victory does not belong to evil. We are all conscious that the result of man's folly is suffering and sorrow immeasurable. But the promise of the resurrection carries us beyond this. We are led to believe that somehow God will conquer all evil and win His children to Himself. His Kingdom will come, and man will find the eternal goodness and peace which are the only sufficients ends of life.

Jesus' followers, being convinced of this, could do no other than go out and proclaim it up and down the world. As Easter comes upon us again, we too surely feel that there is no other way than to serve God and to serve Him well. His victory will then be complete.

"PAPPY," 100, VOUCHES FOR SON'S AGE

An elderly gentleman visited the local office of the Social Security administration at San Antonio and suggested that since he was 72 years old it was time he started getting his pension.

Administration personnel checked records and agreed he was covered and eligible. All they needed was something to establish that he was over 65.

He couldn't provide a birth certificate because they were not issued when he was born, in 1882. Nor could he provide a baptismal certificate.

A police record? No.

As a last resort, John Palmer, district manager, asked whether there were any close relatives who could remember his birth.

"Why, sure," replied the applicant. "My pappy."

He got the pension.

His father's age was estimated at 100.

A young man was trying to sell a fire extinguisher: "This apparatus, madam, will be in use for fifty years."

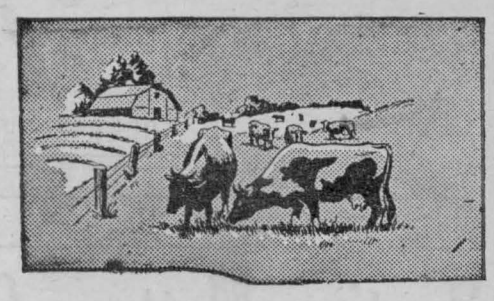

"But, young man, protested the lady, "I won't be here for fifty years!"

"But, madam, you can take it wherever you're going."

No sale!

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS

By Lillian Allison

I'd much rather be outdoors this morning enjoying the beautiful, warm, spring sunshine than to be cooped up in the house writing about it. Of course there isn't anything I could do if I were out there except shovel away snow drifts and get my feet wet. For it is still too early to clean up the winter's debris and begin to do any of the spring work.

But it won't be long until there'll be plenty to do. All signs say that spring is coming.

Several blackbirds entertained me while I hung out the washing the other day. I wasn't too delighted with their noisy song either. Crows, blackbirds and starlings are birds I could do very well without.

As yet I haven't seen my first robin so I haven't made my annual wish. But there was a killdeer around yesterday—you know, those birds with the long legs that run so fast in the garden or beside the tractor in the field.

Harry found an unfortunate meadow lark after last week's blizzard. She had headed north a little too soon—lost her calendar no doubt—for usually she doesn't arrive until May. Apparently she had tried to fly into the stable window and had crashed against the glass. Her body was lying stiff and frozen on the snow directly under the window.

And while we're talking about birds, if you happen to see any martins looking for living quarters this spring direct them to Frendlee Farm. We have a brand new house with eight rooms ready for occupancy as soon as we get a post planted to set it on. The rent won't be high and we'll welcome martins with large families.

I wonder if the old robin that builds her nest in the cedar tree by the veranda will be back this year. Last spring we could see her nest from the kitchen window. I hope she returns. It was interesting to watch her family. I hope the oriole remembers where his nest is too. He's a beauty.

Birds and pussy willows and new calves and baby lambs have always been signs of spring in this country. But we have a new one in recent years. One that comes as regularly as the first of April. I mean the potholes in the roads and streets. We went to Kemptville the other day. And my advice is don't. The roads would shake your teeth out.

Of course there are bump signs every so often. It's a funny thing about bump signs. Maybe you have notice too. You slow up for one of them and gradually ease through a slight dip made when a log in the corduroy base heaved a little. Then just about the time the speedometer gets up to 35 again, Bang! One wheel drops practically out of sight into a pothole that you didn't see at all. The jack bounds out of its place in the trunk, the junk in the glove compartment takes a double flip and the discs in your back practically telescope. Potholes are definitely a modern sign of spring—a costly one too.

They seem to have replaced an older Canadian spring tradition—tapping the sugar bush. Time was when, on the first spring-like day, a large percentage of rural folk made their way to the bush with buckets and spiles to catch the sweet, maple sap and boil it down into delicious syrup and maple sugar. But that was another day—almost another generation.

Now the terms "gathering," "boiling down," "sugaring off" are obsolete. Few youngsters under 20 know their meaning. It's funny too. For in the days when many farmers made syrup it sold for less than a dollar a gallon. Now it sells for five dollars.

It's sort of heart-breaking too to drive through beautiful sugar bushes in Eastern Ontario that haven't seen sap buckets in years while we simply drool for some fresh, maple syrup and an old-fashioned feed of taffy. But such is progress I guess.

Outdoor Roundup

with Joe Foster

Springtime is when small boys buy marbles, tops and kites to play outdoors and pester the old man for bicycles and puppy dogs. This being an outdoor column we won't concern ourselves as to whether Junior merits a new two-wheeler, but rather talk of dogs, more specifically of hunting dogs and when and how to buy them.

Indirect Approach is Best

It has been my experience that larger boys, particularly fathers who fish and hunt, are past masters at rationalizing the purchase of new or additional equipment. The acquisition of a hunting dog lends itself especially well to such specious arguments for denying the family some of the real but easy to do without necessities of life. here are, in fact, so many excellent reasons for having a dog in the home that any selfish interest Pop may have in the matter need not be mentioned at all and once the family (Mother) has agreed to getting a pup, it's only a short step to swinging family preference over to one of the hunting breeds.

Where Angels Fear to Tread

Trying to advise a man what bred of gun dog to select is only slightly less difficult than picking a wife for him. A flat statement of opinion about any of the breeds is bound to start a controversy and more than one beautiful friendship has foundered as a result of arguing the merits of the different breeds. Of those who may be considering getting themselves a dog this spring, some will likely already have their minds made up as to what kind it should be. There will be others who are having difficulty in determining which breed will suit their purpose best. To these I would say that the first consideration might be size. If the dog is to be kept indoors and the house is small, compact and filled with treasured bric-a-brac, then the lady of the house should be consulted. A Chesapeake or Labrador retriever in the puppy stage, and they don't mature much before eighteen months, can be a boisterous addition to any home. Next there is the cost of feeding, although this is not quite the factor that many people suppose it to be. We fed a full-grown retriever on $6.00 a month using 90% commercial dog chow.

What Hunting Do You Do?

Broadly speaking sporting dogs fall into four groups: Pointing dogs, retrievers, flushing dogs and trail dogs. There is no such animal as an all-purpose hunting dog, worse luck, although some breeds have more versatility on game than others. The kind of hunting you get the most opportunity for and the length of the open season for the particular game birds or animals hunted, should be the guiding factor when it comes to a choice of breed. The training of the dog is another consideration. Think well, whether you have the time and patience to train the dog yourself or whether you can afford to have it trained professionally.

Picking Out a Pup

To buy a mature and fully-trained hunting dog is usually an expensive business and understandably so. For the sportsman of average means his best bet is to buy a pup from a reliable breeder. The Ottawa Kennel Club is holding two all-breed shows on May 6th and 7th and the Ladies' Kennel Club of Canada an all-breed show in Montreal on April 24th. At these shows there will be a good representation of sporting dogs and a chance to see the best of the various breeds and also the opportunity to meet and talk with some of the breeders.

Pedigrees Important

In buying a pup, inquire carefully into the hunting ability of both parents. If they are good performers in the field, you stand a reasonable chance that your pup

Newington Fliers League Champions Tendered Banquet

Newington and District Recreational Association entertained the Newington Fliers at a sumptuous banquet held in the White Church Hall. About 75 guests were present.

In the Northern Stormont Intermediate Hockey League series, the Newington players defeated Avonmore in the first round and eliminated Farran's Point in a seven-game series.

After the meal, the president of N.D.R.A., Arthur Zeran, welcomed the guests and congratulated the Fliers on their victorious achivement.

During the programme which followed Ellery Ouderkirk, president of Northern Stormont Hockey League, congratulated the boys on their success.

Jay Bender, president of the Finch Legion, presented the Association with a substantial gift.

Harry Gove, coach of the Fliers, in a few well chosen words, stressed the splendid co-operation and sportsmanship of his team.

He was presented with a set of gold cuff links by Arthur Zeran and Jack Rutley, assistant coach, was given a genuine leather billfold.

Among other speakers were Roger Milliken, secretary of N.D.R.A., Clifford Rombough, Ray Wheeler, Bert McMahon, Eldon Thompson and James Zeran.

Afterwards, residents of the community were entertained at the Orange Hall by music supplied by local talent, which was greatly enjoyed.

Rev. B. F. MacLeod Gives Lecture On Island of Iona

Rev. Geo. F. MacLeod, DD.M.C., leader and founder of the Iona Community, Island of Iona, Scotland, gave an illustrated lecture in the Auditorium of the Public School, Morrisburg, Friday evening.

The lecturer was introduced by Rev. H. Hardwick, of Knox Presbyterian Church. The two men met in 1953 when Mr. Hardwick visited the Island during his trip abroad.

Dr. MacLeod, in his address, gave an outline of his beginning and aim of the Iona Movement. This started in the depression years and its aim being to find a deeper meaning of Christian community life for the problems of the present century. The community consists of ministers and craftsmen who continue their ordinary professions. All spend three months every summer helping to rebulid the abbey. In winter they continue their work in Glasgow and other centres.

The Island of Iona, three miles long and two miles wide, lies off Scotland, and was visited in the sixth century by St. Columba, coming from Ireland. In the 12th century the Benedictine Monks started the present abbey which fell into ruin in the 16th century. In 1902 the Abbey Church was restored and in 1938 the Iona Community started the present work of rebuilding the remaining cloistral buildings.

The pictures showed the various buildings on the Island and the work being done to restore these. They also showed the many groups from various places that visit the Island during the summer. One of the aims is to make an international centre on the Island as well as ensuring the continuance of Community House in Glasgow.

At the conclusion of the address, a vote of thanks was moved by F. H. Broder, of Morrisburg, and seconded by Mr. McRae, of Brockville.

One reason that television is trickier than radio is that two transmission lines instead of one are involved—a video line for the picture, an audio line for the sound. With a lot of programmes going out on the air simultaneously the trick is to keep them straight.

One night, for instance, folks in Buffalo were fascinated by a picture on their television sets of two wrestlers in the throes of a toe hold—and then heard the low, thrilling tones of a man's voice saying, "Darling, we were meant for each other."

"The Green Promise" Farm Life Drama Is 4-H Club Picture

Heads, Hands, Heart and Health are familiar words to 4-H Clubs everywhere. Now the words have been adopted to form a background for a wonderful, wonderful movie for all to enjoy.

The motion picture screen throughout its 50-year history has presented many fine, family pictures. From "Our Vines Have Tender Grapes" to "The Yearling," from "Stars in My Crown" to "Little Women" it has been a proud record of achievement.

Now the screen brings yoc another wonderful picture to see—the tender, moving story of Farmer Matthews and his four motherless children—told by people of deep, rigid faith whose love of God and little children will reach into your heart and stir up all the joy and goodness there. Its title is "THE GREEN PROMISE," set forth by a great cast headed by Walter Brennan and little, lovable Natalie Wood.

All along the way of this grand motion picture you'll find something tugging at your heartstrings—tickling your sense of humour and lifting up your spirits.

You'll warm to Walt Brennan as a stubborn farmer of the old school who is against every newfangled idea down on the farm and you'll applaud little Natalie Wood in her efforts to acquire two little lambs and join the 4-H Club.

And there are scenes you'll remember for years to come—Farmer Matthews asleep in church while a sermon is being preached against him, the spectacular flood that washes out his farm and almost takes his child, the boys and girls of the 4-H pitching in with power scrapers and tractors to reclaim his fields.

Here is a movie to open up your heart and let the sun shine in. Remember the title—"The Green Promise"—for you'll never forget the picture. Take it from me if it doesn't tug at your heart you just haven't got one.

"The Green Promise," starring Walter Brennan and Natalie Wood starts Monday next for 4 wonderful days at the Winchester Theatre, Winchester.—Reviewed by John Canby.

Former County Doctor Dies in Germany

A well known Dundas County physician and surgeon, Dr. George Boothe Ferguson, died Saturday morning in Hanover, Germany, while holidaying with his wife. He was 69.

Dr. Ferguson retired from his practice at South Mountain, Ont., last December and was to have taken up residence in Toronto on his return to Canada. He had been at South Mountain five years.

Dr. Ferguson was convalescing at Munich, Germany, from a gall bladder operation which he underwent in London, Eng., before visiting Hanover. Dr. and Mrs. Ferguson were to have returned to Canada by air this Wednesday.

Previous to setting up practice at South Mountain, Dr. Ferguson practised many years in the west, chiefly at Wadena, Sask.

Born in Moorefield, Ont., he spent his youth in Regina. In 1913 he graduated in arts from Queen's University. He studied medicine in Winnipeg and interned in that city. He served two-and-a-half years as a medical officer during the First World War, first with the British at Salonika where he was wounded and invalided to Malta. On his recovery he joined the Canadian forces and was stationed for some time at Bramshott Military Hospital in England.

When his unit was demobilized he took advanced instruction in surgery at Manchester and then practised briefly in London. Later he served as a medical examiner for the Canadian Department of Immigration in Germany and later at Riga, Latvia, before returning to Canada in 1927.

In 1948 he married the former Margaret Collingwood-Hunter at Toronto.

In addition to Mrs. Ferguson and his brother, Howard, he leaves three sisters, Miss Catherine Ferguson and Mrs. Donald MacPherson, Regina, and Mrs. Sames H. White, Unity, Sask.

"My, your husband's a man of few words," remarked one wife to another.

"Oh, he's just a little sheepish with women."

"I know what you mean. Say anything to my husband and he says 'bah,!"

Tears flow more copiously from women's eyes than from men's except at the 30 to 39 years age level.

The chirp of a one-inch-long cricket is audible for one mile.

Mrs. Jas. A. Ross

Final tribute was paid the memory of Mrs. James H. Ross, wife of a former editor of the Winchester Press, who died at the Winchester District Memorial Hospital on Saturday, at the funeral service held on Tuesday at 2 p.m. at the Vice and Craig Funeral Home, Winchester.

The service was conducted by Rev. A. D. MacLellan, of Iroquois, interim moderator of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Winchester.

Born at Winchester 81 years ago, Mrs. Ross was the former Eliza Blanche Gardiner, daughter of the late William Gardiner and his wife, Sarah Elizabeth Geddes, both members of pioneer families of Winchester.

She attended the Winchester Public School and the Picton High School. In 1895 she married Dr. William E. Agnew, who practised dentistry in Albany, N.Y., until the time ofhis death in 1911. She returned to Winchetser, and in 1915 married the late bames H. Ross, of Smiths Falls, who went to Winchester in 1915 to publish the Winchester Press, which he purchased from the Record publisher, G. C. Lacey, and who died in 1935.

Mrs. Ross had been a devoted member of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church and had taken an active part in the work of the women's associations. She also served on the board of the Public Library and was a member of the W.I. and Red Cross Society.

Surviving are three children of her first marriage, two daughters, Mrs. D. R. Roughton, Kingston; Mrs. J. R. Emery, Scarsdale, N.Y.; one son, Wm. H. Agnew, Ottawa; two sisters, Ida and Emma Gardner, both of Winchester.

Mr., Mrs. G. McMillan Honoured at Reception

A very enjoyable evening was spent when a large number attended the reception in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McMillan, who were married recently. The reception was held in the I.O.O.F. Hall, Williamsburg.

Paul Whittaker and his orchestra supplied the music for the dancing. Mr. and Mrs. McMillan were presented with a purse of money by F. Johnston. An address was read by Clair Empey.

Mr. McMillan spoke on behalf of his wife, thanking everyone for the gift and part. Lunch was served by the committee and others.

MARRIED COUPLES CLUB HOLDS MEETING

The Married Couples Club of St. James United Church, Avonmore, was host to members of the Married Couples Club, of Newington United Church recently.

Eric Rawson presided for the business meeting. Mr. and Mrs. Maldwyn Watkins conducted the opening worship service.

Mrs. Gerald Duvall and Charles McGill were in charge of an interesting programme of games and contests. The showing of films was part of the social period.

Lunch was served under the convenership of Mrs. Fred Barkley.

The distraught, henpecked husband was on the psychiatrist's couch.

"How would you describe your wife?"

"She's the woman of my dreams."

"Then why did you tell me she makes your life miserable?"

"I have nightmares."

ONTARIO HYDRO

ST. LAWRENCE POWER PROJECT

Hydro Undertakes Widespread Construction Throughout Ontario

While work on the St. Lawrence Power Project broadens in scope, Ontario Hydro is pressing forward with other construction activities in different parts of the province to ensure that all Hydro users have adequate and dependable supplies of power to meet both present and future requirements.

At Niagara Falls, for example, Hydro labour forces are making excellent progress on the giant Sir Adam Beck-Niagara Generating Station No. 2. Eight 100,0y0-horsepower units of this power development, which will have an ultimate installed capacity of 1,828,000 horsepower ,are now in service and the ninth is expected to go into operation within the next few weeks. Three more units will be added by mid-summer, thus completing the initial 12-unit stage about one year ahead of schedule.

Construction is also proceeding on the associated 238,000-horsepower pumped storage scheme, a project scheduled for initial operation in 1956 and for completion the following year. Earlier this year, a contract was awarded for the manufacture of six motor-generator units to be used in connection with this undertaking.

Plans call for the future addition of four more 100,000-horsepower generator units as required in the immense powerhouse of the Niagara project.

Upstream from the famed twin cataracts, Ontario Hydro, in conjunction with the United States Army Corps of Engineers, is also proceeding on another project, the Niagara Falls remedial works programme. This scheme, which will be finished in 1957, is designed to preserve and enhance the scenic beauty of the Falls while providing for the most effective use of the Niagara River waters for power production purposes.

In Northwestern Ontario, where development of the Province's natural resources is proceeding at a remarkable rate, Hydro is moving rapidly ahead on the construction of the Manitou Falls Generating Station. According to present estimates, this 56,500-horsepower project on the English River is scheduled for service next year. Because of its isolated location, a 13-mile permanent access road to the site had to be constructed.

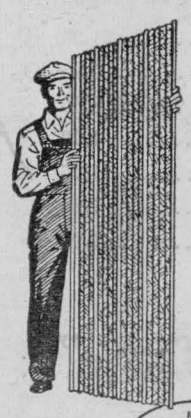

Another power source in the northwest was completed in December, 1954, at Pine Portage Generating Station on the Nipigon River and final clean-up operations are now taking place. Two generating units were added to the plant, which was originally opened in June, 1950, raising the station's dependable peak capacity to 158,-600 horsepower in the four units. The addition required an extension to the powerhouse.

Rura l electrification in Ontario is another phase of Hydro's Province-wide operations which is continually expanding. More and more, the farmer has come to depend upon electricity as his most economical and efficient "hired man." As a result, the Commission has carried out a rural programme to meet electricity demands to the point where today more than 85 per cent of all farms in Ontario are electrified.

Hydro's immense advance in rural electrification is revealed in the fact that in 1945 there were 21,569 miles of rural line and 156,-560 customers in the rural areas of the Province. By March 1st of this year, Ontario Hydro had 392,-467 rural customers and 46,615 miles of rural line—in nine years more than two and a half times the number of customers and nearly double the miles of line.

Despite this expansion, the average cost per kilowatthour in 1954 for rural customers was lower than in any year prior to 1943, a remarkable achievement in view of the increased cost-of-living.

Story of an Aultsville Dog

They're telling the story in Aultsvile of the local dog who insisted on lying on the rugs and chesterfield. Despite scoldings and warnings, he would push chairs aside and head for the parlour.

Finally he was sent out into the cold world—his canine brain began to function and away across the frozen snow he ran to a neighbour's where he barked until the door was opened. Recognized at once, the dog was brought into the house and fed.

After a few hours' banishment, the dog returned home and all was forgiven. Residents are awaiting to see the results of this short course in canine etiquette.

EVERYBODY EATS-- TRY THESE!

IT JUST WOULDN'T SEEM LIKE EASTER without eggs, so let us have plenty of them. Shall we have them plain or fancy? If you are fond of eggs there really isn't any nicer way to serve than poached on hot buttered toast or scrambled on toast along with crisp slices of bacon. However, in case you prefer your Easter eggs in disguise or in combination with other foods, here are some recipes for you.

Baked Eggs

Butter a shallow baking dish well and into it break the required number of eggs.Season with salt and pepper. Bake in a moderate oven until set. Garnish with parsley and serve in the dish in which they were baked. If desired, sprinkle with grated cheese before baking.

Foamy Omelet
With Spanish Sauce

4 eggs
½ tsp. salt
Few grains pepper
4 tbsps. milk
2 tsps. butter

Beat yolk of eggs, add seasonings and milk. Beat whites until stiff but not dry. Heat a frying pan; put in the butter; have sides and bottom well buttered. Cut and fold whites into the yolk mixture. When pan is very hot, turn in the omelet, spread evenly and reduce heat. Cook slowly until the omelet is set. Place in a moderate oven to dry slightly on top. Fold; turn out and over, and around it pour the following sauce:

2 tbsps. butter
1 tbsp. chopped onion
2 tbsps. flour
1½ cups canned tomatoes
2 tbsps. canned mushrooms
¼ cup chopped green pepper
¼ tsp. salt
Few grains cayenne pepper

Cook together the butter and onion, blend in flour, add tomatoes and cook until thickened. Add mushrooms, green pepper and seasonings.

3 egg yolks
½ cup sugar
2 cups hot milk
½ tsp. vanilla

Stuffed Egg Salad

Hard cook eggs, cut in halves and remove the yolks. Mash the yolks, add finely chopped celery or finely chopped chicken or ham. Season with salt, pepper and mustard. Refill the whites with this mixture, piling it in lightly with a fork. Sprinkle each egg with paprika and arrange three halves in individual lettuce cups. Garnish with parsley, cress, celery hearts, olives and slices of tomato.

Scalloped Eggs

Butter
6 hard cooked eggs
Salt
Pepper
Milk

Grease a baking dish and place in it a layer of crumbs, then a layer of slices of hard-cookd eggs. Dot with bits of butter, sprinkle with salt and pepper and add another layer of crumbs. Repeat these layers in order until the dish is full, having a layer of crumbs on top of the dish. Brown in a moderate oven. As a variation, grated cheese may be added between the layers or the butter may be omitted and small pieces of bacon added instead.

Even if we can't have a taffy feed, though, we can be sure it is spring anyway. We have plenty of big flies in the kitchen windows to prove it. Any day now the frogs will start their chorus and the mosquitoes will go into action again. The grass will commence to look fresh and green and life will begin once more .

And isn't it appropriate that spring and Easter come at the same time in our half of the world. For spring is such a wonderful season and Easter is the happiest time of all Christendom.

You won't forget to go to your church on Sunday, I hope. It is Easter Sunday, you know, and you really ought to be there.

Outdoor Roundup—

will have inherited at least some of their instinct to hunt; the rest is then up to you and training. Phil Jacobi, of Woodbridge, Ont., a hound breeder and trainer of many years' experience, once told me that there are two stages of development when you can best pick a pup that is likely to be a winner. First is when the pups are three of four days old and next when they are around six months of age. In between they develop so fast and change so much as they develop that it is very hard to pick those that will at maturity be closest to the ideal for that breed. To pick them a few days after birth is for the experts. If I were buying, I would prefer to make my choice at six months, but this is what you are up against then. The pups that a breeder has left are either those that are least saleable or the most desirable. If the former, and you are not too familiar with the breed, you can make a mistake and get a lemon; if the latter the breeder will know he has something better than average and up-grade his price or refuse to sell. All of which emphasizes that whatever you do, be sure that you are doing business with a breeder known for his honesty and reliability.

NEVER TOUCH a fallen wire!

One reason why electricity serves us so well is that it can be delivered wherever wires will carry it.

Ontario Hydro exerts every effort to keep safe the wires that carry this important commodity, but in spite of all precautions, lines occasionally break. A fallen wire is dangerous . . . it may be a "live wire".

Never touch a fallen wire under any circumstances!

Warn children not to go near them. If you find an electric wire on the ground, or dangerously low, please notify the nearest Hydro office and endeavour to keep others away until service men arrive. Your co-operation may be instrumental in saving a life.

Emma's Dilemma

I've solved the weight problems
Of our economic ills,
Of balancing the budget
And repaying all those bills;
Of stopping strikes and crime waves
And regaining world-wide peace,
Avoiding life insurance men
And payments on a lease;
Still there is just one problem
With which I cannot cope;
I have no sense of Yuma,
So, alas, I can't elope!
