Committees busy with final touches 40th presentation Tues. and Wed.

The fair committee here has been working diligently the past few months and they say everything will be ready when the gates swing open next Tuesday for the 40th annual Chesterville Fair.

The two-day event will be highlighted with the judging of hay, grain, cheese, domestic and education exhibits in the first half and cattle judging and horse racing getting underway at 1 p.m. the second.

The children's events are a feature on Tuesday starting at 9:30 a.m., ending with a pony show at 6:30 p.m. and a chicken barbecue. Evening music will be supplied by the "Country Swingers."

Following the horse races and other Wednesday events the Williams Twins will present the Trans Canada Hell Drivers at 8:15 p.m.

President Wilburn Robinson welcomes everyone to the fair and reminds exhibitors to enter early.

Robertson Outdoor Amusements will provide the midway with big rides and side shows.

The grounds committee has volunteered a great deal of their time fixing and painting and have built a handsome new 100-foot barn to house the cattle.

Hundreds of dollars in prizes are offered in the countless categories of exhibits.

Chairman Malcolm MacGregor has arranged seven categories in the livestock division for the Junior Farmers and Roy Simmons will act as judge.

Also on the first day there will be agricultural displays. For the ladies there's a wide range of homemaking entries.

Louis Moriarty will head the committee for the light horse show on Wednesday with Bob Coleman, Blake Ball and Dr. B. Kennedy keeping the heavy horse competitions on the move. Clarke Mansfield will be judging.

In the four dairy cattle divisions, also on Wednesday, Ralph Thompson will judge the Holsteins while Louis Veillon picks the Jersey winners, Harold Crawford selects the top Guernseys O. Vailancourt hands out the ribbons for the Ayrshires.

Harold Lannin is to be committee head in the beef classes while Ross Dulmage is over in the display building picking the top grain exhibitors.

The cheesemakers will have an opportunity to submit entries and M. S. Martin will decide the winners.

There's an endless list of opportunities in the educational and domestic entries and a committee of 19 area women will be running that show.

So with all this and much more lined up it appears to be a busy two days coming up in Chesterville.

The admission prices remain the same this year at 50c general admission the first day, $1.00 for adults, 50 cents for children and 50 cents for cars the second day and for the evening show on Wednesday $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for students.

Four-hour raging inferno destroys Gallinger barn

Last Thursday morning all that remained of the recently renovated barn of Lloyd and Gerald Gallinger was a smouldering pile of ruin.

Mrs Gallinger was first to notice the fire which started around 11.45 p.m.

Seeing a reflection on a bedroom window, she investigated and saw the disaster climbing out of the milkhouse towards the main cattle barn.

Alerting her sleeping husband and a son Gerald, who lives across the road, area fire departments and neighbours struggled with the four hour blaze.

Gerald plunged into the burning building to save several newly born calves.

As soon as firefighters from the Ingleside, Chesterville and Williamsburg fire departments arrived the senior Mr Gallinger ran frantically to see what nearby machinery could be saved and to help fire fighters hook up to the farm well.

During the early stages of the blaze he collapsed from exhaustion and had to be helped into his house by neighbours.

Dr Howard Justus of Chesterville was called to attend to the man, later reported in good condition.

The Gallinger's prosperous several-hundred acre farm is about eight miles south of Chesterville.

Tanker trucks were called in from Ingleside and Chesterville to draw water and at one point 1,000 feet of hose was hooked to a small pond on the farm.

All the men could do was prevent the flames from spreading to other nearby buildings.

The emergency vehicles left around 4.30 a.m. with a mountain of hay still burning.

Mr, Mrs Ed. Shay mark 25th anniversary

On Tuesday evening, August 17, 1971, about 75 neighbours, friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr and Mrs Edwin Shay, Chesterville, to honour them on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Mr and Mrs Shay were married on August 17, 1946, in the Willis United Church, North Lunenburg, by the Rev. E.B. Bugden. Mrs Shay is the former Leola Florence Werley, daughter of Mr and Mrs Elburn Werley,

Bits and Pieces

Help wanted

The Chesterville Fair Grounds Committee is looking for a helping hand which can swing a hammer. As most people have noticed the committee is building a 112 foot cattle barn on the grounds and Chairman Carl Smith is pessimistic the building will be finished when the fair starts next Tuesday.

This year the workers hope to have just a roof over the 76-foot wide structure and they're asking anyone who can volunteer some help to come to the grounds at 8:30 Saturday morning and bring a hammer.

The forecasted goal for the structure is 200 feet long com- with enclosed sides.

Our Thanks . . .

We spent an enjoyable two hours last Thursday afternoon with Osborne Wood, Russell, and his flying machine. Osborne was manipulating a Russell Flying Club plane while this scribe was busy running through four rolls of film.

The area which we toured included Chesterville, Ingleside, Lunenburg, Newington, Finch, Berwick, Crysler and of course the disaster area at Casselman.

The film is developed and we will use the aerial shots in weeks to come and as space permits.

Our thanks to Osborne for yeoman service.

Only 36 Hours Separate Deaths

Funeral services for Francis (Dobb) Plantz were held in the Vice and Craig Funeral Home Wednesday, 24 hours after requiem high mass was said for his 50-year-old brother Cecil.

The double shock came to the community early this week as Bubby died suddenly Saturday and his 61-year-old brother eied on Monday.

Dunbar Boy Suffers Minor Injuries

Harry Witteveen, 13, son of Mr and Mrs John Witteveen of Dunbar, escaped serious injury Tuesday afternoon in a bicycle/car accident just east of Elma.

Police said the boy apparently pulled his bike into the path of a westbound car driven by Mary Jane Lapp, 21, of Chesterville. Taken to Winchester Memorial Hospital he was treated for minor cuts and bruises and released. Const. Paul Cordes of Morrisburg OPP investigated.

New plant for Cornwall

Canadian Industries Limited of Montreal will receive an incentive under the Regional Development Incentives Act to assist in construction of a new plant at Cornwall, Ont. Ammonium chloride and sodium sulphite will be manufactured in the new plant. It is estimated 19 persons will receive employment.

The incentive of approximately $111,000 is based on a rate of seven percent of the capital costs, estimated at $1,083,000 plus $2,000 for each new job created.

Lucky Les . . .

Les Young, manager of Kraft Foods Ltd., Ingleside, came for an enjoyable surprise last week. Les, who is an avid viewer of the Ottawa Little Theatre, held a winning ticket in a recent draw conducted by that group.

CJOH TV, Ottawa, advised Les, by phone, that he had won a trip to Jamaica. The Youngs do not plan to use the prize this year, but perhaps will work the trip into 1972's holidays.

Streets receive attention

Ingleside Streets came in for some reconstruction recently. Approximately half a mile of the streets received a new surface.

Elm Street from Dickenson through to Wales Ave. had the manholes lowered and the road resurfaced with a coat of asphalt. St. Lawrence received the same treatment from Dickenson west to Farran.

Maple street which suffers the same condition as the streets which were repaved will undoubtedly come in for improvement at a later date.

Holidaying in England

Mr and Mrs Wm. Barnett, Morewood, Mrs Dorothy Bermick and Cecil Dillabough left Saturday evening from Toronto Airport on a three-week holiday in Liverpool, England. Mr Barnett was born in Liverpool and came to Canada 48 years ago. This trip will be his first visit home since his arrival in this country.

Davis visits Parks

"Since the opening of the St. Lawrence Parks system in 1961, more than 24 million tourists have visited the area," Premier William Davis said Saturday at the tenth anniversary celebration of the parkway system's inauguration.

Premier Davis visited the guest house near Morrisburg and praised former Ontario Premier Leslie Frost and First Commission Chairman George Challies, founders of the historic parklands.

"These two men laid the cornerstone for the Parks Commission by signing the agreement governing the generation of hydro-electric power." said Premier Davis.

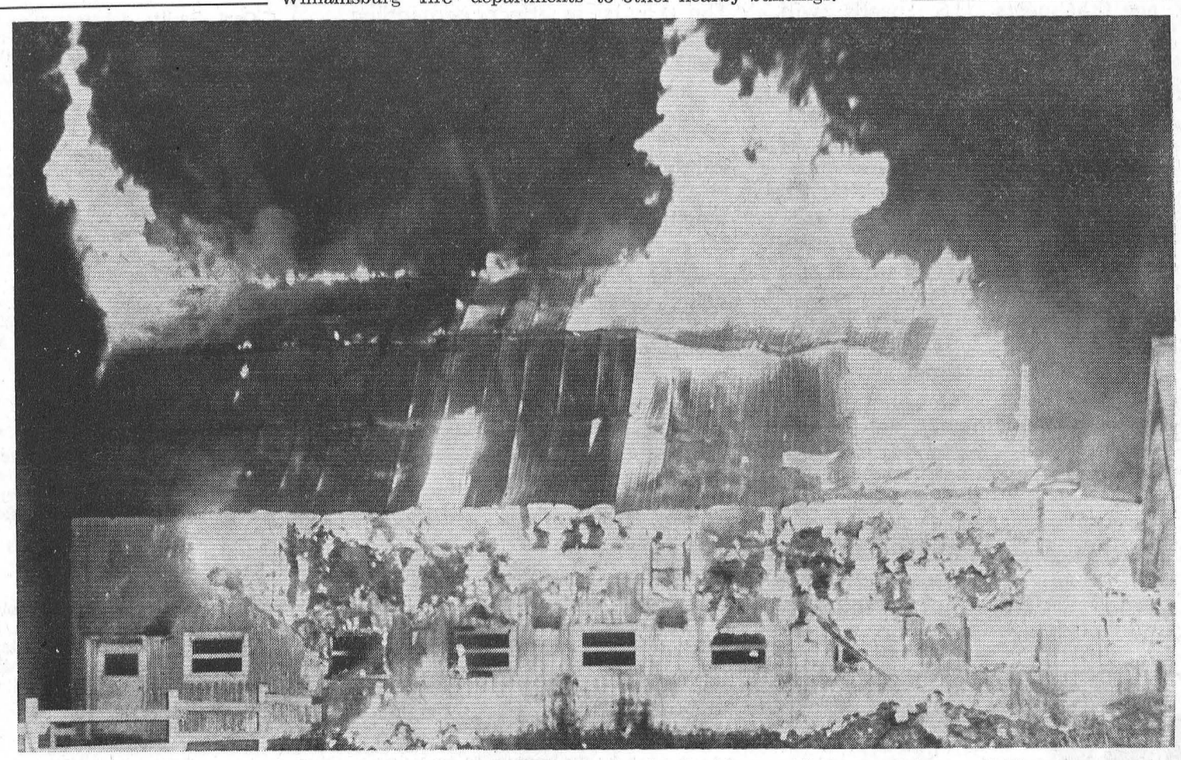
Mr Frost had said at the parkway opening in 1961, "This park system will be one of America's greatest attractions and treasured lands. It turns what might have been a scar created from industrial and economic necessity into an asset of inestimable value."

During the ceremonies, Mr. Davis unveiled the model of a sunken garden fountain at the entrance to Crysler Park, which will be dedicated to George H. Challies, the first Parks Commission Chairman, for his work in the development of the parkland area.

Guests were told that winter activities facilities are being developed in the parks. The Commission is developing snowmobile trails and a toboggan hill in Long Sault Park.

Mr. Davis flew to the ceremony from Ottawa with his wife and three children. His children visited Upper Canada Village during the ceremony.

Public ceremonies including a performance by the Fort Henry Guard were cancelled due to the threat of rain, but the weather remained clear throughout the afternoon.



Last Wednesday evening at 11:45 the barn of Lloyd and Gerald Gallinger, six miles south of Chesterville, was turned into a raging inferno. Firemen from Chesterville, Ingleside and Williamsburg fought the blaze until the small hours of Thursday morning. No cause of the fire has been reported. The loss will run into many thousands of dollars. — Staff Photo.

Despite unsettled weather, Avonmore Fair successful

Maldwyn Watkins, president of Roxborough Agricultural Society, in his opening remarks welcomed all fair goers, drew attention to the fact that Clifford McRae, veteran master of ceremonies, was holidaying in California and that his position was being filled by Sylvester McDonald of Cornwall.

Despite unsettled weather conditions, early in the day, the 111th annual Avonmore Fair was played to a good attendance.

Mr Donald Cummings, reeve of Roxborough Township, was introduced. In his remarks he expressed the loss the Society had felt in the death, one month ago, of their hard working secretary M. F. McRae. Mr McRae's position had been filled by Allan McIntyre.

The McDonald sisters of Glen Roy, and the Brown family of Ottawa were on the platform for the afternoon. They provided an offering of modern and traditional music.

Band music was supplied by Heather Branch Pipe Band, Finch, under the direction of Pipe Major Marilyn MacMillan.

The flower displays in the show hall were numerous and impressive. Listed among the prize winners were: Mrs Hilda McLean with several prizes; Mrs W. M. Campbell, Avonmore, with a prize begonia. Mrs Eileen Tait was a strong competitor with such items as raisin pie and early potatoes. Mrs Tait and Mrs Wert shared honours for their quilts. Mrs Wert's entry was raffled off by the recreation committee. A display by the Stormont Farm Safety Council proved interesting.

Special mention is deserved on the following entries: a kindergarten plaque by Stephen Saucier of Monkland; a presentation on the drug problem by Elaine Leroux of Roxmore School; a paper mache vase by Monica Massia of Monkland and a ceramic table by Dwayne Boivin of Crysler.

Set up just outside the midway area were the usual booths and refreshment stands which were well patronized throughout the afternoon.

Society officials were emphatic in their praise of the high quality of cattle shown at the fair. Thre rings were used by the showmen to parade their Ayrshire, Jersey and Holstein Breeds.

George Hehir's Ayrshire entry won honours for the bull calf and yearling bull; in the heifer class Oarn Flanagan, Avonmore, won the first and reserve junior championship with George Hehir of Newington, placing 2nd. Fraser Hanna of Finch, coped 1st prize in the two, three, four and five year old class for cows. George Hehir's series of entries placed a close second. Hanna won the best group of four and five animals, followed by entries by Hehir.

Two animals shown by Floyd Dingwall, Berwick, a bull calf and a yearling bull calf were chosen as 1st prize winners by Jersey Ring Judge Ron Sharp.

Harold Dingwall, Berwick, had the best heifer calf. In the yearling class Floyd Dingwall showed the leading animal and junior champion followed by Harold Dingwall with reserve.

1st prize for two, three and five year old went to F. Dingwall with J. J. McKenzie and Son of Finch, showing the top four year old. The grand champion Jersey was shown by Floyd Dingwall with Glen McIntyre and Sons, of Finch, in reserve. Both 1st prize Jersey groups were shown by F. Dingwall.

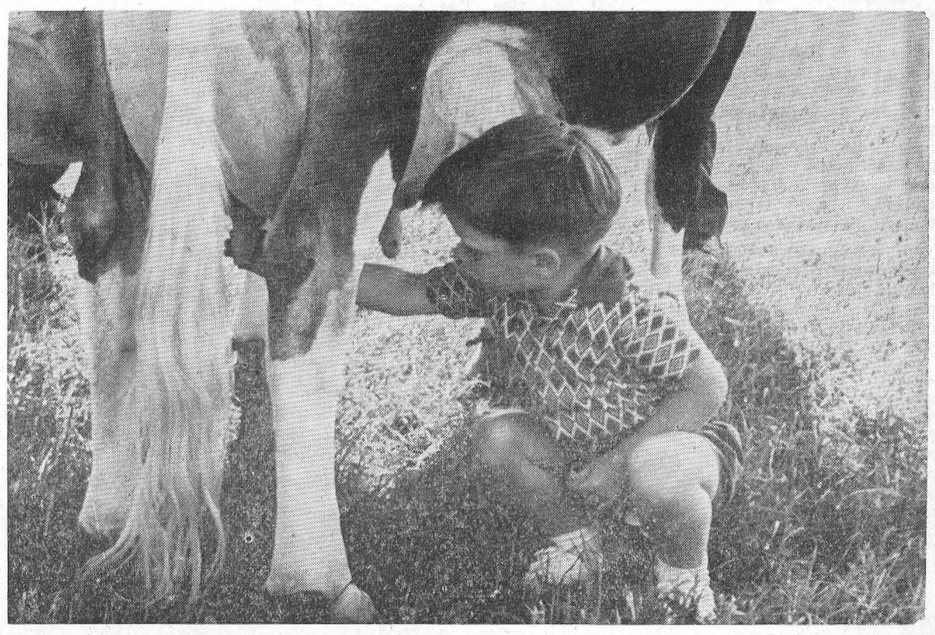
The Holstein showed developed into a two-way battle for 1st and 2nd prizes between Dwight Dawley of Winchester and Gordon McRae of Avonmore.

The Dawley entry won 1st prizes for: champion bull calf, yearling female, three and four year old. The McRae entry won 1st for: two year old as well as 2nd prize for:bull calf, yearling female, three, four and five year old.

The best heifer calf was shown by Wes Ferguson of Avonmore.

Oarn Montgomery of Monkland, had th e best five year old Holstein. The same cow owned by Montgomery led the best uddered cow class. She also was namd grand champion holstein female.

The Census of Agricuture stopped counting farm horses in 1959 because their were so few.



2½-year-old Richard Dingwall, son of Mr and Mrs Floyd Dingwall, Berwick, who is a regular fair-attending patron, here assists the judge in his choice for the best uddered cow at Avonmore Fair. It just happens the cow is a member of the Dingwall herd.

Education Costs, But Also Pays

Has the educational system produced a monster?

During the fifties and sixties, money was lavished on schools on a scale of generosity never before dreamed of.

The theory was that if students were given attractive surroundings the best generation yet would result.

The kids were given airy rooms, colourful decor, better trained teachers, large reference libraries, projectors, tape-recorders, TV sets and the best lab equipment.

Students were allowed to work on their own; student councils got a voice in running some schools; students even started setting up their own schools and courses.

But in 1970 reaction started to set in. Taxpayers groaned under the financial burden. They wondered if schools were realistic with the de-emphasis on competition and marks.

The worst blow of all was the students. They grew long-hair and became vocal. Universities suffered student strikes and riots, high schools had student protest over courses and freedom of assemblies. Kids took drugs.

This was the generation which forced the U.S.A. to reconsider its attitudes toward the blacks and the Viet Nam war. It challenged adults on the quality of life in North America, it howled so loudly about pollution that politicians were forced to listen.

Whatever their elders may — think this generation thinks for itself and searches for its own answers. A waste of money?

Perhaps not, if they save the world from itself . . .

America First

The aggresive U.S. moves to remake the world of trade in an image that meets U.S. needs will sound and reverberate through the international economy for many, many years. The devaluation of the mighty U.S. dollar - is now invited. Gold has been stripped of some of its magic with the temporary suspension of US$ convertibility. All industrial nations except the U.S. face painful production adjustments. Nations in need of aid and trade get less of both. Will the U.S. succeed in recharging its engines of economic growth and rebalancing its international payments without doing irreparable damage to other economies? Will other countries be able to refrain from retaliatory measures that wind down world trade and set the stage for another great depression? This much anyway, is all too clear: The policy now is America First. Some call it the New Imperialism. Certainly it is a demonstration of naked economic power that will bring the world scurring to Washington. The U.S. is, in effect, demanding that the richer nations revalue their currencies upward in order to encourage the growth of U.S. exports. By applying 10 per cent surcharges on foreign manufactured goods sold to the U.S., the American administration is, in reality, forcing a transfer of jobs from other countries to the U.S. For Canada, The Financial Post comments, these developments foreshadow still tougher times in large and important areas of manufacturing. Canada would be well advised to preserve its competitive position with new tax incentives. The tax reductions in the recent budget gave the go-slow Canadian economy only a mild nudge forward. The difficulties of Canadian manufacturing have now been sharply intensified and the prospect is for more, not less, unemployment.

OPINIONS . . .

Editor's note: We must admit we have not had to stay up late at night reading letters directed towards the Opinion column. Your response has left us somewhat confused — either totally satisfied with life or an apathetic approach towards everything.

Problems:

I would like to get a satisfactory answer to some problems.

We are supposed to be living in a free country, but every time one turns around you have to get permission from one board or another, e.g. Department of Health or the O.M.M.B.

If in this case too much education is the culprit, then let some of the planners get out and learn how the older generation made their living. Then they would not have to live like leeches off some other poor guy who is trying to make an honest living

Yours truly,
Concerned

P. S. Don't you think it is time that we do something.

Ann Landers . . .

Dear Ann Landers: People are always complaining about telephone operators — calling them dumb and rude. May I say a word about the public, please? As a telephone operator in charge of directory assistance for more years than I would care to own up to, I have had ample opportunity to form some firm impressions.

Here are the major sources of irritation:

(1) The customer who calls Information for help with a number and does not have a pencil to write it down. He then asks the operator to wait until he can find 'something that will write,' and leaves the phone for five minutes.

(2) The customer who is too lazy to make the call himself and asks his seven-year-old son to do it — then hollers instructions from the next room.

(3) The customer who has his stereo or hi-fi turned up so loud it just about cracks the equipment. He invariably yells at the operator, "I can't hear you. Can't you speak a little louder?"

(4) The customer who does not know how to spell the name of the party he is trying to locate, has no idea where he lives, can't remember his first name of initials. (I once had a caller who started to describe the appearance of the party he wanted to reach, and ended saying "You'd know him if you saw him.")

(5) The customer who gets mad and swears when told the party has an unpublished number and keeps insisting, "you could give the number out if you wanted to."

(6) The customer who eats celery or potato chips while he's on the phone.

(7) Customers who are stoned or drunk (or both) and use obscene language because they cannot make themselves understood.

If you print this letter, Ann Landers, thousands of telephone employees will rise and call you blessed. — More Than Just Talk

Dear More Than: Here it is. Let 'em rise. I've been called lots of things lately but not blessed. Thanks for a welcome change.

* * *

Dear Ann Landers: Everyone reads you. Please help me get a very important message across to people who are getting married. Here it is, in big letters; FOOT YOUR OWN BILL.

When my girl and I were asked to be in a wedding party we were happy to accept, but we didn't know it was going to cost a left lung.

I had to buy black patent leather sissy shoes (with bows yet). I also had to buy a goofy shirt with ruffles, a black bow tie and a satin belly-band. The following week I got a bill for $18 — 'suit rental', it said. The next day my girl got a bill for $37.50 for her bridesmaid dress — a dizzy style with wire hoops on the sides. She will never be able to wear that dumb thing again, except maybe to a costume party.

We spent $30 for a gift which we were happy to do because the kids getting married were good friends of ours — but nothing was said about paying for the wild clothes we had to wear to the wedding.

How can a person figure it is an honour to be in the wedding party when it winds up costing a lot of money? — Bugged And Broke In Mexico, Missouri

Dear B and B: Sorry, but those are the rules, Bub. I agree, however, that your friends should have told you and your girl in advance exactly what the cost would be. You could then have declined 'the honour' and attended as guests.

Drinking may be 'in' to the kids you run with — but it can put you out for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read 'Booze And You — For Teen-Agers Only.' Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

MF Pollution Control Program Is Underway

Two years of planning and about half a million dollars has gone into a copula emission control device for Massey-Ferguson's 'M' Foundry at Brantford, Ont. now being erected. This is only part of a program to reduce pollution at all Massey-Ferguson plants in Canada. So far it has cost nearly $1 million.

In addition to the copula emission control device at the 'M' Foundary, the company installed gas burners in the power house serving the Verity Works in Brantford, and devised a new method for disposal of dust from its sand reclamation operations at the foundry. In Toronto, the company is busy installing gas-fired units for its power house, eliminating the need for burning Bunker 'C' fuel oil.

The copula emission control device at the foundry is the single largest investment made by the company so far in new pollution control equipment according to Frank Badger, M.F. Director of Manufacturing in Canada.

The unit consists of afterburners, cupola caps to contain the gases, quenchers to cool and mix with water vapour, venturi throats to create a high velocity and thorough mixing with water sprays, separators to remove the water and dust mixture, 500 horse-power fans to supply the energy, and separating tanks to gather the dust for disposal. The cleaned gas is finally released through a four-foot diameter stack, 65 feet high, at the rate of 26,000 cubic feet per minute.

To operate the unit, the company will purchase enough gas, electric power, and fresh water to supply about 100 average homes. The company estimates its annual operating cost for the pollution control device at $48,000.

"This is a milestone for our foundry operations." says Badger. "When our foundry was first built there was very little knowledge or interest in pollution control equipment. Now that it is available, we are extremely pleased to get it installed. After all, our foundry creates about 20,000 cubic feet of exhaust gases every minute of operation, and this new device will greatly reduce our emission of gases and suspended particulate, below provincially defined limits."

Massey-Ferguson's 'M' Foundry is one of the largest mechanized gray iron foundries in Canada. Built in 1945, it has been continually modernized. With some 450 employees, it melts and pours some 40,000 tons of iron castings annually.

U.S. stakes in Canada bigger than we think

U.S. investors poured well over $1,000 million of fresh direct investment funds into Canada last year, says Hyman Solomon of The Financial Post's Ottawa bureau. U.S. investors also added a further $500 million to their ownership stake in Canada, by reinvesting earnings of Canadian firms in which they had equity interest. These record investment totals were revealed recently by the U.S. Commerce Department's Office of Foreign Direct Investments (OFDI). The figures show that U.S. direct investment in Canada has not been at all restrained by the general economic slowdown in both Canada and the U.S., or by the ferment in Canada over the issue of foreign control. They also indicate that the full extent of U.S. direct investment into Canada may be much greater than the figures ordinarily reflected in Canadian gathered statistics. The Financial Post says the OFDI figures for Canada include a good deal more than what Statistics Canada (the new name for the Dominion Bureau of Statistics), collects to compile its tables on foreign direct investment in Canada. Statistics Canada, for example, only counts investment in Canadian companies owned or controlled by foreigners. This usually means Canadian firms which are at least 50 per cent owned abroad. This, in large part, The Financial Post says, explains the wide discrepancy between Statistics Canada 1970 figures of foreign direct investment in Canada and those compiled by OFDI. For 1970, Statistics Canada reported that total direct investment by all foreign countries in Canada was $760 million. No breakdown by country is yet available.

2,500,000 women employed . . .

Second income helps families' credit situation

Since women's recent invasion of the Canadian labor force, many families have found their economic standard vastly improved,. Now they have two incomes.

In the 1960's female employment rose by more than 700,000 in Canada. In the same period male employment rose by 900,000. Female participation in the labor force rose from 28.7 per cent in 1961 to 34.4 per cent in 1968.

Families with women in the labor force rose from 21 per cent to 32 percent between 1961 and 1965. Records show that in 1965 the average earnings of a family where the wife was contributing income were one-third higher than those where the wife was not working.

These statistics are recorded in the Canadian Consumer Credit Factbook published by the Federated Council of Sales Finance Companies and the Canadian Consumer Loan Association.

More than 2,500,000 women are currently employed in Canada's labor force. Some of these women are self-supporting and require their incomes for daily living. More than half of them, however, are wives and mothers. Their incomes added to that of the husbands' means many families may surplus revenue over expense. All of a sudden there is more money to spend. And a good deal of the extra will be earmaked for extra goods.

Such a position, while re-assuring, does carry some hidden dangers.

In the first place, while these families have been able to raise their standard of living — while they may have surplus revenue after all the bills are paid — there still is the risk of one of the partners facing unemployment.

Families who do not plan for this eventuality and who live it up on two incomes are stunned when one income suddenly disappears.

It is that much worse if during their lush years they have counted on a double future to carry large purchases on credit.

It is estimated that an interruption of one of the two incomes is involved in about one in four of all serious problem cases referred to credit counselling offices.

When two partners are working, certain major purchases are often made — an extra car, more sophisticated household durables, more elaborate living accomodation, more luxury travel .

The purchase of such items will likely involve credit. If families suddenly lose a large proportion of their discretionary income after they have committed themselves to credit payments, they may find they are in serious financial difficulties.

To safeguard these situations, families with a double income can take certain precautions.

One way is through proper budgeting — spending with an eye to the future. What is the future of both partners' jobs? Is the wife likely to stop work and stay home to look after new arrivals? Does either partner risk job layoffs.

If credit is involved, can future income be counted upon to make the payments?

With extra discretionary income, the two-income family can afford to save more. Sensible investments in stocks and bonds — even special savings accounts — can act as buffers should one income be discontinued.

Finally, there's another safeguard that may pave the way to a more stable family financial situation.

Suppose some of that extra income is channelled into education. Suppose, for instance, the wife of a double-income family puts some of her money into upgrading her education. It might put her in a position where she would be less affected by recessions in the economy. She might live a more fulfilling life and earn even more while she works.

The two-income family can continue to enjoy more material benefits if they are prepared to plan realistically, with an eye to what the future may hold in store.

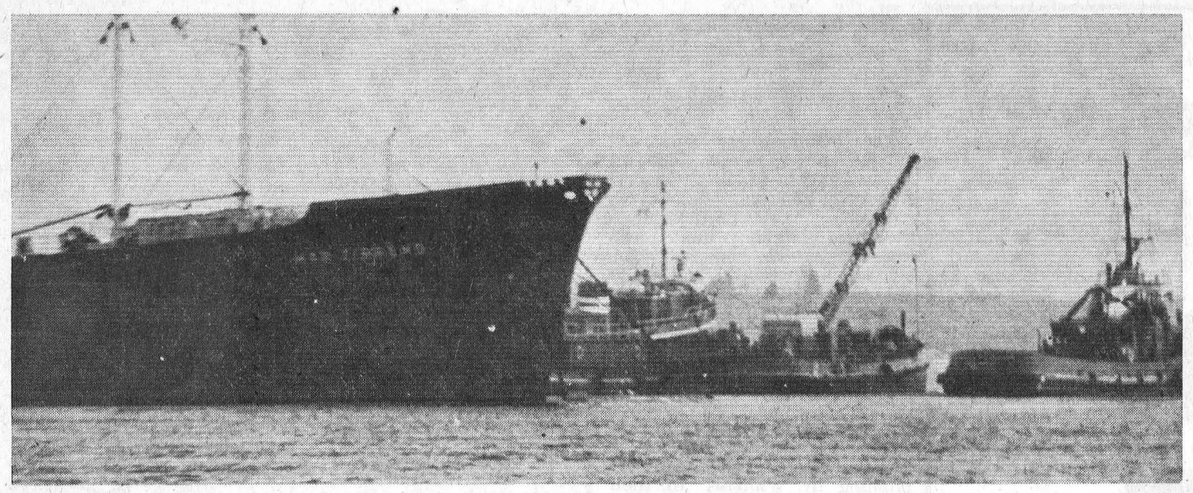
THE CHESTERVILLLE RECORD



The St. Lawrence River near Cardinal became the focal point of interest last week, when a Cleveland-bound ship, loaded with ore, ran aground almost due south of the Cardinal Legion Hall. The 17,000 ton Italian freighter, Mar Tirreno, apparently suffered steering problems and ran aground on a small shoal. The vessel was aground clear of the main channel and didn't create any interruption in river traffic. Tugs from Montreal were called and stood by while the vessel was made ready to continue its voyage. — Photo by Rowden

Swimming program successful at Ingleside

Osnabruck Township's Swimming program is over for another year and from all reports it was a qualified success. In spite of low water, inadequate supervision and a hazardous river bottom, the enrolment was up from last year.

The program which is sponsored and paid for by the Township, covers all age groups from two-year-olds to adults, progressing from beginners to a bronze medallion and life saving certificate. Mrs Hawley, the swimming instructor, stated there was considerable enthusiasm and she was well pleased with this year's effort.

This is the first year the swimming area had had marker buoys and a sign designating the area. This was of much benefit to the swimming program. This year's success certainly warrants further improvements if the program is to be continued successfully.

The lack of lifeguard supervision, garbage disposal facilities and the bottom of the river covered with broken glass are not conducive to public approval and participation. There were several cases of cut feet, four requiring hospital attention and stitches.

A new class of kinderswim, ten little ones from age two to four an d a half, all received awards for their efforts, along with twenty-nine pre-beginners, two beginners, 13 juniors, five intermediates and three seniors who were all successful at test time.

Six students were successful in receiving Royal Life Saving Certificates.

IN APPRECIATION

CARD OF THANKS

Milton and Laura Stewart wish to take this opportunity to thank their many friends and neighbours of the surrounding district for their substantial donations toward rebuilding the barn. A very special thank you to Biccum and MacIntosh Insurance Agency for their prompt and efficient handling of the claim.

N.F.U. launch nation-wide boycott

The National Farmers Union has officially launched a nation-wide boycott of Kraft Foods Limited. The announcement was made by N.F.U. vice president, Walter Miller, at a meeting in Lucan, attended by officials from locals in Western Ontario. The Lucan meeting, a last in a series of similar meetings, unanimously endorsed the recommendation to boycott Kraft.

"We have tried all other methods to achieve a bargaining position in the dairy industry," said Mr Miller. "We have tried to talk to government agencies and the dairy corporations. At first Kraft wouldn't even return our telephone calls. When we picketed their plant at Ingleside, the Ontario Milk Marketing Board performed the role of strike breaker for Kraft. Following the picketing action at Ingleside we again tried to meet with Krafts, but were turned down."

"There is no way farmers can carry on this present situation," the vice-president said, "with the large multi-national dairy corporations establishing the price and marketing conditions and having their position backed by the government controlled Milk Marketing Board, the farmers will always come out on the short end. We are determined to establish a recognized bargaining position which will result in the N.F.U. negotiating price and marketing arrangements on behalf of farmers. The O.M.M.B. can continue to perform a brokerage function."

"Make no mistake about it, this boycott is designed to force Kraft Foods to accept our terms," Mr Miller continued. "The boycott will be launched on a low key basis and accelerated over the country in the weeks ahead. Our people are determined and we are going to win.

Dixon W.I. members enjoy picnic meeting near Cornwall

Eight members of the Dixon Women's Institute enjoyed a very pleasant outing on August 4, 1971, when Mrs Ross Alguire, President, assisted by Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs Thorold Shaver, conducted a business meeting at a picnic area on the western outskirts of Cornwall.

At the conclusion of the meeting, members stopped at the Torch Room for a lovely buffet luncheon.

At 1.30 the members arrived at the Special Care Unit of the Cornwall General Annex on the East Front. Most of the patients were enjoying the sunshine and the spacious lawns of the hospital and Mrs Elizabeth Auger, R.N. introduced the patients. Treats and cigarettes were distributed

After an hour of visiting with the patients, a tour of the hospital was conducted by Mrs Auger.

The next meeting will be held September 7, at 8.00 p.m. in Northfield Hall.

Mrs L. LeBlanc, convenor of Health, has procured a film on arthritis and a speaker on the subject. An invitation has been extended to all interested people as well as Lunenburg W.I. and Lunenburg U.C.W.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Hattie Swerdfeger who passed away suddenly on Aug. 25th, 1969.

We mention your name and speak of you often,
God bless you dear mother you are not forgotten.

Sadly missed by husband Chess and family

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother who passed away on Sept. 1, 1970.

Upright and just in all her ways
Loyal and true through all her days,
Silently suffered, silently bore,
God took her home to suffer no more.

KITCHEN CORNER

Convenience Foods: Quick Desserts

Desserts are the fun part of any meal, especially if there is little kitchen preparation. Try one of these recipes for delicious desserts.

From convenience comes elegance and pride. By beginning with convenience foods of today, the busy woman can produce a product which takes only a few minutes, yet looks like it took hours.

Cherry Chiffon Torte

2 tbsp. Kirsh
1 can cherry pie filling (1lb., 5oz.)
1 8" orange chiffon cake
1 package fluffy white frosting mix (5¼ oz.)

Combine Kirsh and pie filling; chill. Cut cake into two equalized layers. Prepare frosting mix as directed on package; spread a small amount on inner and outer edges of cake to form a rim about ½ inch high. Chill until firm. Spread half chilled pie filling between the two rims on bottom cake layer. Gently press other cake layer into place on top of filling, with frosting rim on top. Fill space between the two rims with remaining pie filling. Spread frosting over sides of cake. Yields 12 servings.

Toffee Cream Cake

½ pint heavy cream
1 tbsp. instant coffee powder
1 cup finely chopped English Toffee Candy
1 small loaf angel cake

Whip cream and coffee together until stiff. Fold in ¾ cup toffee candy. Slice cake into 3 equal sized layers; reassemble, spreading a generous amout of cream mixture between layers. Use remaining cream mixture to cover top and sides of cake; sprinkle rest of toffee candy on top. Refrigerate for 2 hours before slicing and serving. Yields 8-10 servings.

Chocolate Date Delight

1/3 cup finely chopped dates
¼ cup chopped walnuts
2 squares semi-sweet chocolate
12 oz. loaf pound cake
1 pkg. instant chocolate pudding
1 cup cold milk
1 cup heavy cream

Combine dates and nuts with melted chocolate; cool. Add pudding mix to milk, beat until smooth and thick. Fold half of whipped cream into pudding. Combine ¾ cup pudding with date mixture. Cut cake into three lengthwise equalized layers; reassemble cake, spreading date mixture between layers. Fold remaining whipped cream into remaining pudding; spread over top and sides of cake. Chill before serving.

Butterscotch Circles

1 pkg. butterscotch pudding mix
2½ cups milk
7 slices pound cake

Prepare pudding mix according to package directions using 2½ cups milk. Cut 2 circles from each piece of pound cake. Place one circle on a plate, top with some pudding, then other circle and more pudding. To garnish, decorate with whipped cream.
