Travellers Inconvenienced

The change in time of C. P. R. trains which took effect on Sunday last causes very great niconvenience to travellers between this place and Ottawa. The morning connection at Finch is a thing of the past when coming from the capital. As for morning papers recieved the morning of publication it is either the Gazette or nothing. When the latter paper was advanced to the six dollar per year rate its place was taken with many readers by the Ottawa morning papers which are now cut off by the change in time.

Sullivan-Miller

A very quiet but pretty event was solemnized at Westmoreland Road Presbyterian church, Newcastle-on-Tyne, April 17, when William Franklin, Sgt. 21st. Battalion, Seaford, eldest son of Mr. Alva and the late Jeannette Sullivan, Elma, was united in marriage to Violet Mary, daughter of Mrs. M. V. and the late A. R. Miller, 27 York St. Newcastle-on-Tyne, Eng., the Rev. Thos. Mitchell officiating. After a sumptuous repast the happy couple left amid showers of confetti on the five o'clock train for Corbridge.

Their many friends wish them a long and happy wedded life.

Give us a Ball Club.

Is Chesterville to have any athletic sports this season? During the last couple of seasons there has not been an organized baseball, football or lacrosse club in town. This season a return is being made to athletic sports in almost every town and village in the country. Time was when Chesterville led the way in these things in the county and at the present time there are enough young men and boys in the village to get a good baseball or football club together. This is something the young men should take hold of not only for their own good but for the inculcating of the proper spirit in the younger brothers, that spirit of fair fighting which is only developed on the athletic field. The best men the war produced were men who in their day were prominent in athletics.

Who will be the leader in this line in Chesterville?

Presbyterian Anniversary

A delightful and very interesting concert was given in the Music Hall on Monday evening in connection with the anniversaay services of Chesterville Presbyterian church, when a Chesterville audience had the pleasure of hearing a couple of Ottawa entertainers in their first appearance before a local audience. Mr. Gordon Rogers was the headliner and was very heartily received in his different numbers of story and song, especially his Coster song and the story of "How Bill Adams won Waterloo." Miss Little showed a wide range in her dialect selections and held her audience in both grave and gay. Miss Simser contributed solos in her usual pleasing manner while Miss Casselman scored quite a triumph in her second violin solo when the audience would not be denied an encore. Miss Saucier proved an efficient accompanist.

The Sunday services of the anniversary were well attended, in the evening the Methodist services having been withdrawn to allow all to hear Rev. Mr. Glassford of Winchester who delivered a very impressive sermon and was followed closely throughout.

Rev. Mr. Mullen, at the request of many of his church members, occupied his own pulpit at the morning service. In the evening he preached in Mr. Glassford's place in Winchester.

Mr. F. McCloskey, Honored

Last evening at the McCloskey House about forty of the business men and others of the village gathered to do honor to Mr. Frank McCloskey, when he was the guest of honor at a banquet, the occasion for which was Mr. McCloskey's intention of leaving Chesterville after a business career as proprietor of the McCloskey House for more than thirty years. During that time the McCloskey House became, perhaps the best known hotel in Eastern Ontario. After ample justice had been done to the menu provided, Mr. W. H. Casselman as toast-master in his very able and fluent manner, presided expressing his regret at the occasion for the gathering but in a fitting manner pointing out to those assembled the loss the village was about to sustain in the removal of their guest from this place. Mr. McCloskey had been a good citizen and had given heartily of his time and ability to the interests of the town, especially in educational advancement, having been for a number of years a school trustee and latterly chairman of the High school board.

Mr. W. B. Lawson on presenting Mr. McCloskey with a very beautiful gold headed cane also took occasion to express regret at their guest's decision to leave Chesterville whose place would long be remembered by the village in general.

An extended toast list was gone through and very excellent speeches made by those called upon, of which we regret we cannot make a more extended report.

Mr. McCloskey was very visibly affected by the expressions of good will toward him, and in a short reply thanked those present intimating that he might possible return and build a residence where he would spend his remaining years.

The family intend shortly to leave for Strathmore, Que., where they will take up their residence.

Whittaker the Optician will be at Chesterville May 13th.

(FARMERS CUT THIS OUT.)

BE SURE and have water tank filled, so that water will be high enough to reach the neck of the can. Stir your milk every ten minutes. 90% of high acid milk is caused by trusting to air cooling, and is responsible for great losses. "Don't do it. Cold water cooling is the surest way to avoid loss. Kaiser's Confession of Guilt

The plea that the ex-Kaiser was not personally responsible for the atrocities committed by the German armies during the war is belied by a letter found by professor Larnaude and de la Pradelle, two eminent French authorities on international law attached to the Peace Conference. This letter, which was written in the early days of the war by the Kaiser himself to the aged Francis Joseph, Emperor of Austria is as follows:

"My heart breaks, but everything must be put to fire and sword. Men, women, children, and old people must be butchered. Neither tree nor house must be left standing. With these processes a terror which alone is sufficient to impress people as degenerate as the French, the war will be over in two months, whereas if I should show a humanitarian spirit it might go on for y ars. Despite all my repugnance I have, therefore, chosen the former system."

In the face of such a confession of guilt there should be no more quibbles over the legal status of the ex-Kaiser. When Napoleon escaped from Elba on February 26, 1814, the Congress of Vienna was still sitting, and on March 13 declared him an outlaw in the following words:

"Napoleon Bonaparte has placed himself without the pale of civil and social relations, and as an enemy and disturber of the tranquility of the world he has rendered himself liable to public vengeance."

A Poor Pig Policy

A distinguished Danish vegetarian has made the interesting discovery that Germany owes her downfall to the pig. In 1914 she had over 25 million pigs to feed. For the first five months of the war slaughtering was discouraged, at the cost of enormous reserves of foodstuffs. Early In 1915 this policy was reversed, and by April the number of pigs had been reduced by 35 per cent. Then a re action in favor of pigs set in, and their numbers were kept at about 70 per cent of the pre-war figure. Not till late in 1917 and early in 1918 was the fatality of this mistake realized, and then it was too late. Dr. Hindhede argues that Denmark avoided starvation by killing her pigs early, and that if Germany had adopted the same course her collapse by starvation and "Spartacism", would have been avoided. His theory conjures up the picture of a somnolent sow passively acting a part in history almost as dramatic as that played by certain cackling geese.

Longer Life With One Leg

Colonel Openshaw stated yesterday that a man who had lost one leg was likely to live longer than if he had not lost it, and that a man who had lost two legs would live longer still. We wonder whether that contention has been sufficiently explored. The theory is that the heart has less work to do in carrying the blood to the extremities. Does that take account of the extra physical exertion, and the consequent strain upon the heart, that movement must entail on the limbless? The man with one leg moves slower, it may be argued, and yet we see daily in London men who have all the activity of John Silver, and find in their crutch a means of more rapid locomotion. The whole theory, in fact, seems to contain all sorts of possible error. Does the legless man, as a fact, live longer than the average of those who have the full number of limb?

Good Manners

She was a little girl and very polite. It was the first time she had been on a visit alone, and she had been carefully instructed how to behave.

"If they ask you to dine with them," papa had said, "you must say, 'No, thank you. I have already dined."

It turned out just as papa had anticipated.

"Come along, Mildred," said her little friends father "you must have a bite with us."

"No thank you," said the little girl with dignity; "I have already bitten."

We will give you a blanket policy covering loss or damage in any form to buildings and contents including loss or damage to roof by hail storm and broken windows from the same cause.

We don't advertise cheapness, as some American companies do. but we carry no restricting clauses in our policies.

All loss or damage in or about the buildings, includieg live stock and implements, are paid to full value.

Our rates are as low as is consistant with fair dealing and is the minimum placed by the Department of Insurance for Ontario.

What Other Towns are Doing With Memorials

Acton is erecting memorial gates with cut stone abutments, bearing the names of the Acton soldiers, at the entrance of the town park.

Owen Sound is still undecided as to what form their war memorial should take.

Picton is committed to a war memorial, but owing to difference of opinion as to what form it should take, have delayed taking definite action.

Renfrew has under consideration the erection of highway bridges bearing suitably engraved bronze tablets.

In Philadelphia, Port Credit and Toronto substantial memorial halls will be erected.

Point Edward Council will submit a by-law for the expenditure of $10,000 for a memorial hall.

A vote of the citizens Sarnia will be taken to decide what form the soldiers' memorial shall take, as soon as concrete propositions are ready

The Hanover Post says: "This idea of building some structure that the town needs anyway and naming it a memorial, is unworthy of our appreciation and our patriotism.

The erection of a nurses' home for the Barrie hospital as a mark of appreciation of the noble and heroic service of the nursing profession is suggested as a fitting soldiers' memorial for Barrie.

Simcoe Reformer says: "The battle of memorials still continues, and the conflicting views get more difficult to harmonize as time goes on."

In order to commemorate the fallen Woodstock soldiers who died in France steps are being taken there to have a large number of English oak trees planted in the local parks. Each tree will bear a bronze tablet and on it will be engraved the name of the dead hero and the particulars of his death. The trees, of which there will be 150 are to be obtained from England.

The Pembroke Standard says: "The movement for the town council to purchase a suitable building and grounds to be used as a club-house and meetin place for the war veterans and to be handed over to them at a nominal rental, is one that should meet with the approval of the council and the town people.

The mass of correspondence in the Picton Gazette shows a preference for something of benefit to the living in the erection of a memorial.

The St. Thomas Times-Journal says the hospital idea is the most comprehensive proposition that can be advanced.

Usborne and Exeter share equally in the cost of a memorial. The design chosen is in the form of a fountain, a spray of water coming from each side as an emblem of life that was given to bring about peace. The memorial will be about eight feet long and five feet wide at the base and will contain the names of all the fallen heroes of Exeter and Usborne. The total height will be ten feet. It will be composed of Canadian granite and the work on it will be done by Canadian workmen. The cost will be shared equally by Usborne and Exeter and it will be completed by December of this year.

The Importance Of Cents

No one should think lightly of the 25 cent Thrift Stamp as a means for gathering up the savings of the great mass of the people. In Great Britian they have stamps selling for as low as 6d. or 12 cents. In the schools of New York State cards have recently been issued which enable the children to turn in one cent at a time and get credit for it. In other words, the richest state in the richest country in the world does not hesitate to accept the one cent that a child in its schools desire to save.

Four Lambs In Litter

Robt. Poole of Poole's Resort, who has been a sheep raiser since youth got the surprise of his life on Friday evening last when one of the ewes of his flock gave birth to four lambs, all of which appear to be in excellent health strong and normal in every way. The ewe is also in the best of shape. Although Mr. Poole is 72 years of age and has been engaged in sheep-raising practically all his life, this is the first incident of the kind in his experience. He remembers a man living north of Ganonoque who had similar good fortune on one occasion.

The season for hunting deer south of the main line of the C. P. R. will in future be November 5 to 20, instead of November 1 to 15, as at present. Hunters in future will be allowed only one deer each, instead of the two which were allowed them during the war period, when it was desired to conserve other meats.

Aa I have recently purchased from Thos. J. Ellis the Pure Bred Blood Stallion. A Night Rider, I will offer for service the above named horse at the very moderate fee of $15.00 to insure, and subject to the conditions printed on bills posted throughout the country. This horse has stood for service in this section for the past four years and has proven himself to be a grand stock horse. During that time he has been mated with a number of heavy grade Clyde and Percheron mares, and the colts are of the most desirable type, being of good size, good bone and in every instance they possess the perfect disposition and manness which are so characteristic of A Night Rider himself. He will stand for service at owner's barn, two lots north of Condensery in Chesterville throughout the season, beginning May 1st, with the exception of Thursday night of each week when he will be at Finch Village, Hotel Stables. Farmers, you will do well to mate your heavy Clyde and Percheron mares with this good blood horse and raise grand general purpose farm horses weighing from twelve to thirteen hundred pounds, suitable as well for roading. Results of Dairy Farm Survey in Dundas.

Being considered typical of general dairying conditions in Eastern Ontario, the County of Dundas with its three forms of market for milk, namely, the cheese factory, the condensery and the city wholesale trade of Montreal, was selected in 1917 by the Department of farm management of the Ontario Agricultural College as the place for conducting a survey of dairy farms similiar to that conducted in Oxford County for Western Ontario, results of which were published some time ago. In the survey of Dundas County data were collected from 340 farms, covering the farm business year of May 1st, 1917 to April 30th, 1918, and the reports of the survey have recently been published in a pamphlet issued by the O. A. C. farm management department. The findings of the survey are as follows:—

1. That while the average large farm produces a large Labor income than does the average small farm it is possible, by proper organization, to raise the Labor Income of a farm of 75 acres or more to a reasonable, substantial figurers.

2. That the clearing up or draining of waste land on a farm already established, is a profitable investment at as high a cost as $90 per acre.

3. That the quality of producing capacity of the farm live stock is the most important factor in the dairy farming business.

4. That a high crop yield tends to produce a high Labor Income but may easily result in a loss if fed to poor stock.

5. That the grade herd sire will be doomed by all stockmen, who will study the table prepared by the management of the survey, which shows that on 145 farms where a grade sire was used, the value of the milk sold per cow was $85, cost of feed per cow $64, and profit over feed $22; on 47 farms where a pure-bred sire had been used for under 5 years, the milk sold per cow brought $102, feed per cow cost $66, and profit over feed was $36; on 44 farms where a pure-bred sire had been used for 5 to 10 years, the milk sold per cow brought $107, feed per cow cost $65, and profit over feed was $42; on 39 farms where a pure-bred sire had been used for over ten years, the milk sold per cow averaged $111, feed per cow cost $68, and profit over feed was $43.

6. That all-year dairying permits of a better organization of farm business than does summer dairying—with profits increased accordingly,

7. That the most profitable degree of specialization in dairy farming is governed entirely by the selling price of milk:—

(a) If that price be more than $2.00 per cwt. specialization up to 90% of the total income is profitable.

(b) But if the price be less than $2.00 per cwt., side lines must be utilized to produce at least 30% of the total income.

(c) No matter what the price the dairyman cannot afford to neglect all sidelines.

8. That the average producing capacity of the dairy herd determines whether or not it is advisable to increase the farm expenses for labor and feed. The Labor income may be kept up by extreme hard work on the part of the operator, but good cows will more than pay for the hiring of extra help, and thereby lessen the amount of work per man to be done on the farm.

9. That the cost of producing milk on 194 Dundas County Farms ranged from $1.00 to $4.00 per cwt., depending on the farm efficiency.

10. That the average cost of production of milk could be reduced by better breeding, more careful feeding and proper utilization of sidelines.

It Is A Patriotic Duty To Prevent Fires

If we were to consider that every fire is a crime in our country, as it is in some countries of Europe; and if those in whose homes, barns or places of business where fires originate should be held responsible for their acts when those acts result in injury to their neighbours; or are the result of gross carelessness, culpable neglect or mischievous intent, there would be fewer fires. The Fire Tax would be less, and Canada would be richer to the extent of Millions of dollars every year.

It is an easy matter for you to put your farm barn in what might reasonably be called perfect physical condition as regards fire hazards if it is well built, on good foundations, metal or other non-inflammable roof, properly ventilated, painted, has no stove or fire heat, electric wiring approved by Hydro Inspector, not used as a garage; no gasoline, coal oil or other volatile oil kept in it, proper hooks for lanterns, is kept shut and locked at night, and equipped with properly installed lightning rods, or if a metal roof is used see that it is properly grounded.

It is assumed that 50 per cent. of fires with "cause unkown" in barns can be charged to the foolishness of smoking in them.

Matches should not be carried loose in a man's pocket. A match may easily be dropped in the hay or other inflammable material and if stepped on cause a fire. Avoid the danger of burning up your buildings and stock by not carrying matches loose.

With the increasing use of gasoline and other fuels that are dangerous because of their ready inflammability, there is each year an increasing number of accidents and fires that cause loss of life and great damage to property.

Many fires originate from the cleaning of silks with gasoline, the violent rubbing of the silk generating static electricity, which produces a spark that ignites the vapor.

A dangerous practice is the cleaning of auto parts with gasoline from an open can. A spark may be caused by striking two pieces of metal together, by the ignition system on the automobile when the starting crank is turned, and in other ways. For instance, a nut that was struck with a wrench, causing a spark, and instantly the car was enveloped in flames.

Oily waste should at all times be placed in a safe metal receptacle with automatic closing cover to avoid the danger of spontaneous combustion. Better still is to destroy the oily waste or rags and not leave them around the house or barn.

Oily waste will decay, smolder, and in time burst into flames.

Sawdust is just as dangerous as oily waste and is liable to cause spontaneous combustion when soaked with oil drippings. Its use around the building should be forbidden.

It is well to have some sand around the garage. It can be used for putting out a gasoline fire and is a safe material to use as an absorbant of oil.

Borrowing at Home Instead of Going Abroad

Canada having, during the last two years of the war, demonstrated her ability to finance herself, it is now excepted, both at home and abroad, that she will continue to do so. London advices say that she is expected to meet loans falling due there this year and that Canadians residing there admit that this should be done, in addition to the financing of the Dominion's growing foreign trade.

Canadian opinion also pretty generally agrees that it is in the interest of the country that this should be done. There is a feeling that while some borrowing may have to be done abroad, still the less that is done, the better for Canada. Indeed the wisdom of converting Canada from a borrowing into a lending nation is so manifest that there is a general demand that this be done.

War Savings Stamps are a step in this direction, for through their sale funds are placed in the hands of the Dominion Government. In other words this means that, instead of borrowing in London and New York, the Government is trying to get at home the funds it needs. It has also arrranged that any person having $4. may thus lend it to the Government, which pays 4¾ per cent compounded half-yearly.

Method Of Feeding Liquid Fertilizer

It is always a difficult matter to make sure that liquid fertilizers fed to a plant really reach the roots. Much of the solution is lost because it spreads over a wide area of the top soil. This trouble is avoided by the simple method of sinking an ordinary flowerpot close to the stem of the plant. It should be plunged in right up to the rim, in such position that the hole at the lower part is nearly in contact with the roots. When it is desired to apply the fertilizer, the solution is simply poured into the pot, and allowed to soak away slowly through the hole. Plants treated in this way show a marked improvement over those dealt with in the ordinary manner, which is really wasteful of the fertilizer.—Popular Mechanics.

"Put It There, Pal!"

A speaker sent from Canada by the "Y" to speak to the troops in the campaign that followed the armistice, was billeted in an estaminet in a Belgian town. In the early hours of the morning he was awakened by a hammering at his door. As it persisted, he arose and admitted four Canadians, one of them a sergeant, all in a condition to be dangerous when roused, It appeared that one of the party had once been billeted in this room but had been removed, leaving a fancied grievance in his mind. What the plan of the party was did not appear— but it was not soothing to a sleeper awakened after midnight.

"Who are you?" demanded the leader.

"A. Y. M. C. A. man", replied the occupant of the room, shivering in an atmosphere never intended for pyjamas.

"Like blazes you are!"

The "Y" man presented his proofs. To his surprise all four insisted shaking hands with him. "You're all right," was the leader's compliment.

The sergeant was more specific. "They say," he threatened, "that back in Canada somebody's saying the 'Y' was a bomb-proof job Wait til I get home! The fellow who says it before me won't be in a bomb-proof job! The 'Y' went over with me at Vimy— and I know. I'm not a religous fellow— but the "Y's" all right. It's been a friend of the boys. I've a wife and three kiddies back there in Canada, and the "Y's" helped me out with them got me to write h me when I'd just about made an eternal fool of myself Put it there p l."

Changing Seed

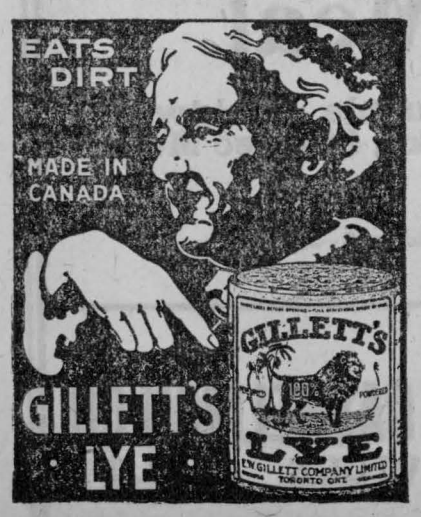

(Experimental Farms Note.)

Many farmers still think it advisable to change their seed grain every two or three years. In the light of the work done by the experimental farms of Canada, this practice has nothing to recommend it, while on the contrary, it has been shown that there are distinct advantages in not changing seed. By the use of a good fanning-mill it is quite possible to grow the same grain year after year on the same farm and maintain its productivity, provided that the grain is seeded early each season on well-drained, fertile soil. The seed should not be blamed for poor farming, which is most frequently the cause of the farmer's dissatisfaction.

Many of those who favour a change of seed have possibly based their belief on faulty observations. An error that is often made is that of comparing the results of one season with the results of the next. If the seed has been changed between times and the second season is unusually favourable, it is assumed immediately that the change of seed has brought the increased yield. The weather conditions in different seasons may alone make a difference in yield of from twenty to forty bushels per acre, depending on the kind of grain. Again the use of different fields may give rise to the same error of judgment, also differences in the dates of seeding.

When the change of seed is made with a neighbour it is a gamble whether one gets anything that is superior to their own or not. The variety is usually doubtful, and the labour, cost and inconvenience have to be considered as well, while there is always a possibility of introducing noxious weeds.

There is one change of seed that every farmer who has been following this practice should make. He should change to the best variety of whateverkind of grain he is growing and stick to it. If he is not satisfied with his seed, he should discard it and buy seed of a well-known and proved variety. Its purity and productivity can be maintained by the combined use of the seed plot and the fanning-mill, and a change of seed is unnecessary.

A Sad Homecoming

The home coming to Pembroke on Tuesday evening of Pte. Paul Toupin was an extremely sad one. He went overseas a year ago with the 14th Montreal Highlanders, serving for some months in France and going subsequently with the army of occupation to Germany. He reached Montreal a few days ago and heard there that his mother had died. Getting his discharge, he hurried home, hoping to reach Pembroke in time for the funeral. His arrival here was unexpected, and he went direct to the old home, only to find it in darkness. His brother, Mr. Jos. Toupin, who lives next door, saw the man seeking admittance, and went over to investigate. He was surprised on finding that the stranger was his brother, and then he had to inform Pte Toupin that his mother had died in March. The young man then asked for his father, and was advised that he had died in October last. Members of the family did not have his address after he went overseas, hence word of the death of his parents could not be forwarded to him.—Observer.

Auto Hunting

A peculiar incident occured one day last week on the road near Herron's mills. Messrs. J. N. Dobbie and Wm. Mason were motoring along the road when a partridge flew in front of the car. The bird collided with the car and to all appearances was killed, but before Mr. Mason had time to jump out and run back to the bird it had regained conscious and fluttered away beyond reach. They continued on, and a short distance further down the road a wild duck attempted to fly across their path but the attempt proved fatal to the bird, and Mr. Dobbie brought it to town as a prize. These men are now anxiously awaiting the deer season as they feel satisfied that they can run down a deer in a similar manner—if it will only stay on the road.—Era.

Harry Lauder and the Way of Milk

Harry Lauder—beg pardon, Sir Harry Lauder—was being dined by friends at the Lamb's club, New York, one evening and told some stories.

"A Dundee farmer, who lived not far from my old home in bonnie Scotland," Lauder told his friends, employed a farm hand named Sandy.

"Here Sandy, said he one day, 'gang roon and gie the coos a cabbage each, but min' ye gie the biggest to the coo thot gies the maist milk.'

"Sandy departed to do his master's bidding. Upon his return the old farmer asked him if he had done as he was told.

"Aye, mister, replied the laddie, 'I gied 'em a cabbage head, and hung th' biggest on the pump handle."

Confirmation?

"Sam is a confirmed liar, isn't he?"

"Not exactly. Nobody has ever confirmed anything he's said."

A Worth-While Hint for Potato Growers

Some interesting experiments were carried out last season in connection with potato growing. Instead of waiting until the plants were matured, part of the crop was gathered when the plants had reached a fair size, the largest tubers that could be found being grubbed up from the soil. This operation was repeated a month later, and then the plants were allowed to mature in the usual manner. The last crop is up to the average in spite of the fact that two gatherings had been made during the growing season.

Most growers must have noticed, when they dig their potatoes, that there are always a number of small ones, about the size of marbles, or even smaller. But if some of the larger potatoes are removed during the growing season, these little ones develop into a good size. On the other hand, if the plants have already developed a fair proportion of large tubers, and these are still attached to the roots, the immature ones do not increase much in size. The soil disturbance which accompanies the removal of the potatoes positively benefits the plants. After each operation they start away with a fresh vigor of growth. This is probably due to the fact that the grubing about in the ground helps aerate the soil.—Popular Mechanics.

In Dear Old England

A clergyman who was not disinclined toward an occasional glass hired an Irishman to clean out his cellar. He brought out a number of empty whiskey bottles, and as he lifted each one looked to see f there was anything in it.

The clergyman, who was walking on the lawn, noticed him, and said: "They are all dead ones, Mike."

"They are," answered Mike, "but there is one good thing about it, they all had the minister with them when they passed away."

Who can help having a feeling of sympathy for the woman munition worker in England who lost a leg in an explosion last summer and who has applied to the Ministry of pensions for a pink enamel leg instead of a brown leather member, because I "always wear open-work stockings."

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reached the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the the inflamation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed for ever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Circulars free.
