CHESTERVILLE FIRST WINNER OF HAMILTON CUP

With the winning of the game Monday night from Smiths Falls by 6 to 2 the play-off and championship of the Rideau Group went to Chesterville by a score of 10 to 3 on the round, with the interest now centered on the play-off with Cornwall in a two game series, goals to count, the final of which will be played on Chesterville ice Friday night.

The game Monday night attracted but a fair crowd which on only one occasion rose to any particular entusiasm, that climax being attained when Mel Harper went up through the whole Smiths Falls bunch single-handed and scored an honest-to-goodness counter. Harper always has the crowd with him pulling for a counter from his rushes on the lonesome trail, and while he has gone through time and again, at the critical moment someting has always upset Harper's calculations heretofore.

The rest of the game was interesting with Jarvis adding a couple of counters to his season's total, Watt doing the same and Plantz annexing one more.

SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY AT NUDDELL BUSH

A very pleasant surprise party was held at the home of Mr .and Mrs. Percy Prunner when about eighty of their intimate friends and neighbors gathered to extend to them their best wishes on the 25th anniversary of their marriage, which was on February 10th. It coming on Sunday the party was held on Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Prunner, although taken by surprise, made everyone very welcome and as always at Mr. Prunner's everyone enjoyed themselves with euchre and dancing. The excellent music was furnished by the ever popular orchestra, Mr. Denzil Harte, violin, Mr. Arnold McMartin, banjo uke, Mr. Donald McMartin, drums and traps, Miss Mae Harte, at the piano. The music was vey much enjoyed by all.

About twelve o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Prunner were called to the floor and Mr. Arnold McMartin read a very appropriate address and Mrs. George Dennison made a presentation of a purse of silver.

Mr. Prunner made a very suitable reply thanking all present for their gift and best wishes on behalf of Mrs. Prunner and himself.

All joined in singing "For They are Jolly Good Fellows," which was followed by a dainty lunch served by several of the ladies. On leaving in the early morning hours all expressed the wish to be able to be present at Mr. and Mrs. Prunner's golden wedding.

ANOTHER OLD RESIDENT OF WINCHESTER GONE

Early in the morning of Saturday last there slipped away one of the oldest settlers of this district in the person of Mrs. Nicholas Shaver, who was in her 89th year. Being usually in good health, Mrs. Shaver just gradually weakened during the last few weeks of her life, having to keep her bed only a day or two.

She took a keen interest in all matters pertaining to her Church and had she been able to walk across the street would have attended the last communion service, held on Feb. 3rd. In her home that morning she went through each part of the service in spirit, just as she thought it was going on in the church.

Having no children of her own she was dearly loved by her step-children and cared for as tenderly as though she were their own mother, for she had been a true mother to them, and they will ever cherish sacred and loving memories of her.

Mr. Shaver passed away several years ago on the same day of the week at the same hour. Surviving are one son—Mr. Ed. Shaver, Winchester; Mrs. Henry Irving, of Arthur, Ont.; Mrs. Ed. Beach, Winchester, and Mrs. Chas. Annable, Winchester. One sister, Mrs. S. Howes of Winchester, also survives. The large attendance of friends at the funeral on Tuesday at 1.30 p.m., in the United church showed the high esteem in which the deceased was held. Her pastor, Rev. J. A. Waddell ,conducted the service.

MOREWOOD JUNIOR CHAMPIONS CENTRAL OTTAWA VALLEY

In the second game of the play-off in the Junior series, after Chesterville won from Morewood on Chesterville ice Saturday afternoon by 3 to 2, Morewood turned the tables at home Tuesday night winning the second game 3 to 0 and the round 5 to 3.

Morewood's first score came in the opening period when Loughridge took James' rebound to beat Campderros in ten minutes. Five minutes later James scored on a shot from the blue line. The second period saw Chesterville boring in but were foiled in every attempt. Wes Loughridge came up with a high shot from centre, which, in the semi-darkness, got by Campderros for the winner's third and last counter. The third period went by without a score. Morewood contented themselves with defensive play and shot the puck to the other end for the last half of the period.

Alf Casselman or Williamsburg, handled the game.

The line-ups:

Morewood—Goal, Forrester; defence, Dillabough and M. McLeod; centre, Loughridge; winges, Dagenais and James. Sub., W. McLeod.

Chesterville — Goal, Campderros; defence, Lapierre and Gillissie; centre Sorrell; wings, Tate and A. Lynch; subs., McAvoy and R. Lynch.

CHESTERVILLE ONE DOWN FOR FINAL FRIDAY NIGHT

Last night at Cornwall in the first game of the play-off between Chesterville, winners of the Rideau Group, and Cornwall, winners of the Central Ottawa league championship, Chesterville held the fast travelling crafty Cornwall boys to a one goal lead on their home ice in a two to one score. Cornwall will carry the one goal lead into the game here Friday night when the total scores of the two games will decide winners.

The game last night was freely admitted by Cornwall supporters to have been the best exhibition of hockey ever seen in that town, which augurs well for an eye-full when these teams meet in the final.

The breaks of the game certainly did not come the way of the Chesterville players who had only two penalties all night, Gamble taking one for a mix-up behind the nets and one handed to Plantz by way of variety when the latter was given the butt end by a Cornwall man.

"Happy" Hooper of Ottawa, handled the game in his own inimitable way when he took exception more than once to the manner in which Hamilton cleared the puck after making a stop and then facing-off directly in front of the net within five feet. This is decidedly not done by competent referees who take the play to the sides for the draw.

The first period was scoreless hockey of a brilliant variety with every man of the dozen on the ice giving his best. Hamilton was strictly on the job, turing in a game that ranks with the best of his career.

One counter came in the second period and that to Cornwall, but it was no gift, they realized that they were in a real hockey game every minute of the twenty.

The third proved the hair raiser of the game. Cornwall added their second early but were finding the pace somewhat telling, a little too fast for them when Jarvis, after recuperating from a couple of butt-end jabs, took the ice and went up, taking a nice pass from Harper slipped the puck by Filion. Chesterville broke through time and again and on three occasions had sure counters stolen from them when Cornwall men, after Chesterville had beaten their defence, threw their sticks, ncessitating the calling back of the play and giving them another chance to stem the tide. If such a play had happened but once it might have been thought an accident, but it was evidently deliberate tactics on the part of Cornwall, as two of their men occupied the penalty box at the same time for this offence. It must have been like manna to John Denneny, a former competent referee and a past master in the art of correct interpretation of the rules, to see his team keep in the running aided by the thirteenth man on the ice. In pro. hockey the team whose player throws a stick to prevent a score is penalized a goal. While the rule is not the same in amateur hockey it almost invariably draws a very stiff penalty for the first offence and a game penalty if repeated.

The teams lined-up:

Chesterville—Goal, Hamilton; defence, Harper and Gamble; centre, Plantz: wings, Watt and Jarvis; subs. Chisnell, McLean; sub. goaler, Morrow.

Cornwall — Goal, Filion; defence, Whitford and Melio Contant; centre, Dextras: wings. Roney Jamieson and Art Contant: subs., Spence, M. Jamieson and Osler.

Referee—"Happy" Hooper, Ottawa.

BERWICK'S YOUNG PEOPLE NOVEL TOUR

Valentines flew by aeroplane from points far and near to the Young People of Berwick and vicinity as upwards of sixty had gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Elliott on last Thursday evening.

The room was given a suggestion of the day by the use of crepe paper, bespangled with hearts and gay streamers around the chandelier and over the window draperies, while Cupid's darts and arrows on the mantel added to its attractiveness.

As the guests entered tape measures were on display and many clever devices were used to make this formality interesting and amusing, while the receipts realized were most gratifying.

The evening was spent in "touring." All speed records were exceeded, several travelling in three hours a distance of over one thousand miles, the less fotunate ones having met with punctures, collisions and lack of gasoline.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Aden Casselman, who placed a Rogers Electric radio at the disposal of the tourists, their trip was both instructive and humorous.

Refreshments served after the game proved very acceptable and after a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Elliott, and to the committee in charge of the evening, all left for home reporting a very pleasant evening.

JOHN REVELER PASSES CANNAMORE

There passed away at his home at Cannamore on the morning of February 10th an aged and much respected citizen and pioneer, in the person of William John Reveler. The deceased was the fourth son of the late Hudson Reveler and his wife, Eliza McWatters and was born on the homestead where he died, on April 18th, 1854.

"Uncle John," as he was affectionately and familiarly known by all, always lived and remained at home and never married. After the death of his father in 1897 John, with his youngest brother A. W., continued to carry on the operation of the farm together. Though never of a robust constitution he was seldom ill and had a keen oversight of the sidelines of the farm, the stock, garden and lawn having his attention always, while in his workshop all the repairing was done by him in a very neat manner. John was a great reader and was well versed upon all the topics of the day.

The funeral took place on Tuesday, twelfth, the service being conducted by his pastor, Rev. R. P. Stafford in Morewood United church, who took for his text Luke II : 20, and was largely attended, many coming from a distance, interment being made in the Morewood United cemetery. The pall bearers were—Messrs. Thos. McGregor, Frank Fraser, Ira Barrington, Jacob Swerdfeger, John M. Shaver, and Wm. Hillis.

Those left to mourn his loss are: his three brothers, viz:- Alex Wesley and R. D. of Cannamore, George C. of Winchester, and Jane, wife of Wm. Buyers of Tomifobia, Que; besides a large number of nieces and nephews as well as the children of the community, who shall miss "Uncle John."

The general opinion expressed by all is that a good and kindly neighbor and friend has been removed from our midst in the passing of "Uncle John Reveler."

BERWICK WOMEN'S INSTITUTE PROMISES $2,000 TOWARD BUILDING NEW TOWNSHIP HALL

The February meeting of the Berwick Women's Istitute was held at the home of Mrs. Walter Whittaker with an attendance of twenty-five.

The session was opened in the usual manner, the special feature was an apron shower for the coming bazaar. In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. W. Henry, the minutes of the last meeting were read by Miss S. Galvin, who acted as secretary for the meeting.

After a lengthy discussion it was moved by Mrs. W. Stark and seconded by Mrs. J. Rutley, that the Institute donate two thousand dollars to the Township Council towards the erection of a Community Hall. This motion carried unanimously, the Institute members to be present at the next Council meeting to make this offer.

After the business part of the meeting the following paper was read by Mrs. A. C. Casselman:

St. Valentine's Day.

As you all know, today is what is known as St. Valentine's Day, the 14th day of February. Why do we call it St. Valentine's Day, you may ask. Because it is the birthday of Valentine, a monk who lived many years ago in an Italian monastery. In the monasterylived a number of monks who were learned or skilful or clever. Valentine had no special talent. This grieved him very much and he grew lonely and sad. He lived like this for some time until one day an inspiration came to him. If I cannot do great things, why can't I do the little things? he said. This he resolved to do.

Now, at this monastery was a beautiful garden. Someone must cultivate and take care of this garden.

Valentine decided that nothing could be more pleasant than to work among flowers and roses. At once he set to work to cultivate the garden and grow beautiful flowers.

Everyone admired Valentine's garden, but did Valentine grow these flowers to look at? No, of course not. He gave them away to others. He had a very kind heart especially to the children and the poor. If a child stopped to look at the flowers Valentine plucked the most beautiful flower and handed it to him. He delighted in doing little deeds of kindness. It wasn't very long until everyone knew him and grew to like him. When his death came, people mourned for him and decided to commemorate his birthday by sending gifts to their friends. Today it is celebrated all over the world by sending Valentines, tokens of love and remembrance. Teachers have their pupils make Valentine boxes in schools. Some people delight in sending coarse or ugly Valentines, this should not be the spirit. We should keep the day free from vulgarity.

Because I want to say,
This Valentine I send to you
I love you very dearly
In the good old fashioned way!

Keeping on the Job.

It takes more than idle planning for the winning of your fight,
Or the something-had-for-n o th i n g sort of lies.
It's the up-and-at-it effort with your heart and all your might,
And the lead-me-to-it grit within your eyes!
When you wonder at the fellow
Who had told the world his name,
With his shoulders high above the mob,
You may wager all your earnings that the secret of his game
Is in Keeping, Keeping, Keeping on the job!

"Keeping on the Job!" let us each and everyone take these four words to heart and strive to realize their meanings.

Few among us have not set for ourselves some goal, we all have an ideal which we hope one day to reach. If we have not, it is high time we had, since without the leadership of a high hope life is purposeless—a mere drifting, and in order to draw near and nearer to the goal we have set, to the idea we have created, we must "Keep on the Job!"

Whatever our work may be, whatever the task that falls our lot, we must bring to it the highest endeavor of which we are capable—we must perform it to the very best, and utmost of our ability, putting into the doing whole-hearted interest and unswerving loyalty. Possibly it may not be exactly what we wish or think ourselves fitted for. Never mind! Let us remember that it isn't the task itself but the way it is done that counts.

Let us turn our attention to an old street-cleaner who has been on the same "beat" for many years. At his post he is in all kinds of weather, patrolling the square which it is his duty to keep free from every sort of litter, broom and shovel in hand, and his "two-wheeler" trundling along up one side and down the other and across to the starting point, over and over again, all day long. Many people have come to know him well, business men with offices in the tall buildings whose windows overlook the field of his labors, stenographers, bookkeepers, and there are few among them who haven't a cheery word for him. His life is a veritable sermon for better and more meaningful than most pulpit sermons to all who have eyes to see and ears to hear. There is never a word of complaint concerning the monotony of his work or the menial position in which he is placed. We asked him if he never got tired of his work and how he happened to choose it. He smiles thoughtfully as he deposits a shovelful of sweepings in his barrels, "Well, you might say I didn't choose it," he said, "more like it chose me. I always had a notion of keeping things clean, but I can't really say I ever looked forward to this sort of a job, to crave it, you know. It just came my way and I didn't turn it down. According to my idea, there is something for everybody to do, something that needs doing. Maybe it's one thing, maybe another. We can't all be bank presidents. I don't know as I'd want to. To my mind, the real work of this world is that which is most needed, that in which you can serve the most people, and I'm not so sure that I could find a better place to do my bit than right here. I'm proud to keep everything spick and spandy, that's what I'm here for, that's my job. Everyone has a kind word for me, people in general are friendly and fine as they can be. What more? We don't any of us know much about what life really is, but I'll venture to say a good many folks who have thought that a heap of money is the main thing, have found out their mistake, and I'll say, too, that the man or woman who puts real service ahead of money getting has a better chance at happiness than—well, than the president of the biggest bank in the city," the old street cleaner continued to say. "I'm not going to do this always. I've saved a little nest egg and some day, when the sign comes right, my wife and I are going to buy a snug shack in the country, with a garden and some hens, where I hope I'll still find something to keep doing. But, till then—" his eyes twinkled with satisfaction as he glanced across the square and along the side street included in his province, "till then," said we, "you're going right along with your job of making this the very cleanest spot to be found in the entire city, and helping people to understand that the worthwhile things of life aren't tied up in money bags. Is that it?" John touched his cap and smiled, "Aye, Aye, sir!" and we shook hands on it.

If we want to make a success of our Women's Institute, we must "keep on the job." Let us all strive to do real service from now on and I am sure we won't be long until we will have a hall in Berwick that we can be proud to say originated owing to the good work of the Women's Institute.

The clock of life is wound but once
And no man has the power
To tell just when the hands will stop
At late or early hour.
Now is the only time you own,
Live, love, toil with a will,
Place no faith in to-morrow
For the clock may then be still.

After this very interesting paper Mrs. J. P. Rady sang a solo entitled "Memories of France."

Miss S. Galvin also gave a paper entitled "How to Idealize in the Commonplace."

The meeting closed by singing "God Save the King." After which a dainty lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Walter Whittaker, Mrs. A. C. Casselman, Miss Sadie Galvin and Mrs. W. Elliott.

History relates many instances of persons who have thrown their jaws out of gear by yawning, but it remains for Mrs. Sarah Sharper, of Toronto, to start the fashion in dislocated jaws from coughing. Mrs. Sharper was admitted to the Western Hospital after a severe bout of coughing, during which her lower jaw worked out of its socket.

It is good news that King George is smoking again. The taste for tobacco is quick to abandon a smoker when he is seriouly ill, and he is generally well on the way to recovery before it returns to him. Incidentally some advertiser is losing an opportunity worth thousands of pounds if he does not tell the world what the king smoked.

Nephew of Chesterville Man Finds Hidden Gold

The following clipping from the Bolton Evening News, of England, refers to a nephew of Mr. Samuel Peake of this town:—

Hidden treasure of over £150 in soot-blackened sovereigns and half-sovereigns has been discovered in the chimney of his house by a Bolton postman.

He is Thomas Leather, 4, Buxton st. On Tuesday evening he was investigating the cause of a smoky bedroom fireplace when he disturbed a loose brick at the back of the grate.

On removing the brick he discovered that it was part of a false back behind which, buried in a thick bed of soot lay a pile of gold together with the metal framework of two old-fashioned purses in which apparently they had been concealed.

"We have been in the house three years," said Mr. Leather, relating the story of his find to an "Evening News" representative this morning. "We bought it from the administrators of the estate of an old lady, Miss Bradshaw, who used to live here, and who owned a lot of property in this district.

"The house fire has been smoking for a long time. We've had it cleaned several times, but it didn't make any difference, so we decided it must be something wrong with the fireplace. When I came home my wife said she noticed a loose brick at the back of the fireplace, so after tea I went upstairs with a friend James Hardman, 7, Buxton st., who offered to lend a hand.

"When we got upstairs we shifted the loose brick, and then another, and we found that a false back had been built behind the fire. We pulled this out, and behind it was a pit of soot. We shovelled it into a bucket, and something tinkled.

"Jim said 'What's that?' and groped in the bucket and found a coin. 'A farthing' he said. Then he rubbed it on his overalls and said, 'By Jove, it's money.' I said, 'Not it,' but when I looked it was a half-sovereign right enough.

"We wondered if there were any others, so we put the rest of the soot through a riddle. When we did this we found a pile of money on top.

"We dashed downstairs and put some of it in a bowl of water on the table, and found it was all gold."

Mrs. Leather was out with Mrs. Hardman when the find was made, but returned as the find was being investigated.

"I don't know what we felt like," she confessed. "We couldn't believe it was money. We were that excited we didn't know what to do with ourselves."

Asked if she noticed how old the coins were, Mrs. Leather said, "We were too excited to bother."

Last evening Mr. Leather made a further examination of the bedroom fireplace, and having made certain that no part of the treasure had been overlooked, took his find down to the Police Office.

"They didn't get half a shock when I walked in and plumped it down on the counter," Mr. Leather chuckled. Here the money was sorted and counted and found to consist of 62 sovereigns and 180 half-sovereigns. The money is now in the custody of the police who are endeavouring to discover where it came from and to whom it must go.

The previous occupant of 4, Buxton st., was an elderly spinster, Miss Jane Ellen Bradshaw, who died on July 19, 1925. Before that it was occupied by Miss Bradshaw's mother, and one of them, it is believed, concealed the money.

"They were both queer characters," Mrs. Leather added. "When I was a girl the old woman was known as Mother Bradshaw. We used to come playing tricks on her at this very door."

"Miss Bradshaw was a funny woman, too," he added. "If a tenant wanted a new flooring flag she'd take one up out of her own house before she would buy a new one, and she's been seen going round the property pointing the brickwork with a spoon."

"But it was Miss Bradshaw's mother who was the real miser, and I think it was Miss Bradshaw's mother who hid the money.

"It's a funny thing," added Mrs. Leather, "we have often said in jest, 'I wonder if she's hid any of her money anywhere?' Now after living here over three years, and quite by accident, we've found this."

Mr. and Mrs. Leather naturally express the hope that some, if not all, of the unexpected treasure will come back to them.

Inquiries disclose that Miss Bradshaw, who died in 1925, was an illegitimate child. Although her total estate—for she was the owner of many houses in Buxton st. and Devonshire st.—was in the neighborhood of £2,000, she left no will, and her property reverted to the Duchy of Lancaster—in effect, to the Crown.

Mr. F. W. Brookbank, who administered the estate on that occasion for the solicitor to the Duchy, told an "Evening News" inquirer that no claim was made to the deceased woman's estate, so he had sold the property and handed over the proceeds to the Duchy.

"I shall have to notify the Duchy solicitor," he said, "and if, as seems possible, the money belonged to Miss Bradshaw and was part of her estate, it will be claimed by the Duchy."

It is not believed that the find will be dealt with as Treasure Trove. Treasure Trove is defined in the "Encyclopædia Britannica" as "coin, bullion gold or silver articles found hidden in the earth for which no owner can be discovered. Property found in the sea or on the earth has at no time been looked upon as Treasure Trove. If the owner cannot be ascertained it becomes the propety of the finder."

FRIENDSHIP REVIEWED AS A CHARACTER TEST

Asserting the need of young people to cultivate the "art of friendship," Mr. C. Ritchie-Bell, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, declared here last Sunday evening that friendship often revealed the need of a constantly renevated spiritual life in persons in whom it might otherwise continue concealed.

Mr. C. Ritchie-Bell averred that "people of Chesterville need to be spiritually reborn out of selfishness, cynicism, ill-will and sensuality just as much as anybody else," and went on:

"People say that friendship is a failure. But the fact is plain, it is not friendship that fails, it is people that fail. All that friendship does is to show up people."

The Ministry of Music was under the direction of Miss Gertrude Weegar. Special anthems were rendered by the choir at both diets of public worship.

PRESENTATION TO MR. AND MRS. JOHN BOGART

On Thursday evening, February 7, about one hundred friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Bogart, Riverside ,to spend a social evening with them befor their departure for their new home in Morrisburg. After a few hours spent in games and dancing and social intercourse, Mr. Wm. Grady called the guests to order and invited Mr. and Mrs. Bogart to the centre of the room when the following address was read by Mr. B. Grady and the presentation of two large parlor chairs made by Messrs. Joe Hunt and Wm. Kearns:

Mr. and Mrs. Bogart,—

We, your friends and neighbors, gather here this evening to express to you very cordially the appreciation we all feel of your many kindnesses toward us in our community. We do not mean to say farewell, as we hope to see you often. You have with your pleasant countenances endeared yourselves to each and every one of us. We have found you genial companions and trustworthy friends, ever ready to give a helping hand in the different activities of life. We regret very much to learn of your leaving our midst, but we assure you our loss will be other's gain and we trust that your new home will bring to you and yours much joy and happiness. We ask you to please accept these small gifts, not for their intrinsic value, but as a slight token of our esteem and regard, and when you sit around the fire hearth you may always be reminded by your surroundings of friends of this vicinity.

New friends can never take the place
Of those proved by time,
And fresh attractions ne'er efface
The days of "Auld Lang Syne."

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors, Miss Bella McMillan, Mrs. Alex Smith, Wm. Grady, Geo. D. Pollock.

After the address Mr .and Mrs. Bogart each replied very fittingly. They thanked those present for their kind remembrances and regretted leaving their old associates and invited all present to visit them in their new home, and assured them that their thoughts would many times drift back to the pleasant days spent on their homestead, after which all sang "For They are Jolly Good Fellows."

The chairman then called on Geo. D. Pollock, reeve, for a few words, who in his short speech referred to many things when he and Mr. Bogart were boys going to school together. He spoke of the fine homestead that this couple had toiled hard to erect, and the hearty welcome they always extended to all, and in particular to the ladies' societies, of which Mrs. Bogart was an active worker. He also recalled the happy days when Mr. Bogart was a younger man and the Riverside football team held the championship for three years. He assured Mr. and Mrs. Bogart that all would be glad to visit them in their new home.

The chairman, Mr. Grady, then spoke along similar lines, particularly mentioning the pleasant associations that would be severed by the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Bogart and family.

Lunch was then served by the ladies and after biding them farewell all went home feeling they had spent a very pleasant evening.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to thank our many friends and neighbors who, during our sad bereavement, extended to us so many evidences of kind sympathy and help. Curtis Forrester and Family.

A Week In The Legislature

Sovereignty of Canada over all territory within her borders should not be jeopardized, Premier King informed the Legislature this week in again declaring his stand on the deep waterways question and the development of the St. Lawrence River.

"Everyone knows where I stand on the question of deepening and widening the St. Lawrence," stated the Premier. "We should not allow any country to have control of any part of the sovereignty of this country. We have sovereignty over our canal system now. Let us retain it."

The Premier's pronouncement followed the suggestion from Progressive benches that he had not declared his position on the issue.

The Premier pointed out that if the waterways were developed jointly by the United States and Canada, as has been suggested, and the United States given control of part of the canal system, it might result in Canada being deprived of the right to use the canals in the event of war between the United States and any other power.

Work of the Ontario Air Service in forest fire prevention and detection came in for well merited approval in the Legislature during the week during the debate in reply to the Speech from the Throne. It was pointed out that during the year 1928 the service had made 4,130 flights without the loss of a single life and carried, during their prevention work, a total load of 4,258,584 pounds. Efficiency of the service had been rated at 95.2 per cent. on the year's operations.

Suggestion put forward by Hon. James S. Lyons that the Ontario Government should take steps towards the passing of Legislation that would provide for the bonusing of steel produced in Ontario from Ontario ore will likely receive the attention of the House before the conclusion of the Session. Mr. Lyons suggests that a bonus be paid on such production on the understanding that the ore be mined in Ontario and developed into the finished product. He pointed out that the bonus would result in increased activity in the industry which, in turn, would result in direct benefit to the farmers through the greater number of men. This stimulation, he said, would cause greater demand for farm produce. Stressing his contention he pointed out that recently one firm took out one million tons of iron ore. The payroll for this operation was $1,820,000 in wages in addition to $1,020,000 for supplies. Of this amount $700,000 went directly to the farmers of the province for the purchase of food supplies.

Maintenance of the Provincial Highway system cost the Province $1,417,124 last year, Honourable George S. Henry, Minister of Highways, has informed the Legislature. The average cost of maintenance per mile on each type of construction was as follows,—cement concrete, $376.11; asphaltic concrete, $745.54; macadam $403.90; bituminous penetration, $505.39; waterbound macadam, $668.94; traffic-bound macadam, $415.87; gravel $683.88. Some 228.5 miles of new pavement were laid during the year.

Honorable William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests, has informed the Legislature that during the past year 219 miles of road had been cut in Northern Ontario in accordance with the Government's development plan for that section of the Province. Slightly over 410 miles of road had been graded during the period and 539 miles gravelled.

Attorney General Price has received first reading to his bill to amend the Evidence Act. The measure provides an opportunity for greater facility in providing bank books and ledgers in court. At present original books and ledgers must be produced. Under the mendment when two parties are engaged in civil action proper certified copies may be introduced, although when a bank is one of the parties the originals must be produced.

Standing Committee on Agriculture of the Legislature will undertake an extensive task in the interest of the farmers of the Province during this session of the Legislature. The Committee at its organization meeting decided to make even greater efforts toward solving many of the problems that confront the Ontario farmer. Colonization and immigration; co-operative marketing; chicken stealing; hydro for the farm; dairying; hog grading; tuberculosis restricted areas; women's institutes; junior farmers, and agricultural education in the schools were the subjects selected for consideration this year. The committee also approved the suggestion of the Premier that all the members of the Legislature should pay a visit to the Guelph Agricultural College in order to see for themselves the work that is being carried out to advance agriculture in the Province.

Sunday work for cheese factories was the basis of more discussion at the annual meeting of the Federated Dairy Associations of Ontario which is being held at the Parliament Buildings. General Secretary Huestis of the Lord's Day Alliance attended the meeting. On being pressed on the subject as to whether he would ask the Attorney General for permission to prosecute if the cheesemakers took in milk on Sunday, he replied: "I would certainly not ask the Attorney General to give me power to act, if according to the law, it was a case of necessity." Members of the Association took this to mean that there would be no interference by the Alliance unless it was absolutely necessary.

Premier Ferguson has announced in the Legislature that the Government is considering the establishment of a radio station in the central section of Ontario to allow the broadcasting of market reports and farm bulletins to the farmers of Ontario. Complaint has been made in the House by Progressive members that the market reports in the daily press arrive too late to be of vital assistance to the farmer in securing the best return on his produce. Negotiations are now being carried on and it is expected that a definite announcement will be made in this connection within a few weeks.

Making the announcement the Premier stated that the Government was anxious and willing to undertake anything of a reasonable nature which might assist the agricultural community. This, he stated, only followed the recognition that argiculture was the basic industry of the province.

The Legislative program having been speeded up consistent with ample time being allowed for the discussion of important subjects, the House now enters on its third week of the present Session. Already one of the House Committees is functioning and the debate in reply to the Speech from the Throne is in an advanced stage.

Canada's shipment of paper alone last year amounted to $300,000,000 and 94,000,000 tons of nickel were taken out of Ontario.

FARMERS TO DEBATE RURAL SCHOOL BILL

Farmers from Lanark, Grey, Waterloo and Bruce will debate at the Ontario Trustees' and Ratepayers' association meeting April 3, the township school board bill introduced by the government. J. H. Ebbs and J. E. Anderson, Lanark, champion debaters of Eastern Ontario, will champion the cause of the bill, W. N. Allington, Waterloo, and Chris. A. Thornburn, Bruce, western champions, will present the other side.

W. M. Morris, secretary of the O. T. R. A., states that it is generally conceded that some change of administration of rural education in Ontario will have to be made. The three trustee board has neither sufficient pupils nor revenue to warrant it in providing facilities for secondary education such as is demanded today. Co-operation of the rural boards is said to be the only means in sight of providing in the country the advantages now enjoyed by urban children.

BLAME CANADIANS FOR THE MASSACRE

Seven Chicago gangsters are just as dead as they were on St. Valentine's day after they had been mowed down by a machine gun, and the latest theory evolved by the hard-pressed men of the law is that the "international liquor traffic" holds the secret of the massacre. A fruitless search for the slayers is continued.

Unable to discover in the purlieus of its own gangland any word or sign of the men who, under the pretext that they were police officers, got the hands of George Moran's gang in the air before they filled the miserable seven full of lead, the prosecutors of the city advanced the theory that the massacre was the culminating act of a series of bombing and hi-jackings in a liquor war "between Canadian importing syndicates that had the wholesale market of Chicago as a prize."

SECRETARY OF SCHOOL BOARD FOR SIXTY-TWO YEARS

Mr. Duncan Monroe, having been secretary of the Cornwall Public School Board for sixty-two years, recently retired and last Thursday night was the guest of honor at a complimentary banquet given by the Board of Public School Trustees. Mr. Monroe's long service must surely constitute a record in this province.

Traffic on the great lakes in 1926 amounted to 90,000,000,000 ton miles and the total tonnage passing through the the Sault canal was more than three times that passing through the Panama, Suez and Kiel combined.

THE PEEPERS ARE OUT

It was a warm, still evening in late March, the end of one of those soft days that fancy might attribute to a misplaced card in Nature's filing cabinet, but what the matter-of-fact usually call a "weather-breeder." Lured by the feeling of spring in the air and happy in the knowledge that a holiday on the morrow had suspended evening study hours, some of the boys of Smith and Marston's Select Preparatory School had gathered on the steps of the south dormitory for a "sing." Having seen Nellie home, laid Massa in the col', col', goun' and ululated with deep and protracted emotion to the splendor of Juanita's dark eyes, they had relapsed into a momentary silence. Juanita often has that effect, especially in the spring.

Across the soft stillness of the evening another sound now made itself heard: a keen, high-pitched, far-away chorus, as of a thousand elves all beating in unison on silver anvils with tiny steel hammers. It came up out of the marsh at the foot of the hill across the road and had probably been going on for some time, but the singing had drowned it. The boys might not have noticed it even now but for the casual remark of Mr. Stiggins, the instructor in Greek, who, drawn by the voices of the singers, had quietly slipped down from his room on the top floor and for some time had been leaning unnoticed in the dusk of the doorway. "Ah," he said, "the peepers are out."

"What kind of birds are they?" asked Littleton, more for the sake of being polite than because he thirsted for knowledge.

"Birds! you poor fish," jeered Pruney Tomlinson; "they're insects. Did you never study natural history? They're a kind of locusts, and they make that noise by rubbing their legs—or their arms or their wings, I forget which—against their sides, which are rough like the places you scratch matches in a smoking car. The Greeks called them chickadees, didn't they, Mr. Stiggins?" And Pruney turned to the figure in the door for confirmation.

"Cicadas, Tomlinson, cicadas, not chickadees. You've got things mixed. But the peepers—"

"I know what they are," volunteered a triumphant but unidentified voice. "They're little toads that have just hatched out in the mud, and as soon as they come to the top of the water ——"

What new biological marvels the unknown Cuvier was about to reveal Mr. Stiggins did not wait to hear. "E-r-r, just a moment!" he remarked in his class-room voice. "Since we have no study period tonight, perhaps we might consider the hylas for a few minutes. I will run up to my room and get a book or two," and the next moment he was halfway upstairs."

"Now, see what you've done, you big stiff!" growled Dobson indignantly as he placed one foot carefully in the middle of Pruney's back and by the simple process of straightening his leg shoved him off the step. "He's likely to talk an hour, now you've got him going."

In vain Pruney proclaimed his innocence of evil intent. A chorus of recriminations drowned his protests and left him for the time being a social outcast, one who had betrayed the interests of the pack.

"Let's beat it!" whispered some one but before any but a few of the quickest-witted had the presence of mind to put the inspired suggestion into practice Mr. Stiggins was back again with two books in his hand. Switching on the hall light, he sat down on the top step and prepared to read. Business of deep gloom on the part of the boys.

"Batrachia, ranidæ—ah! here we have it. 'Hylidæ, the tree frog family,'" he murmured as he turned the pages. "This is a family of the Anura, or tailess amphibians,'" he began, "'and is nearer in its relations to the toads than to the typical frogs, or ranidæ,'"

"There! Pruney, wha'd I tell you? Didn't I say they was toads?" the voice of the unidentified Cuvier from the shadows.

"Don't interrupt, please," said Mr. Stiggins. "'The members of this family are of comparatively small size'"—voice, subdued this time: "Sure; I said they was little!"—"'and arboreal habits'—I suppose you know what arboreal habits means?"

"Yes, sir," said some one promptly; "it means staying out nights."

"Nonsense! You're thinking of nocturnal. Arboreal means pertaining to trees. We are reading about tree frogs, remember. 'Mechanically the family is chacterized by an arciferous sternum,'—that means a breast-bone that is bent like a bow—what is sometimes called chicken-breasted,—by sacral diapophyses,'—those are a sort of side projections on the last vertabra, at the end of the backbone,—"teeth in the upper jaw, and the terminal phalanges,'—those are the last joints of the fingers,—'elongated, claw-shaped, swollen at the base and bearing adhesive discs. Each disc is a cartilaginous pad situated between the terminal phalanx and the one preceding it, the muscular contraction of which in action produces one or more furrows on its under side. It is rich in mucilaginous glands on the surface and enables the frog to cling to vertical surfaces, as tree trunks, where it customarily perches, by the combined effort of pressure and stickiness (for no suction is applied) and the assistance of the clawed toes where the surface is rough.'"

No unseemly outburst of applause greeted the end of the passage; rather the silence that the Japanese regard as the highest tribute. But Mr. Stiggins did not expect applause, and was quite satisfied at being allowed, partly in response to questions and partly of his own accord to continue to describe the habits and physical characteristics of the hylas, this time in his own words, which were somewhat simpler and more easily comprehended than those of the books.

The dissertation was evidently to good purpose, for one of the boys was afterward heard to describe the peepers as little brown frogs that live in hollow trees and have baseball fingers on both hands, and every finger is a kind of mucilage bottle that squeezes out stuff that sticks them on to the branches; and they make that noise in the spring because they've got a couple of little toy balloons on the sides of their face, and they blow 'em up and let the wind out again, like one of the yelpers that kids have; and they're awful hard to catch, cause they feel the least tremble of the ground when you walk on it, and then they stop peeping and keep still till you go away; and you can't see 'em till you get used to it, 'cause they're just the color of the place where they're sitting. Mr. Stiggins did not hear the description.

"Now that we have learned something of the natural history of the hylas," he continued, "you will be interested to know that there is a very old and pleasing Greek legend connected with them. Here he opened the other book.

"Hylas," he went on, "was a very beautiful youth, the son of Theodamas, King of the Dryopians, in Thessaly. He was a great favorite of Hercules, and went with him and Jason in the Argo in the search for the Golden Fleece. When they reached Nios they sent Hylas ashore to fetch water from a fountain, or spring; but the nymphs of the fountain fell in love with him because of his beauty"—deep and protracted groans—"and dragged him down to the bottom of the spring and kept him there. When Hylas did not return to the ship Hercules went ashore to search for him. He kept calling and calling, but all he could hear was the echo of his own voice crying 'Hylas' Hylas' from the depths of the fountain. Ever afterwards, in remembrance of the threat of Hercules to ravage the land if Hylas was not found, the inhabitants of Nios, on the anniversary of the day, have gone about calling the name of Hylas, but only the echo of their own voices came back to them. So the Greeks say of a person who is engaged in a hopeless search, 'He is calling Hylas.'

"A beautiful legend, isn't it? How poetically it shows—"

"Yes, sir," dutifully replied Williams, who was practical; "are they good for bait?"

There are questions much more exasperating than "Have you quit beating your wife?" Mr. Stiggins seemed not to hear, but merely switched off the light and went upstairs; but one of the boys thought that he caught the words "Bait!" and "Barbarians!" uttered with a considerable explosive energy but with a low voice as the young teacher passed him.

Mr. Stiggins need not have felt hurt. A pebble tossed into the ocean starts waves that break on unseen shores; and, though he did not know it, Mr. Stiggins' talk, with Williams' help, had dropped a dornick into the unfathomed pool of youth.

The evening was unusually noisy in the dormitory, for, having no lessons to learn, the boys diverted themselves with talk and laughter till the signal for "Lightsout" came at ten o'clock. It was much after ten when the resident instructor laid aside his book and went to bed.

For an hour or two the old building lay wrapped in absolute silence. Then, from somewhere within its shadowy walls came a faint, tentative "Peep!" "Peep!" "Peep, peep!" It grew louder and more confident. New voices joined in and timed themselves with those already in swing, until at last the whole great chorus was chanting in rhythm, and the very air throbbed and vibrated with sound.

Mr. Stiggins awoke to the sense of something unusual. It took him a moment or two to find his bearings, but, having found them, he acted promptly. Putting on his bathrobe and slippers, he started for the head of the stairs. Before he reached them the din had ceased, and, after waiting doubtfully till the night air had chilled his bare shins, he crept back to bed and after a while fell asleep again.

It seemed to him that he had hardly "dropped off" when he found himself once more sitting up in bed, listening to that infernal racket. This time he was really roused, so that when he came out of his bed his feet struck the floor with an indignant thump that sent a telegraphic tremor farther than he could have supposed—so far indeed that the chorus died away before he even reached the door. Nevertheless, he went the length of the upper corridor and even partway downstairs, where he sat perfectly still until he began once more to feel uncomfortably cold. But there was no further irruption of the sound, and at last he gave it up.

It must have been after three o'clock when Mr. Stiggins awoke from his dream that two thousand husky Italians with sixteen-pound sledges were hammering on a locomotive boiler in which he was imprisoned. As he began to dress he realized that he had underestimated the number of Italians and the weight of the sledges, but this time he moved cautiously, quietly, and was pleased to find that the noise did not cease as he began to steal down the stairs, not even when he had reached the foot of the first flight; but there, unfortunately, he had reckoned one step too many and in feeling for that step that wasn't there his foot came down with a jar capable of making itself felt by organs far less sensitive than those of the hylas. The voices stopped instantly, but Mr. Stiggins had learned to expect that, and now went ahead boldly. He turned on the corridor lights on every floor and searched every corner of the halls, but nowhere did he find a receptacle that would have held one peeper, let alone a whole army of peepers. But the search led him at length to the kitchen, and there at last he had his reward. On the soapstone behind the range sat a row of seven tomato cans. They were now as silent as tomato cans usually are, but a brief inspection showed that each of them was nearly full of water, and that the water was nearly full of hylas.

The back window opened. There were seven tintinnabulary slams; then the window banged down again, and the excellent Mr. Stiggins climbed in dignantly but triumphantly back to bed.

It is hard to deny a well-earned beauty sleep to one who has passed such a night, but truth is often cruel. Mr. Stiggins could not seem to "lose himself." He lay there, wide-eyed, pondering the problem of human sin and its purpose in the world and what makes boys the way they are until, just as if it seemed he was going to get at least a little nap, a faint, familiar sound came to his ear—a timid but unmistakable "Peep!" Peep, peep!" which gained confidence and grew stronger and waxed multitudinous as before. The gray light of dawn was beginning to appear in the east; it wasn't worth while to try again. Mr. Stiggins got up.

That afternoon on his way to the boathouse he came face to face with Link Williams, who was carrying five good-sized pickerel strung on a stick.

"Gosh, Mr. Stiggins, they are!" cried Link enthusiastically as he held the fish up.

"What are?"

"Peepers."

"Are what?"

"Why, good for bait."

"Were those your peepers in the kitchen?"

"Some of them were, yes, sir."

"But I thought I threw out every can."

"Yes, sir, you did; but those belonged to the other fellows. My can leaked, so I put my peepers in the coffee pot. Want one o' these pick'rel, Mr. Stiggins?"

"No, I thank you,' said Mr. Stiggins.

SLAUGHTER OF INNOCENTS

St. Thomas Times-Journal — The slaughter of the innocents continues. Many children have lost their lives this winter through their parents leaving them alone in their homes with big fires on. Often the children are put to bed and have little opportunity of saving themselves when the house catches fire, even if they are old and strong enough to think and act for themselves. In some cases the children are locked in and, if they would, cannot escape and they become a burnt offering on the altar of their parents' pleasure-seeking and indifference.

DIVIDENDS TO POLICYHOLDERS INCREASED FOR NINTH SUCCESSIVE YEAR

The Company has also inaugurated the practice of paying a special maturity dividend on participating policies, ten or more years in force, terminating by death or maturity.

EXTRACTS FROM DIRECTORS' REPORT

. . . After deducting amounts re-assured, the total assurances in force now amount to $1,896,915,934.57, an increase of $408,925,254.48. Policies in force number 633,240, and in addition 136,293 certificates of assurance are held by employees of corporations and firms under the group plan.

While every field of operation contributed its full share to these impressive advances, the rapid development of our business in Great Britain and the United States is especially noteworthy. The generous reception of our Company in countries served by powerful domestic institutions is particularly gratifying, as testifying to widespread appreciation of our record and services.

. . . The amount paid to policyholders since organization, together with the amount at present held for their security or benefit, exceeds the total amount received from them in premiums by $111,370,229.10.

The strength and resources of the Company have been still further enhanced.

The net rate of interest earned on the mean invested assets, after making provision for investment expenses, has risen to 6.58 per cent. Dividend increases, bonuses and stock privileges, accruing on many of the Company's holdings, contributed substantially to this gratifying result.

A net profit of $11,028,854.59 has been realized from the redemption or sale of securities which had risen to high premiums.

The securities listed in the assets have been valued at figures substantially below the valued placed on them by the Government. This under-valuation of our securities represents an important safeguard against possible adverse market fluctuations, additional to the reserves specifically provided against that contingency.

We are again able to report that on the bonds and preferred stocks listed in the assets, not one dollar, due either as interest or as dividend, is in arrear for a single day; while the dividends accruing to common stocks exceed by several million dollars those payable on the same stocks at the time of purchase.

The surplus earned during the year, based on the values given in the accounts, amounted to $40,264,088.52.

$10,000,000. has been deducted from the already heavily marked-down value of securities, as additional provision against possible fluctuations, increasing the amount so set aside to $20,000,000.

The special amount set aside as a liability to provide for unforeseen contingencies has been maintained at $12,500,000.

$15,822,339.65 has been paid or allotted as profits to policyholders during the year.

After making all deductions and allocations, $9,157,966.34 has been added to the undivided surplus, bringing the total over liabilities, contingency accounts, and capital stock, to $54,438,862.48.

The continued prosperity of the Company enables your Directors to announce, for the ninth successive year, a substantial increase in the scale of profits to be distributed to participating policyholders during the ensuing year.

In addition, your Directors have inaugurated the principle of granting a Special Dividend on participating policies maturing after having been in force ten years or longer. This new bonus will enable policyholders or beneficiaries whose withdrawal is occasioned by the maturity of policy contracts, to participate in the accumulated surplus which it has not as yet been considered prudent to divide.

The effort to provide life assurance at the lowest net cost obtainable has been increasingly appreciated. Our policyholders will be gratified by this further evidence of our desire that the Company's prosperity shall be fully shared by its members.

MOREWOOD UNITED CHURCH

At the annual meeting of the congregation held Feb. 8th, Mr. A. B. Allison was elected to fill the vacancy on the Session caused by the removal of Mr. D. L. Collison to Devlin, Ont. Mr. Ralph Jervis, teacher of Cannamore school, was elected to the vacancy on the Committee of Stewards due to Mr. Amon McConnell going to Morrisburg. Six stewards, whose term of office had expired, were re-elected for another two years. Just at the close of the business Mr. J. Wesley Smith, clerk of the Session, came forward and read the following address to the pastor:

Rev. R. P. Stafford, B.A., B.D.

Dear Pastor,—

We take this opportunity to congatulate you on your restoration to health. We are truly thankful to our Heavenly Father for this manifestation of His love.

In all the departments of church work we appreciate your interest and efforts, as well as those of Mrs. Stafford, in the promotion of success and we pray that all our people, both young and old, may give you, by a renewed consecration, a more excellent service in carrying on the good work of building up the Chistian faith of our church.

Signed on behalf of the Official Board—Ford Steinburg, J. Wesley Smith.

At the Valentine Competition concert under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid, the Society was fortunate to have receipts of a little over $97. Many have been heard to remark since that they never heard a better concert in Morewood.

On Friday, Feb. 15th, the Young People's had a skating party at the local rink followed by refreshments and a few games in the church hall.

On Monday of this week the Young People's staged a Mock Opening of Parliament under the direction of the pastor. A short business meeting followed to bid farewell to the retiring president, Mr. Earl Bilow, who has left for Oshawa. In his place the society elected Mr. Ralph Jervis new president. It was also announced that the following programs are arranged: March 1, Merchant of Venice lantern Views; March 8, Honorary Members Night; March 15, Lantern Views of Shakespeare's plays; March 22, Temperance Feature.

On Wednesday of this week the pastor went to Toronto to repesent Dundas-Grenville Presbytery in a conference regarding a new United Church College. He will return on Saturday morning.

The delegate from this pastoral charge to the meeting of the Presbytery in Spencerville this week is Mr. Calvin Gordon.

PRESENTATION AT CONNAUGHT

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Knight of Connaught, was the scene of a large gathering when a large number of friends and neighbors gathered to bid them farewell before their departure for Syracuse, where they intend in the future making their home. The evening was spent in dancing and games until midnight when lunch was served and the presentation of a well-filled purse was made by Jim McCadden at the proper moment as Ray Masterson read the following address:

Mr. and Mrs. Knight,—

Being aware of your departure from our midst, we gathered here for the purpose of enjoying one more pleasant evening in your nome. This is not the first but we regret that it promises to be the last in Connaught, as you are about to search for "fairer fields."

While residents here you have won a host of friends. You have always been willing to help all in times of need. On the other hand you took great interest in social affairs and they were never complete without you. However, what is one community's loss is another's gain.

We feel that we cannot express our regret that you are leaving us, and as a token of the esteem in which you are held we ask you to accept this purse, not for its intrinsic value, but merely as a remembrance of our good will which we hope you will carry with you in your new field of labor. We also hope that all the "good old times" spent together will not escape your memory.

In conclusion, we will not say goodbye, as we wish to see you often, but au revoir, and wish you that old one that is so true:

We wish you health,
We wish you wealth,
We wish you golden store,
We wish you heaven after death,
What could we wish you more.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors—Mike Walsh, W. J. Lynch.

Mr. and Mrs. Knight made suitable replies and all joined in singing "For They are Jolly Good Fellows."

In the sudden death game in the E. The Kemptville boys were outclassed at all stages, not having more than half a dozen shots on goal during the play.

Saturday afternoon the local High school team will meet the fast team of the Glebe Collegiate of Ottawa at two o'clock on the home ice.
