OTTAWA MAN FINED

When he appeared before Magistrate John McCormick in police court Monday afternoon, Henry Lefebvre, of Ottawa, was fined $10 and $13 costs, when he was found guilty of reckless driving. The charge was laid by Traffic Officer Eugene Rose on Monday of last week whn Lefebvre, driving a truck owned by the Norman Sizzle Co., of Ottawa, ran into a cow on highway No. 31, near here, breaking its leg. The animal, which was owned by Floyd Crowder, of Nation Valley, was being driven to the stock yards at Winchester at the time of the accident. The traffic officer was following the truck.

Coming Events

The Choral Society will meet in the Town Hall tonight. The final concert will be held on March 12th and will be open to the public. The local society will be assisted by talent from Ottawa and other points on this occasion. Reserve the date.

Through the courtesy of one of the members, a radio will be installed in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in order that the congregation worshipping at 11 o'clock may hear the message of our King, Edward VIII. It is requested that all be present at 10.50 o'clock.

LECTURE IN THE UNITED CHURCH

On Tuesday evening, March 3rd, at 9 o'clock, immediately following the evening service, Rev. Mr. Gilbart will address the business men of Winchester and district. All business men, old and young, are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

THE LATE ALLAN F. UTMAN

The funeral of the late Allan F. Utman was held on Friday afternoon Main Street, to the United Church, where a very impressive service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. S. Atchison, assisted by Rev. W. D. Turner, of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, and Rev. D. W. Summers, of the Wesleyan Methodist Church. The choir was present under the direction of Miss Alice Singleton, who presided at the organ. During the service, two beautiful solos were rendered, one by Mr. J. H. Leonard, who sang, "Jesus Took My Burden," and the other by Mrs. Percy Durant, entitled "Good Night Here, But Good Morning Up There."

The pastor chose as his text, Joshua, 1:2: "Moses, my servant, is dead; now therefore arise and go over this Jordan, thou and all this people, unto the land which I do give to them, even to the children of Israel." He spoke in glowing terms on the life of the departed and brought a consoling message to the hearts of the mourners.

Following the service, interment took place at Maple Ridge cemetery. The pall bearers were: Messrs. Jack Latimer, Frank Hogaboam, Chester Timmins, Oscar Wallace, Lloyd Wilson and Ernest Gilroy.

The late Mr. Utman passed away on Wednesday, February 19th,at a Brockville hospital. He was in his 59th year and had been a resident of Winchester for the greater part of his life. As a citizen, he was highly respected, and his passing will be mourned by a wide circle of friends.

Besides his wife, who was formerly Miss Ella Brown, he leaves three sons, George, Charles and Norman, and two daughters, Frances and Doris; also one sister, Mr. Albert Weir, of Bishop's Mills, and one brother, James Utman, of Winchester.

Among the many floral tributes, which bore testimony to the high esteem in which the deceased was held, were offerings from Holly Rebekah Lodge, Winchester; the Citizens' Band; "Spark" Dukelow's Orchestra—Gordon, "Punch" and Russ; Mrs. R. Bessin and Hy. Bessin; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Dixon; George Walter and Wm. Seymour; Mrs. Fred Beckstead, Silas and Wilfred Utman; Mr. and Mrs. James Utman; Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Sweet; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Christie.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. Allan F. Utman and family wish thank all those who were so kind and sympathetic towards them during their recent bereavement, in the loss of a beloved husband and father. Appreciation is also extended to the staff of the Brockville hospital for the care given the late Mr. Utman, while a patient there.

Evangelistic Services Being Well Attended

SPECIAL MEETINGS HAVE BEEN ARRANGED FOR COMING WEEK

These series of meetings being held in the United Church are being attended by many from other churches and are proving to be of great benefit to those who enter into the spirit of them. Evangelist Gilbart is an earnest. fearless and forceful speaker, who stirs the hearts of the people with his addresses. The Gospel in song is brought by Rev. J. H. Leonard in a way that is very helpful. Thursday night he sang: "The Garden of Prayer." The subject of Rev. Mr. Gilbart's address that evening was "How to fill a Church." The methods he gave are by gospel singing, prayer and invitation. On Friday evening he took for his texts John 11:44 and II Corinthians, 3:17, and spoke on the grave clothes of doubt and uncertainty regarding our relationship to Jesus; of cowardice; and of spiritual indifference. Several were present from Inkerman and by a request from there, Mr. Leonard sang "The Pearly Gates." The children's choir of sixty voices also sang a number of choruses.

Saturday night, Mr. Leonard sang: "Changed," and an address was given by Rev. H. Gilbart on "How to add ten years to your life." Many excellent health rules were given as to diet and exercise, emphasized by the thought that our bodies are the temples of the Holy Ghost.

Sunday's services were largely attended. "Have you forgotten God," was sung by Rev. J. H. Leonard at the morning service. Rev. H. Gilbart told an interesting story to the boys and girls about a little girl in Philadelphia saving her pennies to help build a Sunday School Hall and after her death the movement went on until enough was contributed to build the City temple. Speaking on "Three Silver Trumpets," he took for his text Ezek.,33:7. He said God is swinging the world back to evangelism. A corrected life, prayer for power and for the love of souls and personal contact with men are the three trumpets he spoke of.

A very fine address on Manhood and Mastery," was given on Sunday afternoon to a large audience of men who listened attentively to Rev. H. Gilbart. A male quartette composed of Rev. J. H. Leonard, Messrs. E. Shaver, C. B. Timmins and J. D. Stewart, sang. "The Wayside Cross"

At the evening service, Revs. H. Gilbart and Leonard sang: "He Lifted Me," in a very acceptable manner, and Mrs. Leonard also sang "Gethsemane."

A service of song was held at the opening after which Rev. H. Gilbart read a sermon in poetry, "The Master's Question," founded on John 12.26.

Two cornerstones of a great spiritual church were dealt with. The members of that church were all saved by the power of the Cross and they knew it,, and they were overcoming Christians—they had the conquering power, the baptism of the Holy Ghost . His text was Phil. 4:4. It was the church at Philippi that Paul called his joy and his crown.

"A Banquet for Jesus," was the Monday night subject, based on John 1:11 and Rev. 3:20. Rev. Gilbart asked the question: "Would you like Jesus to come into this Church? Then pray, cast down your idols and prepare the way for His coming, and do and say what He wants you to do." Mr. Leonard sang: "The Garden of Love."

On Tuesday night the children sang again a number of choruses in a very efficient manner. They are very responsive to the excellent training given them by Mr. Leonard. The latter sang again by request: "The Pearly Gates and Golden." Another solo, "Living For Jesus," was contributed by Miss Verna Judson of Elgin.

The Evangelist spoke on God's Method of Awakening a Community, from the texts in John 7 and 8. It was a great message on the Holy Spirit, who convicts us of sin and of righteousness. The conditions for the coming of the Spirit, he said, are: 1, We must think about Him; 2. Pray for His coming; 3. Prepare a place in our heart for Him; 4. Obey Him; 5. Love Him.

On Wednesday afternoon the Evangelist continued his talk on the fourfold power of women, having taken the first one of prayer a week ago. The second he spoke on was her power over her husband for God and for good. His advice was to live right before him, to cease nagging, to pray for him and to go to Gethsemane for him. The third is a woman's power over her children. When a woman possesses these three, the fourth, which is the upbuilding of the entire community, comes as a result.

Wednesday evening the Sunday night's talk was concluded—the third cornerstone he gave as a forgiving spirit and the fourth, service. Summing up the whole, he said: "Get right with God, with yourself and with your neighbor and then God will use you.

The Awakening Chorus was sung by the choir.

BESSIN'S HOCKEY TEAM RETAINS MELVIN CUP

Defeat Ford V-8's In First Two Games of Town League Hockey Finals. Last Night's Contest Was Won In Overtime Period.

Stevens Stuart and Jimmie Stuart Divide The Scoring Honors In Wide Open Game That Ended 9-10.

Jimmy Stuart's timely goal, after two minutes play in the overtime period of last night's second Town League play-off game, was enough to give Hy. Bessin's team their margin of victory and win the Melvin Cup, which is emblematic of the Town League championship. The final score was 10-9. Bessins won the first game on Monday night 3-1, thus eliminating the Ford V-8's in two straight games to annex the league title for 1936.

Last night's contest was a wide open affair right from the start and kept the large crowd of fans on their toes, as they cheered their favorite team to victory.

At the outset of the game, it looked as though the red men were going to have little difficulty in defeating Harold Lannin's Ford V-8's. They were four goals up in the first eight minutes of play. The V-8's settled down and before the period ended scored their first counter.

In the second session the Bessin team scored in less than two minutes. It was at this stage of the contest that the V-8's went on a rampage for goals and before the period ended succeeded in tying the count 5-5. They went into the lead early in the third period, but three quick goals by the Bessin squad gave them plenty to worry about. They started bombarding Harry Williams in the Bessin goal from every angle, as they put every man in the attacking zone. These power plays netted them three goals and with less than 5 minutes left to play, they were one up on the Bessin team. Just before the game ended, Jimmy Stuart broke away and tied the score for the red team. This necessitated an overtime period, much to the discomfort of the players who were leg-weary and tired owing to the soft condition of the ice.

The winning goal was scored by Jimmy Stuart after about three minutes' play in the overtime, and for the balance of the period the Bessin team managed to hold off the Ford V-8's, who fought a courageous battle right to the end.

During the game the Bessin goalie had 50 shots to handle, while the Ford net minder figured in 36.

It was a great game, with little to choose between the teams. The Bessin team deserved their win, but it was anybody's game until the final whistle.

Stevens Stuart was the main cog on the Ford team, collecting five goals, while his brother, Jimmy, Bessin left winger, netted a like amount. with his team mate, Ran. Wylie, denting the twine three times.

At the close of the contest the league president. Mr. W. J. L. Boyd, presented Hy. with the David Melvin Cup, accompanied by his personal congratulations, and thus rests the trophy until another season.

The lineups were:

Ford V-8's—Goal, Ault; def., McLean and H. Ferguson ; centre, McDonald; wings, Stuart and G. Blair; alternates, W. Blair, J. McDiarmid, D. Ferguson and Lannin.

Bessins—Goal, Williams; def., Jacobs and Cameron; centre, Carkner; wings, Stuart and Wylie; alternates, Summers, Gemeroy, Kenney and James.

MONDAY NIGHT'S GAMES

The Town League Hockey Finals got away to a good start at the local Arena on Monday evening when the Ford V-8's, fresh from their victories over Williamsburg in the semi-finals, met Bessins, the league leaders, in a two out of three game series'. The crowd was not as large as usual for a play-off game, but will no doubt be larger for the last game.

The contest produced many thrills and some good, bad and indifferent hockey was played by both teams. The Bessin sextette won the game 3-1, but did not outplay their opponents to this extent, by any means. Each team missed some good opportunities to score. both goalies turning in fine performances.

In the first period Art Summers put Bessins one goal up when he beat Ault after a nice solo play. The next goal for Bessin's was scored after 11 minutes play in the second period when Ran. Wylie took a pass from Clare Carkner and gave the Ford goalie no chance to save.

In the final frame, James Stuart took a neat pass from Wylie at the Bessin blue line and eluded the Ford defence to put his team three goals up.

The V-8's staged an offensive that had Harry Williams almost bewildered, in an effort to even the score. With five players inside the Bessin blue line for the greater part of the period, the Fords drove shot after shot towards their opponent's goal, only to have the Bessin goalie turn them aside from every angle. In the meantime, the rest of the Bessin squad were doing fine work in keeping the opposing players in check and waiting for a break. On one occasion, Jimmy Stuart rushed up the ice after a loose puck, which he picked up after it had been turned aside by Ken. Ault, who came out of his net about twenty feet to clear. Stuart had an open net as a target for his shot, and, believe it or not, he missed it. It looked like a sure goal.

One minute before the game ended, Bill Blair beat the Bessin goalie from close in to register the Fords first and only goal. As the whistle sounded to end the game, the Fords were making things hot for their opponents. Final score, 3-1 for Bessins.

The line-ups were:

Bessins—Goal, Williams; def., Cameron and Jacobs; centre, Carkner; wings, Stuart and Wylie; alternates, Gemeroy, Summers, James and Kenny.

Fords—Goal, Ault; def., Ferguson and McLean; centre, J. McDiarmid; wings, McDonald and Blair; alternates, Stuart, D. Ferguson, G. Blair, R. McDiarmid and D. Lannin.

Referees—E. Kellogg and W. Carkner.

Exhibition Game

At the close of Monday night's Town League fixtures, the local Trail Ranger team crossed sticks with the Trail Rangers from Vernon. The game ended in a tie, 1-1. J. Campbell and Don Rowat were the scorers.

The line-ups were:

Vernon—Goal, G. Coons; def., Acres and Campbell; centre, V. Kennedy; wings, R. Kennedy and D. McKercher; alternates, F. Stuart, E. Kinnaird, K. Boyd and J. McKercher.

Winchester—Goal, H. Harper; def., Cross and Quart; centre, Melvin; wings, Rowat and Allison; alternates, Atchison, Fader, Hutt, Cass and J. McIntosh.

Referee—E. Kellogg.

Notes and Comments

Our congratulations to Hy. Bessin and his team on winning the Town League Championship and the Melvin Cup; also to Harold Lannin and his Ford V-8's for their splendid efforts in the final series. We also congratulate the boys from Williamsburg for their splendid performance in the semi-final series, and throughout the season. While Nation Valley and the High School team did not figure in the play-offs, they are deserving of praise for the part they played during the regular schedule. We wish them better luck the next time.

In spite of petty criticisms directed towards them, we firmly believe that Referees Bill Carkner and Ernest Kellogg, officiated in a fair and impartial manner during the regular schedule, and we congratulate them on the way they handled the play-off series.

There is no denying the fact that the Ford V-8's had plenty of tough luck in the last two games. They outshot their opponents by a wide margin in both contests, and the breaks were not in their favor. Such is the way of hockey.

The scoring duel between the Stuart brothers, Jimmy and Stevens, was one of the highlights of last night's game. Each scored five goals, which is not a mean average for one game.

Harold Lannin, manager of the Ford V-8's, tendered his team a dinner at the conclusion of last night's contest, and the boys all report a good time. They are high in their praises of Harold as a manager and Mrs. Lannin as a cook.

We wonder how Williamsburg would have stacked up against the champions in the play-off series. They gave the Fords plenty to worry about in the semi-finals.

Art Summers says that this is the first year he has been on a team that won the championship, although he has played hockey in the Town League since its organization. Well, that's not

Local 100 Club Instals New Officers

MEETING WAS HELD AT HOTEL WINCHESTER LAST FRIDAY NIGHT

About twenty Centurians were present at Hotel Winchester on Friday evening last for the regular supper meeting of the local 100 Club. President Will Rowat was in the chair.

During the repast the members were entertained by an instrumental trio composed of Dwight Jones, Harold Helmer and J. St. Louis, which was thoroughly appreciated. Centurian Chester Timmins led in the sing-song with Miss Helen Timmins at the piano.

Following the reading of the minutes by Centurian Eldon Fennell, the president called upon International Past President Jim Irving, of Ottawa, to install the officers for 1936 as follows: President, W. J. Stewart; 1st vice president, Cent. J. J. Gray; 2nd vice president. Cent. Chester Timmins; secretary, Cent. Eldon Fennell; treasurer, Cent. Walter Moffatt; directors, Cents. W. Moffatt. C. Cross, O. L. Worthem; Sergt.-at-Arms, Cent. W. H. Agnew Pep-Promoter, Cent. Chester Timmins.

Centurian Irving was the first president of the first 100 Club founded in Ottawa 14 years ago.

Following the installation, Centurian Aaron Sweet presented a Past President's Certificate to Centurian Will Rowat in recognition of his services to the Club durig the past year. Cent. Rowat replied, saying that his period of service to the Club was just beginning as far as he was concerned.

A prize boost conducted by President W. J. Stewart was won by Centurians John McCormick and Walter Moffatt.

Cent. Dr. H. S. Gross reported for the Sick Children's Committee and recommended that a certain case brought to the attention of the Club, be given financial assistance.

It is the intention of the Club to stage their annual "Night of Fun" at the local arena within a short time and the program committee was left to complete the final arrangements.

The president also called the attention of the Centurians to the fact that a Theatre Night is to be held at the Picadilly Theatre, Williamsburg, in the near future, and final arrangements were left to the executive.

After much discussion it was decided not to stage an amateur theatrical in conjunction with a producing company whose representative was present at the meeting

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Seed Grain Cleaning

Once more we wish to bring to the attention of those who are interested in the cleaning and preparing of grain for spring seeding, that, beginning March 2nd, we intend to give special attention to seed grain cleaning.

With the improved equipment we have installed this year we are in a position to give you the best of service.

CLEANING—
All kinds of weed seeds from Barley, Oats, Wheat, Buckwheat, Flax and other grains and cereals.

SEPARATING—
Barley from Oats, Wheat & Buckwheat
Oats from Barley, Wheat & Buckwheat
Wheat from Barley and Oats.
Buckwheat from Barley and Oats.

GRADING—
Small, light or broken kernels from any of the above grains with practically no loss of good seed.

SCOURING & POLISHING—
Barley, Oats and Mixed Grain

This new machine clips the tails from the Oats and the awns from the Barley.

It scours and polishes the grain so well that on some lots one would hardly recognize it as the same grain.

The scourer takes out all mustard and other small seeds that may be lodged in the crease of the Oat.

Our regular price for cleaning grain is 15 cents per hundred ($3.00 per ton.)

In order to encourage the early cleaning of grain we are making a special discount of 50 cents per ton on lots of one ton or more of the same kind of grain, delivered at one time between March 2nd and 25th.

Above discount to apply where no special separating or grading is required.

All grain to be removed from our warehouse promptly when cleaned.

THE KING TO TALK ABOUT TEN MINUTES

King Edward will broadcast a message to his subjects throughout the Empire on March 1, it was announced recently.

No indication has been given as yet of the subject matter of the broadcast and it is not known how long the message will be. It is expected to last about ten minutes, however. The broadcast will start at 4 p. m. (11 a. m. E.S.T..)

The plan for such a broadcast has been under consideration since the King's accession to the throne a month ago.

It was recalled that His Majesty was the first member of the Royal Family to broadcast. That was in 1922, when, as Prince of Wales, he broadcast an address to the Boy Scouts. Apart from the late King, whose broadcasts on Christmas Day were listened to eagerly by people all over the world, few broadcasters have been so popular as King Edward VIII. His delivery is usually clear.

He has been especially associated with broadcasts of charitable appeals and his messages always have produced a remarkable response. His appeal for the relief of distressed miners in 1928 produced a large sum of money, including $100,000 from a friend in New York.

The King's most notable broadcasts include his appeal for King George's Jubilee trust fund last April and his inauguration of the "Guy British" campaign of the Empire Marketing Board in 1931.

USES SHOE HORN

"My little girl's rubbers were hard to put on till I tried a shoe horn. If children were taught how to use a shoe horn for this purpose and kept one at school, there would be less grief for the teacher," a mother suggests.

Menu Hints

Egg and Ham Croquettes

Add croquettes to your dinner and you compliment your guests. There are many kinds of croquettes, but those calling for ham or eggs are easily prepared by the housewife who appreciates serving an unusual dish made from ingredients already on hand.

Egg Croquettes

2 cups chopped eggs, hard-cooked, 1 cup thick white sauce, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, dash of cayenne, egg and crumbs. Eggs should be chopped fine, moistened with sauce as soft as can be handled, and seasoned. Let chill thoroughly on flat dish, well buttered, then divide evenly into portions, allowing two tablespoons for each croquette. Shape into balls, cylinders, cones, or any desired shape. Roll in crumbs, dip in egg, again in crumbs and fry in deep fat till light brown in color. Drain on soft paper. Serve with a sauce.

Ham Croquettes

2 cups mashed potatoes, 1 tablespoon butter, 3 egg-yolks, 1 cup cooked ham, cayenne, eggs and crumbs.

Mix potato, butter, yolks of two eggs and cayenne, beat until smooth then set to cool. Chop the ham, mix with the other yolk, set on the stove for a moment, then turn out to cool. When thoroughly cool, take a tablespoon of the potato mixture, make a hole in it, put a large teaspoon of the chopped ham inside, close the hole and shape into a ball. Dip in flour, then in egg, roll in crumbs and fry in deep fat.

Who Said Hash?

Hash may be an old boarding-house favorite to a few and a boarding-house bugbear to many, but hash, when properly made, is a pretty good dish for a cold day. Here are two hash recipes that will please you:

Beef Hash

2 cups chopped cold roast beef or steak, 2 to 4 cups chopped boiled potatoes, 1 cup beef gravy or hot water, 4 tablespoons butter, salt and pepper.

Put butter (or substitute) into a frying pan and then put in the meat and potato, salt and pepper, moisten with beef gravy or hot water and cover. Let it steam or heat thoroughly, stirring occasionally to mix it evenly and also to keep it from sticking. When done it should be neither watery nor dry, but just firm enough to stand well when dished. If onion is liked, fry two or three slices in the fat before the hash is added.

Corned Beef Hash

2 tablespoons butter or fat, 2 cups of cooked potatoes, 2 cups chopped corn beef, 1-2 cup milk or water, 2 tablespoons butter or fat, salt and pepper.

Mix beef and potatoes together lightly and season. Pour the milk into a frying pan with half the fat and, when this is warm, turn into the hash, spreading it evenly and placing the rest of the fat cut in pieces on the top. Cover the pan and place it where the hash will cook slowly for half an hour. There should then be a rich, thick crust on the bottom. Do not stir the hash. Fold it as an omelet is folded and place it on a warm platter. This slow process of heating the hash gives it a flavor that can not be obtained by hurried cooking.

USED THE CREPE AS LABOR-SAVER

Naturally a death calls forth sympathy. And crepe on a front door usually means an affliction for the family living in the house. But Ald. Henri Jarry of Montreal, Que., tells of a department foreman who became suspicious of one residence where someone apparently died every time a blizzard blew. Several times the snow was cleared by the city in front of the premises for the funeral-to-be. The lazy householder can shovel his own from now on.

Clergyman (to small boy): "Well, my boy, what is your name?"

Small Boy: "My father says I came on the first of the month with the rest of the bills sir."

Spring Assizes Opened at Cornwall on Monday

Three persons are on trial for murder at the spring assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario which opened at Cornwall on Monday last, with Mr. Justice Nicol Jeffrey presiding.

Mrs. Viney Belle Volvey, 28, and Clarence Cameron, 29, will be tried for the second time for the murder of Mrs. Volvey's 55-year-old husband in the small Volvey home at Bonxville, about 12 miles north of Cornwall on April 22 last, while Arthur Tremblay, 29-year-old Cornwall carpenter, will be tried for the murder of Rene Tessier, 34-year-old Cornwall railway worker, at Cornwall on August 31 last.

Hearing of the evidence in connection with the murder charges is expected to take nearly two weeks, but if Mrs. Volvey and Cameron are tried separately, which is quite possible, the sittings are likely to be prolonged into the third week. Last October, Mrs. Volvey and Cameron were tried jointly for the muredr of the woman's husband and after more than ten hours' deliberation, the jury failed to agree on a verdict.

Providing neither of the murder trials is adjourned, it will be the first time in 115 years that more than two persons have been tried for murder at the same assizes. At that time four persons were convicted of murder and hanged a short time later.

Mrs. Volvey and Cameron were brought to Cornwall from the Carleton county jail,, Ottawa, on Wednesday last. They had been held in custody at Ottawa since last fall, when overcrowding of the counties' jail at Cornwall resulted in their transfer. Tremblay was taken to Ottawa but was later returned to Cornwall for preliminary hearing in January.

Prosecutor Named

C. L. Snider, assistant Crown attorney for the city of Toronto, has been appointed as Crown prosecutor for the assizes, and will be assisted by Crown Attorney John G. Harkness, K.C., of Cornwall. C. J. McDougall, of Brennan and McDougall, Cornwall, has been appointed to act on behalf of Mrs. Volvey and Cameron, while Lionel Chevrier, M.P. for Stormont county, will defend Tremblay. Mr. McDougall was appointed as counsel for Mrs. Volvey and Cameron, owing to the death, since the trial, of George I. Gogo, K.C., who was counsel for the accused.

Charges of murder were laid against Mrs. Volvey and Cameron last May when the evidence presented at the several sessions of the coroner's inquest aroused the suspicions of Crown Attornney Harkness. Intensive investigations were made at his insistence with the result that both the man and woman were charged with murder.

On the night of April 22 last, doctors and police were summoned to the small home of Mr. and Mrs. Volvey at Bonville, when it was reported that Louis Volvey had been found dead at the foot of the stairs. An examination of the body was made and it was concluded that the man had died of a broken neck. caused by a fall down the stairs. An inquest, however, was ordered and following a post-mortem conducted on Volvey's body by doctors, it was claimed that death was caused by a broken neck. Evidence of witnesses at that time was considered to be of such a nature that Crown Attorney Harkness asked for an adjournment of the inquest so that a more detailed investigation could be made. During the interval, Mr. Harkness secured the services of Dr. E. R. Franklin, medico-legal expert for the Ontario attorney-general's department, who came to Cornwall and conducted a second post mortem on Volvey's body. Dr. Frankish testified at the resumed sitting of the inquest and claimed that death was not due to a broken neck, but was caused by the fracture of the hyoid bone in the man's throat. He was positive that the injury could not have been sustained in a fall down stairs and testified that death was caused by throttling or choking due to pressure applied to the throat.

Charged With Murder

At a earlier session of the inquest Cameron had been arrested on a perjury charge, and immediately following the conclusion of the inquest, when the jury returned a verdict implicating both Mrs. Volvey and Cameron in the death of the man. the two were charged with murder.

The charge against Tremblay arose out of the death of Rene Tessier, whose battered body was found in Tremblay's small home, Ninth street east, Cornwall, late on the afternoon of August 31st last. Police were called to the scene and found Tessier's lifeless body lying on the floor in the kitchen of the home. Beside the body was found a bloodstained carpenter's axe, while beneath the body there was a hammer. Tessier had suffered several blows about the head with a sharp instrument, as well as numerous fractures of the skull, caused by a blunt instrument, the resulting post mortem revealed.

A coroner's jury named the weapons of death as being the hammer and axe. Less than two hours after Tessier's body was found by police, Tremblay. his clothing spattered with blood, was taken into custody near the scene of the crime. The preliminary hearing was on January 10 when he was committed for trial.

Five Civil Actions.

In addition to the murder trials, there are one jury and four non-jury civil actions to be heard during the assizes. The single jury case, Casselman vs. Beach, arises out of an automobile-buggy accident on the Morrisburg-Ottawa highway last summer. Several persons were injured in the accident. Arthur Flynn, Morrisburg, is acting for the plaintiff, and Henderson, Herridge and Gowling of Ottawa for the defendant.

Non-jury cases consist of an action by Merrit McKay against C. C. Munro. of Cornwall, proprietor of the Munro Coal Company, of that city. The plaintiff is claiming damages arising out of a collision between a Munro coal truck and his automobile in Cornwall in January. 1935. Danis and Danis are appearing for McKay and A. E. Hall for the defendant. Ownership of certain farm chattels is the basis of an action in which George A. Casselman, Morrisburg, is the plaintiff and Mrs. Nettie Zeran. his sister, and Ross Beckstead, the auctioneer who sold th goods, are the defendants. Danis and Danis are appearing for the plaintiff, while Arthur Flynn is acting on behalf of the defendants.

There are also two divorce cases, Merkley vs. Merkley, and Wright vs. Wright. H. O. Hessell, Cornwall, is solicitor for the plaintiff in the first case, and Henderson, Herridge and Gowling of Ottawa for the plaintiff in the second suit. Neither of the actions is defended by counsel.

THE QUEEN MARY'S SPEED

When the Queen Mary makes her maiden voyage across the Atlantic on May 27, she will average thirty-four knots—the highest speed ever attained by a commercial ship.

Even that will not be her maximum speed. Driven all out, the 27 boilers and 16 turbines will be capable of thrusting Queen Mary's 73,000-ton bulk through the water at the equivalent of slightly more than 40 miles an hour.

The anchor chains for the Queen Mary the biggest ever forged, were hoisted on board a few days ago.

A stamp on every link shows that it has been thoroughly tested by an officer of the Board of Trade.

The cinema installation—the sign that the liner is nearly completed—arrived at Clydebank recently. It is one of the most up-to-date talkie machines produced and is similar to the units supplied to the big West End Theatres.

The great ship's machinery, which was intensively tested, has been examined for any possible flaw. Both main engines and auxiliaries have come through their trials with complete success, and the propellers are now being recoupled.

DAY BY DAY EDUCATION

A Columbia University professor of philosophy has detected the grave fallacy in the popular idea that the education of children and of young people can provide a guarantee for a desirable quality of adult life and citizenship.

It is a mistake to suppose that childhood learning can prepare the individual to cope with the problems of mature life. The reason so many persons fail to cope with the problems that come with maturity is because they ceased learning when they "stopped school."

Genuine public education is something more than a public school and college education. It is a matter of adults tackling the business of shaping and reshaping their present environment and becoming masters of themselves in the process.

Under present conditions it appears necessary to look beyond the schools for agencies of adult education. But adults should be able to look beyond the schools and teach themselves. They are given the power to reason for that purpose. Adult schooling is found in books, newspapers, magazines, public forums, educational radio programmes, museums, travel and thinking.

Learning confined to adolescence leaves an attitude toward life essentially distorted. The world is moving so rapidly that adult education is a lifetime, not a periodical undertaking.

LEAVING MARCH 26th.

Dr. W. H. Fyfe, principal of Queen's University for the past six years. will leave Kingston about March 26th to assume the principalship of Aberdeen University, Scotland. The board of trustees of the university will tender a farewell dinner to Dr. Fyfe on March 14th. He will receive a presentation and his oil portrait, to be hung in Convocation Hall, will be unveiled.

Measuring snowfall is a harder task for weather men than measuring rain, hail, sunshine, or other recorded phenomena.

ON THE RADIO NEXT SUNDAY EVENING

A tale of a young warrior's adoration for a beautiful and gently reared Egyptian girl will be told in "Sumerian Gold," when the Commission's Toronto program designers again present "Forgotten Footsteps," on Sunday, March 1, at 9.00 to 9.30 p.m. EST. This presentation has created a coast-to-coast audience for the subjects dramatized and inspired by the treasurers in the Royal Ontario Museum of Archaeology, Toronto.

"Sumerian Gold" refers to a quaint and rather rudely fashioned statuette which dates to 3000 B.C. It's story is this: From Mesopotamia came a gallant wanderer whose chief claims to fame were his brilliant fighting arm and his honest heart. His wanderings led him to Egypt, noted for its culture and its beautiful women.

One of the fairest of the land held the young warrior spell-bound, but he felt that his rough ways and courage were not capable of winning such a maiden. So he tried to justify his love by showing her his desire to be master of more culivated arts than those which had stood him in good stead on his wanderings. He set to work to fashion a gift that might win her favour. His little statuette was crudely made with its decorations of gold held in place with tiny nails. Compared to Egyptian works of art it was a pitiable thing. But the maiden felt that his ambition was worthy and so he claimed her heart and they lived happy ever after.

PLANNING TO CLOSE SEVERAL DISTRICT PORTS OF ENTRY

Closing of several customs port of entry and warehousing ports, effective Feb. 15, was announced in the current issue of the Canada Gazette, issued last week.

The places affected are Sandy Point, under the survey of the port of Shelburne, N.S., Windsor Mills, under the survey of the port of Sherbrook, Que.; Aultsville, under the survey of the port of Cornwall, Ont.; Blenheim, under the survey of the port of Chatham, Ont.; Sturgeon Falls, under the survey of the port of North Bay, Ont.

It was also announced the outport of entry and warehousing port of Cardinal, under the survey of the port of Prescott, Ont., will be closed after May 1, 1936.

"NUMBER PLEASE?"

Much has been said and written about the wrong numbers given by telephone operators, but this story has to do with the correct ones. According to telephone statistics released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the number of completed conversations on Canadian telephones during 1934 is estimated at 2,298,507,566, and that is a lot of right numbers. This is an average of 1,925 conversations per telephone, or 212 per capita. No other country has as high an average number of conversations per capita and only the the United States and Japan report a greater total number of telephone conversations. Perhaps the reason that Canadians are particularly loquacious over the telephone may be attributed in some measure to the fact that the telephone is a Canadian invention, the world's first telephones having been set up and operated in Canada by Alexander Graham Bell.

The number of telephones in Canada at the close of 1934 amounted to 1,193,729 compared with 1,192,330 in 1933. For each of the years 1931, 1932 and 1933 decreases from the previous year were recorded, and in 1934, while the number of residences telephones continued to decrease, increases in business, rural and public pay telephones were more than sufficient to offset this decrease. With an average of 11.01 telephones per 100 of population, Canada was second only to the United States, where there is an average of 13.29 telephones per 100 of population.

In addition to playing an important part as a medium of communication in the business and social life of the Dominion, the telephone also provided employment to 17,291 persons to whom salaries and wages totalling $21,167,834 were paid during the year.

POKER FOR LARGE STAKES PLAYED IN PENITENTIARY

Warden Roy Best of the Colorado state prison, a member of the committee invited to study prison conditions after the slaying of Richard Loeb by a fellow convict at Joliet, Ill.. on Jan. 28, said that testimony of inmates pictured "conditions that were nothing less than astounding."

Among the disclosures reported made by convicts to investigating committee members were that convicts played poker for large stakes in their cells, that money was smuggled in to inmates and was used to corrupt guards. that liquor was manufactured and circulated freely, that narcotics were obtainable and that favored wealthy inmates were permitted to wear white shirts and flannel trousers instead of prison garb.

MODERN WOMEN

A way has been opened for Mexican women to become voters . . . of sorts. Recently the National Revolutionary Party announced that women would vote in the internal elections on April 5, similar to primaries, in which candidates for senators and deputies will be chosen to represent the Federal District. Mexican women have been hitherto barred from participation in elections.

INSANITY

(Niagara Falls Review)

New York State Commissioner of Highways believes that drunken drivers should be confined in asylums for the insane, and most people will agree with him that anyone who drives a car while intoxicated is insane.

The WOMAN'S ANGLE
by NANCY HART

How do you wash your face?—That sounds like a trick question, doesn't it? But cosmeticians tell us that HOW we wash our faces is of great importance in preserving the beauty of smooth, fine-textured skin and clear complexions. Never scrub the face, they say, and never use hot water. To do so enlarges the pores and embeds particles of soap and grit into the skin. The best method is to make a creamy lather of soap suds on your wash cloth and wipe it gently over the face, using tepid water. Then, as gently, rinse it all off and follow this with a final rinse of cold water to close the pores and act as a mild astringent.

Handiest home gadget we've heard of in a long time is a wrapping shelf set up in the unused space of a closet. It is thirty inches from the floor and as deep as space will allow. A wall bracket holds a roll of wrapping paper, and another provides a place for twine. If you're a paper and twine saver, a magazine rack under the shelf holds papers and wall hooks keeps strings from getting tangled. And the whole arrangement is such a convenience for wrapping packages and gifts.

THE MEASUREMENT OF FUEL

Fuelwood is sold by the cord or by the wagon box load. A standard cord is a pile of wood 4 feet high, 4 feet wide and 8 feet long, giving a total volume of 128 cubic feet. The amount of solid wood in a cord varies considerably. Crooked sticks, small diameter of the sticks, loose piling and prominent knots are common characteristics that reduce the volume of solid wood in a cord.

It is customary in many localities to sell wood by the short, face or running cord. A short cord of wood is a pile 4 feet high, 8 feet long and 12, 14 or 16 inches in width, depending on the market requirements. A standard cord of 4 foot wood is equal to 4 cords of 12 inch wood or 3 cords of 16 inch wood, although a standard cord will seldom give 4 full cords of 12 inch wood because the shorter sticks pile closer.

AGAINST STAMP LICKING

The practice of licking a stamp went out with gay nineties, and if you must lick anything, lick the envelope where the unlicked stamp is to go on. At least that is the advice given out by the post office department. The department desires to point out that the mucilage which should keep the stamp in place is often removed by too hard a lick but if the envelope is just moistened and the stamp pressed firmly on the spot it will remain in place until the letter is delivered.

IGNORANT WILL BE FINED

China has announced that after May 1st 1936, anyone in Nanking between the ages of six and fifty who cannot read will be fined. Appalled at the ignorance of the people of the capital, the Chinese authorities have issued a primer of 1000 characters and ordered students to teach the ignorant from it or give up hope of graduation. As half of the population of the city cannot read, the students will be kept busy until the new law goes into effect. The police will be the official examiners. and will stop anyone they wish who if he fails to read the primer, will have to pay the equivalent of half a cent on the spot. The penalty is called the Ignorant eople's Tax.

THE USE OF POULTRY WAX

The interest aroused throughout the Dominion by the wax-plucking demonstrations carried out by representative of the National Research Council and of the Dominion Department of Agriculture has resulted in the widespread adoption of this successful method of preparing poultry for market. In the firt place it is not an expensive process, and it improves the appearance of the plucked bird. Not only are pin feathers and hairs removed but the scurf and scale on the skin are taken away and a most pleasing fresh appearance which adds to the sale value of the bird, is the result. There is also a substantial saving in time, particularly when very pinny specimens are dealt with, and the operations involved in the whole process are simple and straightforward.

The only initial drawback to the universal use of this method was the scarcity of the special wax necessary for successful plucking. This wax was prepared at the laboratories of the National Research Council. and, necessarily until arrangements could be made for wholesale manufacture, the supply at first was limited. Ordinary forms of wax, of course, are not satisfactory. However, the difficulty has been overcome and an adequate supply of wax is now available at hardware and flour and feed stores throughout the Dominion.

HINTS FOR THE HOME

Bread

Allow the bread to cool before placing it in the breadbox, or it will become soggy.

Leftover Fruit Cake

A good way to use the leftover fruit cake is to steam it and serve as a pudding with hard sauce.

Cutting Dried Fruits

Try using floured scissors to cut dried fruits of any kind, raisins, marshmallows. etc. It will facilitate the work wonderfully.

Wilted Vegetables

Wilted vegetables can be freshened merely by allowing them to soak for about three hours in very cold water before cooking.

Save the Snaps

When removing snaps from clothing, fasten them together on a piece of heavy paper and they will be conviently ready when wanted.

Blankets

Blankets and flannels will keep soft, fluffy, new feeling if a teaspoon of glycerine is added to each pint of rinsing water when washing them.

Baked Bean Sandwich

Mash contents from one small can of baked beans. Moisten with catsup and spread between slices of brown or rye bread. Serve with dill pickles.

Scorched Milk

When the milk tastes slightly of scorch, this taste can be removed by putting the pan into cold water and adding a pinch of salt to the milk.

Cleaning Hardwood

Spots on hardwood floors can be removed by dampening a soft cloth in rubbing alcohol and wiping over the spots, then applying a good coat of wax.

Writing When Travelling

When necessary to write while travelling in an automobile, train or bus. press the elbow into the body just above the hips and you will find the task easy.

Try It!

Are there dark circles around your eyes? If so, take more outdoor exercise. get more sleep, drink more water every day, eat more fruit and wholesome vegetables and see how quickly the circles disappear.

Care of Piano

Do not place the piano against the wall, particularly an outside wall. or the dampness will affect the tone. It can easily be kept a few inches away from the wall.

Ironing Linens

It is not necessary to starch linens. If ironed properly the linen will have a natural stiffness. And always iron it very damp, wrong side first. them finish on the right side.

Cleaning Angora

Either white or gray Angora or Tibet can be washed in warm, soapy water. but the greatest of care should be used to see that the skin is stretched when drying.

The Dish Cloth

Keep the dish cloth for dishes only. Don't use it for odd purposes around the kitchen. Have other cloths for wiping up spilled food. wipe off the table, or wiping out the sink.

Cleaning Chintz Curtains

Shiny chintz curtains can be cleaned satisfactorily by first dusting them thoroughly, then sponging them with lukewarm water and soapsuds, using a rubber sponge.

Care of Furs

Fur should not be exposed to intense heat; keep it away from the fire or hot radiators. If it becomes wet, allow it to dry slowly, shaking it from time to time while it is drying.

Marble

Avoid letting any acid, such as grapefruit, lemon or vinegar come in contact with any marble surface. But should this happen, rub the stain immediately with ammonia.

Potted Plants

Why not cover the pots containing the house plants with some scraps of gay oilcloth, or give the outside of the pots a coat of pretty enamel. They will be far more decorative.

EDWARD VIII IS MOST INFORMAL

The slight, fair-haired Edward VIII completed the first month of his reign with public evidence he has become Britain's "informal monarch."

The new King-Emperor, whose rule began the instant his father, George V., died just before midnight January 20th, in keeping with the tradition "The King Never Dies," has already settled down to his tasks with characteristic thoroughness.

Just as he toured the Empire as Prince of Wales making scores of informal trips as "Britain's Ambassador of Business," so has he demonstrated that 20th century informality, rather than stiff regard for precedent, will mark his reign.

This irrepressible informality, which made Edward the best-loved Prince of Wales in Britain's history, was again disclosed a this first public function since his accession—a visit recently to the British Industries Fair at Olympia.

The King insisted on carrying out his long-scheduled visit, in order to lend his personal support to the fair, despite the court mourning for his father.

He toured the stands in record time, often outdistancing his police escort, in sharp contrast to the stately progress King George and Queen Mary always made at previous fairs.

Officials, evidently surprised by His Majesty's keenness, could not help but laugh when the Monarch paused before a sock display pulled up his trousers and showed the hose salesman the kind of socks a king was wearing.

More chuckles arose when His Majesty stopped at a stand showing dress shirts made of paper and asking the paper shirt maker if his wares "washed well."

Informality and disregard for minor precedents may be expected of this ruler of 493,000,000 subjects in the Empire on which the sun never sets but no more sensational changes, such as this precedent-shattering flight to his capital after his father's death at Sandringham, semed in prospect.

Despite his informality, the new Sovereign has fulfilled consistently all his constitutional duties, conferring with his ministers, almost daily and holding levees and investitures in the traditional manner.

Each week-end the Monarch insists upon quiet and rest in his country home at nearby Fort Belvedere whe he indulges in his now-favorite hobby of gardening.

STUDY SIDEWALKS ALONG THE HIGHWAYS

So many pedestrians are being killed on Ontario's highways that special consideration must be given to the construction of sidewalks in future highways improvements, R. M. Smith. Deputy Highways Minister, declared before the Ontario Good Roads Association. In this way, he said, the department hoped to provide adequate protection against motor traffic. This year, he asserted, he looked forward to renewed road development activity.

DISCONTENTED

"Let thy discontents be thy secrets." It was the advice of Benjamin Franklin, and it is good, sage advice, the thoughtful utterance of a wise man. Keep to yourself the things that do not suit you. Do not go about the neighborhood babbling of your discomforts and discordances. Put a soft pedal on your grouches and grudges. Do not wear your heart on your sleeve where everybody can see when it runs blood with hurt, or turns green with envy, or grows black with anger. A judicial reticence, a discriminating reserve, is a good thing to cultivate. It is well to be able to keep them.

Dry Shoe Polish

When the shoe polish has become dry and hard in its container, add a few drops of turpentine to it and this will soften it.

The Hot Water Bag

The temperature of the hot water bag should always be tested against one's cheek before placing it on a sick person, as it might cause a burn. A burn should be carefully avoided, as it can be serious to a bedridden person.

The Log Fireplace

Do not remove all the wood ashes from the open fireplace. Leave some of them as a bed for the next logs to be burned. These ashes will retain a great amount of heat and give a quick and hotter fire.

Preparing Cabbage

Cabbage should be soaked for thirty minutes in cold water in order to freshen it. Then cut in quarters, shred fine. and dry between towels. Place the unused cabbage in oil paper and keep in the refrigerator until wanted.

Wrinkles

It is claimed that small wrinkles on the face can be removed by applying the white of an egg to the face and letting it remain for about 20 minutes. Egg white is an astringent and has the tendency to draw the tissues together.

In the Automotive World WEEK by WEEK

"MOUNTED" ON MOTORS

They are still "mounted" police, but comparatively few of them now ride the ponies usually associated in the public mind with Canada's scarlet-coated Force. What is lost in romance is gained in utility. Sir James MacBrien, commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, in Washington recently for a game preservation conference, explained how things are. The men of the famed force have to go in for faster means of transportation than horses now. There are few places where motor-cycles, automobiles, boats or airplanes cannot penetrate, and so the number of constables on horses has now been reduced to about 300, mostly on the farthest frontiers.

"DISCOVERING" KNEE-ACTION

Thousands of motorists this winter have discovered the full benefits of the "knee-action ride" for the first time. These drivers are those who rarely if ever drive off pavement. Their driving is limited to city street or smooth paved highway. But the cold winter, which has seen ruts and bumps of ice and snow formed on all heavily travelled roads, has demonstrated the advantages of knee-action wheels, which move up and down independently of each other and soak up shocks through big coil springs.

"Knee-action definitely gives an improved ride on even the smoothest streets," a General Motors engineer points out. "This has been proved to motorists all over the world who have driven a car with knee-action and one without over the same route under the same conditions and compared the comfort. But the rougher the road the more noticeable this difference is. And the cold winter, producing bumps of ice and snow on even the smoothest highways, has accentuated the difference between the ride in a knee-action car and th car without this improvement."

SIX MILLION SIXES

Twice since Chevrolet introduced its six-cylinder models it has had a million-car year. One of these was 1935; the other, the introductory year, 1929. Off the assembly lines last month rolled Chevrolet's six millionth Six. That's a million more than all the Chevrolets which were built before the Six came along. Honor of driving the six millionth Chevrolet Six goes to Mrs. J. F. Boden, of Detroit, who got it for a wedding present.

Chevrolet Six has changed considerably since 1929, and today's cars, despite their vastly increased performance powers, are economical to operate than were the first sixes. Although they are larger, heavier and of course wonderfully improved in appearance, prices are lower than those of the first Crevrolet Sixes.

INCREASES IN THE WEST

Provinces west of the Great Lakes registered some impressive increases in motor car statistics now available for the whole of 1935. Registrations serve to illustrate. The Dominion as a whole chalked up a gain of 4 per cent. in registrations of passenger cars and commercial vehicles, while the gain in the three most westerly provinces averaged considerable higher than that, British Columbia having an increase of 5.2 per cent. Saskatchewan had the biggest gain of all the provinces for passenger cars sold during the year, an increase of 50.8 per cent. over 1934. Saskatchewan also led in bus and truck increase, with British Columbia and Manitoba following closely.

STRESSING ECONOMY

Questions asked by automobile prospects in all sections of the country these days indicate that Mr. 1936 Motor-Car Buyer is more than ever economy conscious. Mr. Buyer also fully appreciates the fact that gasoline mileage is but one consideration when determining true economy. Pontiac has listed its economy features for those who are interested.

Oil economy is assured by 100 per cent. full-pressure, metered-flow. lubrication, pressure-suction crankcase ventilation and oil preserving baffle at the outlet pipe, full length water-jacketed cylinders, rear main bearing oil seat on crankshaft, compression rings that are grooved to prevent oil escaping into the combustion chamber. Precison construction greatly reduces the cost of repairs. Cross-flow radiator, exclusive with Pontiac, besides being an efficient cooling system preserves expensive anti-freeze solutions. Coltage control with the fan-cooled generator assures long life of electrical equipment. Low piston travel which means that in a year's driving pistons will travel many miles less than those in higr speed engines, which increases the life of many parts.

NO SAFETY SUBSTITUTE

It is not correct that ambulance drivers can afford to take more chances at the wheel than the ordinary motorist. They have the right of way and a siren to warn the traffic, but have to exercise more than ordinary care. This is indicated in a request received by General Motors of Canada Limited, for copies of the "A-G-C of Driving." The request came from the Kitchener and Waterloo Hospital, Kitchener, Ontario, where three ambulance drivers are employed. Dependable equipment, as well as care at the wheel, is important in ambulance work, the latter explained, and it was added that one of the ambulances in service is a McLaughlin-Buick 1920 model, still going strong with a fine record behind it.

SIMPLE ADJUSTMENTS

Chevrolet's new perfected hydraulic brakes have but one point of adjustment for each brake shoe. As the brake lining gradually wears down, full braking effect is maintained by turning a notched adjusting wheel, inside the drum. The same simplicity is found in many other parts of the car's equipment. The stop-lamp switch is a compact unit with only one moving part, a metal diaphragm, which is depressed by hydraulic pressure when the brakes are applied. The diaphragm closes the circuit and lights the stop-lamp.

PEOPLE ON ST. LAWRENCE FRONT EAGER FOR WATERWAY SCHEME

At first glance the proposal for a commercial water route between Montreal and New York, via the St. Lawrence and Hudson rivers and Lake Champlain looks like a violation of the same principle as the Chicago water diversion from Lake Michigan, observed Col. A. C. Casselman, K.C., Grenville-Dundas Conservative whip, recently. As such, Col. Casselman thought, the Canadian members of the International Joint Commission should watch very carefully to safeguard Canada's interests in the pending investigation of the new route.

"The people of my riding, along the waterfront of which the upper dams of the proposed St. Lawrence deep waterways were to be constructed, were highly satisfied with the treaty for that deep waterway nogotiated by Hon. W. D. Herridge with the United States, Col. Casselman added, "and they were very disappointed when the Ontario government came out so strongly against early completion of that deep waterway to the sea."

Col. Casselman intimated that he would have to make a careful study of the new proposal before he could make any more extended comment on the plan as an alternative to the completion of the St. Lawrence deep waterway.

LIKENESS FOR NEW COINS IS STUDIED

The King turned a critical eye today on his likeness as it will appear on new British coins. Received in audience, Sir Robert Johnson, Deputy Master of the Royal Mint, presented a plaster cast of the King's face which will be used to make dies for both coins and medals. Royal approval is required before a cast can be used.

GASOLINE IS DYNAMITE

Fire Marshall William J. Scott of Ontario has done a valuable service in drawing attention to the terrible dangers of the careless handling of gasoline. He points out that one gallon of gasoline will make as big an explosion as 83 lbs. of dynamite. Where there are gasoline fumes even the throwing of an electric switch is often enough to cause a terrific explosion. Gasoline for cleaning purposes has become so common that people using it often become careless, and do not realize the great peril which surrounds them. Gasoline should never be used indoors if possible. The cleaning of gloves and other articles of wearing apparel should always be done outdoors or beside an open window.

The fire marshal, in explaining the hazards of gasoline, told of a man who was cleaning out the pit in a service station last year with gasoline. The fumes of the gasoline were ignited by an acetylene torch being used over thirty feet away, and the man cleaning in the pit was very badly burned. He told of another instance where a gasoline truck exploded when a man lit a cigarette three hundred feet away. A slight breeze had carried the fumes.

At a demonstration before a number of fire chiefs at the Detroit Fire School last year two quarts of gasoline were put in an open pan in an alleged gas-proof room. This was done to test fire extinguishers before the Fire Chief's Convention. In some way the fumes accidentally exploded. One fire chief was killed and 42 were sent to the hospital.

These instances indicate how careful people should be when using gasoline in any form. Carelessness may result in loss of life and great property damage.

WHEN THE LINER STRUCK

The liner quivered from stem to stern, and then with a harsh grating sound it came to a full stop.

A man in a long, flowing white nightshirt appeared from a cabin and dashed up to a steward. "What's happened?" he shouted. Have we struck an iceberg? Shall I get into my lifebelt? Won't you lower the boats?"

"Too late," the steward answered. "We've done all we can for you, and you'll have to look out for yourself now. You see, we've just tied up in dock."

ELEPHANTS HAVE CUSHION FEET

A full-grown elephant weighs anything up to six tons, yet it can be as light on its feet as a dancer. When a herd goes to a drinking-hole a messenger goes silently ahead to see if all is clear. Danger is at once signalled by a loud trumpeting. The reason why elephants are so soft-moving is because each foot ends in what is really a big cushion—a large pad consisting of a mass of fat and fibers.

KNEE-ACTION Completes ITS RIDING EASE

YOU need a big, long, substantial car like Chevrolet for easy riding. You need soft, lengthwise-mounted rear springs also, to cushion the back-seat ride. But you can't stop there, if you want to take full advantage of modern progress. You must have Knee-Action at the front wheels to complete the comfort! Chevrolet is the only low-priced car of 1936 that goes all the way in quality and value—by offering you the Knee-Action gliding ride in all Master De Luxe models. Come and try that ride for yourself, today. Make your own comparisons of the smoothness, the freedom from jarring and jolting, the Shockproof steering ease, the restfulness of the rear seat. Compare all the other good things that The Only Complete Low-Priced Car gives you at the lowest cost. Check, too, the easy time payments under the greatly-reduced 7% GMAC plan.

CHEVROLET IS THE ONLY LOW-PRICED CAR THAT OFFERS YOU

(1) Perfected Hydraulic Brakes . . . (2) Solid Steel Turret Top Body by Fisher . . . (3) Valve-in-Head Engine . . . (4) Knee-Action on Master De Luxe Models . . . (5) Fisher No-Draft Ventilation . . . (6) Safety Glass in windshield and every window.

YOUTH—AND THE FUTURE

Out of this age of economic upheaval and social unrest, a serious situation is arising that may have a most undesirable effect upon the future of this country. Each year thousands of young men and women are being turned out of colleges, schools and other institutions of learning into a cruel and relentless world of greed and everlasting competition. At first, all are optimistic concerning their future; all are eager to accept responsibility and share in the work that leads to happy and contented homes. Ultimately, however, this enthusiasm begins to wane, as weeks of heart-breaking search reveal the fact that jobs are at a decided premium. These young men and women are, at this stage, learning that their services are not required; that their efforts to equip themselves for service and self-dependence have apparently been in vain.

Enforced idleness is one of the greatest curses ever to invade mankind, for it breeds dissatisfaction and unrest. It reduces personal initiative and causes young men and women to become embittered against the prevailing order of things. They look upon themselves as mis-fits and, in the end, become resigned to their seeming inevitable fate—Unemployed!

Meanwhile our politicians spend hours in the House of Commons in argument on how and why the last election was won and lost. It would be of much more interest to the average citizen if our legislators would devote their time exclusively to the questions of how and why conditions came to be as they are, and what is to be done to rectify the situation.

Sir Wilfred Laurier in addressing the youth of Canada shortly before his death, uttered these words, according to a splendid article appearing in a recent issue of the Orillia Packet & Times:

> "As for you who stand to-day on the threshold of life, with a wide horizon open before you for a long career of usefulness to your native land, if you will permit me after a long life, I shall remind you that already many problems rise before you; problems of economic conflict, problems of national duty and national inspiration. Let me tell you that for the solution of these problems you have a safe guide, an unfailing light, if you remember that faith is better than doubt, and love is better than hate.
> "Banish doubt and hate from your life. Let your soul be ever open to the strong promptings of faith and the gentle influence of brotherly love. Be adamant against the haughty; be gentle and kind to the weak. Let your aim or your purpose, in good report or in ill, in victory or in defeat, be so to live, so to strive, so to serve, as to do your part to raise the standard of life to higher and better spheres."

It is indeed difficult for the youth of today to live, strive, and do their part to raise the standards of life to higher and better spheres, when thousands upon thousands of them cannot earn a living for themselves.

Obviously, the Government of this country is not to blame for the depression or subsequent conditions, yet the seriousness of the situation should not fail to impress itself upon the minds of our legislators as they convene at Ottawa.

TUBERCULOSIS SANATORIUM ASSURED

General satisfaction will be expressed throughout the United Counties concerning the announcement made by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn last week, that the Ontario Government would grant $85,000 towards the erection of a tuberculosis sanatorium in the vicinity of Cornwall.

The need for such an establishment in these Counties was emphasized, in the report of a special committee appointed to deal with the matter, at the January session of Counties' Council. It was pointed out that this district could offer no accommodation for persons suffering from the disease, and numerous cases requiring treatment were, of necessity, forced to forego proper care and attention.

While nothing definite has, as yet, been decided, the likelihood is that the 100-bed institution will be erected about three miles east of Cornwall on the banks of the St. Lawrence. Such a sanatorium would provide adequate means of treating all persons residing in the United Counties who are suffering from the ravages of the disease.

Remarkable advance has been made during recent years in the care of tubercular sufferers, and it is a well-known fact that an early diagnosis, complete rest, fresh air and sunshine will lead to a cure. Such being the case, the Counties' Council is to be commended for its progressiveness in taking some definite steps to assure adequate accommodation for patients residing in this district.

It is learned on good authority that a special session of Council will be called in the near future to authorize the issuing of debentures to the extent of $100,000 which is to be the Counties' share in the proposed scheme. The balance, totalling $15,000, is to be raised by private contributions and public subscription, and there will be little difficulty experienced in acquiring the needed funds.

PUBLIC MEN AND OUR PROBLEMS

There are times when the average citizen is given cause to wonder if diplomacy and tact are always characteristics of those holding positions of prominence in our public life.

When making reference to Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett a few days ago, the Premier of Ontario is said to have remarked: "Mr. Bennett can be so small at times he can walk under a freight car without removing his silk hat." No doubt such a statement would raise a laugh from his supporters, but it is doubtful if the thinking citizen of this province would find much humour in the remark, regardless of his political leanings.

During recent years, this country has been faced with acute economic and social problems that have taxed to the limit, the judgment, foresight and ability of our statesmen and public men. These problems continue to harass the people and more than ever before, they look for strong, earnest leadership from those occupying positions of authority.

This is no time for sharp exchanges on the part of our political leaders, it is a time for action and concentrated effort, in order that the people may be relieved of some of the burdens that now oppress them. Unemployment, increased taxation, relief, scarcity in the midst of plenty, are matters that should cause our statesmen and politicians to overlook petty prejudices and work as never before towards a satisfactory solution of these difficulties.

The people wait, and watch, and it must be remembered that, in the ultimately, the life of any Government depends on how well they tackle the problems affecting the masses—and the masses judge.

ICY ROADS AHEAD

The time of year is rapidly approaching when exceeding care is required, on the part of motorists, if serious highway accidents are to be avoided. Ice and sleet are two of the main hazards of safe driving and those who travel the main roads should keep this fact ever in mind.

Each year, the months of March and April take a heavy toll in human lives and damage to property through careless driving on dangerous roads. In this respect, speed is known to cause a large majority of accidents. It does not matter how expert a driver may be, he has little control over a motor vehicle on an icy road.

Take precautions this spring to insure for others as well as yourself a full measure of safety, and thus avoid accidents that may possibly result in loss of life and years of regret. Drive Safely and Sanely—and live to enjoy those balmy spring breezes.

SALMON IS CAPTURED AT SMITHS FALLS WATERWORKS

Employes of the Smiths Falls waterworks last week captured a large salmon which became caught in the grating covering the mouth of the intake pipe. They were unable to explain how the fish travelled through many miles of waterways from its Rideau Lakes haunts. To reach the waterworks the salmon must have made its way through locks and over dams.

TOTAL OF 1,206,429 PERSONS ON RELIEF

The number of persons in Canada receiving relief at the end of December, 1935, was 1,206,429, a return tabled recently in the House of Commons disclosed. Throughout the year the figure remained approximately at the 1,200.000 mark, although in September and October it dropped down to 969,745 and 988,804 respectively.

In the dried out areas of the Western Provinces relief was distributed throughout the year to about 175,000 persons every month. A decided drop occurred in September and October when the recipients numbered 18,554 and 35,505, respectively.

The return showed an average of 0,300 war pensioners also were receiving relief from the Pensions Department. With their dependents the total approximated 30,000 every month.

The number of single, homeless unemployed men in relief camps varied widely from 8,236 in May, 1933, to 27,078 in December of that year. In December last the number was 19,382, according to a preliminary survey of the Labor Department.

WAS MEMBER OF STAFF AUDITOR-GEN.'S OFFICE

Miss Helen Bow Alexander, accountant in the Auditor General's office. Ottawa, for the past 25 years and daughter of the late Robert A. Alexander, who was principal of the Galt Normal School for 35 years, died Friday at an Ottawa hospital following an illness of two days' duration.

Born at Galt, Ont., she spent her early life there and receiving her primary education she graduated from the University of Toronto. She was exceptionally brilliant at mathematics and was gold medallist in that subject at the university. For some years she followed the teaching profession and was for a time connected with the teaching staff at Gravenhurst school.

About 25 years ago she retired from teaching and came to Ottawa where she joined the staff of the Auditor General's office. She was a member of the University Women's Club and worshipped at Chalmers United Church.

Surviving to mourn her passing are two brothers, George I. Alexander of Santa Monica, Cal., and William Alexander of Banff, Alta.

The late Miss Alexander was a cousin of Messrs. George and John Challies and Miss Mary Ross, all former residents of this place.

CRAWFORD—HUMMELL

An alcove, fashioned with pink and white streamers, white wedding bells, against a background of potted ferns and flowering plants, made a pretty setting for the wedding of Bertha Mae Hummell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hummell, to George Boyd Crawford, and the late Mrs. Crawford, of Bavelester, Ireland, which was solemnized at the family residence, Saturday afternoon.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. George Extence, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The bridal party entered the room to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by Mrs. Kenneth Hummell, of Aultsville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was in a gown of Princess Marena blue chiffon velvet, softly draped, and trimmed with silver lace. Her hat was of the same material, with a soft gray veil hanging over the front flare, her slippers matching her hat, and she carried an arm bouquet of roses and maiden hair fern.

Miss Clara Cassidy, who was bridesmaid, wore a dress of Royal blue silk crepe, and carried rosebuds and maiden hair fern, in shower.

Donald Hummell, brother of the bride, was best man.

Mrs. Hummell, the bride's mother, wore a dress of black silk crepe, with a corsage of rosebuds.

After the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served. Mrs. Percy E. Hummell of Ottawa, and Mrs. William Hummell of Chesterville, sisters-in-law of the bride, presided at the table.

Many beautiful wedding gifts were received by the bride.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Hummell left by motor for Montreal and Ottawa, while the staff of the Bell Telephone exchange and of the local drug store, where Mrs. Crawford had been employed for the past eight years, sped their departure with congratulations and best wishes. For travelling, the bride wore a dress of Royal blue silk crepe, a seal coat, a blue hat and matching accessories. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Crawford will reside in the Colquhoun community.

McCONNELL—CUMMING

A quiet wedding of much local interest was solemnized on Saturday morning, Feb. 15th, at Cornwall, Ont., when Ruth Audrey, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Cumming of Ormond, was united in marriage to John, second youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McConnell, of Morewood. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. D. McLachlan, of the Cornwall Baptist church.

Following their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. McConnell left on a short wedding trip, after which they will reside at Cornwall where the groom is a valued employee of the Courtauld's Company.

The happy young couple were recipients of a beautiful floor lamp, a gift of the Courtaulds Company.

PASSES AT OSHAWA

Mrs. Sophia Bertrand passed away on February 21st at the home of her son, E. Bertrand, Oshawa. Her remains were placed in the Mausoleum at Oshawa until spring, when she will be taken to the Ormond Cemetery for burial. Had she lived until March 17th she would have been eighty-five. Her husband predeceased her thirty-two years ago. Beside her son, one daughter, Mrs. Frank Waterson, survives.

BIRTH

At the Ottawa Civic Hospital on Sunday, January 26th, 1936, to Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth Woodwark, of Elma, Ont., a daughter—Miriam Jean.

NEW STAMPS NOW ORDERED BY THE KING.

For the first time British postage stamps will carry a half-length portrait of the sovereign instead of the customary profile when King Edward VIII. stamps are issued toward the end of the year.

At the King's request, his portrait will appear on all stamps in naval uniform, and he will be bareheaded. The portrait will extend to the waist, and, as the new stamps will be no bigger than their predecessors, the King's features will not be as prominent as those of past monarchs.

Ever since the first British adhesive stamp was issued in 1840 the sovereign has been represented by a head-and-neck portrait only.

MOREWOOD

Misses Margaret and Lillian McLaren of Felton spent Saturday with their aunt, Mrs. Orrin Dillabough.

Mr. Joseph Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. John Wylie of Toyes Hill visited for the week end with Mrs. A. J. Martin.

Mrs. James Bogart and Mr. Adam Carlyle on Saturday night received word of the death of their brother, Sam Carlyle, of Bellevieu, Alta.

Mr. Jack Moore of Haddo, spent a few days with Mr. Joseph Moore and Mrs. Wilson Steinberg.

Miss Louva Allison of Williamsburg spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Allison.

Mrs. Ward Johnston was the guest of Mrs. E. Faulkner on Tuesday.

Mrs. Liza Keyes has returned to Winchester after spending some time with her daughter, Mrs. A. B. Allison. of Morewood.

Miss Emma Thompson of Ottawa Normal School was the guest of Miss Norma Loughridge over the week-end.

Mrs. Robert Steen called on Mrs. Ab. Dillabough on Tuesday.

Mrs. Harry Hutchinson called on Mrs. A. B. McConnell on Sunday.

THE POET'S CORNER

The following refers to the treatment of Bliss Carman by his country before his death and regarding the remains later

"We want you not when you blossom
with song,
We want you not when your lyre is strong,
But we have a strange insatiable lust
For a poet's bones, for a dead bard's dust.
"You ask for bread and a jug of wine
For singing songs of this land of thine
But you'll get no wine and you'll get no bread;
Though we'll fight like demons, when you are dead,
To keep your ashes," my country said.

—Wilson McDonald.

IN PRAISE OF SPINACH

There's something I would like to say,
Or write down in a book:
That those who don't think spinach fine.
Just don't know how to cook.

There isn't any reason why
The spinach should be sandy;
Use lots of water, hot and cold—
And water's cheap and handy.

Five minutes is quite long enough
To steam it—maybe less;
But if you boil the spinach long
'Twill turn out just "a mess."

Now chop it fine as fine can be
And season well and then,
Trim up the dish with bacon strips,
That titbit from "the pen."

Take hard-boiled eggs and grate them
well;
They make the dish look snappy;
Add cream sauce, if you like it, and—
Eat spinach and be happy.

MATILDA W. I.

The February meeting of the Matilda Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. B. A. Strader, Brinston. Mrs. Herb Houlahan, president, occupied the chair, with Mrs. Chas. Strader as secretary. A two-minutes' silence was observed, followed by the National Anthem, in tribute to the late King George V. A letter was read from Ancil Locke clerk of the township, expressing the appreciation of the board for work done in the interests of relief throughout the township during the past year. Another substantial sum was granted to Mrs. O. A. Irvine. convener of the relief committee, and a committe consisting of Mrs. K. Smith, Mrs. T. A. Brinston and Mrs. Dr. T. Hamilton was appointed to purchase material for the making of clothing. A penny-tea will be held in Gilson's hall, early in March, to raise funds, and the following committees were appointed: program, Mrs. C. V. Wellington, Mrs. A. Peterson and Mrs. D. Hanson; refreshments, Mrs. S. McQuaigg, Mrs. Jas. Boyd and Mrs. C. McMillan.

The program committee for the evening, consisting of Mrs. Chas. Hanson. Mrs. C. Locke and C. McMillan, presented the following program: piano solos, Mrs. Edgar Strader; current events, Mrs. C. V. Wellington; duet, Mrs. C. E. Collison and Mrs. Chas. Strader; solo, Mrs. B. A. Strader. Mrs. McMillan had charge of two contests, Mrs. Doug. Hanson winning most points and the grand prize with Mrs. C. V. Wellington second. It was moved by Mrs. Doug. Hanson, seconded by Mrs. Dr. A. Clark, and unanimously carried, that a vote of thanks be tendered Mrs. B. A. Strader for the use of her home for this meeting.

HALLVILLE W. M. S.

On Wednesday last, the members of the W. M. S. of St. Andrew's Church, Hallville, held an all day quilting at the home of Mrs. R. B. Hyndman, several ladies turning out in the cold and stormy weather. Dinner and supper were served during the day by the ladies in charge, namely, Mrs. R. B. Hyndman and Mrs. Carman Cummings.

TRUCK DRIVER FINED

Independence cost Ernest King, Prescott truck driver, almost $13 in magistrate's court at Morrisburg on Friday. King was charged with driving without the proper license some weeks ago. He failed to appear in court. Instead, the magistrate received a letter from King's layer asking what the fine would be. The information was sent but no answer was received. Then the magistrate wrote to King again for information, to which he received no reply. King appeared in court at Morrisburg on Friday of his own accord and was fined $12.85 and given a few words of advice as well on answering letters written by magistrates. Four Morrisburg citizens were fined $3 each for operating a radio without the proper license.

No human being ever yet made a success in trying to be somebody else, no matter how great or successful that person might be. Success can not be successfully copied; it is original; it is self-expression. A man is a failure just in proportion as he gets away from himself.

DISTRICT NEWS

METCALFE

The members of the Young People's Union of Metcalfe United Church enjoyed a pleasant sleigh drive, followed by a social evening. at the home of Miss Ada Hughes, on Friday evening. Games and music were indulged in, and a dainty lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by some of the members.

Women's Auxiliary Meeting

The Women's Auxiliary of Holy Trinity church, Metcalfe, met at the rectory on Tuesday afternoon last. Attendance was small owing to the roads being impassable.

The rector opened the meeting and led in the devotional exercises and also read a chapter from the Study Book, after which the president, Mrs. C. H. Roach, took the chair for the balance of the meeting.

The one cent a meal bags were distributed to the members for the month of February, also material was given out for preparing the bale. The meeting was closed with prayer. after which dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. E. H. Rolston.

United Church W. M. S.

Mrs. G. C. Gaukrodger presided at the February meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church, Metcalfe, which was held at the home of Mrs. W. J. W. Woods on Wednesday evening last. Mrs. A. H. Scrivens read the scriptures, and Mrs. D. J. Kidney led in prayer.

The report of the recent annual presbyterial was read by Mrs. G. C. Gaukrodger. Interesting readings were given by Mrs. A. C. Blair, Mrs. A. H. Scrivens and Miss J. Cameron. A letter from Mrs. D. R. Carson, presbyterial president, was read by Mrs. W. J. W. Woods.

Arrangements were made for observing the World Day of Prayer on February 28. The supply secretary reported plans well under way for a bale of clothing to be sent West in June.

At the close of the meeting, Mrs. W. J. W. Woods, supply secretary, reported that several donations of clothing and material for children's garments had been received and plans were made for an afternoon's sewing in the near future.

Curlers Hold Annual Banquet

A friendly tournament between four rinks of members of Ottawa Curling Club and four local rinks was held on Monday afternoon with the Metcalfe players winning a hard-erned victory.

The Ottawa Curlers were also the guests of the Metcalfe Club at their 10th annual dinner held in the Town Hall on Monday evening. During the course of the dinner at which over two hundred were in attendance, Dr. G. C. Gaukrodger presided and after an opening singsong of curling favorites, called upon several of the guests for brief addresses. Mr. Max Runge brought greetings from Ottawa Curling Club and expressed appreciation of the spirit of goodwill which has always existed between the members of his own club and those of Metcalfe.

Mr. H. H. Ward, also of Ottawa, read a group of original poems which were very interesting, one on "Canada," and one on "Miami" being outstanding. Following this, Mr. Dan Cameron, honorary president of the Metcalfe Club, was called to the platform where, after telling of the recent annual President vs. Vice President competition which for the first time was won by the President's players, Mr. Cameron, on behalf of the Club, presented the victors with a special trophy, which much to the amusement of the audience, persisted in crowing lustily. The President's rink having also won the Bonnet Bonspiel held last week, the four players were called forward while Jas. D. Cameron on behalf of the donors of these prizes, placed the Scotch Bonnets on their heads.

Dr. Byers then took charge of the program and gave a very interesting though brief, account of the history of Metcalfe Curling Club, telling of its organization in 1924 under Rev. Father Harris, at that time in charge of St. Catharine's parish and of the thirty-five members who made the beginning of the present club. In passing, he also mentioned the collapse of the new club house on Feb. 25, 1926, while still facing financial problems, and told of the generous assistance received from various outside curling organizations in rebuilding, as well as the support given by many of the local citizens.

Miss Dorothy Petticrew, of Ottawa, contributed three dance numbers to the evening program, and Mr. Stewart Christie, one of the guest curlers, interested the audience with his optical illusions, amazing them with his clever manipulations of a pack of playing cards.

Others who contributed to the entertainment were Rev. C. H. Roach. who spoke briefly on the value of a hobby, even in sport; Mr. E. C. McCaffrey of Russell who brought greetings and good wishes from his home Curling Club; J. P. Dowser and Dr. L. Morrow in humorous addresses, with Dr. Morrow stressing the fact that Metcalfe Curling Club was in reality an offspring of the Ottawa Club.

The Christie Trophies, which had been won from Winchester by a narrow margin, on Saturday evening, were on display and Mr. Albert Scrivens was congratulated on being responsible for the victory. In replying, Mr. Scrivens paid tribute to his players for the splendid game played by each. At the close of the program, dancing was enjoyed with the Vernon Orchestra in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren and Family:—

It was with much regret that we learned you were about to leave us and we could not let you go without spending a last social evening in your presence. We feel that we are losing friends who have ever been kind, courteous and willing to lend a helping hand whenever it was needed. Since coming into our midst, we have learned much of each other. Life has had its many trials for you but through all its sorrows and pleasures you have had our heartfelt sympathy and kindliest wishes. You have welcomed us to your home and we have gathered to say good-bye and wish you a bright ,happy and successful future in your new home where we are sure you will make a host of friends by your genial affable manner. Before saying farewell, however, we wish to express our goodwill towards you in something more tangible than mere words, and ask you to accept this gift as a remembrance of your many friends.

Hoping the future will bring you much happiness and success and that we may have the pleasure of meeting you occasionally and welcoming you to our homes whenever opportunity affords you the pleasure of visiting us.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbours.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren replied in suitable words, thanking all present for their gift and inviting each and every one to visit them at their new home after which all joined in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Ross Anderson on Feb. 18th, 1936, a daughter. Congratulations!

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Rev Charles E. Dunn

Vision and Service
Lesson for March 1st. Luke 9: 28-43a.
Golden Text: Luke 16:13.

Luke tells us that "Jesus went up the mountain to pray." How often the Bible refers to the mountains! Think of Mt. Carmel, that bold headland pushing its way into the sea, where Elijah held an extraordinary vigil with his God. Consider further Mt. Hermon, the very mount of our lesson, the peak upon which, according to tradition, Jesus was transfigured!

Rev. Chas. E. Dunn

Why did the Master seek the seclusion of this mountain? Various reasons suggest themselves. First of all he found quiet there. There is a beatiful phrase in one of the psalms, where we read that "the mountains shall bring peace to the people." "Religion," says Dr. L. P. Jacks, "comes forth in the majesty of silence, like a mountain amid the lifting mists." One is reminded of how Elijah found the Lord at Carmel not in the wind, not in the earthquake, not in the fire, but in "the still, small voice."

Then, too, Jesus found stability in his mountain retreat. The psalmist says that "as the mountains are round about Jerusalem, so the Lord is round about his people."

Best of all our Lord found inspiration in his mountain experiences, especially in the Transfiguration illumination. We recall that when Moses climbed down from Mt. Sinai with the tables of the law in his hands, his face shone with a heavenly light. Even more impressive was the radiant countenance of Jesus!

But we must all come down from the mountain top, with its vision of God, and take off our coats and get to work. This is precisely what Jesus did when he had reached the base of the Mount of Transfiguration. He healed a lunatic boy possessed by the demon. After the beatific vision came the lowly task. Every true soul descends from the exhilaration of a high altitude to the routine, immediate obligation awaiting, in the form of human need, by the dusty road at the foot of the peak.

HITLER WELL PAID

As chancellor of Germany, Adolf Hitler draws a salary of $9,600 a year. He also is president for which he receives a salary of $24,000 annually. The first goes into a trust fund and he has ordered the second withheld by the treasury for a purpose not yet revealed. A third income, known at the president's "entertainment fund," amounting to $48,000 a year, goes into Adolf's pockets as his own. He also is realizing a handsome income from his book, "Mein Kampf." or "My Struggle," produced by the Nazi publishing plant in which Hitler is part owner.

STOPPED HIS PAPER

A year ago a cranky sort of an old man came into this office and stopped his paper because something in it did not just suit his fancy. We have frequently met him on the street since that time and it is amusing to note the look of surprise on the old fellow's face that we are still in existence regardless of the fact that he stopped his paper. Some day—and it won't be long either—that old gentleman will turn up his toes. His heart will be stilled forever. Neighbours and friends will follow his lifeless clay to the silent city and lay him to rest among flowers. An obituary will be published in these columns telling what a kind father, a good neighbour and beloved citizen he was—which the recording angel will overlook for charity's sake and in a very short time he will be forgotten.—Westport Mirror.

SYNOPSIS: . . . A luxurious five-month cruise around the world aboard the "Marenia" brings together a group of passengers for adventures, romantic, entertaining . . . and tragic. . . . Like in "Grand Hotel" these passengers offer a study in human actions and reactions which unconsciously bare their souls. . . . These characters are aboard the ship: Macduff, dour Scotchman, single, of middle age; Miss Mudge, school teacher, spending the savings of 20 years; Angela, faithful wife of Lovat, gigolo; Dick Charlton, first officer; Clare, a person of experience; Joan, a dissipated flapper; Jenny, run-away wife, and Peter; Captain Baring, master of the ship . . . and his soul. . . . NO, GO ON WITH THE STORY.

A slight girl strode past with a youth at her heels. She was all in yellow, and her pale gold hair burned in the day's afterglow. Dick's glance swung from Clare's opulence to the figure in primrose, moving with the careless grace of inexperience.

"Ingenue!" commented the chief officer, his gaze settling again on the figure beside him.

"Yes"—she darted a fast look at him—"and how one has to protect oneself from the young!"

He looked at his watch. It was half-past five. "Sorry. Seamen must work. No time for dalliance now."

"But now is always a lovely time." Clare stretched languorously in the depths of her deck chair.

Dick swung along the deck, a tall, blue figure tacking against the wind.

Clare watched day melt into night. She could see Macduff roaming up and down, puffing at his pipe. "I wonder if I could make him talk," she speculated idly. But he looked so forbidding that she decided to leave him alone and go down to dress.

In three days Clare had begun to hear the histories of some of her fellow passengers. She knew that the woman with silver hair, sitting to her right, was taking her husband around the world for his health. Clare decided that her face suggested an interesting past, although gloom was blotting her out for the time being.

At the next table, like a modernist doll propped beside a dowager, sat Patty Arundel. Patty had summed up her fellow passengers with the hard disfavour of twenty. She thought them old and stuffy. Clare she regarded as a Victorian siren, a silly woman who did not know that love was never mentioned by name between two modern young people. "Sticky!" thought Patty to herself.

"Johnny"—Patty raised her voice—"there goes Mrs. Langford."

She found that she was not drawing Johnny's attention to Clare—it was already there. He blushed slightly, surprised in his own thoughts. He had just arrived at the conclusion that he had never seen such lovely curves, and what was it that lurked in those yellowish eyes? Johnny was fresh from college; his father was sending him around the world before he settled down to being a broker. Patty was fresh from Vassar, and she didn't fall in love with every youth who danced well or beat her at tennis. Johnny was on probation, but, failing greater excitement, he seemed a godsend on the Marenia.

"Johnny!" This time her voice was imperative. "You're mooning. Give me your attention, all of it, and another dry Martini."

"Forgive me, Patty. My wits are wandering. Here, steward, two dry Martinis."

"I was wondering what you thought about Mrs. Langford, but now I shall not ask you."

"If you really want to know, I think she's a knock-out," said Johnny, with surprising fervour.

Patty snuggled deep in her leather chair and looked a little moodily at the figure in gold. What a lovely gown! She wished that she knew what men could see in women who were as transparent as glass to their own sex.

Patty's thoughts were interrupted by the sudden appearance of her aunt, who had walked over to their table to pick her up. She was small and slight, carefully groomed and faintly bored, a woman who knew the worst and the best that were to be had from life.

"I shall want one, two, three, four, possibly even five dances tonight," said Johnny, jumping smartly to attention in deference to Patty's aunt.

"Try to get them," retorted Patty, as she slipped through the door.

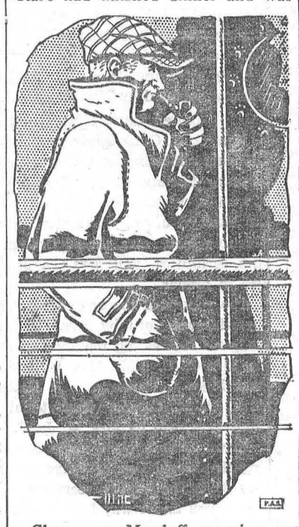
Johnny lingered over his cocktail, reflecting that it was luck to have found a girl like Patty on a trip like this. Clare walked past his table on her way to the dining-room, leaving a trail of perfume that made Johnny's nostrils contract with excitement. Wonder what she was doing on this trip, and who her husband was. Probably a divorcée. He would soon know, for it seemed that everything was getting about—too much so for his taste. It rather sickened Johnny, the way people talked, the men in the smoking-room, the women on deck. No one would have a scrap of privacy left by the time they had reached India.

Macduff was walking out and the bar was clearing. Johnny decided that it was time to go down to dinner. The orchestra was playing as he entered, and the boat was rolling so much that he staggered on the way to his table. He had drawn agreeable dining companions—a loose-boned Westerner, Bill Laird, with a charming wife whom he teased unmercifully. Bill was getting a reputation already for being the practical joker of the boat. Patty waved blithly across the room.

"Not feeling well?" enquired Bill, solicitously.

"Never felt better," said Johnny. "If you want to try a remedy on some one, you'd better watch out for Patty Arundel. She threatens to be sick whenever the boat rolls."

'Oh, Mrs. Langford!" Bill shouted, half an hour later, seeing that Clare had finished dinner and was passing out at a leisurely gait. "Join us for coffee and liqueurs."



Clare saw Macduff roaming up and down, puffing his pipe.

She had already had some deck-chair conversation with the Lairds and liked them both. Drawling in his lazy way, Bill introduced Johnny, who jumped to his feet and stood staring down at her in a tongue-tied manner. They all went upstairs to the salon and settled down to fines and cigarettes. Clare chatted idly and Bill baited her, but grew bored when he failed to find resistance in her shallow retorts. She had no repartee, but her voice had a husky note that Johnny found alluring. He talked to Mrs. Laird, but kept his eyes glued on Clare. She ignored him most of the time, but when the dancing began she slid into his arms, and he suddenly knew that she had been thinking of him all the time. She danced divinely. Her hand felt alive in his clasp.

"I think I'm going to enjoy this trip," murmured Clare. I've been seeing you about the boat. You're very strenuous, aren't you? Tennis, swimming, games."

Clare smiled and her hair brushed his chin. He had never held a woman in his arms who magnetized him like this. It was not like dancing with the girls he knew at home. Johnny began to feel like a man of the world.

At last he gave her up reluctantly, for the music had come to an end. It was hard to wait for his next dance with her to begin. Patty had come into the room with her aunt, but he had forgotten that she existed. She had found other partners and was dancing now with Dick, the chief officer.

Dick danced with the swing of the sea, and entertained Patty by telling her about some of the things she would see on the trip. The third time he danced with her he suddenly saw that she was not listening to a word he was saying, but was looking over his shoulder with the expression of a hurt child. With the next turn he could see why—Mrs. Langford was adrift in a sea of self-intoxication, her wide lips an inch from the cheek of the boy whom Dick had seen pursuing Patty around the decks ever since they had sailed. So that was the way! Well, a good thing it had happened quickly, before she had got fond of him. He swung her hastily down the other side and out for a breath of air. The promenade deck was enclosed with glass, and she suggested that they go still higher. "I should love to feel the wind on the top deck," she said. They climbed up the companionway, Patty hugging her white fur jacket around her thin frock.

The moon was a crescent swung on a chain of diamonds, and the waves dashed foam against the bow. Patty had a dim idea that the woman in gold hovered like a shadow between a carefree yesterday and an ominous tomorrow. It was the look in Johnny's eyes that had appalled her. How did a woman make a mere boy, whom she scarcely knew, look like that?

Dick kept quiet, preserving a sympathetic air. He was thinking: "A lovely child, but she's in for more of it, if she feels that way about the boy. It's just another case of what the sea does to a woman."

He felt her clutching at his arm; all of a sudden she had decided to go down to her stateroom. Telling him to let her aunt know that she had gone to bed, Patty went below and tried to read. The type danced before her eyes and she wondered if she were getting a little seasick. When her aunt came in, she found her fast asleep.

"Bertrand Russell's Marriage and Morals," said Mrs. Minton, picking up the book and covering her gently. "The child is growing up."

The Marenia lay at anchor at Villefranche, her flags strung like a garland of autumn leaves over the sapphire stretch of the bay. Monte Carlo was snugly tucked in the green curve of Monaco. After eleven days at sea, Macduff blinked at the brilliance of the scene before him. He had his own plans for the day. He would give Monte Carlo a wide berth and stretch his legs in one of his favorite walks. He had a poor opinion of the place and had never tossed a penny on the table. Any time he went to the Casino, it was simply to see what fools human beings could make of themselves over a gambling-wheel.

He strode along, with his arms swinging like windmills. More passengers were getting on at Villefranche. That was a pity. There were altogether too many on board already. Things seemed to be happening on the ship, some of which he did not altogether approve. Soon they would all be bickering, where now they were gushing and flirting. It was bound to turn out that way when people saw too much of one another.

He hoped they wouldn't get another Mrs. Langford on board; one of her kind was enough. She was beginning to get under his skin, spoiling his pleasure on the top deck, always up to her tricks, and now roping in the American boy. Macduff thought that his sex should be protected from such influences. The Foster girl was showing up badly, too. He never went into the bar that he did not find her there. The high jinks of the boat extended even to his own alley, where a diamond merchant across the way was continually entertaining women in his stateroom.

Clare smiled and her hair brushed his chin.

He came down off the breakwater and followed the road to the Italian border, stopping at a restaurant that stood on stilts in the sea.

The short Riviera day was passing, and the chill of three o'clock was creeping in from the sparkling waters. It was short-lived at its best, warm and vivifying, but swift in its decline. He remembered that he had to be on board the Marenia by seven. He might motor back to Monte Carlo and take a turn in the Casino to see what his fellow passengers were doing. . . .

Hot and stuffy inside, as usual, with an annoying buzzing of subdued voices, like a swarm of bees zooming in a distant grove. The merciless lights dug seams in weary faces. He thought he had never seen so many pairs of tired eyes. Wherever he looked, he could spot some one from the Marenia, but very few were throwing counters on the tables. They were a cautious lot and ill at ease. He was surprised to see Miss Mudge—little Miss Muffet, he called her in his own mind—tossing two counters on the baize with quite a flourish. He would watch to see what happened. The wheel spun round. The croupier raked up her counters. She looked anxiously at his pasty face, not quite sure which way her luck had gone, but he did not raise his eyes from the table.

DISCONTINUE PREMIUM CARDS IN FAG PACKAGES

No longer are industrious cigarette card savers to be rewarded with electric irons, curling irons, waffle irons and 18 kt. fish forks for their efforts in amassing great numbers of premium cards. Cigarette manufacturers have ended the whole business by announcing that after June 30th all premium stores will close.

Cards now in circulation will be redeemed until that date, but premium cards have already been withdrawn from the packages of most brands.

However, one firm plans a substitute policy. It has issued a new set of cards to be redeemed for playing cards after June, by writing to Montreal. Its Toronto stores will close in June and with it the issuing of baseballs, bon-bon dishes, blankets and bridge lamps.

"This has been coming on for some time," said the manager of one large firm The premiums, he said, are costly and under the new policy the jobbers, retailers and the Government will all benefit. Premium cards reduce the value of cigarettes, he said. and hence reduce the tax, Therefore the Government will receive a substantial increase in tax revenue.

Will this bring on a price reduction?

"No, I don't think so. The difference will go to the jobbers and retailers. There has already been a four per cent. increase in jobber's profits," he said.

GOOD CIRCULATION

The heater ran away from the horse and sled and the doctor had to sprint 100 yards after it down a snow-covered road. The heater was a young calf which a farmer had taken along to provide warmth for the doctor on a long drive to where one of the farmer's family lay ill.

BRUCE BARTON Says:

★ . . . Political Leaders Not Dumb

During the presidency of James K. Polk, one of the famous private schools of Boston was presided over by a salty old gentleman whose speeches to the boys were long remembered.

Looking down from the platform one morning, he said: "Young gentlemen, as I gaze into your alert and intelligent faces I am thrilled at the thought of your latent possibilities. Who can say what contribution to the history of your country may be in the making in this room today? One of you may become a Washington. One of you may be an Adams. One of you may be a Jefferson. And Heaven knows any one of you can be a Polk without even half trying!"

It is a well established American custom to belittle the holders of public office, from the President down. No politician is great until after he is dead, and then, given time enough, he becomes a statesman.

Washington's letters to his wife and friends were full of bitter complaint against the buffetings and sneers levelled against him. Lincoln was looked on as a pathetic mistake by a large part of the intelligentsia of the nation. I have seen a collection of sermons which were preached in the churches of Boston which "speak of him as a man who, in spite of lack of education and culture, tried hard to do his best." Not one preacher suggested that he was great. Woodrow Wilson was the impractical school-master; Calvin Coolidge was "an accident."

Taken as a whole, our presidents have been a fine lot. If they have not been "great" men the question is, who in any generation was greater or would have done the job better? While I exercise the citizen's right to criticize the President and Congress, I sometimes grow a little weary of the complacent assumption of superiority on the part of our so-called "best" citizens.

Business is business, and politics is a different business. When a man gets to the top in politics it may not mean that he is a genius, but certainly he is not dumb.

★ . . . . Move Forward on Courage

I used to attend the annual sales convention of a company which is so big that most people think it has no problems at all. The man in the street fondly imagines that all its officials have to do is to send out the bills and deposit the checks. The funny thing about the sales meetings was that one district manager after another would stand up and tell how the company's leading competitor was stealing all the big orders.

Later I had occasion to endure a similar meeting held by this principal competitor, and there the story was exactly the same. Each of these two big companies was absolutely sure that the other was getting the best of the battle.

The other day the president of a railroad emitted a loud moan. He said that of all industries the railroads have the toughest "problem." They have to pay high taxes and maintain expensive road beds, while the busses run gaily along the concrete highways built with taxpayers' money.

I had hardly dried my eyes before I encountered the sales manager of a bus company. Was he happy? He was not. According to him, the railroads have enough influence with state legislatures to get laws passed at almost every session making it harder for the trucks and busses.

What is true of these big companies is even more true, of course, of individuals. Each one sees his own troubles large and clear, and only the successes of the other fellow. General Grant was asked whether he was ever scared and if so how he had managed to win his battles. He replied that he always assumed that the enemy probably was just as frightened as he was, maybe more. With that he tightened up his belt and went forward.

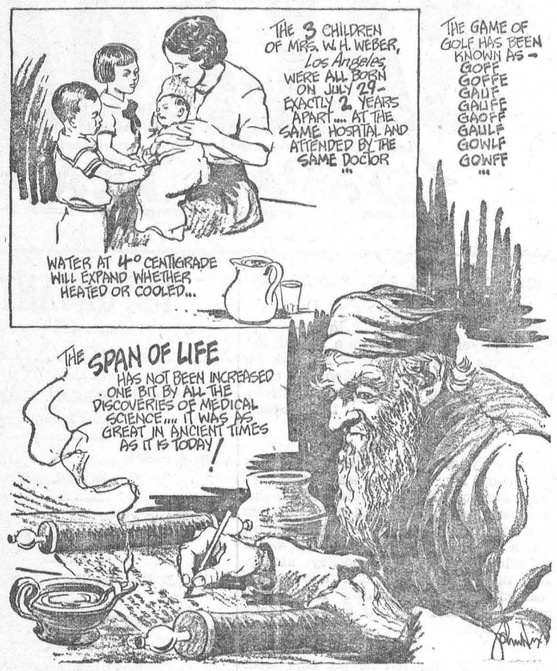
STRANGE AS IT SEEMS—By JOHN HIX

For farther proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply Reg U S Pat Off.



Strange as it seems, all the discoveries of medical science since medicine began have been unable to increase the span of human life. Man today lives to no riper old age than he did centuries ago when ills were treated with crude and sometimes worthless or even harmful "remedies."

Nor is there any reason to believe that science. on its past record, will be able to increase the life span. In spite of the great advances in public health and disease control, nothing has happened in the last hundred years to encourage the hope that the span of life might be lengthened. Today, as it were a thousand years ago, the upper limit of man's life is a few years past the hundred mark. There have been, however, notable exceptions.

The great success of medicine has been in increasing the average life— in giving everyone a greater expectancy of life. As each frontier is pushed back, and one after another disease is conquered and controlled, the average life increases. A newborn baby today has a much greater chance of living through childhood and on into middle age than one that was born a generation or a century ago. People do not live to any greater old age than they used to, but more of them approach that age limit than before.

According to Metropolitan Life tables, a child born in the United States now may look forward to 61 years of life. A summary of old life tables from 1687 to 1814 shows a life expectancy at birth of only 26 to 38 years. Many diseases have been conquered but old age has not.

METCALFE UNITED W. M. S.

Mrs. G. C. Gaukrodger presided at the February meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church, Metcalfe, which was held at the home of Mrs. W. J. W. Woods on Wednesday evening last. Mrs. A. H. Scrivens read the scriptures, and Mrs. D. J. Kidney led in prayer.

The report of the recent annual presbyterial was read by Mrs. G. C. Gaukrodger. Interesting readings were given by Mrs. A. C. Blair, Mrs. A. H. Scrivens and Miss J. Cameron. A letter from Mrs. D. R. Carson, presbyterial president, was read by Mrs. W. J. W. Woods.

Arrangements were made for observing the World Day of Prayer on February 28. The supply secretary reported plans well under way for a bale of clothing to be sent West in June.

SOUTH MOUNTAIN CLUB MEETS

On Wednesday evening last the Junior Farmers of South Mountain, held an interesting and successful debate and entertainment in the Berryholm hall, with the president, Mr. M. K. Sullivan in the chair. A good crowd attended despite the bad roads and colder weather.

The entertainment was opened with piano selections by Vincent Morrow. Joe Woods sang a solo. At this time the members of the debate came forth and took their places. Those taking part were: affirmative, Mac Ellis and Sam Ault; negative, Arnold Shaver and Harold Baldwin. The subject was "Resolved that a farmer with a hundred acres of land could own and operate a tractor with a profit." The affirmative won by a small majority. The judges were: Miss Laura Good, O. A. Barkley and Lyle Ferrier.

While the judes were coming to a decision, Ken Cameron gave a reading, Joe Woods another solo, and Vincent Morrow contributed several more songs and appreciated numbers on the piano. The Hulbert Young People presented a splendid one act play entitled: "Luncheon for six."

GROWING OLD

"Let me grow lovely, growing old—
So many fine things do.
Laces and ivory and gold
And silks need not be new.
And there is healing in old trees.
Old streets a glamour hold.
Why may not I, as well as these,
Grow lovely, growing old?"
—K. Wilson Baker.

MY WINTER GARDEN

The winter world is wrapped in white,
The frost is on the pane,
But on the sill, the flowers in bloom
Defy King Winter's reign.

Geraniums in pink and red
Brighten the quiet room,
And bring a glimpse of summer time
To scatter winter's gloom.

So may we too when sorrow comes
Like winter's dark despair,
Find summertime within the heart
And roses blooming there.
—Helen B. Anderson.

FAITH

Faith is not merely praying
Upon your knees at night;
Faith is not merely straying
Through darkness to the light.

Faith is not merely waiting
For glory that may be,
Faith is not merely hating
The sinful ecstasy.

Faith is the brave endeavor
The splendid enterprise
The strength to serve, whatever
Conditions may arise.

YOUR FELLOWMAN

If you should see a fellowman with trouble's flag unfurled,
An' lookin' like he didn't have a friend in all the world—
Go up and slap him on the back and holler, "How d'you do?"
And grasp his hand so warm he'll know he has a friend in you;
Then ax him what's a-hurtin' him, an' laugh his cares away;
An' tell him that the darkest night is just before the day.
Don't talk graveyard palaver, but say it right and loud
That God will sprinkle sunshine in the trail of every cloud.
—James Whitecomb Riley.

ADVICE TO BOYS

Whatever you are, be brave, boys;
The liar's a coward and slave, boys;
Though clever at ruses
And sharp at excuses,
He's a sneaking and pitful knave, boys.

Whatever you are, be frank, boys,
'Tis better than money and rank, boys;
Still cleave to the right,
Be lovers of light,
Be open, above-board and frank, boys.

Whatever you are, be kind, boys.
Be gentle in manner and mind boys,
The man gentle in mien,
Words and temper, I ween,
Is the genteman truly refined, boys.

But whatever you are, be true, boys,
Be visible through and through, boys;
Leave to others the shaming,
The "greening" and "cramming;"
In fun and in earnest, be true, boys.

THERE WILL ALWAYS BE SOMETHING TO DO

There will always be something to do, my boy;
There will always be wrongs to right;
There will always be need for a manly breed
And men unafraid to fight.
There will always be honor to guard, my boy;
There will always be hills to climb,
And tasks to do, and battle new
From now till the end of time.

There will always be dangers to face, my boy;
There will always be goals to take;
Men shall be tried, when the roads divide,
And proved by the choice they make.
There will always be burdens to bear, my boy;
There will always be need to pray;
There will always be tears through the future years,
As loved ones are borne away.

There will always be God to serve, my boy,
And always the Flag above;
They shall call to you until life is through,
For courage and strength and love.
So these are things that I dream, my boy,
And have dreamed since your life began;
That whatever befalls, when the old world calls,
It shall find you a sturdy man.

FRIENDS OF MINE

Good-morning, Brother Sunshine,
Good-morning, Sister Song,
I beg your humble pardon
If you've waited very long,
I thought I heard you rapping
To shut you out were sin
My heart is standing open,
Won't you walk right in?

Good-morning, Brother Gladness,
Good-morning Sister Smile,
They told me you were coming,
So I waited on a while.
I'm lonesome here without you,
A weary while it's been,
My heart is standing open
Won't you walk right in?

Good-morning, Brother Kindness,
Good-morning, Sister Cheer,
I heard you were out calling,
So I waited for you here.
Some way, I keep forgetting
I have to toil or spin
When you are my companions,
Won't you walk right in?

THE RURAL POSTMAN

In the cold and blustery weather,
When the frost is on the rail,
Would you like to face a blizzard
With a half a ton of mail?

In the biting blizzard weather,
When the snow comes to your knees
Would you love to fish for pennies,
While your feet and fingers freeze?

When the gleaming snow is drifted
Underneath a foot of sleet,
Would you love to have the chilblains
In your elbows and your feet?

When outdoors the wind is whistling
And the air is full of snow.
Would you love to have a jitney
And the blamed thing would not go.

Yes, I'd love the good old fireside,
Sipping coffee from a pail,
But I have to buck the snowdrifts
'Cause the farmers want their mail.

I don't mind the frozen snowdrifts
When my legs are stiff with cramps
But you keep your bloomin' pennies,
Buy a quarter's worth of stamps.

I get the snow mixed in my whiskers
And I get it in the socks,
But it never hurts my feelin's
Like loose pennies in the box.

MOTHER'S FOOL

"'Tis plain to me," said the farmer's wife,
"Those boys will make their marks in life
They never were made to handle a hoe,
And at once to college they ought to go
Yes, John and Henry—'tis clear to me—
Great men in this world are sure to be;
But Tom, he's little above a fool—
So John and Henry must go to school."

"Now, really. wife," quoth Farmer Brown
As he set his mug of cider down;
"Tom does more work in a day, for me,
Than both of his brothers do in three.
Book learnin' will never plant beans or corn,
Nor hoe potatoes—sure as you're born;
Nor mend a rod of broken fence;
For my part give me common sense."

But his wife the roost was bound to rule,
And so "the boys" were sent to school;
While Tom, of course, was left behind,
For his mother said he had no mind.

Five years at school the students spent,
Then each one into business went;
John learned to play the flute and fiddle
And parted his hair (of course) in the middle.
Though his brother looked rather higher than he,
And hung out his shingle—"H. Brown, M.D."

Meanwhile, at home, their brother Tom,
Had taken a "notion" into his head;
Though he said not a word but trimmed his trees
And hoed his corn and sowed his peas;
But somehow, either "by hook or crook,"
He managed to read full many a book.

Well the war broke out; and "Captain Tom,"
To battle a hundred soldiers led;
And when the rebel flag went down
Came marching home as ''General Brown."
Repaired the house and broken fence,
But he went to work on the farm again,
Planted his corn and sowed his grain,
And' people said he had 'common sense."

..Now, common sense was rather rare,
And the State House needed a portion there;
So our "family dunce" moved into town,
And people called him "Governor Brown;"
And his brothers, who went to the city school,
Came home to live with mother's fool.

LIFE

(Author Unknown)

Some call it life to seek with mad endeavour
The gilded prize of wealth or place or fame;
To light the torch of toil and then forever,
Press onward breathless, guided by its flame.

Some call it life to find in frenzied pleasure
A few vain years of evanescent bliss;
To rob each rapt experience of its treasure;
To snatch from ev'ry joy its honeyed kiss.

But some whose feet are set in quiet places,
Who lives march on with less tumultuous zest,
Discover, 'mid old friendships and loved faces,
That days of humble sacrifice are best.

Not theirs the pride of place, not theirs the guerdon
Of public praises all the world shall read;
Yet these have tasted life with every burden;
Who lives for others, he hath lived indeed.

LOWER GRANTS FOR FAIRS AND EXHIBITIONS

Reductions in government grants for fairs and exhibitions were announced in the House of Commons last week by the Minister of Agriculture.

The grant for a Class A fair would be cut from $5,000 to $4,000, which would still be $1,500 higher than it was in 1934, the minister said. The maximum grant for Class B fairs would be cut from $3,000 to $2,500 which would be $1,000 higher than it was in 1934.

At the same time Mr. Gardiner said he hoped to have a standard for fair grants established for the whole country. This would necessitate co-operation with the provinces in connection with Class B fairs

Regional fairs would be continued Mr. Gardiner said, and their usefulness would be determined in a full survey which already was under way.

The minister was the target for scores of questions relating to fairs, particularly their qualifications for government grants. The fair item of $1,490,700 finally passed the House.

"Are you leading the people?"
"I am," answered Senator Sorghum.
"Where are you leading them?"
"I'm not sure. I feel like a man who is at the steering wheel with hundreds of back-seat drivers."

The Family DOCTOR

by JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

YOUR HOME-TOWN PHYSICIAN

Pardon my reminding you of your best friend. Yes, I am writing about your health, as well as your best aids in maintaining it, your good home-town doctor ranking first.

There is something distinctive that belongs only to the family physician. The surgeon and the specialist may be expert in their lines of practice and they can do things for which the family physician is not even prepared nor should he attempt. But, I would never select either for my family physician. Their fields are too narrow—too limited. I would summon either only on the advice of my family doctor.

Your physician should be a well-read, general practitioner. If that, he is far better posted in the management of your varied complaints then the surgeon or the specialist. He has a far more extensive knowledge of the remedies needed for you than either. He will be a more capable diagnostician in systematic disease; and, he will know when you need a surgeon or specialist, better than any one else.

Your family physician is indeed an indispensable man in the community. He looks after sanitation and other community measures calculated to prevent disease, even though doing so lessens his chances for making a living. He is alert in medical investigation and research knowing all the time that he is working himself out of a job!

Finally, the family doctor is, to a large extent, what his community makes him. Prompt payment of bills often grows you a more willing and efficient health guardian.

Little Betty was explaining to her little brother how wrong it is to work on Sunday. "Why?" said the boy. "Policemen work on Sunday. Don't they go to heaven?"

"No," explained the little girl. "They are not needed there."

A widower was to be married for the the third time, and his bride had been married once before. The groom-elect wrote across the bottom of the invitation to a friend:

"Be sure to come. This is no amateur performance."

We are told that "common sense" is "a gift," and not something to be acquired out of books or at school. But we wonder if, in the fullness of time, it will not be discovered that a large share of common sense may be imparted to youths who do not possess it a a "gift." A pronounced "turn" for mathematics is a "gift," but many fine engineers have been developed from those not having such gift as an asset.

We do not know how the scholars define commonsense, but certainly an important section of its foundation is the capacity for plain, straight thinking; to be able to see things as they are; Common sense should be somewhat of a natural sense, and if youthful minds are discovered to be warped, to take their views from illogical points, could not some of them at least be straightened? Could not they be trained to think straighter; to see the everyday things of life as they are."—Acton Free Press.

VERNON W. I.

The Vernon Women's Institute held their regular meeting on Wednesday evening last at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Cowan. Nineteen members and five visitors were present. Mrs. Allen, president, took charge of the business session. assisted by the secretary, Mrs. Willard Acres. Mrs. Howard Porteous reported on behalf of the choral class stating that forty-seven members were taking the lessons. Arrangements were made to hold a St. Patrick's concert on Friday evening, March 13th, and Mrs. Irvine Dalglish, Mrs. Murray Porteous and Mrs. Ernest Madden were named as the committee in charge of the program.

Discussion followed on medical inspection in the rural schools and a committee was appointed to take preliminary steps in this direction.

The husbands were invited as guests at this meeting and after the business session they joined in with the ladies for an enjoyable "St. Valentine's party." Two solos were sung by Miss Kathleen Acres, accompanied by Miss Anna Crerar. Mrs. Robin Campbell gave a reading and various contests were conducted by the committee in charge. Mrs. W. G. Porteous, Miss Katie McAndrew and Mrs. Chas. L. Acres.

Mrs. McKercher moved a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Cowan for the use of their home and to all who had taken part in the program. Refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

Get rid of the wishing habit and replace it with the habit of decision and action.

Our Column

Memory is the receptacle and sheath of all knowledge.

Prejudice, which sees what it pleases, cannot see what is plain.

Today is the harvest of yesterday and the seed-time of tomorrow.

Man's virtue must not be judged by great occasions, but by his ordinary life.

Things that imperatively want to be done, stare you in the face at every corner.

The man who has not learned to say "No," will be a weak if not a wretched man as long as he lives.

Yesterday, February 26th, was Ash Wednesday, introducing the period of Lent. Only six weeks until Easter.

Ingratitude is the dominating characteristic of the mean, the selfish, the cunning, scheming, criminally ambitious.

Character must stand behind and back up everything—the sermon, the poem, the picture, the play. None of them is worth a straw without it.

Discretion is the perfection of reason, and a guide to us in all the duties of life. It is only found in men of sound sense and good understanding.

Live your life so that the minister will not have to lie at your funeral, and the local paper will not have to publish untruths in your obituary notice.

The morality that holds the great masses of sinewy people together must be very firmly rooted in an honest downright personal faith and fear.

Men have thought to gain freedom by enslaving others, but the more they do this the more they become slaves themselves to that tyrannical master, Fear.

How much we might be spared if we could realize that the image of ourselves which we try to impress on other people is the only one they can never, in any circumstances, receive.

The mainspring of your watch is not outside of its case. No power or influence outside of the watch can make it keep good time. Its mainspring is inside. The power which will carry you to your goal is not in somebody else. It is in yourself, or nowhere.

PLACED ON HOUSE COMMITTEE

Col. A. C. Casselman, M.P. for Grenville-Dundas, will serve on two standing committees of the House of Commons for the present session. According to the list given out recently, the local member will act on the Agriculture and Public Accounts committees in the House.

WILLIAMSBURG ELEMINATED IN SEMI-FINALS

By defeating Williamsburg 2-1 in the last game of the Town League semi-finals, played at the local Arena last Friday night, the Ford V-8's won the series by a score of 6-4 on the round. There was a large crowd of fans present to witness the contest which was one of the hardest-fought games of the season. Although the Williamsburg sextette had to bow to defeat in both of the semi-final games by a single goal, they were by no means outclassed by the Fords. They fought hard right to the end. and as the final gong sounded, were giving their opponents plenty to worry about.

Gord. McDonald opened the scoring for the V-8's after 17 minutes play, when he banged in a pass from Bill Blair. A. Soucie was credited with Williamsburg's only goal which was scored near the end of the second period. In the final frame, Bill Blair scored the winning goal, assisted by Jack McDiarmid. Final score 2-1 for the Ford V-8's.

Ford V-8's—Goal, Ault; defence, H. Ferguson and McLean; centre, R. McDiarmid; wings, G. Blair and D. Ferguson; alternates, Stuart, McOonald, W. Blair, J. McDiarmid and Lannin.

Williamsburg—Goal, Corry; defence, C Marcellus and McIntosh; centre, Soucie; wings, Loughridge and Marcellus; alternates, S. Barkley, Casselman, Sutton, H. Barkley and Schell.

Referees—E. Kellogg and B. Carkner.

Exhibition Game

Following the above game, Bessin's took on Winchester Springs in an exhibition contest and won by a score of 5-3. Jimmy Stuart and Ray James, two of the Bessin stars, were not on the line-up, but the rest of the team had little difficulty in defeating their opponents. Art Summers scored three goals and R. Casselman two for the winners, while Ollie Summers scored twice and D. Robinson once for the Springs.

The line-ups were:

Winchester Springs—Goal, J. Williams; defence, J. Bolton and M. Coleman; centre, W. Kirkwood; wings, C. Summers and C. Crowder; alternates, O. Summers, W. Whittekar, Peterson, E. Coleman and D. Robinson.

Bessins—Goal, Williams; defence, J. Jacobs and Cameron; centre, Carkner; wings, Wylie and Casselman; alternates, Summers, Gemeroy, Kenney and Lannin.

Referees—E. Kellogg and B. Carkner.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL NEWS

Services during Lent in St. Matthias Church will be held on Wednesday evenings at 7.30 p.m.

The short thaw this week was welcomed by a great many citizens, who enjoyed the music of water running into the cistern.

There will be a celebration of Holy Communion next Sunday morning in St. Matthias' Church at 9.30 a.m., instead of the usual hour of 10.30. Sunday School will be held at 2.30 p.m.

WILL CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY

Miss Agnes Parker, popular member of the younger set, is celebrating her birthday for the first time in four years on Saturday next. Agnes was born on that odd day, Feb. 29th, and as a result is cheated out of the customary number of birthday parties. It will be still worse if they decide to change the calendar to 13 months of equal length and cut the day off completely. However, we extend birthday greetings to Miss Parker and trust she will see many more Feb. 29th's.

LOCAL CURLERS VISIT OTTAWA

Three rinks of curlers went to Ottawa on Tuesday to enter the Central Canada Bonspiel. All members attended the luncheon held at the Glebe Curling Club at the noon hour after which competition began.

While none of the local rinks succeeded in making the finals a most enjoyable outing was had. Personnel of local rinks was:

Rink No. 1; C. Cross, M. Scott, W. J. Stewart, Lockie Goodfellow. skip.

Rink No. 2: J. D. Stewart, W. J. Cass, Alex Duncan, W. Moffatt, skip.

Rink No. 3: W. Watson, E. Cunningham, P. Turner, T. O. VanBridger, skip.

All three rinks succeeded in winning two of their four matches, but three wins were required in order to make the final round.

FAREWELL PARTY HELD

On Thursday evening, February 20th, over fifty neighbours and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Karl L. Bell of Cass Bridge to bid them farewell before their departure for their new home at Dixon's Corners.

During the evening the following address was read by Miss Jean Summers: Dear Karl and Florence:—

Having learned that you are soon to leave our immediate vicinity, we, your friends and neighbours, have gathered here to spend a social evening together and extend to you our good wishes.

Your whole life, thus far, has been spent among us, and we have had many opportunities of discovering your good qualities as a neighbour and a friend. We have found you always ready to lend a helping hand in every time of need. We realize full well the fact that our loss will be someone else's gain.

We wish you every success in your new home and trust that good fortune will attend your efforts.

We ask you to accept this gift as a slight token of remembrance from your friends and neighbors.

Signed on behalf of the community, Lorne Cook, Bert Link, Cedric Marcell, Glen Summers.

Mr. and Mrs. Bell were then presented with a pair of woollen blankets by Miss Gladys Cooke. Mr. Bell made a suitable reply, thanking all for their kindness and invited them to visit them in their new home. After singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows," lunch was served by Miss Jean Summers, Mrs. Lorne Bell, Mrs. Karl Bell, Messrs. Cedric Marcell, Lorne Cooke, Bert Link, Willie Hitsman and Karl Bell.

The remainder of the evening was spent in games and music.

MY WINTER GARDEN

The winter world is wrapped in white,
The frost is on the pane,
But on the sill, the flowers in bloom
Defy King Winter's reign.

Geraniums in pink and red
Brighten the quiet room,
And bring a glimpse of summer time
To scatter winter's gloom.

So may we too when sorrow comes
Like winter's dark despair,
Find summertime within the heart
And roses blooming there.

Dr. G. O. Barclay, of Ottawa, was the guest of friends in town on Sunday.

Mrs. Gertrude Render, of Montreal, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Robert Suffel.

HOCKEY NOTES AND COMMENTS

Art's fault. He is one of the best all-round players in the league and if the rest of his team-mates were as good, he would be on the championship team ever year. He is a good skater, a tricky stick-handler and one of the league's best scorers.

Ran. Wylie, that 125 lbs. of scoring punch on Hy. Bessin's team, was responsible for three counters last night. A bump on the forehead a few nights ago and a badly cut eye-lid last night, which required a stitch, did not seem to interfere with his hockey ability. This morning Ran. looks like a battle-scarred veteran—but he's happy, he helped his team win the cup and that's what counts.

Hy. Bessin may not be the best team manager in the world, but he certainly appreciates the boys' efforts and shows it. Last night he entertained the team and several friends to lunch. following the game. This was the tenth time this year that Hy. entertained his team, and now he plans to give them a "night of fun" in Ottawa, and have their pictures taken.

And now come the play-off series with the Chesterville teams for the inter-club championship Citizen cup. This should cause some real excitement. These games will be a home and home series and will probably be played next week. Watch for posters.

PAINTING IN LEGISLATURE IS FAKE

Consternation reigned in the Ontario Legislature this week when an X-ray examination of a portrait of Laura Secord, famous historical figure, revealed the fact that the painting was a fake.

The X-ray photographs revealed that the celebrated woman was covering an original canvass of bewhiskered Sir George Ross, Premier of Ontario from 1898 to 1905.

Premier Hepburn announced on Tuesday the picture would be removed and an effort made to restore the likeness of Sir George. "We can't have a fake like that hanging in the Parliament buildings," declared the Premier.

DEATH OF JOHN ROBERT JOHNSTON

The death occurred on Tuesday of last week of one of our most prominent residents in the person of Mr. John Robt. Johnston. He came to Nation Valley some weeks ago to visit his daughter, Mrs. Clifford Summers, and while there became ill shortly after and had been confined to bed ever since, gradually growing weaker all the time. The late Mr. Johnston was an Anglican in religion and was also a member of the Orange Order of which he was a past master of the local lodge and a past district master. He was of a quiet and friendly disposition, a good neighbor, obliging and always willing and ready to do a good turn which won for him many friends who will regret to learn of his death.

The late Mr. Johnston, who was in his 73rd year, was born on a farm near Carp. He engaged in farming until 1920 when he retired. His wife, who was formerly Sarah Allen, predeceased him 11 years ago.

Their family consisted of three sons and two daughters, Leonard of Picton. Lyman of Carp, and George of Timmins; Mrs. Jack McOuatt of Inkerman and Mrs. Clifford Summers, of Nation Valley. Surviving also are two brothers and three sisters and nine grandchildren.

The funeral was held from the residence of his son, Lyman, on Thursday at 2 o'clock, to St. James church, Carp, where the service was conducted by the Rev. J. C. Anderson. The Orangemen conducted the service at the graveside.

Among the beautiful floral offerings were: wreath, Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Johnston and family; Mr. and Mrs. S. Johnston and family; friends from Nation Valley; A. F. & A. M.; L. O. L. No. 439. Baskets—Business Men of Carp; Mr and Mrs. Wilmont Humphries. Sprays, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Summers; Mr. and Mrs. Jack McOuatt, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Johnston; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bell and Mae; Mrs. Ford Baker and Mrs. Ernest Kellogg; Mrs. A. Reilly; Mrs. Greene and daughters; The Huntley Council.
