The following accounts were passed and paid: Roads and bridges, $1,185.84; drainage, 1,349.02; fox bounty, $15.00; relief and charity, $63.61; hospitalization, $81.50; fire protection, $250.00.

Council adjourned to meet in Winchester on Monday, February 1st, 1954, at 10.30 a.m.

Donald Henry Elected President Of Finch Junior Farmers

Finch Junior Farmers held their annual meeting in Finch High School on Tuesday last. The minutes of the last meeting were read by Muriel Casselman.

Osnabruck Junior Farmers were present at this meeting. The prizes for the Home Improvement Project were presented to Leila Nephew, $3; Ina Brownell, $2; Eleanor and Donald Henry, $1.

The new slate of officers for 1954 was elected as follows: President Donald Henry; vice president, Floyd Dingwall; secretary, Mary Ruth Cameron; treasurer, Mildred Cameron; press reporter, Betty Vollrath; directors, Marina Shaver, Muriel Casselman, Floyd Dingwall, Ted Moran and Bobby McIntyre.

After the election of officers, some films were shown, "Man-made Canyon," "Winter Wheat," "Junior Famers," "Provincial Camp." After these films, lunch was served.

Mrs. Geo. Gove Feted On 90th Birthday

Mrs. George Gove, of Russell, was honoured on her 90th birthday by her many friends and neighbours. She was the receipient of many gifts, flowers and congratulatory messages.

Mrs. Gove was at home to her friends at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Gladstone Warner, Russell, where Mrs. Warner and her sister, Mrs. O. L. Hollister, Williamsburg, were joint hostesses.

Mrs. Gove, the former Agnes Empey, of Osnabruck Centre, was born on January 3rd, 1864. She married George Gove in December, 1886. He died 16 years ago. She spent her lifetime in the Osnabruck, Williamsburg and Russell areas.

Mrs. Gove is a most active lady of 90. She is very interested in her friends, in the church, and in the Women's Institute.

Mrs. Gove was at home to Mrs. Warner and Mrs. Hollister, 10 grandchildren, 13 great grandchildren and one great great grandchild, one-year-old Elaine Cryderman, of Osnabruck, who form the immediate family group.

The Warner home was decorated with silver bells and mauve and white decorations for the celebration.

Those presiding were: Mrs. J. L. Steele, Miss Louise Stearns, Mrs. R. M. Warner, Mrs. Melvin Stanley. The ladies serving were Mrs. Roger Warner, Mrs. Douglas Warner, Mrs. Eldon Thompson and Mrs. Gerald Lewis.

Crump-Brownell

On December 29th, 1953, Miss Ina Marie Brownell was united in marriage to Carl Howard Crump by Rev. H. M. Beach, of Finch United Church. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brownell, Finch, Ont., and the groom is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Crump, of Chesterville.

For the occasion the bride chose a grey wool suit with mauve accessories. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

Miss Marilyn Ouderkirk, Crysler, was the bride's attendant and Keith A. Crump, Keno Hill, the Yukon, was the best man for his brother.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents in Finch, where approximately thirty of the immediate relatives were present.

The honeymoon trip extended into the Eastern States of the U.S.

Mr. and Mrs. Crump will reside in Chesterville.

LET CONTRACT FOR $100,000 SCHOOL

Contract for the construction of the new six-room Gladstone Public School, Cornwall, has been let to a Chesterville firm it was announced Wednesday.

W. J. McDonald, supervising principal of Cornwall Township public schools, said the successful tender was that of Wiseman and Thompson at a figure of $100,665. The contract is subject to the approval of the Department of Education and the Ontario Municipal Board. The firm has built several schools in the district.

Plans call for five classrooms and a kindergarten in the new school, to be built on McConnell Street North on a portion of the property formerly used by the Basic Training Centre.

Mr. McDonald said that a start on the school would be made as soon as possible and it was hoped to have it ready for occupancy by the end of August .

Births in Canada climbed to a new monthly peak of 37,462 in July.

Canadians in 1951 made 5,273,644,419 telephone calls.

P. J. GILROY HOSPITALIZED

Mr. Percy Gilroy, popular jeweller of Chesterville, entered Winchester Hospital Tuesday night for treatment. Mr. Gilroy suffered a heart seizure earlier in the evening.

At the time of writing his condition is progressing favourably. His many friends of the town and district are wishing him a speedy convalescence and the return of his usual good health.

Droppo-Wells

Lighted white tapers and white chrysanthemums adorned the altar of St. John's Church, Stratford, on Saturday afternoon when Judith Jean, daughter of Mrs. Wells, 74 William Street, Stratford and the late Mr. George Stanley Wells, exchanged vows with Mr. Gerald Droppo, Oakville, son of Mrs. James Andrew Droppo , Chesterville, and the late Mr. Droppo. Rev. A. G. Donald officiated. Mr. Gordon D Scott, organist, played the bridal music and accompanied Mrs. Gordon D. Scott, the soloist, who sang "The Lord's Prayer" before the ceremony and "Here, Lord, We Meet" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle Mr. Harry B. Wells, of Toronto, was gowned in a white strapless floor length gown of rose point imported lace over satin and crinoline. The skirt, with a centre opening, revealed finely pleated nylon tulle. Her matching lace jacket, buttoned to the waist, had fitted wrist-length sleeves and boned collar. Her headdress, fashioned from nylon tulle, lace and seed pearls caught her three-quarter length veil trimmed with a fine lace edge. She carried a cascade of white roses.

Miss Ruth Wells, sister of the bride, was maid of honour and was gowned in a ballerina length strapless gown of emerald green nylon tulle over matching taffeta and crinoline, with a vlevet jacket of the same colour fitted to the waist with button closing, with a standup collar and three-quarter length sleeves. She wore a feathered headdress of matching colour, white gloves and green brocaded satin pumps and carried a bouquet of red roses and white chrysanthemums.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Ralph Guy, Winchester, twin sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Erika Werford, Toronto, who wore gowns identical to that of the maid of honour.

Miss Marion Blackwell, Walkerton, niece of the bridegroom, was the flower girl and wore a matching green velvet ballerina dress with nylon tulle overskirt, Peter Pan collar and puff sleeves, the back closing with buttons to the waist. She had a chrysanthemum headband and carried a small nosegay of white chrysanthemums and red roses.

Mr. Dwight Droppo, Ottawa, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The ushers were Mr. Calvin Droppo, Ottawa, and Mr. Evan Walden, Harriston.

A reception was held in the banquet hall of the church. The bride's table was centred with the wedding cake, lighted white tapers and white chrysanthemums. Members of the Woman's Association of the church served.

The bride's mother received the guests, wearing a rose and grey shot taffeta dress with bead trim and sweetheart neckline, with black accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who was wearing a mauve crepe dress, with matching chantilly lace trim with black accessories and a corsage of red roses.

After a motor trip through the New England States, the couple will reside at 56 Stewart St., Oakville.

Guests were present from Ottawa, Toronto, London, Walkerton, Malton, Chesterville, Harriston Oakville, Monkton, Winchester, Brockville and Massena, N.Y.

CANADA'S DIXIELAND KING—The fact that "Trump" Davidson doesn't play a trumpet at all will surprise a good many people. Actually, he blows a cornet, which is similar in shape to a trumpet but has a different bore, and results in a slightly different tone. The erroneous nickname attached itself to Davidson over 20 years ago, through a friend who didn't know the difference between the two instruments and "Trump" is just as glad he didn't. Davidson has been leading his own dance orchestra since 1937 and has always featured "the band within a band," the Dixieland Sextet. "There's nothing like that good old two-beat Dixieland to set your foot a-tapping," says Davidson, and thousands across Canada agree. His group can be heard on "Dixieland Concert," a weekly feature of the CBC Trans-Canada network.

ANNUAL FAIR MEETING SATURDAY, JANUARY 16

Chesterville and District Agricultural Society will hold their annual meeting on Saturday, January 16th in Community Hall. At that time the year's reports will be presented, elections of officers held and plans made for the 1954 season.

The Society is a community project and it is in the interest of everyone to support it to the full. The opportunity only comes once a year at the annual meeting to become fully acquainted with the administration of the Society. The annual meeting is two weeks away, so there is plenty of time to make plans to attend. Hearten the executive by your presence in the hall that day.

Wolf Sighted Here By Fox Hunters

This week a group of fox hunters missed an opportunity to collect a fat wolf bounty. They were hunting elusive foxes in the Boyne district with a couple of young hounds when the chase broke out into the open fields. John Maxwell sighted the chase almost immediately but to his consternation he noted a large grey dog ahead of the eager hounds. He watched the "dog" for a bit through his 4-power rifle scope, and as it passed out of range of the rifle suddenly realized the "dog" was a brush wolf. By that time the wolf was well away across country with his scalp intact.

Last year at about the same time Harold Munro and his party of hunters peppered a wolf in the Forward district but failed to find the wounded animal.

Marcellus-Smith

Miss Ada Smith became the bride of Mr. Lew Marcellus at the United Church Parsonage, Finch, on Wednesday, December 30th, at 2.30 p.m. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. F. Smith, Chesterville, and the groom is the son of the late Mr and Mrs. Melvin Marcellus.

Rev. H. M. Beach officiated at the ceremony.

The bride wore a street-length dress suit of winter white bengaline with fitted jacket and full skirt, black accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Her attendant, Mrs. Jack Doering, wore a navy dress with navy accessories and red carnations.

Mr. Jack Doering was the best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the Lord Elgin Hotel, Ottawa, for the immediate relatives.

They will reside at 315 Simcoe St, Niagara Falls, Ont.

Final Tribute Paid Charles Weeks

Final tribute was paid Charles Weeks at the funeral service held at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Chesterville, on Saturday afternoon, conducted by Mr. Fred Miller, student minister of the church. The choir was in attendance, with Mrs. Harold Greer at the organ. During the service, a solo, "No Night There," was sung by Miss Doreen Cross. Burial was at Maple Ridge Cemetery.

Mr. Weeks was born 62 years ago at Athabaska Landing, in the Peace River District. He had spent part of his lifetime in the Newmarket area before coming to Chesterville nearly 30 years ago. He worked for some years at the former Doering Stock Farm before becoming caretaker of the Bank of Nova Scotia buliding here. Mr. Weeks was a veteran of the first World War.

Mr. Weeks is survived by his wife, the former Mae Hummel, of Chesterville.

Winchester Man Fatally Shot By Fellow Soldier

Pte. Robert Bilow, of Winchester, was shot to death in a washroom argument at Currie Barracks, Calgary, on Tuesday and police laid a charge of murder against Pte. Walter Cierpisz, 17, Windsor, Ont. Both men were members of the same company of Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry regiment basedat Currie.

Police said the shooting climaxed a heated argument between Bilow and Cierpisz before a large group of soldiers in the washroom. They said Bilow, 21, was shot twice in the back, the last bullet being fired as he was falling or about to rise.

The victim died soon afterwards. Police seized a .303 army rifle from which both shots were alleged to have been fired.

Survivors of the victim, who was unmarried, are:

Parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bilow, Winchetser, four sisters and eight brothers.

The sisters are: Mrs. John Morgan . (Muriel), Kingston; Mrs. James Cassidy (Ruth), Ottawa; Mrs. Earl Bowman (Nina), Winchester; Mrs. Gilbert MacGregor (Lottie), Ormond.

Surviving brothers are: Ralph, Roy and Claire, Kingston, Lloyd, Claude, Earl and Garnet, Winchester. The eighth brother, Wilfred, resides in the U.S.

No arrangements have been made yet to bring the body to Winchester.

ENSIGN WM. B. KRILL DIES IN PLANE CRASH

Funeral services were held for Ensign William B. Krill, Coast Guardsman, who was killed on Thursday, December 24th, 1953, in an airplane crash as he was flying home to spend Christmas with his Shaker Heights family in Cleveland.

Ensign Krill, 26, stationed aboard the Coast Guard cutter "Nemesis" had borrowed a plane to fly to Jacksonville, Fla., where he was to have boarded a commercial air liner to complete his trip. His body was recovered from the St. Johns River into which the plane had crashed.

Ensign Krill was a graduate of University School and Case Institute of Technology. He had attended the Naval Academy at Annapolis for three years.

He was an expert swimmer and broke school records for the 50-yard free-style races at University School and Case.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard H. Krill; a brothner, James, a University of Pennsylvania graduate school student; a sister, Miss Sally Krill, a Hathaway Brown School pupil. His mother is the former Margaret Barrett, of Chesterville, and daughter of Mrs. Wm. Barrett.

His father is owner of the L. H. Krill Contracting Co.

OPINIONS . . .

Ours and Others

CHESTERVILLE, ONTARIO, JANUARY 7th, 1954

A Letter to the Editor

We receive a number of letters in the course of our labours of editing a newspaper that are most interesting. Unfortunately many of them are not for publication; on the contrary, they have a much less exalted end. Occasionally we are asked to consider the publication of letters that bespeak too much of selfish interest with the writer naturally hidden behind a 'nomme de plume.' Again we regretfully employ the editor's veto.

Letters to the editor to any paper are a good thing, both for the newspaper and for the community. Chesterville and the Record are the ones we are particularly interested in. Our columns can serve as a forum to be used by the public at any time if a few simple rules are kept in mind.

We must always remember that public interest must be served. Axes, ground and sharpened, are not to be used to hew indiscriminately and to only selfish purpose. Criticism without personal rancour is more than welcomed if it can serve a useful purpose. Suggestions for the good of the municipal whole can be expanded and serve as guide posts to the thinking of members of the community if they are given a public airing.

Chesterville does not have a street-car whipping boy handy to start the "Dear Editor's" going, neither does it have a Pensepas (or does it?) to keep the ball points rolling. We do have a few items of interest here that are subjects of endless conversation. What do our readers think of the efforts and money spent in the Park to turn it into a Community Centre? Does the lighting of our side streets please everyone? Did you think any constructive thoughts about parking problems, especially after that near miss on one-way King Street Saturday night? Have we not got first class fire protection at last? Or do you disagree?

Have you any suggestions? They will be welcome. Drop us a line.

Where's Gouzenko?

Settled comfortably in our easy chair with the cat as company, we were scanning the headlines of our favourite daily the other night. We noted an editorial dealing with the talk Igor Gouzenko, the Russian clerk, had recently with some gentlemen from south of our border. The writer was wondering if it had been wise on the part of the said Gouzenko to court so much publicity. The writer felt the fugitive clerk was apt to be imperilling his safety.

Our knowledge of international intrigue is decidedly limited. As the late Will Rogers used to say "All I know is what I read in the paper." But a few thoughts kept nagging us. We remember the war years of such a short time ago. The Manhattan Project, involving the expenditure of billions of dollars, was unknown to the world at large until the fateful flash at Los Alamos. Shipshaw was built on our own doorstep and was unheard of. Radar was developed under the noses of the Nazis and the Battle of Britain proved they were in the dark to its secrets.

But, and this is the disturbing part, Soviet espionage agents followed the development of the atom bomb from its beginning and the post-war investigations lead us to believe most of our secrets were not so secret to Russia. Subversion and deceit carried the day against an astounding array of civilian and military safeguards. Are we not being a little naive to think that Mr. Gouzenko's whereabouts is unknown to the interested Russians? Experience that could deliver the drawings of the implosion device to trigger an atom bomb would find it a kindergarten lesson to find the fugitive clerk.

Where we can take pride is in the efficiency of our Royal Canadian Mounted Police. They have been posted as permanent watchdogs over the persons of the threatened man and his family. What we need to do is pray for the unremitting vigilance of these faithful Canadian servants who are paying the free world's debt to Gouzenko by keeping him safe. The general public does not know where he is hidden or what his identity is, but let the careful guard slip down and his whereabouts will be very well known to our sorrow and shame.

How Much Longer Can Gouzenko Hide?

(Cornwall Standard Freeholder)

If anyone wanted to know, how hard it would have been for him to find out where Igor Gouzenko met the two U.S. senators, whose departure from Washington and arrival in Montreal are so well publicized?

Senators William E. Jenner and Pat McCarran and two companions allegedly did not know where or when they were to meet Gouzenko, when the arrived in Montreal and were taken in tow by the RCMP. But it took no crystal ball to figure out that they were meeting him in or near Montreal, and the interview started soon after their arrival.

If there are two pepole who are more than curious about the present whereabouts of Gouzenko, it should not have been difficult to follow such prominent gentlemen as Senators Jenner and McCarran. Sooner or later they would pick up Gouzenko's trail, and all they had to do was stick on it. Eventually it would lead them back to his present abode.

It isn't easy for a man and his family to disappear completely in a country like Canada. Yet in Gouzenko's case it was considered absolutely essential; and since his sensational disclosures of 1945, it has been managed very well. But this was mainly due to the astute work of the RCMP, which managed to equip the Gouzenko family with a new identity.

But these tactics will work only so long as Gouzenko stays out of the limelight. If he is going to make a habit of granting interviews to U.S. senators and other V.I.P.'s, his cloak of anonymity wil not last very long.

However, this was Gouzenko's decision. He should be given credit for his courage in making it, even though it appeared obvious to almost everyone that he had revealed all the information he could, and it was already in the hands of the FBI in Washington.

Ominous Political Weather in U.S.

(The Ottawa Citizen)

After several years in Europe, Virginia Cowles has been shocked by the changed atmosphere she finds on her return to the United States. Member of a well-know American publishing family, and an author, she has written books on the Labour party and on Sir Winston Churchill whlie in Britain. She is chilled by the suspicions and fears prevalent in Washington especially. Friends in responsible positions will not talk about anything of significance on the telephone, for the wires may be tapped. Nobody wants to be overheard expressing critical opinions. Mr. Walter Lippmann, too, though absent in Europe more briefly, is deeply disturbed by the inroads of McCarthyism.

Mr. Lippmann missed the Brownell affair, in which the attorney-general raised the Harry Dexter White case to attack former President Truman, and Truman's reply gave Senator McCarthy a chance for the limelight, forcing President Eisenhower to assert his leadership of the Republican party. In Mr. Lippman's view, Mr. Brownell aggravated a party contest into party warfare by drawing on the secret files of the FBI.

Those files include all sorts of unsubstantial allegations against the reliability and loyalty of a great many people — gossip and rumour, personal opinions and highly circumstantial "evidence." To the public, the difference between such material and proof of actual wrong-doing is becoming increasingly vague. "Guilt by association," for instance, has ruined a good many careers. The FBI files are therefore a storehouse of dangerous ammunition which, if drawn upon further, could explode all the decencies of political life.

As Mr. Lippmann points out, democracy founders when politicians instead of trying to win elections honestly try to destroy one another, and when a people become irreconcilably divided, Democratic politics can flourish only when its rules and conventions are observed by all the participants. If the struggle becomes unscrupulous and vicious, a resort to force is the logical result. The winners must repress the opposition, which in turn plots the overthrow of the government by violence.

Of course, the United States is a long way from a break-down in the democratic processes. But undoubtedly McCarthyism is a harbinger of worse things to come, unless it is effectively counteracted by alert Republicans as well as Democrats.

Level-Crossings a Major Death Trap

(The Ottawa Citizen)

Three level-crossings accidents in Eastern Canada a few days ago resulted in seven deaths. In one of the mishaps—at St. Jean Port Joli, Que.—a taxi driver struck the side of a moving train, and five men in his car were killed. These tragedies give added point to the hearings held by the Board of Transport Commissioners in provinces across the country to investigate among other matters the question of reducing level-crossing accidents. Among the proposals heard were those of the Canadian Good Roads Association, which suggested a priority system for building separate grades, and a big-scale education programme to reduce accidents. Both recommendations deserve close study.

Canada's 30,000-odd level crossings constitute an enormous traffic problem, complete solution of which would require the spending of hundreds of millions of dollars. But many crossings represent little danger, and could be left alone for some time to come with little peril to the public. Other crossings, because of the curve and grade involved, and the amount of traffic, are urgently in need of separation. The Association believes that a procedure should be worked out to remove level crossings on the basis of necessity. This might mean that 10 crossings would be removed in one province before a single one is eliminated in another. The over-riding factor would be public safety, rather than provincial pressures.

As well, the Association notes that "one cannot legislate against human error or protect drivers at every level-crossing in Canada despite themselves." Elimination of level-crossings is a long-range programme, and in the meantime action could be taken—apart from installing more signals—to reduce accidents. South Africa established a National Road Safety Council in 1948 which has accomplished this through a vigorous education campaign.

The Council is composed of government representatives at all levels, as well as members of the churches, schools, and similar public bodies. It works largely in the education and publicity fields, but on a scale much bigger, and much better co-ordinated than anything hitherto contemplated in Canada. Perhaps something similar could be started here, with the expense shared among the federal, provincial and municipal governments. The work of a safety council would, of course, go far beyond stressing the dangers of level-crossings. But since level-crossings are of federal concern, they might be the keystone on which a safety organization could be bulit.

Teach Horses To Walk On Snowshoes

(Saint John Telegraph-Journal)

We don't know how many horses are being taught to use snowshoes these days—or if they ever used them in New Brunswick—but it is not difficult to believe that there was a time that old Dobbin managed quite well with such Winter equipment along the snowy trails of northern British Columbia. A man up that way who remembers seeing horses wearing snowshoes in 1919 has snapshots of packtrain horses to prove it.

And why shouldn't horses wear snowshoes? They are heavier than men and sink deeper into the snow where they are required to work. And horses that can be taught to trot and pace and perform the Musical Ride should have little difficulty in learning the trick of putting one snowshoe over the other.

Of course, horses aren't used for hauling as they once were, and mechanized equipment has taken over in this part of the country the horse rarely gets off the farm. Besides that, the Winters are milder.

In the days before the provincial snowplows cleared the roads out daily, it was common practice for folks to go to the store and for the mail on snowshoes. Every member of the family had a pair hung on a hook in the porch, and they were standard equipment among trappers and woodsmen. Snowshoes are still in use in the North, and will probably continue to be.

As for horses, they have been obliged to wear special footwear for the tasks they were assigned down through the years.

In the days of the cavalry it was not uncommon on occasion for soldiers to put mufflers on their horses's hoofs so as to conceal their movements from the enemy. The hoofs were also—and perhaps still—muffled during funeral processions. In Winter, the horse got a new pair of shoes with sharp calks, to give him grip when hauling ice block to the ice house. It was all in keping with the horse's occupation. After all, men wear spiked shoes for golf and track and mountain climbing, as well as cleats for football and baseball.

It may have taken some patience but not a great deal of imagination for the horseman of a few decades ago to conceive the idea of snowshoes for horses. If monkeys could ride bicycles and elephants balance on spheres, horses could walk on snowshoes. We hope, however, that no one wil ever try to put horses on skis.

PAINTING DOGS —A DOG'S LIFE

It's a dog's life for Miss Dorothy Haynes, of Hartford, Connecticut, when she is painting a portrait.

Thats' because Miss Haynes' subjects are dogs who refuse to give up their comfort for a pose, so she must adapt herself to their whims and antics. If the dog decides to "sit" for her under a table, she has to get under there with him.

One of the leading canine portrait artists in the United States, Miss Haynes says that dogs don't mind holding a pose—just as long as they can be comfortable while doing it.

It was quite by accident that she became an expert on the subject of canine portraiture. While an art student she happened to admire a friend's dog. They discussed the possibility of painting the animal. When Miss Haynes balked, the friend dared her to go ahead.

In a short while the dog was on canvas and Miss Haynes was launched on a career.

Although she studied portraiture, she's had to develop her own method of copying a dog's likeness. One of her biggest problems was getting used to the idea that her subject had a mind of his own.

Instructions fell on deaf ears. Fido sets the pace and the artist has to follow.

Her studio is packed with paintings of dogs, but she hasn't a live pooch to call her own. This is mostly because her visiting subjects might object to "sit" in another dog's house.

Another reason, Miss Haynes admits, is that she might have trouble picking out a dog of her own. She ha s done portraits of more than 25 breeds, and now she loves them all.

By Installments

Although he had his good points, Tommy was no scholar. When the school exams came along, his father said:

"If you score 50 marks out of a 100, my boy, I'll buy you a bicycle.

Then one day, Tommy brought home the results and handed them over in silence. Father ran his eye down the list, then he asked sadly: "Well, Tommy, what will you have—two spokes or a pedal?"

One Remedy

The teacher wrote on the blackboard: "I ain't had no fun all summer."

Then she asked a youngster in the front row: "Harry, what can I do to correct that?"

"Mebbe get a boy friend?" he suggested helpfully.

An Open Mind

Senator: "I'm not prejudiced at all. I'm going with a perfectly open and unbiased mind to listen to what I'm convinced is pure rubbish."

Work as though you would live forever; but live as though you would die today.—St. Edmund.

THE GOOGOLPLEX AND THE STARLING

A googolplex is just about the largest number for which there is a name—its coiner said you couldn't write down a googolplex even if you had a blackboard reaching to the sun.

Aside from insects, microscopic animals, and the fish of the sea, for which there is no possibility of so much as an approximate census, no variety of earth inhabitants now numbers even remotely close to a googolplex.

For that matter, no variety numbers within shouting distance of a googol. But ornithologists, the bird scientists, will bet you that if any ever do, it will be a starling.

Right now they're marvelling because the starling has multiplied into his usual vast numbers in the Fiji Islands where he didn't exist not so long ago. He didn't exist in North America before 1890. Look at him now!

A googol is the number one, followed by 100 zeros. A mathematics professor, Edward Kasner, of Columbia University, introduced a googol. He got it from his nine-year-old nephew. He merely was commenting on the googolly nature of things and this article is more of the same, but you will see in a minute that googolly applies to starlings.

In the 1880's there was an American, whose name will be spared from the infamy of starling-haters by not being mentioned here, who thought it would be nice and cultural if all the birds mentioned by Shakespeare lived in this country.

He formed the American Aclimization Society. In 1890, it imported 100 starlings from England—where they had been nuisances even before Shakespeare's time—and turned them loose in Central Park, New York City. Now look what we have—starlings wherever we turn.

From these 100 immigrants, according to the National Geographic Society, have googolled all the enormous flocks of starlings which chatter happily from the east coast to the Rockies, from Hudson Bay to Mexico.

Starlings have crossed the Rockies and are moving toward the Pacific coast. They've invaded Jamaica and Cuba. The rest of the West Indies, Central and South America may be next. They're thick in Australia and New Zealand. And now they're googolling in the Fijis.

Ornithologists are rather pleased with the starlings. They give the ornithologists steady employment by cities which would like somehow to reduce the population, and no ornithologist has succeeded yet against this prime example of the go-getter, try-anything-once extrovert among birds.

Purplish black and small, they thrive on any diet or any climate. They have a passion for parenthood and high efficiency in rearing young. A female starling thinks nothing of laying seven eggs in quick succession. They have no natural enemies—man is too ineffective to be rated as one; so their multiplication rate shames that of the rabbit.

Worse, they like city living, roosting in the cornices of buildings and may make travel on the sidewalks below hazardous. They chatter endlessly among themselves, and the united chatter of one trillionth of a googol of starlings will drow out human talk for yards around. They're menaces to the sanitation of cities upon which human health depends.

They won't be chased away by anything so far devised—Roman candles, ultra-violet rays, jets of water, DDT, blank cartridges. The modern weapons of war haven't been uesd yet, probably because they, like all birds, have friends among men who won't suffer a ruffled feather. And they are chipper little fellows—natural clowns, great mimics.

A "REAL ESTATE" BUSINESS

A personable Long Island, N.Y., "real estate salesman,' 'father of five children, calmly told police and his shocked wife that his "real business" for the last five years has been robbing college dormitories from Maine to Chicaga. Eugene J. Carroll, 26, of Levittown, N.Y., says he had invaded most of the prominent colleges in the eastern states.

He said his best day was Saturday when most of the students and faculty were attending college functions. He said he couldn't estimate with any accuracy the total take but admitted spending $500 to $800 a week on himself and maintained he kept his wife well supplied with cash.

In July the Canadian labour force reached the record size of 5,515,000 workers.

Married Couples' Club Meets at Avonmore

The Married Couples Club of St. James' United Church, Avonmore, held their Christmas meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maldwyn Watkins. The worship period, which took the form of a carol service, was conducted by Mrs. Fred Barkley, assisted by Mrs. M. Watkins and Mrs. Eric Rawson.

Mrs. Stanley Graham was appointed counsellor for the Young People's group which is being formed, and members of the club agreed to assist.

Gifts were exchanged among the members o fthe club, with Eric Rawso nacting as Santa Claus.

Three couples were welcomed to the group. Addresses were read and each was presented with a cake plate: Mr. and Mrs. Sesel Wert, Mr .and Mrs. Stanley Graham and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce MacRae.

Officers for 1954 are: Honorary presidents, Rev. and Mrs. C. R. Sutherland; presidents, Mr. and Mrs. Glen McMillan; vice presidents, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Rawson; secretary-treasurers, Mr. and Mrs. G. Watkins. Lunch convener, Mrs. Chas. Rielly.

Drunk's Word Not Good Enough

Police officer Michael O'Regan, Balbriggan Ireland, testified that the motorist came to the poilce station and said he felt drunk. So he was charged with drunken driving.

The defence counsel in court asked O'Regan of he had any other evidence against the defendant. O'Regan said only the man's own words.

"Surely you're not going to accept the evidence of a drunken man," counsel pleaded with the judge.

Case dismissed.

ELECTRIC MOTOR MAINTENANCE IN WINTER

Electric motors for use at cold locations need to be winterized to avoid danger of burning out, advises Arthur H. Shultz, agricultural engineer with the North Dakota Agricultural College.

"Keep your open type electric motors protected and dry if you want maximum usage," he says.

Mr. Schultz recommends that all motors be protected from drifting snow unless of the closed, waterproof type. Drifting snow has caused many motors to get wet and burn out.

"Make sure you have overload protection on all of your electric motors that will be used at cold locations," he says. Practically all equipment powered by an electric motors starts harder in winter than in summer and may also require more power to operate. Therefore, all motors should be protected against burning out from overloading. However, it is doubly important to have this protection o nall motors used at cold locations."

Mr. Schultz recommends built-in overload protectors that come as a part of the motor or heater type overload switches, as the best types of overload protection. The delayed fuse known as fusetat or fusetrons, can be used satisfactorily as a combination circuit fuse and overload protector, providing the motor is on a separate circuit and the proper sized fusetat or fusetron is used.

The NDAC farm engineer recommends a fusetat of fusetron with an amperage rating about 25 per cent larger than the amperage rating on the motor name plate as the proper size to use for this purpose.

RED FACES—WRONG FIRE

Some fireman's faces matched their red hats recently at Newport News, Va. They sped in response to an alarm and thoroughly doused a blaze with chemicals. The blaze, the firemen discovered then, had been burning brightly for five years. It came from a pipe and was the means of disposing of waste gas at a sanitation disposal plant. And so the firemen helped clean up the chemical goo and restarted the fire.

SUNKEN BATTLESHIPS TO REST

Royal Navy veterans angrily told a Japanese salvage company to keep hands off the bomb-blasted hulks of two British warships sunk by Japanese planes in the Pacific war

London newspapers reported that sailors were shocked by the offer of a Tokyo company to raise and sell for scrap the wrecks of the Repulse and the Prince of Wales. The Repulse went down off Malaya in 1941, and is the grave of 440 officers and men. The loss of the two battleships and especially the Repulse, which was the pride of the Royal Navy's eastern fleet is one of the most painful memories Britain has of her war with Japan.

In Canada Five Years Mrs. Vainu Owns Her Own Barber Shop

"You must be looking for a job in the beauty salon at the back, Joe Girard told Mrs. Alide Vainu when she applied for work in his Ottawa barber shop, back in 1949.

No, Mrs. Painu persisted in broken English, she was a qualified man's barber, and hadn't Mr. Girard advertised for a barber?

He had, Joe admitted, and hired her. Now she owns a three-chair barber shop in Ottawa.

Mrs. Vainu arrived in this country from Estonia five years ago unable to speak any English, but she had completed her three-year course at a barber school at Talin, Estonia, and acquired a good deal of hair-cutting experience during four years in a German concentration camp.

So she put in the one year at domestic work required by her immigration contract, then answered Joseph Girard's ad in June, 1949.

Now she hires two men in her shop, and can carry on a good line of barber shop patter in English. She doesn't know whether the secret of her success may be in the way she applies the patter. She claims she only uses her gift of gab when a customer starts a conversation.

Otherwise? Just the drone of clippers, the gentle snipping of scissors—and silence.

71st Windshield Hit Mystery Unexplained By Police

The phantom marksman of the London-Portsmouth highway struck again recently, shattering his 71st car windshield in a flash of orange light.

The latest victim, Andrew Wilson, a 30-year-old official of the BBC, was hit in the same way as the rest. A sharp crack, then splinters of glass falling into his lap.

"There was a bright orange flash," said Wilson, who was driving from London to the naval town of Portsmouth. "Nobody was near me and there was no place where anyone could hide."

Three years of investigation since the first case was reported have left detectives scratching their heads. There has never been a bullet, pellet or other missile found to give them a clue.

The majority of the 71 windshield smashings have been in daylight. All have occurred in a beautiful two-mile stretch of the highway 14 miles from London.

Strangely enough, nobody has been seriously hurt. All drivers have managed to stop before running into anything. Contributing to this record is the fact that there is seldom any other traffic in the vicinity when the marksman—or thing—strikes.

Working in the dark, police have had to check that a sniper, hidden in the woods surrounding the stretch of highway, was at work with an air rifle—and a grudge against the mechanized age. For months police hid in the woods, constantly patrolled the road and even called in tracker dogs.

The result: One police car windshield cracked.

The investigation was given up. Police reported no evidence that a rifle is involved or that there is a malicious intent behind the incidents.

That left theory No. 2—loose stones thrown up by the wheels of cars. But the road was resurfaced in 1950 and there are few loose stones. And in any case, why should stones fly only in daylight? To make sure, the road was swept daily.

Only the more romantic—and untested—theories remain. One is that mysterious supersonic waves unheard by ear shattered the windshields in much the same way that a vibrating tuning fork can smash a wine glass.

To the insurance men who pay for new windshields the mystery remains, as do all unexplained accidents in the world of insurance, "an act of God."

WASN'T WORRYING

Sheriff's deputies found an intoxicated man asleep on the railroad tracks at Knoxville, Tenn. recently, his head on one rail and feet on another.

"Don't you know a train might run over you?" asked deputy Jesse Chamberlain.

"What time is it?" asked the drunk.

"It's four o'clock."

"Then I ain't got nothing to worry about, 'cause the engineer that drives that train always stops for me."

DUAL CABBAGE

Soviet scientists have induced two heads of cabbage to grow from a single root. Moscow radio concedes there was a time-lag between heads. The double-headers were produced on a collective farm near hoscow, the broadcast said, with 33,000 pounds of cabbage heads harvested from a 2½ acre plot last June.

"CANUCKS" CREDITED WITH RUGBY HOAX

A rugger squad self-styled the Toronto and Montreal rugby-football touring team was credited not long ago with the "gayest rugby-football hoax of the century."

The daily was commenting on a rugger exhibition game between the "Canadians" and a London hospital's pick-up squad. The Londoners won 44-0.

"This remarkable group of buccaneers" planned to come to Britain for Christmas anyway, said the Star, and apparently realized that air passage is cheaper for a sports team than for individuals.

None of the visiting team could be reached for comment.

However, a King's College Hospital student who played against them said he understood they are Britons now living in Canada. He said he understands that they have played only one game.

"Some team," said the Star. "For the record, the half-time score was 26 points to nil and thereafter the crowd thinned from 11 souls to none."

SQUARE MATCHES FOR BRITAIN

Lack of Canadian white pine is changing the shape of British matches.

One large company announced that from now on its wooden matches will be square instead of round.

Company director Gilbert Bartholomew said the company just can't get enough Canadian white pine, which provides the best round splits for match making.

The onl y solution, he said, is to make square matches using plentiful aspen poplar.

Just a Mistake

"A burglar broke into my house last night when I was still at the club," said Smith to his friend.

"Did he get anything?" asked the friend.

"Yes, poor devil. He's in hospital; my wife thought it was me."

Farmers Claim Canada Goose Eats Too Much

Farmers of Amherstburg, Ont., district think the Canada goose is a beautiful and graceful bird but it eats too much.

Ten years ago, migratory geese began landing on the farm of Henry Robidoux. He fed them and the area around his pond quickly became an unofficial sanctuary with more birds each year.

People came to visit the farm, just to see the geese, and Mr. Robidoux and his sons increased the size of their pond.

This year the situation was out of hand. About 5,000 geese a day were landing in the pond and the Robidoux family could no longer afford to feed them.

Farmers in the district suddenly saw danger. If food is not found at the Robidoux farm, the geese will forage for themselves. Crops will suffer and the alkali content of the droppings lower the value of the land.

Darwin Wismer, a real estate broker and farmer, said the same thing happened in the Kingsville area after the famous Jack Miner established his sanctuary.

About forty farmers in the area protested the unofficial sanctuary in a letter to William Murdoch, Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario Legislature for Essex South. The member said the government is anxious to forestall a situation similar to the one at Kingsvlle.

Seek Super Apple At Vineland

Three men at the Vineland Ont., Horticultural Experimental Station are on a unique search for the perfect apple. They want a tasty, rosy kind, so hardy it will suit all climates and keep all winter long.

"When it looks right, smells right and tastes right, we'll be satisfied," said Dr. J. H. L. Truscott, laboratory director at the station.

After three years or research, he and his associates, George H. Dickson and E. F. Palmer, have reduced 160 varieties to 16. From this number they hope to find the perfect one.

It may take years of cross-breeding, grafting and trans-planting.

"The experiments are baffling and sometimes downright exasperating," said Mr. Dickson who has been working with apples since 1913. "We might find a tree which will fulfil all our expectations in Vineland, then discover that it will not grow on the other side of Lake Ontario."

"I'm looking for a champion which may only turn up once in a generation, one which is good anywhere," he added.

Seedlings have come from Idaho, Ohio, New Jersey and New York. Wanted is an all-weather apple, able to stay good in a 32 degree storage temperature and capable of filling in vacant periods between ripening of certain varieties.

Mr. Dickson said McIntosh Reds, for instance, need a storage temperature of 54 degrees, Delicious, 64 degrees. McIntosh Reds are ripe at Christmas but Spies are not ready until March. Picked in th fall, they ripen in storage.

Who will not mercy unto others show, how can he mercy ever hope to have?—Spenser.

Empty

O'Leary's wife woke in the middle of the night to hear her husband creeping about the kitchen.

"What might ye be looking for, darlin'?" she called out.

"Nothin'," called back O'Leary. "Just nothin'."

"Oh!" said his wife cheerfully. "Then you'll find it in the bottle where the whisky used to be."

Changed

"He used to be a bare-faced liar. Has he changed "

"Yes, he wears a moustache now."

VACCINATION PROGRAMME

A few years ago practically 100% of the female calves in Dundas County were vaccinated. Due to falling prices of cattle some farmers have become careless and neglect to call the veterinarian

To keep our herds free from the dreaded Bang's disease and so that we do not lose opportunities for sales to U.S. markets

A Canvass of the Cattle Breeders of Dundas County to set up a calfhood vaccination area under the new provincial Brucellosis Act, 1953, will be made during the latter part of January. The canvassers will be local farmers who will have received instruction on the regulations of the act.

The most important regulations covered by the act are:

Sec. 2: "Upon receipt of a petition that bears the signatures of more than two-thirds of the cattle owners in any township, the council thereof at its next meeting shall pass a by-law requiring all female calves within the township to be vaccinated.

Sec. 4: "Where the council of a township has passed a by-law under this act every cattle owner shall provide such information as an inspector may require and shall make his female calves available for vaccination.

Sec. 5 (2): "Every cattle owner is liable for the costs of vaccination of his female calves which shall be payable on demand to the veterinarian and shall be recoverable in any court of competent jurisdiction.

Sec. 6 (1): "No perosn shall hinder or obstruct a veterinarian in entering any land or building, other than a dwelling house, or in vaccinating female calves.

Sec. 7: "Every person who contravenes or fails to comply with this act or the regulations or any by-law passed under this act is guilty of an offence and on summary conviction is liable for a first offence to a penalty of not less than $10.00 and not more than $50.00, and for each subsequent offence to a penalty of not less than $50.00 and not more than $200.00, or to imprisonment for a term of not more than 30 days.

Sec. 8 (a): "Female calves from Federally listed herds may be exempted."

Publicity Committee: Basil Dawley, Allison Graham, Eric Casselman. Listen to "The Farmer's Notebook' 'on C.F.R.A., Frank Ryan will interview the committee on the project.

Township Organizers: Mountain, Byron Martin; Matilda, Cephus Smythe; Williamsburg, Edwin McIntosh; Winchester, John Barrett.

Canvass sponsored by the County Federation of Agriculture
Wm. Graham, President, Harold McMenomy, Vice President,
Eric Casselman, Secretary

Osnabruck Township Planning Board Meets

Osnabruck Township residents heard a report last week on the activities of their planning board in connection with the St. Lawrence Seaway and Power Development. The meeting was held in the Woodlands school.

Township reeve J. H. Maginnis opened the meeting with a review of the steps taken in establishing the board.

Sumfers Elliott, board chairman, summarized the minutes of meetings from the board inception to the present.

Thorold Lane spoke not only as a member but also as chairman of the liason committee formed by the combined boards of the affected areas, including in his remarks a questionnaire submitted to the authorities responsible for the development of this area,

The discussion which followed brought to light many problems which would arise if and when the development was started.

On behalf of the members of the school section Lorne McLaren thanked the members of the board for their valuable contribution to the meeting.

SAY CANADA READY TO BUILD SEAWAY ON HER OWN

Canada does not plan to wait for the United States Congress to take action getting the St. Lawrence Seaway started.

Despite Washington reports that a bill for joint U.S.-Canada participation will be an early item on the Senate agenda, a cabinet informant said Canada would go ahead on her own if current litigation is cleared up before the Senate moves.

The Canadian government has been prepared for two years to move alone on the $300,000,000 navigation phase of the seaway-power project. The start has been held up by still-pending court action in the U.S.

Simultaneously, the U.S. court proceedings have delayed the $450,000,000 hydro development to be built concurrently with the deep waterway system. The Ontario hydro-electric power commission and the New York State power authority have been authorized by their respective federal governments to build the 2,200,000-horsepower electrical works.

Thecourt action by U.S. opponents has ben taken specifically against the power project. It now is before the U.S. Court of Appeals with a decision looked for early in the year.

Administration officials in Canada and Washington are confident of decision favouring a go-ahead, but they also expect the opponents will carry their case to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Meanwhile, despite President Eisenhower's recent statement here that he hopes for joint U.S.-Canada participation on navigation, there has been no evident rise of enthusiasm in official quarters in Ottawa for his kind of operation.

After waiting many years for the U.S. to join in, Canada definitely cooled off on the joint job two years ago and made plans to go ahead alone. It now has its whole setup ready to launch a canal on the Canadian side, and government experts figure this would save $35,000,000 as against a U.S.-side canal that probably would be dug in the event of a joint undertaking.

MRS. FRED T. BROOKS DIES IN OTTAWA

A resident of Ottawa for 21 years, Mrs. Fred T. Brooks, the former Mary Agnes Mackie, died in an Ottawa hospital on Monday, following a lengthy illness. She was 60 years of age.

Born and educated in Finch Township, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Mackie. She graduated as a Registered Nurse from St. Luke's Hospital in 1920. She married Fred T. Brooks, who survives, in Morewood in 1932. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church.

In addition to her husband, surviving are: One step-daughter, Mrs. Gladys McGillvray, Ottawa; two brothers, Harold Mackie, Martintown, and Lindsay, Crysler, and two grandchildren.

Rev. R. W. Armstrong officiated at the service in the Hulse and Playfair Chapel, Ottawa on Wednesday. Interment is to be in Morewood Presbyterian Cemetery.

Concert Well Attended At Winchester Springs

The Winchester Springs United Church Sunday School and Y.P.U. presented their annual concert before a large and appreciative audience in the church. Rev. Basil Adams was chairman. There were choruses by the school and recitations were given by Sharron Steele, Cathy Kirkwood, Carolyn Casselman, John Bailey, Geraldine Rice, Claire Robinson, and other numbers by the juniors under the direction of Mrs. B. Steele.

Vocal solos were given by Erlene Casselman, Lorna Ball, Sharron Steele, Errol Thorpe, Ruth Steele; piano solos, Joel Steele and Dale Allison; vocal duets by Phyllis and Betty Robinson, Mary Lou and Clara Holmes, Sharron Steele and Junior Harper.

A musical pantomime was staged by Misses Muriel Holmes, Betty Robinson, Mary Steele and Betty Holmes.

Among the plays presented were: "Heavenly Quiz" and "Playing Politics," by Mrs. R. Allison's class; "Little Grandmas" by Mrs. C. Thompson's class; "Gentleman's Aid" by intermediate boys.

The Y.P.U., under the direction of Mrs. Davidson, presented "Trying Them Out," a one-act play. Those taking part were Eric and Lorna Steele, Lyle Hess, Lorraine Holmes, Betty Robinson and Mary Steele.

CONSTERNATION AT KAS AT BUILDING OPENING

Title of the reddest-faced man at the official opening of the enw agricultural building at Kemptville on Tuesday went to J. K. Meagher, partner in the firm of Ross-Meagher, builders of the new addition on the KAS campus.

Mr. Meagher had no sooner sat down, after rapping the fingers of William Smith, an architect with Drever and Smith, for suggesting that something could go wrong in such a fine building when—you guessed it—the building was in darkness.

A half-hour later, much to the relief of a distraught Mr. Meagher, the trouble was found to be an overloaded transformer belonging to Hydro.

MRS. ANNIE SHARLOW, 48 DIES IN MASSENA

She also leaves to mourn her loss her mother who lives with her, two sons, Gerald Canough, North Tonawanda, N.Y., and Lyle Canough, Grand Rapids, Mich. Also, two brothers, Stanley Gallinger, Massena, and Roland Gallinger, Gallingertown.

UNITED S.S. PUPILS HOLD ANNUAL PARTY AT MOREWOOD

The annual party of the Morewood United Church Sunday School was held with Rev. D. L. Gordon as chairman. Mr. Fred Miller, student minister of the Presbyterian Church, presented the film, "The Birth of Christ."

A short programme followed, with carols by the school; recitations by Gail Marcellus, Linda Thompson, Dickie Testerink, Sandra Ball, Attis Krisjanis, Betty Smirl, Lorraine Ball, Nancy Smirl, Elaine Crump, Keith Wagner; piano solos by Carolyn Swerdfeger and Carl Hutchinson; duet by John and Brian Allison, Glenda Swerdfeger and Nadene Stewart.

Treats and gifts were distributed by the teachers and helpers.

STRANGE DOINGS

Residents of Mantoloking, N.J., now know what caused the giant bird tracks, a foot long and a foot across, which have mystified and excited the whole area for over a year. The tracks appeared at intervals on the town's beaches, and one man claimed to have seen the great feathered creature walking.

Recently, however, James J. Turner, 60, revealed he made the tracks with a contraption of stones, cork, linoleum and plywood, glued to a pair of old shoes. As a practical joke he has been giving his fellow townsmen the bird.

It was a sad Christmas Eve for Howard Zalinski, Inglewood, Calif. That's the day he faced arraignment on a burglary charge, after being found in a locked chain grocery store. His lott, according to police: one Canadian nickel and one 15c trolley token.

Miami, Fla., husbands breathed easier not long ago after the local Circuit Court's special master threw out from Mrs. Estella Emerson's divorce petition all evidence based on Mr. Emerson's alleged talking in his sleep.

"Even a husband has a right to dream," ruled the special master. "He should not be deprived of his sleep by the fear that if his rapturous reveries become articulate he may be forced to pay for them in divorce court."

Ed Fouts, Columbus, Kansas, doesn't lack for something to tie up parcels with. He recently measured the ball of string he has been collecting as a hobby. It measured 11 feet 8 inches around. Unrolled Fouts figures, that would make 388 miles of string.

Roger Mitchell, Hampton, S.C., took his three dogs bird hunting one morning recently. Seven frantic hours later, searchers found him two and a half miles deep in a nearby swamp. Explained three-year-old Roger: "I just wanted to catch the birdies."

Thoughts on Dieting

The more I want
To reduce my torso
The less I can eat
Of what I adore so.
At least, that's what
I have always held to,
But never concede
Till stoutly compelled to.

GHOST FACE FADES

The "Ghost Lady" face finally faded from a Long Island family's television screen, and the NBC radio network said it had solved the mystery.

The radio men said the face that looked steadily out of Jerry Travers' T Vset for two days was that of Francey Lane, a singer.

A network spokesman quoted a TV dealer who examined the set as saying:

"An explosion of electrons burned the image of a face into the fluorescent lining of the picture tube."

There was no immediate explanation of why the image disappeared unless it burned off.

Travers' wife, in telling how the face disappeared said there was a sort of "poof" and the face turned into a ball and faded into nothing. Until then the face had stayd on the screen no matter what station was tuned in.

Mrs. Snaggs: "Did I understand you to say Mrs. Perkins is interested in business."

Mrs. Bitters: "Yes."

Mrs. Snaggs: "Wht business is she interested in."

Mrs. Bitters: "Eeverybody's."

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! Our first resolution of the new year, namely to read Margaret Aitken's "Hey Ma, I did It," and Claire Wallace's "Mind Cour Manners," had to be shelved while we get on with the work-a-day business of answering queries. There seems to be a number of people who are learning to use their electrical Christmas presents. What a pity to receive appliances without instructions or warranty. It this has happened to you, write to the manufacturer for both the guide and the card. In many instances the instructions are all too brief so we hope our suggestions will help you.

TAKE A TIP

1. Read the manufacturer's intructions carefully and follow them exactly to get the most efficient use and longest possible service from your equipment.
2. If you hear an ominous grind in the electric motor or note that the appliance is not working properly, stop it immediately and check to see whether service or adjustment should be made.
3. Decide on the repairs you can do and the service of the electrician.
4. Plug the electric cord into appliance first, then into outlet.
5. Disconnect appliance by grasping the plug at the outlet—don't yank the cord.
6. Set all controls according to manufacturer's instructions.
7. Never put heating units, cords or motors in water.

ELECTRIC DISHWASHERS

1. Dishwashers should be installed with a convenient cut-off valve. If there is not a tap on your unit you should be able to turn off the water at the main supply line. This should be clearly marked, so that anyone can find it quickly.
2. If dishes do not come out of the dishwasher clean and shiny then next time see that the dishes are scraped well, the water piping hot (150 degs.) and the proper cleaner used.
3. Soap powders or combination of soap and detergent prevents washing action of the machine. To prevent spots on glassware and silver the water should be softened using a calgonite powder or the crystals tied securely in a bag if there is no container in the machine. Watch for dishwasher powders on the grocer's shelves.
4. To save costly service use caution when putting cutlery in the silver basket: set securely in place with handles down. If one piece gets pushed over into the impeller there is trouble. By the way, we do not place hollow handled sterling pieces in the machine.
5. If a film appears in the dishes the condition may be due to the mineral content of the water. Check the amount of softener to use by measuring the powder into 2 qts. of water. It should feel slippery as you pinch it. To remove film rub all parts except gold paint with bon ami. In fact we suggest giving your dishwasher the benefit of a good deal by cleaning dishes with mild cleanser before you use it.

ELECTRIC IRONERS

1. Practice ironing flat linens first, then put one piece after another through the machine without raising the roller—mind your fingers. If you iron clothes without folding (where possible) the fabric will last longer and you will be making wise use of the ironer.
2. If clothes have to be put through repeatedly to get them smooth then fluff the padding and decide whether the fabric is damp enough. A sponge squeezed out of hot water and rubbed over dry parts will help.
3. If the ironer cover is scorched at one end, check your ironing technique; you may be favouring the left side. Try to use both sides evenly.
4. Wash the muslin cover once a month and bleach if necessary.
5. If too much soap has been left in the clothes the iron will produce a yellow stain.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. H. F. asks: How long should it take to make 8 cups of coffee in an automatic percolator?

Answer: It may require 15 minutes since it is necessary to use cold water. Only a small amount of electricity is used and it is automatically turned down to keep the coffee hot as soon as it is percolated.

Miss P. B. asks: How can we prevent waffles from sticking to the new iron which is seasoned with salt-free oil?

Answer: We wonder if you are preheating the waffle iron with the grids open—they should be closed and it usually requires four minutes to preheat, then four minutes to bake waffles or until steam stops coming from the edge.

Mrs. T. R. asks: How do you prevent bread from twisting in a new toaster?

Answer: No doubt you have an automatic toaster and using fresh bread which should be chilled to prevent warping.

Mother: "Johnnie dear, I was hoping you would be unselfish and give your little sister the largest piece of candy. Why, even that old hen will give all the nicest dainties to her little chicks and take only a tiny piece once in a while for herself."

Johnnie (after watching the old hen for awhile): "Well, Mom, I'd do the same thing if it was worms."

FUR NOT A FUR?

When is fur not a fur? Hearings opened before Mr. Justice C. A. Cameron in Exchequer court in Ottawa, to determine whether mouton, a popular material used for women's winter garments, s a fur.

A Toronto firm which produces mouton in quantity claims it is not a fur and consequently should not be subject to a 15 per cent tax under the ExciseTax Act. The Crown claims it is. Both sides agree that mouton is processed sheepskin. Should the Toronto firm win the case, it would mean a reduction of $15 to $20 in the retail price of a mouton coat selling for $135, a retailer said.

WEST COAST INDIANS HOLD POTLACH AT VICTORIA

The masked dancers of the West Coast Indian tribes and the legends they interpret are dying out.

Some of the 200 Indian chiefs gathered at Victoria for the first public Potlach in 50 years said young Indians are losing interest in the past.

The Potlach was held for three days, marking the opening of the Kwatkiuti tribal house built by Chief Mungo Martin and his son, David.

Chief Daniel Cranmere, of the Nimpkish tribe said the old dancers are dying out. "We now have to depend on the dexterity of the younger people."

He and Chief Tom Omhid, of the Tlatasikoal, and Chief Geo. Scow, of the Kwiksutonuk tribes, agreed the "winter dances," basis of Indian culture, may die out because the young people don't understand them and watch only out of curiousity.

Potlatches, huge eating and dancing tribal gatherings, were banned in 1880 because of the tradition of lavish gift-ginving was impoverishing the tribes. They were legalzed again two years ago, but this is the first to be held in publis since then.

Opening of a new tribal house is of top importance to the Indians and it is then the owner must prove his hereditary right to use the carved and painted crests adorning the front of the structure.

Each dancer has a special "winter dance" name which is assumed each year with the donning of the symbolic cedar bark head bands. The names are used until the garments are laid aside next summer when the dancers revert to their summer names.

BILL BACKFIRED

In Pekin, Ill., a service station operator's report of a $51 burglary sent police rummaging through their own money drawer—looking for a dollar bill peppered with small holes. The burglary victim gave the description of one of the bills taken from his station. Police recalled seeing a similar bill in their own tll. A search produced the dollar, paid to police a few hours earlier by one of two youths who had been fined a total of $50 for disorderly conduct.

Police rearrested the youths and listed new charges of burglary and larceny against them.

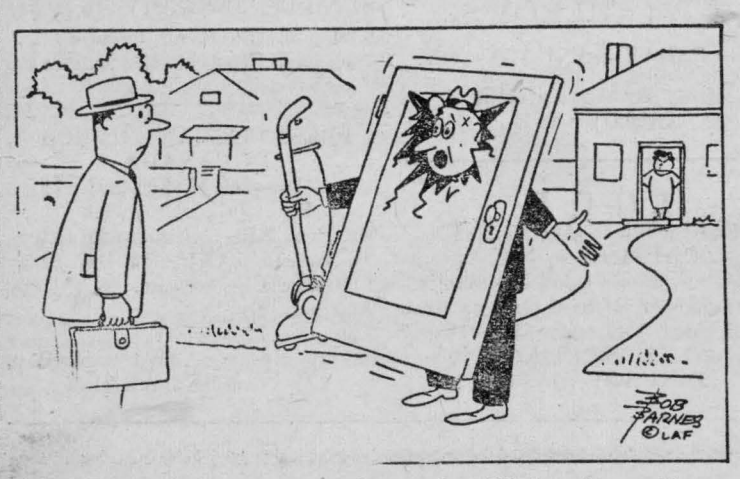

MASTODON TUSK FOUND IN ONTARIO

A five-foot tusk found in an Aldershot gravel pit has been identified as that of a pre-historic mastodon, greatest of the hairy mammals to roam the earth.

Dr. Herman Kleerkoper, of McMaster University, examined the tusk and identified it as a mastodon's.

Digging at the pit is expected to continue for about four years. Workmen have been asked to watch for further remains of the mastodon, believed to have died about 15,000 years ago.

Thomas D. McConnell Passes Suddenly

Friends and neighbours of Thomas D. McConnell were shocked to learn of his sudden passing last Tuesday afternoon. Mr. McConnell had driven to Winchester to have some feed cleaned and while there suffered a severe heart attack and passed away almost at once. Dr. Byers was called and rendered medical aid. Although not in robust health, Mr. McConnell was around as usual.

He was in his 76th year, born near Morewood, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert McConnell. As a young man he married Sarah Graham and took up farming at Cannamore later. When his son operated the farm he conducted a garage business in Winchester for a few years, but later returned to the farm.

Their only son, James, predeceased his father a year ago. Besides his wife, who survives, are two brothers, Ernest, of Morewood, and Tweed, Monitor, Alta.

The funeral service was held in Morewood United Church on Saturday and was conducted by Rev. D. L. Gordon.

Pall bearers were Dalton Baker, Ellis Thompson, Dobie Byers, Thos. Reveller, Glen MacGregor, O. K. Steven.

Burial was in Maple Ridge Cemetery.

The Indian name for Prince Edward Island—"Abegweit"—means "cradled on the waves."

A. J. MacMillan Passes in 94th Year

Relatives and friends throughout the district were saddened by the announcement of the death of Angus John MacMillan, highly respected citizen of Avonmore, who passed away Tuesday morning at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Fraser MacRae, just west of the village. Mr. MacMillan, who was in his 94th year, had been active up until the time of his death, despite his advanced age.

Born in Fourth Concession, of Roxborough, 93 years ago, Mr. MacMillan was a son of the late John MacMillan and his wife, Jane MacLean. Most of his long and useful life was spent in the Avonmore district, although he spent considerable time in Western Canada and Northern Ontario. For many years Mr. MacMillan was engaged in road construction in various parts of the province.

Mr. MacMillan had for more than half a century been active in Avonmore Lodge No. 452, A.F. and A.M., and Avonmore Lodge No. 334, I.O.O.F. He was also a member of the Trustee Board of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. For a number of years he was a member of Township Council.

On November 4th, 1884, in a ceremony in St. Luke's Presbyterian Church, Finch, Mr. MacMillan married Catherine Cameron, a daughter of Duncan Cameron and Margaret MacMillan, who were among the first settlers of Finch Township. Mrs. McMillan passed away on March 5th, 1937.

Left to mourn his passing are four daughters: Mrs. Duncan H. MacMillan (Jane), Kingston; Mrs. Norman Arbuthnot (Margaret), of Northfield Station; Mrs. Fraser MacRae (Hannah), Avonmore; Mrs. Clarence Thompson (Marjorie), Massena; one son, Hugh A. MacMillan, Kingston; one sister, Mrs. John Morrison, Avonmore; 11 grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren.

A daughter, Catherine, died in infancy; a son, John, died in 1928; and another son, Duncan, passed away in 1952.

The remains are resting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. MacRae, from where the funeral will be held this afternoon, Thursday, for service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Avonmore. Rev. Donald C. MacDonald, B.A., will conduct the service, which will be held under Masonic auspices.

Interment is to be made in the family plot in Paul's Hill Cemetery, Avonmore.

CARD OF THANKS

To our many friends and neighbours we wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation for the many acts of kindness, messages of consolation, sympathy and floral tributes in our bereavement in the loss of our beloved husband and brother, Thomas McConnell. Our special thanks to the Winchester friends who were so helpful, to the Rev. D. L. Gordon and Mr. Casselman.

Mrs. Thomas McConnell and brothers, Ernest and Tweed McConnell.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to sincerely thank all my friends for the many acts of kindness shown to me and to my wife and family while I was a patient in Winchester Memorial Hospital.

Congratulations and best wishes from many relatives and friends were extended to Mr. and Mrs. George Kirkwood, highly esteemed residents of Winchester Springs, when they celebrated their golden wedding Saturday last.

The couple were married at Winchester Springs by Rev. Hugh Spencer. The bride was the former Viola Jane Henderson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Henderson, Winchester. The groom was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kirkwood.

They have seven children: Mrs. D. Casselman (Vera), William and Kenneth, Winchester Springs, Mrs. D. Armstrong (Lulu), Mrs. C. Sears (Pauline) and Mrs. B. Short (Audrey), of Cardinal, and Mrs. W. Blair (Dorothy), Pickering. There are 15 grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

The celebration was held in the Orange Hall, which was decorated with poinsettias and American Beauty roses. The table was centred with a four-tiered wedding cake.

Mrs. Kirkwood wore a floor length gown of nylon velvet with a black velvet jacket and black accessories. Her husband presented her with a sheaf of five dozen roses and a granddaughter, Betty Kirkwood, read an address. A number of gifts were presented to the Kirkwoods by two granddaughters, Carolyn Short and Linda Anne Blair.

Guests attended from Chesterville, Prescott, Ottawa, Winchester, South Mountain, Pickering, Cardinal and Williamsburg.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank my many friends and neighbours for their cards. treats and visits and also for the many acts of kindness shown to my wife and family while I was a patient in Cornwall and Winchester hospitals.

SEGUIN SEEKS TO APPEAL HIS CONVICTION

The motion was heard in the Supreme Court of Canada, Ottawa, before Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret, Wednesday, in which Henry Seguin, 28, of Cornwall, asked leave to appeal his conviction and death sentence for the August, 1952, slaying of Leonard Hurd at Maxville.

The motion was argued by Louis C. Assaly and Edward J. Houston, of Ottawa, counsel for the condemned man.

Unless the Supreme Court of Canada intervenes Seguin will die on the gallows at Cornwall on January 19th. He was convicted by an Ontario Supreme Court jury and sentenced by Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow last October.

Two weeks ago Seguin appealed his conviction before the Supreme Court of Ontario, but five judges of the Appeal Court upheld the conviction at that time.

His counsel are basing the leave-to-appeal motion on the grounds that Seguin should be given a new trial because of certain alleged discrepancies in the trial judge's charge to the jury.
