R. D Fulton Dead.

On reading this heading it will not come as a surprise to a large number of this community, as they were aware of his illness, which has continued since September, 1907 The end came early Tuesday morning, being surrounded by the majority of his family. During the day it was evident that the end was advancing, and later in the afternoon he was unable to speak although it was though that he was conscious, and passed peacefully away at 12.10 a.m., on Tuesday, Nov 24th, 1908, at the age of 75 years, 2 months and 23 days.

Robert Derry Fullton was well and widely known in this district, and we know of no individual person who was better spoken of than the deceased. He has been a resident of Maple Ridge for over fifty years, and during that time has been very successful financially, having purchased different farm property; also having erected one of the best building blocks in Chesterville. In politics he was a staunch Reformer, and in religion a Methodist. About two years ago he was one who advocated the building of a new church here, and subscribed for his family the sum of $1,000. He was one of the building committee and was very anxious to see it completed before his death, but his wish was not granted, although the church is nearing completion. Knowing all this it has been deemed wise to withhold the memorial service of the deceased until the new church is completed.

The deceased leaves to mourn his death a widow, nine sons and one daughter, viz: A. M. Fulton, barrister, of Lindsay, Ont.; Chas. and Will, of the firm of Fulton Bros. of this place; Wesley, Bert, Cecil and Bismark, at home; Howard of Calgary, Dr. E. M. Fulton, of Winchester; and Mrs. C. J. Suffell of Crane Lake, Sask.

The funeral takes place this afternoon, service being held at the family residence.

Mr. Editor;—Some parties have been making inquiry as to the question of taxation in Winchester village previous to, and since Local Option, Will give the figures for the two years under local option. The amount of taxes levied in 1905, was $8582.14; in 1906, $8338.53; in 1907, $9298 34; in 1908, $8400.00. The amount levied in 1907, included a deficit from 1906, of $2122.71 as shown by records of the Corporation, and the Financial Statement issued by the Council. This would make the amount which should have been levied for 1906, to meet all obligations, of $10461.24 thus leaving the levy actually required for 1907, of $7175.63. You will notice they have levied for 1908 about $1200 more than in 1907. This is accounted for, from the fact that they spent over $1000 on roads, by the way of broken stone, more than they did in any of the previous years mentioned, and the County rate, over which they have no control, is also about $500 more than the previous years mentioned. Their levy therefore, for the year of 1907 and 1908, is less than those of 1905 and 1906.

They received for liquor license fees in 1906, $195.00, and as this would not be one-half mill on the dollar, or 5c. on the hundred dollars, they do not consider it worth reconing, nor does it cut any figure in the matter.

You will therefore see for some years what the passing of local option would mean in Chesterville from the standpoint of taxation. No sane man will argue that a community ever prospers because of its liquor licences.

Death of a Registrar.

John Higginson died at L'Orignal, on Tuesday of pneumonia. He was registrar for the United counties of Prescott and Russell for a number of years. He was 76 years of age.

A Young Life Called Hence.

After an illness extending over seven months, Thomas Masterson son of Mr. Daniel Masterson of Connaught passed away on Sunday morning, Nov. 22nd, 1908, at the age of 19 years. The deceased was employed in the store of Mr. J. T. Kearns of this place for some time and was fairly well known to the public, and also a smart young man who was well spoken of and liked by everyone.

The funeral took place Monday morning, mass being celebrated in St. Mary's church by the Rev. J. P. Fleming, after which the remains were interred in the upper burying ground.

Dr. Salmon Injured.

While walking along St. Lawrence street, near Mrs. Laflamme's residence, yesterday, Rev. Dr. Salmon slipped on the sidewalk. The fall was indeed severe, dislocating one shoulder. Physicians at once attended him and he has been since resting fairly well. The accident to Dr. Salmon is very much regretted by his friends in the town. The walk where the accident occurred bears a considerable incline, and this was rendered worse by the fact that a number of children about town had been coasting there since the arrival of the snow. This practice should be prohibited to insure the safety of pedestrians.—Morrisburg Herald.

McMahon—Cosgrove.

A quiet though pleasant event took place at Crysler Roman Catholic Church, on Nov. 11th, when Thos. McMahon, son of Dennis McMahon, of Cannamore, was united in marriage to Miss Alice Cosgrove, of Belfast, Ireland. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Sadie, of Norwood, N.Y., and the groom was ably assisted by Mr. Geo. McMahon, of Chesterville

The happy couple took the morning train for Ottawa, returning to their home in Cannamore on Thursday.

Both haye hosts of friends who heartily extend sincere wishes for a happy and prosperous future.

Nearly Smothered With Coal Gas.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Wesley Smyth and family, of Morewood, had a narrow escape on Saturday night from death by suffocation from escaping gas. Just before retiring Mr. Smith had replenished the fire in the furnace and closed all the flues, which is believed to be the cause of the trouble. About 12.30 a. m., however, Mrs. Smith wakened with a smothering sensation and on attempting to rise fell to the floor. The noise of the fall aroused Mr. Smith, who mannaged to carry his wife out into the fresh air, after which he went into the sleeping room occupied by his two daughters, only to find the other unable to walk or help herself in any way. After carrying both girls outside also, Mr. Smith at once summoned Dr. Earle who was able to hasten their recovery It is believed that if Mrs. Smith had not weakened when she did, the whole family would have been past help in a few minutes, at the longest.

GREAT POWERS OF SLEEP

MEN GO UNDER ITS SPELL REGARDLESS OF RESULTS.

Instances When They Fall Asleep While Holding Very Responsible Positions.

There are numberless cases of sentries who have slept at their posts under the influenve of cold and fatigue, of men who have fallen asleep though they knew that sleep would be the immediate and inevitable forerunner of death. But in these cases the men have usually lain down to sleep, or at least have settled to a posture of repose.

Other cases show that men may fall asleep and yet retain possession of a number of their powers. Foot-soldiers and cavalry have alike slumbered on the march. Men have slept when riding on camels, or have been able to preserve their balance while sleeping as they bicycled along the road, but the most remarkable are cases quoted of individuals.

Of the famous father of medicine, Galen, the rather mild feat is reported that he walked over 200 yds. asleep along a rough road, and only woke up because he knocked his foot against a stone; while the Abbe Richard walked over half a league along an

UNEVEN, CROWDED ROAD.

There are cases of the lawyer who wrote out a brilliant judgment in his sleep and forgot where he had placed it, till it was shown him by his wife, who had watched the whole proceeding; of the student who went to bed tired out, but got up in the middle of the night, joined his friends at supper, played the piano, sang a song, and on waking up next day knew nothing of what he had done.

There is the well-known instance of the cure who used to write sermons in his sleep and read them over critically, correcting his mistakes. He appeared to use his eyes but he was quite unconscious of a card being held between his eyes and the manuscript which he was writing.

Gassendi quotes the example of a patient who would get out of bed, put on stilts, cross a stream in the darkness, and eventually return to bed in perfect ignorance that he had ever left his room.

Another doctor has described how a certain count whom he attended would rise from his bed, leave his house, unlock the stable door, saddle and bridle his horse, go for a gallop, and again undress and return to bed; while the case is quoted of a young chemist who would, in his sleep, translate from Italian into French, looking out the words that he did not know in a dictionary. These cases might be multiplied indefinitely without a reference to the

MARVELS OF HYPNOTISM.

The difficulty is increased by the fact that no one knows the cause of sleep. It has been attributed to the storing up of the acids in the brain and to half-a-dozen other causes, while every mother who has watched her sleeping child knows that the presence of sleep is accompanied by a shrinkage of the skin that bridges over the gap in the skull-bones of the new-born babe. This shrinkage of the skin is merely the outward expression of the fact that in sleep the brain is at once deprived of the rich, red blood that brings it the life-giving oxygen.

This has been proved in the case of animals, and was seen to be true of man some fifty years ago, when a soldier lost a patch of 18 square inches from his skull, through a sabre cut 6 inches long and 3 inches wide. As the man slept his brain grew pale and shrank within the skull, but as soon as he awoke it flushed with blood and bulged out through the open wound. With have applied this knowledge to their consummate ingenuity bring about anaemia of the brain by pressing on the arteries in the neck to induce unconsciousness in rival wrestlers.

The cause of sleep may be obscure, but it is known that it follows as a result of certain antecedents. Want of sleep to "ravel up the knotted sleeve of care" is the most important of these. Cold and exposure to the wind comes next in the category. Straining of the attention, as in attempting to work an elaborate sum to cure insomnia, is a further factor, and monotony induced by the dull mechanical thud of machinery and the constant rhythmic reputation of a sound acts further as a soporific.

All these causes may have been brought to bear on the unhappy man, who, if he fell asleep, was almost certainly unconscious of his act, and may have remained perfectly capable of performing the more mechanical function connected with his work, while the sleeping of the higher functions of his intellect hurled him and the passengers for whom he was responsible to the awful fate of sudden death.

An Interrupted Dinner

AFTER pausing at Cape Town to take on a last consignment, the animal ship left the shores of Africa behind and turned its prow toward America. Housed securely on the deck and in the hold were its queer freight—lions, leopards, dromedaries, giraffes, ostriches, emus, chimpanzees, monkeys, birds, serpents, an elephant and a rhinoceros—destined for zoos and menageries in the United States. Many of the cages were fastened to the deck and had a shelter built over them.

"I'll walk the plank before I ever again ship on such a floating zoo!" petulantly exclaimed Bill Barker, as he complained about not having been able to sleep a single wink after he had turned in from his watch the night before. In truth, with the roaring and the howling and the jabbering and the shrieking, there were few among the sailors who could find rest in their bunks.

But not one among the crew imagined any cause for alarm as to his safety. Surely none of the animals could break loose from their strong cages. It was in a cheerful spirit, therefore, that the men resolved to celebrate

Day in royal style. The cook promised to do his best, and all sorts of preparations were made for a meal which the sailors would long remember.

The day arrived. It lacked but an hour to dinner—the chief event of the celebration, when suddenly there came from the galley below cries of rage mingled with excited chattering. Rushing down the ladder to investigate, the sailors were met by a troop of monkeys, who dodged by them in a hurried scamper for the deck.

"Catch the confounded little beasts!" yelled the cook, as, followed closely by his assistant, he pursued the monkeys. The sailors joined in the chase, but the monkeys, in the meantime, had swarmed up the rigging and masts, where, in full view of the sailors, they devoured every morsel of the precious Thanksgiving dinner. And in a most tantalizing manner they mocked the sailors and scoffed at their threats.

It appears that in some way the door of the monkeys' cage had been left unlocked, and the cunning fellows had escaped. Making direct for the galley, they had stolen all the victuals in spite of the cook's protests. They were finally recaptured and returned to their cage, but the anger of the sailors abated not a whit, for there was ever present the thought of the splendid dinner which the monkeys, instead of themselves, had enjoyed.

Clara's Party in China

IT REALLY wasn't Clara's party in the sense that she herself gave it. As a matter of fact, she and her brother Harry had come to the sad conclusion that this year they would have no Thanksgiving dinner such as they used to eat in their own country, before they came to Hong Kong. Father and mother had been invited to dine with friends on this day, so the prospect looked very blue, indeed.

Wong Kee was the host at Clara's party—he and his brother, Kow. Wong had heard Clara telling how disappointed she was to miss a Thanksgiving celebration, and as Wong was as generous and as hospitable as a Chinese boy could be, soon the "honorable presences" of Clara and Harry were requested in Wong's dainty invitations bidding them come to a feast given especially in their honor.

Wong and Kow were the sons of a wealthy tea merchant, and Clara and her brother were very fond of the boys. So the invitation was gladly accepted. At noon on Thanksgiving Day Clara and Harry betook themselves to the residence of their hosts. They were greeted with much ceremony by Wong, while Kow set off a roll of firecrackers, which made a deafening noise.

Dinner was served on a large veranda. The American boy and girl were charmed to find the table set in Chinese fashion. A small basin, a spoon, a smaller basin, the size of an egg cup, and a pair of chopsticks were placed for each person. Large bowls contained all the food, which was cut into small pieces. Clara and Harry had all manner of fun trying to convey the food with their chopsticks from the large bowls to those at their own places. Finally Wong had compassion on them, when he saw his guests would likely go hungry if they depended on the efforts of their chopsticks, and he fetched some knives and forks.

Then they drank one another's health. The very small basins were filled with tea, instead of spirits. Following Wong's instructions, all but the host rose, and dipping their cups into a large basin containing hot tea, held them toward the host, grasping his hand in turn. The host, filling a similar cup, would exchange it a moment for that extended toward him. In this way he drank much more than any other of the party. After fruit was served the four chatted for a time, while the guests related some of the Thanksgiving customs of their own country.

At last Clara and Harry took their departure, Wong and Kow surprising them by singing after them in very good English the hymn: "God Be With You Till We Meet Again." This the Chinese boys had learned at the mission.

Father and mother were delighted to learn that the children had passed the day in such a pleasant manner, and they readily consented to have Clara and her brother invite Wong and Kow to a party, within the next few weeks.

WILLIE'S NEWFANGLED SLED LANDS PAPA IN A SNOWDRIFT

Tommy—This is a diagram of a new coasting scheme. It works just like a flying machine.

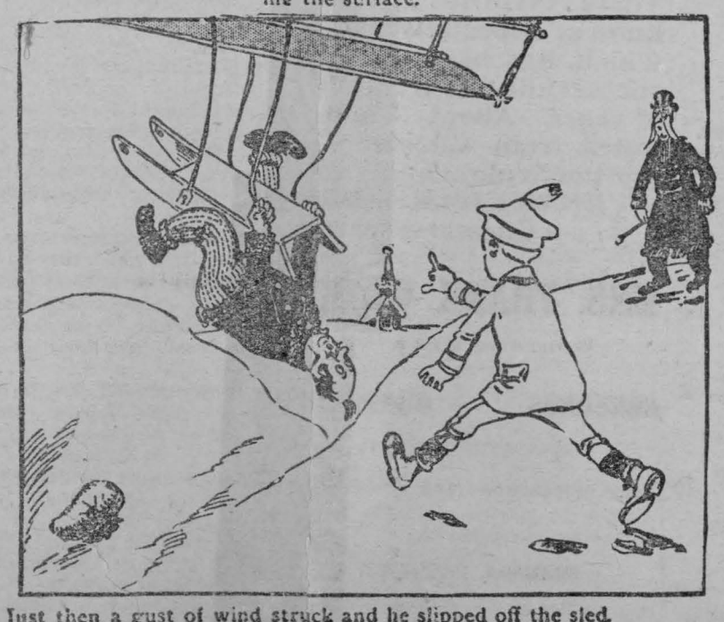

When I tried it, it sailed about a hundred yards without touching the surface.

Then Papa tried it. He started off fine—

But when it left the surface he got rattled.

Just then a gust of wind struck and he slipped off the sled.

He landed on his head in a big snowbank, and got real mad about it.

Yours WILLIE

REUMATIC LIVER OVER STRAINED KIDNEYS

Caused Sickness that Puzzled able Physicians, was Cured by Ferrozone—A Real Miracle.

"My doctor told me I had gouty or rheumatic liver and kidneys," writes G. O. Forde, from Halifax. "I guess he was right for I was a mighty sick man and felt the game was pretty nearly up. So many remedies failed that the doctor was completely puzzeled. As for symptoms—I had bushels of them in the morning a sort of nausea. Sometimes the bowels were constipated, at othertimes quite relaxed. I felt dull, and a sense of weight in the back and over the liver was very distressing."

Lost 15 Pounds in Weight.

"My color resembled a yellowish pallor, and gradually I lost weight to the alarming extent of fifteen pounds. I looked jaundiced and felt sure I would die.

"Then I read of the wonders worked by Ferrozone and in desperation I bought six boxes. At once I began to mend. Ferrozone must have put a peg or two into the nervous system for things at the end of the month began to look up. In three months I felt like new, but kept on taking Ferrozone. In six months I was cured."

Ferrozone Saved His Life.

"Were it not for Ferrozone I would't be alive to-day. I am sure it will cure any weakness, rheumatism, gout, debility, poor blood or nervousness. My condition embraced all these, and Ferrozone cured me." Reader, get Ferrozone to-day, 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers.

John A. Derbyshire Committed.

Brockville, Oat., Nov. 19.—Police Magistrate Deacon committed John A. Derbyshire to-day for trial at the spring assizes upon a charge of bribery in connection with the recent election contest.

W. S. Buell, his solicitor, pleaded that there was nothing in the evidence adduced at the preliminary hearing to warrant a committal, and asked that his client be discharged. The magistrate said that while he had seen stronger cases, he had also seen weaker, and that unless he misunderstood the meaning of the English language there was sufficient evidence to warrant him in committing Derbyshire for trial.

Derbyshire, who is a son of Senator Derbyshire, is accused of having offered a bribe to an old man named Etherington to cast his vote for the Hon. G. P. Graham. The prosecution offered two witnesses who were in hiding at Etherington's house when Derbyshire called. They both swear strongly to the charge.

This Combination Always Wins.

How often we hear of people who have had an aching joint or music for years No more speedy remedy can be adopted than to rub on Nerviline and then apply a Nerviline porous plaster. At once the muscles begin to resume their wonted vigor and flexibility. Inflammatory symptoms and pain disappear. Nerviline Plasters can be worn by the most delicate child or aged person. They are invaluable as thousands have proved. Used along with Nerviline they are guaranteed to permanently drive out any muscular ache, pain or stiffness. Widow Gets Money.

Brockville, Nov. 22.—Civil action which has been dragged through Canadian courts more or less during the past year and half was finally settled here yesterday when Judge McDonald granted probate of the will of the late Charles Cornwall, by which an estate of $80,000 goes to his young widow and second wife. Notice of discontinuance of the appeal was made by the Cornwall brothers of Alexandria Bay, N. Y., who unsuccessfully contested the will on the ground that the widow brought undue influence to bear on the testator, whom they also claimed was of unsound mind.

TORONTO JAIL-BREAKER VISITS BROCKVILLE.

Recognized by Old Chum and Admitted Identity—Police Failed to Effect His Arrest.

Alexander Rose, one ot the seven prisoners who escaped from Toronto jail on July 17th, paid a visit to Brockville Sunday and quietly slipped away again without being captured. News of the incident did not reach the police until Monday and they at once instituted an enquiry which placed beyond doubt the fact of the much wanted desperado being there.

Rose resided in Brockville twelve years ago, when his father was chief of police, and he is well known to his chums of that date. One of these happened to be strolling along King Street, the main thoroughfare, about 9 o'clock in the morning, when he was hailed by a stranger on the opposite side. He crossed over and to his surprise identified the man as Rose. He presented a very dirty appearance, dressed in an old Prince Albert coat and cowboy hat, both much the worse of wear. After exchanging greetings, Rose said he was going under the name of Jackson, and in his flight from justice thought he would drop in and see how things were moving in the old town, this being his second visit since he left. His friend was aware of his Toronto record and reminded him that he was close to police headquarters, one block away, in the Victoria Building. He was not aware of this, the police station being in the other end of the town, in the opera house building, when his father was the chief custodian of the peace. He asked when the station had been changed and followed it up with the remark that he had better make himself scarce. Before separating Rose told his acquaintance of his intention to skip across the river St Lawrence into the United States, where he would less likely be caught. He was given a few apples and then made off to be not recognized again so far as the police can learn. Every clue had been followed up in the hope of securing his arrest, but all of no avail. It is learned that two men sought lodging at a late hour Sunday night at the residence of a mail carrier near the Grand Trunk depot, but were refused. One of them is said to have answered the description of Rose, If report is true, the young desperado is fully armed and prepared to make a fight before being taken.

The police feel greatly chagrined at not getting a tip of his presence in Brockville, as his arrest could have been easily effected To the chief constable Rose is known personally, as he was sergeant when the Rose family resided there.

Morewood Farmers' Directory.

The farmers of the Morewood district assembled on Monday evening and under the direction of Mr. W. A. Munro, organized themselves into a Farmers' Club for the purpose of meeting monthly and discussing questions of agricultural interest, and for arriving at a more satisfactory means of co-operation in the various phases of their work; but the most interesting feature was the establishment of a Farmers' Directory.

The Directory is an indexed list of the various articles which the farmers of the locality have for sale. So soon as the farmer makes a sale he notifies the one in charge of the Directory, and the article is struck off the list.

Some difficulty arose over the method of readily indexing everything. Mr. Munro submitted three systems, viz: (1) A simple, plain, paged note book and separate index book, (2) a ledger with index attached and (3) a card index. When the simplicity, completeness and clean, up-to-date appearance of the card index system was fully understood, they unanimously decided upon its adoption.

Now it is possible for anyone wanting hay, or poultry or a horse or any other agricultural product to go to the Directory in Morewood, find out who has the article wanted, and go directly and make the purchase.

The farmers in Morewood are up-to-date in many particulars, but in this Directory they show themselves ahead and leading as enthusiastic people; for in no other place do we know of so complete a means of bringing producer and consumer together.

Object to Dam in River.

The question of the possible interference with navigation on the St. Lawrence was discussed before the Board of International Waterways Commissioners at their meeting at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto. The matter, which has been previously before the commission, arose in connection with the proposal of the Long Soult Development Company to put a dam in the river opposite Barnhardt's Island, near Cornwall, for the purpose of a power plant. On behalf of the Richelieu & Ontario Navigation Company the proposal was opposed by Mr. Leighton McCarthy, K.C., and it was also objected to by Mr. F. King, secretary of the Dominion Marine Association. The commission adiourned consideration of the matter until further plans could be laid before them. At their meeting the commissioners, of whom there was a full attendance, will again take up the question of the international boundary on Lake Erie.

Street Railway Settles with Victims of Accident.

Ottawa, November 17.—The case of Bryne vs. the Ottawa Electric Railway Company has been settled out of court. It was an action brought on behalf of Charlie and Alfred Thomas Bryne, two youths injured in the collision between two electric cars on the Britannia line on May 24th last. Both the boys were badly injured as a result of the accident, and each lost a leg, one just above the ankle, and the other at the knee. The plaintiff's sued to recover $15,000 damages, but agreed to a settlement on the company paying $9,000 damages without costs. Charlie Bryne receive- $3,500 and Alfred Thomas Bayne $4,880. Besides these amounts the company agrees to pay $395 to Mr. R. E. Bryns. father of the boys for their care since the accident, and also amounts for hospital and doctor bills and for artificial legs for the boys, which totals $9,000,

Local Option in Osgoode.

Metcalfe, Ont., Nov. 21.—As this is the third year since local option was carried in Osgoode, a few men interested in hotel prop erty have been circulating a petition asking for a repeal vote. The council received the petition in due form and then referred the legal aspect of the case to the township solicitor, Mr. Geo. McLaurin, of Ottawa.

The council met on the 18th inst., and among other matters this petition was considered. In Mr. McLaurin's opinion the matter of submitting a by-law was optional with the council. The council heard the pros and cons of the case respectively from the anti local optionists and local optionists there present. The petition was signed by 381 names; 25 per cent. of the last revised voters' list would be 371. A protest was made against about 35 of the names on the ground that these names were not on the voters' list, or if they were the names of manhood franchise voters merely.

After both parties had aired their views the whole matter chiefly on the ground that they believed if there were any change in the views of the electorate it was in favor of the present condition of affairs. Their option was to leave matters as they are.

TWENTY-FIVE WERE KILLED

Gas Explosion in Excavation in Brooklyn Causes Their Death.

A despatch from New York says: Twenty-five persons are believed to have lost their lives in an explosion of gas which tore up a great section of Gold street, Brooklyn, on Friday. It is definitely known that fifteen persons were buried under the hundreds of tons of earth and timber that were thrown into the air by the explosion, and ten more persons are missing. The explosion occurred in a fifty-foot deep excavation that had been made in Gold street between York and Front streets, where a water main was being laid. The gas main recently sprung a leak, and in a manner unknown a spark came in contact with the escaping gas. There was a terriffic explosion that lifted the surface of the street for half a block in both directions, and hurled dirt, paving stones and debris into the air.

When the smoke and dirt had been cleared away it was seen that the street had been opened from doorstep to doorstep over an area of nearly a block. The loosened earth and debris had fallen into the excavation, burying the score of laborers who were at work when the accident happened. Great tongues of flame shot out of the crevices in the street, and beside them geysers of water leaped into the air from a water main that had been shattered by the explosion. Two bodies were sticking out of the wreckage.

Gold street was crowded with school children, when the explosion occurred, and that scores of children were not killed or injured was remarkable. A woman and three children were almost opposite the excavation when the earth crumbled under their feet and they were swept down into the hole under tons of wreckage. Two other children were on the opposite side of the street when the sidewalk caved in and they lost their lives.

Samuel Trout, who lived near the scene, lost his life in attempting to save a woman who was passing through Gold street at the time of the explosion and fell into the trench. Trout was caught by the flames from the blazing gas main and roasted alive. The woman was dragged out of the trench and saved by a boy.

The dead are: Edward Finley, engineer; James Sweet, fireman, and Albert Conroy, brakeman, all of West Toronto. The only other person injured was Engineer Edward Dorricott, 365 Dovercourt road, Toronto, who received some nasty scalp wounds and a bruised back, but whose injuries are not serious.

BURGLAR KILLED.

Two Men Were Robbing Store at Rosthern, Sask.

A despatch from Rosthern, Sask., says: An attempt made on Monday morning to burglarize E. E. Ruttle's general store by two men resulted in the death of one of them. FRUIT FACTORY ABUSES.

Evaporating Plants Criticized by the Factory Inspectors.

A despatch from Toronto says: When the Ontario factory inspectors submit their report to Hon. James S. Duff, Minister of Agriculture, they will severely condemn the present methods employed in many of the apple evaporating factories in Ontario. Instances will be shown of these evaporators started in all manner of places — from barns to skating rinks—where there has been an absolute disregard for anything like sanitary conditions. There have been no water, towels, or conveniences of any kind, and, in some cases, the help have been obliged to walk on the apples. The reports will show that there has been a general improvement of the canning factories and evaporating factories in the Niagara Peninsula.

He was twenty-eight years of age, and a son of the late R. B. Moffatt of Amherst, N.S., who was for many years Clerk of the Commons Railway Committee. A despatch from Hamilton says: Violet Norton, the twelve-year-old daughter of Edward Norton, Flamboro' street, Dundas, was run over by a Hamilton & Dundas car in Dundas about 5 o'clock on Thursday evening and received injuries from which she died at her home about 10 o'clock the same night. Miss Norton was crossing the tracks near the canal when her foot caught in the frog. She tried to pull it out, but without success, and though she called for help, no person was near. Shortly after her foot was caught she heard the car approaching. She cried to try and attract the motorman's attention and threw her body to one side, but the spot was unlighted and he could not hear her cries over the noise made by the car. The first he knew of the accident was after the car wheels had passed over her leg. This was terribly crushed near the knee. She was taken home, where Dr. Ryckert was called. He first thought she would be brought to the city hospital for treatment, but she was too weak from loss of blood and shock, and rapidly declined.

Campbell, on the shoulder, and put him under arrest on a charge of grand larceny, alleged to have been committed at Columbia Falls, Montana. Campbell has been living quietly in South Vancouver for the past two years, his wife being with him. The couple had the reputation of being retiring in disposition and were well spoken of in the neighborhood. The crime Campbell is accused of committing was the theft of $10,000 from a lumber company of Columbia Falls, of which he was an official. During his residence in Vancouver Campbell is reported to have made considerable money in speculation, and he is said to have interested himself in a local manufacturing establishment, through the acquisition of stock in the business.

He was thrown out of a cab by the cabdriver and dragged behind his galloping horse. The tragedy occurred on St. James street near the Grand Trunk station. Fox was in the cab with one or two other men, when a quarrel arose, and it is said the cab driver took part in the row. Two young men who profess to be eye-witnesses say that the cabby had smashed the man on the face and knocked him apparently unconscious to the ground. After knocking the man down the cabby got into the sleigh, caught hold of the unconscious man by the foot, and drove off down the street east at a furious pace, dragging the man after him over the rough snow.

HE DIED OF STARVATION

Peterboro', Ont., Man Found Dead in a Cincinnati Hotel.

A despatch from Cincinnati, Ohio, says: Patrick J. Creedon, aged forty-five, an inventor, and a native of Peterboro', Ont., was found dead on Wednesday afternoon in his room at the Burnet House. Dr. Coe of the Coroner's staff stated he believed death to be due to natural causes, probably a hemorrhage brought on as a result of starvation. The man was last seen in the hotel lobby at noon on Monday. The failure of the porters to obtain a response to their knocks on his door necessitated the employment of the pass key and resulted in the finding of the man dead on his bed. He was partially dressed. Creedon came to Cincinnati on Wednesday, November 11th, to negotiate with Arthur Francis Hoover and Charles S. Burdsall the organization of a company to put on the market a bit that Creedon had patented, and also to employ his secret process of hardening steel in the manufacture of the bit. He had held a number of conferences with Burdsall and Hoover and negotiations had proceeded to the extent of obtaining the subscription of several thousand dollars to capitalize a $75,000 company. Papers found on the man by Dr. Coe indicate that he was married.

Love Kept Its Faith;

Or, The Girl With the Nut Brown Hair and Dreamy Eyes.

CHAPTER V.

When David beheld The Captain for the first time, his eyes widened with wonder, and jerking his father to a halt on the quayside, he inquired in his sharp, five-year-old voice whether "God had forgot de meat when he made dat man." Repeated by Jacob on the poop of the Joshua, the saying was passed from ship to ship, until by nightfall every salt in the harbor had pronounced it "fine," a certain reservation being made by Bill Ritson, who suggested that "Michael Strang, butcher-bill hed mair to dui wid it than any o't powers spiritchal."

Probably Bill was right, but the boy's description was none the less accurate. The Captain lived an almost fleshless life. Over his five feet seven of bony framework, Nature had spread a covering of sallow tissue and drawn it tight, so that all his curves were angles, projecting shinily; his limbs suggested spindles, and his cheeks rose squarely to a ridge. Over his head a sparse thatch of mouse-colored hair, his face barren of beard as that of a schoolboy, eyes dull grey and deeply sunk, lifeless eyes as those of one whose world was almost dead, and finally a pair of lips which, by the firmness of their setting, redeemed the face from hopeless weakness.

Contemplating the eccentricity of The Captain's appearance, his master's irony had crowned his head with a cheese-cutter cap, such as sailors affect, and set upon his back a pea-jacket with gold lace facings, dingy and dirty by reason of many years sea service, whilst a pair of blue serge trousers hung loosely upon him, the ends, frayed to a fringe, dangling distressfully an inch or two above the tops of his bulging boots.

Nature and Michael, having thus conspired against him, it is hardly surprising that The Captain should have been regarded as an old man long before he had parted with the years of youth, this compensation, however, being granted him, that after a certain period he never seemed to grow any older.

From the day whereon he admitted to his home the boy who was destined to such an uncouth development, Michael Strang never really satisfied himself that the act of adoption was one of mercy to be commended or a weak capitulation to be condemned; he might also have inquired how far greed entered into the bargain.

The incongruous association really arose out of the mysterious disappearance of one of Strang's brigs, an event which incidentally robbed six men of their lives and added a trifle of five hundred odd pounds to their employer's hoard. As a further consequence, it deprived the motherless Captain of his father also, and left him with the choice of the poorhouse and the streets, his years at the period being reckoned at ten; taking experience into account, five more might have been added.

Now, had The Captain been a nice boy a dozen doors would have been opened to him, but he was not nice, old-fashioned children seldom are, knowledge of life is woefully destructive of childish grace; and so the people who insisted on manners left him to the relieving officer, who chivied him over the town for a week, and finally ran him down aboard another of Strang's ships, whereon he had decided to commence his travels as a stowaway.

At this stage, just as the officer was endeavoring, by sundry cuffs and shakes, to convince the lad of the height of his ingratitude and the depth of his folly, and the latter, a pair of grimy kunckles screwed into his eyes, was protesting his objection to the poorhouse, "'cause it was the poorhouse." Strang dropped on board, and with much inward enjoyment surveyed the scene.

Into his reflections by-and-by there crept a recollection of the fact that his own domestic arrangements were not quite so perfect as he would have them, that the boy, since his mother's death, had lived alone, doing his own cooking and keeping the house passably clean, and finally that in a home of secrets such as his own, a masculine mind trained by himself would be much more trustable than feminine curiosity, which would not be curbed and indeed was only sharpened by efforts of restriction. These conclusions he proceeded to conceal by speech.

"Look here, my lad," he said, advancing to the group, "what would you like to do if you don't go to the poorhouse?"

The knuckles were withdrawn, and a pair of watery eyes looked into his with doubt, and then sank timorously.

"I want to be a sailor."

"Sailor, eh. And no doubt you'll want to be a skipper straight off?"

"Oh, I don't ken aboot that for a start, tho' I've been to t' to'gallant sticks and done a trick at the tiller."

"Ah, well, you're fully qualified, so just make your pick—how would the William suit you?"

His confidence restored, the lad returned the smiling cynic stare for stare, and naively drawled his reply.

"I'll bide a bit. I've neah fancy for being skipper of a coal collier; I'll wait for a clipper, same as have seen at Liverpool, and be a captain."

A roar of laughter burst from the grinning group, and Strang, with mock humility, touched his hat.

"That settles it," he declared. "Captain you shall be, and wear gold lace on your sleeves and strut the planks of your own quarter-deck. Meanwhile, we must take great care of you.

"Mr. Jenkinson,"—this to the poor law officer—"will you kindly allow The Captain to come with me. I've one or two spare rooms, and he can have one until his papers arrive. It would be a shame to allow such distinction to be blighted by the poor-house. Come along, Captain.

In this way, then, did the boy obtain his title, and thus did he become the protege of the man to whom he owed all his misery.

Under the moulding influence of Michael Strang's methods, he soon became what his master desired—and a little more. Had he been a dull boy, he would have been turned into the kitchen, doomed for life to drudgery, but from this his capacities of perception and adaptation preserved him. Playing the part of dominie, Strang himself gave the lad a smattering of education, just sufficient to carry him through the rocks and shoals of elementary book-keeping, and thereafter he passed his days and nights as a domestic below stairs and a clerk in Strang's den above, receiving by way of wages a shakedown in the garret, a diet even more skimpy and scrappy than that on which Strang himself managed to exist, a seafaring rig-out such as no self-respecting mariner would wear, constant reminders of the poorhouse fate from which a kindly heart had saved him, certain dark hints of wrong-doing on The Captain's father, with threats of revelation if The Captain failed in his duty to his patron, and finally a liberal measure of cuffs and blows judiciously exchanged as the lad grew older and taller for snarling criticism and blustering oath.

As the years gathered about him and hope on reluctant pinions winged its flight, The Captain passed into a condition of sheer indifference to life where it touched himself, blows lost their power of hurting, irony by use wore away its teeth. And yet, just as in no life is there absolute emptiness, stagnation, so he found on interest which grew and waxed stronger with time. Imprisoned, as it were, in Michael Strang's desolate house, with none but Strang himself to break the deadness of its monotony, he turned to his gaoler for relief and without intent or design, made his master's dark methods, his strange manners, the complexities of his character, the object of his closest study, and focussed upon them all the intellect that oppression had left him.

Down at the harbor the men who sailed the trackless paths of the sea boasted their knowledge of Michael Strang, but the mariners were wrong; in his hours of introspective self pity and excuse Strang drew mental pictures of himself, and as nearly always happens in such exercises he rarely even touched the border line of fact; in all Allerdale none but The Captain saw the real Michael Strang, none but The Captain knew him.

Stolid as the Sphinx, unresponsive as an instrument with broken strings, his attitude in the hour of discovery was that of absolute indifference; playing the spy, he could listen to the impassioned pleading of a skipper for repairs to a sieve-like ship, the anguished petition of a widow for help, the villainous plotting between knavish master and timid tool, and make no show of emotion; but the hateful scene in the graveyard battered down all his armoury of self-control, and cast him back into his shakedown where, through the hours that remained to the night, he lay with staring eyes and trembling limbs, his heart beating wildly, clammy beads upon his brow.

Not until the dawn did strength come back to him. Then, as the first silvery rays fell through the skylight, the terror left his heart; he sat up and muttered:

"I'll tell you what it is, Captain; this won't do. You'd better co your deadlights for a bit; you seeing more'an's good for you. you see much more you'll be lett hatred into your heart, and—th —you'll lose your appetite. Oh, b he's an angel. I'm proud that lets me clean his house and do books and eat his bread; I'm fit for the honor of it."

Five minutes of profound thou and The Captain rose with scrup lous precaution against noise, a having dressed himself, crossed floor to the grate, thrust his ha up the chimney, and extracted from a recess therein a much thumbed memorandum book.

"Seems to me," he dryly remarked, as he applied his tongue to a lead pencil, and prepared to write, "that I'm a sort o' recordin' angel; but it's a weary book o' remembrance I've got—not a bit o' humanity in it from back to back.

"Now then," beginning to write—

"'I swear to roll him in the mud, to tear his mantle of righteousness rag for rag, thread from thread, to make him even as men say I am.'

"That's it—got it all right, Captain.

"Grr—you rat!

"'In the mud'—The Captain heard you!

"'Rag for rag'—The Captain heard that, too!

"'Thread from thread'—I was down behind Peggy Barker's stone.

"'Even as I am.' Ho, ho! The Captain's got it all posted in his day book, and he won't forget!

"Now, what have I got to do about wee Davie Graham? By right, the laddie ought to be saved, and yet I'd like to prove him. I've not much fancy for helping folks that ar'n't worth it. I remember cald Simon Small said at t' camp meeting that God sometimes saved men against their will, but I wouldn't if I was Him. If David Graham doesn't show that he deserves saving, I [illegible] know but what he'd bett[illegible]d to go his own way—that's only fair. If a man gets [illegible]s heart on, he's n[illegible] about the price.

"No; I'll [illegible]bide a bit, and some[illegible]raham's a good lad—well, [illegible]t it all down. Ay, all o[illegible]ag from rag'—every word."

CHAPTER VI.

Through all his lonely days, when the world seemed so empty, the mothers shook their heads at thought of David, "the wee bit laddie, widoot a mother to love him or a fadder to watch his ways," and because of him, gathered their own chicks in a warmer embrace, and passionately prayed that unto themselves days and years might be added. And yet, from Haverigg Point, where the canniest of all the lands rises from the sea, to the flats of Skinburness, where the Solway gets lost amid the marsh and moss, from Allerdale's tower-capped How, to the Raise whence King Dunmails' tomb looks steeply down on Thirlmere's ebony and Grasmere's blue, no other lad might be found to whom more faithful service was rendered.

Even by way of the fields, three solid miles, with a bit to spare, miles of up hill and down dale country, lay between David's home at the back of the Yarrel woods and the Knowe, at Routendale, whereon Cap'n Dan's cot was perched; but the little skipper had been round the world and round again, so that distance was disdained. Early rising, too, he counted not a virtue so much as a delight; and all the year round he had "broken the back of the day" before the world had begun to yawn, his stumpy legs landing him every morning at David's door in time for him to see David make a start upon his breakfast.

Thereafter Dan would read ont of old Jacob's chapters, and approach as near as he could manage it to one of Jacob's prayers, and when David had been piloted to the road on his way to school, and watched until he reached the bend, Dan would betake himself to the harbor, where David's galleons lay, or to the office, where those awful books demanded attention, and hour after hour would he devote to work, of which at the close of the day he insisted on rendering full account to the boy.

"You think you ought to tell me all this, Cap'n Dan," the boy gravely asked, when the plan was applied for the first time.

"Surely, Davie, surely. They're your ships, you know, an' a man ought to ken all about his own."

"But I'm not a man."

"No, but you may be some day; one can never tell what'll happen."

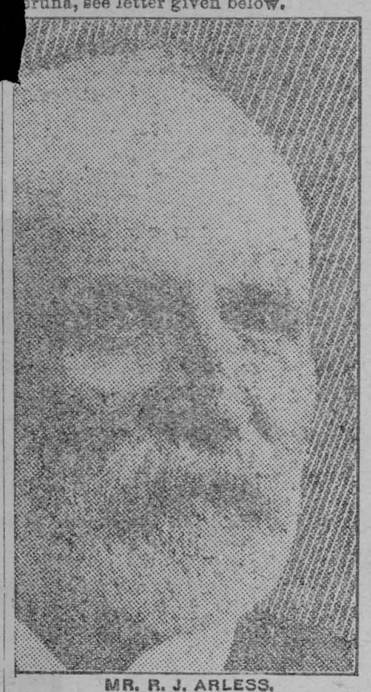

"Well, but, Cap'n Dan, I don't understand the things you've got to tell me hardly a bit."

"No-o—but that's all the more reason for listenin', Davie," seesawing the air with his pipe. "Always lay yourself out for the things you don't understand and haven's much fancy for. That's the course I steer by in all sorts of weather—when I go to chapel, for example. When parson gets on about tellin' the truth, and sayin' your prayers, and backbitin'. an' mindin' your own business, an' all such comaday, go-day things, I lays by quite still an' has a nice easy time, only half listenin' like for bless you, I ken all about them as well as parson himself. But when I find him laying himself out for regeneration, or sanctification, or justifi[illegible] any other such sciences, I braces myself for a long beat up against the wind It's not much I get out of it all. Sometimes it's only a word that sticks, noo and again it's a thought, but I'll not be a bit surprised if I find them all come in handy when I slip my cable on the long trip. So just sit down on that coppy, lad, an' I'll show you what freights I've arranged for t' Joshua and how much you're likely to get out of the business."

NASAL CATARRH PRODUCES DEAFNESS RELIEF IN PE-RU-NA

Mr. R. J. Arless, 401 City Hall Ave., Montreal, Quebec, is an old gentleman of wide acquaintance, having served forty-eight years in the General Post-office of Montreal, a record which speaks for itself. Concerning his use of Peruna, see letter given below.

MR. R. J. ARLESS.

"I have been afflicted with nasal catarrh to such a degree that it affected my hearing.

"This was contracted some twenty years ago by being exposed to draughts and sudden changes of temperature.

"I have been under the treatment of specialists and have used many drugs recommended as specifics for catarrh in the head and throat—all to no purpose.

"About three years ago I was induced by a confrere in office to try Peruna.

"After some hesitation, as I had doubts as to results after so many failures, I gave Peruna a trial, and am happy to state that after using eight or ten bottles of Peruna I am much improved in hearing, and in breathing through the nostrils."

"STORY OF THE GUIDES"

Quelling a Native Rebellion in India.

No Body of British Troops Have Done Better Work Than "The Guides."

It is exactly fifty years ago since peace and order were restored in India after the great Mutiny, and in the thrilling story of how the revolt of 100,000 native troops was crushed by some 40,000 European soldiers under Lawrence and Campbell, the name of "The Guides" looms large. The latter were a corps formed in 1846 by Sir Henry Lawrence, who, at a time when soldiers fought, marched, and lived in tight scarlet tunics, high stocks, trousers tightly strapped over Wellington boots, and shakos which would now be looked upon as almost certain death, decided to raise a troop of comfortably and suitably clad soldiers—trustworthy men who could at a moment's notice, act as guides in the field, collect intelligence, and, in addition, give and take hard blows.

Martinets of the old school gravely shook their heads and trembled for the disciple of men without stocks and overalls says Colonel G. J. Younghusband, C.B., in his "Story of the Guides." But, without exaggeration, it may be said that no body of British troops have, in the history of the Empire, displayed greater courage and more ready obedience at all times than "The Guides," in spite of the fact that they were recruited from a great number of different tribes. Their first commander was (Sir Harry Lumsden), a scion of a fine old soldier stock in Aberdeenshire, who was idolized by his men. This devotion is well illustrated by the following incident. One day Sir John Lawrence said something to annoy Lumsden, and this became evident to the faithful fellows who were ready to rush into any danger at his order. In the evening an orderly came to Lumsden secretly, and said:—

"It is only this, sahib; I and my comrades noticed that the Lord Sahib spoke to-day words that were not pleasing to your Excellency, and that you were angry and displeased when you heard them. So we have consulted together as to how best we may serve the proper end; for it is not right and proper that we should allow our colonel sahib to be harshly spoken to by anyone. There is, therefore, this alternative: the Lord Sahib has arranged to leave by the straight road to-morrow morning for Peshawar but with your honor's kind permission and by the grace of God there is no reason whatever why he should ever reach it!"

One of the most famous feats accomplished by the corps was their march to Delhi during the Indian Mutiny, at a time when their arrival exercised a moral effect on the force they came to assist. In the hottest season of the year and through the hottest region on earth they (marched 580 miles) in just over twenty-one days—an average of twenty-seven miles a day—and when they were asked, at the end of their tremendous march, how soon they would be ready to go into action, the reply was: "In half an hour." Such was the fighting spirit of "The Guides" but ten years after they had been formed.

Perhaps the most striking exploit of "The Guides" described in Colonel Younghusband's book is the story of how a handful of "Guides" captured the formidable fortress of Gorindgar, together with seventy guns and a regiment of infantry, with little or no loss to themselves.

"A native commissioned officer, with a party of the Guides, appeared before the gates, bringing, as it seemed, three prisoners. On the ground that the prisoners were desperate ruffians, with a price on their heads, he gained admittance, asking that they might be shut up in the guard-house during the night. Though at first he met with some suspicion he contrived to gain the trust of the Governor. Leaving a couple of men to assist in guarding the prisoners he remained with his force outside. But during the night these two men overpowered the sentries, set free the three imprisoned men, and with their assistance opened the gates to the Guides, who gained a firm footing in the fort before the garrison knew what was happening."

It was "The Guides" who furnished an escort of some seventy men to Cavagnari's mission to Kabul in 1879, and were massacred to a man. In the fourth sortie from the Residency the last Englishman was killed. Knowing this to be the case the enemy called on the remainder of "The Guides" to surrender, promising them their lives.

"Left in command was Jemadar Jewand Singh, a splendid Sikh officer of the Guides Cavalry, and not one whit behind his British officer in brave resolve. He deigned no word of answer to the howling crowd without, but to the few brave survivors within, perhaps a dozen or so, he said: 'The sahibs gave us this duty to perform, to defend this Residency to the last. Shall we then disgrace the cloth we wear by disobeying their orders now they are dead? Shall we hand over the property of the Sirkar, and the dead bodies of our officers, to these sons of perdition? I for one prefer to die fighting for duty and the fame of the Guides, and they that will do likewise follow me.'"

About the Farm

PASTEURIZE THE WHEY.

Pasteurization of whey at cheese factories, by injecting into it steam from the boiler, utilizing the exhaust steam in this way for the sake of economy, is a practice that has been rather extensively tried throughout Western Ontario this past season with excellent results, so far as we have learned, in every case. The cost is not great, depending somewhat upon the facilities, especially the size of the boiler, but in a reasonably large, well-equipped factory it need not exceed 50 cents per ton of cheese.

The advantages of pasteurization are that it keeps the whey sweet, and the whey tanks in much more cleanly and sanitary condition. The cans are more easily washed, there being less grease adhering to them, while they are less affected by the smaller percentage of acid in the whey, and consequently last longer. The pasteurization of the whey inhibits the growth and development of the yeasts which cause bitter, yeasty or goosy flavor, preventing them from spreading from one patron to another through the milk cans in which the whey is returned. In this respect, pasteurization of whey has proven a great blessing to not a few factories.

The feeding value of the whey is improved in two ways: by checking the development of acid (souring), it makes the whey more wholesome for young pigs and calves. It is found, also, that while ordinarily the fat in the whey rises and floats on the surface of the tank, so that the ordinary canful pumped up contains very little fat, while the last man gets a dose of putrid grease, when the whey is pasteurized the fat is kept in suspension, fairly uniformly distributed, so that each patron receives a fair share of the fat, and in good condition.

From a fair consideration of the facts of the case, as well as the correspondence from satisfied patrons published in these columns, the conclusions is irresistible that pasteurization of whey is a practice worthy of general adoption.—Farmer's Advocate.

THE COW AND DISEASE.

The transmission of typho[illegible] er through milk is purely a[illegible] of human origin. Not only [illegible] cow not suffer from typhoid, even though she drinks the germs in infected water or sewage, it has been established that it is quite impossible for the germs to pass through the body and appear in the milk. Every known instance of the transmission of typhoid through milk has been directly traced to its handling by the dairymen or employee who was suffering from the disease or who had cases of it in his family, or from exposure to flies which had access to the germs in the near neighborhood, or from the washing of cans and milk utensils in water from an infected well or stream. The situation as to scarlet fever is identical. The milk as drawn from the cow is free from the germs of these diseases, as also of diphtheria. Health boards now keep a watchful eye on the occurrence of cases of typhoid, scarlet fever or diphtheria in the families of dairymen. Thus the danger of direct communication of infectious diseases is one that is being rapidly gotten under control. The great remaining problem is how to abolish ninety per cent. of the dangers by keeping plain ordinary dirt out of the milk, thus increasing its wholesomeness, and preventing the long list of enerte and other diseases, which cause so many fatalities, especially among children.

The demeanor of the winner on such occasions would have made a Master in Lunacy look grave. The happy young fellow would jump into the air, yelling and pirouetting, brandishing a sword, and at frequent intervals letting off a gun, while most of his friends did likewise."—London Tit-Bits.

Break In Canal Almost Repaired.

The work of repairing the gap in the Cornwall Canal bank above lock 18, which was carried away on June 23, wreck O. and N. Y. swing bridge, is about completed. At least the gap has been filled by a solid concrete wall, 260 feet long, 20 feet wide at the bottom, three feet wide at the top, and 39 feet from top to bottom. This wall is being reinforced on the outside by a bank of earth and stones, which will be between 30 and 40 feet wide at the top. The stone used to weigh down the coffer dam built around the break under the superintendency of Mr. J. L. Weller, of St. Catharine, immediately after the accident, will be deposited outside the concrete wall. Into this wall a concrete pier 23 feet in diameter and rising 24 [illegible] above the canal, has been built for [illegible] and N. Y. swing bridge, which [illegible]e in a couple of months.

The Late Richard Gibbons.

One of the best known and most widely respected respected residents of Dundas county passed away at 4 a. m. on Nov. 14th, 1908, at his home, lot 22, con. 3, Matilda, in the person of Richard Gibbons, from a complication of troubles after a prolonged illness. Mr. Gibbons was born on the old homestead, con. 5, Matilda, near Dundela, Dec, 15, 1838. He was united in marriage to Eilen Moore on Sept. 4, 1860, who, with a large grown up family, survives. The children are: Alfred, of Chicago, Ill.; Thomas of Iroquois; Mrs. W. F. McDonald Lethbridge, Alta.; Mrs. T. Flynn, Chesterville; Mrs. J. MaGinn, Dixon's Corners; Mrs. A. W. Robertson, Montreal; Mrs. V. W. Merchant, Sydney, C. B.: Vincent R., Gertrude, and Maurice, of Lethbridge, Alta., and Harold and Edward, at home. Besides whom he leaves one brother, John J., of Chicago, and a sister, Mrs. McDonald, of Cleveland, O. In 1904 the family were all home and a re-union was held on the anniversary of their wedding- During his last illness he had nearly all his family around him. Those from a distance who were home were Altred, Mrs. Robertson, Mrs. Merchant and Mrs. Flynn. In politics Mr. Gibbons was a Liberal, and in religion a Roman Catholic. The funeral mass was conducted at Dixon's corners R. C. church on Monday, Nov. 16th, by Rev. Father O'Farrel, in the presence of a large concourse of sympythizing friends of the family. Interment was made in Cardinal cemetery. The late Mr. Gibbons was a broadminded, public spirited man, whose judgement was velued, and who filled a large place in the affairs of his native county of Dundas. He was trustee for the Irena school for about thirty years; was salesman of the cheese and butter factory since 1884; was in turn Director and President of Matilda Agricultural Society ever since it was organized, and for the past two years Secretary of the Iroquois Cheese Board. He was likewise a member of the A. O. U. W., many of the members of which order paid a last tribute of respect to the deceased brother Monday afternoon. Thus lived and died a useful, honorable, upright citizen, a warm friend and neighbor, a good husband and father, whose memory will live not only in the hearts of his family, but in the hearts of the many who came in contact with his beneficient influence. The News joins in extending to the bereaved widow and family the sympathy of the entire community in their irreparable loss.—Iroquois News.

Newington Drops Out of Stormont League.

Newington threw a bombshell into the camp of the Stormont Hockey League on Wednesday night of last week, when its delegate, Mr. Van Allen, after voting for the election of president announced that the Newington club would withdraw and play this season in the Northern League with Avonmore, Moose Creek, Berwick, Finch and Crysler. This left the Stormont League with four clubs, Mille Roches, Cornwall Seniors, Sons of England and Rough Riders, of Cornwall. It was decided to invite Lancaster to join the League as the latter has a good team and is very conveniently situated.

The following officers were elected:—
President—E. C. Markell, Sons of England.
First Vice-President—F. Degan, Rough Riders.
Second Vice-President—E. Raymond, Mille Roches.
Secretary-Treasurer—Ted Kennedy, Juniors.
Committee—Geo. Eastwood, Sons of England; Jack Hunter, Juniors, T. Blanchard, Rough Riders; and W. Grant, Mille Roches.

Launch Took Fire With Seven Aboard.

Out on the broad expanse of the St. Lawrence with a launch in flames was the experience of seven residents of Alexandria Bay while returning from a wedding at Gananoque Friday night. The launch was cutting off her usual twelve miles per hour, and the occupants of the boat were discussing the smooth working of the engine, when the flooring became a mass of flames. Overcoats and blankets were brought into use in an attempt to smother the fire, but this was of no avail, and, seeing that the launch was doomed, the occupants had to take Mr. Dinman's boat, which, fortunately had been keeping alongside during the entire run. It was a motor skiff, and, had the water not been calm, a catastrophe would have resulted before they were landed at Rockport. In the party were Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Kavanaugh, Capt. Robt. Dinman, Mrs. Dinman, Charles Bright, Frank Moore and Mrs. Charles Kavanaugh.

Drug Store Robbed.

While Mr. W. G. Bolster was at choir practice last evening, some person entered his store by the back entrance and relieved the cash register of about forty dollars. Herbert Forward, while passiug, saw someone come out of the back entrance and run away and he followed only to lose track, and he reported the affair to Mr. Bolster at the church. It occurred between 9.30 and 10 o'clock, and we must certainly believe it to be some person who is no stranger to the surroundings.

The Reddick Mine Booming.

The following is an item that appeared in the Montreal Gazette on Monday, and which will be of interest to the public of this locality, as a number are interested financially

"An official statement has gone out announcing that an offer of $2,000,000 has been made for the Dr. Reddick gold mine at Larder Lake, but that the men having control of the property will not consider any offer of less than $5,000,000 which is at the rate of $2.50 a share. The following brief history of this property will be of interest to the five hundred and seven shareholders: The seven claims of the 218 acres of the Reddick Mining Co. were located in 1906 by Dr. Reddick and his associates, Flynn, Knott & Hummell, and after doing the assessment work required by the Ontario Government sold on the 7th of February, 1907, the seven claims to Mr. Bannel Sawyer and others in Montreal and Ottawa. Lt. Col. S. Maynard Rogers was the first managing director and Mr. Ed. Chamney the first engineer in charge, and many thousands of dollars have since been expended in developement. The Ontario Government have also spent $40,000 in building a fine road to the property and adjacent holdings. At first a small three stamp mill was installed, increased to ten stamps later on, while by the first of the year twenty stamps will be in operation, putting through 150 tons of ore daily. Mr. Jacob M. Eggart, M. E., has lately been appointed chief assayer, and two experienced amalgamators have been added to the staff, while the working force is at present about thirty men. Mr. W. Morley Oglivie, M E, is now in charge of the Reddick."

Reddicks No. 3 shaft is located twenty feet from the Chesterville Larder Lake Gold Mining Co's line. This day we were shown a sample of ore from No. 3 shaft by Mr. J. T. Kearns, which is covered with visible gold to the naked eye. If you have an opportunity it will do your eyes good to see it.

HUSBAND AND WIFE

Both Restored to Health by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"Both myself and my wife can truthfully say that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been of great benefit to us, and we are constantly recommending them to our friends." Thus writes Mr. Ernest L. Archibald, Truro N. S., who further says:— "In my own case I had been subject to dizzy headaches for over a year, and three boxes of the Pills completely cured me of the trouble. About a year ago my wife began to complain. She seemed to be completely run down; was very pale and weak; she could not walk up stairs without stopping on the way to get breath, and ultimately she grew so weak she could not sweep a floor without resting. She tried several tonics but received no benefit. Then I persuaded her to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and got her a half dozen boxes. After she had used a couple of boxes her appetite began to improve and the color to return to her face. She continued using the Pills until she had taken the six boxes, and today she is perfectly well, feels stronger and looks better than she has done for some years. While she was taking the Pills she gained twelve pounds in weight."

Dr. Williams' Pills cure troubles like these because they are rooted in the blood. Bad blood is the cause of all common diseases like anaemia, rheumatism, indigestion, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance, general weakness, and those ailments that only women folks know, with their attendant headaches and backaches and irregularities. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a sure cure when given a fair trial, because they enrich the blood and thus reach the root of disease. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

KEEP BABY WELL.

No matter whether baby is sick or well Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in the house. They not only cure the minor disorders of childhood, but prevent them and should be given whenever the little ones show the slightest signs of illness. Children take the Tablets as readily as candy, and they are absolutely safe. Mrs. Geo. "Well, I'll see," said the postmaster.

Where Mahomet's Tomb is Now Lighted with Electricity.

The Hedjaz Railway is a remarkable undertaking. Not only does it link Damascus with Medina, the city that in the eyes of Mahomedans is second only in sanctity to Mecca itself, but it has been regarded from its inception as a sacred work, says the London Illustrated News.

It is perhaps the only Turkish enterprise in which bribery and corruption have not had place, for those concerned in it, from the highest to the lowest, dared give nothing but their best to an enterprise so closely associated with their religion. The line, moreover, was built with the money subscribed by Mahomedans the world over.

It is likely that the line will be continued to Mecca, and in his speech at the inauguration Mukhtar Bey promised that he would use every endeavor to secure the end. The actual opening ceremony was performed by the Grand Mufti of Damascus, and some interesting speeches followed.

In the course of his remarks Ali Kiamil said: "We are to-day celebrating three great events—the pilgrimage to Medina, the opening of the sacred railway, and the first constitutional anniversary of the Khalif of Islam. The Prophet did not permit the railway to reach the Holy City before the Khalif had granted a constitution to his people."

It was after the line had been inaugurated that the special mission visited the electric plant which has been installed to supply electric light to the mosque that contains the tomb of the Prophet. Later in the day the events of the hour were celebrated still further in that most modern method, by the letting off of fireworks and by illumination.

Medina, like Mecca, is forbidden to all but Mahomedans, but the barrier has been broken on two or three occasions. The railway is by no means the only modern thing that has reached the sacred city. Electricity too has come to it, as already noted. In the mosque in which the tomb of Mahomet has its place the lights are hidden in many strange shade, including some of ostrich eggs and others of Venetian and Bohemian glass.

COLD BROUGHT ON KIDNEY [illegible]

BRANTFOR[illegible] TILL [illegible]

Mrs. A. H. Thomson [illegible]rt Disease, Lumbago and Rheumatism, and Tells How She was Restored to Health.

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 12 — (Special)—How Colds, La Grippe and other minor ills settle on the Kidneys and develop Rheumatism, Heart Disease, Bright's Disease and other terribly dangerous ailments; and how any and all of them are cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills is fully shown in the case of Mrs. A. H. Thomson, whose home is at 48 Albion Street, this city.

Mrs. Thomson was, some years ago, taken with Cold and La Grippe and Straining, which affected her Kidneys, and the result was Backache, Lumbago, Rheumatism and Heart Disease, which caused both her and her friends grave anxiety.

She had suffered some years when she heard of cures effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and bought a box, which she used with such splendid results that she continued to take them till she was cured. Since then she has used Dodd's Kidney Pills in her own family and recommended them widely to her friends, all of whom have warm words of praise for the Sandard Canadian remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Heart Disease, Rheumatism, Lumbago and Bright's Disease are all Kidney Diseases or are caused by diseased Kidneys. You can't have any of them if you keep your Kidneys sound. Sound Kidneys strain all the impurities out of the blood.

SCORED OFF TOMMY.

A young Irish lad on a mar[illegible] day in an Irish town was mindin[illegible] an ass attached to a cart awaiting the exit of his parent from a business establishment.

His arm was thrown around the neck of the animal when two recruiting sergeants passed by. One of them seeking to make fun of the youth, said: "What are you hugging your brother so tightly for?"

"'Cause," was the ready rejoinder, "I was afraid he'd 'list."

A REST CURE.

In giving due credit to the wonderful remedial Springs of Europe we are apt to lose sight of the value of the ones nearer home. About one thousand springs of various medicinal virtues exist in America. Of one of them Hare's System of Therapeutics (1891), page 523, thus speaks: "A number of Saline Springs exist in America and Europe, very strong water of this kind being the St. Catharines Well in Canada, which contains about 275 grains sodium chloride to the pint, as well as 135 grains calcium chloride. Its prototype in Europe is the celebrated Kreutzach Springs in Prussia, which contains about 110 grains sodium chloride (Kurbrunnen)." Other references are Encyclopaedia, The Allbutts System of Medicine, etc. The Grand Trunk Railway System's trains run direct to St. Catharines and further information can be obtained from their representatives. "I am proud to say that my grandfather made his mark in the world," observed the conceited youth. "Well, I suppose he wasn't the only man in those days who couldn't write his name," replied his bored companion.

The native purity and delicious flavor of "Salada" Tea are preserved by the use of sealed lead packets. Never sold in bulk. It is richer, more fragrant and stronger than other teas.

TOUCHING.

"The touch of a friend," remarks a contemporary, "may hurt more than the cut of an enemy."

"No doubt about it. Especially if the friend forgets the amount he touches you for."

"My dear," remarked a gentleman, opening the dining-room door, "the girl has left the vegetables on the hall table." "Don't be so stupid," exclaimed his wife "That is my new hat"

BUYING A HAREM.

Morocco's New Sultan Negotiating With His Brother.

A droll report has reached Casa Blanca from Fez, says the correspondent of The London Daily Telegraph, stating that Mulai Hafid has manifested a desire to enter into possession of the harem of Abdul Aziz. It should be noted that in Moslem States the harem is regarded as a mark of sovereignty rather than as the private and personal property of the Sultan.

Still more comical, however, is the assertion of persons who enjoy the intimate friendship of Abdul Aziz—namely, that the ex-Sultan is quite disposed to fall in with the wishes of his brother. It must not for a moment be supposed that, in his complaint attitude, Abdul Aziz wishes to please Mulai Hafid; he would be willing to make the concession for financial rather than for friendly reasons. For it must be confessed, with the modest resources now at his disposal, Abdul Aziz finds it a very difficult matter to maintain the large number of women who form the Sultanic harem.

He has indeed, already been thinking of selling a large number of the fair creatures—Circassians who were sold to him by a French Jew of Tangier, who enjoyed the title of Provider by Sheerefian Warrant to the Imperial Harem. These Circassians are women of great beauty and immense value, because Abdul Aziz was a better connoisseur of that class of "merchandise" than he was of pianos and motor cars.

It Mulai Hafid should desire to possess the imperial harem, Abdul Aziz it is understood, would gladly hand it over to him, the transaction being, of course, conducted on a cash basis, and it is even slated that a bargain is now being struck.

At the present moment more than two hundred women are lodged in a house at Casa Blanca belonging to the Government, where also the imperial master resides. They [illegible]th the exception of favorites of Abdul [illegible]ed off to Fez in the negotiations being successfully concluded.

The efficacy of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup in curing coughs and colds and arresting inflammation of the lungs, can be established by hundreds of testimonials from all sorts and conditions of men. It is a standard remedy in these ailments and all affections of the throat and lungs. It is highly recommended by medicine vendors, because they know and appreciate its value as a curative. Try it.

A Nagging Cough drives sleep and comfort away. You can conquer it with Allen's Lung Balsam, which relieves hard breathing, pain in the chest and irritation of the throat. Give it freely to the children.

A man got into a train with a bag of fruit in his hand, and at the first station he called out to a porter: "I say, porter, do you like fruit?" Porter—"Rather!" "Then" said the man, "chew the date off my ticket."

A Successful Medicine.—Everyone wishes to be successful in any undertaking in which he may engage. It is therefore, extremely gratifying to the proprietors of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills to know that their efforts to compound a medicine which would prove a blessing to mankind have been successful beyond their expectations. The endorsation of these Pills by the public is a guarantee that a pill has been produced which will fulfil everything claimed for it.

Daughter—"I love him. He is the light of my life." Father—"Well—that's all right; but I object to having my house lit up by him after midnight."

There is No Such Thing as a harmless cough. The trouble goes from bad to worse unless checked. Allen's Lung Balsam cures the worst of colds. It allays inflammation and clears the air passages.

WHY THE NEIGHBORS SMILE.

Little Willie was a perfect "dear"; at least, so thought his mother till recently. She missed the youngester one day for some time, and when he reappeared she asked:

"Where have you been, my pet?"

"Playing postman," replied the pet. "I gave a letter to all the houses in our road. Real letters, too."

"Where on earth did you get them?" questioned his mother, in amusement.

"They were those old ones in your wardrobe drawer, tied with ribbon," was the innocent reply.

Willie now wants to know what he was spanked for.

ENGLAND ON THE WATER WAGON.

Charles Roberts, M. P., in his book on "The Time Limit and Local Option" brings out the fact, revealed by the Home Office returns, that of the 12,995 civil parishes in rural districts in England and Wales there are 3,903 (more than 30 per cent.) in which there is no license. In the county of Lincolnshire 45 per cent. are no license parishes.

Magistrate and School Commissioner Healed by Zam-Buk.

Zam-Buk by its healing power has earned the praise of men and women in the highest stations of life. One of the latest prominent gentlemen to speak highly in Zam-Buk's favor is Mr. C. E. Sanford, of Weston, King's Co., N.S. Mr. Weston is a Justice of the Peace for the county, and a member of the Board of School Commissioners. He is also deacon of the Baptist Church in Berwick. Indeed, throughout the county it would be difficult to find a man more widely known and more highly respected. He says: "I had a patch of eczema on my ankle, which had been there for over twenty years! Sometimes also the disease would break out on my shoulders. I had taken solution of arsenic, had applied various ointments, and tried all sorts of things to obtain a cure, but in vain. Zam-Buk, unlike all else I tried, proved highly satisfactory, and cured the ailment. I have also used Zam-Buk for itching piles, and it has cured them completely. I take comfort in helping my brother man, and if the publication of my experience of Zam-Buk will lead other sufferers to try it, I should be glad. For the cure of piles or skin diseases, I know of nothing to equal Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk also cures burns, cuts, ulcers, blood poisoning, ringworm, scalp sores, chapped hands, cold sores, and all skin injuries and diseases. Rubbed well on to the chest in cases of cold it relieves the tightness and aching. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 3 boxes for $1.25.

Miss Woodby—"So Mr. Smart really said he considered me very witty—eh?" Miss Know—"Not exactly; he said he had to laugh every time he met you."

A Liniment for the Logger.—Loggers lead a life which exposes them to many perils. Wounds, cuts and bruises cannot be altogether avoided in preparing timber for the drive and in river work, where wet and cold combined are of daily experience, coughs and colds and muscular pains cannot but ensure. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, when applied to the injured or administered to the ailing, works wonders.

A Carefully Prepared Pill.—Much time and attention were expended in the experimenting with the ingredients that enter into the composition of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills before they were brought to the state in which they were first offered to the public. Whatever other pills may be, Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are the result of much expert study, and all persons suffering from dyspepsia or disordered liver and kidneys may confidently accept them as being what they are represented to be.

Twenty-five years ago it was difficult to sell spring wheat flour for pastry at any price.

People didn't want it—they were using soft, winter wheat flour, and saw no reason for changing.

But hard wheat flour was persistently pushed. The women tried it and succeeded with it,—to-day hard wheat flour is the favorite for Pastry as well as for Bread.

MERCHANT PRINCE OF CANADA PASSES AWAY.

Samuel Carsley, Prominent Departmental Store Proprietor, Succumbs to Accident.

Montreal, Nov. 20.—Samuel Carsley, one of the merchant princes of Canada and who was known all over the country as the head of one of one of the biggest departmental stores in the country, died at his residence in this city tonight. A few days ago Mr. Carsley, while out driving, was thrown from his sleigh. His injuries at the time were considered slight, but owing to his advanced years the shock to his system was severe, and after a few days' illness he passed away very unexpectedly tonight.

Mr. Carsley was one of the best known men in Montreal, and his name is a household word in the city. From small beginnings he had built up one of the most extensive businesses in the country, and had amassed great wealth.

Mr. Carsley was born in Shopshire, England, in 1835, and after engaging in mercantile pursuits in Liverpool, Manchester and London, he came to Canada in 1857. He first commenced business in Kingston in 1862, but removed to Montreal in 1871, where he began in the dry goods business in a small way. From that date the growth of the business has been phenomenal, and now the Carsley premises occupy a whole block on Notre Dame and St. James streets, in the very heart of the city. Mr. Carsley had lately been arranging for the removal of his business to an uptown location on St. Catharine street, but has not been spared to see the opening of the new premises. Mr. Carsley took a prominent part in the city's charitable and philianthropic work, and was connected with many leading institutions. He leaves a widow and seven children.

Mr. Geo. Linder of corner Mill and Park streets, Elmira, Ont., says: For about ten years I have been severely troubled with stomach trouble and indigestion so that I could not retain my foot after eating. I could not eat meat, or scarcely anything and had headaches and constipation. I secured a package of Mi-o-na with the result that now after having taken two boxes I am entirely cured and can eat anything, digest perfectly and am feeling fine. Mi-o-na also overcame my constipation, I am only too glad to publicly endorse and recommend Mi-o-na."

Burglar Shot Dead.

Rosthern, Sask., November 23.—One man killed is the sequel to an attempted burglary of E. E. Ruttle's general store early this morning. Ruttle has a burglar alarm in his store, connected with his home. When it rang, he, with a clerk, Edward Tadel, ran to the store. Ruttle took a position at the back door, and Tadel went to the front door and saw a man standing there. When asked what he was doing there, he said "Nothing," but when Tadel changed his position the better to see who it was, the man ran into the store to warn an accomplice. Tadel whistled for Ruttle, and the two burglars made a rush to escape. One of them fired at Tadel, who said the bullet passed close to his head. Tadel, who had a rifle, fired one shot, the bullet striking the burglar near the pit of the stomach. He ran a few yards further and dropped. His companion, who was a little ahead, came back to secure the revolver, and then hurried away. When picked up a few moments later, the wounded man was alive, but expired while being removed to the Town Hall.

The burglars came to Rosthern on Saturday and registered at the Queen's Hotel as W. F. Salfrey and W. F. Ames. Ames, the one killed, had the appearance of a foreigner. There was nothing in his pocket to identify him Salfrey got away safely and has not been captured.

Typhoid Bad at Pembroke.

Pembroke, Nov. 24.—A serious epidemic of typhoid fever rages in the town, over 150 cases being at present reported. The hospitals are crowded and a serious condition of affairs exists. Happily the fever is of a very light form and no deaths have been so far chronicled. In connection with the above it is thought that the extremely low water is the cause of the rapid spread of the disease.

The mayor, Mr. J. S. Fraser, has called a public meeting of the citizens for tomorrow evening to discuss the laying of a larger intake pipe and one that will extend a greater distance into the river, so as to ensure a purer supply of water

The new electric pumping bylaw, which is coming up before the ratepayers for their approval, will also receive consideration at the meeting.

What u... railway carriage? ...re so fitted, bu... running on ... Salzburg ... tached to ... the steepe... says Tit Bits. ... a tank below the c... filled with water sufficient to counteract the upward pull of the gas bag, which the vehicle thus drags down with it upon the return journey.

There is only one car in the world with a window fitted as a royal autograph album. It is a somewhat ancient railway saloon used in Denmark for the conveyance of royal visitors. It has become the custom for these to scratch their names on one of its panes, which now shows the autographs of King Edward and Queen Alexandra among others, including those of the late Czar, the late King of Denmark, the late Duke of Clarence and many others.

Another uniquely fitted railway carriage is that containing the vestibule entrance to the train belonging to the German Emperor. This vestibule holds several fine statues—an innovation which has not been copied elsewhere, though many royal trains carry superb paintings as part of their decorations.

A car with a complete verandah is another novelty introduced in the train constructed for President Diaz of Mexico, where the drawing room portion is surrounded by such a fitting.

Very few trains are roofed with water, and that of the Viceroy of India is among the small number that are so. All the vehicles, eight in number, have double ceilings, which are really water tanks, holding about five tons of water. This arrangement contributes toward coolness and furnishes water for domestic purposes on the train. The train carries sixty personal servants when the Viceroy uses it.

On the long distance lines in Russia each of the important trains has a car above which rises a little belfry containing a chime of bells. Otherwise the latter vehicles are fitted as chapels, in charge of a regular priest of the Greek Orthodox faith. At Hallatraw, on the North Somerset Railway, there is an old railway carriage which has been licensed as a mission chapel and is fitted accordingly.

On the Stand.

Attorney for the Defence (to witness)—You say that on the night of the attempted murder the moon shone so brightly that you could plainly see the burglars in the room. Was your husband awake at the time?

Witness—I don't know.

Attorney—Was his face turned toward you or not?

Witness—I don't know.

Attorney—What! You don't know whether his face was turned to you or toward the wall?

Witness—No.

Attorney—Your honor and gentlemen of the jury, you hear what this witness says. She has declared the prisoners to be the burglars who were in the room and yet she is unable to state in what position her husband was lying in bed. Well (to the witness) how is it you don't know?

Witness—I could not see.

Attorney—Ha, ha! Just what I thought. You could not see. You were so positive in your recognition of the accused and yet could not see which way your husband's face was turned. Explain that if you can.

Witness—Certainly, sir. My husband is so bald that in a dim light I am unable to distinguish his face from the back of his head.

A "Shirt Sleeve Climate."

There is no bad land in Texas, and its soil could almost feed the world. It can raise sugar and tea, coffee, rice, cattle—everything needed—and it has various minerals that are rich and needed everywhere. The state needs a few million more farmers, and it is going to get them because it has a climate that appeals to millions of people, a shirt sleeve climate that only makes a coat necessary when the wicked north wind gets loose and comes whooping down in the night. On the coast one can bathe in the ocean surf all the year except when the "norther" blows, and that only lasts three days at a time.

How to Freshen the Air In a Room.

Lavender salts are useful for freshening the air of the living room where smoking is occasionally indulged in. Select a large mouthed bottle—a stick candy jar which will hold a quart is just the thing—and in this place one pint of pure (not household) ammonia, add two ounces of oil of lavender and then fill the bottle with carbonated ammonia blocks. When using, shake the bottle, remove the stopper and leave for half an hour. The odor is peculiarly invigorating and not at all overpowering if not too close a sniff of the jar be taken.

Clerical vote necessary to elect, 50; Dean Farthing, Kingston, 56; Dean Evans, Montreal, 17; Dean Williams, Quebec, 16 Lay vote necessary to elect, 41; Dean Farthing, 57; Dean Evans, 14.

The election was the most difficult in the history of the diocese. When the snoyd first met, on October 28, six ballots were taken without a choice being made, Dean Evans and Dean Farthing being in the lead. On the seventh ballot Bishop Lang of Stepney, England, was elected. He declined the honor the following day by cable, his appointment a fortnight later as Archbishop of York following. The snoyd then adjourned until this morning, when balloting was resumed, the result being the election of Dean Farthing on the fourth ballot of the day and the eleventh ballot of the election.

Bishop-Elect Farthing was born in the United States in 1862, of English parents, but went to England when a boy. He was educated at Gonville and Caius college, Cambridge, where he graduated in 1885 with honors. In 1888 he went to Woodstock, Ont., as curate of the new St. Paul's Church, and was later appointed by the Bishop of Huron as honorary canon of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, Ont. In 1905, out of eight nominations at Ottawa, he was elected as prolocutor of the lower house. This year he was again unanimously appointed to the same office. Two years ago he was appointed Dean of Ontario, and rector of St. George's cathedral, Kingston, after having spent eighteen years in Woodstock, where he was greatly esteemed. In 1907 Trinity university bestowed on him the D. D. degree, and this year King's university at Windsor honored him with the degree of D.C.L.

Sudden Death at Russell.

The angel of death summoned with terrible swiftness, Mr. John Hunt, on Monday evening.

Mr. Hunt had been in the best of health for some time past and was engaged in drawing corn into his barn at the time he was called. His wife, noticing that he was away in the field longer than usual, went to investigate the cause, and was horrified to find the once robust man lying dead by the corn shock, where he had been working. Mr. Andrew Fitzpatrick was called and at once went for Dr. Macdougall, but Mr. Hunt was past all medical aid.

The cause of death was heart failure, from which the deceased had suffered for some years.

He leaves a wife and two daughters to mourn him.

Mr. Hunt was a well known and highly respected resident of Russell township, having come here about twenty-five years ago from Fitzroy Township. He was a well-known breeder of Ayrshire cattle and active in municipal affairs. Being a kindly man his loss will be keenly felt by friends and neighbors.

He was buried Wednesday in North Russell cemetery. A large concourse of mourners followed the remains to the grave, testifying in a silent way to the respect felt for a good friend and neighbor.—Russell Leader.

A SURPRISED MINISTER.

"For many years I have been a sufferer from bronchial catarrh, and had despaired of anything like a cure. Judge of my pleasant surprise when I first used Hyomei, which brought complete relief. Hyomei has been a veritable godsend."—Rev. Charles Hartley, Sardinia, Ohio.

Thousands of catarrh sufferers have given up in despair. They have tried stomach dosing, snuff, sprays and douches without success, and now believe catarrh to be incurable.

But W. G. Bolster, the druggist, holds out hope to all distressed. He sells a remedy called Hyomei which is guaranteed for catarrh, colds, bronchitis, asthma and croup.

Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) is medicated air, full of the healthy virtues of the mountain pines. You breathe in the delightful antiseptic air and as it passes over the inflamed and germ ridden membrane, it allays the inflammation, kills the germs, and drives out the disease.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including a hard rubber inhaler, costs but $1.00, and an extra bottle of Hyomei, if afterwards needed, costs but 50 cents. See W. G. Bolster about it today.
