DUNDAS-STORMONT INSTITUTES ACHIEVEMENTS

The Women's Institute of Dundas and Stormont Counties held an achievement day at Farran's Point on Friday. Miss Hopkins, of the Department of Agriculture, who instructed the class in glove-making held in Finch last November and the class in quilting held in Chesterville was present to assist with the scoring of points achieved by each local branch that exhibited its work.

Lunenburg scored the highest number of points with a full exhibit of:

1 cushion cover of Italian quilting
6 pieced quilt blocks, named,
1 pieced quilt,
1 applique quilt,
1 tuffed bedspread, and
1 pair leather gloves.

Winchester scored second place.

Miss Hopkins reported the work has gone across so well that the Department is giving her a full-time assistant for this year.

Eighteen districts are asking for a class in glove-making, and the Dundas class will be held in Brinston some time later in the Fall.

FARMER'S CLOTHES DISAPPEARS

A young man giving his name as Harold Blake, 18 or 19 years of age; height 5 feet 7 inches; weight 150 pounds; fair hair; blue eyes; nationally, English; is being sought by district police in connection with the theft of personal belongings, the property of Meredith McVey, Mountain township farmer.

According to information, McVey who shares the farm home with his brother, Meredith, was returning home from Winchester Springs on Sunday afternoon last when he met the young man walking along the highway. Upon giving him a ride, Mr. McVey learned that his passenger was in search of farm work and offered him a job, which he accepted.

On Monday the new employe worked about the farm and seemed satisfied with his position. Tuesday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Meredith McVey attended the Ottawa Exhibition and upon returning home in the evening discovered that their new helper had disappeared, taking with him a suitcase, two pairs of overalls, a suit of clothes, underwear, socks and shoes, and other articles of clothing belonging to Mr. McVey. William McVey and his wife, the other occupants of the home, had retired at 9 p.m. and were not aware that the young man had decided to leave under such circumstances.

The incident was immediately reported to Provincial Constable Frank Rose of Morrisburg, who is conducting an investigation. The man, whose name may be an alias, gave no address.

MRS. J. N. BOUCK ENTERTAINS

Mrs. J. Bouck, Matilda, entertained on Saturday evening at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Margaret Elizabeth Harkness, bride-to-be. The shower was arranged as a complete surprise and upon Miss Harkness' arrival at the home of Mrs Bouck, she was promptly ushered by Dona Joan and Norma Patricia Morris, cousins of the bride-elect, to a bower elaborately decorated with pink and white crepe paper, with evergreens as a background, accompanied by the strains of Wagner's Wedding March, with Miss Ruby Johnston at the piano. After a shower of confetti, the little cousins, Dona Joan and Norma Petricia, presented Miss Harkness with a decorated tea wagon heavily laden with beautiful and costly gifts. The tea table centred with a silver bowl containing pink antirhinium and larkspurs, was presided over by Mrs. Hugh Thompson of Williamsburg, and Mrs. E. A. Driscoll, assisted by Miss Ruby Johnston, Miss Sarah Smyth, Miss Addie Bouck, Mrs. Sam Johnston, Mrs. Stanley Waddell, Mrs. Arnel Peterson, Mrs. John Thompson, Mrs. Dwigth Hamilton, Mrs. Charles Harkness, Mrs. R. J. Saver, Mrs. Wm McQuaig, Mrs. Harold Harkness, Mrs. Douglas Hanson and Mrs. Ben Johnstone. At the close Miss Harkness made a fitting reply, thanking her friends for their kindness and for the beautiful gifts.

PREMIER SETS ELECTION DATE, OCTOBER 6th.

After a three-hour council with his cabinet at Queen's Park, Premier Mitchell Hepburn announced the Ontario general election would be held on Wednesday, October 6th. Official nomination day will fall on Wednesday, Sept. 29th.

Election writs appointing returning officers for the 90 constituencies were issued by the clerk of the Crown.

Oct. 6, the premier said was somewhat earlier than the government had first planned. Most of the cabinet favored Oct. 12th, but this would have clashed with the annual meeting of the Ontario Plowmen's Association at Guelph, Ont. To have delayed polling until the week following would have been to run the risk of bad road conditions in Northern Ontario.

The election campaign is already well underway. The Liberals and Conservatives have nominees in the field for many of the 90 seats, while the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation has announced it will contest practically every riding.

As enunciated by Premier Hepburn in recent speeches, the Liberals seek a new mandate on a platform with three major planks: Opposition to the Lewis Committee for Industrial Organization in the Ontario labor scene; its cancellation of Hydro Power contracts with four Quebec companies; and continued investigation into alleged frauds practised on the succession duty branch of the Ontario treasury.

Hon. Earl Rowe, Conservative leader, has in recent addresses attacked the Hepburn government's administrative record. He has declared his labor stand as one opposed to "lawlessness" and as favoring the granting of the right of free association to labor in the matter of organization. He has pledged reforms in the Liquor Control Act administration and the Ontario Civil Service.

The Liberals came into power after polling June 19, 1934. They elected 70 members to the Conservatives' 17. The other seats went one each to an Independent Liberal, a C.C.F. and a United Farmers of Ontario representative.

Present party standing of the legislature remains unchanged from election day with the exception of two empty seats, vacated by death of two Liberal members, Dr. Geo. A. McQuibban of Wellington North and J. A. Sangster of Glengarry.

RECOVER CANOE USED BY DROWNING VICTIM

The canoe used by Lionel Buswell, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Buswell of Cardinal, who lost his life when swept over Galops rapids, was found Tuesday morning in the course of an airplane search. The small craft when recovered in a bay at camp Island, one and a half miles below the scene of the accident, was floating upright and still containing fishing tackle. No trace of Buswell's body was found.

Lionel Buswell was with Mickey Freeman, also aged 17 years, of Montreal, when the canoe overturned between Big Island on the American shore, and what is commonly known as the head pier on the Canadian shore. Freeman managed to swim to the shore of Big Island, and was picked up by Gabriel Donegan. Wilfrid Dillon and Fred and Ed. Serviss. Mr. Donegan, who was fishing at the head pier, saw the accident and ran for assistance.

The canoe was located by an airplane belonging to Earl Merkley of Iroquois, which joined the search at daylight. Several motorboats also assisted in the search. The airplane landed at Iroquois and the pilot telephoned to Cardinal and informed the searchers that there was a canoe about one and a half miles from where the accident occurred.

Freeman stated that Buswell, clinging to the overturned canoe, had gone down with the current.

TWO CLOTHING PLANTS CLOSE IN CORNWALL

With no contact yet established between the workers and officials of Cornwall Pants and Prince Clothing Company, Cornwall Wednesday night was seeing its second major strike within a week. Several hundred persons were grouped about the entrances to the two clothing plants singing union songs and holding impromptu entertainments. Picketing will be continued throughout although a complete picket organization has not been set up.

Aaron Horovitz, Mayor of Cornwall is president of the company. At 3 o'clock Wednesday when no answer had been received from the company in connection with a letter sent by union officials earlier in the day, asking for a conference, the union declared its walkout to be a strike. Later office workers and officials only were permitted to enter the plants and Ben Rishikof, organizer for the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, said this policy would be maintained for the duration of the strike.

The workers walked out spontaneously upon learning four employees had been discharged for union activities. Cornwall Pants and Prince Clothing Company has been established in Cornwall for more than thirty years, manufacturing men's and boys' suits and trousers. This is the first strike in the company's history.

The World's Premier Agricultural Fair

Canadian National Enters 59th Year of Operation

C. N. E. is Direct Descendant of Niagara Agricultural Society Founded in 1792—Coronation Year at Exhibition Features Display of Latest Developments in Agriculture—The Weeks of August 27 to September 11 Are Packed with Attractions, Educational in Aspect.

Few people realize that the great Canadian National Exhibition which this year enters its fifty-ninth consecutive year of operation and is universally acknowledged to be the world's greatest annual exhibition, is the direct descendant of the Niagara Agricultural Society founded in 1792 under the patronage of John Graves Simcoe, Governor of Upper Canada. This society founded to aid the development of the products of the farm, so that the sturdy pioneers of Upper Canada might benefit in their fight against the wilderness by the pooling of their knowledge and experience, did a mighty work in the development of the struggling colony.

Having in the intervening decades grown away from the parochial limitations inevitably set by nature upon that Society, the Canadian National Exhibition has never lost sight of the original purpose for which it was founded, namely for the encouragement of agriculture and industry; so that today we find the basic industry more firmly than ever established as the foundation upon which the superstructure of the "Show Window of the Nations" is raised.

Prize Lists Extended

It is generally acknowledged that there is no agricultural exhibition in the world equal to the Canadian National Exhibition, and in this Coronation Year all the latest developments in agriculture and aids in the scientific cultivation of the products of forest and field are on display. Entries in the different classes of livestock and field produce have attained record proportions, and to keep pace with these developments the prize lists have been extended and increased with the modern demands of growers and breeders. Also in keeping with the spirit of Coronation Year, special medals and handsomely embossed diplomas will be awarded.

In other fields the Canadian National Exhibition has encouraged the development of Canadian livestock. One of these is the trotting and pacing races. This year these ever popular races are held from September 7 to September 10 with prizes of $7,000 in Futurities and $3,000 in Class races.

Canada's Premier Horse Show, in the Coliseum Arena, and the Poultry, Pigeon and Pet Stock show are other examples of the Exhibition's interest in the development of Canada's basic industry.

To all lovers of the out of doors the news that Tom Mix in person with his own three-ring circus and Wild West Shows will be at the Canadian National Exhibition will indeed be welcome. These shows, supreme triumph of the art of the "big top", are indeed different from the conventional presentations and are unique and modern in every respect. Tom Mix will take part in every performance.

Mounted Police In Pageant

Among the most popular attractions of the 1937 Exhibition will be the Coronation detachment of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. This splendid body of men together with their perfectly trained and magnificent mounts will be present for the whole term of the Exhibition, and will be seen nightly as a part of the Pageant. Every Canadian will feel a thrill of pride at the spectacle of the "Mounties" guiding their steeds through the intricate evolutions of the Musical Ride.

In keeping with the Canadian National Exhibition's policy of presenting the finest of the world's musical organizations this year the United States Navy Band will be featured. The consent of President Franklin D. Roosevelt had to be obtained in order that the band might be present. Music lovers are promised a rare treat in the opportunity to hear at the Exhibition's magnificent new band shell this world famous aggregation of more than eighty musicians.

Every year there is something new, some innovation or improvement at the Exhibition and this year it is in the realm of amusement. Gone is the old Midway and in its place is a new amusement zone known as Frol-Ex-land. Here are many startling innovations in the way of entertainment: Eskimoland, an Eskimo village complete with igloos, dog-teams, blond Eskimos from the Arctic wastes, and Major Godsell's famous collection of northern trophies. Hollywood on Parade, which can best be described as a revelation of "movies" from the inside, taking in every phase of the making of a moving picture. There are many more interesting, mirth-provoking and instructive features of Frol-Ex-land which sets its apart as being in the forefront of the amusement world.

Of the utmost importance is the fact that exhibit space in the many buildings of the Canadian National Exhibition is in greater demand than has been the case since 1930. Space rentals as a whole are ten to fifteen per cent. higher than 'ast year, and since the Exhibition has for years been acknowledged as Canada's business barometer this is indeed indicative of the Dominion's increasing prosperity.

Overseas Exhibits

Overseas exhibits are bigger and more comprehensive than ever before, the British Empire being particularly well represented. Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the Indian Empire all have large displays of natural and manufactured products, while Great Britain is represented by the commercial displays in the British Section and the exhibit of the Scottish National Development Council. Foreign nations have taken over the International Building this year and among those exhibiting are Finland, Czechoslovakia and Japan, who is represented at the Exhibition [illegible].

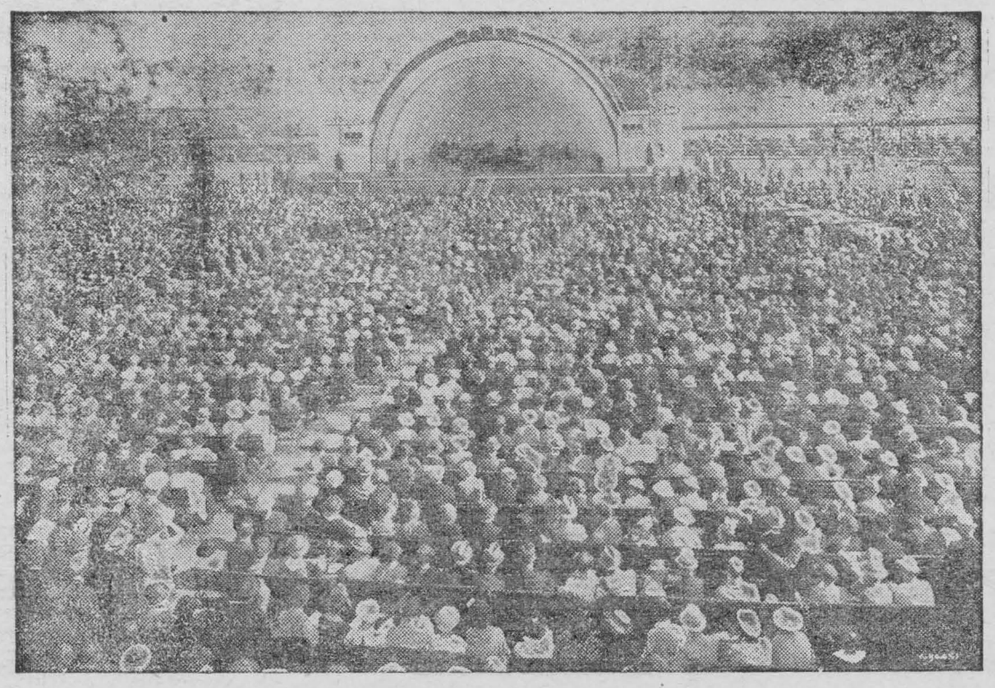

The 1937 dates for the Canadian National Exhibition are from August 27 to September 11. In keeping with its policy and possibility as a tangible link with the Niagara Agricultural Society, one day each year is traditionally set aside as Agriculturists' Day, this year Wednesday, Sept. 8.

When the old-time fiddlers and square dancers were introduced at the Canadian National Exhibition it was done as a novelty and intended as a temporary attraction. The innovation was an instantaneous hit and will be continued this year.

Horses! horses! horses! Hunters and jumpers, draught, carriage and general purpose animals are provided for in the prize list arranged for the Horse Show at the Canadian National Exhibition.

The C.N.E. Band Shell

Huge crowds listen here daily to concerts by world famous bands. The U. S. Navy Band will be heard this year.

Sunday School Lesson

GOD CONDEMNS INTEMPERANCE
Lev. 10:1, 2, 8-11

GOLDEN TEXT — Romans 14:21. "It is good not to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor to do anything, whereby thy brother stumbleth."

"And Nadab and Abihu, the sons of Aaron, took each of them his censer, and put fire therein, and laid incense thereon, and offered strange fire before Jehovah, which he had not commanded them. And there came forth fire from before Jehovah, and devoured them, and they died before Jehovah." The first section of our lesson has really no relation to the subject of temperance and the drinking of wine, though in it is the record of a sad incident occurring during the forty years of Israel's wanderings, which has served for centuries as a powerful warning against serving God in a presumptuous and self-willed manner. Two sons of Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, putting fire in their respective censers, offered strange fire before the Lord, which he had not commanded them, and immediately by fire, God slew them. What this strange fire was has been a question of dispute among commentators for a long time, but at least we know that they offered this fire either in a way not commanded, or at a time not commanded, or in a place not commanded, or, perhaps, in each and all of these ways, they offered fire not commanded of the Lord.

"And Jehovah spake unto Aaron, saying."

A Statute Forever

"Drink no wine nor strong drink, thou, nor thy sons with thee, when ye go into the tent of meeting, that ye die not; it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations. And that ye may make a distinction between the holy and the common, and between the unclean and the clean. And that ye may teach the children of Israel all the statutes which Jehovah hath spoken unto them by Moses." In this paragraph we have the first word of many spoken by the Lord down through the ages against the drinking of wine.

"It is not for kings, O Lemuel, it is not for kings to drink wine; nor for princes to say, where is strong drink? Lest they drink, and forget the law, and pervert the justice due to any that is afflicted." If the king who is here called Lemuel is not King Solomon himself, we do not know who he might be, for he is never referred to in any other place in the Bible except in the first four verses of this chapter. While the words in the preceding section forbade wine to the priests of God's people, the words here are a warning against the drinking of intoxicating liquors on the part of kings and princes, and the reason given for such a prohibition is that, by heavily drinking, those in whose hands government and the execution of the law rest would be in danger of forgetting the law of the land, and being unjust to those who are in trouble.

"Woe to the crown of pride of the drunkards of Ephriam, and to the fading flower of his glorious beauty, that is on the head of the fat valley of them that are overcome with wine!" Ephriam is only another name for Samaria, or the northern kingdom, comprising the area occupied by ten of the twelve tribes of Israel, of which Ephriam was the leading tribe.

"Behold, the Lord hath a mighty and strong one; as a tempest of hail, a destroying storm, as a tempest of mighty waters overflowing, will be cast down to the earth with the hand. The crown of pride of the drunkards of Ephriam shall be trodden under foot." This is a reference to the Assyrians, whom the Lord would use as an agency for the punishment of his own people because of their stubbornness and wickedness.

"And the fading flower of his glorious beauty, which is on the head of the fat valley, shall be as the first-ripe fig before the summer; which when he that looketh upon it, while it is yet in his hand he eateth it up." The first ripe fig ripened in June, while the common fig does not ripen until August. The idea here is that the early fig would be plucked and eaten with great greediness, rather than picked and put away for future use. Prophetically Isaiah is telling the Samaritans that, as soon as the Assyrians should see their beautiful country, they would rush upon it and destroy it.

"In that day will Jehovah of hosts become a crown of glory, and a diadem of beauty, unto the residue of his people." The threat is now followed by a promise. The place of the false glory thus overthrown is now filled by a glory that is divine and true. The remnant of his people is not Judah, but Judah and the remaining portion of Ephriam, as distinguished from the portion which had perished. After the perishable thing in which they gloried had been swept away, the eternal person of Jehovah himself would be the ornament and the pride of his people.

"And a spirit of justice to him that sitteth in judgment." (See Isa. 11:2; 32.15, 16; 1 Kings 3:28; John 5:30.) The phrase undoubtedly means that the day would come (we do not believe it has yet come) when those who judge in the land will do so in the illumination of the very Spirit of God who will be to such judges a spirit of justice. "And strength to them that turn back the battle at the gate." This must undoubtedly refer to the turning back of the hosts of Sennacherib which were beseiging the city of Jerusalem during the reign of Hezekiah, the vivid record of which is to be found in 2 Chronicle. 32 and in 2 Kings 19.

"And even these reel with wine." This paragraph refers to those within the kingdom of Judah, who, though they saw the terribly disastrous effects of drunkenness upon their northern brethren, still continued to indulge in the same vice. "And stagger with strong drink; the priest and the prophet reel with strong drink, they are swallowed up of wine; they stagger with strong drink; they err in vision." To be swallowed up of wine, is a vivid way of expressing the terrible fact that they were in the complete grip of the sin of intoxication, their very reason, strength, and virtue devoured by such indulgences.

"They stumble in judgment." For every true minister of the gospel and for all worthy priests, occasions must arise, with more or less frequency, in which they will be called upon to render judgment, and give advice or comfort in the most critical and delicate problems of life, which will demand the clearest mind and the purest heart for proper evaluation. Everyone knows that intoxicating liquors becloud the mind; one does not hear accurately, the delicate fibers of the mind do not function readily or in unison, and one says the most foolish things, and thinks generally the wickedest thoughts, when under the power of such a demon as drink. Alcoholic beverages are not the only things that becloud the minds of ministers.

"For all tables are full of vomit and filthiness, so that there is no place clean." All the tables of the carousal are full without being any further room; everything swims with vomit. The prophet paints from nature, here, without idealizing. He receives their conduct, as it were, in a mirror, and then in the severest tones holds up this mirror before them, adults though they were.

"It is good not to eat flesh nor to drink wine, nor to do anything whereby thy brother stumbleth." For a still stronger expression of the noble principle of this verse see 1 Cor. 8:12. Of the three verbs, the first refers to the wounding of the heart caused to our neighbour by conduct which he disapproves; the second to the sin which he would be led to commit by being drawn away to do what his conscience condemns; the third to the want of regard for the scruples with which he is affected through weakness of faith.

What a vast change would come over our country if every time a man ordered a glass of intoxicating liquor he would first say to himself: Am I by drinking this leading others into temtation, or in any way weakening the power of their moral life to resist temptation?

Exhibition Notes

There is no agricultural show in the world equal to that at the Canadian National Exhibition. . . All the new developments as applied to farm, field, and orchard are on display. Horses, cattle, sheep, swine, poultry, goats, calves, dairy products, vegetables, fruits, flowers, grain machinery and farm equipment of all kinds are there in profusion.

"Empire Onward", the pageant at the Canadian National Exhibition this year, will savor largely of Coronation activities, but as usual the glittering extravaganza for which these productions are famous will be deftly woven into the theme . . . Incidents portraying the coronation of Queen Victoria of revered memory and of the other monarchs through the years to His Majesty King George VI will be included.

When the Royal Canadian Mounted Police appeared in the recent Coronation parade in London they were accorded a vociferous reception all along the route. Their specially selected, highly-trained horses and the ultra-smart appearance of the men were a credit to Canada. This same carefully prepared unit will be a Canadian National Exhibition feature this year.

Business men have learned that the new trends in business, in business methods, new types of goods, equipment for plants and offices and all the ramifications of the world of trade and commerce are on review for them. Foreign buyers from around the world make an annual pilgrimage to this exposition. The retailer, wholesaler, jobber and manufacturer find not only pleasure but profit in admirable combination. Highly important to all of the foregoing classes of business men is the fact that two million consumers attend in two weeks.

The Canadian National Exhibition, originally chartered "for the encouragement of agriculture, industry and the arts," has never forgotten the purpose for which it was organized. It has grown and expanded in many respects but the basic plan has been carefully adhered to.

It was necessary to secure the personal approval of President Franklin D. Roosevelt to bring the United States Navy Band to the Canadian National Exhibition this year. With eighty-five musicians and attaches the personnel will run to almost one hundred. They will travel to and from Washington, D.C., in special trains.

Tom Mix and his famous horse "Tony" will be at the Canadian National Exhibition to delight the youngsters. The oldsters, too, will be entertained by the hero of the movies, who has quit the silver screen for the circus, and will bring his own three-ring show and "Wild West" to Toronto for the "Ex."

TERROR MOUNTAIN

By MADELEINE SHARPS BUCHANAN

Three bandits seize a trans-continental bus, and force the driver to guide it up a mountainside to a lonely log shack. They want a valuable secret formula believed to be in the possession of one of the passengers, Finley Trump. Meanwhile, a raging forest fire, creeping up the mountain, traps the group. The first night one of the bandits is mysteriously strangled with his own bandana, and the next night, a second one meets the same fate. Despite the sinister situation, May Lawrence, pretty nurse, and young Dr. Nick Strand find time to become engaged. Then Finley Trump is found strangled; and Kenneth Jenkins, browbeaten little man, in attempting to find a way through the fire, is overcome. When he regains consciousness, May, who has been attending him, excitedly announces that he knows who the murderer is.

CHAPTER XI

Stutter had been drawn from his bench through the open window, and, as Miss Jones entered, she saw only the bandit's legs and feet. The rest of him was hanging outside the window.

Of Jim Somers there was no trace.

Miss Jones dashed across the kitchen to the door, then out and around to the window. Stutter was choking and purple in the face, his bandana had been knotted tightly about his throat.

Miss Jones quickly loosened it sufficiently to give him air. Just in time. In another moment, he might have joined Lefty and Ike.

Pushing him back through the window, Miss Jones crawled ungracefully after him. As she worked over the gasping man, she puzzled over the question of why the murderer should kill off these bandits. The murder of Finley Trump she could understand, and she was prepared for an attack on her own life, because of what she knew, but this strangling of Stutter was beyond her.

A sudden voice at her back, swung her sharply about, hand on her gun.

"What the—" It was Jim Somers.

"Where have you been?" demanded Miss Jones acidly, "while this man was being murdered?"

"I walked down the road a way," said Somers. "Holy cats, were we having another murder? We must have a maniac here! Who'd want—"

"If you'd been attending to your duty, this could not have happened," Miss Jones snapped. "Unless you are guilty yourself."

"What duty " Somers grew angry. "Who's got a duty now? I knew this guy could not get away, and, if he did, where would he go?"

"Well, you can see where he might have gone," said Miss Jones tartly. "Help me get him into the living room now."

Bending over Stutter, she spoke distinctly, looking into his terror-stricken eyes.

"Who?" she asked.

Stutter shook his head. "I di-didn't see a-anyone," he gasped. "I w-was a-asleep, and they m-must have reached in the w-window and g-got me."

Miss Jones nodded grimly.

"Just help me move him to a living room couch," she said again to Somers. "Tommy has one, and Stutter can have the other. He'll be safer there."

Somers stooped to help the bandit up.

"Of course," he said, "I suppose we all suspect each other."

"I suppose we do," said Miss Jones flatly.

The criminal was swearing Miss Jones out. She knew this vaguely, through her partial stupor, as the night wore on. From her chair in the bedroom, she could see Tommy Orcher asleep on one living-room couch, and Stutter on the other. Her head nodded, and she jerked it erect, then moistened her lips from a glass of water on a near-by table.

It was two-thirty by her wrist watch —It was three — Three-thirty. The house was quiet. But at four, there was a resounding crash of thunder, accompanied by a blinding flash of lightning, and the heavens opened to deluge the suffering mountain with the blessed rain!

And Tulsa Jones knew that she was in immediate danger of her life. For the thing the murderer had known was coming had come. The seige by fire was over, and life would go on. But Miss Tulsa Jones must not go on!

Mrs. Jenkins, awakened by the storm, lumbered out of bed, and left the room to go to see how her husband was. Miss Jones sat stiffly still, clutching her gun.

There was almost instant relief of the terrific heat, but the storm was a savage rescuer. It blew a mighty gale. it flung down a terrific torrent of water. There was blinding lighning, and a constant roar of thunder.

The bedroom looked dully familiar to Miss Jones as she glanced about it. The cots, the old shaky table, the chairs, the suitcases, and on the floor beside her, Mrs. Jenkins' red dressing gown flung over a stool.

No! There was no stool! There was nothing for Mrs. Jenkins' dressing gown to be thrown over — nothing at all that woud make a bulge! It moved! There was something alive beneath that red garment—

Miss Jones leaped up, retreated from that moving garment. Ike's gun in her almost paralyzed fingers. The thing plunged at her, and, as a steel-like grip closed about her thin neck, she fired — once!

Doctor Strand, on guard with May in Mr. Jenkins' room, seized her arm.

"What's that?" he cried.

"A shot!"

They dashed out through the living room toward the women's bedroom.

Jim Somers, however, was ahead of everyone. It was he who dragged the murderer's desperate grip from Miss Jones' throat, then floored the fiend.

Fastest Lens In World Completed

ROCHESTER — Believed by its makers to be the fastest in the world, completed taking pictures of light rays which left distant stars before dinosaurs trod the earth.

The Bausch and Lomb Optical Co. announced completion of tests of the new lens by Dr. M. L. Humason at the Mt. Wilson observatory.

In conjunction with the 100-inch reflector at Mt. Wilson, the largest existing telescope, the new lens has photographed spectra ofa nebulae 30,000 times fainter than the faintest star visible to the unaided eye.

Recent data has placed these nebulae at an estimated distance of eighty million light years from the earth, Dr. Humason said.

The lens, designed by Dr. Wilbur B. Rayton, head of the company's scientific bureau, is described as six and one half times faster than the fastest "candid camera," with the F. 1.5 lens. The speed of the new lens is F. 0.59.

Want To Be First Woman River Pilot

Gabrielle Lemay and Laura Archer Both Want to be Canada's Leading Female Navigator

QUEBEC.—Two girls with but a single thought are Gabrielle Lemay, 20, of the tiny south shore village of St. Jean Deschaillons, and Laura Archer, 19, of Bracebridge, Ont.—they both want to be Canada's first woman river pilot.

Miss Lemay first mate on her father's oil-carrying, motor-driven vessel Adelphie, will attend a marine school at the close of navigation next fall, preparatory to applying for a master's certificate.

Veteran river men down this way say she has shown rare navigating ability at the wheel of the Adelphie on its journeys between Quebec and Montreal. Capt. Alphonse Halle, director of the marine school here, expressed the opinion she will complete her course and be in position for a master's papers before next Christmas.

Rival for the honors, Miss Archer, played a heroine's role last Sunday when she safely beached her father's vessel, The Mildred, after it struck a rock in Lake Muskoka.

The vessel sprung a bad leak and while her father, Capt. C. W. Archer, and members of the crew worked to block the hole in the hull, Miss Archer steered the craft ashore, beaching it without further damage. No crew member or any of the 21 passengers aboard were injured in the beaching.

Shows Youth Is Temperate

New York Survey Reveals That Young People Drink "Very Little"

ALBANY, — New York young people "drink very little," but 87 per cent of college youth drinks occasionally, according to a survey report by Mrs. John S. Sheppard, New York City, member of the New York State liquor Authority.

A full summary of a study made by Dr. Paul Studenski, New York University economic professor, from which the conclusion was taken, was released yesterday.

The study also found that the New York young folk disapprove of "excessive" use of alcohol and approve of public liquor control.

Based on questionnaires answered by college students, frequenters of settlement houses, and groups of "white collar" workers, all between 18 and 25 years old, the survey declared that "the great majority of people in those segments of youth drink very little."

It was also found that "they disapprove of both occasional excessive drinking and of so-called steady drinking; that they make sharp distinctions between so-called social drinking at home or at parties, which is relatively innocent, and drinking at a bar which has more serious implications."

Approval of "certain reasonable controls by public authorities of the consumption of liquor generally and of that by young people especially," also was reported.

Nazi Enemies Forbidden To Drive in Germany

BERLIN—"Enemies of the State" are barred from driving automobiles, the Prussian Supreme Court ruled last week. The judgment confirmed a decision of Nazi police, who refuse to grant a driver's license to a German who had once been sentenced for "perfidious attacks against the State."

Scotsman Gives Recipe for Living

Advises to Use Oatmeal Brose To Meet the Rising Cost of Living

LONDON, — Frederick Alexander Macquisten, Member of Parliament from the Scottish Highlands, has a good Scot's way to meet the rising cost of living.

It is oatmeal brose.

And in the words of Macquisten himself, this is the proper way to make brose:

"You get a cupful of pinhead oatmeal — good sized oatmeal — and put into it a lump of butter about as big as a walnut, with pepper, salt and also some water — not boiling, though it may be hot, and stir it up. You will have the finest meal you could wish for, with a cup of good fresh milk. If you take that three times a day you will never be hungry, and you will be in splendid health."

Nourishing, too.

"I remember that in Argyll," Macquisten told fellow members of the House of Commons, "there was a father and ten sons who were the most magnificent specimens of humanity one could imagine. The old man complained to his laird about the state of the road leading up to his farm and said his cart had sunk in it up to the axles.

"The laird, who was accustomed to the quarter deck said: 'It must have been damned bad,' and the old man's reply was: 'Yes, Admiral, it was so bad that when I took out the horse I could hardly pull the cart out myself.'

"Men like that were bred on oatmeal brose — not boiled oatmeal or scalded oatmeal, because if you boil oatmeal or even put boiling water on it you kill the meal and it has no nourishment. These men had the real brose, and they had herrings and potatoes and good fresh milk such as you cannot buy in our town today, and they were giants."

German Housewives Must Save Garbage

Needed for Pigs; Economy Also In Use of Paper

BERLIN— Berlin housewives have been officially warned that they are liable to criminal prosecution if they fail to deliver to the party social welfare organization any garbage that can be used as fodder for pigs.

The printed proclamation posted in apartment houses by the party headquarters for the city says that many housewives are still throwing away gabage which could be fed to pigs. In this way part of the food policy of the four-year plan is being hindered, the proclamation goes on. One guilty of this conduct, it adds, "damages a national asset and makes himself or herself punishable by law."

The proclamation ends with a strong appeal to all housewives to deliver their garbage to the party every day without fail.

The Nazi conservation policy went forward in another sector of national economy—paper, of which there is a shortage. Dr. Wilhelm Frick, minister of the interior, orders that henceforth, in order to save paper used in official business, all typewriting in the ministry must be single spaced, margins must be reduced from four to two centimeters, and both sides of every sheet of paper must be used.

Members of the advisory council of the paper processing and printing industries, sitting in Berlin, were informed at the same time that the quality of certain brands of paper will be lowered, further limitations adopted packing and additional savings made by changes in schoolbooks, postcards and other products.

Aldrich of White Plains, said he thought that residents in the fashionable Lawrence Park West section of Yonkers were entitled to some sleep even if the city is hastening to complete the Delaware River water tunnel 150 feet under their homes. Nevertheless, he reserved decision on two suits for temporary injunctions to force the contractors to cut down on their dynamiting.

Variety is the Spice of Tapioca Desserts

How often, as meal times draw near, do you wonder rather desperately what you are going to serve for dessert Here are a few tricks to the dessert trade which will save you a lot of worry and work when that problem comes up again and the results will delight your family.

Quick-cooking Tapioca Cream is the basis of seven different and tasty desserts, all of them practical, delicious and very economical too. This cream requires only five minutes to cook after the liquid scalds which is a definite improvement on the old kind of tapioca which took at least fifteen minutes to cook. It saves time and saves dishes and gives you a tapioca pudding with a new delicacy of texture.

Quick-cooking tapioca cream contains so many food essentials that it suggests planning the meal backwards—merely supplementing the dessert with a few simple dishes and a beverage. It contains eggs and milk, fresh fruit and energy-giving tapioca, all of which go a long way towards meeting the family's daily food needs. Then all these good things are offered in a fluffy, creamy dessert, they banish all thought of duty and are eagerly eaten up.

Here is the recipe for the Tapioca Cream.

Quick Cooking Tapioca Cream

One third cup quick-cooking tapioca
Half cup sugar
Quarter teaspoon salt
1 or 2 egg yolks
4 cups milk
1 or 2 egg whites, stiffly beaten
1 teaspoon flavouring

Combine quick-cooking tapioca, sugar, salt, egg yolk, and milk in top of double boiler and stir enough to break egg yolk. Place over rapidly boiling water, bring to scalding point (allow 5 to 7 minutes), and cook 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Remove from boiling water. Fold a small amount into egg white; add to remaining tapioca mixture and blend. Cool, mixture thickens as it cools. When slightly cool, add flavouring; chill. Serve in sherbet glasses.

Illustrated here are four desserts that can be made and even more variations can be turned out by the imaginative housewife. Once you have the basis, there are all kinds of fruits and sauces which can be added to the cream or poured over to make a novel dessert.

Upper left shows a plain tapioca cream dessert with a maraschino cherry to add a bright bit of colour. Lower left shows what can be done by the addition of fresh fruit. Add crushed berries to the cream and leave a few whole ones with which to garnish the top. In the upper right corner is a dessert which will appeal particularly to the juvenile members of the family. It is Tapioca Cream with chocolate sauce poured over and garnished with fluffs of whipped cream. In the lower right is Tapioca Cream garnished with fresh or canned peach halves and topped with whipped cream.

This is an all year round dessert because you can use either canned or fresh fruits and vary the garnish according to the season.

Parliament Has Quota Lunatics and Donkey

OXFORD — If Parliament were fully representative of the community, it would have as members one or two criminals, a few lunatics, some hefty children and in true democracy, an elderly donkey, said Miss Margery Fry, speaking at the summer school of the Howard League for Penal Reform. The next speaker, George Benson, Labor member of Parliament for Chesterfield, retorted: "I can assure Miss Fry that Parliament is fully representative, and our democratic system is far more perfect than she seems to realize. We have criminals, lunatics, children, and even donkeys in the House of Commons."

HONOURABLE EARL ROWE
States His Party's Stand on Labor

The national policy of the Liberal-Conservative Party, Provincial and Dominion, for many years has been to create industry for the purpose of providing work and wages for labor and a profitable home market for the farmer; the lumberman and other primary producers. The Party's sympathetic attitude towards labor is evidenced by the Social legislation on our statute books.

The Liberal-Conservative Party believes that labor should receive a fair share of the fruits of industry and is entitled to organize in order to improve the lot of the worker as regards wages, hours, security in old age and all other conditions of industrial life. The Liberal-Conservative Party reaffirms its traditional policy of insisting upon the maintenance of law and order in all industrial disputes and pledges itself firmly and scrupulously to uphold the laws of Canada.

1. The right of employees to bargain collectively through their own representatives chosen without dictation, coercion or intimidation.

2. It is and has for many decades been a fact that both capital and labor are International in their organization. Accordingly the right of the worker to belong to the union of his choosing, Canadian or International, craft or industrial, is fully established; provided always that the unions must observe, and that capital must observe, in all their actions, the laws of Canada.

3. The Liberal-Conservative Party is unalterably opposed to the introduction into Ontario of sit-down strikes, sabotage or other violations of our law, and for the purpose of clarity hereby places itself on record as being opposed to such illegalities whether they are introduced into Ontario by labor unions affiliated with the C. I. O., the A. F. of L., or any other organization, capital or labor.

4. That representatives from other countries, both of capital and labor, shall be subject on the same principles as other people to our immigration laws and that they shall when admitted to this country, strictly observe the laws of the land.

5. The primary function of the state in all industrial disputes is FIRST—to take no sides and to maintain law and order without the display of unnecessary or provocative force, and SECOND, to enact and impartially administer adequate legislation for the conciliation of industrial disputes.

6. The right to work in Canada is not dependent upon membership in any organization.

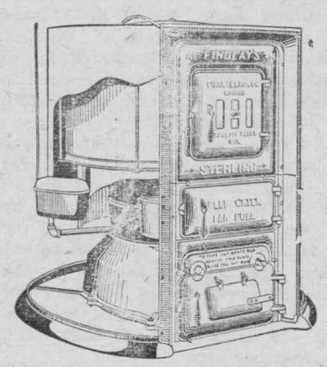

7. That no strike shall take place until all reasonable methods of conciliation are exhausted and the worker should have the right of secret ballot free from improper influence or coercion in all decisions relating to the dispute.

8. The Liberal-Conservative Party will continue in the future as in the past to defend the principle of freedom of association within the law. The party re-affirms its belief that the essence of democracy is trust in the people and to rely on freedom and not in dictatorship, that public opinion may be led but not driven and that the greatest safeguard of orderly progress and reform is the sound common sense of all classes of the Canadian people.

I have stated frankly and fearlessly my party's policy toward labor and law enforcement. I stand now, as always, for law and order, for all, under all circumstances. This policy is the democratic British method and I shall apply these principles in the administration of our provincial affairs.

Earl Rowe.

Leader of the Liberal-Conservative Party in Ontario

EYES AND NERVES

Don't forget that eyestrain means nerve strain.

Nerve strain is a great drain on vitality and it is not wise to wait until the strain becomes urgent.

The longer you delay, the greater the damage to your health and the poorer will be your eye-sight.

"Let's teach Temperance!"

—Overheard in a barber shop

1st Customer: . . . well, what do you mean by temperance education?

2nd Customer: I'll tell you what I don't mean! I don't mean telling children a lot of exaggerated stories so that they're scared out of their wits when they see their elders drink a glass of beer!

1st Customer: Oh, admitted that old-fashioned sort of propaganda is all wrong! But I still think something should be done . . . what is your idea of temperance education?

2nd Customer: It should teach people that there are a great many things in this world that are good servants, but bad masters. It should teach them to be able to use any of nature's gifts temperately. It should show them that not to use something, because they are afraid of using it to excess, is a confession of weakness . . .

1st Customer: That's all very well in theory. But let's get down to brass tacks. What would you teach them about drinking?

2nd Customer: Well, the first job is to get people to distinguish between moderation and abstinence, between necessary control and prohibition.

1st Customer: At least, I'll agree you can't make people sober by law . . . we tried that one!

2nd Customer: Yes, and our second job is to destroy one of the very wrong ideas left over as the handiwork of the prohibitionists . . . to get out of the people's heads the idea that the purpose of drinking, or even necessary result of drinking, is to get DRUNK.

1st Customer: Right! Most of all the abuses come from misguided efforts to substitute law-control for self-control.

2nd Customer: And finally, we'd advance temperance education further if we'd make everyone see that drinking, like eating and smoking, is really a social custom . . . a thing least likely to be abused if people drink wholesome, mildly-stimulating beverages in public government-controlled premises. That is the British way of handling the problem. History proves it's still the best way!

Jane Addams Figurine Is Added To Gallery

A figurine representing the late Jane Addams, founder of Hull House and internationally known world peace worker, has been added to the gallery of these little figures of prominent Chicago women in the Chicago Historical Society in Lincoln Park, says the Christian Science Monitor in a story from Chicago.

The small wax figure dressed in an orchid-colored silk gown is carrying a tiny book titled "Forty Years at Hull House." It was made by Mme. Minna Schmidt, costumer and originator of several thousand figurines of women from many nations who have contributed something to the progress of humanity. Some 400 of her "women of the world" are now in Washington, D.C., and are gradually added to when diplomats of foreign countries propose women of their nation who, they think, deserve this honor, Miss Schmidt said.

Alleged WIT

It never pays to worry about what other people are thinking about you, for they are probably wondering just what you are thinking about them.

Harold — "Was Ed shocked over the death of his aunt?"

Jacob — "Shocked? He was electrocuted."

Ashes to ashes, dust to dust;
If it weren't for paint, women would rust.

Handler — "He failed on legs — not long enough."

Exhibitor — "Well, they touch the Man (to farmer) — "Why are those bees flying around so frantically?"

Farmer — "I guess they have the hives."

BILLBOARDS

I think that I shall never see
A billboard lovely as a tree
Perhaps, unless the billboards fall,
I'll never see a tree at all.

Lady — "Here you are again, and I just gave you a pair of shoes last month."

Tramp — "Yes, lady. I just came back to see if you would have them half-soled for me."

READ IT OR NOT !—Dutch clocks are made in Germany.

Exhibitor — "Why didn't my dog win a prize?"
floor, don't they?"

Operator — "Number please?"

Drunk — "Number nothing. I just put a nickel in here. Where's my chewing gum?"

Guest — "Well, goodnight, I hope I haven't kept you up too late."

Host (yawning) — "Not at all. We would have been getting up soon anyway."

Breathing through the mouth is said to be harmful, talking through the mouth also has very serious results at times.

Friend — "She'll come along soon, without a doubt."

Man — "Yeah? Shell be doubting my sobriety, my veracity and my fidelity."

Explaining gets to be a chronic habit with a lot of people.

Traveller — "This rain should do a lot of good."

Porter — "Yes, sir. An hour of it would do more good in five minutes than a month of it would do in a week any other time.

The fellow who got that job away from you yesterday is a low-down, chiseling so and so, and he cut the price to the bone to get it. When you got that job away from him last month it was superior salesmanship.

June Groom — "Who spilled that mustard on this waffle, dearest?"

June Bride — "Oh, Jack how could you? This is lemon pie!"

His employer said he was an independent salesman; he took orders from nobody.

Bountiful Crop Ruined By Rains

Serious Loss Caused in Grain Fields in Many Points in Ontario Potatoes in Danger, Too

TORONTO—Rain, tumbling down out of sodden skies during the past week and soaking farmlands over a large section of the Province, has blasted the hopes for a bountiful grain crop held by farmers earlier in the season.

Reports from numerous Ontario points indicate that an over-abundance of rainfall is liable to cause a serious loss of grain, while farmers in the Chatham district have encountered an outbreak of foot rot among their herds of cattle, result of wet ground.

Farmers in the vicinity of Woodstock report grain crop conditions in Oxford County to be the worst in many years. In the London district, several cases were reported of grain sprouting in stooked wheat on the field. The hot, damp weather, it was said, is also having a bad effect on the potatoes, and it is feared that a continuance of such weather may result in blight.

In the St. Thomas district there were also reports of grain sprouting while lying in the fields. Many sheaves have fallen over, sprouted and grown fast into the ground.

Rain fell upon Kingston in heavy sheets, coming down in such quantities that windshield wipers were of little use and street lights were turned on to enable drivers to see approaching traffic.

Some apple growers in the Ingersoll district are preparing to give their orchards an extra spraying to counteract the effect of the wet spell. An attack of apple spot is feared. Usually the orchards receive five sprayings, but owing to the almost continuous wet weather for nearly a week, it has been deemed advisable to give an extra spraying.

One grower stated that there is a plentiful yield of early apples. The later varieties, it was estimated, will not be more than 60 per cent of an average crop, with the indications that the Spys will probably not be 50 per cent of the average.

Soviet-U.S. Trade Pact Won't Affect Canada

OTTAWA. — The new commercial agreement between the United States and Soviet Russia proclaimed at Washington will have little or no effect on Canada's trade with either of the countries in the opinion of trade officials here.

Interpretation placed on the agreement here is that the principal change will be to give Russian coal and coke free entry into the United States. Canada and Russia are not competitors in this commodity and there is little competition in others.

The expansion of Russia's purchasing in the United States will also make little difference to Canada. The trade between Canada and Russia, freed last September from a mutual embargo, amounts to only a few thousand dollars a month.

"The great task of this generation is to save democracy, to preserve it and to inspire it."

—Stanley Baldwin.

Size of Dairy Herd to Keep

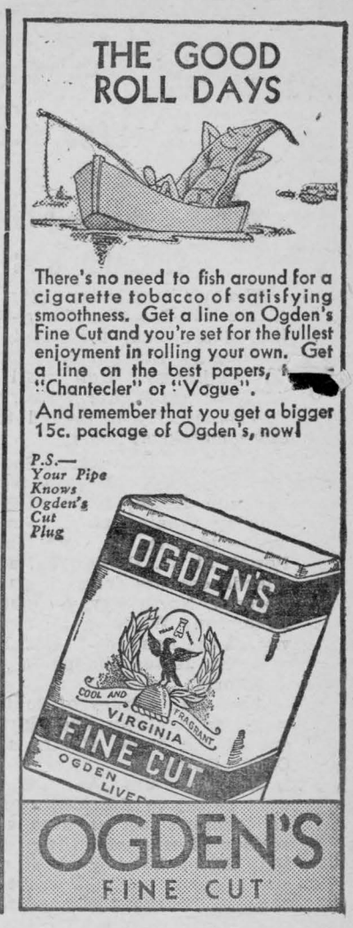

To Prove Most Profitable on Average Farm

The question is often asked as to the size of a dairy herd likely to prove the most profitable on the average farm.

The profit in milking cows lies mainly in the selection from, and in the breeding of high-producing, pure-bred dairy stock. Good cows are seldom bought, but they can be raised. This means beginning with a pure-bred sire with either the cows one already has or with young heifers selected from practical, pure-bred herds.

The size of the herd should be determined by the amount of pasture land that is available, the possibility of growing the bulk of other feeds necessary, can be cared for without the employment of additional regular labor, or without requiring added buildings.

A group of fewer than five cows is unprofitable because it requires too long to fill the cream can, does not easily justify buying a separator and demands approximately the same amount of labor and barn room as a large number of cows. A herd of more than ten cows per family demands further employment and assistance, and more buildings on the average farm.

SCOUTING
Here There Everywhere

A brother to every other Scout, without regard to race or creed

Boy Scout world census figures for 1937, just compiled by the International Bureau, reveal a new record increase of 340,000. The figures bring the world total membership to 2,812,074. The last world census, taken in 1935, gave a total of 2,472,-014. Scouting is active today in 49 countries counting the British Empire as one.

* * *

The Herculean job of feeding some 25,000 Boy Scouts is reflected in some of the catering figures of the American National Scout Jamboree, recently held in Washington. For the 75,000 "boy meals" served each day, the cooks ordered 250 tons of foodstuffs. This included 900 bushels of potatoes, 13,000 pounds of bread, 25,000 quarts of milk, 4,000 pounds of butter 50,000 eggs and 1,200 gallons of canned vegetables, such as tomatoes, corn, succotash and string beans, which, after consuming, the boys went out into the arena and played Indians-and-cowboys.

* * *

The rescue after two hours' of effort of a young woman clinging to the face of a cliff was an achievement this summer of the 6th Bridgewater Boy Scout Troop, Somerset, England. A young man and his fiancee had been caught by the tide in a cove, and attempted to scale the cliff. The young woman was unable to complete the ascent, and her companion, finally gaining the top, discovered the Scouts, and called upon them for help. With rope and tackle the Scouts descended the cliff by another route, then ascended to the young lady, secured her with their lines, and climbing ahead, hauled her by stages to safety.

* * *

An interesting introduction of a public official involving Boy Scouts took place in New York recently. Governor Lehman appointed Charles W. Frossel, a Justice of the City Court, and he was inducted into office before nearly 400 people. As the ceremony was drawing to a close, Eagle Scout Theodore Endres was called to the Bench, and he administered the oath of the Boy Scouts of America, with Justice Frossel repeating. This ceremony was requested by Justice Frossel, who has given 16 years of service to the Scout Movement.

The Tomato Crop

Picking of tomatoes for canning in Eastern Ontario, commenced this week. They appear fairly good, but some black rot is in evidence in many fields. Factories have contracted for the crop at 30 to 35 cts per bushel, depending on the district where they were grown. This price compares with 27 1-2 cents paid last year. The acreage of canning factory tomatoes shows a substantial gain this year. In Eastern Ontario about 9,000 acres were set out as against 5,000 acres in 1936. In Eastern Ontario the acreage shows a rise from 16.000 to 25,700.

Plowing Match

The 1937 annual four-day international ploughing match and demonstration of farm machinery, under the auspices of the Ontario Ploughmen's Association, will be held at Fergus, Ont., on October 12, 13, 14 and 15. Located as it is 14 miles north of Guelph, Fergus is an ideal rendezvous for this famous meeting, and it is expected by the Manager of the Association, J. A. Carroll, East Block, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, that the widespread interest evidenced in former meetings, particularly at Cornwall in 1936, will be eclipsed by the enthusiasm already shown in this year's meet. Over 600 entries are anticipated, and seveal intenationally-famous ploughmen have intimated their intention to complete. There will be a different programme every day. Notwithstanding that ploughing affords the chief interest, an important part of the meeting is the demonstration of the latest types of farm equipment.

Care of Poultry

Commercial poultrymen have known for a long time that the months of August and September are the two most profitable months in the year if egg production can be maintained at this time. The normal trend of egg prices is up and at fairly rapid rate, because the bulk of the flocks of old birds in the country are falling off in production and most of the new pullets have not yet started to lay. Every effort, therefore, that can be made to maintain production at this time should result in added profits.

This means that it is most desirable to watch the condition of the birds, and should there be any indication of their falling off in weight, increase the amount of grain fed slightly in order to hold up this body weight as long as possible and thereby ward off a molt. It is extremely important that clean, fresh drinking water be available at all times, for water is an essential for good egg production. It may be necessary to change the water 2 or 3 times a day during hot days in order to encourage the birds to drink more.

If the birds are running outside in the yard and the natural supply of green food has been eaten up, it will pay the flock owner to cut greens from another field and throw them into the yard for these old layers. It will pay to cater to their tastes right now in order to get every egg possible.

Poison Control of Potato Beetle

The best and cheapest poison to use in the control of the potato beetle in Eastern Canada is calcium arsenate, at the rate of 1 1-2 lbs. to 40 gallons of Bordeaux mixture, the Bordeaux itself being composed of 6 lb. copper sulphate, 4 lb. lime, and 40 gallons of water. If the calcium arsenate is used alone in water instead of Bordeaux, two to three lbs. of hydrated lime should be added to each 40 gallons. Should arsenate of lead or Paris green be preferred to the calcium arsenate as the poison to be used, two to three lbs. of the arsenate of lead, or one-half to one pound of Paris green may be substituted in each 40 gallon barrel of spray.

Some growers prefer to apply the poison in powder form, using a dust composed of one part of arsenate of lead to 6 parts of hydrated lime. Best results in dusting are secured when the application is made in the early morning or late evening when the vines are wet with dew and the air calm.

In spraying potatoes, the joison should be mixed with Bordeaux as the latter material is not only a valuable fungicide but repels the attack of such destructive insects as flea beetles and leafhoppers. Two or three applications in a season should give sufficient protection from all insects. Potato beetles are usually found in the field before the new crop of potatoes is even up and they lay their eggs on the under-sides of the leaves. When the yellow masses of eggs are hatched is the time to make the first application of the poison. In spraying, both the upper and lower surfaces of the leaves should be covered with an abundance of the material. When the plants are small, 50 to 75 gallons per acre and when the plants are fully grown, 100 to 120 gallons per acre is not too much at each application.

Dairy Calves

Are dairy calves raised with the aid of nurse cows freer from calf ailments, such as scours, than those which are reased on the busket? Well informed observers say they are. Calves raised on the bucket often gulp their milk too fast, and scouring results. Utensils, necessarily employed for the feeding(often are disease carriers.

One suggestion is to put three or four calves on each nurse cow. The cow's total production should be sufficient to give each calf from eight to ten pounds of milk daily. Let the calves nurse two or three times per day, until they are fifty to sixty days old. After that, reduce the nursing frequently to once daily.

Beginning in the third week, the straight milk ration should be supplemented with hay and a meal mixture. A good meal is composed of equal parts of yellow corn, oats, wheat, bran, linseed oil meal and dry skim-milk. By the time the nursing frequency is cut to once a day, each calf should be consuming approximately two pounds of meal per day. The efeding of meal is gradually increased until the calves can be totally weaned without serious chacking of their growth.

DEATH STALKS OUR HIGHWAYS!

If every human life in a village of 800 people in the Province of Ontario were snuffed out in one day, newspapers throughout the entire world would carry the story of the ghastly tragedy.

If one of your loved ones—or even a friend—were a victim, it would become quite a grievous, horrible, personal loss!

That is precisely what is going on in Ontario this year. Nearly 800 people will be killed on our highways. Nearly 14,000 will be injured—many of them crippled; many of them suffering almost unbearable pain. Death and untold suffering stalk our highways and this must stop!

RECKLESS DRIVERS BEWARE!

Motorists have been requested to be courteous on the road but the death toll mounts at an appalling rate. This Department, with the aid of our internationally famous police force and public-spirited citizens, intends to put reckless drivers off the road! You must stop cutting in, passing on hills and curves, crowding, racing, taking chances. Unless you have regard for the safety and convenience of other users of our highways you will soon find yourself in serious trouble.

MOTORISTS: WE ASK YOUR HELP!

When you see a motorist driving in a manner dangerous to the public, take his number, make a careful note of the actual time and place, and when you reach your destination write to the Motor Vehicles Branch, Department of Highways, Toronto, giving full details. We do not invite reports of minor infringements of the traffic laws; you are requested to use sound judgment. We will deal adequately with offenders!
