who, on Wednesday of this week, was returned to power with 91 seats, the largest number in the history of the Province.

Premier Ferguson, whose majority in Grenville in 1926 was 1,247 votes, was re-eleced by more than 2,000 majority over T.H. Bradley, his Prohibitionist opponent. The Prime Minister's eleven colleagues in the cabinet were also re-elected.

W.E.N. Sinclair, K.C., the Liberal leader, saw his forces, which numbered 21 in the last House, dwindle to 9. He was re-elected in Ontario South, but his majority of more than 2,000 in 1926 election was cut down to a bare 1,000.

CHALLIES IS ELECTED BY 824 MAJORITY

Mr. Geo. H. Challies, Reeve of Morrisburg, Conservative Candidate for Dundas County, was elected in Wednesday's contest by a majority of 824 over Messrs Beach and Hamilton. In this contest, the successful candidate was honestly and honorably opposed by his opponents and their followers. Those who voted against him, however, as well as those who voted for him, agree that he was not elected as an experiment. He will go to Toronto well qualified to represent all the people and to deal with all the problems which confront the Government, and those of vital importance to the people of his native county, in the same effective manner as he has dealt with public matters locally.

Mr. Challies was born in Winchester and for the last fifteen years he has resided in Morrisburg. He is well and favorably known in Eastern Ontario and enjoys the confidence of a large acquaintance, as was indicated in Wednesday's results. He received the election returns quietly from his home, there being no demonstrations of any kind.

JUDGMENT IN FAVOR OF IMMIGRANT BOY

A judgment for $1,122.50 was given in favor of W.J. Wakefield against David Harrison of Metcalfe, farmer, in a unique case before the supreme Court of Ontario on Saturday morning.

Wakefield, who was an English immigrant lad, came to Canada in 1921 and was placed, by agreement, on Harrison's farm. He worked for seven and a half years and two days before his twenty-first birthday, when he was to receive his back wages, he was dismissed. He sued for $1,168.15, declaring that in all the time he had worked for the defendant, he had received clothing valued at $208. and a membership and regalia in the Orange Young Britons. He had also received 50 cents on two occasions to attend the picnic on July 12. Plaintiff alleged that he had never been allowed to go to school.

For the defence, Mr. Harrison claimed that the boy was practically useless as a farm hand until his second year, that he refused to go to school and that he stayed out frequently until one or two o'clock in the morning. Defendant testified that he had given Wakefield "more money than was good for him." Wakefield was not worth more than $15. a month during the last two years and previous to that was worth only his board.

Under cross examination, defendant admitted that Wakefield worked for 15 days on the county roads and received a cheque for $37.50, which defendant told him to endorse over to him. Wakefield did so. He had also received Wakefield's wages for four days' work in the bush. Mr. Harrison admitted that he had never spent any money on medical or dental attendance for the plaintiff, or for books.

Asked whether he had ever taken Wakefield to the Ottawa exhibition, witness said: "No, but I have taken him to the Metcalfe fair."

Mr. Justice Kelly declared that he was reluctant to express himself about the case. The plaintiff was a sturdy, intelligent lad, capable of learning the details of farming. The defendant had used the boy for all these years. Defendant had quibbled in the box, attempting to minimize the truth.

"I find that in all these years, he gave the boy only $8.85 in cash for regalia in the Orange Young Britons." The bench also criticized the defendant for taking money from the boy that he had earned.

"I feel that he has earned at least the amount that he asks."

His Lordship gave judgment for the plaintiff for $1,122.50. Mr. Fripp asked for a stay of execution for fifteen days.

Lesson Sunday School

November 3. Lesson V—Respect for Rightful Authority (World's Temperance Lesson)—Mark 12: 13-17; Romans 13: 1-7; 1 Peter 2: 13-16. Golden Text—Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers.—Romans 13: 1.

ANALYSIS.

I. DUTY TO CHURCH AND STATE, Mark 12: 13-17; Rom. 13: 1-7; 1 Peter 2: 13-17.

II. THE FULFILLING OF THE LAW, Rom. 13: 8-14.

INTRODUCTION—The Bible is everywhere and always on the side of good government, the kind of government that restrains evil doers and promotes and guards the welfare of the people.

"A wise king scattereth the wicked."
"A king that sitteth on the throne of judgment Scattereth away all evil with his eyes."
"Mercy and truth preserve the king: And his throne is upholden by mercy."
"Take away the wicked from before the king,
And his throne shall be established in righteousness."

In such passages as the above the wise man in Proverbs declares the benefits of a just and merciful rule. The state is but the enlarged family. Just as parents exercise authority in the home, so must the appointed ruler, or rulers, in the state. The great problem is to find and establish the best rulers with the best and most effective kind of government. And equally great and difficult is the problem of how to get rid of bad or incompetent rulers.

"Efficiency in government," says a recent writer, "is an indispensable tool for social progress. But it must be another kind of efficiency than is commonly admired. It must be efficiency in caring for all the interests of all the people, in giving expression to the common vital desides of the whole community. Such a government is the people doing together in all justice and brotherhood the things they cannot do apart." Such a government the good citizen will respect asd obey.

I. DUTY TO CHURCH AND STATE, Mark 12: 13-17; Rom. 13: 1-7; 1 Peter 2: 13-17.

The Pharisees and the Herodians sought to entangle Jesus in their fierce party strife. The Pharisees and their followers were Jewish nationalists who disliked Roman rule and were unwilling to pay the Roman tax which was forced upon them. Extremists of that party would have gone to war rather than pay. The Herodians supported Herod Antipas, who was dependent upon the favor of Rome for his throne and kingdom, and would therefore have regarded refusal to pay the tribute money as treason to be punished by death. If Jesus said yes to their question (12: 14), the Pharisees would denounce him to the people as a friend of their oppressors. If he said no, the Herodians would accuse him before the authorities. Jesus knew their hypocrisy, and, as so often in the controversies which his opponents raised, he lifted the whole matter to the much higher plane of duty. Let Caesar have his due; let God have his. What you rightfully owe the Roman government, pay. What you rightfully owe to God, pay that also. The very fact that they handled Roman coins indicated a relationship and an obligation. But the duty to God was, and is, always supreme.

The thirteenth chapter of Romans contains a series of lessons in good citizenship. Paul, himself a Roman citizen (Acts 22: 27), writing to Roman Christians, counsels submission to their rulers. Governments in their origin are ordained of God. It would not be correct to interpret what Paul says here as establishing the divine right of any government, good or bad, or as condemning resistance to an evil and unjust rule. But he does say that a recognized and accepted government ought to be obeyed. For rulers are not a terror to good works, but to the evil. Paul had himself been protected from harm more than once by the Roman authorities. The ruler, he says, is the minister of God. The king, or judge, or magistrate, who recognizes this fact and all that it implies, will surely seek God's guidance that he may be a true minister. As for the subject it is better that he should obey for conscience sake rather than for fear of his wrath. Paul's counsel is like that of Jesus: Render therefore to all their dues (compare Titus 3: 1).

The teaching of the apostle Peter is practically the same (1 Peter 2: 13-17). The highest motive of obedience is for the Lord's sake, that we may the better serve and honor him who is our Lord and Master.

II. THE FULFILLING OF THE LAW, Rom. 13: 8-14.

The debt which no man can escape is the debt of love. We owe this love to God first of all for his great love and abundant goodness. God would have us pay in kind to our fellow men. He that loveth another, Paul says, hath fulfilled the law. Of this Rauschenbusch writes, "The Law called for love for one's neighbors; the scribes had added the permission to hate one's enemies. Jesus raises the standards of good will. The law of love applies to all. There is nothing great in loving those who love us. Anybody can do that. Heroic love begins where no love comes to meet it. Those who can win that triumph show the true family likeness of God." To pity, to love, and to redeem the unlovely, unwholesome, and depraved is to be indeed godlike.

Love will, of course, do no harm to those upon whom it is poured out. Love worketh no ill to his neighbor. Love is the law of light. Out of the deadly sleep of selfishness and indifference to the needs and sorrows of those about us Paul exhorts men to awake. He believes that Christ's great day of triumph is approaching. The day is at hand, the day of salvation. The works of darkness are selfishness and hatred. The armor of light is love.

Moffatt renders, "No revelry or bouts of drinking, no debauchery or sensuality, no quarreling or jealousy. No, put on the character of the Lord Jesus Christ," vs. 13, 14. It was these words of Paul that Augustine read when his conscience had been awakened regarding his former manner of life. It was these words, as one has said, that "nailed him once for all to the Cross."

Australia Has Big Dried Fruit Year

Canberra, Australia.—For the year ended June 30, 1929, the quantity of dried fruits produced in Australia was a record. The fifth annual report of the Dried Fruits Control Board said that the estimated production for the year 1928-29 was 70,000 tons, as compared with 31,850 tons for 1927-28, when the yield was materially reduced in consequence of damage done by frost.

The sales of Australian sultanas in London for 1927-28 showed a marked decline on the figures for the previous year—11,097 tons, as compared with 2,815 tons. There was also a reduction in the average prices realized, but this was largely due to the inferior quality of the fruit in consequence of the frost damage. For the 1928-29 harvest it is expected that exports to Great Britain will reach 50,000 tons, which will establish a new record in exports. The quantity shipped up to June 30, 1929, was 33,159 tons. Only 580 tons of currants were shipped to Great Britain for the year, also on account of frost damage.

To preserve the trade that has been built up with Canada in the last few years the board deemed itexpedient to send the major portion of the exportable surplus of currants to that Dominion. It is confidently expected that, as a result of the appointment of R. A. Haynes as commercial representative in Canada, every effort will be made to exploit this market to its utmost capacity, in order to dispose of the record surplus that will be available this year.—Christian Science Monitor.

How King George Saved a Warship

Story of Torpedo Boat 79 Told by Sir George Arthur

How the King, as a young naval lieutenant, saved a disabled warship from being dashed on the rocks on the Irish coast is revealed by Sir George Arthur in his book, "King George V.; a Sketch of a Great Ruler."

The occasion was the naval manœuvres of 1889. Prince George (as the King was then) was in command of torpedo-boat No. 79.

He was only 24, and it was his first independent command.

Torpedo-boat No. 79, with two other torpedo-boats, had to make Rathmullen, on Lough Swilly, for a rendezvous with a senior officer.

No. 79 turned up at daylight one morning, and her commander reported that one of his consorts had broken down, and was anchored on a lee shore, not far from the rocks.

He had tried to tow her off, but had carried away his only hawser, and nothing could be done but leave her there, with the third boat standing by, while he came in for fresh ropes.

The position was so fraught with peril that the senior officer's impulse was to proceed himself to the scene and superintend the salvage.

Prince George, however, begged to be allowed to try again, and, supplied with a new hawser, he took his ship out again in the teeth of a heavy gale and high seas.

Prince George and his crew had been up all the previous night, grappling with a tough job in rough weather; but by bold initiative, nerves of steel and skilful seamanship, he was able to salve his sister-ship and tow her to her harbor moorings.

Sir George tells a curious story of the Russian Soviet Delegation which was established in London.

He gives it as an instance of the King remaining rigid in his control in his own social province.

Sir George states that the Foreign Office informed the department of the Master of the Ceremonies that as the Russians had "come into line" the representatives of the Russian Government were eligible for an invitation to the Royal garden party.

Presuming that the Foreign Office had first communicated with the King, the usual formal notice of the party was sent to the Soviet Embassy.

The King, it is stated, on hearing of what had happened, said very plainly that the garden party was his private concern, that no invitation was to be sent to Chesham House, and that the officials who had blundered must make the best job they could of the bungle.

R-101 For India Are Latest Plans

When Details Are Completed New Airship Will Sail Egypt-India Route

London—Great Britain's new monster airship, R-101, which has just made a nine hours' experimental flight, has come through the trial so well that it is now settled that it is to undertake the long-distance journey to Egypt and India. Spare engines are to be sent to some overseas base for renewals en route, but the actual date of the airship's departure is not yet settled, as the Air Ministry's policy is safety first and every precaution will be first taken to insure success.

The speed of the recent flight was over 70 miles per.. hour. with only three engines out of five running and the throttles less than three-fourths open. It is hoped therefore that 85 miles per hour will be reached later. The Air Ministry, Lord Thomson, accompanied the flight.

Two of the most remarkable features of the trip, he said in an interview with the Daily Herald, the Government organ, were first the cheering of hundreds of school children at Nottingham, the young voices coming dimly through the air to the passengers on board This fact is explained because, as the Minister said, the engines were so noiseless that even at 2100 feet, at which the R-101 was then traveling, ground sounds came to them as a voice speaking through an ordinary telephone

So smooth was the trip, Lord Thomson added, that he was able to dispose of a full box of Air Ministry papers during the time it lasted. "You get," he said, "complete detachment and apart from the tremendous sense of security, there is no doubt that flying in ships of this description is conducive to contentment of mind."

Canada First in Nickel, Newsprint Fifth in Total Trade

Ottawa.—Canada ranks high in production and international trade among the leading commercial nations of the world. In production she leads the world in output of newsprint, nickel, asbestos and cobalt; she occupies second place in the production of wheat, and third place in the output of lead and gold. In export trade she leads the world in exports of wheat, newsprint, nickel and asbestos; she occupies second place in exports of wheat flour and third place in exports of wood pulp. According to most recent comparative statistics available for the calender year 1928, Canada occupies fifth position in aggregate trade as also in imports and exports, among the leading commercial nations of the world; second position in export and total trade per capita; third place in favorable trade balance, and second place in favorable trade balance per capita.

These striking facts are revealed in the 37th annual report of the repartment of trade and commerce, compiled by F. C. T. O'Hara, deputy minister. The report reveals a decided trend towards increasing direct trade with foreign countries rather than through the United States or the United Kingdom as formerly; increased percentage of exports of fully or semi-manufactured goods and increased utilization of Canadian ports for both incoming and outgoing trade.

Attention Paid To Spark Plugs Is Asset to Car

Important Bit of Mechanism Functions So Well That It Arouses Little Interest

Water Must Be Avoided

The spark plug is a very small part of the automobile's mechanism. In fact, it is so small and has been made so reliable that many motorists have overlooked it entirely.

Improvements in motor design and in the spark plug itself have brought the working of this important engine part to such a high degree of perfection that many of the troubles which at one time were quite usual are now unknown. It is not now unusual for cars to be driven 5,000 miles or even 10,000 miles without it becoming necessary to clean a spark plug.

Because it needs so little attention the motorist is likely to be unfamiliar with the spark plug's construction and uncertain as to how to cure its ills when trouble does develop.

The spark plug consists of a metal shell which is threaded to screw into the cylinder of the engine. Into this shell is placed a "porcelain" insulator, which has a metal spindle running through it. One end of this spindle is brought close to a projection from the shell of the plug, and these two points form the gap across which the spark occurs inside of the cylinder.

The electric current can travel only when it has a complete circuit—that is, it must be able to get back where it started from. In the spark plug circuit it starts from the induction coil and travels on a wire which is heavily insulated with rubbed to the center spindle of the spark plug. It follows this spindle into the cylinder, and there jumps to the propection on the spark plug ase, giving a spark as it crosses the gap. From the base of the plug it travels through the metal of the engine back to the induction coil from which it started.

In order to jump the gap at the "points" of the plug it is necessary that the electric current have a very high pressure, as this gap offers some resistance to its travel. It is to keep this high tension current from jumping at any place except the points that the insulator is employed in the spark plug.

Water and carbon are two fairly good conductors of this current, and if water gets on the insulator outside of the cylinder the current may travel thruogh it to the metal of the cylinder and not jump the points in theplug at all Likewise, is carbon collects on the part of the insulator which projects into the cylinder, the current may pass through it instead of jumping the gap. If it does not jump the gap no spark will occur.

When splashing through puddles of water or in a very heavy rain water will sometimes pass through the radiator and get on the porcelains in sufficient quantity to cause the engine to skip. The heat of the engine, however, will generally evaporate the water and quickly clear up this trouble. When the engine is run with a very rich mixture, a poor grade of lubricating oil ,and when too much oil is being used, due to worn engine parts or improper feeding, carbon is deposited in the cylinders. This gets on the insulator and forms a path over which the current can pass without jumping the gap.

This carbon may be removed by soaking the plug in denatured alcohol, cleaning the insulator with a small stiff brush and a piece of cloth. Care should be taken not to scratch the insulator with a knife or sandpaper, as this will open up the pores, with the result that carbon will then collect more quickly.

PAYMENT

Let every man consider this: One must pay for the best the world has to offer whether one gets what is paid for or not. Success is had only at a price. But all of us alike must pay. If you do not pay for it with the positive forces and values that will bring it to you then you pay with the negative qualities that not only defeat but also bring a train of unhappiness, misery and regret.

Do you take pleasure in Housework ?

"I NOW go about my daily work with pleasure," says Mrs. Scott of Guelph. In spite of tiring domestic tasks and family cares, that is the way every woman should feel. But how many do?

Thousands of women all over the world have regained strength and nervous energy by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and write to tell us so.

Mrs. Scott is one of these. "I was very much run-down, nervous, tired. I took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and am as well as ever again. Now I go about my work with pleasure; in fact, feel 10 years younger."

Buy a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at all druggists and dealers in medicine or, postpaid, by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ontario.

Civil Aviation Makes Strides In Canada

Toronto.—Civil aviation in Canada has become an important factor in the many phases of the business and community life of the Dominion. It is 10 years since civil aviation began in the Dominion, when a commercial compan obtained a contract from the Quebec Provincial Government to patrol an area of forest land for fire protection during the summer of 1919. Since then many uses have been found for aircraft, which include forest fire detection and suppression, timber cruising, air photography, transportation of passengers, express and mail, instruction, advertising, sightseeing, and "joy-riding."

Sixty-two organizations or individuals are now engaged in civil flying, including the Ontario Provincial Air Service, while 21 light airplane clubs are in operation. There are 330 aircraft licensed for commercial use in the Dominion, by the Department of National Defense, and 278 commercial pilots, and 253 air engineers hold certificates.

Fifty-three airports and seaplane ports are similarly licensed, while a large number of municipalities in every province are giving consideration to the construction of airports. Nine schools of flying are conducted and a large number of pupils are receiving instruction. In addition there are 22 private owners of aircraft, and 221 licensed private pilots.

An important part is being played by aircraft in connetion with mineral development in the northern parts of the Dominion. The carriage of mail by air is another important phase. Eighteen months ago mail was delivered to a few outlying districts. During 1928, however, 316,631 pounds of mail were conveyed. For the first six months of this year 245,750 pounds have been carried by contractors.

The light airplane club movement inaugurated in 1927 has shown great results. Twenty-one clubs are active and have a membership of 4248, of which 278 are solo pilots, and have to their credit a total of 5975 hours in the air to date this year.

The construction of an airship base and airport at St. Hubert, near Montreal, followed the decision of the Dominion to participate in Empire air communication by airship. A mooring tower has been erected and equipped with the most efficient machinery obtainable for the reception of the British airship R101, which is expected to make its first transatlantic passage in the autumn of this year. An airdrome comprising 792 acres is being constructed, which, when completed, wil rank as one of the finest in the world. — Christian Science Monitor.

The Measure of a Man

Not—"How did he die?"
But—"How did he live?"
Not—"What did he gain?"
But—"What did he give?"
These are the units
To measure the worth
Of a man, as a man,
Regardless of birth.

Not—"What was his station?"
But—"Had he a heart?"
And—"How did he play his God-given part?"
Was he ever ready
With a word of good cheer,
To bring back a smile,
To banish a tear?"

Not—"What was his church?"
Nor—"What was his creed?"
But—"Had he befriended those really in need?"
Not—"What did the sketch in the newspaper say?"
But—"How many were sorry when he passed away?"

We heard a flapper say if you want a sure-fire thrill try kissing a man with hiccoughs.

Standing on a street corner the other day a friend told Jim that a lady just passing was over 50 years old. Jim said, "You woudn't think it to look at her knees."

Why the Diet Habit Continues to Grow

Wife—"Will you love me if I grow fat?"

Husband—"No,, I promised for better or for worse—not through thick and thin."

We will believe that aviation has really arrived when we see a two-passenger airplane go by with seven or eight high-school students seated in it.

Helen—"Is your physician helping you to reduce?"

Gladys—"I think so. I fancy both father and myself have grown thinner worrying over his enormous bills."

The modern girl would rather mend a fellow's ways than his socks.

Then there was the absent-minded professor who put the light in bed and put himself out for the night.

Alarm is expressed for fear that skirts may eventually become so high they will be mistaken for neck ruffles.

Scientist has invented a machine that can match colors perfectly. We don't know what the machine is, but it isn't a husband.

He—"Have you ever kissed a man before?"

She (falteringly)—"Y—yes."

He (excited)—"Tell me his name so I can give him a good thrashing."

She—"But—but—he might be too many for you."

Teacher—"Tommy, tell the class something about Lindbergh's great feat."

Tommy—"I never saw them, but I can tell about Charlie Chaplin's."

If he asks me I'll say "Yes." It doesn't make much difference. He's clever and good looking. His hands are gentle. I like to feel them in my hair. I think he would treat me all right. If he doesn't ask me, never mind—but if he does I'll say "Yes."

"Shampoo, madam?"

"Yes."

Customer—"I want a ton of coal."

Dealer—"What size do you want?"

Customer—"Well, if it's not asking too much, I would like to have a 2000-pound ton."

NO MEDICINE LIKE BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Once a Mother Has Used Them She Will Use Nothing Else.

To once use Baby's Own Tablets is to use them continually—that is as long as there are young children in the home. That is the testimony given us by mothers from all parts of Canada. They all say that they know of nothing to equal the Tablets, that they find them safe and efficient and at the same time pleasant to take.

Mrs. John Hollinworth, Maidstone, Ont., writes:—"I have three children, the eldest fourteen and the youngest nine months old. I have always used Baby's Own Tablets for them and have found no other medicine to equal the Tablets as a relief for the many ailments of childhood."

Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach. They drive out constipation and indigestion, break up colds and simple fevers and make the cutting of teeth easy. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Enthusiasm

If you can't get enthusiastic about your work, it's time to get alarmed. Something is wrong.

Compete with yourself; set your teeth and dive into the job of breaking your own record.

No man keeps up his enthusiasm automatically.

Enthusiasm must be nourished with new actions, new aspirations, new efforts, new vision.

It is one's own fault if his enthusiasm is gone; he has failed to feed it.

And right here is the big reason why thousands of men hit high-water marks at thirty-five and then recede.

They can "do their work with their eyes shut," and that is the way they do it.

They have lost the driving power of enthusiasm.

They sleep at the switch. All they see in life is the face of the time clock. All they hear is the quitting whistle.

If you want to turn hours into minutes, renew your enthusiasm.

Stop Colds with Minard's Liniment.

When joy is denied to the child, there is very little chance that it will ever come into the life of the grown man or woman.

It is just as easy to form a good habit as it is a bad one. And it is just as hard to break a good habit as a bad one. So get the good ones and keep them.

Acid Stomach

Excess acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer, when you learn how quickly, how pleasantly this premier method acts. Please let it show you—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess aids. Each bottle contains ful directions—any drugstore.

Fairy Tales and Facts

Rebecca West in the London Evening News (Ind. Cons.): A good-looking young woman who is not born to riches is extremely unlikely to win any dazzling social success unless she gives herself prestige by following some sort of occupation. Unless she does that she is extremely unlikely to secure admission to the world of gaiety on any terms, much less permanent elevation to the prosperous classes. The fairy tale of Cinderella is only a fairy tale. In real life few people marry out of their own class. One is born to chandeliers and marriage at Hanover Square; they are not to be obtained otherwise save once in a blue moon.

Farewell to Fasting

London Evening Standard (Ind. Cons.): After a decade during which women have looked like pencils or pillar-boxes it is a delight to find them looking once more like women, and to have all the ancient poetic images of the female form again coming true. It is undoubtedly prettier that rapturous admirers should be reminded of Greek vases by the appearance of the ladies of their choice than that they should have to recall a mere coffee canister. But the revival has its dangers, since, if carried to extremes, it will bring back tight lacing and with it all the ills that went with that barbarous mode.

If you are affronted, it is better to pass it by in silence, or with a jest, though with some dishonor, than to endeavor revenge.

Few women are color blind, except in the matter of distinguishing red and green traffic lights.—Florence

Restless Children

Children will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always one sure way to comfort a restless, fretful child. Castoria! Harmless as the recipe on the wrapper; mild and bland as it tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than some powerful medicine that is meant for the stronger systems of adults.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is any need. In cases of colic, diarrhea, or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. But it has everyday uses all mothers should understand. A coated tongue calls for a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed to set everything to rights. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.

KIDNEYS

"For three years I have been troubled with kidney trouble, and could scarcely walk for pain. Last Christmas a friend of mine came to stay with us for a few days, and brought with her a bottle of Kruschen Salts, and gave me a good dose. After about a week, taking a little every morning, I found the trouble leaving me, and I could walk well. I have taken Kruschen regularly until a month ago, and then I thought I could manage without them, but last week the old trouble came back again. I immediately got a bottle of Kruschen Salts then and there, and I feel quite a new woman again. I am so grateful that I thought I would write and let you know what I think of your wonderful Salts."

Your Children's Health Depends on Safe Food

GENERAL ELECTRIC Refrigerator

You, as a conscientious mother, buy the best food for your children, prepare it with scrupulous care and cook it correctly. Yet, in spite of all, you may be giving your children food which is not wholesome—possibly dangerous!

For even the best food becomes unsafe to eat unless it is kept at the proper degree of cold, which medical authorities agree should be 50 degrees or less—always. Above that temperature, bacteria multiply, food is contaminated and becomes a menace to health.

There is only one way to be sure that your children's food is fresh and healthful—correct refrigeration. There is one refrigerator that assures you of scientifically perfect refrigeration at all times—the General Electric. Faithfully, quietly, day and night it maintains a temperature safely below that important border-line—50 degrees.

There are now more than 300,000 homes enjoying the convenience, economy and protection of General Electric Refrigerators—and not one owner has spent a single dollar for repairs or service. The simple mechanism which you never need to oil, is mounted on top of the cabinet and hermetically sealed in a steel casing. It has an accessible freezing regulator, makes a generous supply of ice cubes, creates no radio interference. Its cabinet is easily cleaned and sanitary.

We shall be glad to help you select the model suited to your need and tell you about the spaced payment plan.

A STITCH IN TIME SAVES NINE

This age-old adage applies just as well to the eyes as to other things.

It is a peculiar fact, that in spite of the splendid facilities now availabe for the scientific examination and care of the human eye, many people disregard the Optometrist's existence until they have eye-strain to such a degree as to make them uncomfortable.

Many people who dread the thought of wearing glasses would never have to wear them, except perhaps for reading, if they would consult a competent Optometrist in time.

The best time to have your eyes examined is before you feel your eyesight failing, not after. It is dangerous to gamble with your eyesight.

Eyes should be examined at least every two years, and, under some conditions, more often. Phone for an appointment.

THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE

© Charles Scribner's Sons

by S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR of THE BENSON MURDER CASE

THE STORY THUS FAR:

Spotswoode had gone out with the "Canary" the evening of the murder. When he left, he asked Jessup, on the switchboard, to call a cab. "Then," said Jessup, "we heard Miss Odell scream. We ran to her door and she called through it that everything was all right." But the next morning she was found strangled. Cleaver, known to be an intimate of the girl, is questioned but provides an alibi. He mentions Dr. Lindquist, who orders Markham out of his house when the latter questions his as to his whereabouts the evening of the murder.

CHAPTER XIG.

Vance shook his head in a mock discouragement.

"Really, y' know, Markham, old thing," he added, "you should study the cranial indications of your fellow men more carefully. Did you, by any chance, note the gentleman's wide rectangular forehead, his irregular eyebrows, and pale luminous eyes, and his outstanding ears with their thin upper rims, their pointed tragi and split lobes? . . . A clever devil, this Ambroise—but a moral imbecile. Beware of those pseudo-pyriform faces, Markham; leave their Apollonian Greek suggestiveness to misunderstood women."

"I wonder what he really knows?" grumbled Markham irritably.

"Oh, he knows something—rest assured of that! And if only we knew it, too, we'd be considerably further along in the investigation. Furthermore, the information he is hiding is somewhat unpleasantly connected with himself. His euphoria is a bit shaken. He frightfully overdid the grand manner; his valedict'ry fulmination was the true expression of his feeling toward us."

"Yes," agreed Markham. "That question about last night acted like a petard. What prompted you to suggest my asking it?"

"A number of things—his gratuitous and obviously mendacious statement that he had just read of the murder; his wholly insincere homily on the sacredness of professional confidences; the cautious and Pecksniffian confession of his fatherly regard for the girl; his elaborate struggle to remember when he had last seen her—this particularly, I think, made me suspicious; and then, the psychopathic indicants of his physiognomy."

"Well," admitted Markham, "the question had its effect. . . . I feel that I shall see this fashionable M.D. again."

"You will," iterated Vance. "We took him unawares. But when he has had time to ponder the matter and concoct an appealin' tale, he'll become downright garrulous. . . . Anyhow, the evening is over, and you can meditate on buttercups till the morrow."

But the evening was not quite over as far as the Odell case was concerned. We had been back in the loungeroom of the club but a short time when a man walked by the corner in which we sat, and bowed with formal courtesy to Markham. Markham, to my surprise, rose and greeted him, at the same time indicating a chair.

"There's something further I wanted to ask you, Mr. Spotswoode," he said, "if you can spare a moment."

At the mention of the name I regarded the man closely, for, I confess, I was not a little curious about the anonymous escort who had taken the girl to dinner and the theatre the night before. Spotswoode was a typical New England aristocrat, inflexible, slow in his movements, reserved, and quietly but modishly dressed. His hair and mustache were slightly gray—which, no doubt, enhanced the pinkness of his complexion. He was just under six feet tall, and well proportioned, but a trifle angular.

Markham introduced him to Vance and me, and briefly explained that we were working with him on the case, and that he had thought it best to take us fully into his confidence.

Spotswoode gave him a dubious look, but immediately bowed his acceptance of the decision.

"I'm in your hands, Mr. Markham," he replied, in a well-bred but somewhat high-pitched voice, "and I concur, of course, with whatever you think advisable." He turned to Vance with an apologetic smile. "I'm in a rather unpleasant position, and naturally feel a little sensitive about it."

"I'm something of an antinomian," Vance pleasantly informed him. "At any rate, I'm not a moralist; so my attitude is quite academic."

Spotswoode laughed softly.

"I wish my family held a similar point of view; but I'm afraid they would not be so tolerant of my foibles."

"It's only fair to tell you, Mr. Spotswoode," interposed Markham, "that there is a bare possibility I may have to call you as a witness."

The man looked up quickly, his face clouding over, but he made no comment.

"The fact is," continued Markham, "we are about to make an arrest, and your testimony may be needed to establish the time of Miss Odell's return to her apartment, and also to substantiate the fact that there was presumably some one in her roms after you had left. Her screams and calls for help, which you heard, may prove vital evidence in obtaining a conviction."

Spotswoode seemed rather appalled at the thought of his relations with the girl becoming public, and for several minutes he sat with averted eyes.

"I see your point," he acknowledged at length. "But it would be a terrible thing for me if the fact of my delinquencies became known."

"That contingency may be entirely avoided," Markham encouraged him. "I promise you that you will not be called upon unless it is absolutely necessary. . . . And now, what I especially wanted to ask you is this: do you happen to know a Doctor Lindquist who, I understand, was Miss Odell's personal physician?"

Spotswoode was frankly puzzled. "I never heard the name," he answered. "In fact, Miss Odell never mentioned any doctor to me."

"And did you ever hear her mention the name of Skeel . . or refer to any one as Tony?"

"Never." His answer was emphatic.

Markham lapsed into a disappointed silence. Spotswoode, too, was silent: he sat as if in a reverie.

"You know, Mr. Markham," he said, after several minutes, "I ought to be ashamed to admit it, but the truth is I cared a good deal for the girl. I suppose you've kept her apartment intact. . . ." He hesitated, and a look almost of appeal came into his eyes. "I'd like to see it again if I could."

Markham regarded him sympathetically, but finally shook his head.

"It wouldn't do. You'd be sure to be recognized by the operator—or there might be a reported about—and then I'd be unable to keep you out of the case."

The man appeared disappointed, but did not protest; and for several minutes no one spoke. Then Vance raised himself slightly in his chair.

"I say, Mr. Spotswoode, do you happen to remember anything unusual occurring last night during the half-hour you remained with Miss Odell after the theatre?"

"Unusual?" the man's manner was eloquent of his astonishment. "To the contrary. We chatted a while, and then, as she seemed tired, I said good night and came away, making a luncheon appointment with her for today."

"And yet, it now seems fairly certain that some other man was hiding in the apartment when you were there."

"There's little doubt on that point," agreed Spotswoode, with the suggestion of a shudder. "And her screams would seem to indicate that he came forth from hiding a few minutes after I went."

"And you had no suspicion of the fact when you heard her call for help?"

"I did at first—naturally. But when she assured me that nothing was the matter, and told me to go home, I attributed her screams to a nightmare.

"I knew she had been tired, and I had left her in the wicker chair near the door, from where her screams seemed to come; so I naturally concluded she had dozed off and called out in her sleep. . . If only I hadn't taken so much for granted!"

"It's a harrowin' situation." Vance was silent for a while; then he asked: "Did you, by any chance, notice the door of the living-rom closet? Was it open or closed?"

Spotswoode frowned, as if attempting the visualize the picture; but the result was a failure.

"I suppose it was closed. I probably would have noticed it if it had been open."

"Then you couldn't say if the key was in the lock or not?"

"Good Lord, no! I don't even know if it ever had a key."

The case was discussed for another half-hour; then Spotswoode excused himself and left us.

"Funny thing," ruminated Markham, "how a man of his upbringing could be so attracted by the empty-headed, butterfly type."

"I'd say it was quite natural," returned Vance. . . "You're such an incorrigible moralist, Markham."

"Brutal and Licentious Soldiery!"

London Daily Helegraph (Cons.): The British soldier—the "brutal mercenary" of wartime propaganda—has been discovered by thousands of Germans for the genial, good-tempered football-loving sportsman that he is, and in scores of German homes the inevitable inonveniences of billeting have been mitigated by the British soldier's chivalry to women and his incurable habit of making friends with children. When in 1923 there was some possibility of the British force being withdrawn as a protest against the French advance into the Ruhr, it was the Germans who asked most loudly that they should remain. If the British leave no rancour behind them, that is in itself the best witness to their singularly good behavior.

National Prices for Coal

London Daily Herald (lab.): A national marketing scheme has its complement in a national agreement on hours and wages. To seek to accomplish one and to ignore the other will simply lead to a continuance of the existing chaos. The Prime Minister has solemnly warned the owners against their stiff-necked attitude, and if they are wise, they will listen to the voice of reason before worse befalls them. Few things stirred the country more at the general election than the consciousness of the plight to which miners had been reduced by the owners' selfish and ignorant policy, and there will be a terrible reckoning for those who continue to obstruct the way to peace, efficieny and a decent life for Britain's underground workers.

Labor and the League

London Daily Express (Ind. Cons.): The Labor politicians who are now in office ought to have learned from their previous experience what it means to commit a fundamental error in foreign policy. We warn them that if they persist in coquetting with this new Geneva vamp they will split the Cabinet, they will split the party, and they will rouse up against themselves in Parliament and throughout the country the same incensed feelings of distrust that swept them away in 1924.

What greedy ears receive loose tongues betray, but no one repeats what you don't say.

How to Remain Young

Learn to relax.

Don't fight with yourself.

Keep shy of internal friction.

Don't waste time in vengeful thoughts. It never gets you anything but trouble and futility.

Don't feel that the world is set against you.

And don't let yourself cultivate the notion you're a great little fellow. For, as the paraphrasers of the beatitudes have it, "Blessed is he who expecteth nothing, for he shall not be disappointed."

I well recall how, many years ago, my dear old dad took me aside one day and told me: "Don't ever waste time, son, trying to get even with someone you fancy may have wronged you. Because, just as soon as you finish getting even with him there's bound to be someone else."

City Evening

The light that burned me up by day
Decides a little while to stay,
And writes a long and golden scrawl
In tree-leaf shadows on my wall.
The bulbous sun has spilled his fire,
Impaled upon a Jersey spire;
And hard day-objects of the street
Grow soft, in the long light, and sweet.
Noon's hot fortissimo still clings,
Muted in many murmurings;
And with the lingering light o'erspread
My thoughts are all new garmented.
Far down the block in yellow ease
Behind a row of gold-tipped trees
The "L," like some old dream, goes by Betwixt the Avenue and sky.

Needless Pain!

The man who wouldn't drive his motorcar half a mile when it's out of order, will often drive his brain all day with a head that's throbbing.

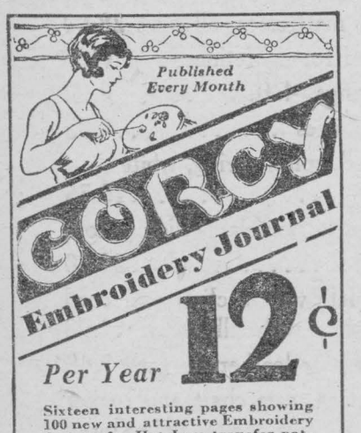

Such punishment isn't very good for one's nerves! It's unwise, and it's unnecessary. For a tablet or two of Aspirin will relieve a headache every time. So, remember this accepted antidote for pain, and spare yourself a lot of needless suffering. Read the proven directions and you'll discover many valuable uses for these tablets. For headaches; to check colds. To ease a sore throat and reduce the infection. For relieving neuralgic, neuritic, rheumatic pain.

People used to wonder if Aspirin might be harmful. The doctors answered that question years ago.

It is not. Some folks still wonder if it really does relieve pain. That's settled! For millions of men and women have found it does. To cure the cause of any pain you must consult your doctor; but you may always turn to Aspirin for immediate relief.

Ontario Aviators Set New Record

Total of 11,500 Flying Hours Since First of May

Toronto. — Figures made available recently show that the Provincial Forestry Air Service flyers have rolled up a total of 11,500 flying hours since May 1, and have flown over approximately 850,000 air miles.

Not a single flying record, day, week, month, individual or entire force, of past years remains. All have been shattered in the 11,550 hour grind—5,440 hours more than in 1928—brought upon the force by one of the worst fire hazard years in the history of the Department of Lands and Forests.

"This great record has been established without injury to a single member of our service personnel or to a single passenger that we from time to time have carried with us," said the head of the Service.

Only two stations of the many from which the fliers battled with the bush fires this season remain open at present — Fort Frances and Kenora. While no further hazards are anticipated several small fires were spotted from a patrol out of Sudbury last week, and the service is taking no chances.

In most cases, however, the reconditioning program of the force is under way, and most of the machines that were engaged on detection and suppression work are now at the Sault Ste. Marie base for refitting and overhauling.

Still "Tiger"

Clemenceau Shows Old Spirit When Told of Briand Defeat

Paris.—Although confined to bed and still suffering from a severe heart attack, former Premier Clemenceau showed a flash of the old Tiger when further details were brough to him of the collapse of Aristide Briand's Cabinet.

"I regret I'm not a deputy," he declared. "I would have voted to keep Briand's job for him."

On Wednesday last Clemenceau suffered a brief relapse which required the presence of Dr. Jean Walser. Oxygen was again administered to the patient and he showed signs of improvement. Dr. Charles Laubry, the heart specialist, visited him several hours later and left saying:

"Everything is all right. We shall soon see the Tiger of 10 years ago."

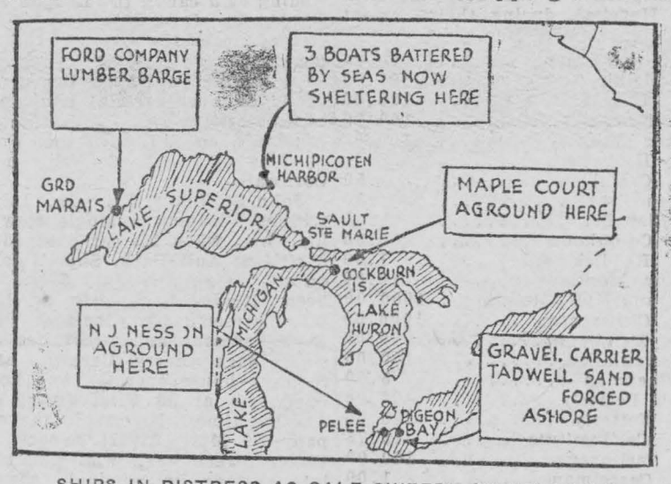

Less anxiety prevailed also with reference to former Premier Raymond Poincare, who appears to be recovering rapidly from the operation which he underwent several days ago for the removal of the prostate gland.

An official bulletin issued at the clinic said: "Poincare's condition continues to be very satisfactory."

Poincare was not advised of the fall of Aristide Briand's Cabinet for fear that he would insist upon seeing political callers and exert himself in some effort to form a new Government.

Kiss-stealing was not a crime in Canada, according to an old French custom.

Some of the Places Where the Lake Shipping Suffered

SHIPS IN DISTRESS AS GALE SWEEPS GREAT LAKES

The map reproduced here shows position of ships that were aground and in distress as worst gale of the season swept the Great Lakes. As the crosses indicate, the Ford Co. barge is aground near Grand Marais, after breaking away foom its guardian tug; the Canada Steamships' line freighter, Maple Court, went aground off Cockburn island, Lake Huron; the N. J. Nessen, a wooden freighter, pounded to pieces in seas 200 yards off Pigeon bay, Lake Erie, near Leamington; while gravel carrier Tadwell was forced ashore off Point Pelee, Lake Erie. In Lake Michigan a Grand Trnnk Ferry was lost carrying fifty men to their deaths.

King to Go South

Physicians Forbid Him to Remain at Home During Coming Winter Say Reports

Lisbon, Portugal.—It was reported here from several sources that King George of England has been forbidden by his physicians from passing the winter in England, and may come to Portugal. The newspaper "Diaro Lisboa" said that some of the King's physicians are coming to study the climate and living conditions on that portion of the coast which is known as the Portuguese Riviera.

At the Foreign Office it was said that no hint of such an intention had been received, but that the soverign It was said that the Duke Palmetta could count upon a warm welome from the Portuguese people and cordial hospitality throughout his stay. had offered his mansion as a temporary home for King George.

London. — Inquiry at Buckingham Palace brought a reply that nothing was known there concerning the Lisbon report that doctors were going to Portugal to investigate that country as a proper place for King George to winter.

Landed Giant Trout

Cranbrook, B.C.—Crowning an angling season that has been a record for huge fish, Joseph Kline, of this city, landed a Kamloops trout that measured forty inches long and weighed thirty-five younds and eight ounces.

The giant land-locked salmon was hooked in Premier lake, the home of real big ones.

Kline gaffed the monster after two and a half hours intensive sport.

McAlpine Party's Safety Doubted

Officials Entertain Grave Fears of Possibility of Rescue

Ottawa.—While hope is not abandoned for the safety of the McAlpine Party in the far reaches of the Northwest, officials here are beginning to entertain grave doubts of the rescue of the fliers.

If, by a streak of luck they have landed among natives of the Northern region they will be all right but if their planes have crashed in a wilderness it is feared that death may result from exposure.

The food supply must also be low unless they are equipped to kill game and fish.

The relief party has been delayed in the rescue operations till the lakes are frozen over but dispatches indicate that they are carrying out the search. Considering that the fliers have been missing since early in September each day increases the probability of disaster.

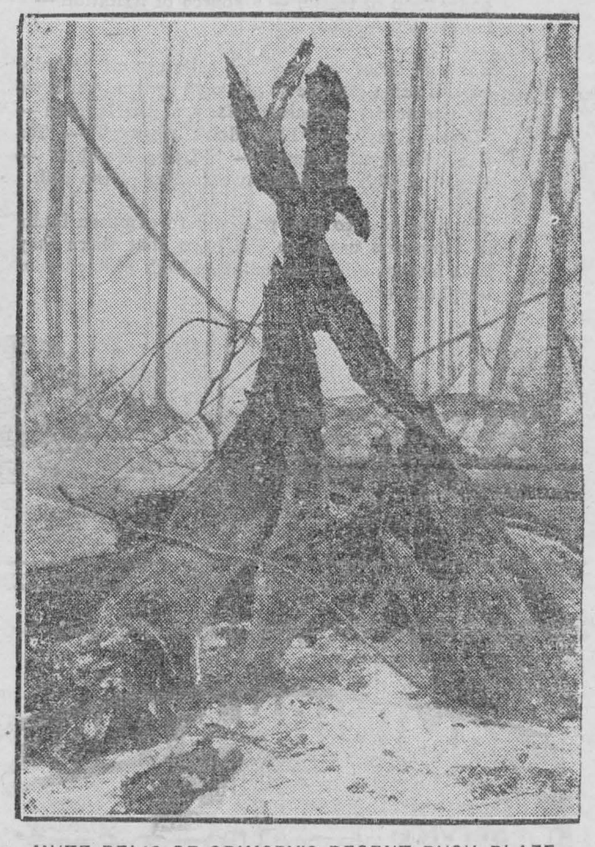

Narrow Escape from Mad Bull

Cloverdale, B.C.—George Shannon, internationally known breeder of dairy cattle, owes his life to a recent policy of dehorning all livestock on the Shannon Brothers' farm.

Penhurst Getho, a three-year old Ayrshire bull, imported from the Old Land turned on him and inflicted injuries that may keep him in bed for several weeks.

Had the bull been equipped with horns, Shannon would have been fatally gored.

Quebec.—Memories of the 'Untin Bowler, the giant amphibian which was carried away from its moorings and sunk in the Hudson Straits last Summer, were brought to Quebec when Capt. John Hearn, who was in command of the S.S. Aranmore, showed visitors a light but strong boathook made of wood, but with a brass hook at each end, which is the only piece of equipment salvaged from the amphibian.

The Aranmore was in the Hudson Straits last summer, engaged in work for the Federal Government, when Capt. Hearn found the boathook embedded in the ice, and managed to pry it loose.

"It was a lucky thing for the members of the expedition (the 'Untin Bowler men), that they had a Government radio station, with provisions for a couple of years, to stay in, otherwise their fate might have been very different," Capt. Hearn declared.

Ice conditions in the Hudson Straits and Hudson Bay were just about as usual, according to Capt Hearn, who stated that he had seen no huge bergs, while neither had there been any exceptionally rough weather.

Tribute to Mounties

The Aranmore's skipper paid tribute to the R.C.M.P. stating "They are the finest set of men I have ever met. And, what is more, very little is heard of them. They do not believe in publicity, but if some of the work they have accomplished were to be made public, it would be more widely known what a large part they have played in developing the northern regions of Hudson's Bay."

Queried as to navigation prospects in the Hudson Bay district, up to Port Churchill, Capt. Hearn stated that in his opinion, when properly safeguarded by the necessary lights and other aids to navigation, and patrolled by ice-breakers, navigation in future would be as common there as elsewhere.

He advocates the same system as is in force on the St. Lawrence, an ice patrol for the guidance and assistance of vessels which, he thought would enable navigation to be opened towards the middle of July at the latest, and towards the end of the season, another patrol to keep "fox ice" from forming and freezing vessels in for the winter.

The Aranmore is now safely berthed in Halifax, and Capt. Hearn, who was formerly in charge of the ice-breaker Mikula, is back in Quebec for the winter.

Young Tribesmen Disturbing Kenya

Increasing Lawlessness Among Warriors Causes Great Anxiety and Governor of Colony Spends Week-End in Affected Area

INQUIRY IS MADE

Nairobi, Kenya Colony—Increasing lawlessness among the young men of fighting age in the frontier tribes, the Lumbwas and Massais, is causing great anxiety to the small community of whites in the British section of East Africa. Inter-tribal warfare was threatened following incidents in the territory of these tribes, but was averted by the timely efforts of a single European police officer.

Sir Edward Griff, Governor of Kenya Colony, spent the week-end in the affected districts conducting an inquiry, and as a result told the Legislative Council that he had received a number of reports concerning the growing tendency of lawlessness on the part of young Lumbwa warriors which was bound to have a disturbing effect on the other tribes.

The position is complicated by the fact that various farms allocated to white settlers before the World War, with the object of establishing a buffer area between the traditionally antagonistic Massai and Lumbwa tribes, do not now exist, Sir Edward pointed out. They were now occupied largely by Lumbwa tribesmen.

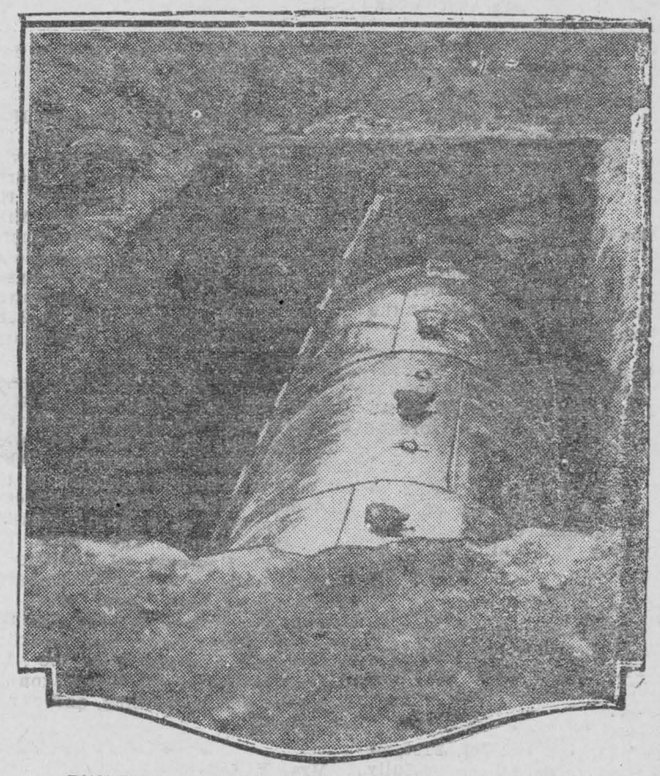

Sir Edward added he had been informed the younger warriors had been gathering without the permission of their chiefs or elders, and the results were plainly apparent in increasing numbers of cattle thefts, burglaries and other disorders. Attacks had been made on tribesmen suspected of being informers.

Danger of Clashes

A general antagonistic attitude towards white settlers was not expected Sir Edward continued, but there was a danger of clashes on lonely farms and this was causing anxiety. In order to prevent the outbreak of further crimes, extra policemen have been drafted for the Lumbwa territory. A company of the King's African Rifles—native drilled troops—has been ordered to patrol the Massai reserve in the vicinity of the boundary.

The population of the colony is estimated at 2,736,517, including 12,529 European or whites; 2,686,848 Africans; 80,583 Asiatics, and 10,557 Arabs. Tribes on the Abyssinian border and in Jubaland gave trouble even during the World War, when the complete available forces, official and volunteer, were busy in the German East African campaign.

Anti Evolutionists Will Now Rejoice

British Scientist Terms "Missing Link" a Myth

London.—Asia's claim to being the home of the Missing Link is disputed by Prof. Elliott Smith, professor of Comparative Anatomy at University College, London, who goes so far as to say not only that China wasn't the Missing Link's home, but that there is not now, and never was any Missing Link.

Thus in a sentence Professor Smith has settled to the satisfaction of at least one group of British scientists, the alleged unsupportability of the claims of other scientists that the recently excavated Sinanthropus Pekinensis skull found in a limestone bed at Choukoutien near Peiping is the skull of the Missing Link.

"There is no evidence, so far, that the Sinanthropus Pekinensis was our ancestor," said Professor Smith in an interview. "He might be called our 'cousin' but certainly not our ancestor.

"There is a theory that the human family's original home was in Asia. I do not myself subscribe to it, and I do not regard the discoveries near Peiping as evidence in support of that theory." Man, he said, was not descended from a cross between a chimpangee, or gorilla, and the Missing Link, but from a remote common ancestor of both the human family and the apes.

Scientific interest in the Sinanthropus Pekinensis lies in fact, first of its immense antiquity, and second, because it apparently combines an ape-like jaw with the skul of a human being.

Discussing the skull Professor Smith said:

"The superiority of man is revealed in the development of those parts of the brain associated with performance of skilled movements, with discrimination of shape, weight and size, and with the properties of objects. Such faculties as touch, hearing and vision are as well developed in the ape as in man.

"Man's superiority is shown in the development of those parts of the brain which made it possible to profit by experience."

Solves Murder Two Years Old

Regina, Sask.—A murder mystery nearly two years old has been solved by a Mounted policeman.

Sam Kuhutz, Ituna, Manitoba, has been sentenced to die for the murder of Dymtro Bodak, whose body was found in a slough near Ituna in the Autumn of 1927. Several hundred dollars in cash missing from the man's effects.

Corporal Medcalfe, R.C.M.P., Melville, worked on the case for months

Rather peculiarly sewn underwear found on the skeleton of the body was compared with that in a suitcase known to have belonged to the murdered man.

Police sent to Poland and summoned Bodak's widow. The woman identified the clothing as that of her husband ,a sort used by Polish people.

Bodak was shot. Some days after Kuhutzo bought a team of horses with the money said to have been stolen from the slain man.

Canada and the Empire

Toronto Globe (Lib.): If world peace is to be achieved, sooner or later, it wil be through the good offices of the British Empire, but first the Empire must establish its solidarity in a common cause of good-will and authority. In this service Canadians can accomplish much, not as Canadians only, but as Britishers.

Quid Pro Quo

Toronto Star (Ind.): Great Britain has, it is reported, arranged with Argentine to sell that country 100,000,000 pesos' worth of railroad supplies and other manufactures and take Argentine wheat in payment. Not only the cheap price of Argentine wheat, but the Argentine market for British manufactures affects the situation.

The funeral service was held at the Windsor Hotel on Monday Oct. 28th. Interment was made in Williamsburg cemetery. Rev. Jenkins Burkholder officiated.

Present from out of town at the funeral were Miss Mabel Phillips of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Phillips and Mrs. Alguire of Cornwall.

JOHN ST. LOUIS IN COUNTIES' JAIL

The mystery surrounding the finding of a car in the Longue Sault Rapids on July 30th was finally cleared up by the arrest of the miss ing man.

Appearing in Police Court Saturday on a charge of non-support and desertion, John St. Louis was remanded to jail until this Friday by Magistrate J. C. Milligan at Cornwall.

John St. Louis, 31, who vanished without leaving a single clew behind him when his car plungedover a cliff at Ault Park, Sheik's Island on the night of July 30last, has been located by police. St. Louis was arrested by Cheif of Police Fred Seymour and Provincial Constable Jack Berry, Cornwall at a rooming house operated by Thomas Sanderson at 39 First Street east. At the time, he was in the company of Mrs. Albert Pecore, 303 Water Street west, who was taken into custody on nominal charges. From the time of his arrest at 5.30 until 11.30 Saturday. St. Louis maintained stubbornly that the police were mistaken and that he was not the wanted man but later he admitted that they were right.

GOING TO CHURCH

It seems to be easier and easier not to attend church. Working too late Saturday night, or staying too late in town, when all tired folks should be asleep, brings a feeling of wanting to lie around on Sunday, instead of dressing up and going to church.

Too frequently company comes, and it seems impossible to go to church and leave your friends behind. But if you are going to be a booster, you have to be regular. This going one Sunday and missing three does not create enthusiasm for your church nor cheer your minister.

Church-going is largely a habit, and a very good one to form. We cannot but get some good. We are brought in contact with the best people of the community. We are setting a good example. We feel that we are doing the right thing, which gives us the sense of respectability, as well as responsibility. Church-going tends towards better thinking, talking and doing.

Some people, when they go to church, complain that nobody spoke to them. Ask them if they spoke to anybody. No, they were strangers It might just happen that those sitting next were strangers too. It never comes amiss to be friendly. A little nod of the head, or a smile, or the more gracious handshake, is just as welcome from you as if extended by the other person.

We want to be a little freer with our praise. Our ministers won't be spoiled if we say we like their sermon. The soloist will sing all the sweeter if we tell her what pleasure and inspiration her songs bring to us.

Some churches are just big, friendly neighborhoods. Everybody is happy. Other churches are stiff and formal, gloomy and depressing. We can help make ours either the one kind or the other.

Let's not "just belong." Let's be an out-and-out booster.

(Sgd.) James Zeron.

HUMANE SOCIETY TESTIMONIAL

On Friday afternoon, a very interesting event occurred at the weekly meeting of the Public School Literary Society, Aultsville, when the testimonial of the Royal Humane Society was presented to Harold Poaps, a pupil of the school, for courage and presence of mind displayed last July in rescuing another pupil, Douglas Crites, from drowning in the St. Lawrence River.

A very interesting and appropriate address was delivered by Rev. Mr. Warren, minister of Trinity United Church, who took as his subject those well-known words which describe heroism and self-sacrifice so beautifully: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friend." The Reverend gentleman referred to the great heroes of the past and present and the sacrifices they had made for others, and drew the conclusion that still flames as brightly in the soul of modern youth as it did in past centuries.

The presentation was made by Miss Ruth Sheets, daughter of Mr. J.W. Sheets, chairman of the Board

Mrs. Lucy Dickey and Miss May ville.

The prizes won at the Osnabruck School Fair by the pupils of Aultsville School were then presented by Rev. Mr. Thom, rector of St. Pauls Anglican Church. Mr. Thom warmly complimented the boys and girls on their success at the school fair, and also referred to the heroism of Harold Poaps and the example and inspiration his brave deed should be to others.

The Literary Society was organized by the local teachers, and has been a splendid success. A number of parents attended the Literary Society meeting.

IT takes three to complete a telephone call: the operator, the person calling and the person called. If any one of the three is at fault, the call fails.

Uncompleted telephone calls are a serious public problem. We call attention to it because we want you to have the best possible service at lowest possible cost.*

Every day in Ontario and Quebec there are over one million local telephone calls which are blocked — a waste of two million minutes a day — a congestion of traffic — a source of irritation — a handicap to perfect service.

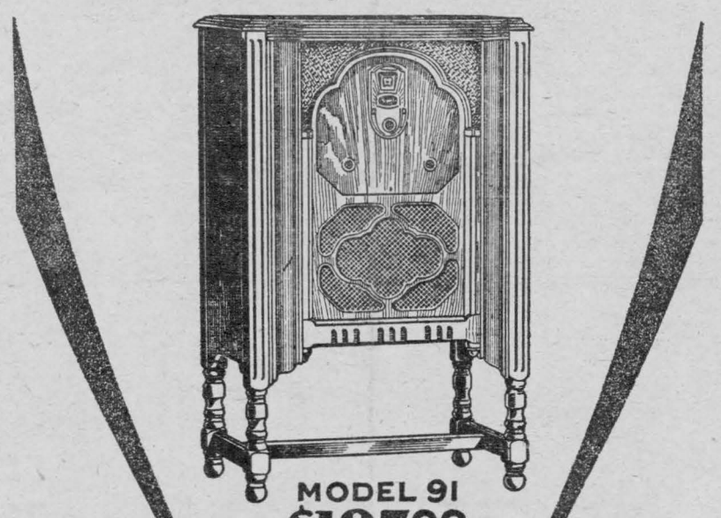

Some of these uncompleted calls cannot be helped and some are due to our own errors, which we are constantly reducing. Many of the failures — "Line's Busy" — "They don't Answer" — "No one on the Line now" — "Wrong Number" — originate with the other two parties to the call.

We plan now to give publicity to common faults in telephone usage in the hope that there may be a mutual effort to maintain high efficiency of telephone service.

It is costing more than $27,000,000 this year to extend and improve telephone service in Ontario and Quebec.
