Iroquois Teacher Goes to Woodstock.

W. G. Anderson, B.A., classical master of the Iroquois high school, has resigned to accept a similar position on the staff of the Woodstock Collegiate Institute. During his four years on the I.H.S. staff, Mr. Anderson has proven himself a worth educationist. This together with his identification with church and social functions cause general regret at his removal. His successor is Miss Grace Connor, M. A,. of Kingston, a graduate of Queen's University, and honor specialist in classics.

Student Drowned in a Creek.

Moncton, N.B., August 26.—Domonique Breau, a student at St. Joseph's college, was drowned in the creek near the college yesterday afternoon, where he had gone for a swim with another lad, Alfred LeBlanc. The water in the middle of the creek was about ten feet deep. Breau's companion warned him not to go in, but the young man did not heed. He appeared to slip on the muddy bank into the centre of the stream, and immediately sank. His companion secured a pole and tried to reach him, but it was too short, and before assistante could be secured, the drowning boy had disappeared. It was said he could swim a little. Breau was 17 years of age. He was an orphan and lived at the college.

Winnipeg will install a garbage incinerator to cost $200,000.

Thomas Jamieson, who will take over the duties of inspector of the public schools of the county of Carleton, on September 1st, belongs to a well known family of North Gower and is well known throughout the county, He was born at North Gower and began his education in the public school at Kars; where he obtained his first certificate. He then taught in his native county for three and a half years, during which time he continued his studies privately. Desirous of obtaining higher qualification he attended Carleton Place high school and then Perth Collegiate Institute. It was at the latter institution that he obtained matriculation, securing at the same time first class honors in mathematics and a scholarship Continuing his studies he attended Victoria College, now affiliated with Toronto university. and at the end of four years was graduated bachelor of arts. Upon obtaining professional certificate from the school of pedagogy he taught for six months at Thorold. At the end of the time he was appointed principal of Vankleek Hill high school and has held the position with credit and honor for seventeen years. During the time he has spent there he has won the respect of the pupils with whom he has had to deal and the esteem of a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

Inspector Jamieson has another brother well known in educational circles, James Jamieson, principal of the high school at Morrisburg. Another brother Dr. Archibald Jamieson is a well known physician of Goletta.

Mysterious Fire at Winchester Springs.

Albert Casselman living on the homestead one and a half miles south of Winchester Springs, lost his barns by fire Monday night of last week in a mysterious way. During the day a steam thresher was at work at his place and a heavy rain coming ou about 4 o'clock, work for the day was discontinued, About 11 o'clock at night Mr. Casselman was awakened by Albert Haggerty, a neighbor, who informed him that his barn was on fire. The flames were then bursting from one of the stacks and from the side of the granary about eight feet from the ground. The flames made such rapid headway that scarcely anything could be done but watch the destruction of the splendid buildings, which was soon accomplished, together with twenty five tons of hay, one hundred loads of sheaf grain, 600 bushels threshed grain, three sets harharness, 150 hens and fifteen geese. In addition to this Mr. Casselman lost $100 in cash contained in the pocket of a vest which he left hanging in his grainary. The origin of the fire is a mystery, and Mr. Casselman is inclined to the incendiary theory. In support of this he says the engine sat fifty feet from the stacks and buildings and that the wind was blowing in the wrong direction to carry sparks to them. A heavy rain fell which made ignition from sparks difficult. No one had been smoking. Threshing was discontinued at 4 o'clock, whereas the fire broke out towards 11 at night. At 9 o'clock Mr. Casselman locked his granary and at the same time went round the buildings, stacks and engine, when there was no sign of fire at that time. Mr. Casselman places his loss at $5,000, with only $1,500 insurance. Wesley Summers is also a heavy loser by the destruction of his thresher, valued at between $500 and $600. It is only fair to state that there are those who think the fire started from a spark from the engine which had smouldered in the stack or barn for some time.

The summer residence of Mr. Dickson, of Waco, Texas, on Bostic Island, east of Ganonoque, was destroyed by fire on Saturday night.

Kemptville Fire.

The residence of Philip Cassidy in the north part of the town of Kemptville, was burnt to the ground early Thursday morning. Most of the contents were likewise consumed. The origin of the fire is a mystery, as it originated in the part of the house not in use, and was well under way when discovered.

Wife Identifies Mangled Body.

The man whose terribly mutilated remains were found on the G.T.R. near Lancaster, on Thursday morning, has been identified as John Cavanagh of Ottawa. The despatch sent from Cornwall stating that an envelope post marked Ottawa and addressed to John Cavanagh was found on his person, led to his identification by his wife who was employed by J. Cooney, chief operator on the C.P.R. at Ottawa. Mrs. Cavanagh, who is left with three small children, came to Cornwall and recognized the remains. Cavanagh seemed to be of roving disposition and was recently working in Montreal. It is thought that he probably fell under the cars while riding on the bumpers of a freight train.

It is understood that aside from his wife, Cavanagh's friends live in Montreal.

Miss Piney Sutherland a Rising Artiste.

Miss Piney Sutherland of Winchester who has chosen the stage as her calling is rapidly winning distinction and making a name for herself. The theatrical page of the New York Press of Sunday last contained a photo of Miss Sutherland among a number of other celebraties and in referring to her the Press said, "Hugh McNally, a widely known dramatic writer of Boston, has written a new musical sketch which is intended as a vehicle for the early debut in vaudeville in this city of Miss Piney Sutherland, a Canadian young woman, who is not unknown in the field of musical plays. Miss Sutherland, who is extremely pretty, also is the possessor of a rich soprano voice of unusual range and quality. In addition to her vocal talents, she is a dancer and actress of no mean accomplishment. Her marked versality would seem destined to win her a conspicuous place among the comediennes of the musical stage."

Rainy River Election.

Toronto, August 26—W. A. Preston, the Liberal candidate in the Port Arthur and Rainy River election protest, has decided to appeal to the Court of Appeal from the judgment of Mr. Justice Teetzel, striking out the votes cast by aliens and infants who were on the voters' list. Mr. Justice Teetzel's decision was based on the elimentary requirement which qualify for the franchise. The act plainly states that voters must be British subjects, of the full age of 21 years. The appeal will probably be heard on the first sitting of the Court of Appeal, on September 17. The election trial is to be heard on October 8th.

On Sunday afternoon Very Rev. J. McCann, V.G., will bless and lay the corner stone of the new Infants' home in connection with the House of Providence, Toronto.

GOLD FIND IN NEW ONTARIO.

Ore Assaying $8000 to the Ton Discovered in Playfair Township.

Gold has been struck in large quantities in northern Ontario, according to the information received by Mr. Cecil B. Smith, chairman of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway Company Mr. Smith has learned that a prospector from Lexington, Kentucky, the lucky finder, has located the precious metal in the township of Playfair, north of the height os land, and about 80 miles distant from New Liskeard. The samples analyzed showed an average of obout 411 ounces, or about $8000 to the ton. In addition, the ore carried silver to the amount of about 400 ounces to the ton. The find was made three or four days ago and is expected to draw a large number of miners to the localities as soon as it is known,

A branch of the Temiskaming road recently located, will be constructed near the new gold field before long. The railway Commission has decided to Advertise for tenders for the construction of three branches in a few days. One five miles in length will run from Cobalt through the Gillies limit, to be known as the Kerr Lake section. Another will be laid from Englehart to Charlton, a distance of seven miles, and the third from Haileybury to the wharf on Lake Temiskaming.

Haileybury Fire.

Toronto, Aug. 27—Provincial Inspector Rogers, who has returned from Haileybury, where he had charge of the fire inquest on behalf of the Attorney-General's department, seems to think the big blaze might not have been of incendiary origin. He said to-day that nothing had been discovered which would corroborate the stories of incendiarism, and he said the talk of discovery of coal oil in the store of McCabe & Simpson was not corrobarated. The inquest will be resumed on Sept. 14th, when Inspector Rogers will be back in Haileybury.

A woman said to be Quinn's sister was here yesterday to meet him. Quinn was arrested on July 28 by constable Hollister, who claims that the prisoner picked his his pocket. On the same day over $400 was reported to have been stolen from pockets of people at the lacroose match in Cornwall. Quinn's trial is set for Sept. 24.

SITUATION IN RUSSIA IS GRAVE

Daily Chronicle of Murder and Robbery Is Not Diminishing.

A despatch from St. Petersburg says: According to private advices, the 24th Ural (Cossack) Regiment has mutinied at Samaricand, Asiatic Russia, arrested its officers and replaced them with men from the ranks. The commander of the garrison of Samaricand, it is said, has demanded the immediate surrender of the mutineers, the artillery has been called out and the city is in a state of panic.

POLICE ARE POWERLESS.

In spite of the wholesale arrests and deportation of revolutionists the big centres' daily chronicle of murder and robbery is not appreciably diminishing. The police seem to be utterly powerless to capture the criminals. They do not make an arrest in one case out of 25. While the revolutionary opposition to the Government has thus degenerated into a campaign of crime, the three political parties—Constitutional Democrats, Octobrists and Regenerationists—are drifting. The efforts to effect an amalgamation have failed, and all the leaders seem to be greatly at sea as to what tactics to pursue.

SITUATION DECIDEDLY GRAVE.

A despatch from Samara, Russia, says: The agrarian situation in this province is most grave. Disorders are prevalent in numerous districts, and troops have been requisitioned to restore order in three localities, where firing is going on. Many men have been killed. The peasants of the Kolsoff estate, who recently seized and occupied the land, have returned the property to its owners. A strike of factory hands has begun in Samara, and a number of agitators have been arrested.

RAILWAY STRIKE ARRANGED.

A despatch from St. Petersburg says: At a meeting of one hundred and forty-two delegates, representing all the Russian railways, just concluded in Finland, it was resolved that a general strike will be feasible at a near date and to issue instructions to prepare for it. A committee was appointed to draw up a strike appeal or any other manifesto which may be found necessary.

LAND-OWNERS GETTING OUT.

Official statistics show the extent of the panic among the land-owners. Since last November 1,762,557 dessiatines (a dessiatine is a little over two and a half acres) of land were offered to the Peasants' Bank at about $63 per dessiatine, but the amount actually bought and sold to the peasants is not stated. The bank is selling the land to the peasants on easy terms. In some places it is said the land question is settling itself by this method.

SET THE BODY ON FIRE.

A despatch from Samara says: The commander of the Borissov Regiment on Wednesday was attacked and killed. The murderers escaped after saturating his body with methylated alcohol and setting it on fire.

COLONEL FATALLY WOUNDED.

A despatch from Warsaw says: Count Fermor, a colonel of the general staff, was fatally wounded on Wednesday by revolutionists. A patrol came up immediately after the affair and discharged a volley into the crowd, killing one man.

THE CZAR'S UNCLE.

A despatch from St. Petersburg says the Czar had a long conference on Wednesday with the Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch in regard to the military dictatorship which the Grand Duke has advocated as the sole means of re-establishing order. It is said the Czar is much depressed because the power of the revolutionary element has apparently not been broken. There are strong influences at work, it is said, to make the Grand Duke Nicholas the military dictator, in the hope that he will be able to cope successfully with the situation. The feeling that it will be necessary to install some such regime is gaining ground largely on acount of the terrible state of confusion throughout the country.

Another despatch says that Gen. Trepoff, the Chief of Police in St. Petersburg, is suffering from a severe attack of angina pectoris. It is said that he cannot recover.

BAD HARVEST.

A despatch from St. Petersburg says: The condition of the harvests is giving the Government serious uneasiness. Heavy rain is general over the wheat-growing provinces, where the crop is 20 per cent. below the average, owing chiefly to the political crisis and a failure to sow in considerable areas. In many places the peasants refuse to gather the crops. There is no movement yet towards importing American wheat, but the Government will probably find it necessary to prohibit the export of all grain owing to the famine conditions in many parts of the country. Last week 400,000 bushels of German rye were bought at two cents per bushel below the Russian prices. This rye is of low quality, and such of it as was sent to the distressed provinces arrived there damp and unfit for sowing.

The Moscow Relief Committee reports bad crops throughout the empire, and food for the peasants' cattle is lacking in the Provinces of Nijni Novgorod and Kazan.

The Imperial authorities are now more concerned with the famine problem than with the revolutionary movement.

NEW REGIMENT TO GUARD CZAR.

A new regiment, selected from the squadrons of the different Cossack Guard regiments, has been created to act as the personal escort of the Emperor, who has accepted the title of colonel of the new organization.

The strictest censorship is now exercised over press despatches in the Caucasus, in order to conceal the true state of affairs, both regarding the true inwardness of the Tartar-Armenian warfare, and the fermentation among Russian troops.

The Armenian Tartar situation is worse than is known to the outside world. Almost all the Russian military units are disaffected, and even the Cossacks are rebelling against doing police duty. The latest mutiny is that of the Poltava Cossacks, who several days ago at Tiflis formally demanded to be relieved from police duty, and asked for the discharge of those who had served over three years. The entire regiment was disarmed and confined under guard in their barracks.

BOMB KILLED THIRTY-TWO.

A despatch from St. Petersburg says: Thirty-two persons are dead and twenty-four wounded as the result of an attempt on Saturday afternoon to assassinate Premier Stolypin with a bomb while he was holding a public reception at his country house on Aptekarsky Island. The Premier was slightly wounded on the face and neck by flying splinters.

The legs of the Premier's fifteen-year-old daughter were broken by the explosion. Among the dead are:—General Zameatin, the Premier's personal secretary; M. Khovostoff, ex-Governor of the Province of Penza; Colonel Federoff, chief of the Premier's personal guard; Court Chamberlain Davidoff, Court Chamberlain Voronin and Aide Doubassoff, Prince Nachachidze and Prince Scherwachidze, two delegates from the Caucasian nobility, and four women and two children.

M. Stolypin's three-year-old son is seriously though not fatally injured, and a number of persons who are injured are prominent in the social and official world.

SOME CONSPIRATORS KILLED.

Of the four conspirators who engineered the outrage, two were killed with their victims, while the third, who acted as coachman for the party, and the fourth, who remained inside the carriage, in which they drove to the residence, were badly wounded, and are now in the St. Peter and St. Paul fortress.

TWO KILLED IN RAILWAY WRECK.

Collision Between Passenger Trains at St. Thomas.

A St. Thomas despatch says: A serious head-on collision occurred at the C.P.R.-Wabash diamond crossing a mile east of this city on Friday morning about 8 o'clock. A special Wabash train, with a theatrical company from New York to Chicago, met the C.P.R. regular for Woodstock, both going at a high rate of speed. The Wabash train crew jumped and saved themselves. The C.P.R. crew had not time.

The dead:—Engineer McKay, of Toronto Junction, scalded from head to foot, skull crushed.

Alex. Wiley, baggageman, of St. Thomas, head crushed.

The injured:—Fireman F. Patterson, of St. Thomas, scalded and bruised. Peter Stewart, C.P.R. conductor, head injured; Borbedie, express messenger, St. Thomas. No passengers were injured.

The C.P.R. had the right of way, so the crew claim, but there is no derailing apparatus at the crossing. The C.P.R. train was travelling at twelve miles an hour, and the Wabash at twenty miles. The Wabash crew saw the predicament and jumped, but could not stop in time to prevent the smash-up. The engines are lying in the mud side by side. The semaphore and diamond were carried away by the C.P.R. engine, but the coaches, with the exception of the C.P.R. baggage coach, where Mr. Wiley was fatally injured, escaped, only a pair of trucks leaving the rails. All the injured were brought to the City Hospital, Engineer McKay dying as soon as he reached that institution and Wiley a little later. The Wabash crew say the smoke obscured the semaphore from view. It is stated that the signal was dropped to danger.

THE DEALERS DIFFER.

Varying Estimates of the Western Wheat Crop.

A Winnipeg despatch says: The grain dealers and bankers returned on Friday from a trip of inspection of the wheat crop, and while individual estimates of the yield run all the way from 74,000,000 bushels to 97,000,000, the average estimate places it at 84,500,000. The diversity of the figures is an indication of the varied opinions formed. Several American experts with the party are of opinion that the estimates of the yield sent out from Winnipeg on Thursday are approximately correct, but possibly a little high. Finlay Barrel, head of Barrel & Co., Chicago, believes that wheat will go over 89,000,000 bushels, and ventured the statement that within eight years all the contract spring wheat will be grown in the Canadian west. The grades are good, and samples from the machine will go No. 1 northern or better.

The number of people carried from Ontario on the western harvesters' excursions up to date is 12,582, nearly 2,000 more than for the corresponding period of last year.

GOLD FOUND IN NEW ONTARIO.

Kentucky Prospector Makes a Lucky Strike.

A despatch from Toronto says: Gold has been struck in large quantities in northern Ontario, according to the information received by Mr. Cecil B. Smith, chairman of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway Company. Mr. Smith has learned that a prospector from Lexington, Kentucky, the lucky finder, has located the precious metal in the Township of Playfair, north of the height of land, and about 80 miles distant from New Liskeard. The samples analyzed showed an average of about 411 ounces, or about $8,000, to the ton. In addition, the ore carried silver to the amount of about 400 ounces to the ton. The find was made three or four days ago, and is expected to draw a large number of miners to the localities as soon as it is known.

A branch of the Temiskaming road recently located, will be constructed near the gold field before long. The Railway Commission has decided to advertise for tenders for the construction of three branches in a few days. One five miles in length will run from Cobalt through the Gillies limit, to be known as the Kerr Lake section. Another will be laid from Englehart to Charlton, a distance of seven miles, and the third from Haileybury to the wharf on Lake Temiskaming.

BLAZE AT DESERONTO.

The Eastern Portion of the Town Was Threatened.

A Deseronto despatch says: One of the most disastrous fires which has occurred here in recent years started this afternoon shortly after 4 o'clock, and for about an hour threatened to wipe out the whole eastern portion of the town. The fire originated at the big trestle shed dock owned by the Rathbun Company, and inside of a few minutes the whole structure was a mass of flames. There was a strong south wind blowing towards the town, and it was soon seen that everything was doomed if aid was not procured at once. Two fire engines and crews were brought from Napanee and every person available was pressed into service to help keep down the blaze. The big trestle, refuse boilers, thousands of feet of lumber and cords of hardwood belonging to the Rathbun Company and three houses were destroyed. The firemen were handicapped on account of scarcity of water. Two docks with a large quantity of lumber and St. Mark's Church were in danger for a time.

CUT HORSE'S LEGS OFF.

A Brutal Act of Vengeance at Gladstone, Manitoba.

A Gladstone, Man., despatch says: Early on Saturday morning some party or parties entered the barn of E. Bowman, veterinary surgeon, of this place, and chopped the hind legs off his horse, which stood in the stall. Dr. Bowman had been called to Plumas and returned by train, arriving about 8 o'clock. On going to the stable he discovered the animal. So completely was the work done that the detached parts hung only by the tendons midway between the hoofs and hocks. Mrs. Bowman heard noises early in the morning, but there was a storm raging, and she was timid about going to investigate the cause. The animal was slaughtered. So far there is no clue leading to the discovery of the perpetrator.

DEATH IN WHIRLPOOL RAPIDS.

One Man Drowned and Another Has Narrow Escape.

A despatch from Niagara Falls, Ont., says: Martin Kane lost his life in the Whirlpool Rapids on Saturday morning, and H. L. McGrath saved himself from the same fate by the narrowest possible margin. Kane and McGrath went down the cliff about 8.30 o'clock to swim in the eddy just above the cantilever bridge, and within a short distance of the rapids. They pushed an old boat out into the eddy and amused themselves in diving from it. The eddy carried them away from the bank, and a minute later they were rushing down towards the rapids. Both jumped overboard and swam. McGrath was successful in reaching a big rock which stands up from the river at the break of the rapids. Kane missed the rock, was swept down the rapids and lost. McGrath was rescued from the rock and collapsed as soon as he got ashore.

POTATO BLIGHT IN IRELAND.

The Disease Has Struck the Crop in Western Sections.

A despatch from Manchester, England, says: The Manchester Guardian's Dublin correspondent confirms the report of potato blight in western Ireland. There is no doubt that its ravages are serious and widespread. The blight was first noticed in the Moycullen district and in Galway. The disease has struck the crop everywhere during the severe rains of the last fortnight. It is too soon yet to talk of famine, but everything will now depend on the weather of the next few weeks.

LETTER-CARRIER CAUGHT.

Pierre Compeau of Montreal Pleads Guilty of Theft.

A Montreal despatch says: Pierre Compeau, a Montreal letter-carrier, suspected of stealing money from letters, was trapped on Wednesday by means of decoy letters. In order to make sure of their man two letters containing three and four dollars each were placed in the mail for an address on Compeau's route. The ruse was successful and the carrier was found with the goods on him. Letters with money to the value of $85 had been stolen, and to taking that amount Compeau pleaded guilty. To the charge of stealing other amounts he entered a plea of not guilty.

TRAGIC SCENES AT VALPARAISO

Damage By Earthquake Estimated to be From $25,000,000 to $50,000,000

A despatch from Valparaiso says: From the plaza de la Victoria as far as the plaza in the section called Las Delicias four-fifths of the houses are completely destroyed, and the remaining fifth are badly damaged. From the Plaza de la Victoria down to the Custom House only about one-third of the houses sustained damage. The banks and the customs warehouses were not damaged. With the exception of Espiriti Santo all the city's churches were destroyed, as were the hospitals and the theatres. The number of dead is more than two thousand. The offices of the Havas agency, although seriously damaged, is still being used.

The tragic scenes of the San Francisco disaster were reproduced here. There was the fight against fire, the lack of water, and robbery and pillage.

ALL THE FIRES OUT.

The authorities now are beginning to get in provisions, and water again is being supplied. All the fires are out. The first shock lasted four minutes and a half, and the second two minutes. Most of the houses were thrown down by the second shock. Estimates of the damage range from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000. The Almendral quarter has been absolutely destroyed.

The people are still camping on the surrounding hills and the streets and plazas, and are calm and courage returning. The declaration is made that 80,000 persons will leave the city. The lack of food is not yet serious.

Telegraphic communication with Santiago was re-established on Tuesday. Several steamers are engaged in moving the people of the city to points to the north and south.

ANOTHER ESTIMATE.

The loss of life by the earthquake of Thursday, August 16, probably will not be short of 3,000, while the property destroyed is estimated at $100,000,000, and possibly is far in excess of that sum.

Order is being maintained with the utmost severity by the military, police and armed citizens' patrols, who are empowered to shoot on the spot. The authorities are showing the utmost energy in the protection of property.

With the first terrible shock of the earthquake buildings collapsed, their walls falling with tremendous noise. The inmates in many cases were unable to escape. The shock was followed almost immediately by a fierce storm, the wind prostrating walls that had been weakened by the earthquake, and these broke trolley wires, which flashed incessantly. The second shock was even heavier than the first.

SLIGHT SHOCKS CONTINUE.

A despatch from London says: A cable despatch filed late on Tuesday night by the agent at Valparaiso of Huth & Co., says that slight shocks continue, and that further large fires have occurred there.

AN OPTIMISTIC PREDICTION.

A despatch from New York says: Adolfo Ortusear, Consul-General for Chile, said on Wednesday that he believed Valparaiso would be rebuilt within six months, and that trade would be completely re-established before that time. The Chilean representative's optimistic prediction as to trade was favorably seconded by several merchants who do business with the stricken city, though they did not believe that the damage done by earthquake and fire could be repaired in the time set by the Consul-General.

HORRIFYING DETAILS.

A despatch from Santiago says: Some of the horrifying details of the terrible disaster came here on Wednesday in the first mail that has been received since the earthquake began. Fifty children in one house were crushed and three Catholic nuns, who were attempting to rescue those in the ruins, were killed by another shock, which brought the remainder of the building down.

The only light on the first night of the earthquake was that thrown by the feeble rays from the ships in the harbor. The street were filled with wild, shrieking people. The crash of falling buildings on all sides and the noise of breaking glass was a terrific din. The next morning brought a terrible sight. Bodies lay exposed on all sides. No one has had the time or inclination to remove them, and they have been there since. Many squares are now piled with debris.

President Riesco has sent a telegram to the Rothschilds, declining their offer and aid, saying that Chili can rise unassisted. Congress is awaiting further information as to the extent of the disaster before acting on the proposition for raising a loan. Commercial interests are opposed to a scheme for the suspension of payments, claiming that the proposed issue of 80,000,000 pesos will save the situation.

Many rich families in Valparaiso have been completely ruined. One millionaire, Mr. Edwards, lost 40,000,000 pesos (about $15,000,000) alone.

Small islands have appeared in Valparaiso Bay, and incoming ships confirm the reports of depressions on the coast.

The Chilian insurance companies will sustain heavy losses by the disaster, as a recent law practically drove all foreign companies out of the country. There has been no decision yet regarding the payment of losses.

The Mayor has forbidden the erection of tents in the streets and public thoroughfares.

PLAGUE IS FEARED.

A despatch from Valparaiso, Chili says: Some of the business houses here reopened on Thursday for the first time since the earthquake. Telephone and telegraph communication with Santiago has been re-established, but the lines are almost exclusively used by the Government officials. The city is still under martial law, traffic ceases at 6 o'clock in the evening, and everybody is compelled to take some part in the work, under the direction of the Ministers of the Interior and Industry, assisted by the local Government officials, in restoring normal conditions here. As a first instalment the Government has appropriated $4,000,000 for the relief of the destitute. The Custom house was reopened on Thursday, and traffic by water and by rail has been resumed. The post service is also in operation.

One of the greatest difficulties encountered by the authorities is the burial of the bodies recovered from the ruins, as all the cemeteries were destroyed. At the temporary morgue heaps of coffins have accumulated. The work of recovering the bodies is being pushed to the utmost in order to avoid an epidemic, in fear of which many families are leaving the city.

COMPANY TO RECONSTRUCT.

A movement is on foot to organize a company to facilitate the raising of the money necessary to reconstruct the city.

All the provinces of the north and south, which have not suffered from the earthquake, are sending supplies of food and money to the stricken cities and towns. The Department of Public Works at Santiago has appropriated $100,000 for the construction of sheds to shelter the refugees from Valparaiso and elsewhere, who continue to arrive at the Chilean capital in large numbers.

The railroad line between Limache and Quilpue, in addition to suffering severely from the earth shocks of August 16, has several enormous crevices, newly formed, in its vicinity.

Valparaiso is still without street lights at night, but order is maintained, thanks to the severity of the authorities, who continue shooting all persons who are caught committing robberies.

Among the buildings which fell at the time of the earthquake are the Palace of Justice and the Maritime Prefecture.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Parry Harbor Man Used His Revolver With Terrible Effect.

A Parry Sound, Ont., despatch says: Crazed by jealousy, Henry Anderson, a middle-aged man, employed in the yard of the Parry Sound Lumber Company, on Tuesday night shot his wife dead at the door of a neighbor's house in Parry Harbor, and then returning to his own house placed the revolver to his head and ended his life with a bullet.

A relative of the dead woman, who was standing near, witnessed the first act in the tragedy. Anderson fired twice, both bullets taking effect. The woman was entering the door of the neighbor's house when the first shot was fired, striking her in the shoulder. She turned round facing her infuriated husband as he advanced upon her. Then taking deliberate aim Anderson fired again, the bullet striking her in the centre of the forehead, killing her instantly.

The weapon with which the deed was committed was a new one and had evidently been recently purchased.

Anderson's family relations have not been happy for a long time past, and he is reputed to have been cruel and overbearing towards his wife. He had been at one time arrested for beating and ill-treating her, and on one occasion she sought to have him bound over to keep the peace after he had repeatedly threatened her life. He was a man of fitful and violnt temper and subject to fits of violent jealousy. Two children, a boy and a girl, are left orphans as a result of the double tragedy.

TO HOLD FIRE INQUEST.

Provincial Inspector Rogers Has Gone to Haileybury.

A Toronto despatch says: Provincial Inspector Rogers will investigate the Haileybury fire on behalf of the Attorney-General's Department. Hon. J. J. Foy received a private telegraph message from Haileybury Tuesday to the effect that an investigation should be held, and in consequence he has decided to have Inspector Rogers hold a fire inquest. The Attorney-General's Department is strongly possessed of the idea that the destructive blaze at Haileybury was of incendiary origin.

The Provincial Government may be called on to assist the people of the burned town, which was the place of residence for nearly all those engaged in Cobalt mining operations. There is said to be a scarcity of lumber for rebuilding purposes, and the Government may be asked for special and immediate lumber concessions in the new Ontario district. It is understood that [illegible] assistance has been authorized by J. J. Foy, Acting Premier, where needed, and the conditions at Haileybury will be inquired into by the Government.

LABOR SCARCE IN NOVA SCOTIA.

Curtailing Operations of Coal Mines and Steel Works.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Mr. John McDougald, Commissioner of Customs, has returned from a tour of inspection of the leading ports of the Maritime Provinces. Mr. McDougald confirms the reports already received of scarcity of labor in Nova Scotia, a condition which is curtailing the operations of the coal mines, and to some extent also of the iron and steel works

SAMOA'S GREAT VOLCANO

THE ERUPTION ON SAVAII GROWING MORE VIOLENT.

Sea Heated to Boiling Point by Tremendous Lava Flow on An Island of the Pacific.

At last accounts the new volcano on the island of Savaii, the largest of the Samoan group, was in more violent eruption than ever. The volcano was just a year old on August 5th.

It came after a series of about 50 earthquakes, some of them very violent. A photograph of the volcano taken only a few weeks after it first came into view shows an enormous mass of volcanic matter heaped around the crater. This mass was lifted from the subterranean depths by the eruptive forces to a height of at least six or seven miles and scattered in the first two or three weeks around the chimneylike vent through which it had passed.

We do not know from what depths under the earth's surface volcanic material may be brought, but the volcanic islands of Samoa rise from sea depths of from 25,000 to 28,000 feet, and the millions of tons of outpourings in the volcano of Savaii were carried up through the throat that opened from subterranean regions to the surface of this island mass.

This is the second volcano that has come to light on this island within three years. All the islands of the group, excepting the coral islets around them, are of volcanic origin, but there is no evidence that volcanic disturbances have occurred on any of them, excepting Savaii,

FOR THOUSANDS OF YEARS.

The new volcano is the interior o' the island, about seven miles from Maugaafi, the volcano that was found in September, 1902. In all phases of these outbursts the recent eruption has been far more severe than its predecessor.

The spectacle at times has been magnificent as well as terrifying, and though Apaia, the capital of German Samoa, is about 60 miles away, the inhabitants, from the heights above the town, have at times been able to discern the black outpouring that covered as with a pall the skies above Savaii, and more frequently they have seen at night the glow in the sky reflected from the molten lava that has been flowing in main and branch streams to or toward the northern coast.

On the island itself and to vessels out at sea the scene during the most violent eruptions has been of almost overpowering grandeur. If the calamity had occurred on populous Upolu, with its many hamlets and its rich cacao and cocoa palm plantations, the loss of life and property would have aroused the sympathy of the world.

Upolu is the Garden of Eden in the colonial domain of Germany, but Savaii is still among the wilds of Polynesia. A number of important islands in the vast waste of waters are still partly unexplored, and Savaii is one of them.

A very few white traders and planters live on the coast or a little inland. The native population is scattered among a few hamlets.

The lava flows between August, 1905, and March last made straight for some of these settlements and wiped them out, but for these primitive habitations are easily replaced. The flows from the volcano to the north coast were still moving in March, and at all times they have been so regular in their progress that the hour when they would reach a threatened hamlet could be computed closely, and so all had ample time to escape. There has been no loss of life, and the chief sufferers have been a few whites who have seen the plantations which they had developed by ten years hard toil swept away in an hour.

We have heard of the heartbreaking labor it takes to clear away the jungle of a tropical forest. It is child's play however, for red-hot lava, and the mightiest trees of the forest melt away as the stream enfolds them like tow in the flame.

One reason why Savaii has not been well explored is that it is almost impossible to pass through these thick forests, but there are roads now to the new volcano, for the rivers of lava have mowed wide strips to the sea; clean cut on the sides, not a vestige of the forest growths remaining, except a sprinkling of ashes.

White men who have seen the spectacle of the last few months say that the grandest sight of all has been the dropping of several of the lava streams into the sea. Some of them have fallen over steep cliffs 100 feet high into the ocean with a mighty splashing of the water and a deafening hiss as clouds of steam arise. The water penetrates through many crevasses to the heart of the molten mass, giving rise to the continual detonation of explosions which blow fragments of the lava high into the air.

THE COLOR OF THE STREAM.

is constantly changing from white to black or yellow or a mixture of all three, according to the sulphurous or other mineral ingredients that are mingled with it. The surrounding waters are raised to boiling heat, hundreds of thousands of fish have been killed and the little coral animal has been destroyed for a long stretch along the shore. In places the advancing lava has passed through the coral reefs and broken them down.

One of the observers says that the scene by night is far more imposing than by day. For hundreds of feet the lava mass rises above the water and looks like a red mass of iron, out of which jets of white flames are constantly emerging.

One of the lava streams in February made an average advance of 404 feet a day and was twenty days in reaching the northeast cape of the island. Another stream flowed 3,336 feet in six days and was steadily approaching the coast at the latest advices.

The Samoan Zeitung reported that at the beginning of March there was more lava in motion than at any previous time and it seemed as though there would be no end to the eruption. The volcanic activity, which began just a year ago, gradually subsided and it was thought in November that the phenomena were practically at an end, for a time at least.

In December, however, the eruptions began again with redoubled fury, and there is no telling when peace and quiet will again bless the lonely island. Savaii is off the usual ocean routes and communication with it is neither regular nor frequent, and so it happens that news only occasionally reaches us from the land that is now the victim of such troublous times.

CHANGED HIS IDENTITY.

Discovery That Briton is Transformed to an Oriental.

The extraordinary case of an Englishman whose appearance changed to that of an Oriental is described by Dr. H. Wark Dodd, an ophthalmic surgeon, in the Lancet.

The change has occurred during the last seven years. No one has discovered the cause, although the man has been examined repeatedly and most thoroughly by Dr. Dodd and his colleagues.

Dr. Dodd in giving particulars of the case says :—

"The man came to the Royal Westminster Ophthalmic Hospital to see me in June, 1899. He was in the hospital for three weeks, and nothing abnormal was detected in any organ or system.

"It was after this illness that the changes of appearance began to take place, and these have continued until now he has practically changed his identity, for from being a finely developed erect man of 5 ft. 10¾ in. in height and 16 st. 4 lbs. weight, vigorous, athletic, with plenty of hair of a light brown color, a long blonde moustache, and altogether fair in appearance, he has become in a few years smaller, stooping, 5 ft. 8 in. in height, weighing 11 st. 11 lbs.

"He is weak, his hair has changed to mouse color, his moustache cannot grow a hair longer than a quarter of an inch, and both are soft and sparse. His chin never needs a razor, his complexion is sallow, and his whole aspect is darker than before.

"His fellow-workers have christened him 'the Japanese,' though I fancy the late war may have influenced them in the choice of this name, for his type is not quite Japanese. Formerly he was a cheerful, capable, quick-moving, intelligent man, with something of a sailor's readiness to lend a hand to anything that came along. Now, when not occupied, he is somewhat apathetic, a condition which adds something to his eastern bearing."

Dr. Dodd mentions another case of a similar type, and says he remembers other patients who should be included in the same category. It would seem, therefore, that there is some obscure disease, at present unknown to the medical profession, which has the effect of changing Europeans to an eastern appearance.

HANDLING VICIOUS HORSES.

Rarey's Little Trick for Curing Balking —Causes of Shying.

A balky horse can be cured, when under the saddle, by a very simple method. Turn him around and around in his tracks a few times and then suddenly straighten his head and he will willingly, and even gladly, go forward. This was the method of the celebrated John S. Rarey and has never been known to fail.

The "jibbler" differs from the balker inasmuch as his so-called vice is caused by congestion of the brain. The horse thus affected is liable to bolt or run away after one of three attacks and is a dangerous animal.

Rearing, although commonly termed a vice, is often caused by too severe a curb. Sometimes the rearing horse loses his balance and falls over backward. It is needless to say that the rider is then lucky if he or she escapes without serious, if not fatal, injury. When a horse rears loosen the reins and speak to him in a soothing tone; but if he persists give him a sharp blow between the ears with the butt of the whip. This will bring him down on all fours with amazing quickness.

Kicking is certainly a vice. Sometimes, however, it is caused by fear, in which case much can be accomplished by gentle management. Exactly the opposite treatment of the rearing animal should be applied to the kicker. Hold his head up with might and main, for the horse cannot throw out both hind legs at once when his head is elevated. Kicking straps are what the name implies. A strap fastened to the shafts over the horse's croup prevents kicking, but this is only serviceable when driven in single harness. Shying is a dangerous fault. It cannot properly be termed a vice, as it is generally the result of defective vision. Gentle treatment, soothing words and patient persistence in accustoming the animal to the dreaded object will often effect a cure. To lash a horse because he shies or is frightened only aggravates the evil. He will associate the punishment with the frightful object and will fear it more and more each time he encounters it.

FAINTING ROOMS.

One of the latest ideas in New York is a room to which the ladies can retire if they feel faint and go off in a swoon, amid the most artistic and beautiful surroundings. Several restaurants and tea shops have adopted this idea, and members of the fair sex, whose nerve force is run down, can find in the fainting room a soothing resting place. The room is partially darkened and the prevailing color green, whilst it is liberally decorated with various sweet-smelling flowers. Comfortable sofas and chairs are provided for the "fainters," and a lady doctor is kept on the premises should her services be required.

The Marquis of Breadalbane possesses the finest service of gold plate in Great Britain.

The gems in the diadem of the Russian Empress are worth $400,000. They comprise 2,536 diamonds and a massive ruby.

Mr. L. F. Petrie, who is only twenty-one years old, has just been elected Mayor of Clarksville, Arkansas. He claims that he is the youngest mayor in the world.

Lord Kitchener was a quiet boy, good at books, but not very brilliant at gymnastics or outdoor games. "He was a shy, self-contained lad, who showed a distinct talent for figures," says one who knew him at school.

The palace of the King of Siam is surrounded by high white walls which are a mile in circumference. Within them are contained temples, public offices, seraglios, stables for the sacred elephants, accommodation for 1,000 troops, cavalry, artillery, war elephants, an arsenal, and a theatre.

When she reigned in Paris the Empress Eugenie was the best-dressed lady in the world. At one time her wardrobe was estimated to be worth no less than $1,000,000, while her household expenses amounted to about $10,000 a week. To-day she spends as little as possible on herself, and dresses invariably in black.

King Edward has played many parts in his time, one of them being that of a brickmaker and builder. At Osborne there still stands a small fort which was erected by the King and his brothers many years ago, even the bricks being manufactured by the young Princes. At Balmoral there is a tool-shed which was entirely constructed by Prince Albert and his sons.

The Hon. Mrs. Bertrand Russell (daughter-in-law of the late Lord Russell of Killowen), who is interested in matters affecting the poor, once for a time worked as a factory-hand in a Bermondsey rope-walk. Disguised in old clothes, with a row of curlers in her hair, she said she found much rough kindliness amongst her "mates," and they soon became good friends when she joined in their choruses.

The Shah of Persia has an extraordinary museum in Teheran, his capital. It is supposed to contain the presents His Majesty has received from foreign potentates, but the exhibits include a hand-glass marked "Price 3s.," and some fans ticketed "d½d." Probably these were purchases made by the Shah when in Europe, but they must give the Persian ruler a rather curious notion of the generosity of European Sovereigns.

Sir Acquin Martin, whose death is announced, was at the head of a firm of civil engineers in Calcutta, a post which eventually led to a business trip to Kabul, and to an intimate friendship with the late Ameer Abdurrahman. His Highness, who had a low opinion of the truthfulness of the average man and woman, was greatly impressed by the Englishman's frank manners. "Did I ever tell you a lie?" Sir Acquin once asked the Ameer. The potentate rolled his eyes and replied, "I never found you out in one."

The Crown Princess of Sweden, who is very pretty and popular, goes by the name of "The Colonel's Wife." The Crown Prince, unlike his poet-father, is a military enthusiast, and is honorary colonel of several regiments. When he was first married he took his young bride into the headquarters of the regiment of which he was then acting colonel, and said: "Gentlemen, the colonel in command of the regiment desires to introduce his wife to the regiment." The charming young wife was received with rounds of applause, and the name has stuck to her ever since.

Although Don Alfonso, brother of the Spanish Pretender, Don Carlos, and president of the International League against duelling, is a man of near sixty, yet he performed the other day a feat at which many a younger man would have hesitated. His wife, Dona Maria of the Snows, heroine of the last Carlist war and Infanta of Portugal, his sister-in-law, the widowed Archduchess Marie Therese, and the latter's daughter were driving in the neighborhood of his castle in Upper Austria, when the horses shied and then bolted, the coachman being thrown from the box. Don Alfonso happened to be near and managed with wonderful agility, to leap from a bank of earth into the carriage as it was dashing by him, crept on to the box, leaned over the dashboard, secured the reins, and brought the horses under control almost at the very edge of a precipice.

An interesting story is told of Sam Horrocks, who did so much to build up the Lancashire cotton-prints industry. Once a young gentleman came from London to take up a position in Mr. Horrock's office. He was a very genteel young man, and most superior. Alighting from a cab, he espied a carelessly-dressed, homely-featured man, who was striding along with what looked suspiciously like his dinner tied up in a red pocket-handkerchief. "Ah, my man, if you'll carry my bag to Horrocks's place, and walk behind me, I'll give you a shilling," said the new arrival. The man with the handkerchief picked up the bag and strode off with it—back to the railway station. He was Mr. Horrocks. He didn't in the least mind the insult to himself, but he was convinced that no young man was likely to be of any use in his business who was so stuck-up that he was ashamed to be seen carrying a bag in the streets of a strange town.

PROFITABLE SUNFLOWERS.

The sunflower crop is one of the most profitable harvested in Russia. A good crop is worth, as it stands in the field, $20 an acre. The seeds are sold by the farmer for $1 to $1.50 a pound; then the merchants salt them and retail them for $3 a pound. At every street crossing in Russian provincial cities are stands and pedlars with baskets, selling to the passers-by the salted product of the sunflower, which forms a favorite food.

FRENCH PRIEST MISSING

VILLAGERS OF CHATENAY SCENT MURDER MYSTERY.

He Was Last Seen Riding a Bicycle on the Way to Where He Lived.

The cure of the Village of Chatenay, France, Abbe Delarue, has mysteriously disappeared and despite the careful and and anxious search of his parishioners, no clue has been found to the mystery of what is, no doubt, a deliberate murder.

On Monday, July 23, at 5 o'clock in the morning, the Abbe Delarue left his house on his bicycle for the station of Sainville, to take the train for Paris to receive certain sums for the charities of his parish. He was only to be gone forty-eight hours.

On Wednesday evening he arrived from Paris in Etampes, and as it was too late to catch the train from Etampes to Sainville, Abbe Delarue mounted his bicycle to return to Chatenay by road. Since that moment he has completely disappeared.

HAD MONEY ON PERSON.

His sister, who lived with him at Chatenay, not seeing him return, telegraphed to the woman in Paris, an old friend of the family, with whom he always stopped when in Paris. She received a telegram that he had left on Tuesday. Abbe Delarue had in his possession a sum of about $170. The people of Chatenay and the neighborhood were convinced that their cure had been the victim of foul play, and organized sarch parties. The first result was the finding near the Village of Longguetoise of a priest's hat pierced with a knife and stained with blood. This was recognized as the hat of the unfortunate abbe. This is regarded as a proof that he has been assassinated.

In the neighborhood of the spot where the hat was found is a deep pool known as the Etang de Moulineaux. It is supposed that some of the doubtful characters that the harvest season always attracts to the Beauce had laid in wait for Abbe Delarue, attacked and robbed him and made away with the body.

PEASANT AND POLICE SEARCH.

It is certain that the assassination can only have taken place in the wild and picturesque part of the country between Etampes and Chalo-Saint-Mars. Here there are masses of trees, thickets and especially numerous pools. One of them, which bears the sinster name of Abime (Abyss), is nearly sixty feet deep.

For the last week the local gendarmerie and large bodies of peasants have made a thorough battue of the whole countryside. The cure of Sainville, the commune alongside Chatenay, put himself at the head of his parishioners and made a thorough search all round the spot where the missing priest's hat was found. Men armed wieh scythes cut the long grass, but nothing was found.

HEALTH BY STARVATION.

Vegetarian "Cure" That Would Eventually Wipe Out Humanity.

Dr. Dutt, of the Vegetarian Federal Union, which met recently at the Memorial Hall, Farringdon Street, London, England, has discovered the cause of, and consequently the cure for all disease. Unfortunately the doctor's name will never go down to posterity as that of the modern St. George who slew the dragon of disease, for the "cure" would depopulate the earth.

Dr. Dutt deals with the proper food for mankind in relation to disease. He declared that disease was caused by the consumption of "Chicago chicken," in Russia by a certain kind of grain, and in Japan and China by rice. There is, in fact, no article of food, according to Dr. Dutt, that has not produced or is not producing disease.

Dr. C. S. Wood declared that meat caused corns, and induced people to drink. It also caused "early morning depression," to remove which people drink strong tea, which in its turn caused anaemia, lunacy and blindness.

Cancer might be cured by a "radical" diet. Dr. H. Valentine Knaggs declared: "It is the only possible curative method we possess," he said. "By this treatment the cancer growth would no longer be able to receive abnormal nourishment from the blood, would no longer have any use for its oxygen, and its cells would either have to revert to the normal animal type or become absorbed."

The chairman, Mr. Short, said that underdone steak and roast beef were fruitful sources of tuberculosis, but by a judicious diet this disease might be relegated to the same category as typhus fever in this country.

ANTIQUITIES FOUND.

Prussian Laborer Parts With Valuable Find for Two Cigars.

An interesting discovery was made the other day by a laborer of Leuenburg, Prussia. While digging for the foundations of a house he came upon an ancient cannon, which experts declare to be 500 years old. The cannon, which is made of an alloy of bronze and copper, although in an excellent state of preservation, was, in the eyes of the finder, entirely valueless, so he promptly offered it to a neighboring tobacconist in exchange for a couple of cigars; an offer which was accepted immediately. The bargain will be a profitable one to the present owner, as it will be presently acquired by a museum.

At Weissenhoehe, Dr. Haupt, of the Posen Museum, has discovered two so-called "Huns' grave," in which skeletons were found, the skulls of which were pierced by arrows. Some valuable urns of the period when Attila's hordes swept Central Europe were also unearthed.

A REMARKABLE CAREER

A "ROLLING STONE" WHO HAS GATHERED MILLIONS.

Letson Balliet Has Become a Multi-Millionaire By His Own Exertions.

If one wanted a striking exception to the rule that "rolling stones gather no moss" it is splendidly supplied by the career of Letson Balliet, known to fame throughout the Wild West as "Corduroy Bill" — a man whose life-story reads like a fairy-tale, and who, while still on the sunny side of thirty, has taken his place among the multi-millionaires of the world.

Although Letson Balliet entered the world as the son of a State judge, and presumably had the ball of fortune at his feet, he elected to start life at the bottom of the ladder and to climb to the top by his own unaided exertions; little dreaming, however, how rapid and romantic the ascent was destined to be. He had one motto to inspire him—"There is no such word as impossible"—and that proved sufficient for

THE INTREPID YOUNGSTER.

As a schoolboy he turned his Christmas holidays to account by delivering newspapers in the district around Des Moines, tramping fifteen cold and cheerless miles every evening for a paltry $1.25 a week, with an extra weekly 25 cents for every dozen new subscribers he could get. And so energetic and persuasive was he that within a short time he was earning $8.25 a week, a sum which he more than doubled before his career as a newspaper boy came to an end. Not content, however, with this gratifying result, he added to his revenue by selling pea-nuts, popcorn, flags, and bunting at the State fair at Des Moines.

This work was all done in his spare time, while he was working hard at his school-books; and at nineteen he secured an appointment as bookkeeper to a wholesale firm, a post which he relinquished to become a teacher in a country school. He now began to study mining and metallurgy and to invest his savings in mining ventures, which proved so successful that he was able to pay for a college career and to qualify as a civil and mining engineer, his reward being the appointment as chief engineer to the Des Moines Union Railway Company, and, a little later, the Professorship of Science and Engineering in the Arkansas University.

Most young men who had reached such an enviable position in the early twenties would have been content to hold it; but not so Letson Balliet.

THE FEVER OF ADVENTURE

and money-making ran in his blood; and throwing up his professorship, he fared forth into the Golden West—the land of the Sierra Nevedas and the Cascades—in quest of fortune. Starting as a working miner, he fought his way ultimately to the position of manager, and then of proprietor of mines.

But the road proved rough and steep to climb, and was strewn with failures and reverses. At one time he was employed as brakeman on a railway; at another he was driving a team on the Pacific Coast. Now he was risking his life and enduring great hardships, prospecting among the mountains of Utah, in the wild recesses of the Rockies, or wandering footsore and hungry over the desert of the great Snake River; at another time he was filling the chair of Natural Science at Arcadelphi, Arkansas, and writing books on biology and mining.

The turn of his fortune came in 1896, when he found his way to a small mining camp in Idaho, where he got the post of assayer at $1.25 a month. Here he made the acquaintance of an old prospector who had recently discovered a rich pocket of ore from which five other prospectors had ousted him. Here was an adventure after Balliet's own heart. Mounting his horse he rode off to the spot, where he found the five claim-jumpers barricaded in a rude wooden hut. With a revolver in each hand he demanded admittance, and when the door was opened he entered the cabin, holding one revolver at the rascals' heads and another

POINTED AT THEIR HEARTS.

"Look out!" he shouted, "I am going to throw lead," and he began to blaze away with both revolvers so alarmingly that the "jumpers" fled in terror through the windows or door as best they could, leaving their belongings behind them. A few months later Balliet sold the claim, thus heroically rescued, for $60,000; and with his share of the proceeds made his way to Oregon.

Here the adventurous youngster (for he was still little more than a boy) began to pick up abandoned mines, and mines that were regarded as played out, and by skilful working to make them profitable again. The tide of fortune had turned effectually at last, and he took it at the flood. To-day he owns 132 mines in Oregon alone, and twenty-one others in Colorado, Idaho, California, and Utah. He is a King among mine-owners and counts his fortune in many millions.

And this is the modest explanation he gives of his remarkable prosperity: "I have been unusually fortunate in my investments, and the world has called it a success. I am unmarried. I have surrounded myself with loyal assistants, and to them and their management of individual enterprises I attribute the larger portion of my prosperity."

AN EXPERT OPINION.

"Will alcohol dissolve sugar?" "It will," replied the Old Soak. "It will dissolve gold, brick houses and horses and happiness and love, and everything else worth having."

Binks: "So you've got married, old fellow, while I have been away?" Dinks: "Yes." Binks: "Well, I congratulate you on having shaken off that she-dragon of a housekeeper of yours at last." Dinks: "Oh, don't make any mistake. I've married her!"

A JAPANESE LETTER.

The following letter, amusing in its diction, touching in its simplicity and earnestness, is quoted in Rev. M. L. Gordon's "American Missionary in Japan." It was written to a missionary by a man who felt so much pity for his friend's daughter, who was abused by her stepmother, that he had taken her to his own house.

Instead of my mouth (conversation).

My dear Sir. I am a simple people. I don't know English grammar. I don't know European habit. But now I take not care of my shameful and dare give strange curious letter. Here I must tell you about some matter. This matter is my dear friend's girl. She have a very Unhappy, for Her mother are not true mother. I take her into my home by Her Father's beg and educate her with all my heart. But one day I find Her heart bad by Her foolish mother's bad education. O, O I am very sorry. When one day I think Christianity all good heart and good conduct. If my poor girl become a Christianity she will change to a good holy heart. So I beg you that if you please educate to Christianity. Let she make a true sheep of God.

FOR PROTECTION AGAINST WEATHER.

Insurance Now in Force Amounts to a Million and a Quarter—A Fine Showing.

(From the Daily Sentinel-Review, Friday, Aug. 10th.)

A meeting of the Executive of the Western Farmers Weather Insurance Mutual Company, was held yesterday afternoon in the city hall. There was a full attendance, and the utmost satisfaction was expressed with the conditions that have prevailed so far, and with the prospects for fhe future. Applications were received for insurance amounting to $200,000. After investigation the full amount was passed This leaves the Company with insurance in force to the amount of $1,250,000. As showing both the enterprise of the company, and the importance of the field into which it has entered, it may be mentioned that all this insurance has been taken out within a peried of five months.

To those who are not yet familiar with the character of the company, if there be any such, it may be necessary to explain that it was organized during the latter part of 1905, for the purpose of affording protection against all damage or loss from wind storms, cyclones and hurricanes. The idea commended itself to thoughtful people from the very first, and the history of the company during the comparatively brief period of its existence, so far has been one of most encouraging success. The advantages offered by the company are briefly these:—It pays promptly and fully all its loses. Its business is purely on the mutual plan, and it insures all descriptions of farm buildings, country school houses and churches. It also pays for stock killed or injured by buildings destroyed by wind storms or by falling trees resulting from wind storms. The board of directors is made up as follows:

Robert Armstrong, President; John McLevan, First Vice.President; Geo, Goetz, ex-reeve of Ellice Township, Second Vice-Pres.; T. O. Robson, J. P., St. Mary's; S. R. Wallace, Ex-warden Oxford County; D. McDonald, ex-Reeve of East Missouri Township; James Donaldson, ex-warden Perth County; W. W. Murray, Councillor of East Zorra Tp.; Geo. J. McKay, collector for West Zorra Township; Col. Ross, ex-County Commissioner of Oxford County; Jas. Richardson, Esq, St. Pauls; P. J. Payton, treasurer, Downie Township, Managing Director, Conroy, P. O.; E. L. Sutherland, Secretary and Treasurer, Embro, P.O.; W. T. McMullen, Solicitor, Woodstock.

Mr. C. A. Garthwaite, the well known school teacher of Otterville, had the honor of heading the list among the agents, with almost $70,000 of insurance secured.

Big Fire at Deseronto.

Deseronto, Ont., August 28.—One of the most disastorous fires which has occurred here in recent years started this evening and for about an hour threatened the whole eastern portion of the town. The fire originated at the big thestleshed dock owned by the Rathburn Company and inside a few minutes the whole structure was one mass of flames. There was a strong south wind blowing towards the town, and it was soon seen that everything was doomed if aid was not procured at once.

Two fire engines and crews were brought from Napanee and every person available was pressed into service to help keep down the blaze. The big trestle, refuse boilers, thousands of feet of lumber and cords of hard wood belonging to the Rathburn Company, and three dwelling houses were destroyed. The loss will amount to thousands of dollars. How the fire originated is a mystery.

Two docks, with thousands of feet of lumber, and St. Mark's Episcopal church also caught fire,

Mosquitoes are so prominent just now that it is interesting to learn how they are propagated- They can be propagated only in water, the female mosquitoe laying her eggs on the surface of the water to the number of 300 or 400 a time, In a day or so these eggs develop into 300 or 400 a minute. In a day or so these eggs develop into larvae or "wiglers." In eight days more the larvae become somewhat abruptly enlarged at one end. And a few days later arise to the surface of the water, burst their gossamer like skin and emerge as full-fleged mosquitoes all ready for business.

HUGHES & MARQUETTE

HE IS CORRECT.

Dr. Hamilton Proves that Piles are Caused by Constipation and Strong Cathartics.

Knowing the frequency with which people suffer from this ailment, Dr. Hamilton made an exhaustive study into the cause of piles.

He found that the lower part of the bowels is like a network of blood vessels, and if subject to persistent pressure, a section will bulge out and form what is commonly known as piles.

The only effective mode of curing this trouble is the regular use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills before retiring. Next day will bring wonderful relief.

"I suffered up to about the limit of human endurance with piles," writes Miss Lueders, from Cornwall, Ont. "I was employed in a factory here, but for a while had to give up work till I got better of this trouble. I read in the Montreal Hearld about Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and after using them for two weeks, was cured. I can recommend these pills very highly; there are none better. They at once relieve and prevent a constipated condition of the bowels, and from my experience can be depended upon as a perfect safeguard against piles. Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, I am sure, would be a benefit to every girl or woman."

Take Dr. Hamilton's Pills and your system will be regenerated, revitalized, and made proof against disease.

Good for men, excellent for women, and most effective for children. All ages and both sexes find Dr. Hamilton's Pills a marvelous medicine. Although active, they do not gripe or cause inconvenience still they cleanse and purify the system, thereby maintaining a high standard of health. Sold by all dealers, 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00, or by mail from N C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

SUMMER CATARRH.

Hot Weather Seems to Have Bad Effect Upon Some People.

It is generally recognized by physicians that many people suffer more with catarrh during the summer than in the winter. The hot, dry weather and the change from the hot days to cool nights seems to have a bad effect upon the disease

Even after the usual methods of treating catarrh have been unsuccessful. Hyomei will cure the disease, and all catarrh sufferers should take the treatment.

In many instances Hyomei has cured catarrh when the patient has suffered since childhood. Quite a number of people in Chesterville, who for years have been unable to get a good night's sleep on account of the disagreeable tickling and dropping at the back of the throat, have obtained quick relief from a few treatments of Hyomei and the continued use has made a complete and lasting cure.

There is no stomach dosing when one uses Hyomei. Simply breathe this medicated air through the pocket inhaler that comes in every outfit and all germs will be killed and the mucous membrane will be healed.

The complete outfit costs $1.00, extra bottles 50c.

Death in Whirpool Rapids.

Niagara Falls, Ont, Aug. 26.—Martin Kane lost his life in the Whirpool Rapids yesterday morning, and H. L. McGrath saved himself from the same fate by the narrowest possible margin. Kane and McGrath went down the cliff about 8.30 o'clock to swim in the eddy just above the cantilezer bridge and within a short distance of the rapids. They pushed an old boat out into the rapids and amused themselves in diving from it.

The eddy carried them away from the bank and a minute later they were rushing down towards the rapids. Both jumped overboard and swam. McGrath was successful in reaching a big rock which stands up from the river at the break of the rapids. Kane missed the rock, was swept down the rapids and lost. McGrath was rescued from the rock and collasped as soon as he got to shore.

Newspaper Law.

1—A postmaster is required to give notice by letter (returning the paper does not answer the law), when a subscriber does not take his paper out of the office and state the reason for it not being taken. Any neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publisher for payment.

2—If any person order his paper discontinued he must pay all arrearages, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until payment is made.

3—Any person who takes a paper from the postoffice, whether directed to his name or another, or whether he has subscribed for it or not, is responsible for the pay.

4—If a subscriber orders his paper to be stopped at a certain time, and the publishers continues to send, the subscriber is bound to pay for it if he takes it out of the post office. The process is upon the ground that a man must pay for what he uses.

5—The courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicdls rom the postoffice, or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

THE CRIMINAL'S CONFESSION

OR, SYBIL BERNER'S VINDICATION

"Yes, certainly," said Mr. Berners, taking back his pocketbook.

"Me! me make purchases for you, my lamb? La! whatever can you want in this awful—— There I go again!" exclaimed Miss Tabby, in dismay.

"You have too much curiosity, you good old soul. But here, come with me, and I will tell you what to buy for me—after you have instructed me as to what I shall want," said Sybil, laughing archly, as she led the way to a rude arbor at a short distance.

"Now, Tabby, what I want you to buy for me, is everything in the world that is needed for a bran, spic and span new baby!"

"La! Miss Sybil; whose baby?" inquired the astonished housekeeper, with her mouth and eyes wide open.

"Tabby, don't be a goose!"

"But, Miss Sybil, I don't know what you mean!"

"Tabby, I'm not 'Miss Sybil' to begin with! I'm Mrs. Berners, and have been married more than a year, and you know it, you stupid old Tabby!"

"But, Miss Sybil, or ratherwise Mrs. Berners, if I must be so ceremonious with my own nurse-child, what has that to do with what you've been a-asking of me to buy?"

"Nothing at all," answered Sybil, half-provoked and half-amused at the dullness of the old housekeeper. "Nothing whatever. But you must go out and buy everything that is required for the wardrobe of a young child; and you must find out what is necessary, for I myself haven't the slightest idea of what that is."

The housekeeper looked at the lady for a moment, in questioning doubt and fear, and then, as the truth slowly penetrated her mind, she broke forth suddenly with:

"Oh, my good gracious! Miss Sybil, honey! you don't mean it, do you?"

"Yes, I do, Tabby; and I thank Heaven every day for the coming blessing," said the young wife, fervently.

"But, oh, Miss Sybil, in such a place as this—— There I go again!" exclaimed the housekeeper, breaking off in a panic, and then adding, "I ain't fit to come to see you; no, that I ain't. I'm always forgetting, especially when you talk so sensible!"

"What's the matter with you, Tabby? Are you crazy? You never thought I was going to stay here for such an event, did you? In a public resort like this? Tabby, I'm shocked at you! No! I shall be at home at Black Hall to receive the little stranger, Tabby," said Sybil, making the longest and most connected speech she had made since her reason had become impaired.

"Ah, Lord! ah, my Lord!" cried the old woman, on the verge of hysterics again.

"Now, Tabby, don't begin to whimper! You whimper over everything though, I know. You whimpered when I was born, and when I was christened, and when I was married; and now you whimper when I am going to be crowned with the crown of maternity. Oh, you old rebel!" cried Sybil, contradicting all her sarcastic words by caressing her old friend.

"No, I don't mean to! but if you knowed! Oh, if you knowed!" exclaimed Miss Tabby, suppressing and swallowing her sobs.

"Now, then, let us go back to Lyon. Lyon will give you what money you may need for the purchases; and I beg that you will make them as soon as possible, and bring them to me here," said Sybil, as she arose and walked back to the spot where she left her husband and her friend.

After a little general conversation, in which Sybil sometimes joined naturally, and from which she also sometimes wandered off at random, Mr. Berners proposed to call in Joe to pay his respects to his mistress.

Sybil sprang at the proposal, and Joe was duly summoned from his seat on the box of the carriage before the door.

He came into the garden, hat in hand, and bowed gravely before his unfortunate mistress.

And when she asked him many questions about that department of the domestic economy of Black Hall that fell under his own supervision, he answered all her questions satisfactorily, without ever once falling into the unlucky blunders that had marred Miss Tabby's communications.

"Your favorite mare, Diana, is in prime order, ma'am, and will be so whenever you come home again to take your rides in the valley. And your coach horses, Castor and Pollux, ma'am, couldn't be in better trim. I shall take pride in driving of you to church behind them, ma'am, the first Sunday after you come home, which we all at Black Hall hopes, as the waters of this here cilibrated spring may soon restore your health, and send you back to us strong and happy," said Joe, at the conclusion of a very long address.

"Thanks, Joe! I know that you are very sincere and earnest in your good wishes. Many thanks! But, dear old soul, how came you to be so lame?"

Joe was taken by surprise, and stood aghast. He knew, of course, that his mistress was slightly insane; but he was utterly unprepared for such a lapse of memory as this. He looked at his master in distress and perplexity.

"Oh!" answered Lyon Berners for his man. "Joe was thrown from his horse, and had his ankle sprained."

"Poor Joe! You must be very careful until it gets quite well," said Sybil, compassionately.

And soon after this her visitors, master and servants, took their leave.

CHAPTER XIX.

Summer ripened into autumn. Sybil and her faithful friend employed the golden days of September and October in the graceful and pleasing work of making up garments for the expected little stranger.

But meanwhile, outside the prison walls, a cloud, black as night, was gathering over the young prisoner's doomed head.

The rumor got abroad that the governor meant to follow up the long respite with a full pardon.

His course in this matter was canvassed and commented upon severely in every barroom, grocery, street corner, political meeting, and elsewhere.

The press took up the matter, and vindictively reprobated the course of the governor, putting his conduct upon the motives of partiality for the aristocracy.

Had the murderess been a woman of the people, it said, her life would have paid the forfeit of her crime.

But she was a lady of the county aristocracy, a daughter of the house of Berners; and, however notoriously that house had been cursed with demoniac passions, and however deeply dyed with crime, its daughter, however guilty, was not to be held amenable to the laws!

Was such outrageous worship of the aristocracy by partial judges and venal governors to be endured in a country of freemen?

No! the voice of the people would be heard through their organ, a free press! and if not listened to, then it would be heard in thunder at the polls in the coming autumn elections!

Such was the spirit of the people and the press in regard to Sybil.

It was strange how the people and the press clamored for the sacrifice of Sybil Berner's life—the "female fiend."

It was because they honestly ascribed to her a nature she did not possess, and committed, thus making her innocently suffer for the sins of her forefathers.

Of course there were honorable exceptions to this general and unmerited reprobation of a guiltless young creature, but these exceptions were mostly among Sybil's own set, and were too few to have any force against the overwhelming weight of public sentiment.

And it was the general belief that, if the Governor should outrage public opinion by pardoning Sybil Berners, he would be politically ruined. Sybil Berners could not be permitted to live. She must die before the Government could be re-elected by the people. And the election was coming on in the ensuing November.

Would he purchase success by the sacrifice of this young sufferer's life?

Ah! her best friends, asking themselves this question, were forced to answer "Yes!"

This state of affairs had a most depressing effect upon Sybil's husband, especially as he had sustained a great loss in the departure of her zealous advocate, Ishmael Worth.

The young lawyer, soon after he had brought down Sybil's respite from the Governor, had been called away on business of the utmost importance, and had eventually sailed for Europe. He had gone, however, with the most confident expectations of her liberation.

How these expectations were destined to be defeated it was now plain to see.

It required all Mr. Berners' powers of self-control to wear a calm demeanor in the presence of his unsuspicious wife. He had carefully kept from the cell every copy of a newspaper that contained any allusion to the condemned prisoner and her circumstances, and he did this to keep Beatrix, as well as Sybil, ignorant of the impending doom; for he wished Beatrix to preserve in Sybil's presence the cheerful countenance that she never could wear if she should discover the thundercloud of destruction that lowered darker and heavier, day by day, over the head of her doomed companion.

But Sybil herself was losing her good spirits. The autumn had set in very early; and though now it was but October, the weather was too cool and often also too damp to make it prudent for the poor prisoner to spends so many hours in the prison garden, as she had lately been permitted to do. She sat much in her cell, sad, silent, and brooding.

"What is the matter with you, my darling?" inquired Beatrix Pendleton one day, when they sat together in the cell, Beatrix sewing diligently on an infant's robe, and Sybil, with her neglected needlework lying on her lap, and her head bowed upon her hand, "What is the matter with you, Sybil?"

"Oh, Beatrix, I don't know. But this autumn weather, it saddens me. Oh, more than that—worse than that, it horrifies me so much. It seems associated with—I know not what of anguish and despair. And I want to leave this desolate and gloomy place. It is so lonely, now that all the visitors have gone but ourselves. How can you bear it, Beatrix?"

"Very well, dear; so long as I have your company," answered Miss Pendleton, wondering that Sybil should miss the throng of visitors that had existed only in her own imagination.

"But I am homesick, Beatrix. Oh, Beatrix! I am so—so—homesick," said Sybil, plaintively.

"Never mind, dear. Try to be patient. It would not do for you to undertake the journey now, you know," said Miss Pendleton, soothingly.

"Oh, but, Beatrix, I do so want to be at home to welcome my first dear child! There was never a Berners born out of Black Hall since the building was first erected," she pleaded.

"Never mind, dear. Everything now must give way to your health, you know. We could not endanger your health by taking you over all these rough roads to Black Hall just now," said Miss Pendleton, gently.

"Ah, well, I will try to content myself to stay here in this gloomy place. But, oh, Beatrix, after all, I may die, and never see my home again. My dear home! Oh, if I should die here, Beatrix, I should be sure to haunt my home!"

"But you will not die. You must put away such gloomy fancies."

As Miss Pendleton spoke, the cell door was opened, and the warden appeared, bearing in the tray containing the supper service for the two ladies. It was not usual for the warden to wait on them in person; and so, to Miss Pendleton's silent look of inquiry, he answered:

"You must excuse my daughter for this once, ma'am, as she has gone to a merry-making in the village—this, you know, being Hallow Eve."

"Hallow Eve!" echoed an awful voice.

Both the warden and the young lady started, and turned around to see whence the unearthly sound came.

They beheld Sybil fallen back in her chair, pallid, ghastly, and convulsed.

Beatrix seized her vial of sal volatile and flew to the relief of her friend.

"What is it, dear Sybil? can you tell me?" she anxiously inquired, as she held the vial to the nostrils of her friend.

"Hallow Eve! Hallow Eve!" she repeated, in a terrible tone.

"Well, dear, what of that? That is nothing!"

"Oh, yes, yes, it is horrible! it is horrible!"

"Hush, hush, dear! try to be composed."

"Black night! fire! blood! Oh, what a terror!"

"It was only a dream, dear. It is over now, and you are awake. Look up!"

"Oh, no! no dream, Beatrix! an awful, an overwhelming reality!" exclaimed the awakened sufferer. Then suddenly, with a shriek, she threw her hands to her head and fell into spasms.

"For Heaven's sake, run and fetch a doctor," exclaimed Beatrix, in the utmost distress, appealing to the terrified warden.

He immediately hurried from the room to procure the necessary medical attendance.

Beatrix ran after him, calling loudly: "Send for her husband, and her old nurse from Black Hall, also. I know it is after hours, but I believe she is dying."

The warden nodded assent, and hurried away, leaving Miss Pendleton in attendance upon the agonized woman, who recovered from one convulsion only to fall into another and severer one.

* * * * * * *

It was midnight, and a sorrowful and anxious group were gathered in Sybil's cell. She lay upon her bed, writhing with agony, and upon the very verge of death.

Near her stood her old family physician, Dr. Hart, her old nurse, Mrs. Winterose, and her faithful attendant, Miss Tabby.

In the lobby, outside the cell door, sat her husband, with his face buried in in his hands, wrestling in prayer with Heaven.

What was he praying for? That his idolized young wife should be spared in this mortal peril? No, no, and a thousand times no! With all his heart and soul he prayed that she might die—that she might die e'er that dread warrant, which had arrived from Richmond only that morning, and which fixed her execution for an early day, could be carried out!

This agony of prayer was interrupted. The doctor came out of the cell, and whispered:

"It is over. She is the mother of a little girl."

There was no expression of parental joy or thankfulness on the father's part. Only the breathless question:

"And she? Can she survive?"

CHAPTER XX.

"Can she survive?" repeated Lyon Berners, perceiving that the physician hesitated to reply. "If she must die, do not fear to tell me so. I, who love her best, would say, 'Thank God!' Can she survive?"

"Mr. Berners, I do not know. Her situation is very critical. She has had convulsions. She is now prostrated and comatose," gravely answered the doctor.

"Then there is good hope that the Angel of Death may take her home now?"

"There is strong hope, since you choose to call it hope instead of fear."

"Ah, Dr. Hart, you know—you know——."

"That death in some cases might be a blessing—that death in this case certainly would. Yes, I know. And yet it is my bounden duty to do what I can to save life, so I must return to my patient," said the physician, laying his hand upon the latch of the door.

"When may I see my wife?" inquired Lyon Berners.

"Now, if you please; but she will not konw you," said the doctor, shaking his head.

"I shall know her, however," muttered Mr. Berners to himself, as he raised his hat and followed the doctor into the cell leaving Beatrix alone in the hall.

It was near midnight, and Miss Pendleton, having been very properly turned out of the sick-room, and having been then forgotten, even by herself, had no place on which to lay her head.

When Mr. Berners, following the doctor, entered the cell, he found it but dimly lighted by one of the wax candles with which his care had supplied his wife.

In one corner sat Miss Tabby, whimpering, with more reason than she had ever before whimpered in her life, over the new-born baby that lay in her lap.

Near by stood old Mrs. Winterose, busy with her patient.

The patient lay, white as a lily, on her bed.

"How is she?" inquired the doctor, approaching.

"Why, just the same—no motion, no sense, hardly any breath," answered the nurse.

"Sybil, my darling! Sybil!" murmured her heartbroken husband, bending low over her still and pallid face.

She rolled her head from side to side, as if half-awaken d by some familiar sound, and then lay still again.

"Sybil! my dearest wife! Sybil! again murmured Lyon Berners, laying his hand on her brow.

She opened her eyes wide, looked around, and then gazed at her husband's face as if it had been only a part of the wall.

"Sybil, my dear, my only love! Sybil!" he repeated, trying to meet and fix her gaze.

But her eyes glanced off and wandered around the room, and finally closed again.

"I told her she would not know you," sighed the doctor.

"So best, so best, perhaps. Heaven grant that she may know nothing until her eyes shall open in that bright and blessed land, where

'The wicked cease from troubling,
And the weary are at rest!'"

said Lyon Berners, bowing his head.

But he remained standing by the bedside, and gazing at the pale, still face of his wife, until at length Miss Tabby came up to him, with the babe in her arms, and whimpered forth:

"Oh, Mr. Lyon, won't you look at your little daughter just once? Won't you say something to her? Won't you give her your blessing? Nobody has said a word to her yet; nobody has welcomed her; nobody has blessed her! Oh! my good Lord in Heaven! to be born in prison, and not get one word of welcome from anybody, even from her own father!"

And here Miss Tabby, overcome by her feelings, sobbed aloud; for which weakness I, for one, don't blame her.

"Give me the child," said Mr. Berners, taking the babe from the yielding arms of the nurse. "Poor little unfortunate!" he continued, as he uncovered and gazed on her face. "May the Lord bless you, for a, wretch that I am, have no power to bless.

At this moment Mrs. Winterose came up, and, addressing the doctor, said:

"Sir, I have done all I can do

"Law, sir, I'm not sugar, nor likewise salt, to get melted in a little water. And I must go, sir, please, if I am ever to see my old man alive again," said the nurse resolutely, putting on her bonnet and shawl.

"But how are you going six miles through night and storm?"

"Mr. Lyon will not begrudge me the use of the carriage and horses and driver as brought me here, to take me back to my husband's deathbed, I reckon," said the old woman, confidently.

"No, indeed; nor any help I can give you, dear Mrs. Winterose," said Mr. Berners, feeling himself appealed to.

"Thanky, sir; I knowed it. And this I say: When the breath is outen my poor old man's body, I will come back to my child, holding it always more dutiful to attend to the living as can suffer, rather than to the dead as are at rest. And, now, if you please, Mr. Lyon, to see me into the carriage, and order Joe to drive me home, I will be obleeged to you," said the old woman.

Lyon Berners gave her his arm, with as much respect as if she had been a duchess, and led her from the room.

When they reached the outer door, which the warden, in consideration of the necessity, ordered to be opened at this unusual hour, they found the rain pouring in torrents from a sky as black as pitch.

"A wild night to take the road, Mrs. Winterose," said Mr. Berners, as he hoisted a large umbrella over her head. "I don't know as I remember a wilder one, sir, since the flood of ninety, and that was when I was a young 'oman, which wasn't yesterday. And you'll hardly remember that, sir?"

THE WORLD'S BARBERING

SHAVING YOU CAN FEEL IN THE VILLAGES OF SPAIN.

Shells, Minerals and Grasses Used in Shaving—Delicate Singeing in Africa.

Any traveller in Spain who steps off the beaten path may, like Don Quixote, find a Mambrino helmet for himself, for it swings from a staff over the door of every wayside barber. An old and worn out basin does for a signboard; one less old is necessary to the shaver's art.

These barber basins of the Peninsula are always made of brass. Some of the old ones are very fairly hammered, but in all the shape is the same, a product of public utility answering to unvarying demand.

A half circle is cut out from one rim large enough to accommodate the patron's gullet and Adam's apple. Seen in profile the effect of a man being shaved is as a St. John the Baptist whose head has partly slid off the charger. Thus is it adapted to the tonsorial pears only late in life and then very sparsely. For this reason it is not so difficult and painful as it might seem to follow the Indian custom of pulling out each hair as soon as it reaches a length that will permit it to be gripped.

Another stock whose beard is late and scanty provides employment for a large guild of barbers in shaving high. This is seen in the blue rim which encircles the roots of any Chinaman's queue.

Being Mongolian, a Chinese razor is naturally like no other razor in the world. It looks like a split five cent piece mounted on a stick; but the Chinese find it extremely effective, and that must serve as a complete test of its efficiency.

The race that peopled the valley of the Nile when Egypt was the home of all the world's enlightenment shaved so completely that one might infer that they had adopted the billiard ball as the type of beauty, for from the point of the chin to the nape of the neck not a hair was spared. Here, though, crops out

THE MILITARY EXCEPTION.

The Pharaohs and their captains seem to have grown a few straggling hairs on the chin. At any rate they wore richly ornamented boxes to cover the beards which they may or may not have been able to grow. So long as nothing showed but the beard box gummed upon the chin, any one might wear the ceremonial and symbolic box, even if he could not raise a beard to fill it.

Their great rivals for the empire of the ancient world, the Assyrians, were abundantly supplied with beards. That they held them in high esteem may be inferred from the fact that they carved them on the effigies of their sacred bulls and other gods of long forgotten theology.

If one may accept the statuary of Mesopotamia as a safe guide to the fashions of these early Oriental times it would appear that the Assyrian beard was worn in long ringlets. That may, however, be no more than an evidence of the limitations of the art of the ancient sculptor, who could not carve hair positively unless he made it look like rope. It seems hardly conceivable that Nebuchadnezzar and Assurbanipal would submit to a fashion that involved putting their heads up in curl papers every night.

No modern race goes conspicuously and completely unshorn except the black fellows of the Australian bush.

Among the peoples of the earth who shave wholly or in part the utensils of the barber's high calling widely vary. Soap and shaving brush are a triumph of advancing civilization, the sybarite's effort to secure his ease. Some of the lower races wet the cheeks with water or the juices of fruits or sap of trees, but for the most part

THE SAVAGE SHAVES DRY.

Such of the native tribes along the Amazon as shave at all in preference to plucking out their scanty beards prepare their cheeks by swabbing with the heavy sap of the tree which yields the rubber. In tropical Africa the oil of the oil palm is used for the same purpose.

In the East Indies generally the pulp of the ripe banana is rubbed to a cream on the cheeks and chin with the abundant juice which may be drawn from the leaf stem of the same plant. Elsewhere in the same region of the Eastern seas the green orange is employed.

Many and various are the substitutes for the razor of steel. In the uplands of Africa, where the natives have developed no little skill as workers in metal and produce knives of good temper, they seem not to have hit upon the idea of true shaving by the use of a cutting edge. Their abundant beards are removed and their chops kept smooth by singeing.

A plate of iron an inch in width, three inches long and a quarter of an inch thick is mounted in a handle of horn. This is brought to a white heat in the charcoal furnace and is passed evenly over the face very close to the skin. This glowing plate produces a close shave effect with a luxury of comfort to the most tender skin that no razor yet forged could bring about.

For shore dwellers the opportunities which several mollusks afford have not been lost upon the barbers. One such shell has been commonly designated and while not much of a clam for fritter purposes, it will serve excellently well on a pinch for a razor. It abounds on the beaches of the northern Atlantic coast, but it is not altogether easy to dig up even when the little spout of water in the sand betrays its presence, for it takes the promptest alarm and can dig itself out of sight far more quickly than any man can dig it into view. The shell is in two valves, each about half an inch wide and some six inches long, the shallower one being preferable for shaving.

To prepare it for use all that is needed is to press the edge of the shell from the inner side steadily and evenly with a chip; this splits off a sheet of the tough purplish green outer rind and leaves a clean edge of shell that is sharp enough for comfortable shaving and firm enough to keep the edge at least during the operation. While this razor shell is confined to the North American coast, there are mollusks of similar utility in every sea.

Another pelagic razor widely employed is the tooth of the shark. While this also has a sharp edge, it differs from the keenness of the shells. They present a true cutting edge so long as it lasts. The small tooth of the shark keeps its heavily enamelled edge much longer, but it is of the saw type and therefore by no means of smooth action.

In inland regions, where sea razors are not easily come at, there may be found

MINERAL SUBSTITUTES.

The most widely found of these mineral razors is the flint.

Another mineral of great value to the primitive folk who shave themselves is the obsidian or volcanic glass. By careful treatment this may be split into almost any desired shape and its edges of fracture are found very keen, though quick to lose their cutting edge.

Even the herb of the soil as well as the sea and the rocks yields its razor, than which there could be none better. This is the rind of the bamboo, which owes its fine polish to the deposit of flint. When the joint partitions are cut off from a node of green bamboo the tube may readily be split. Each sliver will be found to carry a thin sheet of the flint casing, a sheet so thin that its edge will still appear sharp under a high power of microscope.

It is sharper than any razor of steel can be whetted—so sharp that it must be used with great care to avoid cutting deep into the skin. It will hold its edge for any operation of shaving and there is no need to save it for a second time, since the bamboo grows wild all over the tropics and a new razor may be had without cost o whenever wanted.

In his pri estate savage man seems to posses all the necessaries of the barber shop except the lather brush and the shop, neither of which he has learned to need, and therefore does not miss them.

THE WAY OF LIGHTNING.

A correspondent of Nature remarks that the now known facts seem to require a modification of the statement found in some text-books that "it is impossible to say whether a flash of lightning moves from a cloud to the earth or in the opposite direction." Many photographs of lightning taken in the Transvaal show that, in all cases, the discharges were from cloud to cloud, or from the clouds to the earth. Quite frequently, the correspondent says, he has observed lightning flashes leaving a cloud for the earth, but fading away before reaching it. The opposite phenomenon has not been observed.

WHY J. BULL CAN CROW

HE STILL CONTINUES ON TOP 'SPITE OF CROAKERS.

Americans and Germans Have Failed to Injure Great Britain's Trade.

Two or three years ago we had among us a number of prophets who painted the gloomiest pictures of England's immediate future. Germany was to take a great slice of our foreign and colonial trade, America the remainder. Even here at home our manufacturers would be driven to the wall by the pushing foreign competitor, and as for the British farmer, what with eggs from Russia, beef from Argentina, mutton from Australia, butter from Scandinavia, and so on, he must inevitably disappear from the land, says London Answers.

Very many thoughtful people grew despondent, and the impression prevailed widely that we had really passed our zenith as a great nation and were on the decline.

But this was not all. Russia would be sure to seize India, a combination of foreign Powers might overwhelm us, our Army was worth little as a fighting machine, and even our Navy was viewed with doubt.

This was the stage of things a few years ago. What a marvellous change has come over our outlook upon the future! There is scarcely a man in the country who now doubts that Britain is still in her prime in industry, commerce and warlike power.

AMERICANS OUTWITTED.

We were never before held in such respect by foreign peoples. And it is no empty boast to say that England, at the present moment, is the first nation of the world and exercises the greatest influence in worldpolitics.

This great change has been effected very quietly, and in a way which ought to fill every Englishman with confidence in the destiny of his country.

It is six or eight years since the capitalists of the United States determined on a commercial invasion of Great Britain. We all remember what they thought of us—that we were quite a stupid people, without energy, fifty years behind the times. They were going to exploit England as they would China or the Philippines. What an unpleasant surprise those American capitalists must have received.

First they flooded us with bicycles, and our "dull" bicycle manufacturers bucked up and made better bicycles. The Americans went home with an altered opinion of John Bull. Then it was boots. The country was going to be stocked with American machine-made boots at a price that would drive our manufacturers into bankruptcy. We don't hear anything of the boots now. Next our entire tobacco trade was to be captured by an American trust. It was a vast enterprise to embark upon, and we must have appeared very simple folk to those who undertook it. This was even a greater failure than the boots, and the American tobacconists must have burned their fingers badly.

BRITAIN HOLDS HER OWN.

There were many smaller American designs on our domestic commerce, while India and the Colonies were to be supplied with purely American railway-engines, rails, bridges, and all kinds of machinery. That bubble has also been burst.

In every competition with our manufacturers and business men the Americans were worsted. The struggle was always a short one. We proved our overwhelming superiority.

This is a fact worth dwelling upon. We have before us, even in our generation, a desperate fight with foreign nations in commerce and industry. And it is well to understand our real strength.

Our real strength is immense. That is proved by the fact that each fraction of our commercial and industrial population was able to take care of itself. Other countries, if they were menaced as we were, would make their defence a national affair. The Governments would intervene and put on import duties high enough to repel the attack. Englishmen never thought such measures necessary. Our bootmakers merely shook themselves up and defeated the American bootmakers, our tobacco manufacturers relied entirely upon themselves, as did our bicycle makers and other sections of the community. There could be no surer proof of our national efficiency. Where every man is able to take care of himself, the nation made up of such men is invincible.

Man for man we have proved ourselves superior to the Americans, and in the cases cited this was done without calling out the whole reserve of energy. The Americans, on the other hand, put forth all their energy. They do it always, we very seldom. In truth, Englishmen are inclined to laziness as long as things run smoothly. To bring out the best that is in them a sufficient obstacle is needed to be overcome.

Are we on the decline? Foreign journals are telling us we are. They say we must yield now to younger and more energetic nations. In view of what has happened, we can afford to smile at their predictions. We are only waiting for the obstacle to be overcome.

GERMANY'S HOPELESS TASK.

It is not America only which has tried conclusions with us. Germany has organized her commerce with a view, and the confident hope, of gradually driving us out of the world's markets. She relies on the greater use of science, the better technical education of her workmen, and her more methodical system of industry and commerce. She has commercial travellers all over the globe, gives her manufacturers Government assistance, and for a quarter of a century has been straining every nerve to outdo us in commerce. No doubt Germany has made great strides, but, instead of decreasing, our foreign trade is expanding by leaps and bounds. And this without any extra effort on our part!

Now Germany cannot do very much more than she is doing to further her commerce. We are only beginning to wake up. Presently we will make use of technical education, impress science in the service of our manufacturers, send travellers with a better knowledge of foreign tongues, make out our price lists in the languages, weights, and measures of our customer-countries. Where will Germany be then?

JOHN BULL SCORING EVERYWHERE

Americans are putting forth all their energy and have no reserve. We have more energy in reserve than in use. Germans avail themselves of every help to be obtained from education, science, and system. They can make little further advance. We still rely to a great extent on the rule-of-thumb methods, and are, nevertheless, the equals at least of the Germans. When we come to put forth our whole reserve of energy, and make full use of education and science, both Germany and the United States will find themselves very far in the rear.

As in commerce, so in diplomacy. India is no longer in danger. Instead of being isolated, we find foreign nations competing for our friendship. The rumor that, in a certain eventuality, we could land one hundred thousand men on the continent has inspired great respect for our Army. And it is universally acknowledged that the new disposition of our Navy has made us mistress of the seas against all the world. In a few short months the nation was raised to this high pinnacle, proving that in warlike efficiency, as well as in commerce and industry, Englishmen have only to draw upon their reserve of energy in order to take the lead of all nations.

MOTHER'S ANXIETY.

The summer months are an anxious time for mothers because they are the most dangerous months of the year for young children. Stomach and bowel troubles come quickly during the hot weather and almost before the mother realizes that there is danger the little one may be beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets will prevent summer complaints if given occasionally, because they keep the stomach and bowels free from offending matter. And the Tablets will cure these troubles if they come suddenly. You may save your child's life by keeping a box of Baby's Own Tablets on hand to give promptly. Mrs. Frank Moore, Northfield, N. Old Gent—"'Pon my word, madam, I should hardly have known you, you have altered so much."

Lady (archly)—"For the better or for the worse?"

Old Gent—"Ah, madam, you could only change for the better."

Holloway's Corn Cure is the medicine to remove all kinds of corns and warts, and only costs the small sum of twenty-five cents.

A SMALL BOY'S TEARS.

"What are you crying for, my poor little boy?"

"Boohoo! Pa fell downstairs."

"Don't take on so, my pet. He'll get better soon."

"Sister saw him fall all the way. I never saw nuffen! Boohoo!"

Cucumbers and melons are "forbidden fruit" to many persons so constituted that the least indulgence is followed by attacks of cholera, dysentery, griping, etc. These persons are not aware that they can indulge to their heart's content if they have on hand a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial, a medicine that will give immediate relief, and is a sure cure for all summer complaints.

WONDERFUL MONASTERY.

At Solovetsk, in the Russian Government of Archangel, is the most remarkable monastery in the world. The monastery of Solovetsk is enclosed on every side by a wall of granite boulders, which measure nearly a mile in circumference. The monastery itself is very strongly fortified, being supported by round and square towers about 30 ft. in height, with walls 20ft. in thickness. The monastery consists in reality of six churches, which are completely filled with statues of all kinds and precious stones. Upon the walls and the towers surrounding these churches are mounted huge guns, which in the time of the Crimean War were directed against the British White Sea Squadron.

"Dear friends," began a speaker at a meeting the other night, "I call you 'dear friends'; I won't call you ladies and gentlemen because, you see, I know you all so well."

Smith: "Do you think that seeing is believing?" Mrs. Smith: "No, I see some people every day I could never believe."

PLEASANT MOMENTS.

It has been said with a great deal of truth that you can never become really acquainted with a man until you have supped with him, and in order to ensure a pleasant time good tea must be used. During the past sixteen years "SALADA" has become a familiar word to every newspaper reader, and the fact that the demand is steadily increasing requires no comment; it tells its own story, "SALADA" is king. The delicious flavor of "SALADA" Tea is due largely to the care used in the cultivation and preparation and to the fact that it is packed in sealed lead packages which prevent it coming in contact with articles that would affect its flavor.

A DEFINITION.

"Do you think that if woman is 'the weaker vessel' you might call an old maid a derelict?"

"Why? Because she's deserted?"

"Well, no — because she isn't manned!"

Time Has Tested It.—Time tests all things, that which is worthy lives; that which is inimical to man's welfare perishes. Time has proved Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. From a few thousand bottles in the early days of its manufacture the demand has risen so that now the production is running into the hundreds of thousands of bottles. What is so eagerly sought for must be good.

HOPE YET.

"I declare," exclaimed a talkative youth in a smoking room one day, "I believe I have forgotten all I ever knew!"

"Sorry to hear it," growled a ferocious old individual. "However, you can put in an hour some day learning it all over again."

Physical Pain and mental anguish afflict the victims of skin diseases. Get rid of both by rubbing Werver's Cerate on the heated, itching, disfigured face. The relief given is among the wonders of medicine

The following doubtful compliment is a fragment from a love-letter:—"How I wish, my darling Adelaide, my engagements would permit me to leave town and come and see you! It would be like visiting some old ruin, hallowed by time and fraught with a thousand recollections."

A Cure for Rheumatism.—The intrusion of uric acid into the blood vessels is a fruitful cause of rheumatic pains. This irregularity, is owing to a deranged and unhealthy condition of the liver. Anyone subject to this painful affection will find a remedy in Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. Their action upon the kidneys is pronounced and most beneficial and by restoring healthy action, they correct impurities in the blood.

"Papa," said the darling daughter of the household, "how did you propose marriage to mamma?" "Don't ask me," answered the old man. "I can't remember a thing about it. Go and ask your mother. She managed the whole affair."

Sunlight Soap is better than other soaps, but is best when used in the Sunlight way. Buy Sunlight Soap and follow directions.

Office Boy—"There's a gentleman here with a bill.' The Old Man—"Tell him to call again." "With a bill you got agin him, that he wants to pay." "Ah! Show the gentleman in."

They are a Powerful Nervine.—Dyspepsia causes derangement of the nervous system, and nervous debility once engendered is difficult to deal with. There are many testimonials as to the efficacy of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills in treating this disorder, showing that they never fail to produce good results. By giving proper tone to the digestive organs, they restore equilibrium to the nerve centres.

TO GOVERN TOMMY ATKINS.

The new War Office in Whitehall, London, is one of the most wonderful buildings in the world. It looks imposing enough to scare any enemy of Britain who may chance to see it. Some idea of its size may be gathered from the fact that 25,000,000 of ordinary bricks, 1,500,000 glazed bricks, 26.000 tons of Portland stone, 1,600 tons of lead, 3,500 tons of steel, and 35,000 cubic yards of concrete were used in its construction. It contains 600 rooms, 2½ miles of corridors, 9 miles of chimney flues, 100 miles of piping, and 1,700 windows. In order to ensure dryness, the entire building is set in a concrete "dock" 24 ft. deep, the inner walls of which are well removed from the walls of the structure. This dock is large enough to float several warships.

Mrs. Mulligan: "An' what did his 'onner say to you this morning?" Mrs. Mulcahy: "Can't you and your husband live together without fighting?" Mrs. Mulligan: "An' what did yer say?" Mrs. Mulcahy: "No, yer 'onner, not happily."

EMPIRE ! EMPIRE ! EMPIRE !

The Empire Cream Separator outwears other Separators, lasts longer and requires fewer repairs, because—It's simpler in construction and—It is more carefully built. That has been the Experience of thousands and thousands of farmers who have used the Empire. Its easy to see why. Being so much simpler in construction it has fewer parts to get out of order. The bowl being so much lighter and there being so much less mechanism, there naturally is lessfriction and wear. It will pay you to consider these things.

WINCHESTER, ONT., Jan. 9, 1905.

EMPIRE CREAM SEPARATOR COMPANY OF CANADA, Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Gentlemen:—I am using one of your EMPIRE Separators and am pleased to be able to recommend to all who intend to buy machines.

I can truly say that I have tried several methods of handling milk, and can recommend a separator to be far inadvance of all other moethds.

I can also say that I have tried several other makes of separators and prefer the EMPIRE to any of the others on account of it being easily cleaned, a close skimmer, and the lightest to operate. I am

Bogus Money Passed.

Counterfeit bills, made from the most skilfully engraved dies are in circulation in Toronto. Several cases have been reported to the police, and the detectives are looking for a big six footer, age about 45 years, with a heavy moustache who is alleged to have passed them.

The bill chosen by the counterfeiters for imitation is the ten dollar note for the bank of Toronto, and the one in the possession of the detective department is so cleverly done that it can hardly be distinguished from the genuine article. Several fives, manufactured by the same hand have also been reported as having been used.

There are also complaints from people who have been victimized by raised notes. Several American bills of the one-dollar denomination raised to five dollars by the use of chemicals are known to have been passed.

Peterborough May Lose Normal School.

Peterborough, Ont., Aug. 27—For the second time within three weeks Dr. Sheath and Dr. Colquhoun, of the Ontario Educational Department visited the city to day and viewed several sites for the new Normal School. The council has not yet settled upon a location, and the visitors intimated that unless a decision were reached shortly the school would probably be built elsewhere. The authorities declare they will not wait any longer. An emergency meeting of the Council and board of education and military officers will be held to-morrow night to consider the proposal of having the militia give up the site for the new armories in Central Park to the school the militia to accept in its stead four acres known as the Dickson property on Harvey Street.

Valuable Horse Lost.

Toronto, August 28—Lord Rostchild's stable at the exhibition sustained a heavy loss to-night in the death of Blythwood-Guilder Rose, the handsome brood mare brought out along with King Edward's Horse. The mare broke loose on Monday night, found the feed box and overate herself, dying this evening of stomach trouble. She was valued $5,000.

Aged Mother to the Rescue.

Three Rivers, August 28.—Word comes from the Upper St. Maurice of the drowning of two persons early last week. A young man by the name of Lacroix was in the St. Maurice river and in danger of sinking, when his aged mother went to his assistance. The mother had in the past been a good swimmer; she was not, however, able to save her son, and both were drowned. The bodies were recovered.
