Barns Burned at Morewood

Yesterday morning about nine o'clock, during the electrical storm which passed over the Morewood section a fine new barn belonging to Wilson Steinburg about half a mile north of the village was struck and burned to the ground with its contents. The barn was a new one hardly completed, the stabling not having yet been put in, and was bullt of dressed lumber and had a metal roof.

Chesterville a Cheap Place to Buy in.

We happened to overhear a man with his arms full of parcels remark this week that you can always buy cheaper in Chesterville than any of the places surrounding, and that most of the stores carrying very large stocks one can always find anything he requires in the town. Motorists can come a good many miles to trade in Chesterville and save considerable more than their gasoline.

Convicted of Stealing Honey.

A sutnt that in the olden days was considered quite a smart trick, the stealing of a bee hive with its store of honey, was given a considerable set-back by Magistrate Houlehan on Saturday, when he imposed a fine of twenty dollars and costs on a couple of Williamsburg township farmers for "lifting" a hive belonging to Wm. Collins of Grantley. The theft was committed two or three weeks ago but a search-warrant revealed evidence, which convicted the parties. The twenty dollars was given to Collins to pay for the loss.

Have The Wrong Teachers

A letter received by The Record a few days ago regarding the food economy campaign has the following paragraph which seems to be a clear view of the situation.

"The truest economy to get plain wholesome food and eliminate all waste. The ladies on the thrift committees are women who never had to economise in their lives, and are preaching what the majority of women have been practicing all their lives. A woman who has done her own work, raised a family, made all the garments the family wore as thousands of them have are the women to teach thrift. These kind of women make Canada and their's are the sons who will fight for their homes."

CARD OF THANKS.

I wish to thank the Ontario Farmers Weather Insurance Mutual Co. for their prompt and honourable settlement by Mr. James Clement, of my claim for $200 for damage done my barn in recent wind storm.

Signed, Matthew Wilson.

Had Him Both Ways.

Many charming stories, showing how the quick-witted Belgians succeed in taking "a rise" out of their German oppressors, are told in a recently published volume by Jean Massart.

One of these concerns a peasant with a donkey cart, who was ordered by a German guard at the entrance to a town to give the name of his donkey, so that it might be entered on the official pass in.

"My donkey's name!" exclaimed the peasant, scratching his head. "He hasn't got one."

"Then call him Albert."

"That would be a reflection on my king."

"Call him William then."

"That would be a reflection on my donkey."

Always the Way

Bobby has been invited out to dinner and his mother worried lest he should commit some breach of etiquette. On his return home she questioned him as to how he had behaved.

"Well, mamma," he said, "I got along very well until the meat came, but I was trying to cut mine it slipped off on the floor. But I made it all right, mamma."

"What did you do?"

"Oh, I just said sort of carelessly. That's always the way with tough meat."

A Minor Matter.

The minister called at the Bevans' one June Sunday afternoon, and the eldest boy, answering the bell, said:

"Father ain't in. He's gone over to the golf club."

Then, observing the shadow that came over the minister's brow, the boy added in reassuring tones:

"Oh, not to golf, you know. Nothin' like that. Only to drink beer and play a little poker."

Another reassuring smile and nod, and the boy shut the door on the dazed c ergyman.

Thanks Spruce Grove Knitting Circle

Somewhere in France.
July 7th 1917.

S.G.B.C. Knitting Circle,
Chesterville, Ont.

Dear Friend;—

It gives me great pleasure to write these few lines to thank the people of Beckstead and surrounding country, for the parcel of socks etc, I received last evening. I must say all of we Canadian boys appreciate everything we receive from Canada very much, because we always know, what we get from home is of the very best, and especially from the Red Cross, and other societies, which the ladies have formed. We are very glad to know the women of all the Countries which are at war to-day, have taken such a noble stand to help the boys who are at the front, in many different ways. How many of we men thought women were of such great importance in the world, until after war was declared in August 1914. Really they certainly have proved to us, that they are worth their weight in gold and then some. Women are doing work today men thought it was impossible for them to do. While I was in England. I was greatly surprised to see such important positions and responsibilities some of them held and they seemed to be doing it just as well as there predecessors.

I have not been in the trenches as yet but the last couple of nights we have been up right behind the front line doing night work and I might say at times it was quite interesting there. The 2nd Battalion to which I now belong, will be going into action almost any day but of course we never know. However we are ready any old time.

Well, I guess I will have to bring this letter to a close, again thanking the S.G-B.C. Knitting Circle for the parcel now at hand and wishing them every success in there good work. I remain yours sincerely 634015 Pte. I. H. Beckstead.

Morewood High School

Middle School Results—Two candidates wrote, neither was successful. They were not recommended, in fact were carefully advised not to write. We have for the past year eight middle school entrance to normal certificates, four complete junior matriculation, and eleven Lower school certificates, one of these with honours. This is a pretty high record for a two-teacher school overtaking the work through the Middle School Courses and our total enrolment for the year was fifty-eight. A few more pupils would necessitate the addition of another teacher to the staff.

Looking back over the high school work done in Morewood we find that eighty-eight candidates have complete Middle School Normal Entrance Certificates, a large number of whom have complete junior matriculation. Several obtained Model School Entrance standing where they failed in the Middle School examination and several left school after passing the Lower School final.

Several of Morewood's graduates are now university graduates and specialists. While a number are in the undergraduate courses.

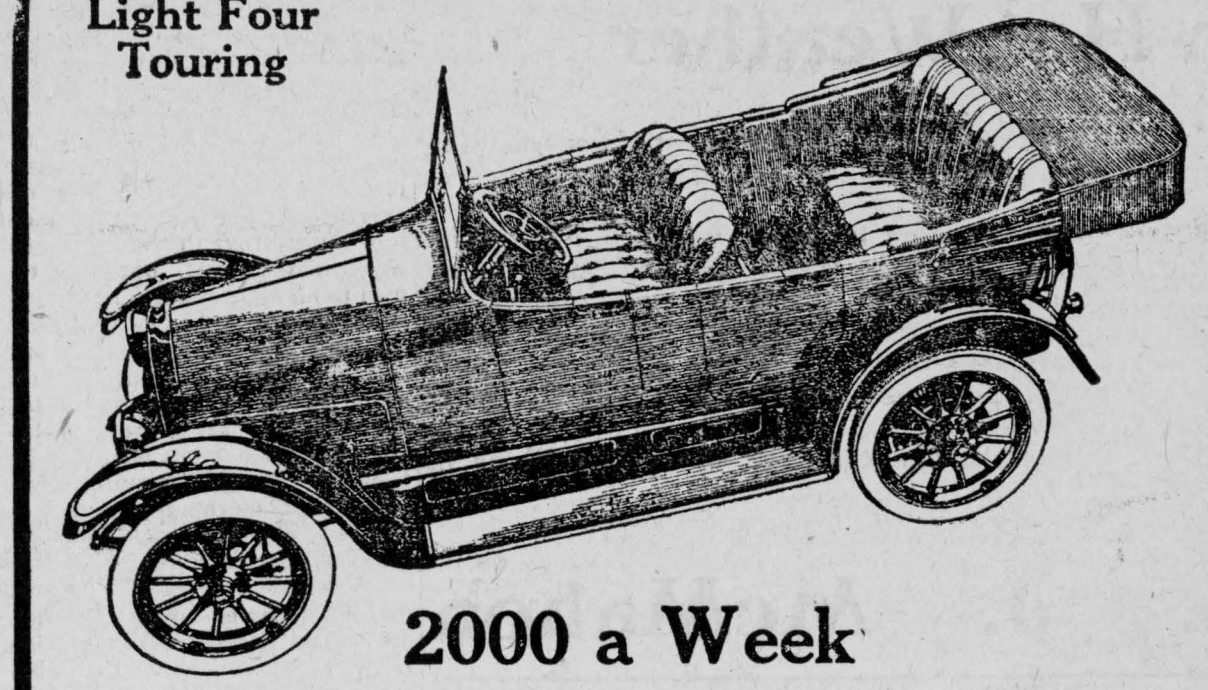

These results must be a source of great satisfaction to the candidates, teachers and all concerned including those who help to maintain the school though they have no child to attend.

With reference to the financial value of education we add a quotation from a school journal. "A recent study of two groups of Brooklyn citizens revealed the following facts. The boys who withdrew from school at 14 years of age were earning on the average $475 in their 20th year, and $688 in their 25th year. The boys who remained at school until their 18th year earned $759 in their 20th and $1150 in their 25th year. Between the 14th year and the 25th year the one type of boy earned $5112.50 and the other type $7337.50.

A recent study made by the United States Bureau of Education gives the following figures; Illiterate labourers earn $20000 in a working life of 40 years at $500 per year. High School graduates earn $40000 in a working life of 40 years. Thus the High School graduate receives $20000 as a reward for his 21 years in school!

On the low scale of dollars and cents education pays, and pays generously.

Then go to school. Go if you possibly can, make the sacrifice. Girls should obtain at least a second class professional certificate, something to fall back on in case the need should arise. Study hard even if it hurts at times. You may have stopped school, begin again and go through.

Catatrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reached the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed. Deafness is the result. Unless the the inflamation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will b destroyed for ever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system,

Killed in Auto Accident.

Romeo Poulin. a telegrapher on the C. P. R., who has at different times relieved members of the Chesterville station staff. was killed in an auto accident at Smiths Falls last week. On Friday afternoon, with a friend, Poulin went off for a ride in a Ford runabout belonging to Jos. Kilpatrick, an operator who recently moved to Ottawa, and returning on the Brockville road, overturned the car at a turn about four miles from town. The car was badly smashed, but the two men to all appearances and so far as they admitted had escaped without hurt. Poulin had his supper that evening and worked all night, spent part of Saturday in bed and the rest of the day around the Russell Hotel, where he boarded. He went to work again Saturday night but towards morning appeared to be sleepy and dazed and was relieved so that he might go back to the hotel and to bed. There was nothing alarming about his condition until Sunday evening when Dr. Gray was called and had him removed to St. Francis Hospital where he died in thirty-five minutes.

Trooper Mulloy Nearly Drowned

Col. L. W. Mulloy, while in bathing Monday afternoon with a number of other campers at Iroquois, nearly lost his life. Col. Mulloy, popularly known as Trooper Mulloy, lost his eyesight in the South African War, but nevertheless goes in swimming with someone to call instructions. This time through some misunderstanding he lost his bearings and drifted out into the current, to find he could not get back to shore. The only other man in the water at the time was Lieut. Robert Caldwell, who was at least one hundred yards away up the river. Caldwell's sister called for him and he immediately started to swim toward the colonel, but found the current beating him, so he went ashore and ran along until he got opposite Mulloy and then plunged into the water and swam to him.

Mrs. Mulloy's screams had been heard by some of the other cottagers. Mr. Forrester, I. P. S., of Dundas County, with his brother- inlaw, Dr. C. F. Williams from Cardinal, ran to the water's edge. The doctor fully clothed jumped into the water and swam to the colonel and Caldwell. Mr. Forrester ran farther down the shore, prepared to swim out in case the other two could not get him in. The men struggled with Mulloy for some time, and finally succeeded in getting him to shore. Before they had reached Mulloy he had been under water several times.

Born

JOHNSTON—At Chesterville on Saturday August 11th 1917, to Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Johnston, a daughter. (Muriel Jean).

"It is in the homes of the Province of Ontario that the great battles we are to face will have to be fought and won," declares Sir William Hearst, Premier of Ontario, referring to the Food Controller's Food Conservation campaign. Premier Hearst's words apply to all Canada.

"Mamma," complained little Elsie "I don't feel very well."

"That's too bad, dear," said mother, sympathetically. "Where do you feel worst?"

"In school, mamma."

A young officer who would have been just liable to the draft, had he waited for that before enlisting, has a daughter six years old. When he first presented himself in uniform Dorothy gazed at him in wonder for a minute. Then she laughed and said.

"Oh, I thought at first it was a real soldier, and it just my daddy."

Bix—No meat for me. I never eat anything that costs the life of a living creature.

Dig—Then drop that potato you're eating. Don't you know that the production of potatoes costs the lives of millions of poor potato bugs?

"The doctor would like to see you inside," said the attendant to the waiting patient.

"No. sir!" emphatically answered the patient." He can't try any of his X-ray pusiness on me. I merely want to see him about a boil on my neck"

Another Warm Wave Expected Next Week

Washington, D. C. Aug. 11—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent August 10 to 14, warm wave 9 to 13, cool wave 13 to 17. This will be rather quiet in and west of Rockies, but it will increase in force and importance as it progresses eastward. It will be a great and dangerous storm out on the Atlantic from 18 to 21 and will probably reach Europe about August 23 to 24. The week centering on August 18 will not be a good time to go boat riding. We see no particular good that storm can do except to stir and purify the atmosphere. It does not promise rain where rain is needed, but does promise rain in Canada, where not needed.

Next warm wave will reach Vancouver about August 17 and temperatures will rise on all the Pacific slope. It will cross crest of Rockies by close of August 18, plains sections 19, meridian 90, great lakes and Ohio valleys 20, eastern sections 21, reaching vicinity of Newfoundland near August 23. Storm wave will follow about one day behind warm wave and cool wave about one day behind storm wave.

This will be the most important storm of August. It will develop a dangerous transcontinental storm on this continent and a tropical hurricane in the Caribbean sea and Gulf of Mexico. It will lay the foundations for a great change of crop weather that will be of great importance to 1918 crops. It will cause unwelcome winds in Canada that will suck the moisture out of the soil where a great and much needed corn crop has been expected.

Look out for that tropical hurricane, It will probably organize near Aug. 18 aud the U. S. Weather Bureau will pick it up and keep us informed about it a little later. We can do little in locating these hurricanes, but believe it will organize near the Windward Islands on Aug. 18 or 19 and move toward Yucatan which it should reach by August 23, reaching northern Gulf coast about Aug. 25. We are confident that this will be its path, but we are slowly learning more and more about these cyclones of the sea.

These storms on land and sea promise harm and little good as an immediate result, but they are full of good promise for September and for many months after. We will have much to say hereafter about the cropweather of which these greater storms will be the forerunners. We have already told you of one result, a good grass crop for 1918 in the timothy sections, the most valuable grass crop this country will ever have produced. These great storms will lay the foundations for that coming result

Our September forecasts will be published August 25. Farmers should have information earlier, but the monopoly that is under the control of orthodox science stands in the way.

McLean Vs. C. P. R.

An action of much more importance than is usually disposed of in the Division Court, was tried before His Honor Judge Scott quite recently and, after reserving the matter, His Honor, has handed out a very full judgment. The action was instituted by Mr. David McLean, the well-known drover of the Township of Elmsley, against the Canadian Pacific Railway for damages sustained by him, by reason of a delay on the part of the railway company, in carrying a carload of cattle from Franktown to Toronto. By reason of the delay the sale of the cattle on the stock market in Toronto was held up for twenty-four hours longer than would otherwise have been the case. During the twenty-four hours, the price of live stock fell and Mr. McLean, consequently, suffered damages.

From the evidence it was quite clear that there was unreasonable and unnecessary delay in the yards of the railway company at Toronto, and the Judge found that this delay amounted to negligence on the part of the company. The company relied upon a special contract, which all drovers are obliged to enter into, and which contract contains a provision that the company shall not be liable for damages resulting from delay of trains.

It was contended on behalf of Mr. McLean, that the right of the company to be relieved from damages under the provisions of the special contract only obtained where the company were not guilty of negligence. It was further contended that where negligence was established, that the company were not entitled to claim of benefit of their special contract.

The case was a very important one for those engaged in the shipment of cattle and the result is of interest to all the drovers in this locality.

The judgment handed out by His Honor Judge Scott decides the action in favor of Mr. McLean, who gets judgment for the full amount of his claim with costs.—Perth Expositor.

Enemy Dead at Glencorse.

British Headquarters, Aug. 12.—With the return of perfect weather and beautiful visibility the struggle all along the front has again assumed great intensity though no attacks on a grand scale have taken place. The hardest infantry fighting of the week end has been the area east of Ypres in Westhoek centre.

The fighting here is on a straggling piece of woodland known as Glencorse wood which crowns the highest part of the eastern spur of Westhoek Ridge. The Germans are fighting very desperately to hold their positions here. The enemy is absolutely reckless of his losses. Under constant pressure and immensely greater numbers we have fallen back to the west-edges of Glencorse wood. Airmen report they never have seen the German ground so heaped with German dead as that battlefield.

At present we have taken hold of all Woodhoek Ridge except the extreme eastern 500 yards with a portion of a shattered wood. The enemy has engaged in fearful gusts of fighting, which seems truly to have been as intense and as desperate as most any seen on a similar area in the war. Glencorse wood promises to be as costly to the Germans as the attempts to hold Mouquette farm or Givenchy.

I see from German wireless that the enemy has invented a great battle on the sea coast which is supposed to have taken place on Aug. 8 and succeeding days, both attacks are said to have failed totally. It is a pure fabrication. No such operation was attempted. Similarly German versions which present a particularly neat and successful raid on East Monchy as a great assault made by dense masses which were wiped out by the annihilating force of the German artillery. Such things carry their own condemnation, because we never attack in dense masses or anything approaching them. German guns getting at dense masses of British troops is a thing that only exists and can only exist in the German mind. This particular raid was made with the usual small force and resulted in the capture of 90 prisoners.

Cure For Potato Bugs.

A farmer claims to have found a cure for potato bugs by ten years experimenting in Colorado. His plan is to plant one or two grains of flax seed in each hill of potatoes. He says that the bugs will shun it every time, and that for ten years he has been thus successfnl in raising potatoes where others have failed. The proposed remedy is simple and costs very little to try. This should be done at planting time.

To Save Trouble

A certain Scottish soldier in hospital has been operated on four times in an endeavor to extract a bullet from the vicinity of his lower ribs.

On the last occasion he stated he had a request to make before going under chloroform.

Permission having been granted him to make it, he remarked to the surgeon; "Oh, it's naething much. I jist want to suggest that if you are unsuccessful this time, and think you will have to try again don't sew me up, jist put buttons on me."

Face Your Troubles

"You'd scarcely believe it, but I had ploughed around a rock in one of my fields for five years," said a farmer, "and I had broken a mowing machine knife against it, besides loosing the use of the ground in which it lay, all because I supposed it was a large rock that it would take too much time and labour to remove. But to-day, when I began to plough for corn, I thought that by-and-bye I might break my cultivator against that rock; so I took a crow-bar, intending to poke around and find out its size once for all. And it was one of the surprises of my life to find that it was a little more than two feet long. It was standing on its edge, and so light that I could lift it in the waggon without any help."

So it is with most of us; we shiver and shrink and fret over some difficulty which we do not even see distinctly or at all understand the nature of; whereas if we would face it and call it by its right-name, one-half of its terror would be gone.

Minister Told to Leave

As a result of the statements made in his sermon in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Moose Jaw, Sask., on Sunday evening, Rev. Mr. Harley, of Paduach, Ky., who has been substituting in the pulpit during the holidays of Rev W. G. Wilson, pastor of the church, was officially asked by the Mayor of Moose Jaw to leave that city as soon as possible. Rev. Harley is reported as saying in his sermon that Great Britain was responsible for the war because, when Russia was remonstrating with Austria for threatening to murder Serbia, she undertook to remain neutral. He also said that the United States was greater than Britain because she stayed out of the war longer, and concluded by a statement that the time would come when all North America would be under one flag.

Bad Spill Concluded Brockville Joy Ride

Brockville, Aug. 10.—A midnight joy ride resulted in half a dozen people being taken to the hospital for repairs. In the party were Lawrence Jackson, a Detroit policeman; Arthur Lafontain, Earnest Ford, Morley Simon Lawrence Kelly and Morris Jackson, all of Brockville. The last-mentioned was the chauffeur, and, in attempting to pass a horse and buggy, driven by Mr. and Mrs John Allen, the big seven-passenger car struck the vehicle and, turning over, plunged into the ditch. The accident occurred in the township of Elizabethtown, half mile west of Brockville, in the country district and cries of Mrs. Allen brought farmers to the scene, L. Jackson, Simon, Ford and Kelly were found pinned beneath the car, while the other occupants were thrown clear of it, one man being whirled over the fence. All were badly cut and bruised. The Detroit policeman suffered the most, his internal injuries being of a serious nature. The doctors now have hopes of his recovery. Mrs. Allen was painfully injured about the head, shoulders and right limb, while her husband was practically unhurt. The motor car is a wreck, also the buggy.

With the Jokers

"Have you got a war garden?"

"Yep, a bigger one than I had last year."

"There were no war gardens last year."

"If you had seen the fights I had with my neighbor's rooster over my garden last year you would have called it a war garden."

"What ship is that and where's she bound?" roared the skipper of the Sappho. "Never mind where we're bound!" roared back the skipper of the craft to windward, ',And don't call this ship 'she'! This is the mail boat."

Her (sighing)—Oh, I met such a lovely polite man today.

Him—Where was that?

Her—On the street. I must have been carrying my umbrella carelessly, for he bumped his eye into it. And I said, "Pardon me," and he said, "Don't mention it—I have another eye left."

"There are a great many people in this world who don't know what's good for them."

"Perhaps so, but they always have plenty of neighbors who would gladly tell them if they would only listen."

Danny and Bobbie had been left in the care of their big sister while their mother went out. At bedtime they wanted to "stay up for mother," but their sister relentlessly put them to bed. Danny maintained a stolid indifference, but Bobbie cried lustily. Their sister listened at the foot of the stairs, hoping they would soon be quiet. At last Bobbie stopped, and the listener heard him say:

"You cry a bit, Danny; I'm tired."

As the baseball crowd was pushing and struggling to get out at the games' end, a small boy bored his way to the fence and began to climb over it.

"Hey there, kid, yelled a policeman; "none o' that. Go out the way you came in."

By this time the youngster had reached the top of the fence. "Aw, ain't I doin' it?" he said as he vanished on the other side.

"Can any little boy," asked the new teacher, "tell me the difference between a lake and an ocean?"

"I can," replied Edward, whose wisdom had been learned from experience. "Lakes are much pleasanter to swallow when you fall in.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form.

Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body; and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.

To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood with the oil-food in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal food and a building-tonic, free from any harmful drugs. Try it.

An Important Statement

Last September we made the following statement:

"We have been requested by our Shorthand and Secretarial graduates to issue a statement relative to the comparison between the enrollments and graduations.

Our records show that up to June, 1912 the number of students who entered the senior Shorthand classes, but who failed to graduate, was a very considerable loss to these classes in the College. During the year 1912-13 the proportion of graduates increased, and so from year to year. The year just ended shows the best record in the twenty years' history of the school, for the number failing to graduate as compared with the total enrollment has been reduced to a negligible minimum, and in the majority of these cases the student accepted a situation and would not stay to graduate.

To a great extent this is due to the fact that all Willis teachers since 1912 have been keen, enthusiastic and intelligent workers; that the atmosphere is refined and home-like; and each student knows that the Principal and all the Staff are interested in his or her individual progress."

This year is even more gratifying, for without any exception and giving everyone his just dues, we are able to say that the results obtained are far superior to those of any previous period in the history of Willis College.

When you combine thoroughness of training with a helpful atmosphere, you get results not otherwise obtained.

If you are interested in a GOOD course of Shorthand, Typewriting, Bookkeeping or Civil Service, write today for our prospectus

On a Torpedoed Ship.

The following account of his experience on a torpedoed vessel was written by Rev. James Gillies, the minister of the parish from which Mr. and Mrs. John Fleming of Morewood came, and was received by them a short time ago. The Rev. Mr. Gillies has been with the Lowland Division as Chaplain since the beginning of the war, was through the Dardanelles campaign and since that has been in the Suez Egyptian campaign.

"How does it feel to be torpedoed? is a question that has been frequently asked me—for I have had recently a double experience of shipwreck. The first time was on a homeward journey from the East

I thought that, after being shipwrecked both in the Eastern and Western Mediterranean, I might be looked upon as a Jonah, but most of the officers who were saved along with me seemed to regard the matter in quite an opposite light. More than one said to me, "I would like to sail with you the next time, Padre; you seem to bear a charm that carries you safely through whatever happens."

My second experience was tragic enough. The story of that shipwreck constitutes, perhaps, the greatest tragedy that has befallen a British transport since the War began. I saw the two torpedo-boats of our convoy sail away, as full as they could hold; I saw all the serviceable boats launched and filled; and still there were many aboard, calm and patient, hoping that succour might reach them from the shore. It soon became evident that this was not likely to happened in time. So everything that could float was thrown overboard for support, and some boats that were barely seaworthy were lowered as a forlorn hope. I got off the starboard side into one of these, and when I left, that deck was clear.

It was a glorious evening when we sailed from the port of— just as night was falling. We had a fine ship— the Transylvania with troops. We were accompanied by two Japanese torpedo-boats. The Japs looked very capable and alert, and proved very helpful when our catastrophe occurred after my previous experience of shipwreck I had made up my mind only to partly undress at night; but as I was feeling very tired I broke this good resolution at once, and slept very soundly till 4 a.m., when we had all to parade in lifebelts. Next morning I got into my old and easy suit for a few hours of comfort. About 10.20 a. m. I was talking to one of the nurses, who had been a previous shipmate of mine, when a tremendous explosion occurred. and we realised that a torpedo had struck us. A few minutes before this our ship had sounded a warning signal to the torpedo-boats, and I have heard since that a torpedo had just missed us at that time Our boat was fitted with water-tight compartmeuts, and these closed automatically after the explosion. The Captain turned the ship towards the shore—we were a few miles distant—but the explosion had burst the steam-pipes of the engines, and we could only move a little way with the momentum of the ship. Still we kept on an even keel, and this allowed some of the boats to be readily launched. The nursing sisters were put aboard first. Some of the men, in the first excitement jumped overboard, and endeavoured to get on to rafts or such of the boats as were lowered. Many of these must have perished. I saw several of them crushed against the ship when one of the torpedo-boats came alongside. About fifteen minutes after the first torpedo hit us another torpedo struck, and completed the shipwreck. It blew up the forward hatches and many men at the same time. After this the ship began to fill rapidly. I think that if we had missed the second shot the ship might have floated and perhaps been able to be towed into port. But after the second explosion any one could see that the case was hopeless. It was all darkness below, as the lights went out at the very first. But I found my way downstairs, changed into boots, got my waterproof, belt, leggings—just such things as I could carry on me—and returned upstairs, carrying my despatch case and haversack, in case I could save these. At the last moment I found this impossible. It was all I could do to save myself. On the instructions of the second officer I got into one of the last two boats that left the starboard side, and we had just moved away a short distance when the great vessel plunged her nose in the waves, raised her screw almost perpendicularly and sank out of sight in deep water. It was an awful and a fascinating sight. I could not take my eyes away, though they were full of tears at the tragic spectacle. First the bows went under water, then the first funnel, then the second; for a moment you saw only the stern and the screw, the next moment the waters had closed over her, and nothing was to be seen but some swimmers and floating wreckage. The Captain went down with his ship, also the officer commanding the troops; the senior medical officer was on duty to the last, and died at his post. The Captain came to the surface and was hauled aboard a boat in a very exhausted condition. Poor fellow, I saw him brought on to the Italian torpedo-boat which picked me up. He was in great pain, and though he lived to reach hospital he died that night.

It was very rough for the Mediterranean. Of course we had not the terrible rollers of the Atlantic. But the waves seemed big enough to us in our poor little boats. They came on us in great volume, with frightening white crests; they frequently broke right over us, and every morning seemed as if we would be swamped. Some of the boats were leaking and quickly filled. A boat with forty-five nurses in it swamped, and the women had to hang on for a long time with only their heads above water. But they were full of courage, every one of them, and were eventually rescued at the point of extreme exhaustion. Not one woman was lost, a fact for which we were all infinitely thankful.

There were many deeds of splendid heroism performed during the time that elapsed between the first alarm and the hour of rescue. One major was on a raft, and rescued so many struggling men that the little raft became top-heavy. He promptly jumped into the sea, not only taking off his own weight but helping to guide the raft shorewards. He was so exhausted by his exertions that, though rescued, he died before reaching the shore.

Both of our torpedo-boats came alongside, and each took off about 1000 of the troops. I did not attempt to board either of them. Their were so many young lads, looking white and anxious, that one had enough to do for some time trying to reassure them and get them into safety. It still seems to me wonderful, not that a few hundreds were lost, but that so many hundreds were saved, under such difficult circumstances. One of the torpedo-boats was narrowly missed by the torpedo that struck us the second time. If she had been sunk we would have had a far longer list of casualties.

The boat I got into was badly damaged on one side and had no rowlocks. Some of the men took off their putties and tried to make temporary rowlocks, bnt we could get no purchase; it was the most difficult thing in the world to keep her half-way on to the wind, and all we could do was just to keep afloat, with drenching billows constantly breaking over us. We were some three or four hours tossing about in the waves, watching men struggling to the last gasp, and helpless to save them, when an Italian torpedo-boat that had received our wire less message picked us up. All were soaked to the skin, nearly all were miserably sick, and almost too weak to scramble aboard. But as I hardly ever suffer from sea-sickness I felt amazingly fit, and after a rest and some stimulant aboard the torpedo-boat I was quite ready to make myself useful again.

We were taken along to the little ward room (officers' mess). It was a tiny place, of course, with cabins opening off. Some of our officers were resting in the bunks, others were hanging around almost naked, for we were all dripping wet, and took the chance to throw off our clinging garments. Now and again other officers were brought in, some bleeding, others as sick as could be, nobody very buoyant. The poor Captain of our ship was carried past, and we could see he was dreadfully ill. Right in the midst of all this an officer was leaning against the wall in borrowed clothes, whistling an air almost unconsciously. It was "When you come to the end of a perfect day." "A funny selection of music you've made," said another officer. "Well, I daresay it isn't very appropriate," replied the first, as he stopped short. But in a few minntes we all laughed to hear him singing the air and the words to himself. It was a touch of comedy in the midst of tragedy, and shows how a tune sometimes possesses one.

Sir William Hearst, Premier of Ontario, fears that shortage of food supplies will hinder the Allies in winning the war.

Bannocks 'O Barley.

At present, when we are devising and trying to use all manner of wheat substitutes. the following lines by Neil Munro in his "Bagpipe Ballads" in "Blackwood's Magazine," are apposite, though the price of barley flour is prohibitive:—

Just gie us a griddle, a good Cu'ross griddle,
A nievefu' o' salt and the side o' a burn—
We'll feel like our fathers that never kent famine;
W' meal and a griddle nae Scottie 'll mourn!

It's no' the day's provand that makes ye the sodger,
It's milk o' your mother that fills ye wi' steel,
And sae we'll be couthy and sae we'll be canty,
As lang's we hae bannocks o' barley meal.

The Englishman's kyte is a great tribulation;
He must hae kitchen, and puddin's and wine;
A pokefu' o' meal frae the Lothians for Donald,
A faggot o' wood, and a well, and he'll dine!

Gie us the meal and we'll soon find the collops,
But if they're no' in it ye'll no' hear us squeal;
Our forefolk before us were dour anes to meddle,
Wi' naething but bannocks o' barley meal.

For dance or for battle it's best to be meagre,
Keep down the waist o' ye, lank be your frame;
Endurance and elegance, youth, dash and daring,
Depend on the belt ye can put round your wame,

Praise God we were born where our food was to fight for,
The land o' the barley's the land o' the leal;
It gave us but love and a song and a story,
And bred us on bannocks o' barley meal!

Take to the hills on the wings o' the mornin';
Bed in the heather and breathe o' the gale;
Be stark as the Coolins and lean as the larch-tree,
And 'gainst ye nae powers in Hell will prevail.

It's only yestreen we were poor as a piper.
We've lived near the bone and we've flourished on't weel;
At the warst o't it's just back to auld brose and brochan,
Our lassies 'll bake us the barley meal!
Bannocks o' barley! bannocks o' barley!
Bannocks o' barley meal!

The Allies, including Great Britain, France and Belgium need 460,000,000 bushels of imported wheat. North America will have to supply it.

Taking Time to Think It Over.

A Tragedy in Real Life

A Mutual Life insurance agent urged a certain man to sign an application for $5000 Insurance protection. The man replied—"Give me Sunday to think it over." Instead of thinking it over on Sunday, the young man went away on a motorcycle trip and, meeting with an accident, lost his life.

Leaving the signing of the application 48 hours cost his dependent relatives $5000, a sum which would have been a wonderful blessing to them.

Life is just as uncertain during the days of procrastination as later. Insure now, and do not make your family take chances for another day.

Mutual Life Policies afford protection at minimum cost. Nearly fifty thousand Canadian homes are protected by means of Mutual Policies.
