SECOND CLASS MAIL REGISTRATION NUMBER -0842

VOLUME 110, NO. 44 — MORRISBURG, ONT., FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1972 — SINGLE COPIES 10c

Public Meeting on Monday Following Civic Nominations

Monday night's meeting of Morrisburg Village Council passed a resolution calling for a public meeting to be held on Monday, November 13th for the purpose of hearing a report from Council and for those who may be nominated for public office in the village.

This meeting is called because there will not be a public nomination meeting as in former years. Under the new system for municipal elections set out by the provincial government, nominations are now received by the municipal clerk during a three-day period (Thursday and Friday this week, and next Monday).

Anyone aspiring to municipal office may obtain a nomination paper from the clerk, and it must then be signed by ten qualified persons. In Morrisburg, nominations will be received for a reeve, a deputy reeve, three councillors, and two hydro commissioners.

In other business, Council decided to apply for a L.I.P. grant to erect a new public works building as well as renovations at the former High School building.

It was also decided to apply for a supplementary expenditure on roads and streets, $10,000 maintenance and $5,00 construction.

50 yards of fill are to be purchased for cover at the sanitary landfill site.

Popular Couple Marks Fiftieth Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Jones, one of the village's most well-known and esteemed couples celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Saturday at Morrisburg Civic Centre.

On Friday, November 3, 1922, a day similar to the same date in 1972, wet and chilly with a promise of snow in the air Edwin Douglas Jones and Elizabeth Graham Brown both of Montreal were married at the home of the bride's sister Nettie, Mrs. Peter Ashcroft at Ville St. Marie, Quebec. It was a quiet happy wedding with immediate family attending and with Mrs. Ashcroft and Mr. Wm. Brown as witnesses. The minister was a native of Morrisburg, Rev. Wm. McKenzie who was minister at the Presbyterian Church at Ville St. Pierre.

Mrs. Jones reports that she met "Eddie" first over the telephone while delivering a message to a friend. She rather liked his voice and through her friend they met and eventually married.

Mrs. Jones was working as a secretary in Montreal. Mr. Jones was employed with Lyman's Ltd. of the city. He is a veteran of World War 1. He went overseas in 1915, to Greece, was evacuated to Egypt for one month in a rest camp and from there to Bologyne, France.

For a honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. Jones travelled via the old "Moccasin" from Montreal to Morrisburg following their 5 p.m. marriage ceremony. In those days it was considered quite a trip since the Moccasin stopped at every station. At that time Mr. Jones was working for Workman's Dairy. Here he soon became assistant express agent and druggist's assistant for the late Dave Henderson. Then for more than 25 years, until the office was closed after Seaway Rehabilitation, Eddie Jones was Morrisburg's able and hardworking express agent.

Today he is Deputy Reeve and Justice of the Peace.

A reception was held Saturday at the Civic Centre during the afternoon and evening when a host of well-wishers called to congratulate them. Just recently Mrs. Jones had sustained a fall in the basement of her home on High Street and was nursing a broken left arm and cracked ribs.

Catering for the reception was the Women's Club of Knox Presbyterian Church. Presiding at the lace covered tea table, which was centred with a beautifully decorated tiered wedding cake were: Mrs. W.J. Cobey, Mrs. G.W. Gorrell, Mrs. Thos Boyd, Miss Gladys Bayne, Mrs. Thos Fraser, Mrs. Al Reynolds, Mrs. Ted Smith, Mrs. A.N. Riley, Mrs. Lorne Kinkaid.

Many gifts, messages a plaque from the Ont. Government were received by the popular couple.

BROOMBALL NEWS

A 6 points performance by Gord Dillabough helped the Outcasts defeat the Mariatown Flyers 8-0 in last Sunday's action.

Les' Supertest goalie John Vaughn stopped everything that came in his direction and he shut out Williamsburg Sports shop 1-0.

The hard-shooting trio of Cecil Lewis, Brian Dow and Guy Hart was too much for Beavers Gets as Black's Lumber walloped the Gets 8-1.

TRAVEL TO GREECE

Miss Elsie Cayer, Reg. N., and Takis Hasapagianni, were united in marriage at St. Demetrius Greek Orthodox Church in Toronto. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Romeo Cayer of Morrisburg formerly of Cornwall. She was in an empire-style gown of satin with pearl appliques. Charline Edwards, flower girl, & Cary Grant, ring bearer assisted her with her long mantilla veil. The bridegroom wore a blue velvet jacket and his attendant, a blue brocade ensemble. The brides attendants were Diane Lalonde of Cornwall; Mr. and Mrs. Soulis Droubis of Belgium; Lionel Fontaine of Cornwall; and Mr. and Mrs. K. K. Davradas. Following a reception at the Town and Country Hotel, Toronto, the couple left for Greece for a month's vacation. They will reside in Toronto.

Guest Soloist at Wedding in Edmonton, Alta.

On their way to spend a vacation in Hawaii, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burns broke their plane flight for two or three days to visit with Mrs. Burns' youngest brother and his wife (Mr. and Mrs. Grant Salmon) and to attend the wedding of Lesley Ann Lougheed (youngest daughter of Mrs. Alice Lougheed of Cornwall, Ont.) to James Robert Bernet. Mrs. Burns was the soloist at this wedding.

Lesley Ann was married on Saturday, October 6th in the Chapel of one of Edmontons oldest churches, The McDougall United, and for her wedding wore a lovely white satin period-type gown with floating head veil. Mrs. Keith Riviere of Cornwall, sister of the bride, was the Maid of Honour and Mrs. Alice Lougheed, gave her daughter away in marriage. The Bouquets were in keeping with the Fall season and were blended with richly coloured maple leaves.

During the singing of the Register, Mrs. Burns gave a pleasing rendition of "I'll Walk Beside You".

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Burns attending the Reception at The Edmonton Inn, one of the newest Hotels in Edmonton, and at the evening reception at the same hotel they were joined by Mr. and Mrs. Grant Salmon. They also attended a Family Thanksgiving dinner on Sunday, October 7th, at the newly-wed's apartment.

A Grave Loss to the Community

The sudden death of Mrs. Doris Riley brought sorrow and expressions of sincere regret from citizens in all walks of life. This good teacher and friend of young people passed away at the week end following a heart attack.

Throughout her career, her complete dedication to the people entrusted to her care was a noteworthy characteristic — even more so in these days when "work to rule" is so popular among some of those in the profession. She was interested only in one thing, to impart knowledge and a sense of moral character in her young pupils. That her integrity and diligence bore results can be attested to by scores of former pupils, many of them now grown to adulthood, who credit Mrs. Riley with the biggest step in their early education.

One week ago, visiting at The Leader, she told us of her plans to retire at Christmas, and to spend some time travelling. Her only worry about retirement was how greatly she would miss the daily challenge that her career had offered.

That Mrs. Riley will be missed in the schools of the village, and in her church, is an understatement. Perhaps by her example, she may inspire more teachers to follow the road she did — to put the welfare of her pupils ahead of all.

To Measure a Man

The man's no bigger than the way he treats his fellow man.
This standard has been his measure since time itself began.

He's measured not by tithes or creed, high-sounding though they be;
Nor by the gold he's put aside, nor his capacity.

He's measured not by social rank, when character's the test,
Nor by his earthly pomp or show, displaying wealth possessed.

He's measured by his justice, right; his fairness at his play,
His squareness in all dealings made, his honest, upright way.

These are his measures ever near to serve him when they can,
For a man's no bigger than the way he treats his fellow man.

YOURS SINCERELY

BY MRS. WELLWOOD ADAM

We are in the week of Remembrance . . . indeed November 11th has become outstanding from 1918 onwards, including the years since 1945. The majority of young people today, the world over, would never understand, I don't think, the anguish of those whose sons, daughters also, and hsbands, gave their lives so willingly in order to preserve the freedoms of this world. Why should the earth be torn apart by the greed and covetousness of some of the world's leaders? There seems no answer as yet, for it still goes on down the long centuries of time, even worse than ever today. One would think that November 11th would die away altogether, for ther are not too many of us left who remember the senseless slaughter of the First World War of 1914-18, and just enough of us who were caught in the Second World War of 1939-45, who also saw similar cruelties in this war to end all wars! And there are still more wars and killing and wounding going on in 1972 . . . and the prayer goes up every November 11th as well as other times in the year, "When wilt Thou save the people, Lord? When?"

There is a story I read about a mother at the close of World War I, who travelled to France to find the grave of her only boy. The car taking her to the great cemetery passed through desolated towns, barren stretches of country, and she noted the lack of men and boys, and saw women doing heavy work . Her bitterness grew against the enemy who had robbed her of her only son.

There were simply thousands and thousands of crosses, and going through the gate, she saw on the side all the white crosses on the graves of all who had fought with and for the Allies. On the other side were the black crosses on the graves of all who had fought against the Allies. Personally I will never understand why all the fallen men and boys should not have had white crosses.

However, she finally found her son was buried, for at the very end of a line she saw the white cross with his name and date of burial. For a long time, the mother knelt by that little white cross. She prayed for her boy, then for herself, and then for others, that she and they might continue to be true to what was right and good for the future.

Then, she noticed, as she placed some beautiful flowers over the grave, a black cross right next to it, and there were more along it and behind. Her whole being shook with revolt. Why should he have been put there beside the enemy? She wanted him surronded by his comrades, or be brought back to his home cemetery.

As she stood and looked and looked down the long lines on both sides, she began to realize that every black cross meant a man or a boy, too! Each one meant as much to some mother as Frank's did to her. She could picture a one-time enemy mother kneeling beside the grave next to her son's, maybe equally as angry that her son should lie by the side of the enemy.

And so she thought what a terrible heart-breaking crowd of mothers there would be if they had all come, that day, with her, to kneel by every soldier's grave! Oh, how very much the mothers of this world have suffered down the ages!

Then she began to see that these crosses spoke no more of enemies, but of boys and men who had fought and died for their several countries to protect their homes and families from what boththey had been taught to believe was evil. She then took a lovely rose from her son's grave and placed it on the grave with the black cross, and laid the rest on as many of the black crosses would take, near by. The sun was now sinking in the west, and the sky was ablaze with colour, as she took one last look. As she softly closed the gate she said "God keep them all, and help the mothers of this world to teach the love that makes war impossible."

RISING COSTS CITED IN INCREASED WHOLESALE PRICE OF POWER

Based on rising trends in energy costs, rate increases for all Ontario Hydro customers were announced this week by Hydro chairman George Gathercole.

Interim wholesale rates to municipal commissions will rise by an average of 8 per cent, while the average increase to direct industrial customers will be 12 per cent. Both of these increases are effective January 1, 1973. To retail customers (cottages, farms farms and rural residences), the average increase is 10 per cent and is effective on bills payable February 5, 1973. There has been no increase in rates to Ontario Hydro direct industrial and rural customers in the last two years, whereas there was an increase of 8 per cent in the interim rates to municipal electric utilities effective last July 1.

Mr. Gathercole cited inflation and resultant escalation in costs of equipment and supplies, interest rates, wages and salaries, fuels and anti-pollution measures as the causes for the raise.

The Province's 350 municipal utilities, 91 large industrial customers served directly by Ontario Hydro and some 600,000 rural consumers are affected.

Mr. Gathercole said the rate increases will not be sufficient alone to meet rising costs and that withdrawals will have to be made from the reserve fund. Generally speaking, this fund has been established to absorb the cost of such factors as variation in stream flows, major physical damage to plant, delays bringing generating plants into service, and exchange risk on debts payable in foreign currency.

A year ago, Hydro advised its customers that in spite of intensive cost pressures, there would be a temporary deferment of a rate increase because of the state of the economy. With the improvement in economic condition, an interim increase of 8 per cent to municipal commissions was made on July 1. But no increase was made at that time to the large industrial customers, whose contracts run from January 1 to December 31st, or to rural customers.

Mr. Gathercole said, "in recent years, after a long period of rate stability or decline, spiralling inflation has begun to effect electric costs and rates. nterest rates on borrowed capital, wages and salaries and the price of property, supplies and materials have been rising faster than savings resulting from rising consumption per customer and other economy measures.

"Because Hydro has to operate at cost, rate increases in recent years have had to follow the upward trend in cost of most other goods and services and wages and salaries. For example, between 1961 and 1971, the average cost per kilowatt hour to municipal residential customers rose 18.6 per cent, but during the same period the consumer price index jumped 33.4 per cent and the average Ontario wage and salary increased 75.9 per cent."

To meet the increasing demand for power, he said Hyuro is forced to build more thermal generating plants. Here Hydro is faced not only with rising fuel prices but also costly anti-pollution control measures.

"Inflation is the industry's most grievous problem. However, an analysis of prices of other energy sources also reveals a sharp upward trend. And taking into account its long history of rate stability, we believe electricity will continue to be a remarkable bargain," said Mr. Gathercole.

Matilda Township residents are requested to attend a Remembrance Day Service on Saturday, November 11th at 11 a.m. at the Brinston Memorial Hall. Reverend James Stewart will lead in the service of worship.

Mr. and Mrs. Hersie Crites, long-time residents of Osnabruck Township were honoured by their family and friends October 28th, on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary. Married in Aultsville October 4, 1922, they were guests of honour at a reception in the Osnabruck Township Community Centre. The late Rev. A. W. Stewart conducted the service 50 years ago. Attendants for the bride and groom were Arnold Crites as best man, brother of the groom, and Mrs. Arnold Crites, the former Mary Williams as the maid of honour.

Eighteen Williamsburg children, displaying a keen interest in the needs of UNICEF, once again solicited funds on Hallowe'en night. This was the 13th year the canvass has been conducted and this year's total of $100.44 topped all other ventures. Staff members of the United Church Sunday School praised the whole hearted efforts of the children and the generosity of those who responded so willingly.

Local Senior Citizens Group Enjoys Hallowe'en Dessert Party

The Morrisburg Senior Citizen's Club celebrated Hallowe'en with a dessert party held in the Clubroom on October 27. The party was convened by Mrs. J. Harvey, and was much enjoyed by everyone present.

Approximately forty persons attended, several of whom wore fancy costumes. The prize for the most original of these was won by Mrs. C. Manning with her "Hippie" outfit. Court whist was the entertainment of the evening, with Mrs. Yvonne Battershill winning the highest score, and Mr. M. Carkner with second place. Refreshments were later served by the Hospitality conveners Mrs. Nan Hill and Mrs. Ella Wilson.

The meeting of Nov. 3rd opened at 8 p.m. with the President Mrs. C. Manning in the chair. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the Secretary Mr. John Foster, following which, the plans for the Christmas Party were discussed. The party will take place in the clubroom on December 13th at 6:30 p.m. Lists of food donations were made for the event, or cash contributions from those members who preferred to do so in lieu of said food dishes.

Refreshment conveners for the month of November will be Mrs. Bessie Frenette and Mrs. J. Harvey. The members wish to convey congratulations and best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Casselman who celebrated their fiftieth Wedding Anniversary on November 5. Birthday best wishes also to Mrs. F. Robertson and Mrs. J. Harvey whose birthdays were recently noted.

The Morrisburg Lions Club have kindly offered the facilities of the shuffle board and horseshoe pitch in the recreation area near the clubroom, for the use of the Senior Citizens of Morrisburg.

A resolution to forward a letter of thanks and appreciation was passed at the Nov. 3rd meeting.

The members were sorry to hear of the illness and hospitalization of Mrs. Katherine Harper, and a card has been mailed to her, with all good wishes.

Best wishes for a speedy recovery also go to Mrs. Anna Clark who is to be under hospital treatment, the members were told.

A card has been received from Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burns who are vacationing in Hawaii. This kind thought for friends at home, while enjoying the splendors of such exotic places as Hawaii, certainly gives a warm feeling.

A suggestion was put forward by Mr. J. Foster that the curling rink be made available on certain days for Seniors who wish to take up this sport. A motion was carried that enquiries be made to that effect.

Badges of British Columbia native woods, hand inscribed with the member's name, are still available by applying to the secretary Mr. Foster . . . These badges must be ordered ahead at a cost of fifty cents each.

Following Friday evening's business discussions, euchre bridge, and "crazy eight" games were played, followed by refreshments served by the hostesses, Mrs. J. Harvey and Mrs. Bessie Frenette.

1,152 Unclaimed Parcels To Be Auctioned at Montreal

How would you like to buy 75 used lighters?

Or 96 used watches? Twenty-four pieces of chalk for pool cues? Assorted spark plugs? An Income Tax Act book? A barber set? Snow shoes? Or even Christmas decorations?

These were some of the items in the more than 1,000 parcels that were sold at last year's annual Canada Post Office Auction in Regina, Sask.

One of last year's parcels contained 34 articles of men's cosmetics — after shave lotion, cologne, deodorant and soap. Another one had 60 antique English door pulls and a third included two pairs of snowmobile boots — sizes 9 and 10.

This is how the Post Office disposes of parcels and items which it cannot deliver — sometimes because the address is incorrect or incomplete, and there is no return address. More often it is because the parcels are badly wrapped and items break loose in the mail stream.

In Montreal

This year 1,152 unclaimed parcels will be auctioned off on November 8th in Montreal. These parcels, ranging from adult to children's clothing to toys and tools have been gathered at the Undeliverable Mail Office (U.M.O. in Ottawa.

"We have just about everything here", said a Post Office spokesman. "You name it, we've got it."

The loose or lost items are assembled into various categories, and are then listed and stored prior to shipment to the site of the auction.

The sale can take one day or as many as three and every item has to be sold.

The first auction sale was held in the early 1920s. It is one way the Post Office can show the public what happens when articles have been misaddressed or have not been packed properly.

The number of parcels fluctates yearly, depending on the volume of merchandise. One year, over 1,300 were auctioned off.

The sale is always held in a major centre, alternating between different parts of Canada every year. In the last three years, it has been held in London, Halifax and Regina respectively.

Postal Revenue

The money collected at the auction goes into postal revenue. Last year's gross amount was $25,182, of which the auctioneer receives a percentage.

A large number of parcels have already been made up for next year's auction sale, the location of which has not yet been chosen.

And the heavy Christmas mailings have not yet started. Items destined for overseas are mailed in October and November and it is during these months that the Undeliverable Mail Office becomes flooded with parcels.

The Post Office Department provides a big assist to the customer attending the auction by offering for sale a catalogue, which lists the contents of each parcel. Most of the catalogues are distributed in the area where the auction is held.

"This auction has proved to be very popular," said the spokesman. "It seems that people really like auctions. There are always some very good bargains at this one."

: MAN : And Resources

Some may wonder, what is the Man and Resources programme, others may never have heard of it, but to some 250 or more individuals, who gathered at the National Workshop October 29th to November 4th in Montebello, Quebec, it was a review of resource problems and an exchange of environmental information.

The people in attendance were of diverse backgrounds and interests; some were delegates from local study groups across Canada; some were resource people with special skills or knowledge and some represented special interests and were there as observers. They came from Victoria to Halifax, from Windsor on the south to our most northern settlements; they were of various ages, some were native people but they all came with the same theme, viz. to study integrated resource use with the best possible balance between social and economic demands and the wise use of natural resources.

The Canadian Council of Resource and Environment Ministers which sponsors the programme is made up of the appropriate minister from each province plus the federal minister concerned with Resource and Environment. The Secretary General is Christian de Laet and the direct organizer of last week's study is R.W. Hummell chairman of the Ontario Council.

Prior to the Montebello meeting local groups submitted lists of priority issues which they felt were important and, from these, twelve issues finally emerged as items for further study during the workshop and the coming year. The south eastern Ontario groups met at Kingston, September 30th and submitted three priorities which stated very briefly are:

1. Education, Communication and Information.
2. Need for a resource management policy for Canada, long range and comprehensive.
3. Present day growth oriented trends in economics, population and consumption which have long term effects in natural resource depletion and environmental degradation.

This group, represented by: Don Colby, Brighton, G. Steve Hart, 18 Kolmory Cr., Ottawa; C.M. Crober, Morrisburg; Mrs. Judith Mackenzie, 31 Byron Ct., Kingston; Richard Fogg, Bancroft and Alex Webster, Shawville. Quebec, had the satisfaction of seeing their priorities incorporated in the National Policy. It is the hope of the Kingston delegates that, following a complete publication of the Montebello proceedings, public participation will increase so that policy guide lines presented to the Council of Ministers will be reinforced by public approval.

One of the more immediate and a shocking problem is the possibility of a loss of our water resources to foreign interests. Many were of the opinion that only an aroused and angry public reaction will halt such a take-over; at least the problem merits further study. A final conference will be held late in 1973 from which recommendations will be presented to the Council of Ministers.

Any of the persons mentioned in this article will be glad to furnish further information as it is made available. A full report of all the recommendations will be available, we hope, later this month.

U.S. Gynecologist Says Wives Need Understanding

Arriving at middle-age produces physical symptoms in some men, but most react psychologically, according to Dr. William Cooper. The doctor is a gynecologist, who treats their wives, but he has learned a thing or two about the husbands as well.

"I've had a number of men tell me they indeed had hot flashes, general nervousness, trouble eating and sleeping and other such worrisome symptoms," the physician declares. "But it's mostly the psychological impact that gets them. When a man reaches his late forties or early fifties, he may feel that things are closing in on him. Perhaps he sees no chance of getting ahead on his job, or of getting a salary increase. He may want to get away from it all. This is when you sometimes hear about a previously devoted husband and father running off with his secretary."

Certain Changes

The wives, he maintains, need to recognize some of the men's problems at this time and play a supporting role. Meanwhile, the wives themselves are going through certain changes, which their husbands usually don't understand, the gynecologist points out. "The women are reaching the age of menopause and need some kindness and help — especially from their husbands. Yet, so often when the husband has problems, he may attribute these to his wife's menopause. What we really need in this world," the physician emphasizes, "is more understanding between those couples who've been married for years."

Dr. Cooper suggests that men as well as women in their middle years have regular examinations. "Everyone in the household will benefit," he adds, "if the husband takes care of his health needs and the wife has her menopausal symptoms treated."

Enjoying Life

The gynecologist explains that if — after thoroughly examining the woman — he finds no physical reasons for her symptoms other than a decrease in the level of the female hormones (due to the natural tapering off of her ovaries at that age), he'll put the patient on estrogen replacement. "Not only do the headaches usually stop with this treatment," he says, "but so do many of the other menopausal symptoms."

When a woman is free of these, he goes on, "she can start enjoying life and doing all those things she always wanted to, but couldn't when she was tied down with the children."

The husband who sees that his wife gets proper medical care can help increase harmony at home, Dr. Cooper believes. Some husbands want to be with their wives when they see and talk to the doctor. "Other men prefer to sit in the waiting room, since they're kind of embarrassed about being in a gynecologist's office. It just depends on the individual," he concludes.

William Cooper, M.D., is the author of "A Husband's Guide to the Menopause," published by Simon and Schuster.

"Lest we forget..." As the country marks Remembrance Day, on Saturday, November 11, CBC Radio offers three programs, each with something different to say about war and its ramifications.

On Identities, the program concerns feeling about the German stereotype, in which several German Canadians express how they react to discrimination and others discuss their prejudice against Germans.

Len Peterson has adapted A Child in Prison Camp by the artist Shizuye Takashima for a Remembrance Day special. It it a poignant dramatization of memories by the author of her years in a prison camp during the Second World War when Canada rounded up all Japanese Canadians and put them into remote camps for security reasons.

On Anthology, a reading of Alden Nowlan's poem, Ypes, 1915, commemorates one of the bloodiest battles of the First World War in which many Canadians took part.

Ohio Award winner David Humphreys has prepared a special program for Sunday Supplement, on Nov. 12 — O nThe Writing Of A Solemn High Mass — about the in composing one of his greatest struggle Beethoven encountered works.

The Soviet theorist and revolutionary Leon Trotsky is recalled in an autobiographical documentary on CBC Tuesday Night, Nov. 14, and Quebec Now, Monday, November 13, re-assesses the late Quebec Premier Maurice Duplessis in a two-hour special, The King Must Die.

The "king of the vibes" Lionel Hampton had them jumping in the aisles at the National Arts Centre when he was one of the featured headliners during the CBC Ottawa Summer Festival. Also on the same bill was the versatile Canadian group, The Sound Invention. All the excitement of this live concert is recreated when it is presented on Showcase '72, Sunday, Nov. 12.

Helen Hutchinson, a regular contributor to This Country in the Morning, is the guest on the nostalgia quiz, This Was Yesterday on the Friday, Nov. 17 edition of The Entertainers.

TODAY'S CHILD

BY HELEN ALLEN

THE TORONTO SUN SYNDICATE

Christopher has had many moves in his lifetime and urgently needs the feeling of belonging that goes with having your own family. A mother, a father, a home, a name he can share — these will give Christopher the security and the knowledge of being wanted and loved.

Christopher is a healthy, active boy with an engaging smile, a pleasant personality and a sense of humor. Anglo-Saxon in descent, he is small for his age with light brown hair, brown eyes and freckles.

Christopher is in senior opportunity class and will likely go on to vocational school. Though not academically inclined, he is a steady worker who responds to encouragement and supervision by completing whatever task is set for him.

Christopher is a real outdoors boy who likes to climb. Baseball and hockey are his favorite games and he is proud of his bike. Most comfortable with children younger than himself, he would best fit into a family as the oldest child. He also enjoys adult company.

Christopher has spent most of his life in a rural setting. Both the country life and the opportunity to know and befriend animals appeal to him. But more important is that he find parents to whom he will be a welcome, cherished son.

To inquire about adopting Christopher, please write to Today's Child, Box 888, Station K, Toronto. For general adoption information, please contact your Children's Aid Society.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO OWN THE FARM

TO BE A SUCCESSFUL FARMER - - AND HAVE GOOD LIFE

BUT YOU NEED TRAINING

Farming is big business today.

On large Ontario farms there's a constant need for agricultural workers. But it's not the old-fashioned "Hired Hand" life anymore. It's a well-paying lifetime career with rich benefits for the person who enjoys working with livestock, crops and machinery. And it's a healthy life —— especially for a growing family who can count on accomodation, food and a less frustrating pace of life.

To train for this career, a ten week course to upgrade agricultural knowledge and skills is being offered at the

AGRICULTURAL TECHNOLOGY
BEGINNING JANUARY 8, 1973

To qualify you must be at least 18 years of age; 1 year out of school with a functional Grade 8 education, and be approved by a selection committee.

New Program Introduced For Small Farms

The Canada Department of Agriculture has recently introduced a "Small Farms Development Program". This program is called "The Land Transfer Plan" and is administered by the Farm Credit Corporation.

The main objective of the plan are to assist the low-income farmer who wishes to remain in farming to acquire additional land and to provide financial assistance to retire from farming or obtain other employment.

The seller of a farm may be eligible for an assistance grant of $1,500 plus 10 percent of the sale price of the farm provided the sale price does not exceed $20,000. This means that the total grant may not exceed $3,500.

To be eligible for the assistance grant the farmer must:

1) Be the owner and operator of the small farm on the date of commencement of the program which in Ontario was September 21, 1972

2) Be principally occupied in the operation of the farm.

3) Be able to support himself and his family at least as well after the sale as before.

4) Sell substantially all of his land.

5) Sell to a Canadian citizen or landed immigrant.

6) Sell to a purchaser who will not operate the property as a separate uneconomic farm.

This means that the farm must be used to enlarge the operations of a neighbouring farmer. The neighbour may secure the farm by purchase or by lease through the ARDA farm enlargement program.

The sale of a farm to ARDA will not disqualify the seller of the farm for a grant providing the other qualifications are met. Further information regarding the plan may be obtained from any representative of the Farm Credit Corporation or by writing to the Farm Credit Corporation, 2323 Yonge Street, Toronto 12, Ontario.

Weekly Report

Upper Canada Migratory Bird Sanctuary—International Flights Daily

by: Wayne Mutton, B.J.

Autumn in many ways is an almost errie time of year. Light begins to fade early, the air is cooler, people seem more anxious to get home at night. Yet recently, outside Ottawa, an entire traffic stream heading into the countryside began slowing to a crawl. Drivers, folding back their sun visors, craned their necks to squint into the west. Some pulled off the road and stood quietly, looking.

What they were watching was something almost symbolically special to many Canadians.

High above, like strange tracks across the sunset, a steadily moving V of Canada geese, those black silhouettes that are seldom seen, then suddenly, mysteriously pass overhead in their ancient formations. When they do, its an event, leaving many a mild case of wonder. And a vague desire to get closer to those impossibly remote figures overhead.

For anyone in Eastern Ontario who doesn't mind a short drive to the St. Lawrence River, that desire can be easily satisfied. One day last week more than 6,000 Canada Geese were feeding and resting at the Upper Canada Migratory Bird Sanctuary, a 7,000 acre reserve, 11 miles east of Morrisburg.

Here, it's possible to walk within feet of the feeding geese which include a resident flock of almost 2,000 which are a mixture of three species — the Giant Canada geese or maxima which are light-coloured, often weighing more than 15 pounds; the greyish Atlantic Coast species and the smaller, darker Interiors.

All day long squadrons of these majestic birds wheel in for landings or take off from the sanctuary whose boundaries inclue Upper Canada Village, an 18-hole golf course, beaches, an air strip, picnic areas, campsites nature trails, museums and historic sites. Any spot in the sanctuary where there is grass is used by the geese for grazing ground.

Across the river in New York State is the Wilson Hill Game Management Area, also bordering on the 51 square mile Lake St. Lawrence created in 1958 with the completion of the Saunders-Moses power dam at Cornwall.

Migrant geese that passed through in the spring heading towards their nesting grounds around Hudson Bay, are now on their way south to Chesapeake and Delaware Bays for the winter. The migrants will come and go from late September until mid-December. The situation is often beak-to-beak during this period and especially at the daily feeding time when one-half to three-quarters of a ton of corn is doled out to the feathered crowd. That's the time to be on hand, perhaps with your family, for a close look at the birds.

The visit may start you discovering some other things about these "majestic" creatures. Things like, they eat not only grass but mushrooms, floating mats of water weeds and apples. Orchards in the area have no windfalls, just a few apple cores One of their favourite dishes is also white Dutch clover. Canada geese are a crowd-loving flock, enjoy a good party of other geese and make dutiful parents. In fact their family habits are faintly familiar. Before nesting, paired-off ganders and geese avoid the rest of the group and honeymoon in a territory that the male stakes out When all the families are in the middle of child-rearing, it's also possible to notice particular geese trailed by several groups of goslings they are "baby-sitting" while the other parents are out for a stroll.

During the nesting period it's also not uncommon to see those ganders eyeing or flirting with other geese, even though the species are famous for lifetime devotion to their mates. The goose society is free of harems and other forms of grouping, but biologists have recenlty noted some previously undetected "playing around" on the part of some ganders who are otherwise solid married men. In the event of death, widows and widowers left behind often "remarry" after a suitable period of mourning. And death can come in a variety of ways, one of which is lead - poisoning. Biologists and ammunition companies have been working on the problem and one company has developed soft iron shot which causes little wear to gun barrels because it's wrapped in a thicker-than-usual polyethylene sleeve split down one side. The shot can then scatter after leaving the barrel. Other experimental shots — combinations of lead dust and iron — are also being tried. Here, the lead content is small enough to prevent poisoning but enough to prevent gun barrel wear. The ideal shot. of course, would be gold instead of lead. The reason it isn't used, is too obvious.

One Ministry of Natural Resources naturalist who was recently working with Kemptville District Biologist Harry McLeod at the sanctuary, also had a quotable experience with Canada geese during a banding session. While holding one goose, his sun glasses fell out of his shirt pocket. The geese, who were standing around in a rather belligerent mood watching their friends being unceremoniously man-handled during banding, immediately moved in on the sun glasses. By the time the naturalist got to them they were just so much broken glass and plastic covered by muddy webbed footmarks. He swears they did it on purpose.

ADELAIDE DANIELS SAYS

SELECTIVITY IS THE KEY

We are a big nation of "eaters-out".

Latest figures from the Canadian Restaurant Association show that business is booming and girl watchers agree the figures are also booming in the wrong places.

Elaborate menus and the exotic assortment of foods are often not designed with the weight watcher in mind.

Drive-in restaurants with their limited selection of prepared hamburgers, pizzas and hot dogs — all high in calories and low in nutrition — doesn't help to make dining out the pleasant outing it should be.

However those of us who are determined to achieve slimness will have to accept the unsympathetic chef as a fact of life and the convenience type of family drive-ins as inconvenient for our purposes. However there is no reason why a dieter can't get the scales balanced in his favour by getting what I like to call "calorie cope" that is coping with calories while you're dining out.

Calorie cope can be practiced artfully in French, Italian, Chinese and Canadian restaurants by those wise persons who make selectivity their watchword.

The important thing is to recognize that hidden dangers to your diet lurk in heavy sauces and gravies, fried foods and thick salad dressings. Foods that are baked, broiled, steamed or poached are truly better for us nutritionally and are pleasing to the palate because we can enjoy their undisguised natural flavour. A sprinkle of steak sauce can add spicy zest.

Starting your meal with a crisp tossed salad, sprinkled with lemon juice or vinegar and a clear consomme will take the edge from your appetite far better than an attack on the bread basket.

Appetizers such as shrimp cocktail, smoked salmon or tomato juice are very pleasing and sufficiently light that they will not spoil your enjoyment of the main course.

Bypass potatoes and pasta in favour of a moderate portion of vegetables and linger over a leisurely coffee or tea while the pastry wagon rolls by. Instead enjoy a piece of fresh fruit for dessert. This is especially satisfying if it is sectioned and eaten a small piece at a time.

Adopting this approach to dining out will make it an occasion to look forward to rather than dread. And you will not be plagued with the unpleasant aftermath of bad conscience.

Your questions are invited.

The 2nd FORTY

Dependent Son

Dear Margaret Brookfield:

I have three sons. The middle one and his wife and two children live with me in my two-family house and have for the last several years. However, since I'm a widow I have to figure the best way for my savings and property to provide me with as comfortable a living as possible. Unfortunately, my son doesn't pay me enough rent to help meet all the expenses on the house. What's more, my daughter-in-law feels I'm expecting too much since my son helped me fix up my own apartment. She doesn't mention that they tore their own place apart to remodel it, then left everything unfinished. They've kept making excuses for not completing the job, even though I took money out of my savings account to pay for the floor tile, the ceiling tile, the paint, etc. My friends advise me to throw them out of the apartment and rent it to someone else, instead of losing the income on it. My other two sons feel the same way. However, my two grandchildren enjoy having their friends to the house; and I love them too much to hurt them. My question is, should I sell the house and use some of the money to buy a cooperative apartment; or maybe buy bonds on an annuity plan? Your answer would be much appreciated. N.R.

Dear N.R.:

Your problem isn't primarily financial; it's personal. It concerns the relationship you've established with your son, your daughter-in-law and your grandchildren. As things now stand, you're not doing yourself — or them — any good. For one thing, you're permitting your grown son and his wife to act like dependent children, whose mother will pick up after them, no matter what they do or don't do. For another your grandchildren must be confused about the role a father plays —particularly since their father is treated as though he's a small child himself. There's no reason in the world for you to be underwriting your son's housing costs. And selling the house isn't the answer; it merely sidesteps the issue. It would be much better for all concerned to meet the situation head-on. Why not determine what a fair rent is by present standards and tell your son that's going to be the amount he must pay each and every month. You might add that you'd rather have him and his family in the house with you than anyone else, but that if he wants to remain, he'll have to meet those conditions and he'll also have to complete remodeling his apartment. If not, you'll have to make arrangements to rent to someone else.

Life Not Full

Dear Margaret Brookfield:

I'm 55 years young. My children are gone now — all married. I use my spare time to crochet, knit, sew, etc., but that becomes a bore after a while. I often visit my children and an aged mother, who's 81 and still going strong. Once every six weeks, I have lunch with a school chum and spend the entire day with her. I love it. With all these things to do, I still feel my life is not full enough. I spend my evenings with my husband, and enjoy that, but it's the days that get me down. What could you suggest for me?

Dear B.P.:

You're obviously an energetic person who enjoys being around other people. Why not give some thought to the kinds of activities you might share with others during the day. If you're good at crocheting, sewing and knitting, you might volunteer to teach these skills to others — perhaps to children, young mothers, people in hospitals or senior citizens. Why not take a fresh look at your community and see what the possibilities might be. Pick up the phone and make some inquiries. Talk with your friends about it. Contact your local churches, schools and hospitals. There might be many people out there, who'd be delighted to share what you have to offer.

Tension Takes Teeth Toll

Extreme tension can influence gum disease which takes a heavy toll of teeth.

Tension is not the direct cause of the disease, but it upsets the various body systems, leaving them vulnerable to infection. Studies have shown that 50 per cent of males suffering gum disease had symptoms of some psychological disturbance. In women, the figure is higher.

Also, more persons living the tense urban life suffer from gum disease more than their country cousins. Students under pressure at exam time often contract Vincent's disease, an infectious condition in the mouth. Anxiety is blamed by doctors.

Frequent use of tranquilizers may dry out mouth tissues. This makes the teeth more vulnerable to decay and the tissues more susceptible to disease. Pent-up feelings can also encourage canker sores and the unconscious gnashing of teeth.

Tell your dentist if you are constantly on edge or have any specific problem that could be treated psychologically. He won't cure you of your hangups, but could show you what you are doing to the inside of your mouth through them. Perhaps then you'll take your mental problems for proper treatment.

Don't be embarrassed at telling your dentist. You are not alone in having mental problems. You may be able to stop your dental ones, if they're caused by an extreme nervous condition which can be treated by a psychoanalyst.

Health for All

DYING FOR A SMOKE

More than 300,000 Americans die prematurely from the effects of cigarette smoking each year. But not many smokers believe it can really happen to them.

Maybe that is one reason why smokers persist in a habit that snuffs out life too soon. Like most people in our culture, they tend to deny the prospect of their own death. To a very great degree, our society worships youth and health and shuts one eye to sickness and death.

Deaths from coronary artery disease, chronic bronchitis, lung cancer, emphysema, and a host of other diseases are much higher for smokers than for nonsmokers. Dying is a lonely business in our society.

"Our embarrassment at the individual face of death forces the seriously ill and dying person to live alone on the brink of an abyss with no one to understand him," says psychiatrist Dr. Herman Feifel. But the topic of personal death, which has been taboo for decades, is surfacing again these days. Some hospitals are training special staff to help dying patients talk openly about their needs and fears, and to help bring them closer to their families and friends What dying people fear most is abandonment and isolation.

denying the reality of death is no way to live — for any of us. And denying the possibility of premature death can be a fatal mistake for smokers. What we can all try to do is to live — healthfully -- as long as we can.

Find out ways to stop smoking and live longer. Contact your local tuberculosis and respiratory disease association. It's a matter of life and breath.
