The regular meeting of Winchester Township council was held October 3 in the township building, with reeve Gerald C. Holmes presiding and all council members present.

A building permit was issued to Delbert Casselman to construct a house on Lot 3, Concession 1.

The contract to construct the Masterson municipal drain was awarded to Carlyle Bros., Mountain, at a price of 35c per cubic yard for earth, $1.25 per cubic yard for hardpan and $8 per cubic yard for rock. Work is to be started at once and completed by November 15, 1960.

Representatives from Texaco Oil Company waited on council to ask that part of the unused road allowance through Lot 18, Concession 4, be closed to enable Texaco Oil to enlarge their plant at Chesterville. No action was taken until further information could be obtained.

The following accounts were paid: Road Voucher No. 10, $6,257.24; development road, $1,085; hydro, police villages, $162; drainage, $23.50; schools, $2,300; printing, $52.54; salaries, $183.50.

Many plowmen compete in Stormont match

Competitors from many Eastern Ontario points visited Stormont's 27th annual plowing match held recently on the W. J. McDonald farm, Northfield Station. Fine weather favoured the event, which was described by Stormont Plowmen's Association as the best in many years.

An innovation this season which is expected to be continued in future, was a class for mechanical devices associated with farming, and made by farmers themselves.

First prize in this class went to Raymond Beehler, Crysler, with a bale hook and fork. Second went to a set of farm gates made by Kenneth McDonald, of Northfield, and third to an electric welding machine made by Bernard Beehler. Fourth was awarded to a milking stool made from a milk can cover by Kenneth McDonald.

The Esso special prize was won by Kenneth McDonald, and the cash prize awarded by B. F. Barker, Monckland. This was for the best plowed land in sod, with mounted tractor plow.

The T. Eaton Co. trophy was awarded to Clarence McDonald, who had the best plowed land by a junior plowman. This was presented by Albert E. Grey, Rockwood, who judged the match. Mr McDonald also won the Simpson-Sears Ltd. trophy, best tractor land in sod, open to residents of Stormont under 18 years. This was presented by A. A. Morrison, Ingleside.

The Casselman trophy for the best plowed land in the match was presented by the donor, Aden Casselman, of Berwick, to Murray Manley, and when making the presentation Mr Casselman pointed out that only the family names of Beehler and Manley had yet been put on the trophy.

The Shaver trophy for the best plowed land with in the horse classes was presented by donor Roy Shaver, of Finch, a past president of the Ontario Plowman's Association, to Lloyd Van Duzen, Mallorytown.

The Peter Manley trophy for the winner of the municipal council members' class went to Arthur Purvis, of Mallorytown. It was presented by the donor. Eldest plowman was Edward Sloan, Finch, and youngest was Ronald Beaudette, Northfield.

Prizes presented by Association treasurer Bernard Beehler and secretary Kenneth Best included first to Lloyd Van Duzen, horse and walking plow. This entry was also judged to have the best crown and finish. Second, Edward Sloan.

Tractor plow in sod (open): Murray Manley, best crown; Duncan McNaughton, Glen Pemerton, Joseph Beehler; best finish, Bert Casselman, J. A. Mitchell.

The tractor class for boys and girls under 20 was won by Nicholas Beehler; second, Francois Groulx; third, Elaine Armstrong.

Stormont only, tractor, Ronald Moran, best finish; Alfred Beaudette, Nicholas O'Donohue.

Reeve's class, Arthur Purvis; mounted plow, Stormont, Ken McDonald; boys and girls, Stormont, Clarence McDonald; Junior Farmers and 4-H members never before winners, Ronald Beaudette.

In the evening a banquet was held at the parish hall, St. Andrew's West, with Peter Manley, MPP for Stormont, as speaker. Former Ontario Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver, MPP, was to have addressed the gathering, but was recalled to Toronto because of the death of his father.

Regional lenders study area farm

Some fifty members of the Regional School in Agriculture for Lenders, comprised largely of bankers from Eastern Ontario, visited the farms of Hillais Suddaby, RR5, Kemptville, on October 4 to study farm management in action.

Professor A. C. Robertson, of O.A.C., and Principal A. M. Barr of K.A.S. conducted the visit, pointing out many features of sound farm management evident on the Suddaby farm, including outstanding pasture and field crops, wise use of fertilizers, a productive milking herd, a reasonable investment in machinery and constant good planning, resulting in a sizeable volume of business for the number of acres farmed.

A. H. Turner, chief of the economics division, Canada Department of Agriculture, addressed the group later in the evening at K.A.S. following a chicken barbecue. Mr Turner, member of a federal government team studying marketing problems in Europe this summer, stated that Canada must emphasize quality and good agricultural production techniques if we are to maintain a 20% export of our agricultural products abroad.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr and Mrs Arthur Heagle wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Norma Stella, to Mr James Frederick Burt, of Montreal, son of Mr and Mrs Fred Burt, Montreal. Marriage to take place on October 22, 1960, in the Presbyterian Church, Chesterville.

A couple of Sundays ago we covered the ceremony of the blessing of St. Mary's Separate School. The new school was also the scene of preparations for confirmation of a large class over at the church. The Most Rev J. A. O'Sullivan, Archbishop of Kingston diocese, officiated at the ceremony and confirmation. He was assisted by visiting clergy and they are pictured here crossing to the church with the pastor of St. Mary's, Rev J. J. Collins. They are from the left, Rev E. Danis, Finch; Father Collins; Rev W. L. Terrion, Morrisburg; Rev W. J. Lynette, secretary to the archbishop, and His Grace.—Record Photo.

Mr and Mrs James Edward Brennan were married in St. Mary's Church, Chesterville, on Saturday, October 1. The bride is the former Marcia Ann Carr, daughter of Mr and Mrs Walter J. Carr, of Chesterville, and the groom is the son of Mr and Mrs W. E. Brennan, Kemptville.—Photo by Daykin.

Cheese factory razed at Crysler

Loss has been estimated at between $35,000 and $40,000 in a fire which razed a cheese factory in Crysler Saturday night.

The factory, owned by Edgar Levasseur, was partially covered by insurance.

Firemen from Crysler and Finch fought the blaze for five hours. Hundreds of gallons of water were poured onto the flaming, two-storey, frame structure, but to no avail.

Some of the walls were left standing in the building which was a charred blackened ruin when firemen left the scene about 12.30 a.m. Sunday.

Some eighteen firemen from Finch and Crysler volunteer fire brigades fought the fire. The Finch force was directed by Chief Hugh MacDougall. Chief Fernand Bourdeau directed the Crysler firefighters.

Cause of the fire is not known. Mr Levasseur, an accountant who works in Ottawa, was in the city when the fire broke out. He arrived home Sunday morning.

Although firemen saved 37 80-pound boxes of cheese, a large quantity of cheese was destroyed in the fire.

Construction quickens

Chesterville seems to be in a building boom. New houses, water works and a new post office under construction keep sidewalk superintendents very busy.

Stewart and Broad are rushing along, hoping the dry weather will hold for just a while longer. The mains are going down at a good rate and follow-up crews are boring and digging services. Main and King are getting the works now and Victoria is completed with Mill the only street left south of the river.

Wim Vilé, contractor for the new $20,000 post office rising on Queen Street, is stripping forms now from concrete foundations. The work there is going at a good rate and soon will show much more above the ground.

Testerink and Wemerman, working in the Fulton subdivision, have four new houses in various stages of construction and Kwakenbos and Kurvink have just about completed the DeRooy house in the same section.

CRUMBS from Graham's Loaf

There used to be a saying that went like this: "Quick, Henry, the Flit." Accompanied by cartoons of some considerable talent, the Flit people persuaded a lot of people to get rid of flies the easy way. Nowadays things are slightly different. Somebody invented a pressure can and out of the can pours all sorts of things including Flit.

When mother fried onions for dinner, everyone for half a mile down the road knew what the Grahams were doing with the liver of the veal hanging in the carriage shed. Liver and onions. Today one is greeted by an overpowering perfume of pine woods when the door opens to start the rush for food. And really, the lack of good strong onion smell leaves the liver tasting just as it looks, and that never was the most attractive hunk of the animal. The cook sprayed a squirt of synthetic Northern Ontario from a pressure can.

And this business of just dipping the dirty dishes into a patent slop replacing soap is a little deceiving too. According to the ad, if it isn't the right gunk, there is no need to dunk. There was a time within the memory of man when soap was soap and men were men and the two came together on Saturday nights. Usually the soap was a good sound general purpose variety, dark brown in colour. It tasted the same too, as certain kids found out a couple of times when they said a forbidden word near our ever-loving mother. A person was clean after a scrub with that laundry product. Actually he was partly peeled, in season, because the soap had a changeable strength. It was homemade and the lye content varied, depending on intended use. If the top layer slabs got mixed with the lighter bottom slabs, then church Sunday morning was misery. By about that time the residue of corrosive material really started to work under the blue serge.

At our home, soap making was an art. It had to be, for only art could stand the effort and stink. When Fall was finally proven and the two fat hogs had been slaughtered, the women went on a soap-making binge. And to prepare for the orgy, they had to render bushels of trimmed fat into clear liquid. It would be interesting to know how many of our young readers have ever stood to the lee side of a hot stove covered with pans of rendering hog fat. The immediate memory is the stink. It would drive a dog away from a dead horse and there wasn't an aerosol bomb of pine in the county to help bear it.

Mysterious processes went on for days and involved lye and secret stirrings and settling pans and such. There was a constant battle to keep the kittens out of the hardening stuff; to protect the small cats, of course. A single charge of that lethal mixture and nine lives would just curdle up and blow away. Finally would come the day when the soap would be ready. The magic of chemistry had been at work. Handled carefully the soap would hardly eat any of your fingernails off and each cake would have a white top and a semi-transparent bottom. That was the toilet soap and it had a delightfully antiseptic scent. No lilacs for farmers, thank you. We smelled like good strong soap should smell and in those years that meant cleanliness. The top halves of the cakes of soap were used for the weekly wash and the dishes. For years we wondered why the dishes slowly lost their painted designs and the wash tubs developed cancerous holes in bottoms and sides. It would appear the soap was just a mite strong.

Now we are blessed with delightful fragrances. We wash with deodorant soaps that would purify a skunk, we roll on products that are guaranteed to keep even a printer fresh for 24 hours and we wash our teeth with stuff that is slowly putting all the dentists out of business. There doesn't seem to be a good hearty processing stink left in the home. One of these days some bright young inventor will come up with a new kitchen smell. It will sell like hot cakes. Its name: Rendering hog fat and onions. We'll be the first in line.

OPINIONS . . . OURS AND OTHERS

LCBO stores for Chesterville

Last week this newspaper carried a headline. It called attention to action by the village council which recommended that liquor and beer be sold through government outlets in the town. A resolution had been passed at the regular council meeting for October and forwarded to Toronto to the Liquor Control Board of Ontario.

Since the headline reported council's decision, some criticism has arisen over council's seeming headlong action; this newspaper has also come in for a measure of rebuke, privately or publicly. We welcome criticism when it is done in sincerity and openly. We know any rebuttal we might offer will be accepted in the same light.

Chesterville council held a special meeting on Thursday, September 22. At that time the matter of applying for a LCBO store came to this writer's attention for the first time. Evidently it had been in the works for a spell as correspondence from the Board was on hand, and we had been wandering in the West. The meeting was closed to the press and this newspaper was caught between two stools of conscience, one of private public business and the other of a working newspaperman. As has been our practice since being elected to office two years ago, we stifled the obvious way out, that of publishing a rumour that had no official sanction. We said nothing in our news columns about the matter. Our conscience has plagued us to a degree over the action we took; but we would probably take exactly the same action again, if an identical set of circumstances arose.

The need for government stores in this village is a matter of considerable argument. Representations and delegations make their points with considerable force; being a question that involves the use of liquor, there is a fair amount of immoderation in the arguments, just as there is in the use of the product under discussion. There is also much sincere and honest thought offered from both sides.

One would spend a long time setting down the various arguments. We don't intend to. What we would like to do is state our position.

We do not think the addition of beer or liquor stores would add anything but a minus quantity to our present municipality. We do not think the business that would drop into our stores from the purses of transient liquor buyers would be much. It would not outweigh the addition of more temptation to immoderates to be even more immoderate at no particular effort. We feel that two hotel outlets in the community are enough for the present size and stability of the village. It may be that we are voicing a limited opinion in this matter. We have been in the minority before. We take this public attitude with a full knowledge that we speak from a shaky platform of personal habits, but it seems to us, the matter under discussion is not one of personalities, as such, but of the development and future of one of the nicest small towns we know.

It is not this writer's place or intention to speak in any way for or against actions of village council members in this matter. They are capable and willing to discuss it with anyone at any time, officially or otherwise.

EUROPE AND THE UNITED KINGDOM

SOEST, West Germany—Last week we told of a couple living in quarters designed for the Canadian Army. This week, as a comparison, we want to write of a young couple living "on the economy," the term used to describe accommodation rented from a German family, and buying food and other needs in the German stores and market.

Guardsman M. E. Fife, Parrsboro, N.S., of the 1st Battalion, Canadian Guards, and Mrs Fife pay $49 a month for a furnished upstairs apartment, heating it themselves, in "Little Canada," a section of Soest where several Canadian families are living. They have one bedroom, living room, kitchen and bath.

Living quarters are available for about one-half of the Canadian families here with the Army. The rest just find quarters "on the economy." This is becoming increasingly difficult, we were told, because the policy of the German government has changed. Providing considerable financial assistance for new housing, the government states that German families and the thousands of refugees pouring in from East Germany must have first choice—after present Canadian tenants. What will happen at rotation time? This will mean the end, also, to the lucrative rents from the well-paid Canadians.

The Fifes are happy in their home. Their landlady speaks good English, and they are becoming fairly fluent in German as they do much of their shopping in the local corner store and on the Soest market. They are only about 10 minutes drive from the MLS store, so they get along very well with their shopping.

To help the families living out of town, Army buses make regular runs to bring the wives into the stores, and trucks accompany the buses home to carry the supplies.

They are able to buy more and more Canadian-type foods, even in the German stores, and unsliced, wrapped "Canadian Bread," made in Germany. Meat in the German stores is cut while you wait, as it was in the shops back home a few short years ago. It is good, but a bit more expensive than the Danish meats at the MLS. However, all cuts are completely boned by the German butcher.

They find the German people very neighbourly. They were especially kind when the Fife's only child, an 11-month-old boy, died recently. A host of flowers were brought to the home and to the military cemetery at Werl.

Guardsman Fife is a member of a German rifle club, which enters competitions all over Europe. He is coaxing his wife to join also, in time for the trip to Cologne. They have been to Switzerland, Holland (the Canadians' shopping paradise), and around Germany in their Opel, the German-made GM car. They plan a lot more travelling.

They attend shows at the Fort, bingos at the Red Patch Club, and social visits with their German and Canadian neighbours. They listen to the Canadian Army Europe radio station from Werl, and on Saturdays see the Perry Como show on German TV. Since their baby died, Mrs Fife has taken up oil painting "by numbers" to pass the daytime hours.

They are happy with their lot. It is an experience they could not have bought, and they intend taking full advantage of their tour of duty in Europe.

Safety Council meets at Morrisburg

The regular monthly meeting of the Dundas County Farm Safety Council was held on Tuesday, September 27, at the Department of Agriculture office, Morrisburg.

A major item on the program was the mailing of a circular dealing with safety in Dundas County. It was decided to send the circular to every farm home in the county by using the addressing facilities of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture. To save expense the directors of the Safety Council will prepare and mail the circular at their next meeting.

A zone meeting of the Ontario Farm Safety Council is to be held during the week of October 24. Mrs Graham Wells, Mrs Ray Brown, Mrs Harry Allison, Byron Martin and Allan Farlinger were named as Dundas delegates to the meeting.

Plans to hold a safety banquet early in November were also made by the Council members. In appreciation of the services rendered in the Farm Accident Survey, accident reporters are to be invited to the banquet as guests of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Byron Martin, Edwin McIntosh, E. K. Pearson and Mrs Harry Allison were named as program committee for the banquet.

The next meeting of the Farm Safety Council will be held at Brinston Hall on October 25.

Chalmer's W.M.S. holds meeting

The September meeting of Chalmer's W.M.S., Finch, was held at the home of Mrs Phil Casselman.

The worship period was conducted by Mrs James McMillan, Mrs P. A. Casselman and Mrs Gordon Ouderkirk. Mrs Gordon Ouderkirk outlined a portion of the study book.

The business period was in charge of the president, Mrs James McMillan, assisted by the secretary, Mrs P. A. Casselman. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs Lynden Hough.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostess.

The BIBLE TODAY . . .

The serial printing of extracts from the Bible in daily newspapers continues in India. The Gospel of Mark has been published in Hindi, Bengali, Oriya, Gujarati, Telugu and Kannada; John, in Urdu, Marathi and Sinhalese, and Luke in Tamil.

The Calcutta Bible Society Auxiliary reports one hundred and thirty-eight enquiries, and in Bombay well over two hundred wanted to know more. Thousands are now taking Bible correspondence courses.

In Delhi a Hindu woman was so impressed by the reading of the story of the widow's mite (Mark 12: 41-44) that she and 18 other women formed a group for study of the Gospel of Mark.

It is hoped that in due course the Gospel will be published in the daily press in all the important regional languages.

These results prove that the Bible itself in the language of the people is a most effective tool for evangelism.

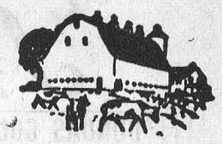
FRENDLEE FARM CHATS



by Lillian Allison

It didn't sem quite right around Frendlee Farm Monday afternoon. The place was so quiet and empty for our week-end guests—two adults, an eight-year-old boy, a five-year-old girl and a six-months-old dog had gone home to Toronto. We missed the two little voices asking questions that began usually with "Uncle Harry" or "Aunt Lillian." And we missed the jingle of the two tags on the little dog's collar as she padded about the house.

The dog's name is Maggie. She's a purebred Border Terrier slightly longer than a foot ruler and not quite as high. Her coat consists of stiff, brownish hairs that are not supposed to fall out. It's her face however that one could never forget. She needs a shave. She has a sort of goatee and moustache arrangement which, with long, whiskery eyebrows, make her look slightly comical.

I liked her on sight and she soon learned to like me. I proved a good source of bits of turkey, ham, pie-crust and other goodies. She never took her eyes off me anytime I worked in the vicinity of the refrigerator. A quarter-inch cube of turkey was enough to make her sit up on the floor and beg.

She'll probably never forget me for I gave her half my cone of soft ice cream on Sunday afternoon. I'll never forget her as she daintily licked it from the cone with her tiny red tongue. And the other adults in the car won't forget me as I wiped surplus ice cream from her beard with a piece of cleansing tissue.

The boy and girl were quite interested in our dog too. "Is Lassie a female?" the eight-year-old inquired. When I assured him that she is he informed me that Lassie might have puppies anytime and warned me of how much work they would make and how much food they would eat and how they'd have to have shots from the veterinarian. His mother recognized the little speech as a tape recording of the one she had made to him before they had Maggie spayed.

At noon Sunday the boy confided to his mother that if he didn't get a drink of water soon he didn't know what he'd do. He'd had milk ever since he came to the farm and couldn't he have one glass of water? Then his mother recalled the little lecture she'd given both children coming down. She'd explained the lack of rain and the scarcity of water at Uncle Harry's and how they mustn't waste any of the precious stuff. Apparently he figured he couldn't even have a drink.

On Sunday we stacked the noon dishes and headed for the Gatineau Hills. When we reached the first high building in Ottawa the boy inquired if that was where Mr "Dufenbaker" worked. We drove through the grounds on Parliament Hill and showed him where Mr "Dufenbaker" works, then crossed with the other scores of cars.

The Parkway through the hills would be the best drive to take and since Harry and I had been there a year ago August we proceeded to give directions. We bumped over Highway 11 to Chelsea, then turned right onto a dirt road until we came to the Parkway.

The colours along Highway 11 were gorgeous. Sometimes we caught a glimpse of the Gatineau River with flaming maples rising above it. But that was nothing compared with the scenery along the Parkway. There the road cuts through solid bush which is broken only by the occasional beaver pond or small lake. Flaming hills rise in every direction. From the lookouts we could see the farmlands below stretching out to the Ottawa River.

The entire area was painted in the super technicolors of orange, reds and yellows dotted with the odd evergreen. I doubt if there is anything more spectacular in North America than the autumn panorama of colour.

And we weren't the only ones who saw it. The roads were alive with cars. The stopping areas were full. People were wandering through the valleys picking leaves and just looking. And for every three people there was a camera.

Coming home we found a new Parkway that wasn't there last year. It was a delightful road that passed by Mackenzie King's Estate and came into Hull at the west end. The scenery all the way was breath-taking. If you have never seen the Gatineau in its autumn colours don't miss it next year. It defies description.

Yes, we had a busy weekend at Thanksgiving—but a very enjoyable one.

Judge: "You say it was an accident that you shot your wife? How did it happen?"

Prisoner: "She got in front of my mother-in-law just as I pulled the trigger."

Junior Bengal Lancers to appear at Ottawa Winter Fair

Patrons attending the Winter Fair at the Coliseum, Ottawa, from October 24-29, will see one of the finest riding acts in the country with the presentation of the Halifax Junior Bengal Lancers.

These boys and girls, ranging in age from 12 to 14, are very keen riders and exceptionally skilled in this pastime. At the Winter Fair they will put on their own musical ride and the very difficult tent-pegging events usually associated only with the incomparable R.C.M.P. horse troop.

This marks the first time the Halifax Junior Bengal Lancers have appeared in Ottawa. They will present their show each evening of the Winter Fair and with a special matinee performance on Saturday afternoon, October 29.

The Bengal Lancers are organized at Halifax as a non-profit riding company. There are about 70 youngsters in the club and about 20 of these each year form the riding show.

It is of interest that about 15 of the 20 riders will be girls. This isn't because the girls are better riders but because there are more of these young ladies interested than there are boys.

Yet another matter of no small importance is that these junior lancers are in Ottawa with the special permission of the Halifax School Board. These dashing lancers will have to put in extra time on their studies to maintain scholastic standards.

Actually the visit of these Halifax youngsters to Ottawa is regarded as an educaional experience. They will be visiting the Parliament Buildings and other places of interest.

The Halifax troop will arrive in Ottawa at Uplands Airport on Saturday, October 22.

The Lucky Thirteens met September 28 in Chalmers United Church Hall, Finch.

Officers elected were: President, Lois Hutt; vice president, Sharon Montgomery; secretary, Margaret Swerdfeger; treasurer, Carol Winters; press reporter, Sharlene Henderson; pianists, Bonnie Flegg and Sandra Price.

The worship service was under the direction of Mrs Harold Winters and Mrs Albert Winters.

The meeting closed with "Now the Day is Over" and Taps.

Merrill Mission Band holds Thankoffering

Thirty children attended the Autumn Thankoffering meeting of the Merrill Mission Band of Trinity United Church on October 3. A guessing game was enjoyed while the children assembled.

The meeting opened with the singing of the hymn "Can a Little Child Like Me."

At the worship centre was the picture "The Angelus." A Scripture verse was given by Jacqueline Hummel and the offering was received and dedicated by Billy Baker. All members answered roll call by naming something for which they were especially thankful. Minutes of the last meeting were read by Marilyn Smith.

The installation of officers for the year was conducted by Mrs D. Docksteader. This service included the repeating of the Mission Band Purpose and the Mission Band Hymn. Mrs J. Fulton told the story "The Primer," a story of children learning to read in the Philippines.

The children repeated the Missiin Band Prayer in unison.

Handwork, the making of worship booklets, followed.

Christmas cards were given out to the children to sell. Nancy McMillan distributed the World Friends magazines.

GOOD OLD DAYS

Canadian housewives shopping 75 years ago had to be careful—they might find themselves buying tea spiked with floor sweepings.

Tea might also be made from leaves containing starch or sand. The butter might contain excess moisture, curd and salt—and even some lard.

If housewives used mustard it might turn out to be adulterated with flour coloured by turmeric. Low-grade coffee might contain roasted wheat, peas, beans and even crusts of bread.

STILL POACHING

A new form of poaching aroused Welsh anglers.

Two miners caught 30 trout from a restricted part of the River Aman by using a bottle of detergent. They were fined £10 each for poisoning the fish.

Pollution officer Arthur Williams said:

"Almost every form of poaching known to the ingenuity of man is used in this area to catch fish. But this detergent system is a new one on me. It affects the fish's gills so it cannot breathe and floats to the surface.

"I suppose even poachers have to move with the times."

LOTS OF WORMS

A Canberra, Australia, medical school was beseiged for eight hours one day recently by hundreds of children clutching buckets, cans and bottle of wriggling earth worms.

The National University, which wanted the worms for research, had offered £1 per pound for live earthworms.

By noon, the staff had run out of cash after paying out £250. Another £250 hurriedly withdrawn from the bank, was gone by 5 p.m.

Nine staff members were kept busy all day washing, weighing and stowing the worms and paying the eager stream of youngsters.

The worms are used for research into the chemical processes in muscular contraction. The school now has enoughto keep busy for more than two years.

Mrs A. Williamson led in prayer. Mrs W. Ouderkirk gave the roll call and minutes of the August meeting. Plans for the anniversary supper, to be held October 15, were completed.

Mr, Mrs Harry Holmes honoured on 25th anniversary

Mr and Mrs Harry Holmes, well known Winchester Springs couple, observed their 25th wedding anniversary during the weekend. A large number of relatives, friends and neighbours gather at their home Saturday evening to tender them an anniversary party.

Their home was decorated with fall flowers and potted plants sent as gifts from friends. Guests were received at the door by Mrs Thomas Keyes.

During the course of the evening a mock wedding was staged by friends from the Toyes Hill community, which provided many laughs. Miss Erlene Casselman sang a solo following the "ceremony," accompanied by Mrs Irwin Holmes.

At 10.30 p.m. Mr and Mrs Holmes were asked to stand in an archway decorated in silver, pink and white and an address of best wishes, prepared by Joseph W. Webb, was read by Mrs Ralph Allison. The presentation of a coffee table, in French provincial design, a silver sewing tray and hassock was made by Mr and Mrs Joe Steele and Mr Ralph S. Allison on behalf of neighbours and friends.

A silver tea service and crystal vase were presented by Thomas and Leslie Holmes in behalf of the Holmes brothers and sisters and a plate glass mirror and gifts of jewellery were made by Mrs Lloyd Merkley on behalf of the Merkley family of Nation Valley.

Earlier in the day their immediate family, Mr and Mrs George Wood, George and Lorraine Holmes, of Ottawa, presented their parents with an upholstered livingroom suite in French provincial design.

The bride and groom of 25 years ago feelingly replied to the presentations and thanked all for their good wishes and very lovely gifts.

Mrs Dalton Robinson sang a solo, "Bless this House," accompanied at the piano by Mrs Byron Steele. Mrs Irwin Holmes played several piano selections during the evening. Over 100 guests registered in the nicely appointed Silver Anniversary book.

Mrs Holmes wore a two-piece suit-dress in a deep ruby red shade and her corsage was of carnations. Mr Holmes was presented with a white carnation boutonniere.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hosts and hostesses. The bridesmaid, Mrs Blake Ball (nee Dora Holmes-, of Chesterville, and the best man at the wedding 25 years ago, Mr Lloyd Merkley, Nation Valley, were on hand to assist the honoured couple at the anniversary party.

Mr and Mrs Holmes have been active members of their church and community, and their home is noted for hospitality.

Mrs Hazel Tinkess, health convener, introduced Mr Silversides and Mrs Delbert Flintoff thanked him.

Roll call was answered by 16 members giving a rule for a good hospital visitor.

Announcements to members included the appeal for the Jamaica Gift Coupon Plan; the workshop "Eat to Live" will be held at Berwick Hall October 14, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and the W.I. exhibit at Newington Fair won third prize.

Thirty-four Christmas stockings had been made, filled and sent for the Korean children's appeal.

Mrs Lloyd Gallinger was appointed delegate to attend the area convention at Ottawa on October 26 and 27.

Several volunteered to canvass for the C.N.I.B., with returns to be handed in at next meeting.
