Local Juniors Defeat Prescott 7-5

On Wednesday evening of this week the local junior hockey team played hosts to the Prescott juniors, but they didn't treat their visitors like good hosts traditionally should. They hung a 7—5 reverse on the lads from the Fort Town. Although the crowd was not so big as it might have been, those fans who did see the game voted it one of the best played in the local arena this season. Scoring for Morrisburg was done by Wes. Stitt, (3), Ronnie Casselman, (2) and Jack Hartley and Lynch, with one each. The juniors play their last scheduled game tonight at Cardinal, and in the standing, are tied for first position with the Brockville team. The playoffs will be starting early next week, but so far the locals are not sure whom they will be meeting.

Midget Hockey News

Our Midget hockey boys find themselves in the midst of playoff preparations. The St. Lawrence Midget Hockey League has been asked to declare a winner by the 22nd of February. A meeting was held in Cardinal to decide the playoff procedure. Morrisburg drew a bye, and thus the Cardinal and Prescott teams are playing a home and home series, the winner to face Morrisburg here on Tuesday night next in the first of the league finals. The winner of this series will be champion of the St. Lawrence League and will receive a very fine trophy. This is a new piece of silverware and the Morrisburg boys would like very much to have the privilege of putting their club'c name on it first. The Champion of this league will then proceed to play off with the winners of the Inkerman—Cornwall—Perth—Smith's Falls series. The game on Tuesday next is the BIG ONE, and we want not only to win but to carry a substantial margin to either Prescott or Cardinal as the case may be. We have never had such a fine bunch of midgets, and they deserve far better support than they are getting. We need your presence at the games to encourage the lads, and we need more money to buy sticks and many other things. If you feel like giving these kids a donation, you can give it to Ed. Cornell, Art Laurin, Tom Connor, Mac Ault, or to the treasurer, G. H. Smith. These are all your boys. Get behind them. See you all at the game Tuesday night.

The Morrisburg Midgets won an exhibition game on Thursday evening against Nativity Boys Club of Cornwall, 3—2. The Cornwall boys came p under Father Foley's sponsorship, and were unfortunate, in that their game little goalie, Jerry Leblanc, suffered a painful injury in the first period, to his right eye, which required two stitches to close. He was attended by Dr. A. T. Shannette.

Goals went to, Morrisburg players Ing and Casselman (2); and to Cornwall players Lalonde and Gosselin.

Referees were P. Payette, Cornwall and R. Reid, Morrisburg.

The Morrisburg team is now at full strength, in readiness for the finals and the playdowns, and their chances never looked better. Give them your support.

The players and exectuive of the Midget Hockey Club, wish to express sincere thanks to all those who have been so generous with donations, and also to Dr. Shannette, for his kindness in treating injured players.

Waterfowl Situation Is Deteriorating

A pronounced deterioration in the wild duck situation in Canada is revealed in a statement issued at Ottawa by Hon. J. Allison Glen, Minister of Mines and Resources. The duck population has been falling off for a number of years because of surface water conditions on the far-flung mid continental breeding grounds and of a large increase in duck hunting activity following the end of the war.

Reports from Dominion Wildlife officers across Canada have shown that the duck migration in the autumn of 1946 was much smaller than in 1945. Indicating the gravity of the situation, it was estimated that in an area of at least 35,000,000 acres in southwestern Saskatchewan, nesting conditions continued to be poor for water fowl of all kinds, owing to a lack of surface water. In southern Alberta a similar condition existed in a minimum of 25,000,000 acres. The duck situation in Manitoba was also reported to be critical.

Two abnormally cold seasons in the north have reduced the breeding of many kinds of geese, and autumn flocks of honkers, waveys and snow geese contained very few young birds continent wide waterfowl inventory is being carried on jointly by the federal wildlife authorities in Canada and the United States is now nearing completion, it was pointed out, and information obtained from the survey will determine what measures it will be necessary to take to protect the remaining ducks from further serious depletion.

Hon. Mr. Glen stated that concerted action by government agencies, private enterprise and individual hunters will be necessary to prevent further losses to the country's waterfowl resources.

Seniors Lose Games to Cornwall & Cardinal

On Friday evening last the Cornwall Falcons again demonstrated the class which has kept them at the top of the league all winter, beating the local senior aggregation by an 11—4 count.

In the first period the goals all went to Cornwall, in this order: Miron (H. Payette); Lapensee; H. Payette (Lebrun, P. Payette); McCallum; Garand (McCallum); Miron (H. Payette). There were no penalties in the period.

In the second frame, the local team got back into the game with two goals by Boucher (Macdonald and Upper) and Bourget, while Reid sank one for Cornwall from Lebrun's pass. There were two Cornwall penalties, to Reid and Garand.

In the final period, the visitors took four more counters against the locals two. Cornwall scorers were P. Payette; Garand (Kaneb); Lebrun (Filion); H. Payette (P. Payette). The locals' goals were counted by Ken Jarvis (Osler and Dupuis); and Fern Deneault. Penalities went to Filion, Cornwall, (major); Bourget, Morrisburg (major); and Lebrun, Cornwall.

Referees were C. Macdonald and R. Perley both of Ottawa.

The teams:

Morrisburg: Goal, R. Cross; defence B. Cross and Dupuis; centre, Deneault; wings, Bourget and Salmon; subs. J. Cross, Boucher, Osler, Upper, Jarvis, Tindal, Macdonald.

Cornwall: Goal, Piquette; defence, Bingley and Lapensee; centre, P. Payette; wings, Miron and H. Payette; subs. Filion, Lebrun, Reid, Kaneb, McCallum, Garand and Marlin.

On Monday night the locals absorbed another in their long string of defeats, this time bowing to Cardinal 6—0.

The Cardinal team showed smart hockey all the way to win the decision easily. They were sparked by the veteran J. Pontbriand, who was credited with a goal and two assists in the win. John started the scoring in the first period and was followed less than a minute later by Smaill on an assist from Foster. Besides the goal, Smaill took the only penalty of the period.

In the second, Foster sank one on Smaill's passout and Bennett added play with Pontbriand, before Ernie Fader sank a typical goal unassisted, to boost the visitors count to 5—0. There were two penalities both to Morrisburg players, Osler and Upper.

Bennett counted the only goal for Cardinal in the final frame, unassisted, and again Morrisburg got the only two penalties, these going to Ken Jarvis and Billy Upper.

DROP RATION FOR ALL EXCEPT IMPORTED WHISKEY

Only imported Scotch and Irish remains rationed in Ontario after March 1, the Ontario Liquor Control Board announced today. Dropping of the ration system for all types of spirits except imported whiskey is a few weeks later than the dropping of rationing of beer and wine in the proince.

For imported Irish and Scotch whiskey, a ration quota of one bottle per calendar month remains as at present.

Th egeneral rationing system was first imposed just four years ago and for liquor reached a low of one 13-ounce bottle per month in the middle of 1944. The lowest point that beer reached was 12 pints per month in the same year.

MAJOR J. K. KETCHESON ADDRESSED FISH & GAME CLUB THURS. NIGHT

There was not too large a turnout last night at the armouries for the illustrated address by Major J. K. Ketcheson of the Carling's Conservation Club, but those who did attend were treated to a really worthwhile talk, and a good evening's pictorial entertainment. Major Ketcheson, who is one of the foremost authorities in the province on the subjects of fish and game and conservation of natural resources, was the main speaker of the evening. Other speakers were Jack Stewart, fish and game overseer of Cornwall, and president Les. McCormick, of the local Fish and Game Club, who sponsored the evening's talk.

The thanks of the club to Major Ketcheson and to the Carling's Conservation Club, was expressed by Mr. E. S. Coones, and president McCormick and G. H. Smith.

The Club is also grateful to Lieut. T. R. Parker for permission to use the S. D. & G. Barracks for the evening, and to Father J. F. Feeney for the use of chairs from St. Mary's Hall.

His Excellency, Field Marshall, the Rt. Honorable Viscount Alexander of Tunis, Governor General of Canad, is seen in the robes of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, of which he is Grand Prior in Canada. His Excellency is patron of the Dominion-wide campaign which began Feb. 2, and ends Feb. 22, for $1,000,000, to further St. John Ambulance work throughout Canada.

Truthful

A coal merchant advertised for a boy, and in due course a number applied for the job.

"Do you like work?" he asked one of them.

"No, sir," was the prompt answer.

"Then you can have the job," said the coal merchant. "You are the first boy I've seen who has told the truth."

In Technicolor

The film producer visited his oculist and complained of seeing spots before his eyes.

"Well, smiled the oculist, "there's nothing serious about that. We'll have you fixed up in no time. Why, thousands of people see spots before their eyes."

The producer smiled.

"Yes, I know that," he replied. "but mine are in technicolor."

The woman thought for a mement, then answered, "In Hune and Huly."

Off The Wire

The young reporter thought that the old man in the potato-field looked the last word in rusticity.

"Good morning," he said. "Lovely day."

"Ay," answered the oldest inhabitant, leaning on his hoe. "But there's rain coming."

"How do you know that?" the reporter asked. "Red sky at morning — shepherd's warning, eh? Or perhaps you've means of your own?"

Dunno nothing 'bout that," was the reply. "But it was on the wireless last night, and in all the papers this morning."

Her Choice

Know Your Hockey Stars

By ED. FITKIN

Bigger and heavier and considerably stronger than when he broke into pro hockey as an 18-year-old junior ace in 1942-43, Bud Poile is expected to be a standout man for the Leafs this season. Six feet tall and packing between 185 and 190 pounds in playing condition, Poile is quite a hunk of hockey player. He's a right-hand shot — and what a shot! Pucks don't fly any faster than the way Poile propels 'em and that deadly drive and his playmaking ability have earned him the nick-name of "Point-a-game" Poile. Bud,, prior to this season, has played 74 N.H.L. games and has 64 points to his cerdit.

Norman (Bud) Poile, Centre

In 1942-43, his only full season as a Leaf, Bud scored 16 goals and had 19 assists for 35 points in 48 games. In playoff competition the same season, he bagged 2 goals and 4 assists for 6 points in 6 games. During the 1943-44 season, on leave while transferring from the Royal Canadian Air Force to the Canadian Army, Poile played 11 games with the Leafs. He scored four goals in his first start and in the 11 games collected six goals and eight assists for 14 points. Last winter, back from overseas service, Poile played nine games for the Leafs and clicked for nine points—one goal and eight assists.

Like Gaye Stewart and Gus Bodnar, Poile is a product of the Thunder Bay hockey incubator. He was born at Fort William, Feb. 10, 1924, and began his climb to hockey's big time via the bantam-midget-juvenile route in his home town.

Scout George (Squib) Walker, who nabbed him for the Leafs, says that Bud was "a super star" as a junior. He and Bodnar were team mates with the Fort William Hurricane-Rangers for two years and after Bodnar won the scoring championship of the Thunder Bay League, "Squib" promised Poile a trip to Toronto to see the Leafs in the Stanley Cup playoffs if he could win the scoring title the second year. Bud did and got his trip. The next season he was playing for—not just watching—the Leafs.

Poile joined the Canadian Active Army in April, 1943, transferred to the R.C.A.F. and then returned to the Army. He went overseas in July, 1944, and served with Sigals Corps in Italy, France and Germany. He was in Oldenburg in Northern Germany on VE Day. Prior to returning to Canada last March, Poile was picked for an All-Star Army Headquarters team that toured France and Czechoslovakia. He spent his 22nd birthday last Feb. 10 in "Gay Paree." Bud was married in 1943 shortly before going overseas.

Swiss Boom

Switzerland is an island of prosperity in the midst of Europe. Figures just received show that industry is humming, everyone is at work, the cost of living is stable, and prices have fallen a bit. The tourist trade reflects this situation, as foreigners have been flocking back to Switzerland in greater numbers than ever since 1934, to enjoy the good things of life to be found there as nowhere else in Europe.

Britain Slates Humble Folk For High Posts

Columns are being written about the fact that the son of a butcher is being slated for the governor-generalship of Australia, says the Ottawa Journal. Why? Surely it has ceased to be news that sons of butchers and bakers and other humble folk have won by divine right of intellect to the highest posts of power! And not merely in new countries like Australia, the United States and Canada. In England, where they are supposed to have a caste system, democracy in government but not in society, any number of men, sons of poor homes, have risen to the summits —lock over the records of Mr. Attlee's ministers! More, turn to the supposedly blue-blooded Conservative party and note that the descendant of a Yorkshire bare-knuckle fighter and runner rose to be Lord Chancellor—F. E. Smith, later Lord Birkenhead.

It is an inverted snobbery which assumes it is wonderful news when a poor boy rises to the height to which his intellect entitles him.

Current Affairs

An educational experiment applied to Britain's fighting Services during the war, which proved highly popular and successful has resulted in an important new development in methods of education in Britain's schools. It is the introduction of current affairs as a regular subject into the educational syllabus. This change is a direct outcome of topical discussions and informed guidance which were arranged by the War Cabinet to ensure that every fighting man should have adequate opportunity to acquire a basic knowledge of world affairs. "Current Affairs" is now a well established item on all school schedules.

War Bride, Babies Given Big Welcome

The recent publicity given to that small group of English war brides who reported their unhappy experiences in the United States is no doubt overshadowed by the thousands of brides who received a royal welcome. The following story is authenticated by the writer, who participated in collecting the money mentioned, says H. B. E., in the Christian Science Monitor.

G.I.'s of the 82nd Airborne Division, returning home on the Queen Mary, were particularly charmed with three young traveling companions—rosy little triplets, aged perhaps eighteen months, on their way to America with their mother. It soon became known that their father was an ex-G.I., now discharged and waiting in the States for his English wife and babies, and immediately something was in the air.

The Queen Mary steamed into New York harbor, the young father was on the dock, to be greeted, not only by his family, but with a check for several thousand dollars — a welcome-home gift to the babies from the thousands of Americans on board.

Device May Make Air Travel Safer

An automatic flight recorder designed to promote safer air travel has been developed by the General Electric Company.

The new device will help prevent accidents by detecting possible dangerous airplane or pilot tendencies and warning a pilot by audible signals G.E. said last night.

It also will furnish recorded data to help determine the cause of an accident to a plane.

The flight recorder provides airlines with "easily-read" records of a plane's altitude, vertical acceleration, airspeed and other personal data, the company explained.

The records are not affected by altitude or temperature and can remain submerged in salt water for several days without damage, G.E. added.

Post Offices Help Save Lives At Sea

Every post office coast station in Britain maintains a constant watch, day and night, for distress and emergency calls from ships at sea. On receipt of such a call commercial working is suspended. Information received from the ship regarding the nature of her distress, and the kind of assistance required, is passed immediately to the appropriate authorities who take whatever action is necessary.

In addition, the coast station takes a radio bearing on the ship in distress, and re-broadcasts on full power all the information received, so that in the case of a ship too far away for help to come from the land, other ships in the vicinity may proceed to her assistance.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

Special Services being held at the Community Gospel Chapel commencing Sunday, February 16th, will be as follows:

Sunday, 11 a.m.—Morning Worship.
7.30 p.m.—Evangelistic Service.

Rev. D. Kauffman will be Special Speaker.

Monday, 2.30 p.m.—Special Session; 8 p.m.—Special District Rally. Rev. W. G. McPherson, Toronto, Speaker.

Each following evening (except Saturday) Rev. D. Kauffman will be the Special Speaker.

HOW FAR CAN A 'GO-AHEAD' FARMER GO?

Well, perhaps that's a little like asking, "How high is up?" A 'go-ahead' farmer tries each year to increase the profits, benefits, and enjoyment he and his family receive from the farm. And so it is difficult to estimate any limits on his progress.

But the things' which limit a farmer's progress are known—outmoded machinery, run-down herds, obsolete plumbing, homes and buildings in disrepair—all these not only eat up potential profits, they rob a man and his family of their opportunities for leisure and recreation.

Yet many farmers, conscious of the value of modern equipment, hesitate to make improvements because of a lack of ready money. This need not stand in the way. By taking advantage of the Bank of Montreal's farm improvement loan plan you may secure time-saving and profit-making machinery and equipment.

A visit to J. Charles Wood, manager of the local branch of the B of M, will show how much a low-interest loan can help a farmer to be a 'go-ahead' farmer—bringing better farming, better living and better profits. It will show you, too, that when you ask for a loan at the B of M you do not ask a faouvr.

HANDS AT WORK . . .

ONTARIO'S future prosperity depends directly on a sufficient volume of production to satisfy domestic needs and assure for Canada a pre-eminent place in the markets of the world. Take the electrical industry for example . . . never before has the demand, both here and abroad, for the products of Ontario's great electrical plants been so great. Production must be increased . . . but to meet new production goals, skilled hands are needed. For them great opportunities lie ahead. Higher wages, job security, better working conditions are within easier reach of those who have mastered a skilled occupation.

Today, through the plan sponsored by the Department of Veterans' Affairs and other agencies, thousands of young workers are being trained to meet the electrical and other industrial needs of this Province. Graduates of these rehabilitation courses are now ready to take their places in Ontario's industry. Available to you are veterans, well started on the road to skilled electrical trades such as electrical construction and maintenance, radio and electrical servicing and motor winding. Seek them out with confidence. They are your future craftsmen.

DON'T BE A MUD SLINGER!

This is a season of changing weather. It's grey and cold one day—warm and bright the next, with snow melting into grimy slush on the roads. As a motorist, it's nice to drive through the puddles without a care—but it's tough on pedestrians when it means an icy bath and soiled clothing. Don't be a mud slinger—slow down when you near a slush patch. Passers-by will appreciate your courtesy—and courtesy of this kind is proof of "Good Citizenship".

You can help this public service effort. Make a note of some of the little things which, in your opinion, contribute to Good Citizenship.

CHRONICLES OF GINGER FARM

By Gwendoline P. Clarke

Sometmies you wonder at the cruel tricks that Fate can play. And we certainly wondered this morning. In fact the whole neighborhood was shocked when it woke up to find a big bank barn near here, with practically all its contents burnt to the ground. Also burnt were about a dozen cows and heifers, some pigs and over three hundred hens. In other words not only did the farmer suffer the loss of his barn and livestock but also the source of his weekly income. The pity of it is, the farmer in question was a young war veteran who served with distinction in the R.C.A.F. The war being over he, with his young wife and baby, settled down to what showed every promise of being a successful career as a farmer. And now this.

Can you imagine the sheer terror of getting up in the morning to find your barn a blazing inferno! For that is what happened in this case. No one knows how the fire started—the young farmer got up to begin his day's work—and there was the fire. The loss is all the more unfortunate when equipment and building materials are so hard to get—and at such a price.

That all-important subject of price brings us around again to the latest price increases—soap, textiles, leather goods, fats and oils. When the price increases were first announced I just about saw red—especially when Mayor Saunders, of Toronto, announced his determination to keep the price of milk down, if at all possible. I wonder if he knows that the farm population, as well as urban, has to pay all those other increases too. And we need something to pay with.

Well, after a while I began to cool off and I finally came to the conclusion that possibly the upswing in prices might result in a levelling off period, and also bring about a possible reduction in the spending money of the young fry, which would certainly be for their ultimate good.

Imagine this: A friend of mine who often stops in at a tearoom told me that time after time she has seen high school youngsters come in after school, order a "coke", sandwiches or sundae — possibly all three—and spend anywhere from fifteen to forty-five cents each! Surely it isn't reasonable that teen-agers should have money to spend so freely. How can they possibly learn to appreciate its value—and how do the parents stand it? No wonder there is such a hue and cry for higher salaries and wages if the fortnightly cheque, or weekly pay envelope, has to provide so generously for the youngsters' spending money. The wisdom of cutting the garment to fit the cloth must surely be out of date, giving way to modern methods of pulling and stretching the cloth every which-way to get all the garments one desires. At the same time one cannot help feeling sorry for the kids because it will be hard for them to understand and to make adjustments when this easy-come, easy-go period comes to an end—as come it surely will.

But of course the young folk are not the only offenders. I suppose we have all developed an "I want" personality to a greater or less degree. Beverley Baxter gave a good illustration of this last week in his address to the Canadian Club in Toronto, which no doubt some of you heard—I hope so, anyway.

Comparing the difference in the present standard of living in England and on the North American continent Mr. Baxter said—

"In England necessities have become almost luxuries, whereas in Canada and the United States of America luxuries have become necessities!"

Back to the subject of price decontrol. From what I have gathered high prices are not expected to last very long and you will have noticed that most of them are things that women have to deal with—so it is up to us, isn't it ladies? For a while we can bake less, buy fewer cakes and cookies, patch and darn and make-over a little longer. And if you should want proof that I practice what I preach you should just see Partner's overalls!

Answer to Previous Puzzle

TEEN-TOWN TOPICS

By BARRY MURKAR

A bright light shone in my eyes, making the faces of the two men across the table blur and seem unnatural. One of the men was bald and a deep red scar on the right side of his face was livid in the whiteness of the light. The other man wore a brown fedora above a sharp featured face. They looked tough and ready for anything—and at the moment for me.

The bald man was shuffling cards—the kind you play bridge with. He turned them face up and placed them in a line in front of him. The chisel face was rattling a pair of dice in his left hand and every so often made a move as if to throw them in my face. I was scared.

"Little boys should never gamble," said the chisel face, "never gamble at anytime, no matter how good are the odds." He bent over close to me, and as I tried to move back, I found my arms and legs securely tied to the chair on which I was sitting.

"Why did you gamble, little boy?" asked Baldy, "didn't you know it was a bad thing to do?"

"But I didn't mean to—"

"Shut up, little boy." Chisel face reached down into his pocket and pulled out a bottle of coke. He held it in his hand, looking at it for a moment, then held it out to me. As I reached for it, he slowly pulled it back.

"Bad boys should be made to sweat a little," he cracked. "You look very warm under those lights and I'll bet you're thirsty. You are thirsty, aren't you, little boy?"

"Yes," I replied meekly.

"You're hungry too. Very hungry." Chisel face then reached down and pulled out a chicken sandwich, and began to eat, making soft munchy sounds and putting on a face of satisfaction.

"What would you like most, little boy?" asked Baldy.

"I want to go home," I replied.

"Ha, ha," he gargled. "Get that, Chisel, little boy wants to go home."

"You gambled today little boy. You should never have done that. Those who gamble pay a penalty, especially those "Little Boys" who gamble. It never pays off. You know that now, don't you? You wish you had never tried to make that dollar triple itself. You're sweating little boy. You're paying for your misdeeds now." Chisel then sat back on his chair and caressingly fondled his dice. He held them up to eye level and slowly moved them forward until they moved up close again. Then he nodded to Baldy.

Baldy glared at me, which made me feel sick away down inside. He got up from the table and walked around behind me. Slowly he let the cards fall over me like water from a shower.

"These cards and dice belong to those who gamble," Chisel shouted at me, "they are yours to keep forever."

"I want to get out of here. Let me go," I cried. I twisted and writhed, but the ropes held me tight in the chair.

"Little boy doesn't look so smart now Chisel. He looks scared, and he should be. Now we'll give him the gambler's rub down."

They moved in close and untied the ropes that held me. Chisel slapped my face—hard, and then twisted my arm behind me. I kicked and lunged out. Suddenly everything went black and a new picture came into focus.

"What are you doing on the floor, son? You have your father and everyone else in the house awake."

I turned suddenly and there was my mother, standing in the doorway of my bedroom. I got up off the floor feeling very foolish.

"I had a—had a very bad dream."

"You must have had," said my mother. "The whole house shook when you hit the floor."

"I did a bad thing today mother," I confessed. "A guy told me if I gave him a dollar, he would bet it on a horse for me and I would get three dollars back. I dreamt that I was in a room with two tough men and they had dice and cards. They kept telling me little boys should never gamble — then they tried to beat me up. Gee mom, that could happen to anyone. Boy, I'll never gamble again."

More Ice, Faster

The conventional method of freezing ice is slow and expensive because of the extremely low heat conductivity of both water and ice. Now a machine has been developed that will freeze ice more than 100 times faster than present conventional methods. A thin lay of ice is formed over a revolving core, or drum and is continuously scraped off. The ice may be used in flake form or, by simple pressure, molded into ice cubes or cakes of any desired size.

TABLE TALKS

Supper in a Casserole

There are several invariable rules for casserole cookers. The sauce should be flavorable, the mixture should be substantial. It should be topped with something "crispable" such as bread or crackers crumbs, cereal flakes, potatoes or bacon.

Navy Bean Royal

1 cup white navy beans
3 cups cold water
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons mild-flavored fat
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons chopped onion
½ cup grated cheese
1 egg
2 cup soft bread crumbs
1 tablespoon chopped parsley (optional)

Pick over, wash and soak beans overnight in cold water to cover. Drain. Simmer in salted water until tender, about 2 hours. Drain and mash. Melt fat in a saucepan, blend in flour, add milk gradually, stirring until thickened. Add onion and all but two tablespoon of cheese and stir until cheese is melted. Stir in beaten egg yolk, bread crumbs, parsley and beans. Fold in stiffly beaten egg white. Turn into a greased casserole and sprinkle the remaining 2 tablespoons of cheese on top. Set in a pan of hot water and ovenpoach in a moderate oven, 350 deg. F, for 30 minutes. Six servings.

Corn, Tomato Casserole

2 tablespoons fat
½ cup finely chopped onion
1 cup ground left-over cooked meat
½ teaspoon salt
5 tablespoons flour
2 cups canned tomatoes
2 cups whole kernel corn
1 teaspoon brown sugar
¼ teaspoon curry powder or a few grains of cayeenp
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce (optional)

Melt fat add nion and cook until tender Add meat and brown. Add flour and blend thoroughly. Add tomatoes and corn. Continue cooking, stirring constantly thickened. Add sugar, curry powder, salt, paprika and Worcestershire sauce. Turn into a large greased casserole or baking dish and top with baking powder biscuits. Bake in a hot oven 425 deg. F. for 25-30 minutes. Six servings.

Murder in Plain Sight

by GERALD BROWN

W.N.U. FEATURES

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER III: Next day Miss Bigelow shows McCale the rich presents. One attracts his attention. It is a deed to a modernistic mansion from Christopher Storm, noted architect.

CHAPTER IV

Wordlessly, as McCale bit his lip to keep silent, Adelaide Bigelow replaced the deed in its envelope. She turned slowly, motioning him to leave the room with her.

The bright brilliance of "The Firebird" rippled through the gloom of the upper hall on a shaft of yellow light from the open drawing room door. Someone was playing the Stravinsky and playing it well. McCale, following Miss Bigelow inside, saw that the room was now occupied by three women and a man.

His client drew him forward, to the woman at the piano. She was exceedingly beautiful in an almost cinematic way. The high cheekbones of her face shadowed the faintest of hollows. You could have swept the floor with her lashes, behind which glowed humorous blue eyes. Her mouth was sensuous, and thick with vermilion lipstick. As if all this were not enough, hair the color of flax hung in a long bob to her shoulders.

Lost in his reverie of this neo-Grec vision, McCale hardly heard Adelaide Bigelow speak.

"May I present Mr. McCale, Sybil? This is Mrs. Joel Bigelow. The bride's mother." She put her hand on his sleeve. "Mr. McCale's Agency is overseeing—the wedding gifts."

With an effort he brought himself back to the woman who faced him. Her manner was arrogant as she repeated his name in the cool, detached tone she might use to a chauffeur. She acknowledged the introduction, that was all, then moved majestically away.

A corner of McCale's mind was still at the piano where the white goddess now played something by Gershwin in a real broken beat. He caught an amused glance from Miss Bigelow before she presented him to the couple sitting on the sofa.

"Victoria Bigelow," murmured Miss Adelaide, "and Stephen—the bride's sister and brother."

The girl looked a little old around the eyes, a little hard around the mouth. There was something viperish in the way she held her pointed chin. She looked at McCale, her glance traveling from his head to his toes, as if she were selecting a horse or a dog for her own special amusement.

It was very easy to see that Stephen Bigelow was Victoria's brother. He had the same hard finish, the white skin, the narrow face. Already there was a crease of cruelty around his uneasy mouth. He wolfed a drink while nodding to McCale, but his eyes were fixed on the woman at the piano.

The woman at the piano! As they crossed the room in her direction, the charm she diffused, the spell she wove seemed to grow stronger. He wondered what it could be, for upon closer inspection, her face was older than it had seemed at a distance.

"Mrs. Stephen Bigelow," said Miss Adelaide, and left McCale looking down at a polite Garbo-ish mask, a slow smile, and slender, cigarette-stained fingers picking out a lush tone. He sensed what slavery there must be in loving a woman like this, could see that part of Stephen's restlessness was a sickness, and that he was living on the cocaine of her magic.

She didn't resent his standing there as she played. She didn't speak or smile or make any effort to put him at his ease. She knew he was dazzled, not quite sure of himself, but it didn't even seem to amuse her.

McCale looked up to see Miss Bigelow offering him an old-fashioned. "The dear old thing actually has a cynical gleam in her eye," he thought. "Surely this silent piano-playing Swede isn't the menace around here."

Karen had seated herself beside her husband, and, joined by Sybil, the small group was carrying on a desultory conversation about the wedding rehearsal, the bridesmaids, and the ushers.

"She's very beautiful, isn't she?" said Miss Bigelow, catching McCale again with his eyes on Karen.

"Mm," McCale grunted, smiling. "Is she always like this?"

"A Nordic princess?" Miss Adelaide smiled, slight distaste curling the corners of her mouth. "I . . . I'm afraid not."

"Ah. The deceptive Swedish blank."

"Just so."

"She's very talented."

"Yes, indeed."

Miss Bigelow was making him feel like Paul Pry. Why had she been giving him the impression, in the last few minutes, that Karen was worth watching then? He changed the subject.

"Will you want me to have my man on duty tonight?" He watched her closely. All the tightness came back into her eyes.

"I—I don't know."

Suddenly he was like a man waiting in a dentist's office, wanting to start something, go in there and get it over with. He started to talk, almost blurted out, "You're in some trouble, Miss Bigelow. You need help. You do. You came to me this morning with it written all over your face. You're afraid of something—something that has nothing to do with wedding gifts." He made a gesture as if he were waving them away. "You are afraid. I know."

"I suppose you do." But though her hand trembled, her eyes were vacant.

"Tell me what it is. Give me your confidence. If you want my help, I must have it. What do you fear? Who is making you afraid?"

"Now I've done it," he cursed to himself, for she drew him a sharp, half-angry glance, and got up. He stumbled to his feet, blind with anger at himself, but she was smiling at two people who were entering the room.

The girl was all gold. She was not beautiful, but her face had a depth and a glow that was curiously warming. That was it. She was warm and golden, and you knew at once that she was intelligent and nice, as well as decorative. Her hair was long, naturally curly, and of a burnished bronze color. Her head was set on a perfectly proportioned body. Dressed as she was in shades of beige and brown, simply and in beautiful taste, she was at once quietly charming, assured, thoroughbred.

"Veronica—dear," Miss Bigelow touched her, kissed her. There was in her voice a note of passionate concern, of pride—of relief.

Adelaide Bigelow introduced the golden girl in the doorway to McCale and he was surprised at the creature's throaty, mellow voice. But wasn't there something a trifle nervy, a bit disquieting, about the edges of that voice? There was.

She pecked at her aunt, smiled at McCale, made a few quick, nervous laughing jibes at her family, and said in that modulated, too-well controlled tone, "Anything new come Present, I mean. Anything exciting?"

Miss Adelaide turned abruptly as she was about to introduce McCale to the young man who had come in with her. She made a futile gesture as if to ward the girl off, but Veronica was out of the room before the movement was even contemplated.

McCale found himself hanging in the air, so to speak, pumping the hand of a man whose name he hadn't heard.

"Storm, Christopher Storm," the young man said. "You're Duke McCale and I've heard of you."

McCale stifled the impulse to say, "Shush." He said, "Well," and let go the hand of this big fellow who had designed and built a house called "The Nest."

Princesses Study Afrikaans Language

Afrikaans, which the two Princesses are learning in preparation for the royal tour, is the Empire's youngest language, says The Manchester Guardian.

South Africa has two official languages, constitutionally on a basis of equality — English and Afrikaans. Until fairly recent years Afrikaans was regarded by many Englishmen as a language specially devised by politicians for the pastime of "twisting the Lion's tail." Actually, it is a language which has grown naturally for over two centuries out of the parent language of The Netherlands.

It has been written, consciously, for two generations, and is now for the Afrikaners, who are the majority of the white inhabitants of South Africa, the general medium not only of colloquial speech, but also of the politest and most scientific discussion.

Spring Comes Bustin' Out in Hats

Straws will be colorful this year, say 1947 presentations of the New York milinery industry, and here are three to prove it. Arline Heattor models a pixie-crowned creation of rough natural straw laced with black velvet and tipped with feather flowers. At left she holds a yellow basket straw banded with black and white checked ribbon, and at right an open-crowned bonnet trimmed with black and white striped taffeta.

Sunday School Lesson

Jesus the Light of the World

John 9: 1-12, 30-33.

Golden Text.—I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life.—John 8:12.

The Blind Beggar

It was perhaps at the Temple entrance that Jesus, as he passed by, saw a man who was blind from his birth. As Jesus beheld the unfortunate man, the attention of His disciples was attracted, and they expressed the belief that the faults of the parents reappeared in their children. They held that every affliction was traceable directly to some special sin.

Jesus' answer, "Neither did this man sin, nor his parents: but that the works of God should be made manifest in him," does not mean that the beggar and his parents were sinless, but that no special sin of theirs has caused this calamity.

The Beggar Honors Jesus

When brought before the Pharisees, the man repeated the story he had told his neighbors and declared Jesus a prophet.

Some said that the healer was not of God because he had broken the Sabbath in the practice of healing, while others thought a sinner could not perform a miracle. To satisfy their minds as to the identity of this man, his parents were examined. They declared that he was their son and that he had been blind from birth.

He that was blind was again called and instructed to give God the praise, and not Jesus, who was considered a sinner. But the man persisted in honoring Jesus and also refuted the arguments of the Pharisees.

Spiritual Light

Jesus asked the beggar the fundamental question, "Dost thou believe in the Son of God?" The answer of the healed man was made honestly and earnestly: "who is he, Lord, that I might believe on him?" The answer of Jesus was a self-revelation of Himself as Messiah, Savior and Lord. The poor man's eyes had been opened for a sublime purpose. He looked upon Jesus and saw more than when he looked for the first time upon the great world around him. Jesus was Himself the Son of God. Then came the climax in the word and deed of the blind beggar: "Lord, I believe. And he worshipped him.

Modern Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

1. Should one refuse to tell one's preference in food when the hostess asks?

2. Is there any certain number of bridesmaids one should have at a church wedding?

3. Is "How do" the correct thing to say when acknowledging an introduction?

4. Is it considered polite and thoughtful to fill in a word for another person who is talking, or to finish a sentence for him?

5. What should one do in a public restaurant if a knife or napkin is dropped while at the table?

6. Should guests of a house party be met at the train, bus, or air terminal?

ANSWERS

1. No; if your hostess asks if you prefer light meat to dark, or cream instead of lemon with tea, don't hesitate to give your preference. 2. The number varies from four to eight at a large formal wedding, but one or two will serve just as well at a small wedding. 3. No; say, "How do you do?" 4. No; this is exceedingly rude and is most annoying to the speaker. 5. Let the waiter pick it up. 6. Yes, if possible. Otherwise, they should be given explicit directions on how to reach the home of the hostess

Sawdust Useful

A bag or box of sawdust makes a useful bit of extra equipment to carry in the trunk of the car through the winter.

If stuck in the snow, or stalled on the ice, a sprinkling of sawdust under the wheels will give that added bit of traction needed to get started on the way again.—Windsor Star.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

How Can I?

By Anne Ashley

Q. How can I preserve paint in open cans?

A. Paint can be kept in open cans if the paint is stirred thoroughly, then the can filled to the top with water. When needed again, pour off the water carefully.

Q. How can I stimulate the growth of plants?

A. Put coffee grounds around the roots and once a week give them a tablespoonful of olive oil. Never allow the earth to become dry and hard.

Q. How can I remove the tarnish from silver?

A. A very good cleanser for tarnished silver is to use a piece of raw potato, dipped in baking soda.

Q. How can I make a zinc polish?

A. By stirring rye bran into a paste with boiling water, and adding a handful of silver sand and a little vitriol. Rub the articles with this paste. Rinse with water, wipe dry, and then polish with a soft cloth.

Q. What can be done when tableclothes begin to wear along the creases where they are always folded?

A. Cut about an inch from one side and one end. This will cause the creases to appear in different places and the tablecloths will last much longer.

Q. How can I relieve frost bite?

A. Rub the frost-bitten parts with pure oil, sassafras, or oil of peppermint. Use only the pure oil, not the essence.

Chicken Feathers May Help Solve Clothing Shortage

Shades of the 1920's! Sweater girls are again becoming "flappers."

Hon. L. H. Eyres, trade and industries minister, revealed today that British Columbia scientists have come up with a method of making a new fabric from chicken feathers.

Mr. Eyres, establishing himself as an authority on the subject, told members of the B.C. Fruit Growers' Association convention that it takes the plumage from a mere 30 broilers to turn out a size 18 sweater.

Like any wool, the new fabric is said to be warmer, softer and lighter and can be dyed any color.

The feathers from 38 chickens will, under the new process, become a full man's suit. With 13,000,000 pounds of feathers going to waste in Canada, the clothing shortage would be solved, or so Mr. Eyres says.

Eruption of Krakatoa in the Malay Archipelago in 1883 hurled a cubic mile of rock more than 17 miles in the air.

Just Relax

It is amazing what can be done by just relaxing. It may not be necessary to take a long sea voyage; all a man may need is to slacken his pace at periods during the day, loosen his necktie and shoestrings, put his feet up on his desk or another chair, and let the world roll by for two or three minutes without worrying about it. It has been found that a good proportion of persons who suffered heart attacks of the most severe nature, and adopted right measures of living, are still alive and enjoying life ten more years later. — Royal Bank Bulletin.

Used to Wake Up with a Headache

Now Fresh and Lively Every Morning

Here is a man who woke up most mornings with a dull headache. What a dismal way to start the day! But Kruschen transformed his life, according to his letter:—

"I used to wake up in the mornings with a dull headache. A year ago, I started taking Kruschen Salts regularly. Today, I wake up fresh and lively and can do my day's work without undue exertion. I find Kruschen Salts a great help, and have not been so healthy for a long time. I can recommend Kruschen for anyone suffering from headaches and constipation. I'll never be without Kruschen as long as I live!—E.P.

Dull headaches such as this man suffered from can often be traced to a disordered stomach and to constipation because of waste material which remains in the system. A small dose of Kruschen taken regularly in the morning promptly helps to remedy this condition. And that is how Kruschen acts to relieve such headaches.

Try Kruschen for relief of morning headaches and sluggish feelings. 25c and 75c at all drug stores.

This medicine goes to stimulate the action of the kidneys and relieve the backaches which so often result.

WOMAN OF STONE: Thrilling True Mystery—There were too many neat coincidences in the life of a woman. Five members of her family allegedly died of epilepsy—and she had insurance policies on all of them. Read about her cold-blooded murder plot in "WOMAN OF STONE", by Peter Levins, in The American Weekly with this Sunday's (February 16) issue of The Detroit Sunday Times.

Instead of turning to shore on this side of the river, the animal struck for deep water in the main channel. Overseer Stewart and others watched it and in no time it reached the American side, climbed up the bank and made for a clump of bush.
