The clerk was instructed to join the following associations: Association of Rural Municipalities, Good Roads Association and Association of Assessing Officers.

Upon a motion of Hess and Whittaker By-law No. 1232, appointing township officials for the year 1955, was adopted.

Upon a motion of Whittaker and Robinson By-law 1233, appointing members to the High School Boards, was adopted.

Upon a motion of Hess and Whittaker the clerk wa s instructed to have the Registrar of Deeds send in a monthly report of the sale of properties within the township.

Mr. Hess asked that a recorded vote be taken on the following resolution: The township road superintendent be instructed to refuse to snowplow or grade township lanes except in the case of sickness or death. The entire council voted for the motion.

Upon a motion of Wells and Robinson council adjourned to meet again on February 5th at 10 a.m.

Chesterville, 3 Morewood, 1 Hockey Starts Here

Chesterville High School and Morewood High School met Wednesday afternoon on Community rink for the initial clash of the season. When the game was over Chesterville had the cake with a 3-1 win over the northern invaders.

Earl Brown, of Morewood opened the scoring with a goal for the visitors midway in the first frame. Fast skating and clean play was marked throughout the game. Frank Beckstead evened the affair in the second period with a beautiful backhand shot that slipped past the Morewood goalie.

With five minutes left to play in the last period Frank Beckstead did it again and put CHS in the lead, and the next minute saw Beckstead in the cooler and the play in the Cheserville end for the final couple of minutes.

Excitement reached a climax when John Durant broke away in the dying seconds of the game, rifled one at the Morewood goal mouth, had it rebound, but saw it picked up by Neil Moore and flipped into the net to make the final score 3-1 for the home team.

The mishap occurred at the beginning of the noon hour. The elderly lady had just left the bank steps when her feet slipped from under her and she fell heavily to the sidewalk. Carl McMillan and G. H. Barkley, who were at hand, assisted her to Mr. McMillan's car, and he drove her to her home.

Mrs. Cunningham was removed to Winchester Hospital for X-ray and then to Ottawa Civic Hospital for surgery.

Over 200 Members and Parents Present Awards and Prizes Given for Fine Work

Nearly 200 young folk and many parents sat down in Community Hall last night for the 4-H Club banquet for Dundas County. The annual affair is the climax of the year for the clubbers at which they receive their various awards and prizes and have the night out.

The hall was decorated in green and white, the club colours, with the lucky four-leaved clovers and their white "H" on every wall panel. The diningtables, set and attended by Chesterville Women's Institute, followed the same colour scheme to make a most pleasing and cool arrangement. Coupled with excellent food, good service and a holiday feeling on every side, the evening was voted a huge success.

Co-chairmen at the head table were Miss Marilyn McPhail, Home Economist for Dundas County, and Don Rutherford, assistant agricultural representative with H. W. Graham at Morrisburg.

Miss McPhail led off the speechmaking with a short review of her work with the Garden and Homemaking Clubs of the county for the year. She was followed by Mr. Rutherford who gave a brief outline of the work of the other nine clubs and their 175 members.

The speaker of the evening, R. G. Bennett, was introduced by Mr. Rutherford. Mr. Bennett is Associate Director of Extension, Department of Agriculture. He was a former agricultural representative of Glengarry County from 1943 to 1945.

Main Address

Mr. Bennett opened his address with an overall review of the growth of 4-H Club work in the past 15 years. He stated that in 1930 there were about 2,000 engaged in the work in Ontario. By 1948 that number had risen to 10,000 and in 1953 the figure had reached over 18,000. Across Canada there were over 69,000 young people engaged in the work, and in 35 different countries of the world there is a similar type of youth work being carried on.

After paying due tribute to the faithful club leaders who devote so much time and effort to the work, Mr. Bennett outlined the purpose behind the movement.

One of the most important objects of the programme is to develop latent talent to make the boy or girl as useful as possible.

Club work and the interest shown in it helps young people more able to make decisions and so better equip them for the future. The common interests of club work make for a more unified family group, with parents helping their children and the children becoming more understanding of their parents' problems. An inquisitive mind is most necessary in these days of fast moving changes. The work of the 4-H Clubs helps to develop thi s inquisitive state so that progress is marked by a constant search for something better and different.

Mr. Bennett summed up his address with a short explanation of the 4-H crest and pledge. He felt the work of the clubs, when they followed the pattern of the pledge, all added up to good citizenship.

Malcolm MacGregor, of Morewood, expressed the thanks of the diners to Mr. Bennett.

Following the presentation of the cups and prizes to the yearly winners which are listed below, Allison Graham spoke briefly on behalf of the sponsoring organizations. He was responded to by Estella Fawcett for the club members. Presentations of cash and spoons and "O Canada" brought the evening to a conclusion.

An Appeal For Hockey Supervisors

We have received several suggestions about regulation and control of hockey at Community rink lately following our editorial on the subject last week. In it we expressed the thought that the public, as owners and presumably operators of the public rink, might have some thoughts on the running of it, by way of constructive suggestions and perhaps offers of help when help was needed.

It would seem to be common opinion that at least one of the nights given over to hockey should be regulated. That is, direction and control should extend so that the age groups wishing to have fun and games will not be intermingled with a consequent danger to the smaller frys' limbs and necks.

The suggestions that have reached us have been passed on the chairman of Community Centre, Eric Casselman. Mr. Casselman has taken immediate steps to put the suggestions into practice. He has called his committee together for a meeting to be held this Saturday evening at 7.30 in the clerk's office for the express purpose of arranging a schedule of supervision for one of the hockey nights in the week. The meeting is going to be a success only if those people of the town who have expressed themselves in favour of the idea, or meant to, come and offer their help. Supervision of even one night a week at the rink will need volunteers from the ranks of the families who are able to enjoy the facilities of the rink from Chesterville and district. As we said last week, your committee can only do so much, then it is up to the public to support or let drop.

Have you one night a month to spare? Is the park rink worth supporting and helping Or must we have a door prize to get willing helpers in community affairs? Let's take off a few minutes Saturday night and offer to help. Come to the short meeting with some of the good ideas you have been talking about; the committee will be able to use them and you.

CAVALL'S CABRIOLET — Jean Cavall climbs into his horse-drawn cab every Friday evening on the CBC Dominion network and takes listeners on a trip through a mythical city; he visits night clubs, music halls, the odd concert, and meets street singers and other characters. He also does some singing himself, and, all in all, it's an entertaining trip through the wonderland of night life in a large metropolis.

OPINIONS . . .
Ours and Others

Once Over Lightly, Please!

This time last year, we made some pertinent remarks concerning our town in this space about planning for the year ahead in things municipal and otherwise. Before we knew it we were slightly involved in a somewhat testy argument about this and that. At the risk of seeming to play one note overlong, we are back at the same music.

Chesterville is in danger of being left off the bandwagon of boom and progress that is opening up to the south of us. Planning is called for now and immediately if we are to be in the picture when the wheels really begin to roll next Spring. The influx of labour, the relocation of communities, the construction boom, all point to a wealth of opportunities for every neighbouring municipality to grasp at and share. But they must at least be ready with some planning.

Council for 1955 should accept the promise of the future by organizing surveys to show what Chesterville has to offer. Trailer camp sites should be laid out and water and light and disposal facilities provided or arranged for. Surveys should be on hand at the clerk's office of the availability of rooms for rent, houses available, approximate costs of room and board in the community, properties for sale. Industrial concerns should be able to secure a copy of the Chamber of Commerce brochure of Chesterville that was issued a while ago.

The town needs a town foreman. A paid supervisor should be on hand to oversee the work of the municipality, particularly on the roads and sidewalks and other like operations. Council members, as we mentioned last year, have responsibilities to their jobs and themselves that do not allow them to work for the town to their detriment. One of the reasons it is difficult to fill a slate of officers is because of the demands made on their time. It is not fair to work a willing horse to death; town repairs and maintenance should not be the job of the boss; the hired help is there to do it, and be supervised by a foreman who is paid to stay on the job and see it is done. Council must accept the heavy responsibility of making the decisions, and stilling the shrill cries of injured citizens when pet projects are let go for the common good. Enough headaches are generated at long sessions around the council table, as we can bear witness, than to extend them into the realm of labour supervision.

1955 should be a big year for Chesterville. Let's slip off the hobble skirt and adapt the Dior look.

Rare Robbery and Loony Larceny Mark 1954

For wacky events in the larceny business, 1954 was a vintage year.

The thieves, burglars and stick-upmen acted out zany plots that must have Martin and Lewis complaining of plagiarism.

The alibi list, for example, could have been written by a TV gag-man. At Los Angeles, a 240-pound burglar who forced his way into a doctor's office claimed after his arrest that he was looking for reducing pills. A man in Hamilton who was charged with stealing a $1.50 pair of glasses insisted he only took them to "see my way out of the store."

And late one night at Chicago, two youths surrounded by hack-saws and wrenches and nabbed on the roof of a packing house, said, "Honest, officer, we were just looking for girls."

Then there was the fellow at Cincinnati who swallowed a dose of heroin to avoid arrest on narcotics charges. When police pumped the drug from his stomach, he loudly demanded his freedom—claming the cops got the evidence without a search warrant.

Queer Hauls

Loonier even than alibis was some of the year's odd loot. Thieves broke into a shoe plant in Brockton, Mass., and took only one item: a watchdog named Judy. At Thurmont, Md., a snake farm reported the theft of a king snake, two corn snakes, a five-foot boa constrictor and $30. And the only loot from a drug store robbery in Hamilton was two dozen bottles of castor oil.

Another burglar at Bethel, Conn., entered a doctor's office, ignored a safe and valuable drugs but took two books, "Childbirth without Fear." and "Obstetrical Techniques."

Thieves who might be movie fans stole a king-size bag of pop corn —four feet high and two feet around—from a plant at Missoula, Mont.

More Thefts

At least one theft has a long list of ready-made suspects. A shop was burglarized of two men's suits, a $150 camera and $45 in cash. The place Toyotama Prison.

A man at Atlantic City, N.J., released after serving a car theft sentence, stole a 1949 Lincoln, abandoned same for a '53 Cadillac, drove to Pennsylvannia, switched to a '54 Mercury. After his arrest, he told officials, "A new automobile always fascinates me."

Another thief at Merced, Calif., made off with a station wagon from a local mortuary, but he left it behind when he found it held a corpse. A patrolman's car in Columbus, Ohio, suddenly backfired loudly, causing a running thief to stop and throw up his hands.

And in San Bernardino, Calif., when asked if he got the licence number of the car driven by assailants who robbed and slugged him, the victim held up the entire licence plate he had ripped from the car as it drove away.

At Shively, Ky., after being robbed of $50, an insurance firm sadly admitted that its loss had not been covered by insurance.

Polite Thieves

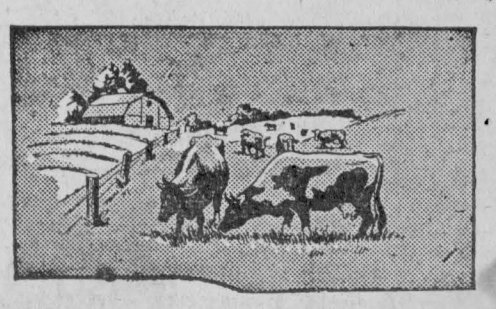
A few thieves were poilte. One at Edmonton broke into a house, cooked a meal, dirtied the dishes, slept in a bed, stole a tie clip and lighter ,then left behind a note: "I thank you for the use of your house."

Another at Dallas, Texas, charged with a meat market safe-cracking job, told police that before he left he had carefully locked the store's front door. "I didn't want some thief," he explained, "to come along and steal all the man's meat."

Two gunmen in Chicago, finding a homeowner out, entertained his children and baby-sitter until he returned, then relieved him of $4 525 in cash and $7,000 in jewellery.

SCUTTLEBUTT AND PERCIVAL—These bright stars of the CBC-TV version of the popular "Howdy Doody Show" help keep the programme moving at a lively pace. Old Scuttlebutt, a somewhat boistrous pirate with a generous heart, can tell tall tales but has also picked up some astounding true stories of his travels. Percival Parrot is always interested in them, but his chief job is to interpret what another character, Clarabell, the clown, is saying. Clarabell, you see, can't speak. "The Howdy Doody Show" may be heard five times a week on Canadian television.

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS



By Lillian Allison

"Your fingers curved over the home keys," the instructor said. "Back straight, feet on the floor. Begin. frfrfrfrfr. Continue for two lines." And fifteen typewriters banged away monotonously while fifteen aspiring typists, young and older, male and female, persuaded their left index fingers to strike the keys that print the two required letters. And as they typed they stared vacantly at the blackboard or at the back of the head in front of them, for it is against the rules to watch the fingers or the machine they are operating.

Then, at the word "Relax," fifteen pairs of arms dropped onto fifteen laps, fifteen pairs of feet moved into more comfortable positions and I dare say fifteen backs slumped just a little.

For we were at Night School receiving our initial lesson in the art of Touch Typing. Fifteen people, most of whom had left the halls of learning several years ago with the proud feeling of knowing it all, had returned later to learn a little more.

And I wondered a s I looked around why these people were interested in learning to run a typewriter. The young chap in front of me works in an office. His motive was understandable. But why were there so many wedding rings among the class? How were these married women going to make use of their acquired knowledge? Of course there is the possibility that the book market will be flooded with new editions as soon as the classes are completed.

Naturally, I knew why I was there. I was there to learn to type according to the book. I've been typing for years, of course, with four fingers, two thumbs and two very necessary eyes. I look at the writing which I am attempting to copy, then at the keys of the typewriter. I carefully put a finger on the key and then look at the paper to be sure the letter I make there is the one I had hoped for.

When I look back again at the writing invariably I've lost the place and have to re-read a paragraph or so in order to find where I left off. This method of typing is popularly known as the "Hunt and Peck" variety and is very frustrating. It takes me perhaps thirty or forty minutes to type one of these "Chats." And when I hear that one man in the world can type 174 words a minute my system makes me downright mad.

"You could learn the keyboard yourself," my typist friends have been telling me for years. But, somehow, I seemed always to lack the time or the will-power to go at it on my own. So I've struggled along the hard way.

When the announcement regarding night classes in typing appeared in the "Record" a few weeks ago I lost no time in sending in my application to attend them. And I am certainly grateful that this course is available.

My only regret is that there aren't three of me for I'd like to take the other classes as well. There are so many things I don't know about sewing I wouldn't dare begin to list them. One trick I've never learned is how to measure a pattern and measure me to be sure that the garment I cut out will fit me reasonably well.

And strange as it might seem, I'd love to take the course in wood working. I took shopwork at night school a few years ago and made a footstool. It was lots of fun. I can't figure out why there weren't dozens of applications for the course this year. It would be much more interesting than banging a typewriter.

But before I learn to saw or sew I must learn to type. And each week until the end of March I must join the other fourteen who, for reasons they know best, want to learn to put the right finger on the right key without even the slightest glance. Every Wednesday night we shall sit on hard, straight chairs with our fingers curved over home keys making pages and pages of words and words, foolish, meaningless sentences, long involved paragraphs, and listening to the rhythmic clatter of fifteen typewriters interspersed with the ringing of fifteen little bells and the voice of our instructor as he says "Fingers curved over the home keys, backs straight, feet flat on the floor. Begin." f r k i s w and so on and so on.

And if we work hard and practise well we may be able to find all the keys on the machine without looking when the thirteen weeks have rolled by.

Calling All Sportsmen

* O.W.A.A.

For the full and satisfying life we should live for today and make every minute of every day count, or so the philosophers have been proclaiming all through the ages. That's all very well, except that if we followed this advice implicitly we would be denying ourselves one of life's greatest and most harmless little pleasures—that of anticipation. Perhaps the quickest to acknowledge the satisfaction that is to be had from such pleasant mental exercise are those who seek their recreation with rod and gun. And so it was the other day as I turned to the calendar, that I wondered how many others were, like me, counting the days to the opening of the fishing seasons.

Realizing that there are only 106 days until the taking of speckled trout will be legal again, I spent that evening going over my fly boxes and noting those patterns needing replacement and then turned to my files on fly fishing and jotting down a few new patterns to tie up and try out this year.

Fun To Tie Your Own

Although I had been fly fishing for 22 years before getting around to tieing my own, I will never forget the first fish that rose to a fly of my own creation. Up until that point I had only fly fished for speckled trout and small mouth bass. As time went on and I delved further into the subject, I soon learned that flies can be used to lure a wide variety of fish to the landing net. Today I have in my collection, flies not only for trout and small mouths, but also for land-locked salmon, large mouth bass, wall-eyes, pike and pan fish such as perch and blue gills. Although prejudiced in favour of any one type of fishing, there is no doubt that a fly rod with appropriate terminal tackle in the right hands is the sportiest fishing weapon, and the angler who can learn to tie his own flies will add greatly to the enjoyment of his sport.

Several Good Books

Fly tying is not nearly as hard an art to acquire as you might think. Even though it may take the beginner a little while to reach the stage of perfection where he can dress a royal coachman, dry fly style, on a number 1 4hook, he can progress to that point in easy stages and catch fish on flies of his own making as he goes along. The number of books that have been written and published are legion, but for the beginner as well as for the most advanced, I know of no better instruction than is contained in one called "Professional Fly Tying and Tackle Making" by George Leonard Herter and published by the Brown Publishing Co., Waseca, Minn. With this manual and "Family Circle's Guide to Trout Flies," by Ray Camp and illustrated by G. Don Ray, you're all set. I include Ray Camp's book because, although the illustrations in colour are only of trout patterns, it also contains full colour illustrations of all known fly tying materials and much other useful information.

Space is running out, but next week I'll talk about the equipment you'll need to get started and try and include one or two basic patterns.

Light Along The Way

"Where is Abel your brother?" He said, "I do not know, am I my brother's keeper?"

When Cain's envy of Abel led him to slay his brother, he feared but one thing, the accusing finger of God. When God spoke and set fire to the dread tremblings in his soul, Cain's surly reply was one of the most awkward bits of camouflage that any man ever sought refuge in. The very use of the word "brother" gave the lie to his transparent attempt at concealment, for it denotes inescapable responsibility for another.

Yet the question has more importance than that of the close family relationship of the two sons of one man. It is raised, significantly, in Genesis, the book of beginnings. Brotherhood may begin in the family circle, but it does not end there. When the question is examined in the light of Jesus' message it becomes clear that we are all children of God, and therefore brothers of one another. "For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother, and my sister and mother." (Mark 3:35).

Am I my brother's keeper? In the light of Jesus' statement can this question be answered in any way but the affirmative? We have only to recall to mind how He took unto Himself the cares of others, and taught His followers to do likewise, to realize that all men were His brothers. He carried in His heart concern and pity for all. This is made clear in the story of the shepherd who sought the one lost sheep until he found it and brought it home upon his shoulders. (Luke 15:5). The Christion Church was man's response to His teaching, for it came into being to offset the misery and helplessness of men, the sheep without a shepherd of Matthew 9:36.

No circumstance of human life, no sin, caused Jesus to despair. T. R. Glover says: "The parable of the lost sheep reveals what He held to be God's feeling for the hopeless; and His constant aim is to lead men to think like God. The lost soul matters to God." As Luke wrote: "The Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which is lost." (Luke 19:10). The taunt that Jesus was the friend of publicans and sinners really described what He was and wished to be (Luke 7:34). Can any of His followers be less?

Cain's arrogant, morose question, then, is basic and concerns the relationship among all members in the human family. No one, who has committed his life to God through Christ, can evade it. Moreover, it applies not only to the murder of the body, but just as aptly to the more subtle murder of the personality. The destruction of the happiness and well being of another is murder in this sense. Passion, lust, anger, sneering contempt, disparagement all bring undeserved suffering and sorrow. Malicious wrong and blundering folly cause wounds too deep for healing. The clumsy word, the careless indifference, the self-absorption that can treat a soul hungering for affection as though it were no more than a thing for our convenience are all an answer, the wrong answer, to the question: Am I my brother's keeper? When the finger of God moves no trite answer suffices; there is no satisfaction other than reconciliation, the humble confession of guilt, and the seeking of forgiveness in repentance.

NEEDED TAIL WIND

Charles Grogan went back to jail the other day for his attempt to break the four-minute mile.

Grogan was captured by Riverhead, N.Y., police as he went whizzing down Main Street in his underwear, a bar chit marked "No. 4" taped to his back.

Friends explained he had been lamenting in a bar because no American had ever matched John Landy's 3.58 mile. He set out to do it himself.

He was still defiant as he was returned to the cell he left a few days before after serving 20 days for public intoxication.

"That cop never would have caught me if I'd had a tail wind," he said.

REALLY STRONG

Since the announcement was made that Waycross, Ga., water would be fluoridated, officials have received several calls about dead goldfish and the like from those protesting the strength of the chemical.

The officials haven't added a spoonful to the stuff yet!

We have so much to protect

This Canada of ours — is ours to enjoy at a price — the price of constant alertness.

We cannot take for granted our freedom to worship, to vote, to educate our children, or to order our home life as we please. All these freedoms are ours only as long as we are willing to do everything necessary to maintain and defend them.

All honour then to the Canadian Soldier — the steadfast guardian of all our free institutions. Without men like him, the Canada we love might cease to be.

We have so much to protect. Let us all do our part, without let-up, whatever way our duty lies.

Morrisburg to Have Seaway Office

Premier Leslie Frost has announced the opening of an Ontario government office in Morrisburg to maintain close contact with the Seaway Valley residents.

Presently housed in a building occupied by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, the office will eventually be moved to a temporary building now being bulit in Morrisburg.

Mr. Frost said a representative of the Department of Planning and Development would set up quarters immediately and it is planned that the representatives of the government departments primarily concerned with the development—such as Municipal Affairs, Highways, Education and others—will be available "to the municipalities and the people for consultation and advice."

"It is the wish of the government," said Mr. Frost,, "that all the facilities of government be placed at the disposal of the municipalities and the services will be at hand where these matters may be readily discussed.

"In the meantime the departments mentioned and others are actively working in the community. These arrangements will provide for ready contacts," the premier said.

Algae May be Used As Fertilizer

A University of California scientist has revealed that air can be turned into fertilizer by algae, raising the prospect of growing food crops without soil.

Dr. Daniel I. Arnon, from the Department of Plant Nutrition, has described in a paper prepared for the American Association for the Advancement of Science the first success in growing rice plants using nitrogen grabbed from the air by the algae.

Algae are one-celled plants which grow in water. One blue-green type of algae now is found to have great ability to take the nitrogen from the air and make it available for growing crops.

This is the main thing that fertilizers do—supply nitrogen for growing crops.

The finding offers a cheap, effective way of fertilizing various food crops. It could be of immense significance, especially in the Orient.

Dr. Arnon added the blue-green algae, named Anabaena Cylindrica, to rice plants and found the rice grew without needing nitrogen from the soil. They got it all from the air through the algae.

It has long been known that certain algae can take or "fix" nitrogen from the air and secrete it for the use of rice plants, or add it to the soil when algae dies. But this process was thought to be too slow to be of any real significance.

Dr. Arnon found that under proper conditions these algae can take nitrogen from the air at rates almost 200 times faster than had been believed. The algae grow faster than credited.

The algae get their energy from the sun, and don't need materials from the soil in order to produce nitrogen.

NOT IN THE ACT

A woman collapsed on the stage of a Bridlington, Eng., theatre with an arrow in her chest, and the crowd of 1,200 cheered and clapped. They thought it was part of of the show.

The performance featured "Big Chief Beaver," a North American Indian who threw knives and axes and shot arrows at his London-born wife. For protection she carried a small wooden shield she could shift across her body when a shot appeared to be coming too close.

Beaver shot steel-tipped arrows from about 20 yards. An arrow went through a hole in the shield made by a previous missile and penetrated the woman's chest, just missing her lung.

Late George Foster

Mr. George Foster, son of the late Edward Foster and his wife, Allie Armstrong, passed away at Cornwall on December 27th in his 82nd year after a lengthy illness.

Mr. Foster was a well known farmer in this district and after his marriage to Elizabeth Foxton, of Brockville, in 1901, he moved to Winchester Springs where he farmed for a number of years.

Later he moved to Strader's Hill and retired to live in Morrisburg in 1950.

He was a member of Chesterville Lodge A.F. and A.M., and a life member of the Royal Arch Masons, St. John's Chapter, Morrisburg.

One son, Alonzo, of Brockville, survives, also one brother, Oscar, of Chesterville, and a number of nieces and nephews.

The funeral service was held from the Locke and Fairbairn Chapel at Brinston and the Rev. Thos. Knowles officiated. Interment was made in Spring Haven Cemetery, Brinston.

PLAYS RECORD 18 TIMES LISTENERS CALL POLICE

A Montreal disc jockey who wanted to prove people tire easily of "Hit Parade" sougs made his point.

Lloyd Chester, on the late programme, "Lloyd's Lobby," played a new release entitled "I Gotta Get My Baby" 18 times. After each three-minute playing, Chester identified the next tune by another name but repeated the same record.

Within 15 minutes, listeners began calling the radio station (CFCF) and a few minutes later a telephone exchange capable of handling 50,000 simultaneous calls was completely jammed.

Some listeners telephoned police and several prowl cars were sent speeding to the station.

The record, recorded recently in the United States by Therese Brewer, was reported to have sold 500,000 copies within 48 hours of its release.

On that basis, Chester told his listeners, the recording is a "Hit Parade" candidate "so I've saved you three months of effort.

"You're tired of the 'Hit Parade' record right now—all in one night."

TIRED OF TAXES STARTS NEW REPUBLIC

Sheepherder Michele Mulieri, 59, of Tricarico, in Southern Italy, tired of paying taxes. So, he proclaimed a six-acre "autonomous republic" and chalked up notice of its formation on the walls of Tricarico's little town square.

The sole inhabitants of the republic are Mulieri, his wife and five children. He said, however, anyone else sick and tired of paying taxes to Italy would be welcome.

Mulieri suggested that if Rome wants to have any further dealings with his President Luigi Einaudi should send an official ambassador.

Instead, the government sent three policemen to keep a watch over the Mulieri farm and see that the head of the new republic either stays home or produces a "valid passport" in the form of a receipt for his due taxes.

FROG LEGS EXTRAORDINARY

Believe it or not, but eight-legged frogs are jumping all over Oliver Rush's farm pond near Ripley, O.

No one seems to know why, but scientists from two universities are determined to find the answer.

Rush first discovered the strange creatures last September. He caught eight of them after noticing each had more than the normal number of legs.

Some found their way to Dr. Robert Hefner, head of Miami University's zoology department.

Fond Mother: "I'm glad to see you children are letting Daddy take his nap without disturbing him."

Child: "Shh, Mom! We're waiting for his cigarette to burn down to his fingers."

The best way to keep the wolf away from the door is to make sure the young lady of the house is ready when he honks his horn.

"Let's make it this Sunday!"

A CASUAL phone call, and "this Sunday" suddenly becomes an extra special Sunday! Whether the call comes from miles away or just around the corner, the invitation seems so much more personal, more inviting, when you hear it over the telephone.

Old and young alike turn to the phone when they're in a hurry. A round-up of the gang, a family reunion, a holiday dinner, a big date — it's faster, more exciting to telephone! And even the blow of bad news can usually be softened by a sympathetic voice. Next to seeing the people you care about is hearing their warm, familiar voices.

POLICEMAN DENIES OPERATING OWN TRAP

A rookie policeman in Ville LeMoyne, Que., pleaded not guilty recently to a charge of operating his own speed trap and said he was only trying to collect his back pay.

Clement Gauthier, 25, was charged with falsifying town documents and putting the difference in his pocket.

He was arrested by Quebes Provincial Police after motorists complained that he hid at the rear of a house on the outskirts of the town nabbing motorists for speeding.

They said he would agree to charge them with a $15 parking infraction, although the minimum speeding fine is $50. Provincial Police claimed he entered $5 in the town records and allegedly pocketed the $1 0 difference.

Raymond Daoust, his lawyer, said the municipality owed Gauthier back wages and he was trying to collect.

"It wasn't justifiable, I admit, but under the circumstances he thought he had a legitimate reason," the lawyer said.

STAINLESS STEEL

Stainless steel kitchen equipment and utensils are easily cleaned if you do not let deposits of food and grease congeal and harden on them.

It is important to wash stainless steel promptly, beause moisture trapped under food deposits can set up a chemical reaction which pits the surface of the metal.

EVERYBODY EATS-- TRY THESE!

By Helen Graham

ROLLS, BUNS AND BREAD

JANUARY AND FEBRUARY always seem to provide a much needed breathing space between the hustle and bustle of Christmas preparations and festivities and the beginning of house cleaning. If you are one of those who thinks rolls and buns are hard to make now is the time to try them when you have a little extra time. You will find yourself making them during the busy seasons too.

Graham Rolls

1¾ cups white flour
2 cups Graham flour
1 pkg. granular yeast
½ cup lukewarm water
1 tsp. sugar
¾ cup scalded milk
¼ cup sugar
1½ tsps. salt
1½ tsps. fat
1 egg

Dissolve 1 teaspoon sugar in ½ cup of lukewarm water. Add the yeast and allow to stand ten minutes. Pour scalded milk over ¼ cup sugar, salt and fat. When lukewarm add yeast mixture and 1 cup of the white flour. Beat with Dover beater; add egg and Graham flour. Beat 5to 10 minutes. Remove beaters and add white flour to make a soft dough. Knead till smooth. Set in a warm place 1½ hours or till double in bulk. Shape into rolls. Let rise till light. Bake in a moderate oven from 12 to 15 minutes.

Ice Box Rolls

If you have never made rolls before start with this recipe as it is very easy.

2 cups boiling water
½ cup sugar
1 tsp. salt
2 tbsps. shortening

Combine the above ingredients and let stand till luke warm. Soften two yeast cakes in ¼ cup lukewarm water to which has been added 1 teaspoon sugar. (If desired you may use two packages of granular yeast dissolved in ½ cup of warm water). When the yeast is dissolved and foamy add to the first mixture. Both mixtures should be lukewarm. Add 2 beaten eggs and stir in 4 cups of flour, mixing thoroughly; add 4 more cups of flour. Mix, do not knead. Cover and put in a cold place over night. In the morning shape into rolls; let rise till double in bulk and bake in a moderate oven 15 to 20 minutes.

When baked brush rolls while hot with a mixture of 1 teaspoon sugar and two tablespoons milk.

Banana Nut Bread

¼ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup bran
2 tbsps. water
1½ cups mashed bananas
1½ cups flour
½ tsp. salt
2 tsps. baking powder
½ tsp. soda
1 tsp. vanilla
½ cup chopped walnuts

Cream shortening and sugar; add egg, then bran; mix thoroughly. Combine water and bananas; add alternately with sifted dry ingredients. Mix well; add vanilla and nuts. Bake in greased loaf pan in moderate oven 1 hour. Any type of bran may be used in this recipe.

Corn Bread

Serve hot for supper with honey or jam.

1 cup flour
1 tsp. salt
1 tbsp. baking powder
2 tsps. sugar
¾ cup corn meal
2 eggs
1 cup milk
¼ cup melted shortening

Sift flour, salt, baking powder and sugar; mix with corn meal. Combine eggs, milk and shortening; add to dry ingredients; stir until just moistened. Bake in square pan or in muffin tins in 400 degree oven for twenty minutes.

When preparing pies for freezing do not cut slits in top crust before freezing. When baking frozen apple pie bake for 5 minutes in hot oven before cutting slits.

Angel and sponge cakes may be frozen. Bake as usual, cool. Remove from pan. If you frost cake freeze before wrapping. Wrap and seal. When you wish to use the cake thaw for two hours at room temperature. Do not store in freezer more than one month.

Whipped cream sweetened with icing sugar may be frozen in mounds ready for use on pudding and cakes.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane

Women's Travel Authority

Bar boredom from your itinerary, and you'll discover car travel with your children can be fun. Best way to divert youngsters' interests and keep them amused is through taking along suitable toys for touring.

Aware of the importance of keeping children amused en route, manufacturers have come up with a whole group of travel toys designed to keep youngsters happily quiet in a limited space. For the tot of 3-7 years of age, picture books, blocks, paper and crayons are always welcome diversions. Industrious little girls in this age group will enjoy wooden weaving looms and dolls with travel wardrobes in small suitcases. Sure to be a favourite is a new doctor kit. Boys of the same age will be delighted with tiny rubber or plastic cars. Either boys or girls will find kaleidoscopes, playing or picture cards and hand puppets an edless source of amusement. Tinier tots, 2-4, love to cuddle and play with small dolls and woolly animals.

Older children from 8 to 12 years of age are easier to keep entertained and retain their interest in a particular toy or game longer than young fry. Keep their interests up throughout the trip with activity books, colouring books, drawing pads and puzzles. Children this age are old enough to enjoy automobile and number games which you can make up as you go along.

Remember not to select toys which might distract the driver, such as yo-yos, balloons and balls. Above all, don't forget that a little fun and nonesense can save the day when travelling with children.

Elephants or Bulldozer Question in Burma

A Burmese named U Aung Baw visited around Seattle, Wash., in an effort to determine whether bulldozers and donkey engines can replace elephant power in the teakwood forests along the road to Mandalay.

U Aung Baw is studying Pacific Northwest forestry practices under sponsorship of the United Nations. He is a member of the Burma State Timber Board and hopes to find an effective method of changing his country's teak logging industry from elephant to mechanical power.

Not that he is knocking elephants. They make very good beasts of burden in the jungle. They can find their own food, can be trained almost to think for themselves, cost only about $2,000 apiece and don't require spare parts.

But two-thirds of Burma's elephant population was destroyed during World War II, and there just aren't enough elephants to go around in that land where dawn comes up like thunder.

"Burma now has about 1,800 elephants," he said. "About half of these are owned by the government."

A good elephant can pull up to five tons of lumber, Baw said. The elephants pull the teak along the ground.

They are trained when they are five or six years old and work until they are about 55. They are able to do an elephant-size job of work when they reach 18 years of age.

Nothing makes a man forget a passing fancy like something fancier.

Memorial Hospital Gets Further Grant From Foundation

Winchester District Memorial Hospital will get a further grant of $1,699.47 from the Atkinson Charitable Foundation. This amout represents the second grant from the Foundation to the hospital in two years. The first one, $4000.00, came in 1952.

The latest donation will purchase technical equipment for the establishment of a much needed blood bank, hospital officials said. At present, although the hospital runs its own blood clinics, it must store the blood at Ottawa General Hospital, 32 miles away. In October, it was necessary to make 15 trips to Ottawa for blood, and twice police escorts were needed to speed vital serum. The six-year-old hospital is the busy centre of medical care for more than 15,000 people.

In the Foundation's latest release a total of $45,494.47 was made in grants to hospitals.
