Al Butcher Gets the Call--

Vote Light as Council Elected

About fifty percent of the eligible voters went to the polls here on Monday of this week. They were voting for four council members from a list of five candidates. When the counting was over the ballots had replaced councillor Frank Arnold with plant engineer Allan Butcher. The other three were former members and are Carl Merkley, Harold Sharkey and Erwin Merkley. Reeve Chas. Mc-Millan was in by acclamation.

Ballots cast for the candidates were Carl Merkley, 239; Al Butcher, 231; Harold Sharkey, 190; Erwin Merkley, 174; Frank Arnold, 89.

The votes by polls were as follows: Poll No. 1: Arnold, 57; Butcher, 141; C. Merkley, 153; E. Merkley, 115; Sharkey, 128. Poll No. 2: Arnold, 32; Butcher, 90; C. Merkley, 86; E. Merkley, 59, and Sharkey, 62.

Township Votes Close In Councillor Contest

Winchester Township witnessed a close one by the time the polls had closed. There was only a one-vote spread between losing J. V. Fetterly and winning Garfield Baker. Baker polled 302 and Fetterly counted 301. Morewood poll as usual had the largest number of ballots cast in the township and their two candidates, Fetterly and McNabb received the most X's. J. V. had 179 counters there with Cecil coming up with 194. No other township poll registered over 100 votes for any candidate although Annable's came close with 91 for Gerald Holmes.

Final total votes for the candidates, as supplied by clerk Jake Steen, are as follows: Baker, 302; Fetterly, 301; Holmes, 364; McNabb, 384. Newcomer to council Cecil McNabb topped the poll. He, with Gerald Holmes and Garfield Baker, will join reeve Basil Dawley and deputy-reeve Albert Smith as new council for 1958.

Stratford Man Killed Sun. Eve. In Car-Train Smash-up At White Crossing of CPR

A Stratford man, Emil Worm, 45, father of three, was instantly killed Sunday night at the White Crossing west of town. His car was struck by the Sunday local for Montreal, No. 282, at 6.10. It had not yet started to snow when the accident happened.

The local was travelling east on the south track and at that point between here and Winchester had reached a fair turn of speed. Engineer Roy Alport, of Smiths Falls, did not have a chance to avoid the collision as the ill-fated car slid onto the tracks from the south directly in the path of the speeding train. Hit almost dead centre, the crumpled car hung up on the front of the diesel engine until the train was halted at the east fence line of Hummel's grove. There the car was tumbled off into the south ditch.

The unfortunate driver of the car, a masonry worker and builder from Stratford, appeared to remain in the wreckage for about 200 yards east of the crossing, when the mangled body was flung to the south side of the rails. It remained there until the coroner, Dr. Wm. Byers, arrived to release it to Vice and Craig, of Winchester. Relatives from Stratford were notified and came down to identify the remains.

Conductor Roy Shields and engineer Roy Alport were running the local the night of October 7, 1956, when another car was hit at the crossing and burned alongside the train. At that time, the car driver and passengers managed to escape.

OPINIONS . . .
Ours and Others

A Mixed Blessing

Chesterville residents have been presented this year with a new assessment value on their properties. In some cases the change from the old is quite small; in others it is quite large; in a few it is startling, to say the least. Methods used in reaching the new assessment figures are dictated by a manual issued by the Municipal Board in Toronto, and even though anything issued from Toronto and applied to Chesterville or any small town is viewed with considerable restraint, there is little doubt a re-assessment was needed. We were allowing our municipal worth to remain sadly behind the times. Argument rises and will continue to rise over the arbitrary rates set for business taxes; smalltown businessmen in underdeveloped municipalities wake up at night grinding their teeth when they think of business assessment of from 30 to 60 per cent for the use of public services that are not available, along with the taxable right to do business in a good location in a good town.

Some of our property values may have gone up a fair amount, but on the whole there is not too much argument with the new figures. We should give heed to some of the cries from our neighbours to the south, and be more satisfied. The new towns along the Front are suddenly discovering a whole new field of capital value; as they rebuild, move and convert away from the towns that have been strait-laced and dampened for years by the anticipated hydro project, land and property values have suddenly become much more important. Brand new homes and brand new business places have replaced the old keepsakes that have disappeared under the bulldozers; along with the new buildings has appeared an assessment value equal to today's costs and today's demands upon the public purse for public services. All of a sudden the point is brought home that there is very little sentiment used in the assessing business; the manual from Toronto says thus is so and it will take considerable argument to change the matter. A building that was adequate to do business in, even though a hundred years old, has little comparative value with a new plant, serviced with complete public facilities, even though the new building is almost an even trade for the structure that had to be demolished for progress' sake. The towns of the Front will grow, as we all will, and perhaps faster than we back here will, but it will take considerable growing to get used to the idea of a tax bill that is five or six and even more times larger than heretofore. Our new assessment will hit hardest at business and property owners who through one reason or another have not been able to keep ahead of present tax impositions. Here and there a business or property will change hands by default; but on the whole the value of our town and the others will be strengthened and made more realistic by modern assessing.

Buy British—Maybe

A trade mission left these shores the other week to see if there is not some way we can increase our imports from Britain by at least 15 per cent. That is a laudable idea and every Canadian looks with approval on the matter; some are not quite so sure that Britain does.

The industrial might of the United Kingdom need take a back seat to no one. Time and again, in stress and crises, the manufacturing plants of England and Scotland have met demands that were almost impossible and have rarely failed in quality and quantity; indeed quality has been the selling strength of those plants for most of their international life.

Canadians take a dim view of the merchandising patterns of our United Kingdom merchants, though, and that's where the rub comes. We have strong and pronounced ideas on what we want in the way of furniture, shoes, automobiles, toothpaste, hair nets, appliances and hydro generators. Call it Americanized, if you wish, but it is still our idea of what we want for our money. In all too many instances the British manufacturer has remained lost in the pink cloud of quality and paid little attention to dressing the product to the Canadian public's taste. Neither has he taken the trouble to develop particular products for the Canadian market unless he has the reassurance of an Imperial Preference tariff that was in effect a built-in insurance policy against competition. Canadians developed a completely new style of hog, just for the English market, in order to increase our trade with England; the hog, incidentally, now grunts with a Danish accent. Surely Great Britain can develop competitive wares in her great factories and shops that would come to our shores with a seal of consumer acceptance. Canadian buyers are not too hard to please; they have just been conditioned to a Western hemisphere pattern of merchandising. Surely it would be profitable to make considerable effort to latch on to 15 per cent of a sixteen million population market; our sentiments are all with the Old Country — but sentiment is rarely translated into hard cash.

That White Crossing

We hope this is the last time we have to make sad note of another smash, and this time a fatal one, at the White Crossing west of town. The tragic death of a Stratford man there will be added to the long lis of accidents that have taken place at that level crossing.

The new highway, scheduled to be started next Spring, will remove much of the traffic crossing the right of way; nothing will ever change human nature and in spite of warning signs, deliberate road curves and endless cries to be watchful men and women will suffer death and accident through momentary carelessness.

Rhode Island, smallest state in the United States, is 48 miles long and 37 miles wide.

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS

By Lillian Allison

Every year about this time our Editor reminds us that we ought to do our Christmas shopping in our own home town. You probably noticed that his annual advice appeared in last week's edition. And I for one intend to take it to heart. I'll tell you why.

As you know I was in great, big Toronto last week. Now that huge metropolis always fascinates me. I'm sort of awed by the size of things including the stores. In fact I'd feel a little cheated if I had to come home from Toronto without a day or so of riding elevators and escalators and tramping the aisles at Eaton's and Simpson's.

There were a few things I wanted to buy last week—like typewriter ribbons, desk blotters and books that aren't available locally—and besides I wanted to see the gorgeous Christmas displays that make the big stores so picturesque this time of year.

It took two bus tickets (25c) and about forty-five minutes by bus and subway to go from my sister-in-law's house in Don Mills to the big downtown stores. The subway train stopped right at the basement doors of both stores and I entered without seeing the light of day. Now I knew I'd be too warm rushing around in a heavy coat so I deciedd to check it. A dime paid for the key to a locker and soon my excess clothing was stored away and I was off.

"Things are cheaper in the Annex," I'd been told so I followed the arrow that pointed in its direction. Up a few steps, through a long corridor, down a few steps, through a trashy bargain basement and I was in the annex. Now I don't know whether or not things were much cheaper but I'd gone so far I thought I should buy something and I did. Then I made the long return trip to the starting point.

Next I looked for a store directory. There was no possibility of finding anything without consulting it. The books were on the main floor it said. The escalator was half a block away but my feet were still fairly fresh so I didn't mind.

The main floor was packed with enthusiastic shoppers tearing around madly in every direction. I craned my neck in search of the book department but all I could see was the heads and necks of other women trying desperately to find something too. It was half a block to the book shelves and a little further to the children's department.

Of course I could have stayed there all day. I leafed through the Burgess books and A. A. Milne's classics. I wondered whether I should buy a big, cheap book or a little, expensive one. And there were so many to choose from a decision was almost impossible.

A typewriter ribbon was something I had to have so I headed for the counter where the typewriters were displayed. The man was busy with other customers so I waited my turn. Then with list in hand I stated all in one breath, "I'd like two ribbons for a Remington Rand Portable Deluxe Model 5." "You'll have to go to the next counter," the man explained. There I waited in line again to blurt out my wordy request. I waited again while the lady searched her stock then heard her say she hadn't any.

In the other big store across the street and at the far side of the main floor I had considerable trouble trying to find the office supply counter. I must have walk-

M. N. Hutchinson, I.P.S. Guest Speaker At W.I. Meeting

The regular meeting of Chesterville W.I. was held in the library of Community Hall Wednesday evening last. The meeting was opened by repeating the ode and creed in unison.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted and roll call was answered by naming a prominent citizen. There were 29 present.

Mrs H. W. Merkley gave a report of the meeting held at Winchester re the Farmstead Improvement Plan.

The treasurer gave a report and a motion was made that bills be paid to date. It was decided that the same amount as last year be sent for Tuberculosis seals.

It was moved by Mrs Docksteader and seconded by Mrs Loughridge that gifts be purchased for shut-ins at Christmas.

The same group as last year will arrange for treats for the children.

Joyce Marriner opened the program with a solo, accompanied by Mrs H. Droppo.

Mr M. N. Hutchison, I.P.S., of Winchester, addressed the group. His topic, "Soviet Education," was very enlightening and interesting. Mrs H. W. Merkley thanked the speaker and presented him with a gift from the ladies.

Mrs T. D. Ross spoke briefly on behalf of the Cancer Society.

The meeting was closed by the National Anthem after which the committee, Mesdames Thompson, Docksteader, Droppo, Loughridge, Shaver, Fetterly, Dixon, Cole and Gilroy, served a delicious lunch.

DO-IT-YOURSELF

A man from Moose Jaw, Sask., who went on a price-slashing spree in a Vancouver department store finished up paying $50 more than the regular price the other day.

Police said Park Wong, 50, made two meat purchases in the store, placing a 53-cent price slip over a $1.86 ticket on one item and a 03-cent label over a $2.90 tag on the other. When arrested, he was found to be carrying $365 in cash, an old price ticket and a pot of paste, they said.

Imposing a $50 fine, Magistrate Oscar Orr commented on Wong's "remarkable inventiveness" in his battle against the cost of living."

ed blocks. The lady there sold me the two ribbons. But I found when I got home that one fits and the other doesn't.

The toys were on the fourth floor so I pulled in my sides and squeezed into a packed elevator. The mob in the toy department made it next to imposible to get near the counter. The noise was deafening too as youngsters and oldsters tried out the many mechanical devices which bore fantastic price tags.

And so my day and a half in the big stores slipped by. The article I wanted to look at seemed always to be three floors up or two floors down. Then when I arrived at the floor it was usually a block or more from the elevator or escalator. When I wandered through the drapery department just looking a clerk asked if she could serve me but I stood for minutes waiting to pay for two all-day suckers.

Besides, this big-city shopping is expensive. It cost 50 cents to ride downtown and back. Then 10 cents for a locker, ten cents to phone, ten cents for a rest room. One place they even wanted one cent for a paper towel.

As my feet got bigger and bigger and my shoes got smaller and smaller I finally decided to give up the struggle and complete my Christmas shopping at home. There I can park the car at the store door, look around a half dozen little, friendly shops and get every bit as much for my money as I could in the big city. So take my advice and the Editor's and shop at home—especially if you wish to retain your two good feet and your peace of mind.

300 Attend Annual Warden's Banquet in Cornwall
Warden McMillan Stresses Need for Progress

About 300 people attended the United Counties Warden's banquet at Royal Hotel, Cornwall, last week. Warden Charles McMillan, reeve of Chesterville, was host for the occasion.

The speakers included Ernest Bradley, a teacher at Prescott High School, who was introduced by Basil Dawley, reeve of Winchester Township, and thanked by Lloyd Davis, reeve of Iroquois.

Mrs Albert Smith, wife of the deputy reeve of Winchester Township, replied to the toast to the ladies, proposed by Stanley Fraser, reeve of Roxborough Township.

Mr McMillan thanked members for electing him as their warden for the year 1957.

"I accepted this position with strong feelings of pride, tempered with humility," he said, "and I hope that I have, in the eyes of all, maintained the dignity and traditions of the office."

He expressed thanks to the electors of Chesterville for their "continued confidence and support" and also to the members of Chesterville council without whose co-operation he could not have attained his position.

He had enjoyed not only the work and experience of his years as a councillor, but also the fine associations with other members.

"I have seen many changes during those years," he said, "some of which have and will have great effect on these counties.

"Great developments are taking shape in our midst, and many innovations are shaping up in the name of progress."

He warned not to stand in the way of progress as "what is beneficial to our country and to our province must in the end be good for us."

Among those at headtable were Rev Rudolph Villeneuve, parish priest, Glen Walter; Major D. C. Stewart, officer commanding Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders; F. M. Cass, MLA for Grenville-Dundas; L. C. Kennedy, counties' clerk-treasurer; Albert Smith, deputy reeve of Winchester Township; Peter Manley, MLA for Stormont, and Reeve Allan C. Vallance, reeve of Kenyon Township, who presided.

Entertainment was provided by Miss Addie Campderros, Mrs Eric Casselman, Mrs F. M. Cass, Mrs C. Allison Graham, Percy Hewitt, Mrs Donald Cross and J. Frank Casselman, who led community singing.

IN MEMORIAM

DROPPO—In loving memory of a dear father, James Andrew Droppo, who passed away four years ago, December 10, 1953

We little knew when we woke that morn
The sorrow the day would bring;
The call was sudden, the shock severe,
To part with one we loved so dear.
Sometimes it's hard to understand
Why some things have to be;
In His wisdom God has planned
Beyond our power to see.

Ever remembered by son, Raymond, and daughter-in-law, Lila, and family.

IN MEMORIAM

McINTOSH—In loving memory of Mr and Mrs Donald McIntosh who passed away in November and December.

"A spray of beautiful memories tied with everlasting love."
