OXFORD GROUPS TO VISIT WINCHESTER

REPRESENTATIVES WILL HOLD MEETINGS IN THE LOCAL CHURCHES NEXT SUNDAY

The people of Winchester have heard a considerable amount of comment on the Oxford Groups and their work. A number have journeyed to Ottawa to attend meetings there and have been very favourably impressed. Next Sunday it will be our privilege to hear representatives of this Movement in our own churches.

Each congregation will hear messages at morning and evening services from four speakers. In each case an older man and woman, and a young man and woman will be heard thus balancing the message to suit every stage of experience and age.

There will be a meeting for ladies and girls only, in the Baptist church on Sunday afternoon at 2.30, and at the same hour in the United church school room a meeting for men and boys. Following the evening services a mass meeting for all will be held in the Presbyterian Church.

Wherever the Oxford group representatives have gone they have been greeted with crowded churches, and it goes without saying that Winchester will be equally interested. A special invitation is extended to non-church goers.

Versatile Entertainer To Address 100 Club

The speaker's committee has been extremely fortunate in obtaining Centurian Chris Forbes of Lanark, to address the next luncheon meeting of the 100 Club, Friday, May 19th, at 6.30 sharp, in the Hotel Winchester.

Many Centurians will remember Christie's remarkable tin whistle which imitates a bagpipe, a slide trombone and any other instrument—except a tin whistle. Not less than his ability as a musician is his talent as a witty and versatile speaker and the 100 Club's assured of an enjoyable and profitable meeting.

Centurian Harry MacIntosh, of Perth, will also be present to give the latest information re the International Convention, June 5th. President Ab Johnston has a surprise and a prize in store for this meeting. Come—you are sure to like the first and you have a chance of winning the second.

CONGRATULATIONS

The Press with many others extends sincere congratulations to D. L. McLean of Ormond, who is now a B.V.Sc. having received his degree from the Ontario College at Guelph, Ont. Dr. McLean will begin the practice of his profession in this his home district, and his card may be found in this issue of the Press.

Annual Meeting Of Women's Institute

After filling the position of President of the local branch most capably for the past two years, Mrs. J. E. Singleton, was on Tuesday evening re-elected for the ensuing year. At the beginning of the meeting the minutes of the last annual meeting were read and a tribute paid to the memory of a faithful member who had passed on—Mrs. B. F. Smith. Four letters of appreciation are to be sent to non-members for services rendered during the year.

Miss Holmes in giving the annual secretary-treasurer's report showed that there had been a great number of varied activities and much good work done especially for relief. There were 62 members and 12 meetings were held. At these meetings demonstrations exhibits, contests, addresses, etc., were given. The convenors of standing committees reported work done as follows:—Community activities, Mrs. Rice; Canadian industries, Mrs. Bruce; education, Mrs. Scott; legislation and immigration, Mrs. Cass; historical research and publicity, Mrs. Earle; home economics, Mrs. Wallace; health and relief, Mrs. L. Dixon. These convenors were returned to office for a second term.

Mrs. Singleton in her address referred to the good work of the convenor of the sewing committee and to the interesting programmes put on by the committees, as a result of which the attendance has been good. She thanked all the members for their splendid co-operation. During the social hour there were two contests and light refreshments were served.

Mrs. Robt. Suffel presided for the election of officers as follows:

Hon. Pres.—Mrs. Robt. Suffel.
President—Mrs. J. E. Singleton.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. O. Wallace.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Kinkaid.
Sec.-Treas.—Miss Holmes.
Asst. Sec.—Mrs. Kellogg.
Directors—Mesdames L. Suffel, Geo. Wilson, J. Moffat and Kellogg.
District Director—Mrs. O. Wallace.
Press Reporter—Mrs. Earle.
Representatives to District Annual—Mesdames Bruce, Bean and N. Hutt
Pianist—Mrs. H. Fetterly.
Asst. Pianist—Mrs. W. Lannin.
Auditors—Mrs. Ault and Mrs. Rowat

HITLER SURPRISES ENTIRE WORLD

WANT DISARMAMENT AND PEACE—IS WILLING TO CO-OPERATE

Following the strong pronouncement for peace and good will throughout the world by President Roosevelt on Monday, comes the big surprise from Berlin, Germany, where Chancellor Adolf Hitler came out in even stronger terms of disarmament and peace among nations. He said that Germany did not want war, had no thought of war, but if the other nations of the world would throw away their implements of war, so would Germany, and be glad to do so.

"There is but one great task before the world, namely, to secure the peace of the world," the Chancellor exclaimed amid the plaudits of his listeners.

He denied that Germany contemplated an invasion of France or Poland emphasizing that his nation is devoid of all instruments of aggression.

Germany, the Chancellor said, is ready to join any non-aggression pact in the "realization that the high-minded proposal of the American President to inject the mighty United States as the guarantor of peace in Europe would mean great tranquilization for all who would desire peace."

WELL KNOWN IN THIS SECTION

The Ottawa papers announced on Wednesday the death at his late residence, Powell Ave. of George K. Johnston, formerly of Crysler, and also of Finch district. The late Mr. Johnston was well known throughout this section, and he was a prominent Mason, and a member of the Anglican Church.

Henderson Lodge Banquets Visitors

MANY MASONS PRESENT TO ENJOY VISIT OF THE D.D.G.M.

Rt. W. Bro. Clarence Cattanach, District Deputy Grand Master of the Masonic Order, for Eastern District No. 21 paid his official visit to Henderson Lodge, Winchester, on Friday evening last, when thirty-nine visiting brethern, and the same number of local members and officers attended. There were sixteen Lodgs represented, including Chesterville, Morrisburg, Ottawa, Williamsburg, Lancaster, Russell, Smiths Falls and Spencerville. The visitors included two Past District Deputy Grand Masters, Right Wor. Bro. S. H. Hutt of Chesterville, and Right Wor. Bro. Will C. Davy, of Morrisburg, with four sitting Masters, and ten Past Masters.

Right Wor. Brother Aaron Sweet, of Henderson Lodge, the director of ceremonies, introduced the District Deputy, who was received with the Grand honors. After the usual session in the Lodge room, the brethern proceeded to the town hall in a procession headed by Piper Bro. T. I. Cinnamon, where they enjoyed a banquet provided under arrangement with the ladies of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. The banquet hall was tastefully decorated in Masonic colors, and the tables, with appropriate emblems, presented a colorful and attractive appearance. Wor. Master Arthur Christie presided as toastmaster, and toasts were proposed as follows: "The King" by Wor. Bro. Christie; to "Grand Lodge," by Rt. Wor. Bro. Aaron Sweet, which was responded to, by the District Deputy Grand Master; to the vistors, by Bro. W. J. Stewart, which was responded to by the sitting Masters from Chesterville, Morrisburg, Russell and others. During the evening community singing was conducted by Wor. Bro. C. B. Timmins, accompanied by Miss Helen Timmins, and the brethern were entertained by Rt. Wor. Brother Will C. Davy, of Morrisburg, who rendered two character sketches, in costume from "Drummond's" habitant poems. Wor. Bro. W. C. Pescod, of Russell, also contributed a poem entitled "The Lodge over Simkin's store," and Bro. Cinnamon livened the proceedings with his bagpipe. Other speakers included Very Wor. Bro. John F. Gibson, and Rt. Wor. Bro. S. H. Hutt, of Chesterville. The features of the evening were the character sketches by the French mason, Dr. Davy a Past District Deputy Grand Master. His interpretation of "Babtiste" and "Napoleon" bringing prolonged applause.

A vote of thanks was moved by Wor. Bro. Harry Flora to all who assisted in the programme, seconded by Wor. Bro. J. D. Stewart. The entertainment was brought to a close with "Auld Lang Syne." Bro. John Fader the Junior Warden under whose direction the affair was arranged deserves great credit for the manner in which the reception and banquet was conducted, which was the first of the kind that has been given by Henderson Lodge during the past five years.

In the course of his address, the District Deputy strongly urged that all members of the Masonic order endeavour to attend at Cornwall on May 18th, when the Grand Master Most Worshipful Bro. W. S. Herrington will give an address, following the ceremony and banquet, on the occasion of the unveiling of a monument at Summerstown, Ont.

RINK COMPANY ANNUAL MEETING

DIRECTORS' ARE ELECTED AND FINANCIAL REPORT PRESENTED

The annual meeting of the Winchester Rink Company, Limited, was held in the town hall last evening and was fairly well attended. The treasurer's report was presented and showed that there was a small balance on hand after all expenses had been paid. The surplus was not large, but was quite satisfactory in view of the existing business depression and scarcity of money. There is still an indebtedness against the rink of nearly $800, but this will be easily wiped off, once conditions get back to normal.

There was much discussion on different subjects, but no action was taken.

The new Board of Directors were elected and are as follows: Messrs. D. H. Weir, Dr. J. J. McKendry, J. L. Dixon, T. O. Keyes, John Latimer, T. Annable, G. H. Summers, N. W. Beach and Harry Flora.

The officers who are appointed from the Board of Directors will take place at a later date.

MOVIE PICTURES

The movie pictures being shown in Lannin's Hall each Friday night are well worth seeing. Mr. Gravelle never shows any picture that is in any way offensive and that is no doubt the reason why he is meeting with success. See the movies in Lannin's Hall to-morrow (Friday) night, May 19th.

Stormont-Glengarry, Dundas-Grenville

The following are the redistribution highlights for Ontario as now before the Dominion Parliament:

Ontario retains 82 seats.

The following 30 ridings remain unchanged: Haldimand, Lincoln, Welland, Wentworth, Hamilton East, Hamilton West, Brant, Brantford, London, Middlesex East, Middlesex West, Waterloo South, Waterloo North, Halton, Simcoe East, Simcoe North, Muskoka - Ontario, Victoria, Durham, Peterboro West, Northumberland, Hastings - Peterboro, Hastings South, Leeds, Kingston, Lanark, Grenville-Dundas, Renfrew South and Timiskaming North (name changed to Cochrane).

The city of Toronto will gain two seats, giving it a representation of 11. The boundaries of every city seat have changed to a greater or lesser degree.

The county of York will gain a seat by dividing West York into two ridings. This will make East, North, South and West York.

The riding of Nipissing in the North will be divided in two, Nipissing East and West.

Russell and Prescott will be joined.

Stormont and Glengarry will be joined.

The dual seat of Ottawa will be changed to Ottawa North-East and Ottawa South.

The greatest changes were made in the Bruces, Greys, Hurons, Perths and Oxfords, two ridings being eliminated in the process. The net result will be the creation of the following ridings:

Bruce, the present riding with the townships of Huron, Kinloss, Culoss and the towns of Ripley, Lucknow and Teeswater from South Bruce;

Grey South-East, a combination of South Bruce and South - East Grey. It will consist of the old riding of South-East Grey less the townships of Holland and Osprey and, in addition, the four townships of Elderslie, Brant, Carrick and Greenock from South Bruce;

North Huron, the present riding with the township of Goderich and the town of Clinton from South Huron;

South Huron, a combination of South Perth and South Huron. It will consist of the remapped South Huron with the addition of the townships of Hibbert and Fullerton from South Perth;

North Perth; the present riding with the addition of the township of Logan and the town of Mitchell from South Perth but less the township of North Easthope.

Perth-Oxford, a combination of South Perth and North Oxford. It will consist of the riding of South Perth less the township of Hibbert, Fullerton and Logan but with the addition of North Easthope from North Perth and the townships of East Nissouri, East Zorra, West Zorra, Blandford and Blenheim and the towns of Embro and Tavistock from North Oxford;

South Oxford will be merged with the remaining townships of North Oxford, to be called Oxford;

In the rest of the ridings, the changes are not extensive. North York will gain the township of North York, taking it to the limits of Toronto. Markham will go into East York.

In the Lambtons, the township of Sombra is added to East Lambton (the name of the riding is changed to Lambton-Kent), the town of Wallaceburg is added to Lambton-Kent and the township of Bosanquet is added to Lambton West.

The town of Tilbury, now in Essex East is added to Kent and the town of Wheatley is added to Kent from Essex South.

The riding of North Wellington is augmented by the township of Erin from South Wellington and the townships of East Luther and East Garafraxa form Dufferin-Simcoe. Kenora-Rainy River's eastern boundary is moved eastward 30 miles, taking in Atikokan and Sioux Lookout. It takes this territory from the ridings of Fort William and Port Arthur which otherwise remain intact.

WINCHESTER LOSES VALUABLE CITIZEN

PASSING OF THE LATE EUGENE LANOUE IS WIDELY MOURNED

The section lost a valuable citizen, the Baptist Church one of its most energetic, faithful and conscientious workers, and the family a loving and devoted father, when on Thursday afternoon last, May 12th, 1933, Mr. Eugene Lanoue, in his 55th year passed away at the Civic Hospital, Ottawa, after an illness of several weeks, and an operation from which he never recovered. Mr. Lanoue, who was born at Embrun, son of Ernest Lanoue and the late Mrs. Lanoue, was a member of the Winchester Baptist Church and for some years was also superintendent of the Sunday school. His death will be a great loss to this community and will be widely mourned. Several years ago he purchased what is known as the Melvin farm, in Melvin Settlement, one of the finest farms in this section, he had a wide circle of friends. As a husband and father he was all that could be desired, and in all his dealings and in his judgments he was fair and honorable.

In addition to his wife and father, Mr. Lanoue leaves one daughter, Mrs. Sherwood Wilson, of Ottawa; two sons, Alcide, of Massena, N.Y., and Ulric, a missionary stationed at Kimpese, Belgian Congo, Africa; four brothers, Romeo, Rudolph, Ildon and Ulric Lanoue, all of Montreal; eight sisters, Mrs. Fred Salvail, Mrs. Pitt Perron, Mrs. Rosanna Ayott, Mrs. Felix Pheonix, Mrs. Romeo Seneal, Mrs. Albert Mainville and Miss Juliette Lanoue, all of Montreal; Mrs. A. LaFortune, of Embrun; also three grandchildren.

Interment was made at Maple Ridge cemetery on Saturday, and the service held in the United Church, was very largely attended.

The pall-bearers were, Messrs Sherman Christie, Reuben Pruner, James Shaw, Arthur Christie, Herbert Carkner and Milo McDiarmid.

Charles L. Casselman Is Laid To Rest

DEATH CAME SUDDENLY AT HIS HOME NEAR CASS BRIDGE ON FRIDAY LAST—FUNERAL HELD SUNDAY

One of the district's most highly esteemed citizens passed away at his home Cass Bridge on Friday afternoon last, in the person of Charles Levi Casselman. Deceased was in his 73rd year and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Levi Casselman, of Williamsburg. Born at Williamsburg, Mr. Casselman later resided at Casselman and when a young man, married Ruth Ullman, of Crysler, who predeceased him some years ago. For the past 25 years he has lived on one of the finest farms in this district, located just north of Cass Bridge. Mr. Casselman always led a quiet life, but upheld every movement that was a benefit to humanity. He was a kind and just father, and a true and highly respected neighbor. Having enjoyed perfect health during the 72 years of his life, Mr. Casselman never had occasion to call in a doctor for medical assistance of any kind, until the day previous to his death. He took sick late Thursday night and was claimed by death late Friday afternoon. His sudden demise was not only a shock to the immediate relatives, but to a large circle of friends to whom he had endeared himself.

The funeral took place from his late residence on Sunday afternoon and was largely attended. The service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Cockram, pastor of the United Church, Winchester Springs, of which Mr. Casselman was a member. Rev. John MacKay, of Winchester, assisted. The United Church choir of Winchester Springs was present under the direction of Mrs. Clarence Thompson. Following the service, the remains were taken to Morewood and interred in the family plot at the cemetery there.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Herman Summers, James Bowman, Sherwood Coons, Gordon Baldwin, John McQuatt and William Link.

Left to survive are two sons, Ellis Casselman, of Boucks Hill, and Bernice Casselman at home; a young son, Frank, died some years ago; two brothers, Elgar and Thomas, of Williamsburg; two sisters, Mrs. Nelson Ullman, of Crysler and Mrs. Osborne Johnston, of Charloten, Ont.; also two grandsons, Lloyd and Harold.

THE MAN WHO THINKS HE CAN

If you think you are beaten, you are;
If you think you dare not, you don't
If you'd like to win, but think you can't,
It's almost a cinch you won't.

If you think you'll lose, you're lost
For out in the world we find
Success begins with a fellow's will
It's all in the state of mind

If you think you're outclassed, you are;
You've got to think high to rise.
You've got to hustle before
You can ever win a prize.

Life's battle don't always go
To the strongest or fastest man;
But soon or late the man who wins
Is the man who thinks he can.

THE ACCIDENT

"How did it happen? Well, they met head on,
Rounding a curve. Going too fast, I guess!
A quarter of an hour, more or less,
Was hardly worth a broken neck. He's gone.

"The grade too narrow? o, the grade was wide.
The other driver gave him half the road
And something extra—for the wheel-marks showed.
He swung his car well over to the side.

"Drunk? Oh, I wouldn't say that he was drunk—
He had been drinking—Yes, it's very sad.
A fine young man—the only son they had.
The other? Crippled. Both the cars junk.

"You've seen the paper? Something left unsaid!
And something, too, the preacher couldn't say,
'De mortuis nil nisi bonum,' eh?
Why hurt his people's feelings, when he's dead?

"And who's to blame? God knows! The Government?
The Trade? The boy? His parents? You and I-
Were in the business! — People are content
To let it flourish—Yeah, we voted dry."

IF YOU CAN

If you can keep your nerve when all about you
The pessimists are spreading doubt and fear;
If you can persevere despite depression
And know that better times are drawing near;
If you can work ahead and keep your counsel,
When neophytes are shouting what to do;
If you can face your task with resolution
And bring to bear the greatest powers in you;
If you can sleep and not indulge in nightmare,
Dream peacefully and make your dreams come true;
If you can listen patiently to critics,
And practice golden silence as your cue;
If you can hear the wicked lies about you
And treat them one and all with proud disdain;
If you can bear a load of vicious slander,
And not give way beneath the awful strain;
If you can talk to crowds and not get angry,
Or bitterly retort when they cry "Boo!"
If you can face the foe and keep on smiling,
When papers and cartoonists libel you;
If you can fill the ever fleeting minute
With unremitting toil and think it fun;
Your's is the Councillor's chair for asking,
And—what is more — you'll be a Paragon.

WHAT A FRIEND SAYS

This is what a friend says
When a hope has gone:
"Better day tomorrow!
"Darkest before dawn!
"Gird yourself with courage;
"Arm yourself with trust;
"You are proud in spirit,
"Conquer, as you must!"

This is what a friend says:
"Words, I know, are poor;
"But my love is constant,
"And my faith is sure.
"You will be the victor
"Always in the end.
"Promise to keep trying,
"Just to please a friend!"

Friends can give fresh strength, the
Bitter drink to quaff;
Often what a friend says
Is man's stoutest staff.

BOWLING ON THE GREEN

I like to bowl upon the green,
Because it's good for me, I ween;
I meet a few congenial friends,
Tho' some like short and some long ends,
As you'd expect.

I stand upon the mat so pat,
My skip says, "Aim not at the cat
But at my feet." And so try
To mark the distance with my eye,
But oft, alas,

My bowl along the green will glide,
Sometimes it's short, again it's wide,
But what a joy when it goes right
And rolls in by the kitty tight;
The glory's mine.

A good shot always merits praise,
And makes one proud for days and days,
But if the wrong burrow you take,
Go home; you've made a big mistake
And feel a fool.

At heart I am a Peter Pan;
I love to be an ardent fan,
And play the game and win the cup
And feel my heart go down and up.
Come try! it's great!

MOTHERS' DAY SERVICES

The beautiful service outlined by the O.R.E.C. was carried out in the United Church last Sunday morning with Mr. M. Fennell, S. S. Supt. presiding, along with the pastor, Rev. J. McKay, who gave a most inspiring address on "The value of a home in the Nation's life." Mr. McKay said there is a place for mother, father and the children in this topic. The power of a mother in forming the character of the children can not be estimated. The share of the father in this good work was emphasized. Home should be made an attractive place for youth. Parents must keep young in their attitude to youth, and the church must be very sympathetic to give guidance and must set an example in character and church life. We should pray for more consecrated homes. Mr. Fennell asked for the co-operation of the home in regard to the religious training of the young. "The Spirit of the Home" was well given by Ronald Cass. Mrs. Wallace told a very interesting story about the likeness of the great stone face.

The pastor's evening subject was "Jesus and the Home" and his text was Luke 2:39 and 51. He said that almost everywhere in Jesus' life and teaching we find the influence of His humble Nazareth home. Neither can we escape from the influence of our home. Jesus was always glad to pay tribute to His home and was never ashamed of it. He knew something of the temptations of home, but the work of God come first. He knew what it was to bear the burdens of the home. So on Mothers' Day we think of how Jesus is able to enter into all our home relationships. Let us in all our affairs be willing to consult Jesus knowing He is glad to help us to His will.

Mr. Fred Johnston and Miss Jessie Preston sang a duet in keeping with Mothers' Day.

The church was nicely decorated with ferns, potted plants and cut flowers.

Next Sunday members of the Ottawa Oxford Group will preach.

Why Canadians Should Be Thankful

(From the Acton Free Press.)

As we mentioned previously, the outstanding feature at the gathering of weekly newspapermen was the address of Mr. Norman Sommerville, K.C. His subject was "Some Recent Observations in Central Europe." Mr. Sommerville had just returned from a three months' tour in Central Europe and had such intimate touch with his subject that his treatment of the matter made one of the most delightful and informational addresses it has been our privilege to hear. It left one feeling that here in Canada we have a great deal to be thankful for. We wondered if ever again in fairness we should mention that Canada has suffered a depression. Of course Mr. Sommerville had the delivery and personality of a master in his presentation that will be lost in our passing on any of the points, but tell some portion we must.

In Austria and the City of Vienna, the speaker told of the utter poverty of the people. How the currency had been depressed until mortgages and holdings worth $15,000 had been sold for $1.00 and municipalities with debenture indebtedness of $100,000 had been redeemed for about $7. The poverty was so pitiful that only on one day a week were the poor allowed to come out on the street. And in Germany Mr. Sommerville told of the conditions. Every port is clogged with ships waiting for something to happen. Every dock is thronged with sailors with nothing to do. The people of Germany have tried all means to re-establish themselves, even to six general elections in one year. And today the average German citizen says: "Since 1914 everything we have done has gone wrong. What is the use of trying?" A word picture of the present leader, Hitler, described him as a circus manager; a presentation of the facts of his actual power in ruling Germany; the circumstances leading up to his election, and an interpretation of the actions of the government, gave a background for a clearer understanding of the articles which now feature the press dispatches from that country. The lack of faith in the future, in the leaders, the institutions and the country at large now characterizing the countries of Central Europe, was vividly portrayed.

Then Mr. Sommerville came across to England. He pointed out the faith that had been brought back to that country in the last twenty-one months The picture of the Bank of England faced with the necessity for the first time in history, of having to go to the government for the backing of loans from the United States and France. The events which led up to the formation of a National Government to meet a national crisis. Then the historical financial achievements that have been accomplished following the formation and endorsation of this national government were given in vivid word portrayal. The repayment of the loans to the United States and France within a few months; the prepayment of money owed the United States, and the refunding loan, all of which were accomplished in the past few months. But the greatest feature of all was the re-establishment of faith and co-operative endeavor for the common good of the country. A faith that was on the wane a few months previously, and a faith that was utterly lacking in the people of Central Europe.

Coming back to Canada and viewing our own country with this background of conditions as shown in Central Europe, and the re-establishment of faith in England, one could not help but have a spirit of deep thankfulness. As the speaker pointed out that if your anchor but holds during a hurricane, real progress has been made; and in Canada our anchor was held. We have unshaken faith in our leaders and institutions, and the future.

WERE APPOINTED PRESBYTERIAN DELEGATES

The members of the W.M.S. of the Presbyterian church, Morewood, met at the home of Mrs. W. Marcellus with a large turnout of members. Mrs. T. E. Coulthart, Mrs. Nimmo and Mrs. Hazel Countryman were appointed delegates to the Presbyterial held at Cardinal last week. The president, Mrs. Coulthart, read a splendid address given at the provincial meeting at Stratford by the provincial president, Mrs. McLennan. The financial statement prepared by Mrs. Thoburn, of Ottawa, was read by Mrs. H. Myers. A delightful solo was contributed by Mrs. Rainey.

Winchester W. M. S. Meet at Harmony

The regular May meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Winchester was held in the Harmony Church on Thursday afternoon with a large attendance. In the absence of the president, Mrs. G. H. Earle, who was attending the branch meeting of the W.M.S. in Ottawa, Mrs. T. O. Keyes presided for the business and programme. In the harvest field there is work to do was sung and the 23rd psalm read in unison as also the Lord's prayer was repeated after a few moments of silent prayers. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. M. Short, and the roll call of the Harmony Group was responded to.

The Christian Stewardship secretary Mrs. Scott, gave a reading entitled Her Tithes. The temperance secretary, Mrs. S. Christie's reading, the cry of wine and beer to come back, showing how experience, common sense and close observation can show big arguments against the return of wine and beer. The supply secretary, Mrs. T. O. Keyes, reported the mission box to be packed towards the end of this month, giving a list of articles prepared and contributed by different classes of the Sunday school and many other sources. The towel shower was well responded to. The collection was taken up by Mrs. Ira Docksteader and Mrs. Henry Cinnamon.

A very pleasing duet, "If Christ should come" was rendered by Mrs. N. W. Beach and Mrs. R. Crowder, accompanied by Mrs. J. MacKay, was very much enjoyed by all.

Mrs. N. W. Beach the delegate to the branch Presbyterial at Brinston brought back a very clear and interesting account of the activities in the various departments of the mission work, as well as many splendid remarks of the speakers who gave the addresses.

The keynote of the program was the Task that Challenges. Mrs. F. Docksteader read the devotional leaflet, "The Woman of Quiet, Mary of Bethany." Mrs. W. Biccum gave the 2nd leaflet, while a story of our Indian neighbors, was given by Miss Lila Hughes and our French neighbors was told by Miss Lily Wood. Mrs. T. O. Keyes gave a missionary item about our neighbours in China and Japan. A season of prayer followed several taking part. Hymn "There is work to do for Jesus," was sung and the Mizpah benediction repeated in unison.

THE 100TH ANNIVERSARY

The one hundredth anniversary of Presbyterianism in Smiths Falls will be celebrated in Westminster, Presbyterian Church, Smiths Falls, commencing Sunday, May 21st, and special services will be held during the following week, when Rev. F. G. Vesey, of Parkdale, Toronto, with other ministers from out of town will address the congregation. Rev. Stuart C. Parker, D.D., of St. Andrew's Church, Toronto, will officiate on Sunday, May 21st.

BOOST YOUR TOWN

Before you buy from the peddler, be it apples, hair pins or corn salve, see what the local merchant has to offer. You'll find in nine cases out of ten that you can get better value for your money from the local stores.

No town can exist within itself, but other considerations being equal, it is always good business to patronize local merchants. The shopper who periodically visits the big or smaller cities is making no contribution to the economic problem at home. Put your dollars to work in your home town and see the effect they will have.

SHOWER FOR BRIDE

A delightfully arranged miscellaneous shower in honor of a recent bride, Mrs. J. J. Alkerton, formerly Miss Evelyn Peters, was given by four of the bride's friends, the Misses Geraldine Fairgray, Helen Martin Eileen Barkley and Helen Kearns, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Peters, Spencerville, last week. About fifty guests attended. The bride was the recipient of numerous beautiful gifts, brought to her in a gaily decorated carriage by little Marion Martin and Gerard Cummings, dressed as a bride and groom.

GROUNDHOGS ARE TOO NUMEROUS, OPEN SEASON FOR SUMMER SPORT

Goin' groundhog shootin'?

Well, it's open season, and they say they're plentiful and just as much a nuisance to farmers as ever. The Ontario Government took a hand in the question, and passed an Order-in-Council authorizing the issuance of special permits for the months o May, June, July and August. Of course, farmers and their sons do not require a gun license to shoot groundhogs or anything else, but others do.

And here's the catch; Ordinary gun licenses are not good during the aforementioned months, hence the special-permit regulation. These permits will cost $1 each, but application must be accompanied by written consent from a farmer or group of farmers up to the number of ten, in a given locality, that the permit-seeker has permission to shoot groundhogs on his or their (the farmers') land. Last year $2 permits were issued for certain sections of the Province, and after Aug. 31 they could be turned in for regular gun permits. Not so this year, and, in addition, the new regulation is Province-wide. Permits may be had only from the Department of Game and Fisheries or district officers.

Another recent regulation of interest to fishermen and frog-eaters is that which prohibits the taking of frogs during May and June. The Fish and Game Committee for the Legislature sought to conserve them. The supply for bait and table purposes was getting low.

So it is legislated that the frogs may croak a little longer, and the hunters may "croak" the groundhogs. But, as to hunting the latter, it is the advice of one who knows: Do not get between the groundhog and the hole unless you have a gun. Try smokin' 'em out, and wait some yards away. They sure can bite!

WILLIAMSBURG LADIES' AID

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Williamsburg United Church was held in the Sunday school room last week with the president, Mrs. George Hill, in charge.

Arrangements were made to have a wheel chair walk up to the church steps for the convenience of wheel chair patients of Dr. Locke who attend the church services.

A pleasing feature of the meeting was the presentation of a finished quilt to Mrs. (Rev.) A. M. Russell in appreciation of her services. Miss Strader McIntosh made the presentation on behalf of those present. Mrs. Russell was taken wholly by surprise but expressed her great pleasure in receiving such a beautiful gift.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

A FRIENDLY TALK

I have just read in a big daily newspaper, a very learned discussion by a high-powered health-columnist, of the action and uses of THYROID. Of course many physicians may be attracted by the heading, and read for their edification what a brother has to say to lay readers. But I am of the opinion that the article was worth next to nothing for the average business man or family.

The ultimate effect of thyroid when administered as a medicine is a subject for serious debate among skilled scientists; all do not agree by any means, upon its action, or, the chief indications for its use. . . . Then, why introduce it to the lay readers? Since it takes many years of intense application to make a skilled physician, why try to make the average newspaper reader into a bewildered pseudo-scientist?

Thyroid should never be taken or administered without the advice of a capable physician. I have had middle-aged ladies ask me, "doctor, don't you think I need THYROID?" All she knew about the powerful gland extract she had gleaned from the newspaper! It was only a step for this woman to go to the drug-store and buy a package of thyroid tablets—and go to taking them on her own initiative! And—nine times out of ten—the very thing she did not need.

I must say to my readers that, I am exceedingly "leary" of the discussion of powerful, dangerous drugs to the layman. It may lead the best of people into harm.

That's why my "talks" abound in simplicity. I'd rather give you a hint based on common-sense—how to behave in emergency—or how to deal with a sore toe to the best advantage. I wouldn't stuff my reader with chemical equations and disputed theories on vitamins and hormones—even if I were qualified to do so. My technical talk belongs in the medical society.

4-H CLUB NEWS

Calf Leads Girl Far

Some girls go in for calf club work in their 4-H training. Some are led all around the barnyard or the show ring by their calf in a more or less unpleasant stampede. Some are led to the highest achievements in 4-H. Every girl who goes in for calf club work should strive to learn the causes for the difference, so that her calf will lead her where she will be happy to go.

Florence A. Woodbury of near Salt Lake City, Utah, is one girl who was led far by her calf club projects and to goals which have brought her national recognition besides the utmost personal satisfaction. She has been selected as the national champion Holstein dairy calf girl by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America, which is the register for purebred animals of this breed. Every year they name a national champion boy and girl. The boy is Kark H. Kainz of near Elkader, Iowa. Both champions have remarkable records, and were started on their road to achievement by purebred Holstein calves.

Florence began five years ago and has had a dairy project every year, making exhibits and taking part in public demonstrations and contests with signal success. Twice she was named the state champion Holstein calf club girl. In 1932 the state farm bureau association awarded her a gold medal for being the outstanding leader in her projects in the state. Two different years she was delegated to attend the state leaders training school at the agricultural college. Each year of her club career she has served as a leader of a local club and with fine success. That's where her club calves led her.

Young Kainz was named state champion and awarded many trips, prizes and other honors. He is a virile leader of the young people in this community and county. Four years ago he took on the responsibility of running the 80-acre farm of his grandparents and mother to keep it in the family and he has done a man's job, and even better, say competent observers.

STIRRING INCIDENTS IN CONNECTION WITH ASSASSINATION OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN—PLOT WAS LAID NEAR GANANOQUE—PLOTTERS FALL OUT

When the aviators in the twelve American pursuit planes, which flew from Selfridge Field, Michigan, over Canada as far east as Montreal some time ago, on the invitation of the Royal Air Force of Canada, and on their return trip were forced to come down on the ice of the St. Lawrence river near Fisher's Landing, N. Y., across from Gananoque, on January 28th, they did not know that the spot where they made the ice safely was beside an island that in 1865 hid one of the band who planned and carried out the assassination of President Abraham Lincoln.

Maple Island covers about six acres of land and has a high ridge extending across it from east to west. It is one of the minor islands of the Thousand Islands group, which extends from Kingston to Brockville, on both sides of the international border. On it a mysterious killing occurred early in September, 1865, and the mystery was never fully solved, but it was believed to have been the work of a secret brotherhood of the South which operated during and after the American Civil War. In the early part of June 1865, a stranger made his appearance at Fisher's Landing, opposite the Thousand Islands Park. He was about twenty-five years of age, dark-haired, with moustache and goatee, elegantly dressed, of very agreeable manners and with the characteristics of a Southerner. Afters some days he decided to erect a cabin on Maple Island to enjoy his pastime of fishing. He had quite a stock of books, was well supplied with money (gold at that) and he also amused himself by playing the violin as the strains of one were often heard proceeding from his cabin, which stood in a dense thicket against a wall of rock, and so hidden that it could not be seen from a passing skiff. The summer months sped away and September arrived. One night a very bright light was seen by residents of Clayton on Maple Island. It was surmised that the hermit's cabin had caught fire, but little thought was paid to this as no one apprehended danger to him. Next morning some fishermen went ashore on the island. The ground was trampled as if by many feet. Evidence of a struggle was on every hand. Traces of blood were found on the bushes, and the fishermen feared the worst. Finally the body of the stranger was found near the water's edge on the lower end of the island. The throat was cut from ear to ear and a knife thrust had nearly severed the heart. There was no clothing on the body excepting underwear. Across the breast three crosses were cut in a triangle, one cross forming its apex and two crosses its base. The discoverers of the body saw nothing beyond plain murder and robbery. The marks on the body had no significence for them. Yet the crosses furnished a clue which gave the authorities something on which to work to try and solve the murder.

Bearing on Lincoln's Assassination

The Maple island mystery nad a bearing upon the assassination of President Abraham Lincoln, the United States Civil War president and martyr who met his death on the night of the 14th of April, 1865, by a bullet fired from a revolver in the hands of John Wilkes Booth, actor and rebel. Long afterwards, the authorities were satisfied that the man slain on the Maple Island was one of the conspirators who was associated with Booth in the plan to assassinate the whole cabinet of Lincoln. The Washington police had long been aware that a society called the Knights of the Blue Gauntlet existed in the American capital, but did not deem it dangerous. The Sons of Liberty was another similar secret order. John Wilkes Booth eventually became the leader of the Knights of the Blue Gauntlet. Had the Washington police been more severe with this organization, the assassination of the President Lincoln might never have occurred.

Throughout the Civil War, and especially in 1863 and 1864, Canada's principal cities swarmed with Southerners. St. Catherines, Toronto, Kingston, Ottawa and Montreal were especially favored. Some were accredited agents of the Confederacy while they engaged in plotting against the North and setting schemes on foot for the destruction of the United States lake cities in the absence of their defenders who were fighting on the Southern soil. Secret societies, chiefly in Indiana and Illinois, were in constant communication with the Southern emissaries, who laid plans to capture steamers in the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence river, fill them with armed men, and simultaneously descend upon Rochester, Buffalo, Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago, and, firing them, pillage and slay, escaping to Canada as a place of safety. It was among Confederate residents of Canada that a diabolical scheme was set afoot to scatter small pox throughout the cities of the North by means of infected rags. Warning of the plotting was given and the lake cities took measures for their safety. The Confederate plotters in Canada saw that their schemes were upset, so they turned to new ones. They began to despair of conquering the North, and as a recompense for defeat they nourished revenge.

The assassination of Lincoln and his Cabinet was decided upon, and to Jno. Wilkes Booth they turned. Booth was starring in Canadian theatres at the time. During an engagement in Toronto a meeting took place in the old Queen's Hotel. The Confederates assured him that the success of the scheme depended upon him alone. Booth at first balked at murder and suggested kidnapping. His idea was to kidnap the President and so many others of the Cabinet as could be taken, gag them, carry them to a safe retreat, and when an opportunity offered to transfer them to the rebel capital. Throughout all his designs the dramatic element in Booth was always uppermost. He planned a triumphal starring trip throughout the South. Full of this idea, he shipped his theatrical wardrobe from Canada.

His success as a Southern patriot, rather than his ability as an actor, was to prove the drawing card. Booth soon discovered that his scheme of kidnapping could not be carried out. It was deemed too rash. He could find no one who would engage in the hazardous undertaking. Then he began to plan the scheme of assassination. He was supplied with money by the Confederate agents and he "dropped an anchor to windward" by depositing $450. in the Bank of Ontario at Montreal.

Search for Tools

Then he began to search for "tools," He associated with him in the assassination plot two brothers, John A. Payne and Lewis Payne, John H. Surratt, Samuel Arnold and several others. The Paynes were of a lawless Kentucky family, although their father was a clergyman. John A. Payne and two confederates went to North Carolina to look after General Sherman, but Sherman took another route to Washington. Hearing the result of the assassination and also the end of Booth, who was shot by a police sergeant after being run to earth in a barn, Payne apparently lost heart, rid himself of everything of a suspicious nature and fled. John H. Surratt was to go North into Canada, and on hearing of the attempt on Lincoln's life, was to repair at once to Toronto and there claim the promised gold and make his way to Richmond. It developed later that the plot money was taken out of a bank at Niagara Falls and paid to Surratt and Payne to divide among the whole gang, but they skipped out—after Booth had met his death. Other members of the gang went off in pursuit. Surratt made his way to Three Rivers, Que., where he was protected for a time by a priest. A man bearing the description of John Payne was seen in the vicinity of Sharbot and Rideau Lakes, north of Kingston, Ont., during the latter part of May, 1865, and shortly afterwards at Gananoque where he stayed for a day or two.

Payne Victim of Maple Island Mystery

The supposition is that it was Payne who was the victim of the Maple Island mystery. The description of the man and of the time tally well. Payne knew that the defrauded Brotherhood of the Knights of the Blue Gauntlet would hunt him to the death. Locating where he did showed great shrewdness. Maple island is at a distance from any of the regular lines of steamboat travel and excursion boats, which at that time were few, and no one would think of searching an island so open to the view of everybody. That a party of five or six men made their appearance in Gananoque in August, 1865, making enquiries of a man answering the description of John A. Payne, was learned. They said they belonged to a party of workmen who had been employed near Montreal and that the man for whom they were looking drew the pay for them and then ran away. They had followed him to Smiths Falls and from then could get no further trace of him.

MUCH IS NOT KNOWN

People have been studying for years and yet there are many things we do not know.

Is any person living on Mars? There have been many photographs taken of the place, but we do not know if there are people living any place except on this earth.

We use electricity very commonly to-day; we turn a button and get it, and yet the greatest electrician in the world cannot tell you what electricity really is.

We know a great deal about cows, good cows and poor cows. We can treat them when they are sick and all that, but we do not know just when and how they produce milk We know how we get it from the cow, but how the cow gets it is a mystery.

Most of us get colds now and then and we may even go to the doctor about it. He cannot tell you how you got a cold, nor can he tell you how to cure it. We don't know whether it is from a germ or what it may come from.

People in good health go to sleep at night and get rested, but we do not know why. No person has yet been able to explain it. Neither do we know why we have dreams, and what is more, it is not known why we wake up.

The east wind has a very depressing effect on the human body, especially on those who suffer from rheumatism or sciatica. There are a number of theories about it, but nothing is known definitely, although scientific men have been working on it for years.

Actually there are many things which we do not know. Those who have studied the most are the people who come to the conclusion that their knowledge has only enabled them to realize how little is actually known.

TWO OUTSTANDING STATESMEN FOR WORLD PEACE

The two outstanding statesmen in the world to-day are Ramsey MacDonald, Prime Minister of England, and President Roosevelt of the United States. The former is handicapped in his endeavors for world peace and disarmament by prejudices and political opposition of centuries in the making, and that he has been able to make the progress he has is the greatest tribute to his patience, forbearance, ability, and desire to accomplish something great for humanity.

On the other hand President Roosevelt is fresh, vigorous, unhampered by political prejudices, and heartily supported not only at Washington, but by the great majority of the people of the United States. In a message delivered on Monday, a message that has stirred and thrilled the nations of the world, President Roosevelt comes out not only in support of Premier Ramsey MacDonald, but he goes still further, and in his appeal to forty-four nations he asks their support for limited armament, the cutting out of offensive armament, and the practical isolation of any nation that refuses to line up to and obey the agreement that shall be mutually drawn up and agreed to. He hopes for the success of the Geneva Arms Conference and the Economic Conference to be held in London. One message of President Roosevelt reads as follows :

> "Common sense points out that if any strong nation refuses to join with genuine sincerity in these concerted efforts for political and economic peace, the one at Geneva and the other at London, progress can be obstructed and ultimately blocked."

The message of President Roosevelt has been favorourbaly received by most of the great nations, and there is no doubt but that his timely pronouncement will compel the governments in other lands to consider well its full purport. The Montreal Gazette in commenting on President Roosevelt's address says:

> The world situation today is bristling with difficulties and dangers. But if real statesmanship governs and true leadership guides, no man need be so pessimistic as to despair of the situation being properly handled and the threatening evils averted.
>
> The more immediate significance of the message is to be found in the time chosen by Mr. Roosevelt for its delivery to the peoples of the world. The influence it will have at Berlin will at once establish the measure of its value. Very grave dangers may result from the tide of extreme nationalism actually rising in Germany. If Mr. Roosevelt's message has the moderating effect its author manifestly intends that it shall have, Chancellor Hitler's speech at the special assembly of the Reichstag today will tend to divert nationalist fervor into more prudent channels than the course which, judged by its recent attitude, the militant and aggrieved nationalist mind has marked out.
>
> If any national leader in the world today can inspire the nations with a greater faith in justice than in armaments and strategic frontiers, it is Presideent Roosevelt. That faith is essential to the pledge he now asks of the nations. The fact that he asks for it implies on the part of the United States a willingness to support and uphold in a substantial way the ideal of justice that is envisaged in a message designed to keep the disarmament conference at Geneva from foundering in the treacherous shoals that surround it, to bring about a new era of reconciliation in Europe and to unite all nations in a peaceful federation. It all reveals a wide separation from the old American attitude towards the European powers as reflected in the Monroe Doctrine. But as a man of high convictions Mr. Roosevelt today is striving for high ideals. The world will ardently hope that the end of his endeavor will not be a broken purpose.

THE FINANCIAL STRUGGLE OF SOME CHURCHES — ARE THEY RESORTING TO QUESTIONABLE MEANS?

The church, and its various activities, is always a dangerous subject to discuss, especially by the local weekly newspaper. If you give them plenty of free advertising and publicity; praise their endeavours, make personal mention of their leaders, and tell of the splendid entertainments they get up, the suppers they serve, the excellency of their choirs and programmes, and what enterprise they are showing in serving meals to different societies, lodges, conventions, etc., no fault will be found, and you will be looked upon as a real friend and supporter. But, on the other hand, if you tell what many people are thinking, but hesitate to express, we wonder what the result would be.

Many of the church organizations in their struggle to meet financial obligations, are commercializing their endeavours and making the House of God the excuse for their supposed religious activities. It may be said that between old prejudicies and modern activities there is a great gulf that is swallowing up the spiritual as well as the moral well being of many churches. The women (God bless them) in their desire to help out the church officials (the men) do sometimes show more enterprise and enthusiasm than good judgment, and while they raise some funds by their teas, their serving meals to different organizations, money showers, and dear only knows what else, they are expending much ill-directed energy in the name of religion. They are contributing, either personally or by the help of their providers more in actual labor and cash value than they receive, and the more they expend in that fashion the more will be expected of them, while their activities, such as mentioned, are interferring with the legitimate business of their respective communities.

Let us be clearly understood that we have no objection to the social side of the churches' activities, even when refreshments are served. But when our church organization have to resort to a sort of rivalry with the hotels and restaurants in catering to different organizations, they have departed from their true mission, and are bound to suffer in their spiritual life. The evil is not confined to any one community, but seems to have become common with many religious denominations, and especially so in the smaller towns and in the villages. It is but fair to state, however, that there are some church organizations that have not resorted to these questionable means of raising funds, and they seem to get along and meet their obligations.

There is also another side to this question, and that is, it places the burden on the few. The contributions to the "cause" are made in donations, and the labor of the ladies, while the general public pay for what they get to satisfy their appetites. The Press is a thorough believer in the social side of church life. Young people enjoy social gatherings, and even refreshments of a lighter kind. When, however, the church has to enter into the business of competing with hotels and restaurants, with the merchants and business men, in a commercial way, they may meet their financial obligations, but they lose their power and influence as a religious body.

Next Sunday the "Oxford Group" twenty strong we believe, are to visit Winchester and hold services in the several churches. We sincerely hope that the attention of some of them will be directed to this editorial, and that they will be asked to give their views on the subject.

MAKING RURAL LIFE ATTRACTIVE

Hon. Mr. Elliott, M.P., for Middlesex, a good Liberal and no doubt sincere, in a recent address in the House of Commons, said that "Rural life should be made more attractive." We have heard that statement so often, time and time again, and always by some political orator or member of parliament who themselves enjoy all the comforts of modern life, and have little to worry about. It is a pet phrase with politicians, and is supposed to convey the impressions that the M. P. is concerned about the poor farmers. There is one way parliament might help to make rural life more attractive and that is by reducing public expenses, by seeing that the farmers get a fair deal the same as manufacturers, financial institutions and political ornaments who are drawing princely salaries. If they want to make rural life attractive, give the farmers a running chance to enjoy some of the comforts of city life, and in some way compensate them for the drudgery incident to farm life. The recent investigation into the sale and handling of milk is a clear indication of how fair a deal the farmers have been receiving. Without going into a discussion of tariffs, of protection vs. free trade, the evidence brought at Ottawa during the milk investigation clearly shows that the "Rural Life" of Canada has been made the victims of men who used their legal powers to enrich themselves at the expense of not only the farmers, but the poor people of the cities. Let us hope that the present government will use the information at hand to make rural life more attractive. A farmer, or farmer's wife, who is not tied down with the burden of unpaid taxes, mortgages and other debts, will not find it hard to make their homes attractive. There is no more attractive place in our land than the rural district if you give it just half a chance.

EMPIRE DAY

Tuesday next, May 23rd, will be Empire Day, a day that will be observed throughout the British Empire in patriotic song and story, especially in the school. The history of the origin of Empire Day is an interesting one, and dates back to 1897, when a Mrs. Fessenden, of Hamilton, Ontario, conceived the idea which was put into practical use in 1898, at Dundas, Ontario, endorsed by the then Minister of Education, Hon. G. W. Ross, who was also Premier of Ontario, who set apart one day in the year to do honor to the British Flag, and inspire in the children the spirit of true British patriotism. The first celebration of the day thus set apart, May 23rd, took place in some of the schools of Ontario. In 1904 it was celebrated in England, and it is now celebrated in all parts of the British Empire. Following is a poem written by a public school teacher, Florence Walker, of Brampton, Ont.:

Today is Empire Day, and o'er the world
On every continent our flag's unfurled.
Not with a boast, but humbly this we say,
Greece, Carthage and Rome's empire passed away.
O Flag! Still may your red and white and blue
For honor, purity and truth stand true.
God grant where'er it floateth on the breeze
To keep us one, though scattered o'er the seas.

Canadian nation great, and yet to be
A greater home for children of the free;
Majestic mountains with the snow-capped dome,
Where free from hurt the great wild creatures roam,
Far-reaching plains or wide expanse of lake
Are not what doth a nation mighty make,
But it doth soar to lofty summits when
It gives to earth finest type of men.

So give us men who spurn not honest toil,
Who firmly stand for right 'mid all turmoil.
O make our homes abodes of peace and cheer
Of joy and love for those we hold most dear.
Help us the idol, Pleasure, to dethrone
That in our hearts Jehovah reign alone,
Thus, only thus, dear Canada our home
Through us shall honor to our Empire come.

New Regulations in Normal Courses

Regulations affecting normal school courses in Ontario were issued by Premier Henry as Minister of Education allowing extension of interim certificates issued in July, 1929; cancelling interim certificates issued in July, 1928, with the requirement that teachers who wish to continue return for second-year course in September; and announcing that, commencing September, 1935, the courses for second-class teachers will be discontinued.

The last-noted regulation is seen as a definite departure from a long-standing rule which will reduce the number in the teaching profession and bring about a better-prepared class of teachers for the schools. Several representations have been made to the Minister along these lines by teachers, Trustees and educational bodies, and some of their recommendations have been put into effect.

The new regulations are as follows:

"The Minister of Education makes the following announcement with regard to (1) the second year normal school course commencing in September, 1933 and 1934, and (2) the qualifications for admission to the normal schools commencing September, 1935.

Interim certificates issued in July, 1929: Teachers who completed the First Year Normal School Course in 1929, and whose Interim Certificates will expire in July, 1933, are granted one year's extension of their certificates, but, if they wish to continue teaching after that date, they will be required to return for the Second Year Normal School Course in September, 1934.

"Interim Certificates issued in July, 1928: Teachers who completed the First Year Normal School Course in 1928 and whose Interim Certificates were extended to July, 1993, are notified that these certificates will expire in July, and that, if they wish to continue teaching, they will be required to return for the Second Year Normal School Course commencing in September, 1933. This course will be given at each of the Normal Schools. The forms of application may be obtained from the Deputy Minister o Education after July 1.

"Qualifications for admission to Normal Schools, September, 1935: Commencing in September, 1935, the courses for Second Class teachers will be discontinued. Applicants for admission to the Normal Schools will require to hold Departmental Certificates as prescribed at present for admission to the First Class Course, and, in addition Certificates of Lower School standing in English, Grammar and Arithmetic.

ONLY TOO TRUE

If the ruination of any boy is desired let him roam the streets at will. There is nothing that will ruin a boy as unwatched liberty. It is during these night carousals that he learns the vulgarism, which later on will grow to something worse, and the idea of having so little respect for himself or those around him. Alas, the above paragraph is only too true, but the average parent is much more to blame than the boy. Too much carelessness on the part of the parent is indulged in by allowing the boys to roam about of an evening when they should be at home or employed at some occupation.

"GOOD WILL DAY"

"Good Will Day" will be celebrated in the schools of the province to-day, May 18, on the occasion of the 34th anniversary of the first peace conference, held at The Hague in 1899. It was the first conference at which nations assembled to discuss means of settling international disputes without resort to war. A circular sent out by Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Education, called attention to the anniversary and including suggestions for programmes.

A VALUABLE OFFICIAL

Those who know something of the nature of the work, and the diplomatic manner in which certain cases have to be handled can appreciate the splendid services being rendered the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry by the County gaoler, Mr. Thomas "Mike" Ault, who is also Warden of the Children's Aid Society. A more sympathetic, considerate, self sacrificing and diplomatic official for the work, it would b hard to find. He knows when to be kind and forbearing and he also knows when to be stern and determined. He has placed hundreds of children i the homes of the Counties, and he has many that are a real problem. H experiences are like a story book, and some of the conditions he finds are almost unbelievable. If such conditions were found in a forein country and described in some missionary magazine, the hearts of the Christian people would be so stirred that they would be willing to make sacrifices to help. Yet conditions exist right in our midst, but are unsuspected, that are too horrible to relate. Mr. Ault travels many thousands of miles in a year, his experiences are sometimes anything but pleasant, and he ha been threatened with bodily harm, for interferring, but "Mike" goes on his way, always smiling, always with a kindly word of advice, and never failing to perform his duty. For the amount and kind of work he does he is the poorest paid official in the United Counties.

RIDDLES

Why is a tin whistle good tempered?—Because it will take a blow from anyone.

RIDDELL—MERKLEY

Chesterville United Church was the scene of a charming wedding ceremony on Monday afternoon when Anna Marguerite, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angus Merkley, of Chesterville, became the bride of Chester Wellington, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Riddell of Cardinal, Rev. R. E. Newman officiating.

Roses, carnations and ferns were used in adorning the altar. The wedding music was rendered by Mrs. P. G. Hewitt, who presided at the organ. During the signing of the register, "O Promise Me" was delightfully sung by Mrs. George G. Merkley, cousin of the bride.

Attending the bride was her sister, Miss Beatrice Merkley, as bridesmaid, with Mr. Lloyd Steinberg of Cardinal, as groomsman, and those who attended as ushers were Mr. Edwin Hutt and Mr. Clifford Olsen.

Fair and winsome was the bride in a model of white Bianchini satin designed on long lines, with white hat, shoes, and gloves to match. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and sweet peas, and wore the gift of the groom, a white gold wrist watch.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, Mendelssohn's wedding march was impressively rendered by the organist as the bridal party and the guests left the church.

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served at the home of the bride to the immediate relatives and those assisting. The tea table was presided over by Mrs. P. S. Boyd and Mrs. S. H. Hutt.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Riddell of Cardinal, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. J. Payne and Mrs. George Wickmire of Brinston, Ont., Mr. Chas. Burrill and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Strader of Cardinal.

Mr and Mrs. Riddell left on the afternoon train for Montreal and other eastern points. For travelling the bride wore a chic model of grey chevron all wool crepe, with grey hat, shoes and accessories to match.

VAUGHAN—MONTGOMERY

Two popular residents of Iroquois were united in marriage by Rev. Wm. Merrilees at the manse there on Saturday when Miss Rachel Montgomery became the bride of Mr. Charles Vaughan. Mr. Vaughan is employed in the Caldwell Linen Mills. He was born in Belfast, Ireland, and came to this country when young. The bride also was born in Belfast, Ireland, and also came out to this country with her parents at an early age and has resided continuously with her parents in Iroquois since.

BURNED TO DEATH

Wilfred Alchost, 26, of Toronto, married and father of two children, was burned to death in the cab of a truck he was driving to Montreal, when it overturned and caught fire on the Ottawa-Montreal highway, 3 and a half miles west of L'Orignal, yesterday. His companion, Pierre Dominici, of Montreal suffered burns in trying to save Alchost, whose leg had been caught in the wreckage.

OBITUARY

LATE ELIZABETH SHAVER

The funeral of the late Miss Elizabeth Shaver was held to the Iroquois United Church on Friday afternoon, attended by a great gathering of neighbors, friends and relatives. The service was conducted by the Rev. Thomas Knowles, assisted by the Rev. Wm. Merrilees, pastor of the local Presbyterian Church, and the Rev. S. G. Caswell, minister of the Holiness Movement. Arnold Johnston, a cousin of the deceased sang impressively Face to Face. The pastor in his sermon based on a text from Luke 10, 38-39, drew a lesson from the exemplary lives of Mary and Martha and spoke of happy relationships that must have existed in that Christian home. Those relationships typified the common everyday living in the home of the departed sister.

The musical service was a very beautiful one. The usual hymns extolling the dead were lacking and in their place the choir of which Mrs. Hugh Thompson is leader and organist, led the congregation in the singing of well known battle songs of the Cross. Preceding the funeral to the church, a short service was held at her late residence on College street, conducted by the pastor. Interment was in the Point Iroquois United cemetery.

A great bank of floral tributes filled the house, testifying to the deep regard in which Miss Shaver was held by a large circle of friends. The staff of the Iroquois public school attended the service in a body, the school being closed for the afternoon, thus paying a tribute to a beloved citizen and showing affection and sympathy for deceased's sister, Miss Letitia Shaver, who was for many years a valued member of the school staff and through whose hands there passed most of the younger men and women now residing in Iroquois and vicinity.

The late Miss Shaver came of United Empire Loyalist stock. Her grandfather settled on the first concession of Matilda township not far from Iroquois. Her father and mother, the late Hiram A. and Biddy Shaver, settled later in the fifth concession of Matilda, a half mile west of Dixon's Corners. Her father served under Captain McDonald at the famous Battle of the Windmill, just east of Prescott in 1838.

Being in her 85th year, Miss Shaver had had quite a remarkable career. While attending school in Iroquois, when quite a young girl, Miss Shaver well remembered the times when the Fenians raiders made several unsuccessful attacks in the immediate St. Lawrence river district and recalled with interest a consternation evident in the district at the time. Leaving the farm at Dixon's Corners where she was born, Miss Shaver came as a young woman to Iroquois where she lived the greater part of her life.

Among those attending the service were friends and relatives from numerous points in this district, including Iroquois, Shanly, Ottawa, Toronto and elsewhere. Among those in attendance from a distance were: Mrs. David Richards, a sister, of Cleveland, Ohio; Curtis Stillman, nephew, of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Armstrong and Miss Daisy Winning, of Ottawa; also Mrs. John Larmour and Mrs. Wilfred Larmour and Dr. James Ault of Prescott. The pall-bearers were the six Ault brothers, cousins of the deceased, namely, James and Michael, of Cornwall; Jack, of Winchester; Simon, Will and George, of Shanly.

DEATH AT CHESTERVILLE

James Curren, aged 70 years, a resident of Chesterville, died last week at his home there. He was a much respected citizen, and a member of the R. C. Church.

Brockville Presbyterial W. M. S. Hold Annual Sessions at Cardinal

The nineteenth annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Brockville Presbyterial was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Cardinal, on Thursday last week.

Mrs. James S. Riddell, president, was in the chair. An invocation was made by Mrs. H. Hunter followed by the Scripture message by Mrs. A. Melville. Mrs. James Hodge welcomed the visitors and Miss B. Lockerby of Pittston, made fitting reply. Minutes and report of executive meetings were read and adopted. The president, Mrs. Riddell, delivered a very interesting address. Reports from different branches were received and the morning session brought to a close with prayer led by Mrs. Boyd of Spencerville. The treasurer's report was received and presbyterial reports from each secretary. A vocal solo. was rendered by Mrs. George McIlween. Of special interest to the gathering was the presence of Mrs. W. A. McLennan of Toronto, provincial president of the W.M.S., who delivered a very interesting and educational address on the missionary work in the province. Election and installation of officers was held under Mrs. McLennan. A pageant. "Little Soldiers," was ably presented by the Cardinal Mission Band.

At the evening session the Scripture was read by Mrs. Burkholder of Morrisburg. Special music was rendered by the St. Andrew's choir, after which a second address was delivered by the provincial president. Mrs. McLennan was presented with a beautiful bouquet of flowers by little Miss Golda Serviss. Greetings from the presbytery were brought by Rev. A. W. R. McKenzie, of Spencerville.

The following officers were elected: Honorary President, Mrs. J. M. Gill, Brockville; President, Mrs. James Riddell, Spencerville; Vice-President, Mrs. W. D. Turner, Winchester; Recording Secretary Mrs. J. S. Goodfellow, Morrisburg; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. E. C. Pelton, Prescott; Finance Secretary, Mrs. C. Robinson, Winchester. HENRY'S SHORTHAND SCHOOL, OTTAWA.

No school in Canada offers a better training, or ensures a more successful future. Henry's leads all others, and ranks among employers as "THE SCHOOL OF HIGHER EFFICIENCY"—a fact borne out by more than 600 pupils who have, since January, 1913, left other Ottawa Schools to come to it.

Therefore, it is not surprising that business men, in advertising for stenographers should specially say: "Graduates of Henry's School preferred."

Seventh Installment

SYNOPSIS: Pauline, sentimental, trustful, sincere and loving love, becomes engaged and marries Dennis O'Hara in the belief that their blissful happiness will continue unchanged thru all the years. On her wedding morning she awakens with a strange premonition that maybe love does change, a thought buried in her mind by a letter from her closest friend, Barbara the night before. Pauline adored Barbara who had been married, was the mother of a child which died, but now divorced and living a life which some of her friends could not understand. Between Dennis and Barbara is a seeming wall of personal dislike by both. Six months after Pauline's wedding, Barbara comes for a short stay. During this visit Barbara confesses to Pauline that there is a man she really loves, but she refuses to tell his name. Barbara decides suddenly to go home and Pauline insists Dennis drive her to the station. Irritated, Dennis drives recklessly, and they are in a crash. Barbara escapes injury but Dennis' leg is broken. As he returns to consciousness he learns who the man is that Barbara loves. It's himself. Dennis spends several weeks in the hospital. Barbara returns to stay with Pauline, but on one pretext or another fails to visit Dennis with Pauline at the hospital. Pauline plans highly for Dennis' return home . . .Barbara stays only one day after Dennis' return from the hospital. Much against his will Dennis finds a new attraction in Barbara, who plays the same cool and detached role as formerly. A fortnight after Barbara's return to New York, she receives a letter from Pauline that she and Dennis are coming to New York for little vacation.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Then she laughed at herself.

There was nothing in the world to prevent Barbara from going off at any moment she so wished. She was free, and she had plenty of money, but there was nobody with whom she wished to take such a journey.

But if she had been married to Dennis O'Hara—she brushed that thought quickly aside, and went hurriedly to her bath.

Jerry Barnet rang up while she was dressing. "Should have rung before," he explained, "only I thought you'd be asleep. Tired myself this morning. Awful!"

"I'm as fresh as a daisy," Barbara told him cuttingly. "And I will have to tell you it's all off for Wednesday."

"Oh, I say!"

"Yes; I've got some people coming up from the country," Barbara explained coolly. "And I've got to show them around. Awful bore!"

"Who are they? Didn't know you had any country relations."

"I haven't. It's Pauline and Dennis O'Hara. They're tired of rusticating and want a change."

"Well, you'll want a fourth, so what about me?"

Barbara hesitated, then she laughed. "Oh, very well. You'll like Pauline, she's pretty and—innocent."

"That's another word for stupid."

"You think so? Well, you must judge for yourself. They're going to stay at the Albion—deadly respectable, isn't it? I thought a little supper after a show on Wednesday night. Reserve a table somewhere, will you?"

"All right, but I shall see you tonight? We're going to the Venners'. It seems ages since last night."

"All right."

She rang off, frowning. If only Jerry wouldn't be so slavish. No doubt some women would love such devotion, but she found it irritating. He ought to have married a woman like Pauline.

Barbara spent the morning at her dressmaker's. Madame Céleste had some new creations freshly arrived from Paris that morning, so she untruthfully said. She showed Barbara all her most expensive and exotic models, but Barbara would have none of them.

"I going to change my style," she said coolly. "Show me something simple—black or white — nothing Oriental."

But, madame—" Céleste was the picture of grief-stricken amazement. Barbara cut her short.

"You heard what I said—something simple in black or white. If you haven't got anything I can go elsewhere."

"I suppose I'm mad—utterly mad she told herself as she drove away. "But it's nice to be different sometimes—it's as good as a holiday," and she thought again of Dennis.

If they could have spent a holiday together! For a moment she let her imagination have full play. She and Dennis down by the sea, walking hand in hand along golden sands with the fresh breeze blowing in their faces. They would be young together, with everything else in the world forgotten. She wrenched her wandering thoughts back to sanity. Dennis did not love her and, even if he did, how soon would they grow weary of each other? No, no, it was far better as it was. Pauline was the wife for him.

Pauline was the kind of woman to make a home for such a man as Dennis. And yet it was by his choice that they were coming to town.

Why had he done it? Barbara told herself she did not know, could not guess, and yet—deep down in her heart there was a little fluttering hope that it was because he wanted to see her.

"You're a fool!" she told herself pityingly again and again, and could only remember that it is better far to be a fool in Paradise than to be wise and have no Paradise at all.

Barbara made Jerry Barnet go with her to meet the O'Haras. It was a pouring wet evening, and New York looked at its worse. Barbara slipped a hand through Jerry's arm as they walked up and down the platform.

—— Suddenly Jerry caught her to him. "Barbara—darling ——"

"You look very young to-night," he said. He pressed her hand close to his side. "I like you in that get-up. New, isn't it?"

"Oh, I've had it some time!" Barbara said carelessly, but she flushed and wondered what he would say if she told him it was all new and expressly bought for Dennis O'Hara.

She had not slept a wink all night; she had lain awake like an excited girl waiting for the man she loved.

"So absurd!" she scolded herself. "After all the experience I've had of men. Of course, it won't last—it's just another of my fancies." She tried to believe in her own words, but it was difficult. She had loved Dennis for so long—more than a year—and a year was a great time to Barbara. And now Dennis was coming to New York. In another moment she would see him and read the usual almost angry disapproval in his eyes. She gave a little stifled laugh, and Jerry looked down at her.

"What's the joke? Let's share it!"

"I am wondering how you will like my friends."

"Oh, all right, I expect! Stormaway likes O'Hara. I told you."

"Yes—did he say anything about Pauline?"

"Only that she was young—just a kid."

"Yes." Barbara's heart contracted. She was so much older than Pauline, in experience if not in actual years. She wondered if she would have stood a better chance with Dennis if she had met him sooner—before her marriage, before she had cultivated this hard, cynical attitude toward life, to hide from the world her bitter hurt and disillusionment. She had done it so well that everybody accepted it now as her real self—all except Pauline, that is—simple little Pauline who loved her and believed in her in spite of what other people said.

"Here comes the train," Jerry broke in upon her thoughts, and she drew her hand from his arm and hurried forward. Pauline was at the window, smiling and eager. Barbara saw Dennis lay a hand on her shoulder and heard him say: "Wait till the train stops; there is plenty of time."

Then it stopped, and Pauline opened the door and almost fell into her friend's unresponsive arms.

"How lovely to see you again. It seems years. We've brought an awful lot of luggage. I don't believe it will all go on one taxi!"

"I made Jerry bring his car," Barbara said coolly, though her pulses were racing. She introduced them. "Mr. Barnet—Mrs. O'Hara, Mr. O'Hara."

Dennis and Jerry shook hands.

"It's very kind of you to have met us," said Dennis, looking at Barbara.

"Not at all. Get a porter, Jerry. I don't call this much luggage, my child," she told Pauline when it was collected.

They got into the car—Dennis in front with Jerry, and the two girls behind.

"We've got tickets for a show to-night," Barbara said; "and we've booked a table for supper afterward."

"Oh, but Dennis ought to rest," Pauline broke out agitatedly.

"Nonsense." There was a sharp note in her husband's voice. "It's not nearly so tiring sitting in a train as it is trying to drag myself about the house."

Pauline's face quivered. "Of course, if you're not tired—" she faltered. They reached the hotel.

"We'll call for you at half-past seven," Barbara said. "No, we won't come in now—you'll want to unpack. So glad you've come."

She blew Pauline a kiss and leaned back with a sigh. "Take me home, Jerry. I feel exhausted."

"You go and dress and come back for me, and don't be late," said Barbara at her door.

He was amazed, when on arriving again at the flat he found her dressed and waiting.

"Great Scott!" he whistled lookin her over from head to foot. Barbara laughed. "Do you like me? No lipstick — no earrings — no nothing you've always been used to."

He drew a quick breath.

"Jove it's not you! But all the same —you're divine."

She swept him a mock curtsey, her eyes bright with excitement.

Jerry took her hand and, bending, kissed it.

"I'm almost afraid of you, and yet —" Suddenly he caught her to him. "Barbara—darling—"

She wrenched herself free from his passionate arms.

"Let me go—beast! Beast!"

Jerry Barnet was crimson with anger.

"Anyone would think you'd never been kissed before—what the deuce is the matter? Other times you've never objected. Oh, I say, chuck it, Barbara!" for she had begun to sob, tearlessly, but with infinite pathos.

He had never seen her give way to emotion before, and he was angry and distressed. It was almost as if with her new mode of dressing she had changed her nature too. "Chuck it!" he said again, with a choke in his voice. "I didn't know. I'm awfully sorry. It's not as if I've never kissed you before, or any other man."

"I know!" She struggled in vain for composure. "I know—I'm cheap —second hand!" She laughed valiantly. "Don't take any notice. Get me a drink."

Jerry brought her the drink. His hand shook a little, and his eyes were ashamed, though he could not have explained why.

"Sorry!" he said hoarsely. "Beastly sorry! I'd rather have died than upset you. Awful!"

"Idiot!" She forced a smile, and drained the glass he gave her. "Forget it. It's too many late nights—my nerves are upset. I'll have to put some colour on after all, I look a sight."

She kept him waiting ten minutes, and he avoided looking at her as they left the flat together. He was a bungler, but somewhere at the back of his slow mind he realized that he had hurt her intolerably, misunderstood her.

In the car he said: "Would you rather not go? I'll explain to O'Hara."

"My God!" Barbara said violently. "What do you take me for? If you ever breathe a word I'll never speak to you again."

They drove to the Albion in silence.

"You wait. I'll fetch them," Barbara said. She was out of the car before he could stop her. In the lounge she met Dennis.

HOW THE FARMERS ARE ROBBED

Anyone following the evidence being presented to the Ottawa milk probe says the Alliston Herald is getting the details of any orgy of high financing as well as the persistence with which the farmer is mulcted. A Toronto dairy company with an original capitalization of $40,000 and no additional money added made a profit of $23,613.67 in 1928. This company sold out to Bordens Limited in 1929 for $695,520. In fifteen years that original $40,000 was increased to practically $700,000 without a dollar of money coming from stockholders. It was disclosed that the average price paid by the Toronto consumer of milk is 10.03 cents while the dairyman who produces the milk gets $1.48 per hundred pounds. Another sensation of last week was an affidavit from a former witness before the probe. He stated that after he testified he had been informed by the Dairy Co. that they would no longer buy his milk.

HE APPEALED TO YOUNG MEN

Major S. J. Robbins, of Toronto, was guest speaker at the regular weekly luncheon of the Smiths Falls Rotary Club last Friday, delivering an inspiring address in which he urged that young men accept their full responsibility as Canadian citizens. This age was a wonderful one, he declared, and Canada's future would largely be determined by the young men of today who would lay the foundation for a superstructure which would remain long after they had perished. He touched upon the high cost of government here and declared that Canada was overgoverned. He urged that young men drive out of public life anything that savored of corruption and, in this manner, prepare their country for the great years to come.

Well-Known Preacher Passes Awany.

Rev. Wesley H. Raney, B.A., B.D., pastor of Epworth United Church at Kingsville, Ont., one-time chairman of the Ottawa district of the Methodist Church and well known minister in Eastern Ontario, died at his home in Kingsville.

In the ministry for nearly 40 years, Rev. Mr. Raney was a former minister at South Mountain, Ottawa South, Westboro, Renfrew, St. Mary's and Kingsville. He had been called to the United church at Kingsville last year. It was during the latter years of and shortly after the war that he had been chairman of the Ottawa district for the Methodist Church.

He was born in Aultsville, Ont., a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Herman Raney of that place, and received his education at Queen's University. His brother is Mr. Justice Edgar Raney of Toronto.

The remains were interred in Beachwood cemetery, Ottawa.

STAMPING OUT DIPHTHERIA

Before the discovery of the antitoxin treatment for diphtheria that fell disease annually took a terrible toll of child lives, the mortality among those attacked ranging anywhere from 30 to 50 per cent., and this despite the endeavors of the most experienced physicians. With the employment of the serum the death rate has been greatly reduced, being as low as eight per cent., even in virulent cases. If the anti-toxin treatment is applied the first day there is very little danger. It is a case of the earlier the better. Hence the advisability of calling a physician immediately a sore throat is noticed in a child.

In Water 726 Hours Comes Out Unharmed!

Research Efforts of Manufacturer Rewarded. Announce New Product

To prove the moisture resisting qualities of a new household decorative enamel recently introduced to the Canadian Market, a toothbrush holder, painted with Nepto-Lac was immersed in a beaker of water for 726 hours without damage to the finish. This test was one of many made by The Lowe Brothers Company, manufacturers of "High Standard" Paints and Varnishes, and sponsors of this Super Enamel which is known as Nepto-Lac Porcelain Finish Enamel.

Nepto-Lac pioneers Heat and Moisture Resisting features in Quick Drying Enamels. It can be used as successfully on cooking utensils and articles subject to moisture as it can on furniture and cement floors; walls and porch floors.

Color Charts of this product include many practical decorative color schemes, which may be had through the exclusive local agent—

Canada's Liquor Bill

A short time ago, the General Manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia called attention to the fact that Canada's export trade had dropped 65 per cent in the year ending September 1932, as compared with the year ending September 1929. Other reliable authorities place the shrinkage in the value of farm products in a like period at 58 per cent.

In view of these appalling shrinkages of approximately three-fifths, the liquor business in Canada has shown remarkable resiliency. From the high of the year 1929-1930, which reached $193,620,674.00, it has fallen in the last year of record (1931-1932) slightly over 27 per cent., or not half that of the general decline of business as shown above. The figure for the last year of record (1931-1932) based on the reports of the Liquor Control Boards of the eight provinces with certain additions where sale of beer and wine by individuals is allowed, and including the cost of individual permits, makes an approximate total for the legal sale of liquor in the eight Government Control Provinces of $141,-045,307.

This absorption of purchasing power by the liquor trade is startling when seen in the light of the following comparisons:

The wheat exports from Canada during the twelve months ending January 31, 1933, reached a value slightly below $130,000,000, or eleven million dollars less than the liquor bill of Canada for the last year of record, without any allowance whatever for very considerable illegal sales.

The total exports of Canada to Great Britain in the year ending March 31, 1932, were valued at $174,-000,000, but the legal liquor sales for the liquor year 1930-1931 amounted to $173,000,000. In other words, had the money spent in liquor been diverted to necessary trades it would have provided an additional domestic market for Canadian goods equal to the much prized market of Great Britain.

The Hon. Chas. McCrea recently called attention to the phenomenal rise of Canada's gold production. He stated with pride that from April 1, 1929 to December 31, 1932, a period of three and three-quarter years, Canada had produced gold to the value of $192,500,000; but in one year of that time, 1929-1930, a year of depression, there was spent in Canada for legal retail purchase of liquor $193,600,000, or $1,100,000 more than all the gold produced in three and three-quarter years.

Surely neither the pocket nor the intelligence of Canada can long continue to endure such a situation.—From the office of Ontario Prohibition Union.

HARD LUCK INDEED

If any person is inclined to think that he is a victim of ill-luck, let him consider the case of Edward C. Kirk, 57 years old, of Charleston, West Virginia.

On November 13, 1931, Mr. Kirk was struck by a train and lost a leg.

A year later, he was struck by a motor car and lost his left eye.

A few days ago he reached out of bed for his artificial leg. His glass eye failed to register a gun that was lying on a dresser. The gun dropped to the floor, exploded and sent a bullet into his right arm.

And now Kirk is minus an arm as well as a leg and eye.

That is real hard luck.

WORRY AND ACCOMPLISHMENT

A story is told about a very old man, who, when about to die called all his children to his bedside. He gave them a lot of fatherly advice, and among other things, he said, "During the course of my life, I have worried a great many hours over a great many troubles, but in the final analysis I now find that most of the troubles failed to materialize. Worry, my children, only magnifies the trouble, and makes it more difficult to surmount."

PLANTING TREES

Dr. M. W. Locke, of Williamsburg, who recently purchased what is known as the large Dillen farm on the northern outskirts of Morrisburg, is carrying out an extensive reforestation scheme on the property. Under the direction of the Forestry branch at Toronto, men are now engaged in setting out 2,000 red pines, 9,000 Scotch pines, 5,000 white spruce and 2,000 Norway spruce on the property.

Presidents E. W. Beatty of the C. P. R. says that only three of the 26,000,-000 passengers who travelled by train in Canada in the year 1931 were killed in accidents. In the same year automobile fatalities in Canada numbered 1,314. The moral to this is to travel by train.

Fourth In Family To Meet Tragic Death

Emilien Gatien, aged 22 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ludger Gatien, of Cornwall, lost his life by drowning at the east end wharf, Cornwall, on Saturday night. He and Oscar Giroux and Lionel Villemaire had been out in a boat fishing and as they rounded a pier near the wharf, their boat was caught by the high wind and strong current off the point and capsized, throwing the three men into the river. Gatien did not succeed in reaching the upturned boat, but Giroux and Villemaire clung thereto and were rescued by members of the crew of the yacht Kenkora of Chicago, which was tied up at the wharf on account of the gale which was blowing.

This is the fourth member of the Gatien family to meet an untimely death. The oldest daughter, Victoria, aged 22, was kicked by a horse when the family resided at Embrun 14 years and died a week later; six years ago another daughter, Lucia, aged 18, was drowned at St. Lawrence Park here. Ernest Gatien, a son, aged 24, was murdered about two years ago, when struck on the head by an oar during an altercation with an Indian. An Indian named Jocko was arrested charged with murder and was tried, retried and acquitted and the murder was never solved.

As the rowboat turned over, Gatien, who was a good swimmer, told his companions to cling to the boat and he would save himself. As he struck out for the pier, about 50 feet away, he suddenly sank and never reappeared.

GENEROUS WILL ROGERS

Will Rogers, the comedian, goes on the radio for seven weeks for an oil company. He will receive $5,000 a week, but he is turning it over to the American Red Cross and the Salvation Army.

"Here is how this rough and tumble broadcastin' thing come about," he writes. "The oil company kept wantin' me, to litter up the microphone with some Oklahoma grammar. Now Amos 'n' Andy, Jack Pearl, Wynn, Vallee or Cantor have never had any cause to be jealous of me in their industry, but I did want to make a contribution to a couple of good causes that had done such fine work durin' our earthquake and I didn't have the dough to do it with, so Mrs. Rogers figgered it out, as she does most of the other things. She says, 'You got the wind to do it,' so she figgered out how I do it with just talk, which I would be doin' for nothin' anyhow to anybody I could hem up and make listen to me, so I am to preach for seven Sundays, and the oil company is to take all the money and send half of it to the Red Cross and the other half to the Salvation Army, both to be used for unemployment relief. So I got nothin' to lose in the transaction but my voice and I never lost it yet. The only one I see can lose is the oil company, that is if they don't sell enough gas to pay for the gas they bought from me. So soon as I get through they will mail your cheque. Don't thank me, thank the oil company, or better still, thank the listeners. They will be the sufferers."

HOW THOUGHTLESS PEOPLE AND ORGANIZATIONS TREAT THEIR BEST FRIEND

(Arnprior Chronicle.)

More and more it is being brought home to us that we have people in this town who are not seemingly very appreciative to The Chronicle for giving them countless columns of "free" publicity for their pet schemes. Few, if any, of these organizations can get along without publicity. Publicity is their life blood. Without it, they might not last very long. The Chronicle has been more than kind to these organizations. It has "covered" every event of importance that they have ever pulled off. It has "front-paged" them times without number, and in doing so has left out other matter which might have been more important to its readers. It has published free all their notices of meetings. And yet, in the face of all this, if they think they can save a nickel by getting their printing done elsewhere, they don't come here. Would you, or could you, blame us if in future we demanded payment for every notice they may wish inserted in this paper? Who are the people who deserve th most consideration from a newspaper anyway—those who help to keep it going by patronizing it without doubt or question, or the "price-peddlers" who take everything but give nothing in return? Why should a newspaper be compelled to call attention in its columns to these things? Why shouldn't people play fair, without having to be coaxed, to a newspaper that has always played fair with them?

BRUCE BARTON

...writes of "THE MASTER EXECUTIVE"

Supplying a week-to-week inspiration for the heavy-burdened who will find every human trial paralleled in the experiences of "The Man Nobody Knows."

THE MODERN MARKET PLACE

"YOU mean that we ought to do street preaching," a preacher once asked me.

But street preaching is not at all analogous to what Jesus did. The cities in which He worked were both small and leisurely; the market was a gathering place where everybody came at some time—the transfer place for all merchandise and for ideas. Where will you find such a market-place in modern days? A corner of Fifth Avenue? A block on Broadway? Only a tiny fraction of the city's people pass any given point in the down-town district on any given day. A man might stand and preach for years at Fifth Avenue and Thirtieth Street, and only one in a hundred thousand would ever know that he lived.

Bruce Barton

No; the present day market-place is the newspaper and magazine. Printed columns are the modern thoroughfares; published advertisements are the cross-roads where the sellers and the buyers meet. Any issue of a national magazine is a world's fair, a bazaar filled with the products of the world's work. Clothes and clocks and candlesticks; soup and soap and cigarettes; lingeries and limousines—the best of all of them are there, proclaimed by their makers in persuasive tones. That every other voice should be raised in such great market-places, and the voice of Jesus of Nazareth be still—this is a vital omission which He would find a way to correct. He would be a national advertiser today, I am sure, as He was the great advertiser of His own day. To the minds of those who hurry through the bristling pages, He too would send his call:

What shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul; or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?

This would be His challenge in every newspaper and magazine; and with it would be coupled an invitation to share in the joyous enterprise of His work.

A very successful publisher has a rule that no photograph shall ever be printed in his newspapers unless it contains human beings. You and I are interested most of all in ourselves; next to that we are interested in other people. What do they look like? How old are they? What have they done and said? With unerring instinct Jesus recognized and used this trait in human nature. One of the most revealing of all verses to those who would understand the secret of His power is this: "All these things spake Jesus unto the multitude in parables; and without a parable spake He not unto them." A parable is a story. He told them stories, stories about people, and let the stories carry His message. He might have adopted very different methods—many teachers and would-be leaders do. He might have dealt in generalities.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Charles E. Dunn

Jesus Answers His Adversaries
Lesson for May 21st. Mark 12:1-44.
Golden Text: John 7:46.

Rev. Chas. E. Dunn

Our lesson deals with the events of Tuesday of Holy Week, the day of controversy. The sticklers for the law, who specialized in the fine art of theological hair-splitting, then endeavored to entangle the Master within the web of their subtle arguments. They were determined to impale Him on the horns of their dilemmas. Crafty catch questions were their stock in trade.

First they asked Jesus whether the imperial taxes should be paid or not. The Pharisees objected to the tax assessments of Rome, arguing that the payment of tribute to Caesar was an act of disobedience to God. If Jesus answered "Yes," He would thereby expose Himself to their attack, eager as they were to accuse Him of lack of loyalty to His own people and tradition. On the other hand, if He answered "No", He would at once anger the Herodians, who truckled to the Romans, favoring, in opposition to the Pharisees, the payment of the imposed taxes.

The Master wisely avoided a "Yes" or "No" reply. It is possible, He insists, in His famous answer, to be obedient both to Caesar and to God, to the state and the Church.

Now came the priestly Sadducees with their artificial query concerning the woman with seven husbands. "Whose wife shall she be at the resurrection?" they demanded. It was a silly question, but presented a golden opportunity to the Master. Skillfully He lifted the problem into a region far above the quibbling of His questioners. In the risen life beyond life, He insisted, persons dwell not as husbands and wives, but as the angels of God, communing with Him Who is not the God of the dead, but of the living.

Then came the scribe seeking to know what is the first commandment. With superb insight Jesus combined two declarations from the Mosaic law. The first duty of man, He answered, is to love God with one's whole heart, soul, mind and strength. And the second duty is to love our neighbors as we love ourselves. To this the scribe assented, and was told he was not far from God's Realm.

The marriage took place at the Lutheran Parsonage, Morrisburg, May 9, 1933, by Rev. W. A. Mehleunbacher, of Hilda E. Casselman, only daugther of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Casselman, to Frank S. McMillan, son of Mrs. Florence Becker, both of Williamsburg.

HALLVILLE Y. P. S.

On Friday evening the members of Hallville St. Andrew's Young People's Society met in the basement of the church for their final meeting of the season. The vice-president, Miss Lillian Dougall, took charge of the devotional service, after which Rev. D. Morrison led in an interesting discussion on "Citizenship." This discussion was based on the four "Absolutes of the Oxford Group Movement—honesty, purity, unselfishness and love. Mr. Charles Hyndman was appointed captain of the young people's softball team, to be assisted by Claire Hyndman.

BRIGHTER OUTLOOK

SAY WORLD ECONOMISTS — SO CHEER UP

Carloadings, on which President Roosevelt, in a recent speech, based in large degree his optimistic estimate of trade conditions, continue to reflect in a positive way returning strength to the economic structure in Canada. For the fortnight ended May 6 there was a gain in volume over the preceding fortnight of 9,166 carloads. As compared with the corresponding period of 1932 there was still a shrinkage of 11.48 per cent.; but that was much the lowest since the temporary advance in traffic last October. For the whole of the current year the average contraction under last year has been about twice that figure.

Proofs of Betterment

The proofs of betterment in this fortnight under review were numerous and comprehensive. In the first place, there were actual gains for the Dominion over last year in four out of the eleven commodity classes, which had not occurred in three years. As for the growth in volume, it applied to eight out of the eleven commodity classes in the first week of the fortnight, and to seven in the second. The significance of this will be seen when it is pointed out that in the corresponding fortnight of last year there was a decrease of 221 carloads. The contrast is convincing. This upswing in carloading was coincident with gains in bank clearings, which constitute the next best barometer of business.

The swelling of traffic was general over the whole Dominion. In the eastern division the gains for the first week applied to five commodity classes, and in the second week to the same number. In the western division for the first week the increases were in seven classes, and in the second in four. The total gain in volume for the country as a whole was the largest for any fortnight since 1929.

Substantial Improvement.

There was a substantial improvement in grain movement, shipments of livestock advanced strikingly, and pulpwood was more actively on the bright side than for several years. Lumber gained 116 carloads in the first week and 121 in the second, which was a peculiarly stimulating change. Ore, which has been terribly depressed, was only 84 carloads under last year. In the western division, it made positive gains over last year in both weeks. A further assurance of a favorable turn in the tide was given by a strong upturn in both merchandise and miscellaneous.

The analyst attaches special significance to the fact that during the past three years this particular time of the year has shown marked traffic weakness. All the signs were present during the past three weeks which have hitherto preceded a definite and sustained upward movement. It may therefore be said that, beyond all doubt, the outlook is brighter than it has been at any time since the current depression began.

WILL BE WELL ENTERTAINED

Members of the 100 Club, who may find it convenient to attend the annual convention to be held at Perth on June 5th, are to be well entertained according to reports. There will be a banquet, a ball, and various other kinds of entertainment.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE

On Friday last Jack Hill suffered a painful injury while operating a manure carrier on his father's farm at Bouck's Hill. A wheel broke and a deep wound was inflicted on his forehead by a flying piece of iron. Dr. Locke gave him immediate attention, a couple of stitches being necessary to close the wound.

SOMEWHAT CONFUSING

To any who are inclined to lend their presence and patronize to good entertainments, to-morrow night will prove somewhat of a test on their desire to serve and please all. There is the meeting of the Canadian Club at Morrisburg, which many of our citizens will attend. Then there is a concert in the town hall that should prove a big attraction. It is also the regular meeting night of the Winchester 100 Club. We do not know how many church organizations meet tomorrow night, but it would be strange if there were not several. So far as entertainment is concerned ther is no depression in this section.

JAMES FISHER

VERNON, Ont., May 16.—A very highly respected resident of this district passed away at his home on Saturday morning in the person of James Fisher. A devoted member of the Vernon Presbyterian Church, deceased was for many years choir leader. He also was an elder in the church. He leaves to mourn his passing his widow, formerly Margaret McRuer of Kenmore and one son, Stewart, at home. The funeral service was held from his late residence on Monday afternoon, service being conducted by Rev. J. M. Kellock. Interment was in Spring Hill cemetery.

SUICIDE AT CARDINAL

Walter Preston, 63 years old, committed suicide at Cardinal Saturday by hanging himself with a bathrobe cord in a stairway at his home. His wife went out about 10 p.m. and upon her return one hour later found him. Calling neighbors, they immediately cut the rope but life was extinct. Coroner Dr. MacPherson was called and decided an inquest unnecessary. Mr. Preston had lived most of his life in Cardinal and vicinity and no reason can be given for his rash act. He leaves his widow, two brothers, William, of Edwardsburg, and Fred, of Prescott, and one sister, Mrs. Potter.

A NEAR ACCIDENT

As an illustration of how very careful drivers of trucks should be, there came near being a serious accident on St. Lawrence Street this morning. A truck loaded with swine was passing north at a good rate, and there projected from the side of the truck a plank, fully six feet. It could not help but hit something when there was any traffic. A car parked just north of Duncan's book store got the blow, and while the damage was not great it might have been, and had anyone been standing near the car they would have been knocked down. The driver said he had tied the plank before starting his trip, but it worked loose and he did not know it. It would be a poor excuse in law, and in these days anyone carrying anything on truck or car has no right to have it projecting beyond its body.

WINCHESTER MASONS VISIT RUSSELL

Monday night of this week several carloads of Winchester Masons visited Russell, it being the occasion of the official visit to that Lodge of Rt. Wor. Bro. Karl B. Konger, of Ottawa, District Deputy Grand Master of Ottawa District No. 16. As usual when Russell entertains the D.D.G.M. there was a large attendance of the Brethren, approximately one hundred and seventy-five being present and no less than fifteen lodges were represented, namely: Doric, Plantagenet, Prince of Wales, St. Andrews, Ashlar, Builders, Fidelity, Chesterville, Winchester, Maxville, Rideau, Ionic, Chaudiere, Ulster, Sydney Albert Luke.

For the entertainment of the guests Russell Lodge in a most skilled manner exemplified certain important features of the "Work," after which all retired to the Presbyterian Church where a nice warm supper was in waiting.

Russell has long been recognized as the beacon light for foot weary and hungry Masonic pilgrims and thus instead of this large attendance being unusual it would be quite unusual were it otherwise.

One of the speakers referred to Russell Lodge as the Mecca of Freemasonry and this in a sense does indeed seem to be a fact.

Rt. Wor. Bro. Konger was accompanied by many distinguished Brethren amongst whom was noticed Rt. Wor. Bro. Dr. J. O. Dobbie, Superintendent of the Civic Hospital, Ottawa. The speeches without exception were brief and good, the spirit of comradeship which prevailed was of the highest quality and, about midnight when the Brethren somewhat reluctantly turned their headlights homeward it was felt that Russell Lodge is a very good place indeed to visit and that we will have to go over there again some time.

Mr. Dan Preston, C.P.R. agent at Bellemy, was a Sunday guest of his mother, here.

Mrs. Jas. Sorensen, of Montreal, spent the week-end with her sister, Mrs. E. M. Shaver.

Mr. Wm. Price, of Picton, Ontario, spent the week-end with his mother and other friends here.

Mrs. T. O'Dell, of Ottawa, who spent last week the guest of Mrs. A. Sweet, returned home on Saturday.

Mrs. Rob Kirkwood and Mrs. Elzie Johnston attended the Presbyterian Convention in Cardinal last Thursday.

Mrs. Joseph Robinson, who was a patient at the Civic Hospital, Ottawa, for a few weeks, returned a few days ago.

Mrs. W. S. Odell, of Ottawa returned to her home on Saturday, after a visit with Mrs. Aaron Sweet in Winchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wood and daughter, Jean, Mrs. Christie, of Ottawa, spent Sunday with their mother, Mrs. J. E. Hutt.

Mr. F. Cass, who is a student of Toronto University, spent the week-end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Cass.

Mr. W. H. Agnew had his tonsils removed at the Kingston General Hospital last Saturday and expects to return home the first of next week.

Mrs. Annie Hughes, of Hamilton, and Mr. and Mrs. Duvell, Mrs. T. H. Boulden, Miss Georgia Duvell, of Brockville, were guests at the home of Mrs. Percy Durant on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kirkley, of Prescott, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Patterson, of Syracuse, N.Y., Mrs. Newel Weatherup and son, Junior, of Renessaler Falls, N.Y., and Mrs. Sweeny, of Cardinal, were Monday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rob. Kirkwood.

Rev. J. F. and Mrs. Dingman, of Dresden, Ont., Mrs. James Burleigh, of Smiths Falls, Mrs. (Dr.) Solley and daughter, of Rome, N.Y., Dr. John Flagg and Dr. Charles Flagg, of Buffalo, N.Y., Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Carr, of Morrisburg, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Sweet on Tuesday last.

Mr. Keith Munro, of the editorial staff of the Toronto Daily Star, visited his mother here on Saturday last. On Sunday, accompanied by Dr. P. McLaughlin, he motored back to Toronto. Dr. McLaughlin will attend the medical convention being held in Toronto this week. He will also visit his son, Dr. R. McLaughlin, at Paris, Ont., while he is in the West.

MEDICINAL CLAY FOUND.

Canadian Doctor Made Discovery Accidentally In the Rockies.

Semi-collodial clay deposits, unique among mineral finds, have been discovered in hidden recesses of the Rocky Mountains, near Jasper National Park. New York and German analysts declare samples of this medicinal deposit contain unusual characteristics. Apparently no other similar clays exist in the world.

A prominent Canadian doctor made the discovery accidentally. Camped in the Rockies with some friends, the doctor found himself without his medicine kit when one of them was stricken with lumbago. A party of Indians informed him of this wonderful clay used by them for ailments.

A plaster of the raw clay was applied to the sick friend's back with effective results. The doctor staked the property and analysts have revealed the clay had almost uncanny curative properties and a rejuvenation effect on the human skin, bordering on the magical, it was stated.

Edmonton is the center of this new industry the product of which is carried from the Rocky Mountains' deposits to laboratories in that city.

SNAKE WORSHIPPERS.

Strange Tribe In South Seas Now Almost Vanished.

Remnants of a strange tribe of snake worshippers in the highlands of New Georgia, one of the Solomon Islands, are reported by J. H. L. Waterhouse in the British anthropological journal, "Man."

These people are known as the Kazukurus. No white man, says Waterhouse, ever has seen one of their village sites in the rough hill country and very few of them are left, although there is a mixture of their blood in the rest of the New Georgia population.

A Kazukuru altar is an uprooted tree placed in an inverted position so that the roots are uppermost. All sorts of snakes are held sacred. They also are reported to consider the crab a holy animal.

The tribe has been almost wiped out by leprosy. Waterhouse obtained a vocabulary of several hundred Kazukuru words from which it may be possible to trace the racial connections of the almost vanished primitives.
