Come To The Fair--

Local Fair Preparations Complete

Chesterville and District Agricultural Society members have just about completed preparations for the twenty-sixth annual exhibition at the fair grounds. Paint and polish and last minute preparations have kept the executive and secretary hustling.

This year is the year for the Dundas County Black and White Show for Holsteins here, held every other year with Mountain Fair. The Holsteins will be out in force as will the Guernsey herds to capture the silver in the Eastern Ontario Guernsey Club showing. All other breeds will be represented with Jerseys, Ayrshires and beef breds having their showings.

Horse classes are complete as usual and the only missing class is that of poultry. It was decided to discontinue the class this year because of little interest in the division.

Domestic science, crafts, dairy, swine and sheep as well as the club competitions will make a full showing for the day. This year entertainment is promised by March Shows with rides, swings, and varied games.

Booth concessions have been going well and the sound of barkers and the hot smell of hot dogs and 'burgers should make every visitor's mouth water. The fair this year promises to be one of fun and games and good displays.

See you at the Fair.

YOUTH GROUP AT PROJECT—An outstanding group of young men and young women, members of the Commonwealth Youth Quest who are currently touring Canada, visited Ontario Hydro St. Lawrence Power Project recently. This group tour is an annual affair arranged by Major Ney. The object of the tour is to promote better understanding among young people of British Commonwealth countries. The group is shown standing on the temporary cofferdam in front of the powerhouse of the St. Lawrence Project.—Ontario Hydro Photo.

Fetterly Family Holds Annual Picnic

Members of the late Mr and Mrs James Fetterly's family enjoyed their annual picnic at the summer home of Mr and Mrs Hugh Fetterly, at Ile Cadieux, Que., on Sunday.

Members present were Mr and Mrs Gordon Countryman, South Porcupine; Mr and Mrs Wm. Hepburn, Mrs Thos. Hepburn, Keith Hepburn, Miss Gail Devine, Ottawa; Mr and Mrs Mack Summers, Smiths Falls; Mr and Mrs Allen Summers, Mr and Mrs Clark Curtis and Douglas, Mr and Mrs Randall Wylie, Allen, Joan, Janice, Mr and Mrs Howard Fetterly, Mr and Mrs Reggie Fetterly and son, all of Winchester.

Mr and Mrs Ralph Steinburg, Marilyn, Shirley, Katherine, Clifford, Harold Fetterly, Mr and Mrs J. V. Fetterly, Kenneth Carruthers, all of Morewood; Mr and Mrs Wm. Fetterly, Mr and Mrs Wilburn Robinson, Lois, Hugh, Chesterville; Mrs Evelyn Ormerod, Mr and Mrs T. Cowan, Montreal; Ray Fetterly, Lachine Que.

Mr and Mrs Skunk had two sons, In and Out. When Out was in In was out.

One dark night, however, Mr Skunk couldn't tell who was In or Out so he asked his wife. Mrs Skunk said In was out.

Mr Skunk: "How do you know that?"

Mrs Skunk: "Instinct."

See you at Chesterville Fair.

M. N. Hutchinson New P.S. Inspector

A veteran of the Royal Canadian Air Force who served in Canada, Europe and the Middle East during the Second World War, will become Dundas County's new Public School Inspector on September 1. He is N. M. "Hugh" Hutchinson, of Hamilton, Ont., who succeeds Mr W. J. Stewart, retiring Inspector.

Mr Hutchinson is a native of Edinburgh Scotland, where he was educated at George Watson's Boys' College. He later graduated from McMaster University at Hamilton with his Bachelor of Arts degree with honours. He has taught in rural and urban schools in Ontario and comes to the county highly recommended.

Mr Hutchinson is married to the former Jean Blair, of Trenton. They have two children, a 16-year-old daughter in high school and a 7-year-old son starting to public school. Mr and Mrs Hutchinson and family attend the Presbyterian Church and they will reside in Winchester.

Brunette–MacMillan

Marion Helen MacMillan, Chesterville, and Murray Albert Brunette, of Ottawa, were united in marriage on Saturday, August 17, in St. Mary's Church, Chesterville. The bride is the daughter of Mr and Mrs Eric MacMillan, of Chesterville, and the groom is the son of Mr and Mrs Albert Brunette, Ottawa.

Pink and white gladioli formed the setting for the double ring ceremony which was performed by Rev Father Collins. Miss Addie Campderros was soloist and Rev Sister Mary Remegius was organist.

Miss Madeline MacMillan, Ottawa, was maid of honour for her sister and Miss Margaret MacMillan was bridesmaid.

The best man was Mr Ernest Martel, Ottawa, and ushers were Leonard Miriguay, Ottawa, and Richard Chambers, of Chesterville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of nylon net and French lace over taffeta, fashioned with a Sabrina neckline embroidered with sequins and seed pearls, lily point sleeves and a bouffant skirt of lace and nylon net. A crown of seed pearls held her fingertip veil in place. Her bouquet was of Sweetheart roses.

A reception was held in Canadian Legion Hall in Chesterville. Following the reception, Mr and Mrs Brunette left for a wedding trip to the New England States. For travelling the bride wore a blue suit with navy accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

On their return, Mr and Mrs Brunette will reside in Ottawa.

SENTECED ONE YEAR FOR CAR THEFT

Max P. Laszewski, Berwick, was sentenced in court last week to 12 months in a reformatory after pleading guilty to stealing a car worth $900 from a Cornwall resident August 6.

After taking the car belonging to Claude Lalonde, the accused repainted it and sold the car's radio in the city.

He was apprehended in Cornwall August 13 while in possession of the car.

Chesterville Fair: Sept. 3 and 4.

SMALL WORLD

Clarence Marshall, of Brockville, who spent his first fourteen years in Chesterville, had dinner last week with an old school friend, Bill Hough, in Whitehorse, Yukon. Clarence was there representing his firm and Bill, with his wife and family, was in town to judge a horticultural exhibition. It IS a small world.

GREAT WHALE RIVER CALLING

Robbie Sutherland, son of Mr and Mrs John Sutherland, made a radio telephone call to his parents on Sunday evening, August 25. He was calling from the control tower of the airfield at Great Whale River, on Hudson Bay.

The phone call was clear and plain, although the last call the Sutherlands received was more frustrating. Then they could hear Robbie plainly but he could not hear the voices from this end. The calls can be made once a month by the employees of Bell Telephone who work for the Department of Transport on the Mid-Canada Defense Line.

RONALD PITT FUND

Morrisburg citizens are making an appeal to the public to support a fund being raised to help their constable and his family who have suffered at the hands of would-be murderers. Constable Ronald Pitt was critically injured last week in line of duty and is in a Montreal hospital. His wife and two children are waiting in Scotland to come to Canada.

Contrbutions may be sent or handed to Arthur Laurin, Morrisburg, editor of the Morrisburg Leader and chairman of the fund or to S. G. Walroth, manager of the Bank of Montreal there.

Many Attend Grandmothers' Night Of Morewood W.I.

Mrs Floyd Armstrong, district president for Dundas, Mrs C. Beedie, president of Winchester W.I., and Members of Crysler Women's Institute and grandmothers of the community were guests of Morewood W.I. at their August meeting held in Presbyterian Hall. Mrs James Cheney presided for the business period.

Mrs Allen Thompson was named convener of a committee to make arrangements to cater for a wedding.

Mrs Mack Hutchinson and Mrs Donald Runions will be leaders for the Girls' 4-H Club project, which is First Aid.

Mrs Harry Hutchinson was in charge of the program, which consisted of two reading by Mrs Hume McConnell; a duet, Mrs Sam Barrington and Mrs Archie Coulthart, accompanied by Mrs Mac Thompson; Gloria and Slyvia Bowman sang a duet and contributed a tap dancing number, accompanied by Barbara Ann Merkley; the Merkley sisters sang two numbers.

Prizes were awarded to the oldest grandmother present, Mrs Hector Carruthers; the youngest grandmother of four generations, Mrs W. C. Hetherington; the grandmother who had been an Institute member the longest, Mrs Abner Dillabough; to the one who had not required a doctor's services for 35 years, Mrs Allen Thompson; the smallest foot, Mrs Harold Stewart; the one with the most buttons on her dress, Mrs T. W. Moffatt; the grandmother with the different corsage, Mrs A. Carruthers.

A contest conducted by Mrs Harry Hutchinson brought the program to a close.

Mrs W. C. McQuaig expressed the thanks of the grandmothers for the fine entertainment.

Mrs Armstrong brought greetongs and spoke briefly. She was thanked by Mrs Gordon Fraser.

Local Scout at Jamboree Camp in England

ROBERT GILROY IN ENGLAND is pictured here with a friend from Sydenham, Reg Martin, outside their tents at the World Jamboree. Bob arrived home last week with some interesting stories to tell. He was one of some 35,000 Scouts, Rovers and Scout leaders representing countries all over the world who attended the Boy Scout World Jamboree in Sutton Park, Warwickshire, England. This event, which was unique in the history of Scouting, commemorated the centenary of the birth of the founder, Robert Baden-Powell, of Gilwell, and also celebrated the Golden Jubilee of the first experimental Scout camp, held in 1907. Sutton Park comprises some 2,400 acres of attractive woods and moorland with heather, gorse, running streams and attractive lakes. It was once a royal hunting forest and was given to the people of Sutton Coldfield, to whom it still belongs, by Henry VIII in 1528. It is only eight miles from the city of Birmingham. This Jamboree was the ninth World Scout Jamboree and the third to have been held in Great Britain. The first was at Olympia, London, in 1920. The others were at Copenhagen, 1924; Birkenhead, 1929; Hungary, 1933; Holland, 1937; France, 1947; Austria in 1951, and Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ontario, in 1955.

Morrisburg Policeman On Critical List Following Shooting

Investigation into the Saturday morning shooting of Cst. Ronald Pitt, Morrisburg policeman, moved across the border as Canadian authorities questioned two Kirkland Lake youths charged with an orgy of car thefts.

The pair, John A. Fedora, 17, and Robert A. McDougall, 16, are being detained at Ogdensburg city jail after their arrest in Watertown on charges of car theft. Watertown police said the youths admitted stealing three autos since entering the U.S. early Sunday and also said they had stolen two cars in Canada. It was later ascertained they had no connection with the Morrisburg affair.

Cst. Pitt was shot down by two gunmen as he attempted to question them concerning a stolen car. The 34-year-old officer was shot twice through the chest and once in a finger.

He is in critical condition in Montreal Neurological Hospital, after a seven-hour operation which disclosed his stomach had been pierced four times, his spleen once and part of his spinal column had been shot away.

Hospital authorities say he will not require blood transfusions for the time being. He will, however, remain on the critical list for at least a week.

Officers in Montreal Westmount donated blood to the wounded man along with Morrisburg residents.

The interrogation of the youths held at Ogdensburg was carried out by Inspector John Craig, OPP, CIB, Toronto, and Cst. Herbert Meyer, of Morrisburg.

It has been learned that identification experts working on the case have come up with some good fingerprints from the steering wheel of the police cruiser in which the two men fled the scene of the shooting and later abandoned on a lonely concession road a mile north of Iroquois.

The place was the same spot at which several other vehicles used in area robberies have been found. This leads police to believe the men are part of an organized gang working in pairs and still hanging around the area.

OPINIONS . . .
Ours and Others

Sloppy Dress — Sloppy Habits

We are pleased to see a municipality take a stand against the sloppy habit of wearing careless costumes at public functions, especially dances and the like. Maxville village has an advertisement appearing in the Record this week announcing that slacks and black leather jackets might be alright for outdoor wear but will not be tolerated in Maxville Community Hall at dances.

We have entered the lists before in favour of a more sharply defined dress between teenagers. Who knows anymore what is enclosed in the tight jeans and the chin-high sweater until the profile shows? What is the point in levelling out the costumes of both sexes of high school age? If the pattern keeps up there will arise the age-old problem of the penguins who all dress the same. Even among themselves they are often doubtful who is he and who is she.

Sloppy dress on the part of our youthful citizens either on the street or at a dance is a good a way as any to develop sloppy habits. Careless dress patterns lead to careless manners and take a hall full of careless manners and what do you get? Careless dress constantly chips away at discipline habits that must be developed in the teens to be lasting in maturity; why be careful of manners and morals when you are allowed to dress like a back alley street urchin?

Chesterville's teenagers are no worse or any better than any other small community's. Because of that there is considerable ground for missionary work. Slacks and jeans and moccasins and a carapace of black leather are fine and applauded at a wiener roast or on a tour of the reforestation plot. They are sadly out of place at a dance or in the classrooms of our high schools. Teachers that allow the carelessly dressed student continue the pattern are not blameless either. With students spending all day in school, guidance and control by teachers becomes a part of the student's everyday life. Acceptance by teachers of carelessness in dress is only to condone carelessness in other habits. Schools are primarily for schooling, not condoning, and in spite of some of the more enlightened (?) methods of teaching, there still is room for discipline in the matter of clothing and manners.

Chesterville Fair

Chesterville Fair will be bustling Tuesday and Wednesday of next week at the fair grounds and as usual everyone in the district will be there. The fair this year promises to have as many attractions as other years and will include the biennial Holstein Black and White Day. The Eastern Ontario Guernsey Regional Show will also have the Golden Guernsey display. Beef breeds, Jerseys and Ayrshires will fill the bill for cattle displays.

Chesterville Fair is made possible by the support of the people of Chesterville and district. Your continued interest in the Society is vital to its continuing success.

See you at Chesterville Fair Wednesday.

Gunplay at Morrisburg

Eastern Ontario has had more than its share of crime in the past few months. This weekend past violence has placed a life in jeopardy and a policeman doing his duty has been shot down with ruthless abandon. Morrisburg and district folk are shocked and saddened and the rest of the area is full of sympathy.

Morrisburg has started a Constable Ronald Pitt Fund to help the injured officer who is lying partly paralyzed in a Montreal hospital in a critical condition at time of writing. Any donation large or small will be gratefully received. Contributions may be made to Art Laurin, editor of the Morrisburg Leader, who is chairman of the Fund, or the treasurer, S. G. Walroth, manager of the Morrisburg branch of the Bank of Montreal.

Bits and Pieces

Rumour has it that Highway 43 work will not start until the Spring now. Our informant quotes a "usually reliable source." Even if the source is wrong, it would keep the construction crews humping to get a new road built west of town before the snow flies.

o O o

Rain and more rain is sadly needed after the prolonged dry spell. Pastures are burned to a crisp and aftergrass has just about had it. The fine hot weather was good in its place, but now we could use a spell of wetness to fill the wells and brighten the burned grass.

o O o

New houses are popping up all around us in town these days. The trend is to spread to the north of the village; soon we will be an outskirt of Morewood.

Blue Whale Flies

The biggest animal ever known to exist still bulldozes through the sea—but not, perhaps, for long.

It is the much-hunted blue whale, a monster that can grow more than 100 feet long and weigh 150 tons. Its bulk equals 35 elephants and more than twice the weight believed attained by the largest dinosaur.

Blue whales are able to reach their great size because the water, denser than air, supports them. On land their own weight would push down on internal organs and kill them.

These whales get a big start in life. New born babies are up to 25 feet long. The females nurse their young in the water, pumping as much as 200 pounds of milk into each in a single day. The milk is much like a cow's, but extra rich in minerals, proteins and fats.

Eight months after birth the calf is graduated to solid food. It is then 50 feet long. It swims through concentrations of a shrimp-like creature called krill, its mouth agape, taking in water, tidbits and all. Then the great scoop closes, and the water is forced out through filters of whalebone—an important source of income for whalers in the days when it was used in corset stays.

A horny substance, whalebone hangs like a thick, fringed curtain from the sides of the whale's mouth. The tongue forces out the water, leaving the krill—about the size of grasshoppers—caught in the whalebone. As much as a ton of these creatures have been found in one whale's stomach. The leviathan couldn't eat anything much larger—its throat is but six to eight inches in diameter.

Tremendously strong, the blue whale can push its bulk through the water at speeds reported up to 25 miles an hour. One, harpooned off Alaska, towed a 90-foot whaler forward at six knots for more than eight hours. Much of that time the boat's two engines were going full speed astern.

The blue whale was once a great deal more plentiful than it is today. Overhunting for oil, fertilizer, and other products has thinned its numbers.

Each year, however, whaling fleets from as far away as Scandinavia, Russia and Japan go to Antarctic waters ,where whales are now most plentiful, to search out the blues and their smaller cousins.

Under international treaty, each year's take is limited. In the season recently ended, the quota apportioned among all the whaling nations was 14,500 "blue whale units." Each whale is either one blue whale, two fin whales, two and a half humpback whales sei whales.

Although the quota has been decreased in recent years, the number of the big blubbery blues has fallen. Whalers and conservationists fear that unless killing is further reduced there may come a day when the hunting ships will find no quarry.

ROMAN FLOOR FOUND IN ENGLAND

The sight of a hole in the road is guaranteed to attract a crowd of onlookers almost anywhere in Britain; but something more than idle curiosity recently led a steady stream of people to stop and peer through a hole in the road in one of the busiest parts of Winchester, England, for down below they could see members of the Winchester Archaeological Society working against time to rescue the finest Roman mosaic floor yet found in this ancient city that was once the capital of the West Saxon kingdom.

Reporting on the find in the BBC program "Radio Newsreel," Brenda Hamilton recalled that part of the floor was discovered in 1954 under a demolished warehouse, but further excavations were then impossible because the road above was still in use. When the road was closed this year for rebuilding, Mr Cottrell, curator of the city museum, began directing operations for lifting this precious floor, which has lain embedded on its original foundation for over 1,700 years. The twelve-foot square, made up of nine panels, each with a different motif bordered by cable pattern and braid, is built from small pieces of varied stone in black, white, red, yellow and grey.

The lifting has to be done in sections, each section being first scrubbed clean, then left to dry—and here water seepage from the bed and sides of the excavation and rain from above was the chief threat to rescue work.

"Finally," Miss Hamilton said, "they dried it out with blow lamps. Next, two coatings of glue are spread over the floor, and while the second coat is still tacky, a sheet of hessian is pressed over the surface. Again all must dry out. Then comes the trickiest part of all, the actual lifting, which means that the floor has to be separated from its mortar-like foundation. As this is cut away, a sheet of hardboard is inserted and on this the section is lifted out of the ground by ropes. Then it is taken to the workshop for further expert treatment before it is ready to be housed safely in the city museum."

Underneath the floor a central heating system was found, and lower still, even earlier Roman remains.

HANDY HINTS FOR THE HOMEMAKER

Does the doorbell to your house boast a bell that saves the knuckles of visitors by announcing their presence at the touch of a fingertip? Does the bell sometimes go on strike, unknown to your visitors, and keep them cooling their heels at your door, because the bell isn't focussing?

Fool that bell. Remove the buzzer from the mounting and clean the contact with sandpaper. It's simple.

What about the wastebasket? Is cleaning it a chore?

To make this job easier, place an aluminum foil-covered circle of cardboard in the bottom of the basket. But change the foil-covered base from time to time.

If you break the handle of your suitcase when you are away from home and you want to have it fixed at your favourite luggage store, buy a dog collar for the time being and slip it through the two loops and buckle to the right length.

SHIFTING

The Geophysical Survey Institute in Tokyo has reported that the various land masses if Japan are moving in different directions at the rate of seven to 10 feet a year.

The only Englishman to be a Roman Catholic pontiff was Pope Adrian IV, from 1154 to 1159.

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS

By Lillian Allison

We should have known better than to have gone to the Ottawa Exhibition on Children's Day but Monday seemed like the easiest day to get away so that's the day we chose. We believed the weatherman when he forecast that the top temperature for the day would be in the high seventies and looked forward to complete weather comfort even if we should have to scramble over hundreds of children.

Of course there weren't hundreds of children there—there were thousands. They were everywhere—hanging on the strings of balloons, hidden under huge panda bears and china dogs, riding everything that could be ridden, chewing everything edible and throwing the last half of it on the ground, marching in triple file through house trailers and exhibits, passing their sticky little hands over glossy cars, machinery and brass railings and, generally, making their presence felt. One comical sight consisted of a hawker giving his spiel on vegetable graters to an audience comprised entirely of prospective customers under ten.

But I could have stood the children cheerfully if it hadn't been so hot. I think the temperature must have been in the high nineties and the humidity was away up there too. I was uncomfortably hot and my feet hurt before I got through the turnstile at the Bank Street gate. I knew I wasn't going to have a good time—that I'd never get my 50 cents worth.

We strode through the exhibits under the grandstand. I didn't see the fair last year but I'm sure the same washers, stoves, typewriters, etc., were there that they had two years ago. One difference I noticed was a shiny, black electric range. I couldn't help thinking how hard I worked to get a black range out of my kitchen a few years ago and now modern design would like to put one in there.

The Pure Foods building was a beehive of hot humanity. People were eating things and buying things on all sides. Remember those free, bite-sized samples we used to get—a slice of wiener, a tiny biscuit, a teaspoonful of soup or a nibble of cheese that would spoil the appetite of any respectable mouse? They don't give a thing away now. They make you buy what you want. We didn't want very much.

We joined the throngs as they inspected the manufacturers' displays of furniture, appliances and all. Some of them were very interesting—especially the lavishly decorated rooms and the beautiful gowns and furs.

We'd read, of course, about the new H. H. McElroy building and wanted to see it. It is definitely a major contribution to the Fair. The hobbies, crafts, sewing, exhibits from other countries—all the things that used to be crammed into the little space on the second floor of the grandstand—were displayed this year in the spaciousness of the new building. It should have been a pleasure to look around—but it was too unbearably hot.

Finally I spied a sort of theatre in one corner. Joan Baxter was doing her afternoon CFRA broadcast. There were plenty of comfortable chairs there which I just couldn't resist so I dropped into one of them. Now how Joan Baxter managed to make sense on her broadcast that day I'll never know. For the noise and confusion were beyond imagination.

The theatre was partitioned off by a row of moveable screens about six feet high. Fawn coloured cement blocks made up the other two sides. It looked quite attractive with its modern stacking chairs. stage and fashion show facilities. But the good architects had failed to consider the noise. Children and distraught parents chased each other around just beyond the screens. People moved chairs on the hard floor in the theatre. And people talked everywhere. Every sound inside and out bounced back and forth against the concrete walls.

And all this time Joan Baxter tried to talk to her radio audience. I managed to catch a word now and then but how she managed to keep her mind on the script was a mystery.

When the broadcast was over I just sat there. In a few minutes the stage was converted into a kitchen so that a girl from the Department of Fisheries could show us how to cook and serve fish. I moved up to the front so I could hear. This was the part of the Ex. I enjoyed most of all. I love fish and besides I was much more comfortable sitting than tramping over the hot, hard pavement.

ELEPHANT SITTER

A baby that trumpets and cries pitifully is taking up the nighttime hours of a zoo owner in Nanaimo, B.C.

Paul Hertel and members of his family take turns sitting up with Susie, a two-ton baby elephant which recently arrived at his zoo.

"We have to put up a bed near where Susie is tethered for the night," Mr Hertel said. "She's just fine as long as we don't leave her alone."

29 ABUNDANT LIFE
BY ORAL ROBERTS

YOU CAN BE YOUR OWN DOCTOR

Health of body and health of mind are two of the most important possessions in the world. These two possessions are available if you wish them. No one understands just exactly what healing is and no one can explain exactly how it takes place, but you know that if you prick your finger, it heals itself.

When a physician treats you for a cold or for another disease, he does not heal. He simply acts as an agent. When an operation is performed, the surgeon does not heal. He simply makes an incision, closes the wound and waits for healing to take place. Healing is a miracle whereby a tissue or an organ is restored to its normal function.

But many people do not realize that our mental attitude has much to do with our physical condition. Fear, guilt, resentment, spite and hate all affect us physically. Circulation of the blood is changed, capillaries are restricted and the blood pressure goes up. This puts an added load on the heart and makes the body wear out before it is time.

A minister once told me of a lady in South Carolina who was suffering from wrong thinking. He said:

"She was a member of my church for several years. She was the very picture of health and a charming, wonderful person to be around.

"But something happened. Something, which she never disclosed, caused a feeling of resentment and fear to come upon her. Soon she was complaining of being unable to swallow. Continuously her throat worked in a swallowing motion but she could find no relief. She complained of choking, of difficulty in breathing. I prayed with her. I offered her the comfort and power of the Bible but she would not accept it. Her husband thought that she was insane and threatened to place her in an institution. Many physicians treated her, but when I moved away to another pastorate she had not recovered.

"About four years later, I visited in her city and her church. Someone spoke to my wife and me and when we did not recognize her, she informed us that she was the young woman who had been suffering.

"How utterly shocked we were. This young woman of about 30 years of age in the brief span of three years had turned completely gray. Her face was lined and wrinkled; her hands were shaky and every visible indication showed a woman of at least 55 or 60 years of age. Her fears and her resentment had done this to her."

Now, while this is a rather unusual illustration, it shows the power and effect of wrong thinking. Develop "right attitudes" of love and cheer. Wipe out the negative attitudes that affect the health of mind and body! Psychologists call this type of treatment "psychosomatic medicine." But it simply means to follow the wonderful suggestions that the Bible gives us for a healthy mind and body. Let me give them to you: 1. "A cheerful heart is a good medicine." 2. "A glad heart maketh a cheerful countenance; but by sorrow of heart the spirit is broken." 3. "As a man thinketh within himself, so is he."

Civic Centre Planned for Morrisburg

Plans for a large, beautiful civic centre, to equal any along the seaway route or in Seaway Valley, are fast nearing the stage of actual contruction at Morrisburg.

By early September village council will call for tenders and by next May they hope a dream will have become a reality with the completion of a block square civic centre to hold all civic offices, police and fire stations and giant auditorium with a capacity of 600.

At the rear, in the block-square site, will be located playgrounds for the children and the adults. In its entirety. It will be a large recreation and civic centre combined, for use by the people of Morrisburg.

"We're keeping our fingers crossed that luck will be with us and all will go well," Reeve Geo. Beavers explained. He added that plans now call for construction to begin by October.

"We feel that by building in winter we can cut costs," he added.

Who will pay for the giant structure is still the number one question which is now on the conference table between Ontario Hydro and the village council.

Located across from Morrisburg's spacious new 43-store shopping centre on the new No. 2 Highway, the design of the building itself was by Kent Barker, professor of architecture at the University of Toronto.

Just seven miles away, the village of Iroquois is seeing the completion of a $300,000 civic centre, being built by Ontario Hydro. This centre, like Morrisburg's, will house council chambers, offices fire and police station, the village library and a 300-seat auditorium which Reeve Lloyd C. Davis will be for use by the village at any time free of charge.

No estimation of cost has yet been revealed for the Morrisburg centre but all indications are it will be slightly higher than the one in Iroquois.

Williamsburg W.M.S. Meets at Deeks Home

The August meeting of Williamsburg W.M.S. was held at the home of Miss Ethel Deeks, with 22 members and three visitors present. A hymn and prayer by the president opened the meeting. Two minutes of silent prayer and the singing of a hymn was a memorial to the life and memory of a dear member, Mrs Strader McIntosh.

The treasurer's report showed only half the allocation had been met. The president reported the sum of $18.

The September meeting will be held in the school room and Mrs Armstrong will be in charge of devotions.

It was decided that the secretary send for the new program packet which will deal with Japan.

Mrs McMillan conducted the worship service and the topic was dealt with by Miss Ethel Deeks, Mrs Donald Barkley and Mrs Loucks. Each gave a paper.

A farewell gift was presented to Mrs Wood, who is leaving to reside in Belleville.

The members repeated "A Heart Prayer" in unison. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

Spend Week's Holiday

Mr and Mrs Kenneth Merkley and Mr and Mrs Harold Merkley visited Mr and Mrs Ronald Merkley, Whitney, Algonquin Park, for a week's holiday.

Local Items

Mr and Mrs Norman Rae were visiting relatives in the Valley.

Mrs Wm. Forward and children, Chesterville, were visitors of Mr and Mrs Edwin Forward last week.

Mr Donald Rae attended the funeral of his cousin, the late Mr Stanley Carruthers, Waddington, N.Y., on Sunday last.

Mrs Violet LeBlanc and Mrs Nell James, Chesterville, were calling on Miss Agnes Jamieson on Thursday afternoon.

Barbara Ann Merkley and Carol were visiting Mr and Mrs Floyd Whittaker, Williamsburg.

SWISS VIEWPOINT

Michael Hack, Swiss consular agent, told the Georgia Education Department he is astonished at the way American parents take school teachers to task for the poor report cards brought home by their children.

"In Switzerland no parent would dream of going to school to complain to a teacher," Hack said. "If something was wrong in the child's work the parent would apologize."

CLEARLY DEFINED

Bald-headed Pennsylvanians will have to pay the state's three per cent sales tax for their toupees.

The Pennsylvannia revenue department has ruled that a hairpiece is a cosmetic.

A well-thatched revenue department official said the ruling was made after someone had appealed that a wig was an article of clothing and thereby exempt from the tax.

John A. Buchanan Laid to Rest

Knox Presbyterian Church at Moose Creek was filled to capacity Sunday afternoon to pay silent tribute to the memory of John A. Buchanan, a lifelong resident of Moose Creek, a son of the late Archibald Buchanan and his wife, the former Louise McGillivray, who passed away August 16 at the age of 79 years.

Mrs J. Vanderwal was organist and the combined choirs of the United and Presbyterian Churches sang the hymns.

The service was conducted by Rev W. Knox, Sydney, N.S., a former minister of the church, assisted by Rev D. C. Munroe, of Knox United Church, and Mr J. Vanderwal, student minister.

Mr Buchanan farmed near Moose Creek during the early part of his life, but had resided in the village during the past 25 years. A faithful member of Knox Presbyterian Church, he served on the Management Board for several years and acted as trustee of the village for a number of years.

Near friends of the deceased acted as honorary pall bearers—Hugh Blair, N. A. MacIntosh, Archie MacIntyre, Nelson MacRae, George MacIntosh, Boyd Johnson, A. D. MacKay, James Marjerrison, L. M. Amos.

Active bearers were Alex D. McRae, Emery Brunet, Fraser McMillan, Menzies MacRae, Ramsay Baker and J. Boisvenue.

Survivors are his wife, the former Alice M. Munroe; one daughter, Mrs Gordon Crawford (Eloise), Cornwall; one grandson, John Crawford; several nieces and nephews, including Miss Alice Cass, Reg. N., Montreal, who attended the funeral.

Many beautiful floral tributes, telegrams and sympathy cards were received.

Those from a distance came from Montreal, Ottawa, Winchester, Chesterville, Finch, Cornwall and surrounding towns.

NO HELP

There were two Mary Hamiltons in Amherstburg and for years postmen got their mail confused.

Recently, one Mary Hamilton married and became Mary Hall and the postmen thought that ended their troubles.

But now the second Mary Hamilton is married. Now she also is Mary Hall.

Neither the Halls nor the Hamiltons are related. Postmen hope mail will be addressed either to Mrs William Hall or Mrs J. A. Hall.

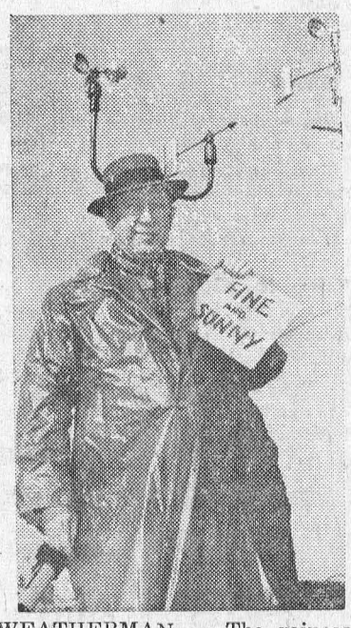
PRIEST'S HATS FORECASTS WEATHER

Villagers in the English community of Dorchester-on-Thames judge the weather outlook from the hats worn by Rev Wm. Connick, parish priest of St. Birinus Roman Catholic Church.

Says Father Connick, a moderately successful weather prophet for 20 years: "I wear a panama for long dry spells. straw for less settled and clerical for unsettled."

Father Connick keeps weather records, maps and charts and takes into account old records and the law of averages.



WEATHERMAN — The raincoat and hat don't seem to match the sign Gordon Sinclair is carrying, but maybe it's "fine and sunny" on the other side of the continent, in one of the forty cities where Sinclair's national weather forecast is heard. You can hear it each night on CBC Dominion's award-winning program "Assignment."

PINK PUBS FOR PALLID PATRONS

A cloud no bigger than the head on a pint of bitters is threatening the British way of life. There is talk abroad that they're planning to reform the English public house.

"Pastel shades will come in," says Percy Banks, a leading pub architect. "The decor must be studied very carefully."

"The days of furtive drinking are over." adds J. S. Eagles, director of one of Britain's big national breweries which operates a string of pubs. "People want to look out at the street scene and people passing will look in."

Eagles told a shocked reporter the pubs of the future will serve ice cream, tea and coffee and good hot snacks.

"Like American soda fountains," the reporter shuddered.

"If people want it that way," Eagles said firmly.

"With TV sets?"

"Probably in a separate room," Eagles conceded. A lot of good customers seek the publican's sanctuary to escape from television.

Battle lines were swiftly drawn. The Herald's correspondence columns bristled with outraged habitues preparing for their last stand and zealous reformers with further suggestions for improvement.

"The publicans are losing the family man because they make no provision for children," argued one correspondent. "Men go to pubs to escape the soul-destroying domestic atmosphere of their homes," protested another.

There was the ineviable clash between the writer who lauded the change because "nobody has ever drunk himself stupid in coffee" and the connoisseur of 27 years' experienle who branded the current brew as "little better than intoxicating rainwater."

An Englishman of the old school objected to being addressed by barmaids as "Luv," "Duckie" or "Dearie" and a Scot contributed the dour observation that any change in the pubs of Scotland is bound to be an improvement.

The mullioned-glass front and wood-panel interior of the average pub undoubtedly is more conducive to sombre reflection than sparkling gaiety. It admits enough light to permit a customer to work out his football pool selections and no more.

Britain's Navigational Aids

One of the most important aspects of the electronic age is the use of electronics in navigation, and two of the most outstanding of these aids, developed by British firms were described in a program broadcast recently in the BBC's General Overseas Service.

Mr A. W. Martin, technical director of Ekco, makers of a new radar system called "search radar," explained how this equipment in the aircraft itself had been developed from the later types of radar used during the war which, it was found, could detect not only other aircraft, but also certain types of cloud.

The new search radar can "pick up" clouds and can also be used for drawing a map of the ground below the aircraft if it is obscured by cloud. The BOAC Bristol Britannia fleet has been equipped with it, and one of the captains, Capt. B. E. Bone, spoke of the tremendous assistance it gave to the pilot, particularly in the tropics, where the mixing of air between the southern and the northern masses of air sometimes results in extremely bad weather. The equipment enables the pilot to see thunder clouds as far as a 120 miles ahead and to judge the severity of the thunderstorm and the amount of turbulence. He can see the presentation of the storm on the glass cathode-ray tube of the search radar and steer his aircraft to a clear space as it appears on the tube. "If you take your eyes off the tube and look ahead," Captain Bone said, "sometimes you get quite a shock because you appear to have quite a lot of nasty clouds ahead of you. But this equipment is so good that you can place full reliance on it, and if it tells you it is clear ahead, then it is clear, and you can go straight through this cloud and you won't get a single bump." The scanner of the equipment can be tilted downwards and used for map-reading. "For example," said Capt. Bone, "going down between Singapore and Darwin on the Sydney run you run along the chain of islands, and you can turn the scanner down and get a complete picture of the ground up to 120 miles ahead of you. Over the sea any small islands or groups of islands will appear on your tube, and by comparing the tube with your map you can see exactly where you are."

Mr Bonner, of the Decca Company, explained the system on which one of the most dramatic of all navigational aids, the Decca Navigator, works. It is used extensively in Europe for ships and aircraft, and consists of a number of transmitting stations. The signals from these stations are picked up and the information they give, interpreted, enables the ship or aircraft to see its position continuously. "For the pilot in the aircraft it really couldn't be more simple," Mr Bonner said, "because there the information received is fed through to actuate a pen across a chart of the area over which the pilit is flying. To fix his position all he has to do at any time is to look at the point of his pen. Where the point of the pen is on the chart, that is in fact where the plane is. If he turns left, the pen turns—and right, the pen turns right, and so on. It follows exactly what the aircraft is doing." The system was first used on D-Day to guide the landing craft through the swept passages of the minefields, and it is often used to navigate up the Thames to London in thick fog.

Mr Bonner described a long-range version of Decca, known as "Dectra," that has been developed and will provide a coverage across the North Atlantic so that a pilot on this long and hazardous route will be able at any time to see his position. This, he said, did a great deal more than enable one aircraft to navigate accurately across the North Atlantic. It resolved a very complex air traffic problem existing in that area.

NEIGHBOURS COMPLAIN —JUST TOO HAPPY!

An abatement has been slapped on a jolly fellow who says he has been whistling ever since he was a small boy.

That's just the trouble, claim some of Ole Bachelor's neighbours who, seeking a modicum of peace and quiet, lodged a disturbance-of-the-peace complaint. A policeman called and told Ole he'd have to knock of whistling.

The officer said, privately, that it all seemed silly to him—he had never thought he'd have to tell a man to stop being happy.

"I guess I whistle because I have a wonderful family and a job I like," said Bachelor, "but if I'm disturbing someone I'm going to do my best to cut it out."

Bachelor has a plan. "Since the policeman came to see me, my wife has arranged to have a bowl of gumdrops always beside me. You can't eat gumdrops and whistle at the same time, you know."

The complaining neighbours say they hope so.

SPEED

CAUSED THIS FATAL ACCIDENT

LOCATION: No. 10 Highway, S of Brampton.

TIME: 11:25 p.m.

ROAD SURFACE: Asphalt. Very greasy because of heavy drizzle.

RESULT: Two killed.

This car was travelling south at a speed far too high for the road surface condition. The car ahead signalled a left-hand turn, and pumped his brakes to give additional warning because he had to wait for an oncoming car before making his turn. The driver of the high speed car jammed on his brakes and the car went into a violent skid. It shot off the road, clipped a tree, then smashed head-on into another tree.

Both the driver and his passenger were killed instantly.

Before you travel too fast for the road surface condition, remember this picture. It could happen to you.

SAMPHIRE GATHERING IN BRITAIN

Towards the end of June, when the days are at their longest, fisherfolk living on the coast of Norfolk can be seen gathering one of Britain's strangest crops. This is a special kind of seaweed called samphire which grows on marshy land covered by the tide. It is a popular delicacy in East Anglia, and occasionally finds its way to a few of London's more expensive restaurants.

Describing the scene in the BBC program "The Eyewitness," Hardiman Scott said: "From where I am now, miles out on the marshes at Terrington near King's Lynn, I can see over the shimmering stretches of the Wash streaked with sandbanks and mud shelves to the marshes on the other side, and these with Gedney, not far away, are the three main samphire-growing districts. Samphire sprouts up in the mud of the marsh, a bright green, looking like thousands and thousands of miniature poplar trees—six-inch-high poplar trees. It is not cultivated it just grows wild here. where the wild duck flies across the marshes and occasionally you hear the cry of the curlew. It is free to all, and in this part of Norfolk it has been gathered by the fisherfolk and eaten for hundreds of years. You can boil it and then suck it off the stem like asparagus, and very nice it is too. It is rather hard to describe the taste; it is perhaps something like asparagus and spinach mixed. The people who gather it make their own circular nets from string, fixing them to a willow stick bent into a circle. Gathering the samphire with one hand, they toss it into the nets. It is no easy job—you have to walk a long way out over the marshes to the fringes to get it."

As more and more marram grass grows over the marshes, it strangles the samphire and the watery acres where it flourishes are diminishing as banks are built to reclaim marshland for the farmer.

Scolia were short lyrical poems of ancient Greece intended as drinking songs.

The skirt of 50 years ago was cut tight around the hips, flowing out at the feet.

SCIENTISTS DISCUSS PUTTING SUN TO WORK

The harnessing of only 1,000th part of the energy in the sunshine falling on the United States would make available almost twice the total of fuel energy now consumed there—and the United States uses more energy than any other country.

In tropical and arid climates, where sunshine is more intense and conventional fuels far more expensive, the energy available from the sun is many thousand times as great as the fuel energy now used.

Pointing out that, in contrast to atomic energy, solar energy needs only small and relatively cheap equipment, has no health hazards and no waste products to dispose of, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, in a paper summing up the conclusions of a recent world conference on the subject, describes the failure to put the sun's power to work as "humanity's greatest waste."

There are three basic ways of putting the sun to work. One is the direct conversion of solar energy into heat by means of mirrors or a heat-trap consisting of flat plate glass mounted over a blackened box. Another is to transform sunshine directly into electricity by means of a photo-electric cell. The third is to convert the power of the sun directly into chemical energy through such chemical reactions to light as are utilized by growing plants or algae.

All these methods have been successfully used in practice though, for the most part, on an experimental scale. Their application on a commercial and industrial scale is foreseen "primarily for the countryside," particularly in underdeveloped areas, while large atomic energy stations supply electricity to great cities.

Professor Farrington Daniels, of the University of Wisconsin, expressed the belief at the Phoenix conference that the sun could "compete right now" with manpower and animal power in areas where fuels are very expensive. In the sunny tropics, five per cent of the energy falling each day on the roof of a moderate sized house could do the work of two bullocks. Professor Daniels called for the development of "small solar engines that will not cost more than a bullock, will have at least as long a life, and will do four or five times as much work each day."

GOT THEIR GOAT

Three drunken goats butted into a prize-giving ceremony in the village square at Ventimiglia, Italy, following an annual international art competition held there recently.

The goats were included among the prizes—so were several 22-gallon jars of the district's notoriously potent wine.

The traditional public dance was in full swing. Local farmers and Italian and foreign tourists and painters were enjoying the revels when an artist decided the goats were thirsty. He helped them to a jar of the prize wine.

The goats suddenly went wild and rampaged around the square, horns lowered, putting the happy throng to flight.

As their drunkenness wore off, the goats' usual sedateness returned, and celebrations were resumed.

AFRICA-GIBRALTAR BRIDGE PROPOSED BY ENGINEER

A plan for constructing a giant floating bridge across the Strait of Gibraltar has been put forward by a French engineer. M. Antoine Bludo said his bridge would cross the narrowest part of the Strait where it is nine miles wide.

The foundations of his bridge would be ten floating caissons, each 328 feet high and 65 feet in diameter. These would be towed empty to their positions, and then nearly filled with water, so that they would float with their tops about fifty feet below the surface. At this depth, according to Mr Bludo, they would be unaffected by surface disturbances of the sea.

Resting on the caissons would be the supports for the bridge itself which, with road and railway, would be built 130 feet above the sea.

WHY NOT SING ABOUT TOMATOES?

THERE ARE SONGS about a lot of different kinds of fruits and about some vegetables, but I can't think of one about tomatoes. They just don't seem to inspire the musician or the poet. And, don't you think a tomato is just as inspiring as a banana or an ear of corn? If tomatoes don't inspire the poets and musicians, they certainly do interest the nutritionists and dietitians—and why not, They are chuck full of vitamins and minerals, have a marvellous flavour, and are tempting to the eye as well. What more could one ask?

Tomato Surprise Salad

6 medium-sized tomatoes
½ cup diced cold chicken
½ cup diced celery
1 tbsp. chopped pimento
1 tbsp. green pepper
Mayonnaise
Lettuce
1 small onion
2 cups tomatoes
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
6 eggs
Toast

Plunge tomatoes in boiling water to loosen skins. Peel, chill. Remove pulp from centre. Mix chicken, celery, pimento and green pepper with mayonnaise. Fill tomatoes with mixture. Arrange on lettuce leaves and garnish with mayonnaise and parsley.

This salad can be varied by changing the filling. Chopped cabbage mixed with boiled dressing is one suggestion.

Baked Stuffed Tomatoes

2 cups soft bread crumbs
1 tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
2 tbsps. butter
6 tomatoes
6 strips bacon

Mix bread crumbs with salt, pepper and melted butter. Cut a thin slice from the stem end of the tomatoes and remove a little of the pulp. Fill with stuffing. Bake in a moderate oven one hour. Place a strip of bacon on each tomato about 10 minutes before baking is completed.

Ripe Tomato Relish

30 large tomatoes
6 onions, chopped fine
6 pears, chopped fine
6 peaches, chopped fine
6 apples, chopped fine
1 quart vinegar
4 cups white sugar
2 tbsps. salt
1 red pepper, chopped
Small bag mixed spices

Slice tomatoes, sprinkle with salt, let stand overnight. In the morning, drain, add chopped fruit, vinegar sugar, red pepper and spices. Boil two hours; bottle.

Eggs with Tomatoes on Toast

Cut the onion into small pieces and place with the tomato in a frying pan. Stew slowly till fairly thick. Add salt and pepper, reduce heat. Break eggs and slip on top of the tomato, being careful not to break the yolks. Cook until eggs are set. Serve at once on buttered toast.

This makes a good supper dish.

Ham and Tomato Sandwiches

1 cup minced ham
1 tsp. parsley
Cayenne pepper
Few drops lemon juice
¼ cup butter
Onion salt or juice
Sliced tomatoes
Mayonnaise

To the minced ham add the parsley, cayenne, lemon juice, onion salt and softened butter. Mix well. Spread slices of bread with the mixture and put two slices together with a thin slice of tomato which has been spread with mayonnaise. Toast, garnish with stuffed olives or small pickles and serve hot for supper.

Baked Corn and Tomatoes

2 cups cooked corn
2 cups tomatoes
1 tsp. salt
Pepper
1 tsp. sugar
1 cup fresh bread crumbs
3 tbsps. fat or strips of bacon

Mix seasonings with corn and tomatoes, pour all into a greased baking dish. Cover with crumbs; dot with fat or lay strips of bacon over top. Bake in a moderate oven 30 minutes.

FUTURE KITCHEN ELECTRONIC LABORATORY

An electronic kitchen that does just about everything for food except chew it was displayed at the recent Modern Living Exposition in Chicago.

One appliance manufacturer showed a kitchen which enables the housewife to sit at a control panel, and by pushing buttons have potatoes diced, food cooked, floors scrubbed and more.

A control panel in the centre of the room doubles as a dining table. In the centre of the panel a closed circuit television screen enables the housewife to check on happenings in other rooms of the house.

A tape recorder, equipped with a timer, prompts her: "Time to start dinner." This involves pushing buttons to open cupboards, raise and lower drawers and shelves, and expose a hidden sink. A push-button also produces the recipes and menus on a screen.

Meals are planned juke-box fashion in this kitchen of tomorrow which, the manufacturer said, will be available eventually. The housewife can push a button and lamb chops are carried from their storage space in the kitchen on electric tracks to an area that prepares and cooks them.

The table top of the dining area is cool to the touch, but hidden heat keeps the food warm at the table.

Beverages are stored in cupboard dispensers in the wall, and both hot and cold beverages fill your cup, again at the push of a button or the wave of a hand across an electronic area.

Ice cubes are dispensed at will the same way.

Another device peels, dices and slices vegetables and fruits. It removes waste and cleans itself automatically after the work is done.

Ovens and refrigerators descend from eye-level positions in the wall like small elevator cars—exposing temperature - controlled shelves for cooking and freezing.

If the housewife wants to do a little of the work herself, she has at her disposal a "mixing area" which provides all the apparatus for baking a cake. After she has finished, the device whisks the pans away to be cleaned and returned to their places in the kitchen.

BRIEF ENCOUNTER

Convinced her husband's boss was working him too hard and too long, Mrs Virginia, M. Scales, Los Angeles, paid him a call, clobbered him with a two-by-four and put him in hospital.

The boss, Frank B. O'Brien, nursing a battered scalp and a lingering headache, said he holds no hard feelings against John Scales and his belligerent wife.

O'Brien did deny, however, Mrs Scales' allegation that he was "stealing" her husband from her by working him long hours.

"Why, I pay Scales $16,000 a year and 10 per cent of the profits," said O'Brien, who operates an electronics shop. "The guy's a genius and I can't afford to lose him."

"You can't win," said Mrs Scales. "After I hit that guy O'Brien, my husband socked me on the ear. But I felt justified."

HOME WRECKERS

Four bullocks escaped from a slaughter house at Newcastle-on-Tyne the other day and burst into the home of Mrs Doris Swan.

They chased her upstairs. She took refuge in an upstairs room, but one bullock charged the door.

The animal forced its head into the room. Mrs Swan hit it with a broom handle, then her pet spaniel charged it and scared it off. It ran down the stairs and joined the three other animals, which were prancing through the rooms wrecking furniture and tearing holes in the floor before cattle yard workers arrived.

TO THE RESCUE

Police charged into a Bernard Ave. house, Toronto, the other night to investigate screams and shots.

They found a loud TV set and a boy firing off his cap pistol.

IN MEMORIAM

MERKLEY—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Edsel Merkley. who passed away August 26, 1955.

The words have not been written
To show how much we cared;
To remember all the good in him
And all the joys we shared.
The treasure chest of memories
We hold so very dear
Helps to ease the hurt inside
And keep him always near.
Ever remembered by wife and family.

Carruthers–Steinburg

The home of Mr and Mrs Ralph Steinburg, Morewood, was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday afternoon when their eldest daughter, Marilyn Rose, was united in marriage to Kenneth Dale Carruthers, son of Mr and Mrs Archie Carruthers, of St. Onge.

Rev D. L. Gordon officiated at the ceremony and Mrs Sam Barrington was pianist. Soloists were Mrs Harold Lisk, of Eganville, and Miss Vivian Barrington, Ottawa.

The marriage took place on the spacious lawn where a decorated arch was placed. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Mrs Robert Walker, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid, and little Janet Carruthers, as flower girl. Mr David Byers was best man.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown of white nylon chiffon over taffeta and net trimmed with appliqued lace at the neckline, fitted bodice and full bouffant skirt. Her elbow-length veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a headdress of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

Mrs Walker chose a waltz-length dress of blue net over taffeta with small blue hat and carried a bouquet of pink carnations and white baby 'mums. The flower girl wore a brocaded pink taffeta dress and carried a nosegay bouquet of carnations and 'mums.

Following the ceremony the reception was held at the home. Later, Mr and Mrs Carruthers left on a trip for Wheeling, West Virginia. For travelling the bride chose a mauve and white ensemble with white accessories and corsage of yellow 'mums.

Mr and Mrs Carruthers will reside near St. Onge.

Moss–Fields

A wedding of interest to relatives and friends in South Mountain district was solemnized at St. Camilus Roman Catholic Church, Farreltown, Que., when Miss Hazel Fields became the bride of Gerald Moss. Rev F. J. MacGregor officiated. The bride is the daughter of Mr and Mrs Harry Fields, Low, Que., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr and Mrs Joseph Moss, Mountain. St. Joseph's choir was in attendance.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a floor-length gown of nylon tulle over taffeta, a lace bolero, Peter Pan collar and long sleeves that came to points over her hands. The skirt had inserts of Chantilly lace and her shoulder-length veil was held in place by a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses and Hyacinth bells.

She was attended by Miss Mona Leroux as bridesmaid and Miss Alice Moss as maid of honour.

Little Judy Field, niece of the bride, was flower girl.

The bridesmaid wore a dress of shrimp net over taffeta and the maid of honour wore a lime green net over taffeta.

The flower girl wore a light gown with pink shoes, hat and gloves.

Bernard Fields, brother of the bride, attended the bridegroom. Leonard O'Connor, brother-in-law of the bride, and John Moss, brother of the groom, were ushers.

A reception was held at McConnery's Riverside Inn, where dinner was served to a large number of guests. Mr and Mrs Moss left later on a trip through the Eastern States. For travelling, the bride wore a lime green dress with a bolero, white hat, gloves, shoes and purse.

The young couple will reside in Ottawa.

MISS ELIZABETH MOHR HONOURED AT SHOWER

Miss Elizabeth (Betty) Mohr, Ottawa, who is to be married next Saturday, was guest of honour at the home of Mrs Geo. Rupert and Mrs John Rupert, Finch, on Friday evening.

Miss Mohr was escorted to a decorated chair by Mrs Dalton MacMillan while "Here Comes the Bride" was played by Mrs Geo. Rupert. Mrs MacMillan presented her with a corsage and Miss Lorraine Bourgeois read an address of good wishes and presented her with many beautiful gifts. She was assisted in opening her gifts by her sister, Mrs Austin Lusk, of Ottawa, and Mrs Osborne Shaver.

She thanked everyone for the gifts and extended an invitation to visit her in her new home in Finch.

Mrs Geo. Rupert conducted several quiz contests after which lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs Geo. Rupert, Mrs John Rupert, Mrs Dalton MacMillan and Miss Lorraine Bourgeois.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs Cecelia Weegar desire to express their sincere thanks and appreciation for the acts of kindness, messages of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings received from their many friends and neighbours in their recent bereavement in the loss of their beloved mother and grandmother. Special thanks are extended to Dr Howard Justus, Mr Douglas Fry and Chesterville Presbyterian Choir.

IN MEMORIAM

FROATS—In fond and loving memory of our mother and grandmother, Mrs Elgin Froats, who passed away August 23, 1950.

You can only have one mother,
Patient, kind and true,
No other one in all the world
Will be so true to you.
For all her loving kindness
She asks nothing in return,
When all the world deserts you,
To your mother you can turn.
So God forgive a silent tear,
A fervent wish that Mom were here.
What would I give if I could say
"Hi Mom," in the same old way.
So you who have a mother,
Cherish her with care,
For you'll never know the heartache
'Til you see her vacant chair.

Lovingly remembered by Basil, Shirley, Rickie and Connie Barkley.

Final Tribute Paid Mrs Cecelia C. Weegar

After an illness of two months, Mrs Cecelia Catherine Weegar died Monday, August 19, at Winchester Memorial Hospital. She was in her 92nd year.

Born and educated at Williamsburg, she was the daughter of the late Adam Casselman and his wife, Emma Merkley. In April, 1893, she married Henry W. Weegar, of Dunbar, who predeceased her in 1920.

Mrs Weegar attended St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Chesterville, and was a member of the W.M.S.

She is survived by four daughters and one son, Mrs E. A. Summers (Ena), Bowmanville; Mrs Lyle Thom (Bessie), Williamsburg; Mrs Irvin Cross (Winnifred), Chesterville; Mrs Otho Hutt (Gertrude), Kingston; Graham, of Port Credit, Ont.; eight grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

The body rested at the home of her daughter, Mrs Irvin Cross, and the funeral service, conducted by Mr Douglas Fry, was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. "The Old Rugged Cross" was sung by the choir.

Pall bearers were Lyle Marcellus, Harold Marcellus, William Dillabough and Arthur Barkley.

UNHAPPY ENDING

Reporter-photographer Hewlett Stith of the Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch got a bang from this assignment.

Stith went to Camp Pendleton, Va., to take pictures of the Virginia National Guard in training. He stopped to look at a gun range and its radar tracking units.

Suddenly he let out a yelp. A radar beam had set off a flash bulb in his hip pocket.

Result: A blister the size of a half-dollar.

NOTICE

The North Dundas District High School Board wishes to inform all students and parents that the Board will endeavour to have students picked up by school buses as near their homes as may conveniently be arranged. However, as the cost of operating the buses is based on the miles travelled, the Board asks the co-operation of all concerned in having the students walk a reasonable distance to connect with the buses, avoiding unnecessary driving. The regulations covering student transportation provide that a student may be asked to walk two miles to connect with the school bus.
