Word was received this week of the death at Wakefield, England, of an old resident of Iroquois in the person of Arthur J. Willans, well past the ninety mark. Mr. Willans came here when still a young man and made a host of friends, among them the family of the late Harrie Seely and Mrs. Seely. He served in the first world war and lost a leg. He was handy with the pen, and wrote some very fine verses, much of it having to do with the early days of Iroquois and his associates here at that time. Several of his verses have appeared in the Iroquois Post from time to time.

Dr. Dorothy Forward, of Toronto, spent a short time recently calling on friends here, following a trip to the Maritime Provinces. She also visited her aunt, Mrs. Arthur Nash, at Williamsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Harkness, of Toronto, were renewing acquaintances in Iroquois and vicinity recently, calling at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harkness, Irena, and other friends.

Mr. Carman, formerly with the Ontario Forestry Service, now operates a large Christmas tree plantation a short distance east of Colborne, on Highway No. 2. Each spring a new planting of young trees is put in, and those ready for the trade are harvested yearly in November and early December. He reports there is still a ready demand for choice trees.

Miss Violet Hall, until recently a resident of town, after spending a few weeks with her niece, Mrs. John Dawson, Ottawa, has arrived at her new home in Spalding, Saskatchewan, and reports a delightful trip west.

Vol. XXXVIII No. 18 Authorized as Second Class Mail. Post Office Department, Ottawa. Iroquois, Ontario, Thursday, August 31st, 1961 $2.50 Per Year In Advance

Dr. Frank N.D. Buchman, the founder of Moral Re-Armament, who died in Freudenstadt, Germany, on August 7th, at the age of 83.

Dr. Frank Buchman's life was dedicated to raising a world force to answer the materialist ideologies of our age. Dr. Konrad Adenauer, Chancellor of the West German Republic, said in a cabled message: "I am deeply moved by the news of the sudden departure of Frank Buchman. ... His courageous battle for peace and reconciliation among the nations will secure for him a permanent and esteemed place in the memory of our nation."

Thousands of messages poured in to the memorial service held in Freudenstadt in Germany, where Dr. Buchman died. It was at Freudenstadt, twenty-three years ago, that Dr. Buchman conceived the idea of "a moral and spiritual re-armament".

Among the messages was one from Dr. Azikiwe, Governor General of Nigeria, who cabled: "Frank has left a footprint on the sands of time. We all mourn the death of this great man." President Diem of Viet Nam said: "At a time when humanity is dangerously threatened by the onrush of godless materialism, consternation is deep at the loss of a man who has contributed so much to the fight for the defence of freedom and human dignity and genuine values of our civilization." E.G. Gooch, M.P., former Chairman of the British Labour Party and President of the National Union of Agricultural Workers, stated: "He was steadfast in his stand for those things which made for individual and national greatness." Marshal Tavora, national hero of Brazil and Presidential candidate in 1956, said: "We must double our efforts and our decision so that his efforts will not have been in vain."

The central point of Frank Buchman's ideology is change.

What is needed, he once said, "is social change, economic change, national change and international change, all based on a drastic change in human nature. Until you deal with human nature thoroughly and drastically on a world scale, nations will continue to follow their historic road to violence and destruction."

At the memorial service more than 2,000 people filed slowly past the coffin - great and humble; friends of a lifetime, new acquaintances; young and old; princes, cabinet ministers, ambassadors; Chief Justice and crane-driver; Abbot Primate and Protestant Bishop; Muslims, Buddhists; mayors, editors, housewives; veteran Communists who have now accepted Buchman's ideology; heads of great industries, socialists; French, Algerians; Africans, Asians - and as the church emptied the Minister-President of Baden-Wurttemberg and Prince Richard of Hessen stood together to pay their tribute.

It was an unforgettable glimpse of a life given for all men everywhere.

Mr. Hector Arnold, President, and R. J. Kelso Vice President of the Ont. Marketing Board were present and addressed the meeting. Mr. Arnold stated that the Dominion Government, realizing the cost of exporting cheese are now paying 4 cents per pound on all cheese exported.

The demand in England is for cheese over one year old, and that Ontario makes the best cheese in the world. The wages in England are half of that in Canada, which means money not available to purchase the desired amount. There was scarcely enough export cheese in July to fill the orders.

He was much concerned about the severe grading of cheese in the Winchester District. He stated Ontario Cheese Producers are selling a train load of cheese per week in summer months.

Mr. R. J. Kelso spoke next, he said there was nothing much he could add to what Mr. Arnold had said but felt sure the remainder of 1961 looked bright for cheese.

Moved by D. Merkley and seconded by R. McIntosh that this meeting be adjourned.

401 and Iroquois

The prospect that the opening of the section of No. 401 Highway from Iroquois to Johnstown will take business away from this community is in the minds of many business people. In our humble opinion we don't feel that the opening of this section of 401 will harm to any great degree many businesses along "the front".

As 401 Highway progressed from the western end of Ontario, many small communities were bypassed so that a high-speed artery could push right across the province. In its wake it has affected some communities and the effect will not be fully known for some time.

The area lying between Kingston and Cornwall, however, has advantages to offset this new threat to survival. The St. Lawrence River, the Thousand Islands, the new International Bridge at Johnstown, the Seaway Locks and Control Dam at Iroquois, the new communities, Upper Canada Village and the parks system, as well as the scenic drives in this area, have an appeal that will not be affected by the opening of another road. These are attractions that cannot be erased by a few miles of highway.

One thing we feel that must be done, however, is that the Department of Highways be impressed with the necessity of providing adequate signs at the junction of the Johnstown bridge and the access road to 401 showing the alternate scenic road east through Cardinal, Iroquois, Morrisburg and on to Cornwall.

Similar signs should be posted near the entrance to each of the communities in Seaway Valley from 401, giving at least an inkling of the beauty and historic sights to be found in this area.

Thousands of tourists come into the eastern part of Ontario each year. If they are not lured from 401 Highway or at least informed of what lies between 401 and Lake St. Lawrence, then we might be hurt economically.

The new 401 highway is primarily an express highway, not meant for local traffic, and it would be in the interest of all concerned, to divert as much tourist or local traffic to No. 2 Highway. We feel that this thinking will help avert any downtrend in business in this area.

It will then be up to the business people in these communities to provide tourists with every means of a happy holiday to ensure a continuance of the measure of prosperity we are now receiving as a result of the attractions we now enjoy.

This New Tax

The provincial sales tax goes into effect on Friday and begins an era in financing that has many aspects, some of which we can't heartily accept but others which we have every hope will offset these misgivings.

Ontario has been growing an a rapid pace and expenditures by the province has risen accordingly. Income, however, has not kept up with the upward swing and Queen's Park needs more money with which to provide the services we require.

None of us like to pay our taxes. It's as simple as that when it comes down to the motive that many people have for paying this new tax. To many it is just another "leak" in the pocketbook that cannot be plugged. And to our mind the new tax at least takes a crack at everyone—not just the few.

As this province grows, the people residing here look forward to a better life; better education for their children, better roads, improved medical services and the like. Yet the need always seems to outrun the economic structure under which we operate. We are always behind instead of keeping abreast of the financial needs of the province. In the three per. cent. tax, we hope the provincial authorities find the economic strength required for our expanding province.

There are going to be problems to be ironed out, both in the collecting of the tax and in the education of the public as to the necessity of the tax. Yet other provinces have similar taxation, and in some provinces the tax is almost double that of Ontario. The people in these provinces have come to accept the fact as will the people of Ontario.

Our one objection is directed towards the taxation as it affects printing. Printers at present have to charge 11 per. cent. federal sales tax on printing. We now will have to collect 3 per. cent. on top of the 11 per cent. Where a printing job now costs $10.00 we add 11 per cent (or $1.10) making the total bill $11.10. The new tax means adding 3 per cent to the $11.10, not to the $10.00 which is the actual cost of the job. The new taxation actually means tax on tax—provincial tax on top of federal tax. It means a customer actually pays three and one-third per cent tax on his printing.

There may be similar injustices affecting other types of businesses and it is to be hoped that provincial authorities take these into account and amend the context of their instructions to relieve such businesses and actually the residents of the province of this excess taxation. If the tax is meant to be equitable, then it should be exquitable for all.

A feller gets a chance to dream—

He learns the beauties of the stream:

An' he can wash his soul in air
That isn't foul with selfish care
An' relish plain and simple fare—

A fellers' glad to be a friend—

The brotherhood of rod and line

Men come real close to God's design—

Not Quite A Bounce

The musical term staccato means "bouncing" and its opposite is legato, smooth. In between them is portamento. It means "carried", and the Book of Knowledge defines it as half staccato.

World's Oldest University

Which is the oldest centre of learning in the world? The Book of Knowledge says that Fouad I University in Cairo, Egypt, was established more than 1,500 years ago, although it was not officially called a university until 1925.

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

I have just tried to wade through a novel, written by a woman, which contains 1,085 pages of fine print. And I use the word "wade" advisedly. It was like lurching through a swamp in a pair of leaking hip waders with a 100-pound sack of wet fish on my back.

The only thing the novel conveyed to me, after hours and hours of reading, was something of which I was already aware—that women talk too much.

Now, I'm not trying to be offensive when I say that.I am merely making a scientific observation. It's easy to utter generalities, and I don't mean that all woman talk too much. No more than a woman means all men, when she states flatly—and I've heard it a hundred times— "Men are selfish, utterly selfish!" She just means all the males she has ever known. And I just mean all the women I've ever known.

I've made something of a study of this ,in moments of quiet desperation, and my conclusions are based on actual observations. My mother talked too much, my wife talks too much, my mother-in-law talks too much, and my small daughter is turning into quite a yakker.

I repeat, I'm not trying to be snide about this. It is merely an interesting phenomenon, which I think has had an overwhelming impact on world history. Who, for example, started chewing the fat with that reptile, in the Garden of Eden? It wasn't Adam. And we all know where that bit of female blathering landed us.

Why do women talk so much? It is because they feel insecure? I doubt it. Is it because they're nervous? I doubt that ,too. Poor or rich, skinny or fat, nervous or placid, secure or insecure, ugly or beautiful, they talk too much, and I honestly believe they can't help it.

Now, I'm not trying to suggest that men are strong, silent types who never open their mouths unless they are about to emit some morsel of wisdom. Some politicians and some preachers can talk more and say less than a whole gaggle of women. But they're the exceptions. Few men can talk endlessly, without apparent effort. Most women can. And do.

I am not suggesting that this is a bad thing, necessarily. The cheerful chirps of the ladies over the tea-cups is a symbol that all's well with the world. The interminable telephone conversations about clothes and pickles and what Maisie said to Thelma are reasuring sounds in a far from reassuring society.

It is not the talk of women that sends nations reeling into annihilating wars. It is not the talk of women that introduces corruption into public affairs. It is not the talk of women that produces inflation, starvation and all the other "ations" that beset us.

No, these delights of the modern world are produced by the talking of men. It is the talking of women that hushes the frightened child, that soothes the old person in pain. It is the talking of women that keeps husbands from polygamy and a fondness for the grape. It is the talking of women that produces better schools and better hospitals.

There's no doubt about it. The hand that rocks the cradle rules the roost, or something. Like the weather, death and taxes, we can look forward to the talking of women as a sure thing, and while it may fray the nerves to the shrieking point, at times it will not likely do the world any permanent harm.

It's also useful as a weathervan. Around our house, the only time the Old Girl stops talking is when she's mad. And when that happens, we all know enough to head for the storm cellars.

For the last 20 years or so of his life, my Dad pretended he was so deaf he couldn't hear a word my mother said. And the longer I'm married, the more I respect his native cunning.

The Joys of Living Out of a Suitcase

by Dorothy Barker

I suppose every woman works herself into a lather at the very prospect of getting ready to spend four weeks living out of a suitcase. From the hour I was informed my trip to the Maritimes was all lined up I started to vision what I should pack. Would it be my four-year-old navy linen suit, my two-year-old dinner dress, my favorite knitted suit and a bathing suit that had seen better days? The latter had been bleached in Vancouver sun, attracted the sand and grit from numerous Ontario lakes and been ducked in countless suburban backyard pools. Why it hadn't seen the rag bag long since it what is known in the family as a Barkerism. When I like a garment, be it bathing suit, evening gown or housecoat, I wear it until only the seams hang together.

This might lead one to believe that I am devoid of a clothes consciousness. Far from it. Clothes haunt many of my waking moments, worrying me about what to wear with which for such and such an occasion and to do colors match, or swear, at one another?

Knitting and Sewing

I decided I would settle this once and for all and for several seasons I bought only one color combination—navy, light, dark and in between. I even decided to knit a sweater in navy. To lighten its sombreness and give the pattern some style I was persuaded to knit it with a glitter thread. The American pattern itself was a simple one of knit two, purl two and reverse on the next row. The sales girl inspired me by saying I could knit it in a week with jiffy wool, or double knit as it is called in Canada, on oversized needless Canadian No. 4, American No. 10. This in itself was confusing enough to throw me off my knitting stride. Just add to such confusion the hectic business of keeping track of that glitter thread and one can understand why the pattern turned out to be, knit two, rip one.

A month later, when the family was about to apply for my admittance to a mental institution, I finally sewed up the seams. One shoulder was wider than the other, giving me a lopsided look as though I had spent my growing years leaning up against a wall. The glitter gleamed here and there, enhancing the whole with a simple moth eaten appearance. One sleeve was longer than the other. But it was an accomplishment and I was proud of it.

In fact, so proud that I decided to make a dress to go with, as a true Lunenburger would say. This was called in the style book "a little nothing" and, when finished, on me it looked exactly like that. Instead of accenting my better physical features, it made my mature 36-28-36 figure look like it had been done up in a sack and tied in the middle. Fetching!

To buck me up I decided to read the alluring description about my CN Maple Leaf Tour all over again. In small type at the bottom of the page, after I had drooled over the prospect of two days at Keltic Lodge, Ingonish Beach, and two solid days in Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island (highlights in the travel itinerary) I found these words 'only one piece of hand luggage will be allowed each traveler on the tour of the Atlantic Provinces'.

How Do I Pack It

This came as a bit of a shock, for after almost three years on the road, the railroad that is, I have reduced my travel equipment to a comfortable overnight bag and cruise case. I juggled the contents I usually carry in the overnight bag with tissue paper wrapped garments that often live in the cruise case for weeks at a time. Nothing seemed to fit or promise a pleasant journey. I pictured myself wrestling with a sun dress while trying to find my foundation cream, or being fearful I would discover I had on a nightdress when I intended to wear a sweater and skirt.

I learned there is a piece of luggage, designated as 'hand luggage' known by a name no true railway addict would ever even mention. It was the answer to my problem. Dresses stay nicely sorted on hangers, shoes have a home in a plastic pocket and best of all, the outside zipped up pocket has oceans of room for nightie, slippers, dressing gown and make-up kit, camera, rain coat, and several envelopes of 'meal in a glass formula'. Packed for a very good purpose, the formula is to remind me that just because meals are all inclusive in this planned tour, I don't need to over indulge. Otherwise, after weeks of stuffing, I might look—in my stylish little "nothing"—like a barrel about to be launched over Niagara Falls.

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN?

What would happen If . . . ? Mentally ask yourself this question re-peatedly when you are at the wheel. This is called "defensive driving" says the Ontario Safety League. It helps you condition your mental reflexes to anticipate dangerous accident situations. What would happen If. . . the door of that parked car ahead is flung open?; if the driver ahead slams on his brakes to avoid a dog?; if the car coming down the sideroad doesn't obey the stop sign?; if there's a stalled car, or a cow, just over the brow of the hill?; if the brakes on the car tailing you are as beat-up as the body work? Safety is largely a state of mind. Drive defensively—and be prepared for the unexpected.

PLASTIC DEATHS ON INCREASE

Winthin three summer weeks, five more babies have smothered in thin plastic. Four of the deaths occurred in Ontario and one in Manitoba. As in previous instances, the agent of death in every case is reported to be the very thin plastic used in packaging, and in protecting dry-cleaning.

This is the biggest upsurge of deaths from the cause since the summer of 1959, when 20 babies suffocated over a three-month period.

As in the past, this summe 's victims were all tiny children, the eldest 21 months, and in every case the plastic was mis-used or misplaced by adults, either right in the crib or left within easy reach.

The Ontario Safety League urges renewed vigilance by every parent, to make sure thin plastic is destroyed or safely discarded where there is any possibility of it falling into the hands of children.

Pamphlets and posters are available from the League, 208 King St. W., Toronto, to any enterprising service group or company wishing to help publicize the danger.

We who make whisky say:

DRINKING AND DRIVING DO NOT MIX

Fine whisky is a luxury and should be treated as such. And, knowing when to say "no" plays a great part in the art of sensible living.

Neither whisky nor any other alcoholic beverage has any place at the wheel of an automobile. Drinking and driving do not mix.

This conviction must be shared by every thinking person who drives a car, particularly this Labour Day week-end when many holidaying families will be travelling on Ontario highways.

If you expect to be at the wheel of a car this week-end, we say to you: Think before you drink. Don't drink before you drive.

HINTS FOR HOMEMAKERS

Ripe, red juicy tomatoes—they're wonderful in tossed salads. Add them at the last minute. The home economics specialists at Macdonald Institute suggest cutting them the french way. This means vertical wedges instead of horizontal slices. The tomatoes will lose less juice when cut this way.

If you like a slight taste of garlic in a salad ,try lightly rubbing a garlic clove around the salad bowl before you put the salad in, suggests the Food and Nutrition Department, Macdonald Institute.

Disagreement On Ways To Lift Unemployment

Montreal, Aug. 25—While everyone agrees high levels of employment are desirable, there is disagreement on ways and means of achieving this aim, according to the Bank of Montreal's Business Review for August.

The review summarizes the recently published report of the Senate special committee on manpower and employment and says the committee's findings will contribute to wider understanding of an important problem.

Pointing first to a "remarkable expansion" of the labor force, the review says 1,250,000 men and women were added in the decade from 1950 to 1960, with the total reaching more than 6,400,000.

Almost half of the increase was due to "net immigration", with an increasing proportion of women workers and maturing "war babies" accounting for the remainder.

13 Per Cent More

In the next five years, the bank quotes the committee as anticipating a further increase of 11 to 13 per cent in the labor force.

Against this background of more people wanting work—plus a steady decline in the number of jobs available in farming, the report says about 1,000,000 new jobs will be needed in the next five years.

Hence, the B of M says, the crux of Canada's current unemployment problem is the gap between the growth of the labor force and the number of job opportunities open, rather than in an absolute reduction of the number of people at work.

Slower Growth

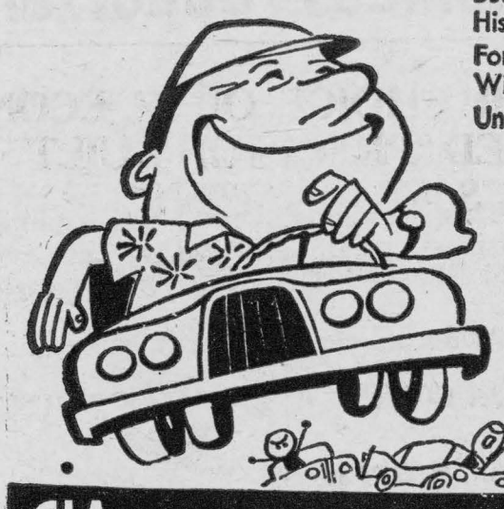

The review goes on to say that the Senate committee believes that a slower rate of growth, coupled with changes in Canada's basic economic structure, are the principal factors to account for high unemployment.

Further, there was a concurrent decline in the rate of capital investment, so that a large portion of the labor force was displaced from the construction and capital goods industries, without the opportunity arising for reabsorption into other work.

Towards future solution of the complicated, interrelated series of problems which add up to cause the present high level of unemployment, the B. of M quotes the Senate committee's own summary:

"There is a changed world environment. There are new trends and new circumstances in our society at home. These require rethinking and a willingness to reexamine our priorities, our methods, and our machinery of economic policy. Continued progress depends on the ability to adapt, to solve new problems, and to take advantage of new opportunities."

Herk was never a fellow to shirk Safety habits while he was at work!

But he didn't survive
His Labour Day drive . . .
For he drove without care,
With a nonchalant air,
Unaware that safe driving is work!

Careful drivers know driving safely is a full time job!

They don't speed; they obey traffic signs; they leave a safe distance between cars; they signal their intentions well in advance.

HINTS FOR HOMEMAKERS

Never soak your wooden salad bowl in water. As soon as possible after you use it, wash it in lukewarm water, and then rinse with cold water, suggests the food specialists at Macdonald Institute. Then wipe immediately with a clean, dry towel. Your salad bowl will look better and last longer with this proper treatment.

To keep the bloom on peaches, try this method suggested by Macdonald Institute. Pour boiling water on the peaches (blanch) for 1 minute. Then dip in cold water. The skin will come off very easily, and the orsy hue will remain on the peach.

Here & There

by Kay Kay

It's back to putting on socks and shoes—a brand new haircut and pressed pants. School opens immediately after the Labour Day holiday and dozens of feet will skip along the streets unhesitatingly towards the rooms of higher learning.

For some it will be the first day of school and somehow we wish we were starting again ourselves. The adventure of that first year would be really worthwhile going through just once more.

It will be "old stuff" for the Grade Two gang—and those "children" in Grade One! Well!

First-formers in High School create about the same attitude in the remainder of the classes as do the First-graders in Public. Those "potato bugs", as public schoolers call their neighboring students. It all comes back with the first day of school and then is forgotten in the minds of those who have run the gauntlet some years back.

The ones who feel it the hardest are the ones who were forced to quit school for one reason or another. They tend to regret their departure from classrooms for the first few days and they are the ones we would like to see back getting an education.

The schools in Iroquois will be expecting a higher enrolment this year but that only means a larger number dropping out as the years roll along. By the time the ones who are entering grade one reach second or third form high, there will have been a great percentage of "drop-outs". It is an unfortunate situation that we look forward to seeing corrected.

The facilities are here in the community and it appears that the staffs of the schools are well qualified. A little more "get-up-and-git" in the students would be a great help in stemming the flow of drop-outs. Many parents give in to their children wanting to quit school just to save an argument. It isn't that they can't afford to send them so much as a lack of putting the foot down at the right time.

Some children reach their zenith of academic learning, as far as they are concerned, and others go to school to get out of doing something towards becoming an adult. They have lost interest in school but haven't gained interest in pursuing a vocation, if it entails working for it.

This latter group must be a headache to the teacher.

At any rate, Tuesday will bring 'em all out—the good and the indifferent. Only time will tell what life has in store for each of them.

Fishing in the St. Lawrence was once one of our cherished relaxations. For the first time in years we spend an afternoon floating with the current fishing for bass. Luck wasn't with us particularly, but man, what relaxation.

End Another 4-H Project

Thursday, August 31st, 1961, marks the end of another 4-H Homemaking Club project. The girls and their leaders have just completed the 4-H Home Garden Club, with emphasis on the storage of vegetables. They will gather on that day at the Morrisburg Public School, Morrisburg, Ontario, for their Achievement Day. In the morning they will participate in judging vegetables and answer a garden quiz.

The afternoon programme, starting at 1:30 p.m. should prove to be very interesting. The girls will be participating in exhibits, skits and demonstrations on good gardening and the preservation of different vegetables. Each girl's Record Book, five of her vegetables and a jar of her tomatoes will be on display. Everyone is invited to this programme.

Five girls will be receiving Provincial Honour certificates and pins upon completing twelve units, while three are receiving County Honours for completing six Clubs.

Parents, Women's Institute members and friends are cordially invited.

Holiday On Monday

Stores in Iroquois will be closed on Labour Day, Monday September 4th, 1961.

Scholarship Winners Announced

The Selection Committee for the Student Council Scholarships and bursaries of the Mountain District High School are pleased to announce that Miss Marie Hoy has been awarded a Student Council Scholarship. The scholarship, valued at two hundred dollars, is awarded to those students who attain first degree honours on their Departmental Examinations.

The Selection Committee will be pleased to consider applications from any graduates of the school who plan to attend or are now attending institutes of higher learning and did not submit their applications in June. The deadline is September 15 and the necessary application forms may be procured at the high school.

These scholarships and bursaries are made available to the garduates of the Mountain District High School through the generosity of all those who contribute to the Student Council Auction Dance each October.

New Library Books

Two books of non-fiction and five fiction were added to the new books at the Iroquois Public Library this week.

In the non-fiction class were "Discovery and Explorations" and "Living Forwards."

"Discovery and Explorations" is an atlas-history by Frank Debenham, founder of the Scott Research Institute, with an introduction by Edward Shackleton. It is a beautifully illustrated volume which brings the whole dramatic story of man's conquest of his world from prehistoric times up to our own space age.

"Living Forwards" is the autobiography of Burnett James who was stricken by polio at the age of fifteen while on a Mediterranean cruise in 1935. His courageeous struggle to make a new life for himself makes interesting reading.

The fiction were made up of two novels with European settings one about Africa, one with an Australian background and one set in the United States.

"Destiny of Fire" by Zoe Oldenbourg is a twelfth century historical novel. The heroes are the Cathars or Albigensians, a heretical sect which flourished in northern Europe.

"Rembrandt" a novel by Gladys Schmitt based on the life of the great painter evokes the glories and tragedies of human existence from the high-heartedness of youth to the sorrows of old age.

The setting of Graham Green's new novel "A Burnt-Out Case" is the outskirts of a leper village in the Belgian Congo. It tells of a man who fled from his European home to find temporary sanctuary there.

"The Refuge" by Helen Fowler recounts a tragic happening and desperate strugle in the white heat of Australian midsummer and the effect it has on a group of people.

"The Courtship of Eddie's Father" by Mark Toby is about a six-year old boy who sets out to find a new mother for himself, launching one of the most remarkable woman hunts of all times.

Versatile Mockingbird

The mockingbird is a talented ventriloquist and according to the Book of Knowledge it can imitate almost any sound. It delights, of course, in imitating the songs of other birds, but is quite capable of copying such sounds as the cry of a sheep. They seem to be fond of human company, for they frequently nest in trees along the streets in the southern parts of North America.

Battery Of Elevators

The Empire State Building in New York, which is the world's tallest structure, has 58 main passenger elevators to transport the thousands of people who work in the building or use it. The Book of Knowledge points out that many of these are express elevators which shoot up ten, twenty or more storeys before stop.

No Place To Get Lost

The Sahara Desert, largest in the world, measures about 3000 miles by 900 miles. According to The Book of Knowledge it stretches from the Atlantic to the Red Sea. In summer the thermometer has reached 136 degrees, much hotter even than any place on the equator.

IN MEMORIAM

BECKSTEAD—In loving memory of a dear nephew, Robert John Beckstead, who passed away August 31, 1960.
There's a road they call Remembrance,
Where thought and wishes meet,
We take that road in thought today,
To one we cannot meet,
Just a loving thought, just a silent tear,
A beautiful memory of a nephew dear.

Sadly missed by uncle Orval and aunt Eileen Cowan.

BECKSTEAD—In loving memory of a dear grandson, Robert John Beckstead, who was accidentally drowned, August 31, 1960.
Beautiful memories, dearer than gold,
Of a dear grandson whose worth can never be told,
Alone unseen, he stands by our side.
And whispers, "Don't grieve, death cannot devide."
Deep in our hearts a memory is kept
Of one we loved and will never forget;
And though the years be many or few,
We'll always be thinking dear Robert of you.

Sadly missed by Grandpa and Grandma Cowan.

BECKSTEAD—In sad and loving memory of a dear beloved nephew, Robert John Beckstead, who was accidentally drowned on August 31st, 1960.
He did not know when leaving home,
He would no more return;
That he so soon in death would sleep,
And leave me here to mourn
I do not know what pain he bore,
I did not see him die,
I only know he went away,
And never said "Good bue."

Sadly missed and ever remembered by Aunt, Yvonne Cowan.

BECKSTEAD—In sad and loving memory of a dear beloved son and brother, Robert John Beckstead, who was accidentally drowned on August 31st, 1960.
Please God forgive a silent tear,
A silent wish our boy was here,
There were others, yes we know,
But he was ours and we loved him so,
One year ago we had to part
With the one we loved with all our heart,
Wound so deep it will not heal,
Only those who have lost know how we feel.
If we could speak with Robert today,
Laugh with him the same old way,
Hear his voice and see him smile,
Then life indeed would be worth while.
Sadly missed and ever remembered by Dad and Mom, brothers and sister, Arnold, Carman, Carl and Retha.

SERVISS—In loving memory of our dear brother, Delbert H. Serviss, who passed away September 7, 1957.
Four sad and lonely years have passed,
Since our great sorrow fell;
The schock that we received that day,
No one can ever tell,
God gave us strength to meet it;
And courage to bear the blow,
But what it meant to lose you Delbert,
No one will ever know.
Sadly missed by brothers and sisters

SERVISS—In loving memory of a dear son, Delbert Harry Serviss, who passed away Sept. 7, 1957.
Oh! happy hours we once enjoyed.
How sweet their memory still,
But death has left a loneliness,
The world can never fill.
Always remembered by Mother and Dad, Morris and Luella Serivss.
