HENRY'S Shorthand School Ottawa, Ont.

No School in Canada offers a better training, or ensures a more successful future. Henry's leads all others, and ranks among employers as "THE SCHOOL OF HIGHER EFFICIENCY"—a fact borne out by more than 600 pupils who have, since January, 1913, left other Ottawa schools to come to it.

Therefore, it is not surprising that business men, in advertising for stenographers, should specially say, "Graduates of Henry's School preferred."

Twelve-Year-Olds Get Cameras

This morning at eight Hunt's Drug store presented a besieged appearance when the entrance was jammed with boys and girls who attained their twelfth year in 1930. The rush was occasioned by the offer of free cameras to a certain number of boys and girls, six in fact, in this district, who were first to make application starting May 1st, being twelve years of age during this year. The following were the lucky ones: Lee Smith, Ethelwyn Barrie, Elmer Belanger, Lillian Johnston, Dwayne Shaver, and Vivian LaSalle.

James Webb, Finch, Dies Driving Car

James, Webb, 58, farm labourer, died Monday night of heart failure. Webb was driving his car, returning from Cornwall, when about one mile south of Finch he became suddenly ill. The car was travelling slowly and left the highway, crossed a very deep ditch and was stopped by a stump. William Hubbard was driving with him. He immediately summoned medical aid. When Dr. J. G. McLeod arrived, he found Mr. Webb dead. Dr. J. Pollock, coroner, of Avonmore, was notified but said an inquest was not necessary. Mr. Webb served overseas in the Great War. He enlisted with the 154th Pipe Band and served with the 21st Battalion in France. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. M. McMillan, of Berwick.

Death of Thomas Blacklock

The community was shocked to learn on Saturday morning of the death of Mr. Thomas A. Blacklock, son of the late Dr. John J. Blacklock, formerly of Chesterville and Morrisburg.

The deceased was born in Alexandria, Ont., but lived practically his whole life in Chesterville and vicinity where he was well and favorably known.

The funeral, which was largely attended, was held on Monday from his late residence to St. Mary's church, where requiem high mass was sung by Rev. Fr. Staley. Interment took place in the Upper cemetery.

The pall bearers were: Messrs. Thos. Flynn, Henry McMahon, Roland P. Kerr, Edward Kane, E. Sarvis, and A. Harrison.

Mass cards were received from the following: Mrs. Eleanor Blacklock, high mass; Mr. and Mrs. Michael Walsh, Mr. and Mrs. C. Dwyer, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Foley, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Grengarry Farmer Missing

Search parties composed of almost 100 farmers were yesterday combing the district for traces of Matthew Watson, farmer residing near Dalkeith, who disappeared on Tuesday of last week. The search has been going on since Friday but has so far been unavailing.

Watson, who is about 50 years of age, lived alone on his farm and although he had not been seen by neighbors since a week ago Tuesday, his absence from the farm was not noted until Friday. A neighbor called to see him on that day and, failing to find him at the house, visited the stables and found that the livestock had not received attention for a considerable time. He immediately gave an alarm and a thorough search was instigated. A check of his clothing revealed nothing missing beyond his working clothes and a mackinaw coat, which he was wearing when last seen.

The search this week has covered a large territory but the largest party to date was on the ground yesterday. A large number of men from St. Zotique, where a brother resides, augmented the local party and groups of men will systematically comb every inch of the area for miles around the Watson farm.

Neighbors state that they had noticed nothing peculiar in Watson's actions when they saw him last and could give no explanation for his mysterious disappearance. Watson had resided near Dalkeith for the past 18 months, prior to which he lived in East Hawkesbury township. He has a sister in Ottawa and a sister and brother on the old homestead in East Hawkesbury.

Provincial Constable Albert McDougall of Alexandria is in charge of the search.

Treats Fellow Vagrants

John Robinson, of an Ottawa address, while facing a vagrancy charge in the Prescott town jail Tuesday night evidently thought he had been promoted to the liquor stores vendor position of that town as he began passing bottles of beer out to the knights of the road who were being harbored in the outer room. Robinson gained entrance to an inner cell by forcing a lock and discovered several cases of confiscated beer, the property of the Ontario Liquor Board. He had passed out several bottles before his actions were discovered by the chief of police.

DANCE AT BERWICK

A dance will be held in the Community Hall, Berwick, Tuesday, May 6th. Don Johnson's orchestra, of Winchester, will supply the music. Admission $1.00, including refreshments.

Hundreds Accept Invitation

The effectiveness of advertising was demonstrated Tuesday night when citizens of this district turned up by the hundreds in response to an invitation extended through the Record by International representatives to attend a picture show in the Town Hall and afterwards join in an old time dance in the Music Hall. The picture showing the benefits that may be derived from power farming appealed to the farming community who were very much interested in the development that is taking place along that line. The Town Hall could not nearly hold all those desiring to get in, neither was the Music Hall any too large for those who wished to enjoy the dance, and while many were interested in the latest in machinery, for a real bang-up time the old-time dance had it faded to a frazzle in its appeal to the rising generation as well as those whose memories were turned back to good times long past which they never expected to see repeated. The evening's entertainment had all the ear-marks of an old-time house party, without the eats, when there was neither tax nor admission fee. To Charlie McMillan must be given all the credit for originating the idea and carrying it out successfully.

Sudden Death of Winchester Lady

While out making calls on Saturday afternoon last, death came very unexpectedly to Mrs. Wm. Steinburgh, of Winchester, who was in her 69th year, just as she was on the verandah of the house she was to enter. She appeared to have been in her usual good health as she had not complained of not feeling well. It was a great shock to the members of her family as well as to the community where she was greatly respected because of her kindly disposition. She was a wonderful mother and wife in the home. Besides her husband, she is mourned by two sons and three daughters, all of whom are away from home.

The funeral service was largely attended on Tuesday at 2 p.m. in Winchester United church when her pastor, Rev. J. A. Waddell, spoke words of comfort from John 14 : 27. Rev's. D. W. Turner and D. A. Summers assisted in the service. Mrs. Hazel Hutt sang feelingly "My Task."

Interment was made in Maple Ridge cemetery.

If You .. Require Glasses

You need them now. To postpone the wearing of glasses because of groundless prejudice is to take risks with your eyes. You cannot be too careful to preserve the quality of your vision.

To begin to care for your eyes to-day is better than to-morrow.

One eye, if not both, may be slightly defective and defects can only grow worse if the eyes are left to grapple with them unaided.

Come and get the benefit of our scientific method of sight testing and modern equipment.

Let us give you an accurate knowledge of the condition of your eyes.

Barn Burned Near Hallville

Sunday evening about nine o'clock a large barn on the farm of Robinson Hoy, about two miles east of Hallville, was destroyed by fire of an unknown origin, together with a quantity of hay and straw stored in it. By strenuous efforts of a bucket brigade the residence, which was in much danger was saved. It was not occupied at the time. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

News and Information For the Busy Farmer

Furnished by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Edgar Kennedy, Delhi, N. Y., recently purchased ten head of registered Holstein cows and heifers from Lorne McLean, Finch, Ont.

Charles L. Randall, Homer, N. Y., has just shipped from Eastern Ontario a carload of purebred Holstein cows and heifers purchased from the following breeders: R. J. VanCamp, Cardinal, 4; Geo. Byers, Cardinal, 3; Arthur McInnis, Iroquois, 4; T. C. Reilly, Spencerville, 6; John Moffatt, Winchester, 3; Andrew Fawcett, Winchester, 2.

L. J. Lonergan, Homer, N.Y., has just concluded buying a couple of carloads of purebred Holstein cows and heifers from breeders in Eastern Ontario. Mr. Lonergan's purchases included 3 head from Albert Payne, Brinston; 11 head from F. A. Mulloy, Mountain; 5 head from John W. Guy, Inkerman; 6 head from Roy Barkley, Inkerman; 6 head from M. J. Higgins, Brockville; 3 head from Bertram Johnston, Iroquois; 4 head from W. S. Timmins, Inkerman; 3 head from Wm. J. Ward, Prescott, and 1 head from Nicholas Ralph, Inkerman.

Good Advice.

Speaking to a group of farmers at Picton recently, Dr. G. I. Christie, President of the O. A. C., gave some good advice which should be applicable to all of us: "That for 1930 I am going to look after my own business first and make every acre of my farm pay and forget about the gloomy things I have heard and read."

Better Bull Area.

H. A. Dorrance, Agricultural Representative for Brant County, reports that the Brant County Council has passed the necessary bylaw to declare that county a better bull area. A county live stock improvement association has been organized for the constant and permanent improvement of Brant's live stock.

Beautifying School Grounds.

A praiseworthy movement has been started in Lincoln County, where a large number of rural schools are applying to the district agricultural office for planting plans whereby the school grounds may be beautified. Rough sketches are made by the teachers and these are forwarded to the Horticultural Department at the O. A. C., where blue prints are prepared, giving the exact planting arrangement for trees, windbreaks, shrubs, and flowers. The trees are ordered from the Forestry Branch at Toronto, and are supplied free, the school sections paying only the express from the Government Station at St. Williams. This enterprise should effect a tremendous improvement in school grounds and deserves to be emulated in other counties.

Grow More Barley.

A partial solution of the problem of marketing Canada's wheat crop will probably be found in the growing of less wheat and more barley this year anyway. Barley is the great staple grain of the feeder of live stock, yielding the biggest returns in the terms of animal nutriment per acre. In other words, more actual food is produced in a normal year from one acre of barley than from any other grain. There is in Ontario, too a steady market at better than world prices for a large volume of good barley for industrial purposes, and when it comes to the building up of poor soil, or the reclaiming of weedinfested areas, there is no other grain crop that can be utilized to such advantage. The present barley crop in Ontario is only about one-half of the combined acreage in fall and spring wheat, but present prospects point to this situation being reversed with profits to the producer and the province as a whole.

Purity Will Count.

It is almost universally acknowledged that the production of good quality crops is a better paying proposition than the producing of poorer quality and the very best Canadian authorities are constantly advocating the sowing of seed of the best quality. "Growers intending to show in the wheat classes of the World's Grain Show," says L. H. Newman, Dominion cerealist and chairman of the awards committee, "should make every effort to get the purest stock possible. In placing the awards at Regina in 1932, purity of variety or type, as determined by growing tests, will constitute an important factor, although not the only factor."

Ontario Potatoes.

The success of co-operative marketing of potatoes in the County of Simcoe is remarked upon editorially by the Barrie Examiner as follows:

"The organized effort among a number of potato growers in this district to improve the quality of their product and market it to advantage is producing good results. For the first time in ten years Ontario potatoes of certified brand have been commanding practically as good a price as those from New Brunswick. With a little perseverance and an extension of the organized movement Ontario potatoes in a few years should regain practically the whole of the Ontario market which was lost through inefficient methods."

Weekly Crop Report.

Somewhat more optimistic reports have been forthcoming from agricultural representatives. However Brant Elgin, Essex, Haldimand, Halton, Lambton, Prince Edward Counties all report serious injuries to fall wheat fields that will result in many cases in replanting. A few other counties anticipate good crops. Maple syrup has been poorer in Carleton this spring than usual but the reverse is the case in Lennox and Addington. A shortage of seed potatoes obtains in Dufferin while the certified article is having a ready sale in Durham. The milk flow is low in Frontenac with a good trade for farmers' butter. Fall wheat appears in excellent shape in Huron. 1929 seeding of clover suffered quite severely in Kent. Spraying is the order of the day in Lincoln. Temiskaming reports an unusually good dairy situation with one local creamery having doubled its last year's output for the same period. One thousand acres of certified seed will be sown in Wellington this year.

Survey of Fruit Industry.

A general survey of the fruit industry of Canada is to be commenced at an early date with Dr. J. F. Booth as commissioner, and "Joe" Coke from the economics department of O. A. C., as his assistant. Dr. Booth is asking the co-operation of all interested in finding out the exact facts regarding the fruit industry. Both the Canadian Horticultural Council and the all-Canada Agricultural Conference have asked for such an investigation of costs and methods.

Change in Personnel.

Appointment of W. B. Roadhouse, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, to the post of Chairman of the Ontario Agricultural Development Board, and the appointment of a new Deputy Minister in the person of James B. Fairbairn, of Beamsville, has been announced by the Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture. Mr. Roadhouse has been acting chairman of the Development Board since last summer, and much of the credit for the successful work in 1929 was due to his administration. Mr. Roadhouse has been Deputy Minister for eighteen years. He entered the Ontario civil service more than 21 years ago, and was from 1909 to 1912 secretary of the Department and of the Ontario Government Milk Commission. Mr. Fairbairn, the new Deputy Minister, has been actively engaged in farming, chiefly fruit growing, since 1911. In the past twelve years he has held many offices associated with the agricultural industry. In 1917 he was president of the Ontario Experimental Union; 1918-1919 president of the Beamsville Farmers' Club; 1922. president of the O. A. C. Alumni; 1922-23, president of the Niagara Peninsula Fruit Growers' Association.

Morrisburg Man In Church Car Stolen In Front

Quick action on the part of a woman in Morrisburg was the factor in bringing to justice Jack Gerrie, Francis Verdun, and Robert Kirkpatrick, all of Montreal, Sunday, who confessed to stealing an automobile from in front of the United church in Morrisburg the same morning about 11 o'clock, the property of C. W. Wereley.

Mr. Wereley had entered the church for service at 10.30 and left his car in front of the building. About 11 o'clock, a lady living opposite, noticed three men enter the car and drive off. Knowing that the owner was in church, she went to George Merkley's home and told him of the case. Mr. Merkley in turn went to and told Mr. Wereley who, in company with Provincial Constable P. Jakeman, of Morrisburg, set out in pursuit. From Iroquois, Mr. Jakeman telephoned Prescott and Brockville police. They continued to Brockville with no trace of the missing car. On their return home they were notified that the car was parked on the side road, a few rods off the highway, at Miller's Corners, five miles south of Kemptville.

Jack Tobin, assistant village clerk at Kemptville, was notified that a car bearing license number DO 719 was left deserted and immediately recognized it as the missing car. In company with Traffic Officer P. E. Harkness he visited the car and identified it. On their return they picked up the three men on the roadside and took them to the Kemptville jail.

Health Service

MILK

Milk is the most important food for young children. The child may take his milk as a drink, or on bread, cereal or fruit. Milk is also used in making soups, custards and puddings.

Milk is a liquid, but it should not be thought of as a beverage, as something to take the place of water. Liquids are necessary and desirable, and most of our foods contain a large percentage of water. Milk is a food containing about twelve per cent solids. These solids are the very best food substances.

If you evaporate a cup of milk, you secure about half a cupful of butter fat, milk sugar, and small amounts of certain minerals which go to make muscles, bones and teeth.

We cannot see these substances in milk because they are dissolved, but when we use milk, we take them into our bodies and so receive all the nourishment that the milk contains.

In addition to these food substances which build up the body and repair and restore worn-out tissues, milk contains vitamins which are so important in promoting growth and development in children and in keeping children and adults well.

There is no other food which can serve as well as the basis of a diet for a child. It is most desirable that every child should receive the benefits which are derived from the use of a sufficient amount of milk each day in his diet.

There have been many experiments carried out in which the effects of milk upon children have been carefully observed, and these observations have shown that children do benefit by the use of milk.

Milk is rich in calcium (lime) and phosphorus. The green leafy vegetables are another source of calcium. The use of milk assures the body of sufficient calcium, the lack of which causes damage to the bones of the body and to the teeth.

A great advantage of milk is the ease with which it can be combined with other foods. The need of a properly balanced diet is frequently mentioned. The name "protective foods" has been given to milk and the leafy vegetables because of their ability to make good the deficiencies of other foods. If we use milk and leafy vegetables, we are protected from the ill results of an unbalanced or d ficient diet.

Milk is the one food for which we have no satisfactory substitute.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

C. A. LAVIGNE, CRYSLER

Dundas-Grenville Presbyterial

With a large delegation of more than two hundred, besides many visitors, the W. M. S. of the United Church met in Morrisburg on the 23rd inst.

The Pesident, Mrs. Hyndman, conducted the opending worship at 9.30 a.m., calling attention to the thought of Faith as the leading thought of the program.

Three ladies of Williamsburg Auxiliary took the morning devotions, after which Miss Farlinger graciously welcomed the delegates to Morrisburg. Mrs. W. Coulthart, on behalf of the visitors, expressed thanks for this welcome.

The Mission Circle Representatives held a conference under the leader, Mrs. McCarley, assisted by Miss Wickware of Ottawa.

After conducting an impressive memorial service for the members gone on to higher service throughout the year, Mrs. Hyndman gave her annual address, which sounded a note of encouragement for the past and determination to make this year mark greater devotion to our Master's work.

Reports of the year's work were given as follows:—Mrs. J. W. Ault, Cor. Sec., showed that there had been an increase of 171 members; Mrs. McDougall, Treas., said that $9250 was sent to the Branch Treasurer. Mrs. Anderson spoke of noble work done by the Mission Band Leaders, 3 new Bands were reported but two others had disbanded because of lack of leaders.

Mrs. Graham gave a good report of the Temperance Department, urging us not to be discouraged but to be much in prayer for this work. Mrs. Cross in reporting for Christian Stewardship said there was room for improvement. Mrs. Irwin sent a good report of the Associate Helpers.

Miss Fairbairn said the supplies received were in excellent condition and all had been sent to places needing them, where they were appreciated. Mrs. Hilliard sent greetings, also her report of the work done by the Strangers' Secretaries. Mrs. Allison in her report of the Literature Department, gave many good suggestions. Mrs. Cleland gave good reason why we should subscribe to the Missionary Monthly.

Mrs. McCarley's report of the young people's work was very interesting and optimistic. Under her leadership the girls cannot help but be interested.

South Mountain Auxiliary led the devotions at the afternoon session.

Merrickville extended an invitation for the next annual meeting.

A beautiful solo, "The Heart That Was Broken for Me," was expressively rendered by Rev. R. G. Katzunoff, of Montreal.

Mrs. Cramm gave a helpful talk on a Program with a Purpose. Some points emphasized were to know your work and your membership and have variety.

Rev. Mr. Katzunoff gave an inspiring message, a leading thought being how God works through His followers for the purpose of establishing His Kingdom.

Miss Wickware, of Ottawa, brought greetings from Branch Y. P. Department, announcing a class in Missionary Education to be held at L'Orignal from August 7th to 17th.

Greetings from the Branch President, Mrs. James, were read by Mrs. Henderson, of Ottawa, who expressed her pleasure at being present. Mrs. Hyndman read greetings from Mrs. Harris of Glengarry Presbyterial. Mrs. Massey, of Saskatchewan, was introduced. She told briefly of the work there.

Questions of vital importance were discussed at the Round Table Conference, so ably conducted by Mrs. Cramm.

At the tea hour greetings were brought from Knox Presbyterian W. M. S. by Mrs. (Rev.) Burkholder, and from St. Paul's Lutheran Church by Mrs. Casselman.

Dr. MacRae, pastor of Morrisburg church, presided at the evening session when Rev. Mr. Brown brought Presbytery greetings.

The choir contributed a special number and Rev. Katzunoff was requested to sing again. His selection was "Lead Kindly Light."

His evening address described vivily the splendid work he was engaged in among the foreigners in Winnipeg and now Montreal. He spoke of the difficulties in the way in dealing with the foreigners saying the only solution is found in the teaching and spirit of Jesus Christ.

A very impressive Pageant: "The Pill Bottle," illustrating the need of medical missionaries in India, was given by Morrisburg young people, under the direction of Mrs. Merrill, and Mrs. Simpson.

Mrs. Cramm led the service for installation of new officers and addressed them on the importance of their duties. The 1930 officers are as follows:

President—Mrs. J. I. Murdock.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. G Earle,
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Rev. Lloyd,
3rd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. W. Latimer,
4th Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Dr. Kerfoot,
Rec.-Sec.—Mrs. J. W. Ault,
Treas.—Mrs. J. A. McDougall,
Christian Stewardship Supt.—Mrs. Ingram Cross,
Young Women's Work—Mrs. Roy McCarley,
Mission Bands—Mrs. John Anderson,
Associate Helpers—Mrs. Deeks,
Strangers—Mrs. Wiggins,
Supply—Miss Emma Ault,
Missionary Monthly—Mrs. Cleland,
Temperance—Mrs. Peterson.

A vote of appreciation was tendered the retiring President and officers. Excellent meals were served by the Morrisburg ladies.

Former Chesterville Girl Among Graduates

Ten white-uniformed nurses were graduated from the Children's Memorial Hospital School for Nurses in the closing exercises held in the School for Crippled Children, Cedar Avenue, Montreal, Friday afternoon. The prize for the highest standing in the senior division was won by Emma Grimes, of St. John's, Nfld., while that for the junior section was awarded to Hettie Easterbrook, of Montreal. Miss Grimes also won the award for highest standing in massage, while to Betty Gale, of the intermediate division was presented the prize for highest standing in diet and disease.

Dr. H. B. Cushing, presiding, paid a tribute to the memory of Dr. A. Mackenzie Forbes, the founder of the Children's Memorial Hospital who died last year. Dr. Forbes' dream of an addition to the hospital will be fulfilled this summer, declared Dr. Cushing. The new wing will cost half a million dollars and will provide for neary double the number of patients as well as enlarge the nurses' quarters and accommodations.

The address to the graduating class was made by Rev. Malcolm A. Campbell, D. D., who said that he looked upon nursing as the greatest profession of all, even greater than his own. He had felt, he said, that if he had a good nurse, he would not have to worry about a doctor, a minister, or even an undertaker.

Mrs. Richard Kerry distributed the prizes. The members of the graduating class are:—Jean Argue, of South March, Ont.; Emma Grimes, of St. John's, Nfld.; Mae Helen Plamondon, of Montreal; Edna Mary Roderick, of Gananoque, Ont.; Mary Edith Robinson, of Fredericton, N. B.; Florence Marie Atkinson, of Claresholm, Alta.; Elsie Veronica Catto, of Dorval, Que.; Hettie Easterbrook, of Montreal; Lillian Gentle Oram, of Sydney Mines, N. S.; and Jean Stephen Wilson, of Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Wilson and family attended the graduation.

Staging Novel Contest

Kingston.—A novel contest is being staged in Ameliasburg Township. Sides have been chosen for a sparrow, mouse, and rat hunt. The losing side provides a banquet at the end of the season. In this contest, a mouse's tail counts one point, a rat's tail two points, and a sparrow's head one point. Two years ago a contest was held in Ameliasburg and hundreds of sparrows were done away with.

Latest Sunday Thrill For Young Folks

Large crowds watched breathlessly Sunday afternoon as three young Torontonians, all of them under 20 and one of them a girl, made parachute jumps from a speeding airplane for the first time in their lives.

All of them, particularly the girl, were considerably nervous while preparing for the leap from the wing into mid air 2,000 feet up, but after it was over they declared themselves willing to repeat at any time what they characterized as the most thrilling and adventurous experience they ever had.

The daring jumpers were Miss Elsie Storrow, 18, who was the first to jump and nearly landed on a number of automobiles parked at the airport; Louis Barron, 19, who made a perfect landing in an adjacent farm; and Floyd White 18, who was saved from landing in a muddy pond by spectators who grabbed his legs as he swung by and pulled him down.

The performances inaugurated the parachuting instruction service of the Aviation Service of Canada, Limited, which heretofore has confined itself to flying instruction. The Waco 'plane from which the jumps were made was in charge of Pilot Jerry Fitton, while George Bennett, veteran parachute jumper, coached the jumpers in the proper methods.

Bennett, one of the best known jumpers on the continent, has made 963 leaps from a plane. He declares he plans to quit after his 1,000th jump.

Turner, in St. Paul's church, Winchester, on Wednesday at two p.m.

The newly-arrived Finnish girl was looking for work. Could she cook? No. Could she do washing? No. Could she wait on table? No. Well, what could she do? She could mind the reindeer!

Two men met after a lapse of some years. "Married yet, old man?" inquired one. "No, but I'm engaged, and that's as good as married." "It's better if you knew it," said the first, sighing deeply.

Women's Legs

Daily Express.—A court of law awarded £400 damages to a girl for a scar on her leg caused by an accident in an omnibus. The learned judges rightly held that a woman's leg was no longer "an obscure place." As a matter of fact, when revealed in gossamer stockings, it is often more prominent than her face, and the penalty for doing it an injury is proportionately severe. A generation ago only an exceedingly limited number of the general public woul! have kown whether any given woman had a scar on her leg. They would have had little or no ocular proof that she even had legs at all.

"Uncle Eben" on Keeping Well

A horse can keep you from dying of diphtheria, and a cow can prevent you from catching smallpox.

So "Uncle Eben" tells readers of the Country Guide, of Winnipeg, in an article contained in a recent issue. Uncle Eben is a retired farmer who, finding time hanging heavily on his hands, took up the study of health, and got hold of all the free pamphlets he could.

As for the horse and the cow, the former, he points out, is the scientist's source of anti-toxin, which is given to people who have taken diphtheria, while the latter provides the vaccine which protects against smallpox, and he feels that people who don't take advantage of these immunities are fools.

"You hear a lot nowadays about the Conquest of Disease," he says, "and What Modern Science Has Done for the Human Race. But, you know, the conquest of disease is like an automobile—it's no good unless you ride in it."

"One of your kids had diphtheria, didn't she?" he accuses a neighbor. "D'you know it was your own darned fault she had it. Hold on now, just a minute. A neighbor of mine before I moved into town, had a boy die of typhoid. Do you know that kid would be alive and kickin' to-day if his pa had taken a little trouble before he took sick?" And then he proceeds to tell how people can be innoculated, cheaply and easily, against diphtheria and against typhoid fever, but how they don't take the trouble to "ride" the "automobile" of preventitive medicine.

"There now, d'you see what I'm getting at? The trouble is, people won't have anti-diphtheria toxoid given to their kids. What happens? Well, you nearly lost a youngster from diphtheria and every year about 1200 Canadians, mostly children, die from the disease while 12,300 sicken of it. Now do you see what I mean when I say that the conquest of disease is like an automobile no good unless you ride it? If your girl had been treated with toxoid she would never have got diphtheria. But it cost you a whale of a lot more to get her cured of it than it would have cost you to take your whole family to your doctor and have him shoot toxoid into all of 'em. And how much economic loss do you figure those 12,000 cases and 1200 deaths a year cost this country? What good does it do these people that doctors have conquered diphtheria when they let diphtheria conquer them? Tisn't the doctor's fault. Doctor can't come up to you on the street and shoot somethin' in your arm. You'd have him pinched if he did!"

Youngest Evangelist Would Abolish Bridge

tional scenes of religious fervor, bordering almost on hysteria, are being enacted nightly in Cornell Memorial Methodist Church where a cherubic-faced little girl, with straight-forward brown eyes and long ringlets of brown hair, has undertaken the mighty task of saving New York from the devil.

She is 16-year-old Dolores Dudley of New Phildephia, O. The petite brunette, whose voice has hoarsened from her repeated exhortations, is giving New York its greatest thrill in religious revivalism since Billy Sunday tried his hand at tilting with Satan in this great big wicked city.

Alreay several hundred of the thousands of worshippers who have crowded the church, have made pilgrimages to the altar and confessed their sins.

"Come to God," is her war-cry. "Reject the pleasures of the world," she exhorts her congregations, preaching from Bible texts wholly extemporaneously.

Dolores, who is perhaps America's youngest evangelist, has been preaching since she was nine years old. She has spread the Gospel in Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Missouri, Kentucky, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

"When I was very young," she said in an interview today at the small apartment she has taken with her mother on Riverside Drive, "I wanted to be an actress. But one evening seven years ago I went to a small mission meeting and became converted. I don't know how it happened. Something spoke inside of me and I gave myself to God. Since then I've been working in His vineyard."

"At first I preached in jails and infirmaries. At the age of 13 I stopped school and since then all my time has been given to evangelical work.

"I was brought up as a Lutheran, but I have no denomination now. I'm inter-denominational. I never studied the Bible before conversion and I've never studied it since, though I constantly read it. I preach as the Spirit tells me."

Then she launched into her opinions of the nation's metropolis.

"New York," she said very pointedly, "is a wicked city. But I don't think it's more wicked proportionately than smaller places. Wickness shows here so much because New York is so large. The chief ways of wickedness are the same everywhere. They are the love of money and the love of worldly pleasures. People really should be happier if they took religion for their pleasure and made serving God and work for souls one of the main businesses of life."

The theatre, in her opinion, should have no attraction for people who are really interested in their salvation. Card-playing (including bridge) and night clubs should be abolished. Prohibition, she believes, is succeeding. Prize-fighting is nothing but a brutal exhibition of worldliness, but baseball has her sanction, provided, of course, it isn't played on Sundays. As for Aime McPherson, the Los Angeles sin-chaser, Dolores believes she seeks to be "too spectacular."

Turkeys a Profitable Crop When Handled Properly

Experimental Farms Note.

Turkey breeding is not the difficult undertaking it is generally supposed, when the breeding stock and poults are properly handled. Essentials to success in turkey breeding are: clean soil, mature stock for breeding, good foods properly fed to both mature and young stock, free range, and, above all, the keeping of the turkey flock away from other barnyard fowls.

Soil that is contaminated with the droppings of fowls of any kind is not desirdable soil on which to rear turkeys. If it is impossible to have soil which has not been used for poultry keeping make sure that the land has been ploughed and thoroughly cultivated. A desirable soil for turkey raising is one that is light and porous in texture, sand or gravel being desirable. Low-lying land or heavy clay soils should be avoided, especially for the raising of poults.

Breeding stock should be well matured, especially the females. Good yearling birds are preferable to any other age. Well developed cockerels may be used to advantage, but should be bred on mature females. Avoid using males which are overgrown and also the use of females which are over standard weight, as they frequently break many of the eggs at hatching time.

Feeds for turkeys should be made of sound grains, and in no case should shrunken grains be used or grain that has become molded or heated in any way. Avoid overfeeding, as much loss in turkey raising is caused by digestive disorders. Suitable grains are oats, cracked corn, wheat, barley, or buckwheat. Variety is recommended. Mashes of the above grains may be used and should be fed in self-feeding hoppers, so that the birds can help themselves. Feed the grains and mashes from hoppers or troughs and avoid allowing the turkeys to eat their food from the ground, as this is a frequent source of contamination. Poults should be fed in much the same way as baby chicks, and like the mature birds, should be fed regularly and in this way avoid the possibility of the birds overfeeding. Good mashes finely ground, fed in the dry state are recommended in a commercial way. The feeding of finely chopped hard boiled egg and stale bread crumbs for the first few days is highly recommended.

Young turkeys may be hatched naturally or in incubators, and brooding may be carried on in either the natural or the artificial method.

Protection should be afforded the young birds until they are at least two weeks old, after which time they may be allowed more freedom.

The turkey is, strictly speaking, a farmer's fowl, and cannot be successfully reared in close confinement. While it is possible to keep poults in a small space and still make rapid growth, cheap gains are only possible on free range. Where the turkeys can roam over meadows, pastures or wooded areas an excellent opportunity for cheap gains is assured, and since the turkeys do little damage to growing crops they can be looked upon as an essential to any farmer since they feed largely upon grasshoppers and other insects during the summer months. They require little attention and comparatively little feed after they develop their red heads. After this time they should be allowed to roost in the open from then until marketing time in the fall.

To make a success of turkey raising the turkey flock should be kept entirely away from the barnyard, or from the poultry yard, since much of the trouble with turkeys is caused from Blackhead, which is frequently present in and around poultry yards. The turkey being naturally a wild bird desires freedom, and when kept away from the poultry flock and barnyard gives the owner little cause for worry, and when properly handled usually gives handsome revenue for the time and money expended.

Condemns Oratory In Public Schools

Consternation prevailed in the ranks of the Trustees and Ratepayers' Association of the O. E. A. when, at the close of a juvenile display of oratorical prowess in Convocation Hall, Toronto, Prof. O. J. Stevenson of the Ontario Agricultural College, got up and denounced such contests among public school pupils as crazy, absurd, and dishonest.

"One of the most objectionable features of these contests," he declared, "is that the so-called speeches are seldom related to the experience and interests of the boy and girl. The subjects are not childrens' subjects and most of them are absurdly difficult."

Furthermore, he insisted, they were nearly always prepared by someone else and given to the child to memorize. These orations were then delivered before judges and the public as the child's own efforts.

"The child is taught to play a dishonest part, and everyone, including children, parents, teacher, audience, and judges know it is dishonest!" he declared. "Mary Ann, who exhibits her mother's cookies or needle work at the school fair or John Thomas who proudly passes off his father's potatoes as his own may easily find justification for his moral turpitude in the moral turpitude of the public speaking contest itself."

Prof. Stevenson was not opposed to high school contests if properly conducted but he was definitely opposed to them in every shape and form amongst pupils of the primary schools. His remarks, he pointed out, had no reference to the orations just delivered. He had purposely stayed away to express himself freely and without reference to them.

Difficult Subjects.

Referring to the difficult subjects chosen for child oration and to their remoteness from the experiences of the deliverer, Prof. Stevenson recalled that in the contest that had just been completed for the Globe Shield in Toronto, some of the topics were: "The Evolution of Transportation," "Activities of the League of Nations," "Safety, Economy, and Speed of Air Transport," "Bliss Carmen," "Canada's Part in the Great War," "Canada's Great Poets and Some of Their Outstanding Contributions," and "Canada's Progress in the Last 63 Years."

"What under Heaven," he exclaimed, "can a ten-year-old child have to say that is worth saying on the value of education or on the activities of the League of Nations. If we must have speeches let the child tell about something he is interested in. I am quite certain that children are not interested in the evolution of transportation or the constitution of Canada, and it makes me shudder to think of a ten-year-old child taking for her subject the most mystical of all our Canadian poets, Bliss Carman.

There had been a veritable craze for public speaking all over the province this last five years the speaker declared. Hours of good time were wasted by children that might have been spent to better advantage on other things. If the children were going to be asked to recite, he suggested, let them be given some real prose or poetry to memorize and not the attempts of some "school-marm" or minister's wife, only too frequently laden with grandiloquent and empty phrases.

"Almost anything you may advise," he concluded, "will be better than the existing form of contest."

Despite Prof. Stevenson's criticisms, the association, following his address, passed a resolution urging that oratory be encouraged in the schools and suggesting that it be taught at least twice a month.

Makes Good in Canada

Hearken to the story of Charles London, of Peel County, another British immigrant who has made good on a Canadian farm: "Canada has been good to me. When ten years of age I went into service in England as a chore boy, and remained with one man for 21 years. Seeing no prospect for advancement, I came to Canada and was in the employ of one man for ten years and with another for three years. I rented a farm of 50 acres, and now my boy and I own 150 acres."

Danger of Weed Seeds

With a considerable portion of last year's big red clover crop still in the farmers' hands there is a graver risk than usual of a serious weed spread this season, government officials fearing that a large portion of this will find its way into seed drills without proper cleaning. Weed seeds in a bin of clover or grain are not conspicuous and one can easily be fooled. In fact, it was recently estimated that in three cars of oats shipped to Saskatchewan there were contained 23,000,000 sow thistle seeds. The government seed laboratories are the proper place for testing your seed and so at infinitesimal cost.

Car American Eggs Arrives At Montreal

Purchase of a car of American fresh eggs by a leading wholesale house in Montreal was announced on Monday. No United States eggs have been bought by the Montreal trade for several weeks, and it was thought that the season for such purchases was over. However, there has been a little easier feeling on American markets of late, due to an abundance of supplies, and prices have declined. The local purchase was on the basis of 28c per dozen, delivered Montreal, which, with duty added, means 31c per dozen. The buyer was expecting to obtain about 60 per cent extras and the balance in firsts. Chicago, where the car in question was bought, is offering fresh eggs as low as 25¼c per dozen, Chicago, which, with 2c freight and 3c duty, means 30¼c per dozen in Montreal. These prices are a little cheaper than asked for Canadian eggs. British Columbia and western fresh eggs are quoted at 32½ cents for extras, 30½ cents for firsts and 27½–28 cents for seconds, delivered, Montreal.

LOVE-IN-BLOOM

"My Goodness! Who ever saw the like of flower catalogues!.. whistled Guy Owens, turning over a pile of magazines on the porch table.

"You forget," said his mother, "that we have an aspirant for garden honours in the family. Fay reads and digs and rereads and digs up and plants and replants diligently, hoping to carry off the prize Mrs. Fitzhugh has offered for the most successful garden made by the Heathton girls."

"Is that what keeps Fay so busy—and so grimy? I haven't seen her hands clean in a month!"

Mrs. Owens walked briskly up and down the long piazza, to keep herself warm in the bright, chill sunshine of the autumn day.

"Don't laugh at her; it has been a great interest to the girls, and a very wholesome one," she answered. "Our club president, Mrs. Fitzhugh, has done many public-spirited things here but none more useful than to stir up the young people to beautify their homes and educate their taste in decorative gardening."

Guy lounged over to the porch rail and looked across the smooth lawn to a narrow flowering strip along the hedge dividing the Owens home from Doctor Phillips's next door.

"Is that Fay's achievement?" he asked indulgently, with a nod toward the stately rows of asters, backed by sturdy chrysanthemums, just ready to bloom.

"Yes," his mother answered; "she planted her asters rather early, and I fear their first beauty will be past before next week, when the award will be made. She is counting on her chrystanthemums, though. They ought to be in their glory."

The side gate clicked as she spoke, and the young gardener herself came in, arm in arm with Sue Phillips, her neighbor, who was also a contestant for garden honors. Together they hung over the blossoming rows and inspected with careful fingers the swelling chrysanthemum buds.

"You would have beaten the bunch, Fay, if the award had been made this week," Sue said.

"Eva Landrith has the most gorgeous chrysanthemums," Fay admitted. "I was there yesterday, and her strip is just full of great golden heads. She's crazy over them."

"Mrs. Fitzhugh means to make quite a festivity of it," Sue reported. "She and her garden committee are going to roll round in her car all next Thursday afternoon, inspecting our efforts, and then we are invited to assemble at the Club House, where the award will be made and a feast spread, I understand."

Fay sighed happily, "I'd soar right over the tree tops with pride, if I got it!"

Sue, who had her own hopes as well, founded on some particularly handsome dahlias and late roses, gave an anxious look at the brilliant sunlit sky.

"It's getting cold—that's my fear," she said; "my roses will stand so much— and no more."

The fates were kind to the absorbed gardeners, however. One golden day followed another, and buds unfolded and blooms flaunted in many glowing faces in many a scented garden spot. One exception to this good fortune there was—alas!

Eva Landrith, guardian of the noble row of golden yellow chrysanthemums, slipped out, one chilly night, just before bedtime, to assure herself that her flowers did not need a light paper covering. She was clad in light voile and low slippers and took no heed of the penetrating chill of her nocturnal expedition.

Next morning, a severe cold developed itself, fever and pain in her chest set in, and the Landrith household promptly lost sight of flower shows in keen anxiety over a threatened case of pleurisy. The news spread quickly among Eva's friends, and many messages of affectionate commiseration came to her door, coupled with offers of care for her garden. Eva had reason for her uneasiness! her home stood at the lowest point in Heathton, and her plants were liable to be nipped earlier than those in the more elevated places.

In her fever she tossed restlessly and begged each night that her flowers might be covered. This was done, until Monday of the decisive week when Eva was distinctly better and Mrs. Landrith, tired by her wakeful nights, fell asleep immediately after supper, forgetting her garden responsibilities.

The next morning a blank-looking housemaid came into the sick room to build the fire. "Mrs. Landrith," she whispered, glancing at the sleeping girl. "I hate to tell you, but Miss Eva's flowers is all nipped this mornin'."

"O, Minnie!" cried the mother distressfully. "You don't mean it! And I forgot to cover them last night!"

"Don't be lettin' on to her," the kind-heatred maid urged, "and maybe the sun'll be bringin' 'em out, yet."

But Mrs. Landrith shook her head. "Alas! There's not much hope of that: but we won't tell her, today." She looked intently at Eva's face, sharpened by her week of illness. "It might worry her so that the fever would come back."

All day the mother evaded any mention of the disaster, and Eva, languid and free from pain, made perceptible strides toward recovery.

There wasg reat sympathy expressed amog Eva's competitors; the girls felt that it was indeed hard that she should suffer the double misfortune of illness and disappointment—all the more as their own plots had been spared and the elimination of her splendid chrysanthemums gave each of them a better chance for the prize.

They did not know that Eva was as yet ignorant of her loss, and Fay's warm heart, especially, ached for the sick girl, lying helpless while the objects of her long care drooped sadly in the ironic noon-day sun. She eyed her own handsome hedge of yellow chrysanthemums — not so fine as Eva's, but hopeful enough. Indeed, she felt assured that her chrysanthemums were unmatched by any of the others, now that Eva's were out of the question. But beneath the exhilaration of her hope ran a generous undercurrent of unwillingess to profit by her chum's misfortune.

"Poor little Eva," she murmured Wednesday afternoon as she hung over her delicate rows, irresolutely. "You are not nearly so beautiful as hers were, and she hasn't even one left—to show!"

A moment more, and her resolution was taken. Running for her trowel and a big jardinière of her mother's, she knelt down by her garden plot and dug up, roots and all, the finest of her golden chryanthemum plants. Very carefully she put it into the big pot, supporting the heavy blossoms skillfully with an ornamental flower staff of green wood, topped by a painted parrot, and then, rising, stepped back to view her row, denuded of its choicest bloom.

Perhaps she felt a pang as she called Guy to ask him to drive her, plant and all, round to the Landriths, but if so, it was quickly stifled.

The brother gave a quizzical look at Fay's face, flushed and tense, as they rolled along.

"Pretty decent of you, kid," he vouchased, "to give away your best posy. Think old lady Fitzhugh will consider you for the prize, now?"

"I don't suppose she will," Fay answered. "Sue's bed was about as good as mine, at its best, and Amy Wilson and the Proutys have lovely ones. But—" her voice was a bit unsteady —"I just couldn't stand Eva's losing everything, and some of the girls are counting on her failure so, without thinking what it means to her. I want her to have something to look at, in her room, even if all her work has gone for nothing."

The arrival of the lovely plant seemed to offer an opportunity to break the news gently to Eva, and, though she was badly upset about it, she was so pleased with Fay's gift that the blow affected her less than her mother had feared it might do.

Meanwhile the weather had moderated so much that there seemed no further danger to the other gardens, and the last night before the award fell mildly over the waiting plots of bloom.

At twelve o'clock the sky was clear and star-lit as Guy Owens bolted the front door. At two he fumbled sleepily at the foot of his bed for the blanket; at three an ominous chill crept through the house; and at five a heavy white frost stiffened every stalk in the garden!

Fay sprang, startled, out of bed at seven, feeling the end of her cold nose, and, running to the window, she took in the dire truth. The moment she was dressed she dashed out on the lawn muffled by her heavy coat. Her worst fears were confirmed. No mere nipping was this—but a genuine freeze. The overblown asters and the sturdier chrysanthemums were smitten with disaster.

One moment's despairing resentment she felt—and then an odd bit of comfort came into her mind. "How glad I am that I gave Eva the best, yesterday!"

There was little talked of that morning but the downfall of the girls' hopes; all had suffered in this last slap of fate, and the general opinion was that Mrs. Fitzhugh's inspection would be a farce and had better not be attempted. But the lady was not minded to give up her programme, and when the afternoon's sun was at its brightest and most mocking, she and her committee drove from house to house and took counsel with each disappointed gardener, praising the evidences of faithful work, and advising wiser methods for next year.

As she drew near the Landriths, last on her list, she hesitated to intrude on account of Eva's recent illness, but Mrs. Landrith ran down to the gate to invite her in.

"I want you to see something in Eva's room," she declared, her eyes shining.

Eva was sitting up at her window, and turning with an excited flush at Mrs. Fitzhugh's entrance, she cried: "Oh, Mrs. Fitzhugh, I've heard about the misfortune to the girls' gardens, and of course you know mine was the first to go; but look here!" she pointed to Fay's nodding gift. "Fay Owens brought me that, Wednesday afternoon. She gave me her finest plant, because she felt so sorry for my loss. I thought if you knew it and saw this perfect thing, you'd give her the award!"

Mrs. Fitzhugh put her hand on the excited girl. "That's a beautiful solution of my problem, my dear," she said; "I think it does equal credit to you and to Fay!"

After examining the glowing blossoms admiringly, she asked if she might have the plant carried carefully to the Club House, where her guests were assembling; she promised to return it in good order. During the next half-hour the handsome club rooms buzzed with townspeople, invited to hear Mrs. Fitzhugh's talk on gardens and to witness the crowning of their daughters' efforts.

The effects of the frost were known of course; so the company expected an announcement of the impossibility of making the promised award What was their surprise, therefore, at the conclusion of the presidents' interesting and inspiring address, to hear her say:

"And now it becomes my pleasant duty to award a prize to one of our Heathon girls, who has labored most diligently in gardening and tending a decorative garden."

She turned to wheel forward a small, hidden stand on which Fay's noble chrysanthemums nodded engagingly and in a few words told the pretty story—without names—of the gift and its unforeseen consequences.

Animated whispers quickly made known the name of the sick girl; but not until some one caught sight of Fay's flushing face was her rôle known. Then Sue Phillips and Mary Prouty each seized a reluctant hand and led Fay to the platform, where Mrs. Fitzhugh smilingly put into her arms the charming set of garden books prepared for the winner of the award.

"And may I say," added the speaker earnestly, "that in spite of frost and blight, my dear, I think your garden has borne a beautiful blossom; asters and chrysanthemums may be frostbitten, but love is in bloom, and its fragrance is immortal!"

One Good Recipe Makes A Cook Famous

ONE GOOD RECIPE

Art as well as science is needed to compose menus. Everyday we read of the horrible things which are going to happen to us if we are not more careful of our diet, every evening the radio man informs us that we must not eat "pies, pastry, pork, and better leave off meats of all kinds. Rich sauces, gravies, and dressings must be cut out, also cakes, cookies, white flour, white bread white rice, candies, sweets, preserves, tea and coffee, fried foods, hashes, plum puddings"—and it seems as if nearly everything else is banned.

So the trouble is to find dishes that are at one time appetizing, artistic, and dietetic. Here is a salad which should find favor:—

LEMON, PINEAPPLE, AND CARROT SALAD

Soak one tablespoon of granulated gelatin in ¼ cupful of cold water, add 1 cupful boiling water, ½ cupful of sugar and stir until the sugar and gelatine are dissolved. When cool, add ½ cupful of strained lemon juice, 1 cupful of grated pineapple, drained of all juice, 1 cupful of grated raw carrot and a few grains of salt. Stir until the ingredients are evenly distributed, then pour the mixture into a large mould. Place in the ice box to set. Serve on lettuce leaves with any favorite dressing.

Professor (to student entering class late): "When were you born?"

Student: "On the second of April."

"Late again!"

—o—

"I shall love," she murmured, "to share all your grifs and troubles."

"But, darling, I have no troubles."

"I mean when we are married."

IN MEMORIAM

Fraser—In memory of our dear husband and father, Frank Fraser, who fell asleep April 28th, 1929.
For many years our family chain
Was firmly linked together,
But, oh, the chain is broken now,
One loved one gone forever.
The pearly gates were opened,
A gentle voice said "Come,"
And, with farewells unspoken,
He calmly entered home.

Otter Catches Big Fish

A story given out and vouched for at the Department of Lands and Mines to-day describes the capture of a seventy-five-pound fish at Larry's Gulch on the Restigouche River, the most famous salmon stream on the North American continent, the king of fishermen who made the haul being an otter. This native sportsman, using none of the paraphernalia of the visiting angler, snatched his quarry through the ice but found it too large to dispose of in one meal.

Forest Ranger, John T. Savoie, whose territory lies along the Restigouche River, found the fish lying on the ice, partly eaten, tracks in the snow indicated the fisherman had been an otter. The salmon measured five feet eight inches in length. Producing his rule, he found the jaw of this patriarch of the finny clans measured twelve inches from the snout and its tail was fourteen inches

Bowling Club Elects Officers

At a well attended meeting of the Bowling Club Monday evening considerable enthusiasm was shown over the splendid condition in which the club finds itself. The secretary, Mr. Geo. Reaburn, read a detailed account of the activities of the past season which brought to memory the most successful season the club has had for some years. The statement of the treasurer, Mr. E. L. Bronskill, showed a nice little balance on the right side of the ledger. Officers were elected for the present year and the greens will be put into condition for the commencement of bowling as soon as possible. The annual open tournament will be held as usual on June 3rd, the King's birthday. Following are the officers:

Hon. Pres.—G. C. Lacey,
Pres.—Dr. D. C. Seymour,
Vice-Pres.—A. O. Robertson,
Secretary—Alf Jarvis,
Treasurer—E. L. Bronskill,
Greens Committee—the President, Vice President, and E. C. Barwick.

May Now Use Telephone From Moving Trains

With all the publicity that is being given to the Canadian National Railways with the installation of telephone equipment on their fastest train, to permit those desiring it to communicate with homes or offices while rushing through the landscape at sixty or seventy miles per hour, one wonders whether the game is worth the candle. How much will business be expidited or social activities advanced because one may announce from a train that he is on the way. It brings to our mind the remark of a woman who maintains a rather up-to-date tourists' home along the highway when she said, "Everybody wants to know if we have a bathroom, but very few ever take a bath."

IN MEMORIAM

In sad and loving memory of our dear little daughter, Dorothy Eileen Hepburn, who died two years ago, April 28th, 1928.
Remembrance is a golden chain
Death tries to break in vain;
To have, to love, and then, to part,
Is the greatest sorrow in one's heart.
—The Family.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Gunner Clifford Merkley, who departed this life April 25th, 1923.
Mother, Brother, and Sisters.

IN MEMORIAM

In fond and loving memory of our dear husband and father, George Abner Dillabough, who departed this life May 1, 1929.
Gone from us, but leaving memories
Death can never take away.
—Wife and Daughters.

Four Varieties on One Tree

Stratford.—George Kalbfleisch believes that an apple a day keeps the doctor away. He believes in having lots of apples, but does not permit them to take up much space. In fact he purposes to grow them all on one tree —Russets, Spys, Kings, red apples, yellow apples, and green apples. A large Russet tree on his lawn "fell down" on the job and began to produce apples too coarse to suit his taste. That was five years ago, and for three years he added grafts to the tree. At present there are about thirty different varieties on the tree. Most of the grafts are too small yet to grow fruit, but last year the tree produced four or five different kinds of apples.
