New Minister to be Ordained At Williamsburg on Sunday

For the first time in the long and fruitful history of St. Peter's Lutheran Church at Williamsburg the sturdy century-old building will be the scene of a very impressive ceremony this Sunday when the new Pastor, Rev. John Boehmer will be ordained and at the same time officially installed.

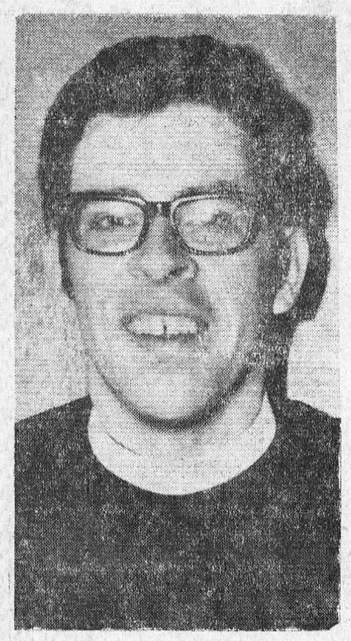
The young clergyman, born and raised in Ottawa's old 'New Edinburgh District' is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Boehmer.

Educated at Creighton Street and York Street Public Schools and Lisgar Collegiate Institute he proceeded to Waterloo Luteran University where he received his B.A. in 1967. Four years later he was awarded his M. Div. Degree at Waterloo Lutheran Seminary.

Rev. Boehmer has one sister, Mrs. Beryl Clark, who resides in Ottawa.

Following ordination the youthful cleric will not only take on the responsibilities at St. Peter's but also be in charge of the spiritual guidance at St. Luke's Dunbar.

Both are old established parishes. St. Peter's was founded in 1826 and the present church was erected in 1856. Neighbouring Dunbar parish was founded in 1874.



REV. JOHN BOEHMER

Church dignitaries from near and far will be participating in the solemn ordination ceremony when the sermon will be preached by Rev. Dr. F.K. Wagschal, Pastor, Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Scarsdale, New York.

Other high-ranking clergy at Williamsburg for the historic occasion include Rev. Dr. D.J. Glebe, Dean of Waterloo Lutheran Seminary who will be the new cleric's Sponsor, Rev. Dr. E. Riegert, Professor of Homoletics and Liturgics, Waterloo Lutheran Seminary, Liturgist; Rev. H.O. Hartig, Pastor, St. Peter's Church, Preston, Ontario, Assistant Liturgist; and Rev. Dr. O.F. Reble, President Eastern Canada Synod of the Lutheran Church in America, Ordinator.

The ceremony will commence at 11:00 a.m. and Rev. Boehmer anticipates having all parishoners present, as well as, many of other faiths, to witness his acceptance into the ministry.

Rev. Walter J. Goos, who has served the congregation faithfully for the past eight years, has retired.

Inaugural Session of Municipal Council

In his opening remarks at Monday's inaugural council meeting, Reeve Carlton McInnis thanked his fellow members of council for their co-operation during the past year. A study was needed, in his opinion, to finish the arena and how this was to be accomplished. He also felt there was a need for upgrading of recreation during the summer months, in the parks, and so on. He also expressed his opinion that a works building was necessary, and that study should be given to housing for senior citizens.

A discussion on the announcement from Winchester Hospital Board of an out-patients clinic at Morrisburg, brought council's full support for this project.

Deputy Reeve Ed Jones also addressed council briefly, and urged the members to cop-operate with each other in furthering the best interests of the municipality.

Paul Barkley was appointed to the South Dundas Planning Area Board for a period of three years.

C. F. McInnis was confirmed as Commissioner of Finance and Industry; Edwin D. Jones of Commissioner of Fire, Law Enforcement and Rink Maintenance; Earl Baker as Commissioner of Roads, Streets and Property; J. R. Bright as Commissioner of Works, Sanitation, Water and Health; E. Council adjourned for the supper hour and re-convened at 8:00 p.m. After payment of accounts, council proceeded to routine business. It was resolved to join the Eastern Ontario Development Council for 1972; to petition the Department of Transportation and Communications for the 1971 grants on roads and streets; that the delegation attending the Association of Rural Municipalities in Hamilton be allowed a grant of $150; that the Village accept prepayment of taxes for 1972 at a discount of ½ of 1%; That the fire grant for 1972 be $1,800, and $100 for Christmas party.

A lengthy discussion followed in regard to the swimming pool by-law, and the village solicitor is to make a recommendation as to wording of amendments.

The following appointments were made as village employees: Brooks Hanes as By-Law Enforcement Officer; Rev. F. L. Howald as Director of Recreation; Sydney Drennan as janitor at the high school; Romeo Cayer as operator of the telephone answering service; the St. Lawrence Medical Clinic as doctors to indigents; John Lewars as auditors for 1972; Les Bilmer as Fire Chief and Edwin Jarvis as deputy chief; C.A. Council had no objections to the conveyance from the Roman Catholic Church to Mr. and Mrs. John S. Corbett of part of lots 24, 25, 26, Block 21, Registered Plan No. 29, in the village of Morrisburg.

It was resolved to become a member of the Ontario Good Roads Association and the delegates attending be allowed $175.

Next regular meeting of Council will be held on February 14th.

The 1972 Week of Prayer For Christian Unity

The theme for the 1972 Week of Prayer for Christian Unity has been chosen by the Vatican Secretariat for Christian Unity and the World Council of Churches. It is based on the New Testament verse John 13:34, "I give you a new commandment: love one another; as I have loved you".

Ecumenical services of worship will be held in many parts of the world. In Morrisburg, it will be observed at St. Mary's Church, Meikle St. on Sunday, January 16th, at 7:30 p.m. The service will be lead by the clergy of Morrisburg, assisted by the Seaway Swingers.

Why a special week of prayer? Prayer for unity can and should take place throughout the year. The Week of Prayer is the particular occasion for Christians to reassess their commitment to working for unity and to remind each other that there can be no genuine obedience which is not open to fellow-Christians of every background and in every part of the world.

JANUARY IS MONTH OF APPEAL FOR DISABILITY FUND

January is the month when the annual appeal is made for the Ability Fund. Formerly known as The March of Dimes, this fund in past years was devoted mainly to finding a way to help victims of Poliomyelitis.

Since the discovery and the widespread use of Salk vaccine, much of the need fora ETAO ETAOI ET of the contributions to the fund has been devoted to people who, for other reasons have been unable to help themselves.

Recently, one of the most pressing problems has been children who suffer from birth defects, and who, without aid of the Ability Fund would be even more severely handicapped throughout their lives.

The Ability Fund knows no restrictions of class, creed or colour. Their one aim is to help those who cannot help themselves.

Your contribution to the Ability Fund can help a crippled child, a disabled mother or father who could not otherwise hope for the full life which most of us enjoy.

Enjoyin gyour plenty can you find it in your heart to help these unfortunate ones who must depend so much on us? Your Ability Fund canvasser will be calling soon. Will you please be as generous as possible?

What's Holding You Up? -- A Message From Your OPP

Isn't it strange? People spend a lot of time, money, sweat and tears to invent and prfect something to hlp keep automobile drivers and passengers from being hurt or killed.

The result? Seat belts.

Then other people spend a lot more time, money, sweat and tears trying to persuade drivers and passengers to use this life-saving piece of equipment.

The result? More people do not wear the belts than those that do.

So, every year, thousands of people are killed or injured simply because they had not buckled their seat belts.

And thousands of people who do not use seat belts spend a lot of time and sweat thinking up reasons why they do not.

Funny, isn't it? Tragic too!

Buckle up, for Safety's Sake!

Small Loss to Pierre

Some members of the Leeds County Liberal Association have said that they will resign their membership body and will vote in the next federal election for another party. And that may be the best news Mr. Trudeau has had since he became a father on Christmas day.

In quite another field, the Good Book tells us "he who is not with me is against me", but the same thing undoubtedly is true in the field of politics as well. Mr. Diefenbaker, when he was the Prime Minister, found this out to his sorrow.

Any party leader has quite enough to cope with from members of the other parties, without having to deal also with hypocritical "false friends" in his own organization.

The Leeds group has made no secret of their "beef". They oppose the hiring of bilingual or French-speaking staff at the international bridges at Prescott and Ivy Lea. One can hardly credit such bigotry and intolerance in a country like Canada, with its long tradition of tolerance acceptance and fair play for minority groups. Certainly, these "Liberals" are not very liberal.

Crime and Punishment

The time is fast approaching when Canada's five-year moratorium on capital punishment will come to an end, and the authorities will have to decide whether this country will continue its "softer" attitude toward convicted major criminals or will return to the use of the rope or some other form of capital punishment. Recent murders of police officers have caused many to have second thoughts about the merits of the moratorium.

In one country — Zanzibar, it was announced this week that the ruling Revolutionary Council would close all of its prisons, and would take new steps to preserve law and order.

According to Sheik Abeid Karume the Government will soon open rehabilitation centres where those convicted of crimes will be taught skills to enable them to live a better life. The time to be spent at the centres will depend on the crime — from nine months for minor offences to five years for serious crimes.

The Revolutionary Council will pay a monthly wage of $20 to several hundred prisoners to be released when the six prisons on the island are closed this week. But here's the rub — They will be required to take an oath that they will be law-abiding citizens, will work honestly for the government — and will be ready to be shot if they repeat their crimes.

Minor Hockey Week in Canada

Minor Hockey Week in Canada is marked this year from January 22nd to January 29th inclusive. This week is now firmly established as one of the features of Canadian winter sports activities. It has taken its position in our Canadian way of life because of the keen desire of people in all walks of life to support participation in Canada's National Sport by the youth of our nation.

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association is the source of the following appeal for support of Minor Hockey Week in Canada:

BECAUSE WE BELIEVE Minor Hockey is a Family Affair we work together to interest more parents in th activities of their sons through attendance at Minor Hockey Week events.

BECAUSE WE BELIEVE that it is good advice to parents, we say "Don't send — Take Your Boy to the Arena". We suggest that they attend games during Minor Hockey Week, and urge them to continue to do so throughout the hockey season.

BECAUSE WE BELIEVE in providing for every Canadian boy an opportunity to take part in Canada's National Sport — under properly supervised conditions.

BECAUSE WE BELIEVE that increased participation in organized, supervised minor hockey will help develop good citizens, and

BECAUSE WE BELIEVE that minor hockey can develop the type of young men who can and will regain and retain for Canada, world hockey supremacy, we solicit your participation in and support for Minor Hockey Week in Canada.

Winn will be Missed

Along with his many other friends in the newspaper field and elsewhere, we were saddened during the holidays at news of the death of Winn Mills, well known columnist for the Ottawa Citizen. During the 1940s, when he was city editor at the Citizen, Winn made a practice of Saturday afternoon trips to Morrisburg, and was a weekly visitor at The Leader. We have often missed those friendly visits since. Like many other graduates from the weekly newspapers, he was the living proof that a small town newspaperman could "make it" in the city. His wit, his charm, and his friendly manner will be greatly missed, not only at The Citizen, but by the thousands of frinds he had made during his career.

AIR POLLUTION ABATEMENT PROGRESS REPORT

Renfrew, Russell, Dundas, Stormont, Prescott and Glengarry Counties and Ottawa-Carleton Region.

By 1975, close to $5 million will have been spent on equipment to control industrial, commercial and institutional sources of air pollution in greater Ottawa nd six counties in Eastern Ontario.

About $1 million worth of this control work has already been done.

These figures do not include incinerator replacement and renovation and fuel conversions to a number of federal government buildings.

The Ottawa district office of Department of the Environment's Air Management Branch has investigated 916 complaints in the past year. About half of these were corrected by simple measures such as stopping open burning and making minor changes.

The Branch's Abatement Section men have surveyed 315 industries, 228 commercial buildings, 133 schools, 28 institutions, 111 apartments and 142 waste disposal sites as potential sources of air pollution.

Abatement programs have been completed at 11 asphalt plants and two more are near completion. In addition three foundries have installed air pollution control equipment to comply with provincial regulations.

The Chalk River Nuclear Energy Plant, and in Ottawa, the Mortimer Building and the National Research Council have carried out conversions to cleaner fuels producing fewer pollutants.

Incinerator replacements or improvements are under way in the Sir Leonard Tilley Building, the Virus Laboratory and the National Defence Medical Centre, all in Ottawa. Incinerator abatement programs are completed at Uplands Airport and the Bank of Canada in Ottawa.

All hospitals in the Ottawa district have been surveyed and advised of pollution problems from heating plants or incinerators. Hotel Dieu, Cornwall, installed two approved incinerators; St. Vincent's Hospital in Ottawa has replaced an incinerator, and Ottawa General Hospital is completing installation of a new incinerator. Ottawa Civic Hospital has converted its main boiler to natural gas and is replacing its pathological incinerator.

Control orders have been issued to the following companies: Canada Veneers in Pembroke; Dament and Charles Manufacturing Ltd. in Pembroke; Graham Creamery Limited in Alexandria, and Domtar Fine Papers Ltd., in Cornwall.

Graham Creamery has taken significant steps to clear up its odor problem and is now in compliance. Domtar, one of the district's three pulp and paper mills, is expected to complete its program in stages, meeting provincial specifications by December 31, 1975. Another mill is in compliance with the regulations and the third is being surveyed by abatement personnel.

Wood waste disposal in Renfrew County has occupied a considerable share of the Ottawa office's attention. Residents have complained about the smoke and particulate matter emissions from four wood waste burners. One operator is under control order and two others are being surveyed.

All industrial sources have been surveyed in the Cornwall area and abatement programs are being established with T.C.F. of Canada, Ltd., and Courtaulds (Canada) Ltd.

Abatement staff have also been working with farmers in the district, reducing the annoyances that go with intensive livestock operations. A Suggested Code of Practice for farmers has been worked out by the Department of the Environment with the co-operation of the Depart of Agriculture and Food as a guideline to reduce offensive farm odours.

Through the activities of te Air Management Branch, open burning has ceased at dumps operated by Cornwall, the villages of Morrisburg and Rockland, and Cornwall, Osnabruck, Gloucester and Nepean Townships.

Air Management Branch staff were involved in issuing 363 certificates of approval for pollution controls on ew or altered potential pollution sources.

The provincial requirement that all new sources of pollution must be inspected and approved by the Air Management Branch means in effect that no new sources of air pollution are operating without effective controls.

This allows the Branch to deal with existing problems and a steady improvement in air quality in the district is expected over the next few years.

PORK PRODUCERS PLAN STRATEGY

Ontario pork producers have been buffeted by the market swings of the past few years. They made moderate increases in production while other areas increased production due to low cost surplus grain and government encouragement. The result was that pork prices dropped drastically and Ontario producers suffered severe setbacks.

The producers are looking for a way to protect their investments. They are looking for a way to avoid major financial losses that threaten to bankrupt them.

The federal government s stabilization program has failed to provide the protection that producers want so the Ontario Pork Producers' Marketing Board has developed a proposal that it hopes will one day replace the federal government's inadequate plan. Under the Pork Producers' proposal all Ontario farmers marketing hogs would pay into a fund that would be used to supplement returns in periods of poor prices. "Our plan is rather like an automobile insurance scheme", Snobelen, Chairman of Ontario Pork Producers' Marketing Board, said recently. "Producers would pay a premium amounting to 50c on every $100 of hogs sold, and in return they would get protection against financial disaster. The plan won't guarantee a profit, but it will reduce losses. This is an insurance program, not a welfare program".

The details of the plan aren't firm yet, but according to Snobelen it could work something like this: Say the cost of production per cwt. is $27. If prices fell below the cost of production, producers would receive a payment from the fund and bring their returns up to $26.50 per cwt. A means of lowering poundage on the market, in times of oversupply often requested by producers would be payments on carcasses below an announced weight and above a grading index. This way total returns would be slightly less than cost of production, encouraging producers to reduce hog output and improve quality. Losses, however, would be limited to 50c per cwt.

Under present marketing conditions producers are frequently under terrific pressure. In periods of good prices they find they have to ploug most of their profits back into the business to upgrade their facilities. Thus they have few reserves to see them through periods of low prices. The Pork Producers' Insurance Program would break this crippling cycle.

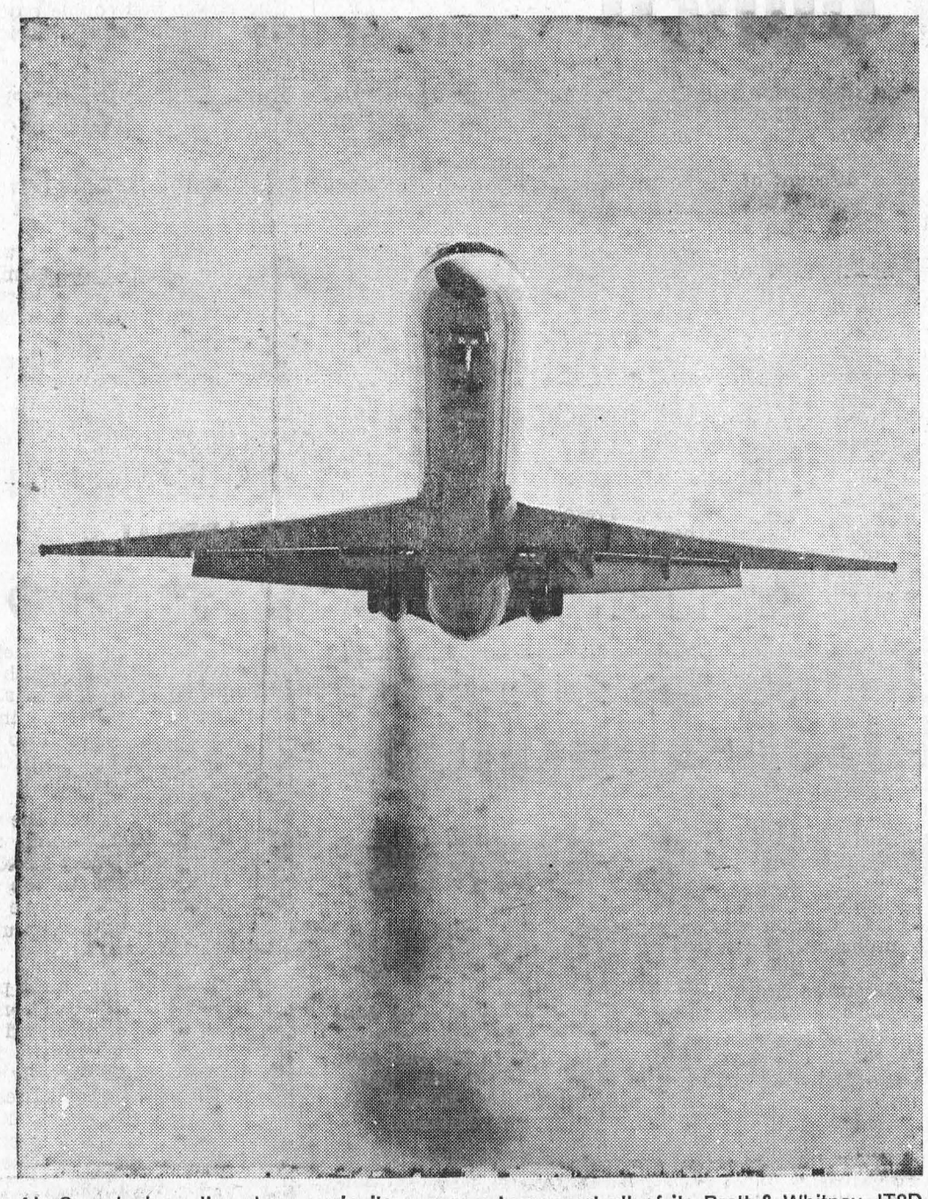
And the program could well break the traditional hog production cycle too with the risk of massive financial loss eliminated, there would be little likelihood of producers unloading breeding stock too quickly. Snobelen says that the plan would take the peaks and troughs out of present marketing patterns, allowing both producers and packers to run their operations at peak efficiency.

This would leave the Ontario Pork Producers in a much better position to meet their obligations. It is absurd to spend thousands of dollars on pork promotion and then not be able to supply the product.

The whole industry would benefit from a steady supply of pork efficiently produced and processed.

The plan is still very much in the preliminary stage. So far, it has received approval in principle from producer representatives at the Pork Producers Semi-Annual Meeting last September. The next step is for the Ontario Pork Producers to decide what they want to do with the Pork Insurance proposal. "Producers can learn more about the plan at the annual meetings of their County Pork Associations", Snobelen said. "There will be a board member at every meeting to explain the proposal further. I advise all producers to consider the plan seriously and then to instruct the elected committeemen from their county on their decisions.

"The committeemen will be deciding on the fate of the plan at the Provincial Annual Meeting in March, so instruct them well".



Air Canada is well under way in its program to convert all of its Pratt & Whitney JT8D engines to make them smokefree. The JT8Ds power the DC-9 jetliners of which the airline operates a fleet of 36. A recent flypast low over a Canadian airport shows a DC-9 with one engine modified. The black smoke plume can be seen pouring from the non-modified starboard engine while the port engine shows no trace of smoke pollution.

WINCHESTER DRUG BUSINESS UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

The familiar LaRose Pharmacy on St. Lawrence Street, Winchester, came under new management on December 30th.

Mr. LaRose has sold the business and it will be known as 'BURNS PHARMACY' with Wayne Burns the new owner-manager. Mr. Burns and his partner Albert C. Belanger are both experienced pharmacists and eager to give the district the same reliable service that Mr. LaRose has given during his twenty years in business.

Mr. Burns, with his wife Huguette and daughter Natallie, will be residing in Winchester, but for the present time Mr. Belanger will continue to reside in Ottawa.

Mr. Burns graduated in pharmacy from the University of Toronto in 1968 after two years at University of Alberta and two years at University of Toronto. He spent an additional year studying business administration. Following a year as a manager he supervised a 17-store chain of pharmacies for one and a half years before deciding, with his partner, to purchase the Winchester business.

Mr. Belanger was born and educated in Ottawa, attended Ottawa University and graduated in pharmacy from the University of Toron to in 1969. He plans, at a later date, to also move to the district.

WOMEN AIMING FOR BETTER JOBS

Women who get to the top vocationally share certain characteristics, according to Eli Ginzberg, professor of economics at the Columbia University School of Business, and noted authority on womanpower. Among these characteristics are: 1) psychological support from their parents, particularly their fathers; 2) a "practical" college education; 3) cooperation from their husbands; and 4) a willingness to fight for the top jobs.

It was not until World War II, Professor Ginzberg notes, that women entered the labor market in large numbers, and "to everyone's surprise" they remained there. "Now we have a second generation growing up with the idea that even though they marry and have children, they'll also go to work. And we're beginning to see more push from this younger generation to compete for the better jobs," he says.

Although their mother's work experience does influence their attitude toward employment, the professor observes, it's the influence of their fathers which spurs these girls on to higher vocational goals. "As far as getting the better jobs is concerned, the girls with positive and supportive fathers have an easier time of it," he reports. Eli Ginzberg notes the role of their husbands is also critical. "Many young women with children are now beginning to hold high-level managerial and scientific jobs, but the ones who coordinate their home and professional lives best," he says, "are those who have the cooperation of their husbands."

Professor Ginzberg contends that many young women limit their own job possibilities by the courses they take in college. They don't realize, he comments, that a liberal arts curriculum equips them primarily for teaching. They'd do much better, he believes, if they "acquired control of" mathematics, economics or statistics. "Any girl who masters calculus," he declares, "is a step ahead these days, in our increasingly technological society."

A Matter of Competence

If a woman is to achieve and maintain a high position in either business or the professions, the most important quality she can demonstrate, according to Professor Ginzberg, is "competence" in performance. "By this I mean more than the intellectual ability to do the job. I'd also include emotional drive, stick-to-it-iveness and the ability to fight and maneuver for oneself." He notes that many able men never get to the top for the same reason that women don't — they aren't fighting hard enough. "And to get to the top," the professor says, "a woman must fight twice or three times as hard."

Eli Ginzberg, who also heads the Conservation of Human Resources Project at Columbia University, is the author of "Career Guidance", published by McGraw Hill and "Life styles of Educated Women," which Columbia University Press is reissuing.

STORY OF AIRMAIL 200 YEARS OLD

Most people would be surprised to learn that the story of airmail goes back nearly 200 years — long before the days of aeroplanes. The first official British airmail service was inaugurated 60 years ago when a series of flights was made between London ad Windsor as part of the celebrations marking the coronation of King George V, but long before that date unofficial attempts had been made to carry the mail by air.

In May, 1807, for example, Admiral Cochrane, the Earl of Dundonald, transmitted messages from the British lines to the French during the Peninsular campaign by means of kites.

Carrier pigeons have been used since time immemorial and it was by means of 'pigeongrams' that Rothschild is said to have learned the outcome of the Battle of Waterloo three days before the news broke in London, thus enabling him to buy shares on the London market and take a tremendous profit when they rocketed in value after the victory was officially announced.

The Montgolfier Brothers made their first balloon ascent in November 1782 and the ballooning craze swiftly spread over Europe. In September 1784 Vincent Lunardi made the first ascent in England and dropped three letters over the side. One of these was found near the milestone on Northaw Common near London and posted back to Lunardi by the finder. The text of this letter — Britain's first 'aerogramme' is reproduced in Lunardi's memoirs. It became customary for balloonists to drop letters and numerous examples of this unofficial airmail have been recorded.

The first attempt in Britain to carry mail by balloon on a large scale was made on October 6, 1870, barely a fortnight after a balloon post was organized from Paris during the Franco-Prussian War.

On this occasion an unmanned balloon was launched from London's Crystal Palace during a fireworks display and subsequently recovered at Acrise Farm near Folkestone, Kent. The postcards contained in the mailbag were postmarked Hythe. Examples of these Crystal Palce cards are very rare and are highly prized as forerunners of the British airmail.

To celebrate the coronation of King Edward VII in August 1902 special postcards portraying the king and queen were dispatched by balloon from Beckenham in Kent. Later that year cards were flown by balloon from Manchester to publicize a Lifeboat Saturday These souvenir postcards are now eagerly sought after by aerophilatelists.

Flights by heavier than air machines took place in the Edwardian period but were poorly publicized and left little in the way of distinctive souvenirs. The first Aviation Meeting took place in Blackpool in August 1910, when Claude Grahame-White carried despatches by aeroplane from Lytham Hall to Squire's Gate.

An Air Meeting at Lanark the following week was marked by several picture postcards and mail was cancelled by a postmark inscribed LANARK GRAND STAND. This postmark was normally used for telegraphic purposes but postcards bearing it are regarded as among the greatest of British aviation rarities.

A fly exhibition was staged by Grahame-White at Southport in June 1911 as part of the Coronation festivities and various attractive labels were produced.

The World's first official airmail flight was made in India in February 1911 in connection with the United Provinces Industrial and Agricultural Exhibition at Allahabad, and a special postmark showing a monoplane was used on souvenir mail.

The flights were organized by Captain (later Sir) Walter Wyndham, who, later that year, was responsible for the London-Windsor flights. Between September 9 and 15, there were 16 flights and 926 pounds of correspondence was carried. Various souvenir postcards and envelopes, and distinctive "Aerial Post" cancellations were produced. Although items from the 1911 flights are not scarce, they are of enormous interest to collectors since they represent the beginning of official airmail in Britain.

Pretty Wedding At Brockville

White 'mums formed the setting in the First Presbyterian church at 2 p.m., November 20, when Miss Carol Ann Duval, only daughter of Mrs. Jennie McColl, 61 Chislett St., Brockville, and of the late Stanley Duval of Morrisburg, became the bride of William Richard TeKamp, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard TeKamp of Lyn. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Leslie R. Renault and wedding music played by Edward Flanigan.

Given in marriage by her stepfather, Fred McColl, the bride wore a long gown of crystal faille with empire waistline and long sleeves. Guipure lace edged the sleeves, around the neckline, down the front and edge of the train. Her open crown headpiece also had matching Guipure lace and held the long veil which was completely edged with lace. She carried three long-stemmed pink roses on a bible.

Attending the bride were Miss Valoree Nutbrown, Reg. N., of Toronto, as maid-of-honor, Miss Lynn Aikman, 112 Ferguson drive, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Doris Duval, 40 Winters court, sister-in-law of the bride, as bridesmaids. All were identically attired in peasant effect dresses with beige crepe tops and dark wine printed skirts. They each carried a single long stemmed rose.

Bernard TeKamp, 75 Victoria ave. brother of the groom, was groomsman and the ushers were Richard Duval, 40 Winters Court brother of the bride, and Barry Gillan, of Brockville, brother-in-law of the groom.

After the ceremony a reception was held at Moose Hall where dinner was served and a dance held later. Assisting in receiving the guests were the bride's mother in a gown of mauve figured crepe, purple suede accessories, mink stole and corsage of white baby 'mums, and the groom's mother in a coat and dress of silk shantung, light green and tan accessories and corsage of baby white 'mums.

New Art Medium At Local Library

A completely new art medium will be displayed in the Morrisburg branch of Seaway Valley Libraries, starting January 15. The artist is William B. Fleming of Ingleside; his medium is plexiglass.

Mr. Fleming started with drawing and painting oils. He likes the traditional art forms but sought to find a contemporary way of presenting these forms. As an employee of the Morrisburg plant of Rohm and Haas, makers of plexiglass, he came across some pieces of this material that had been badly scratched.

Holding them up to the light he noticed a refraction effect and this gave him the idea that the translucent material could be used as a basis for drawing, or etching. He took home some pieces of plexiglass that had been treated with fluorescent color and with a nail and an old file made his first "Pletching". Mounted on a dark background, the result was such that the artist turned away from his oils and started producing pictures on the new material.

Aside from the striking results he achieved, as shown by the items of the exhibit, his wife Doreen, applauds the new turn her husband's hobby has taken, because the plexiglass dust is so much easier to clean up than the mess an oil painter makes on occasion. His sons, Peter (10) and Bruce (7) are too busy bowling and playing hockey to care one way or the other and baby Sandra at two is too young. Mr. Fleming uses a variety of tools for his pletching. Most of the work is done with an electric vibrating tool, but any sharp metal object will do. Emery paper comes in handy for shading.

The result is a range of striking wall decorations. Some care has to be taken that no light is beamed directly on the pletching, as this destroys the effect. Side-lighting and indirect lighting bring out the drawings to greatest advantage.

The exhibition will be opened on Saturday, January 15, at 2:30 p.m. in the Morrisburg library. It will remain on display for two weeks and then will be moved to other branches of Seaway Valley Libraries.

115 MEN ARE NOW EMPLOYED AT AREA PARKS

115 men, recruited for the most part through Welfare Agency referrals, are presently employed on a special Winter Works Programme by the Province of Ontario funded through the Department of Tourism and Information.

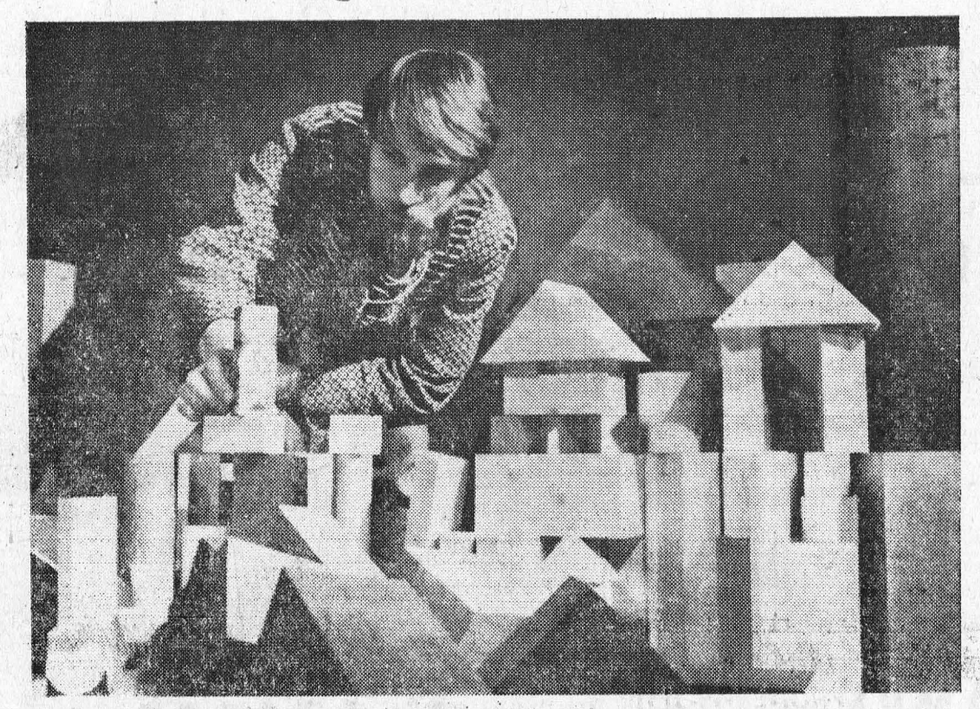
The programme which started on November 22nd, 1971, will continue through March 31, 1972 with a total expenditure exceeding 1/4 million dollars. The basic hourly rate is $2.50.

Work groups are located on parklands in the Counties of Glengarry, Stormont, Dundas, Grenville, Leeds and Frontenac.

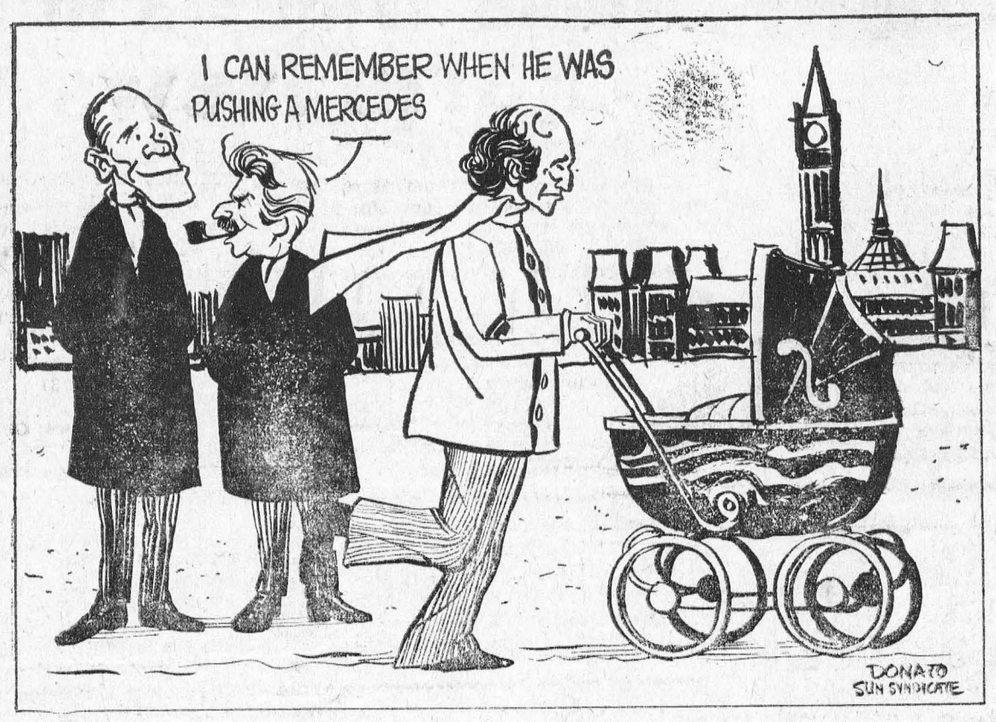
The removal of dead elm trees, underbrushing and cutting firewood for the campsites are projects in progress with a 7 man group at Adolphustown Park, 25 on the 1000 Islands Parkway, 13 in the Crysler Maple Sugar Bush, 8 at Charlottenburgh Park, 5 on the Long Sault Parkway and 18 in Crysler Park.

Another 19 men are working on a new storage shed at the Parks Maintenance Centre. At Upper Canada Village 20 men are employed on construction of a new mill pond dam, transplanting trees and installing new raceways for the Woollen Mill and the Saw Mill. Due to the unusually open winter weather to date progress on the various projects has been exceptionally good.

Building A Film Phantasy



National Film Board director Co Hoedeman amid a child's dream world of building blocks. Over 2,500 colored blocks are used to create a phantasy city for an NFB short puppet film. Using a stop-action technique of shooting (single shots on motion picture film), Hoedeman's story tells of the adventures of a boy and a girl in a city inhabited by a dragon. Hoedeman, last year created "Matrioska" a production employing the same technique as his latest film, which was awarded the Blue Ribbon of the American Film Festival in New York.



DEPARTMENT OF LANDS AND FORESTS

WEEKLY REPORT

LIMERICK FOREST'S

OTHER STORY

Limerick Forest — the most popular snowmobile playground in Grenville County — is really two forests in one.

The "South Tract", a 3,000-acre forest in the middle of the county, has a history that's indelibly Irish. In fact, the Ulstermen who first set tled here were the first to use the name "Limerick".

But the "North Tract", a 2,500-acre forest southeast of Merrickville has a different story. Though the name is Irish, Limerick North is the story of Loyalists, the Mills of Merrickville and the Rideau Canal.

William Merrick, a millwright who preferred to live under the Union Jack than in Massachusetts was attracted by some falls on the Rideau in 1794. By 1800, he had built a sawmill and dam. Other Loyalist settlers followed and Merrick and his family expanded the mills and started foundries and blacksmith shops.

It was the War of 1812 and the threat of more wars with the Americans that really put Merrick's Mills on the map and attracted farmers to the area. More roads were needed for communications and troop movement.

Stagecoaches were soon rumbling between the inn-stops on the Maitland-Merrickville Road. That route, by the way, also became a favorite of those who rode by night —rum and whiskey smugglers.

There was also talk of connecting Ottawa and Kingston by water, an impossible task. But by 1832 the hard-driving Colonel John By with his gangs of engineers and masons had rammed through the Rideau Canal — a system of 123 miles of lakes, rivers and canals linked by 47 locks.

Because the country around the Mills was now a strategic crossroads, a blockhouse was constructed beside the locks. Fortunately, not one shot in anger was ever fired from its gun slits.

Though Merrickville, as it was later named, was a busy port on the Rideau handling barges of timber, grain, apples and dry goods, it never became a great commercial centre.

Fascinating souvenirs of those pioneer days still remain in Limerick North. Old cedar rail fences criss-cross the countryside, a reminder that the limestone bedrock is close to the surface making post hole digging difficult. Not all the fences were the zig-zag "snake" variety. The ingenious settlers found other ways to divide the land. Some used the "hanging rail" technique while others preferred the log fence, the "patent" fence or the "straight rail".

Examples of all these types have been preserved in one single fence across the road from the Limerick Schoolhouse in the South Tract.

Chinked log buildings are also common in Limerick North. Before clearing the land the pioneers would set up housekeeping in a rough hut which would be replaced by a more carefully constructed log cabin with fitted corners. Many of the buildings, used now as henhouses and pigsties, are still standing. The "good" quarried stone or frame houses were built when the settlers had both the time and the money.

Synod to be Held May 19-22 at St. Columban's

His Excellency Bishop Adolphe Proulx, Bishop of the Diocese of Alexandria, has announced the dates of the forthcoming Synod to be held in Cornwall. This Synod, is to take place from May 19th through May 22nd at Saint Columban's Parish Centre. Approximately four hundred (400) people are expected to participate either as voting delegates, alternates or observers.

The Synod actually began on Jan. 15, 1968 when His Excellency Bishop Proulx announced the beginning of a three-phased programme culminating with an actual Synod. A Synod is a lawful assembly convoked by the Bishop, in which he gathers together the priests, the clerics, and official representatives of the lay people of Diocese for the purpose of doing and deliberating concerning what belongs to the pastoral care of his Diocese.

The first phase was a sociological study of the two (2) counties of Stormont and Glengarry involving the social, economic and religious life of its people. After compilation of the gathered statistics, taken from 12,000 families in the two (2) counties, it was revealed that profound changes had taken place over the last fifty (50) years. From a basically rural area developped a highly industrialized urban centre. This social and cultural transformation revealed grave repercussions on man's religious life as well.

In May 1970, the second phase of the diocesan Synod began. This consisted in the formation of fourteen (14) study commissions detailing the various aspects of the data gathered in phase one. The following commissions were set up: Liturgical, education, ecumenical, financial, youth, family life, laity and apostolate, social action, communication, and Church life. The various commissions of study have now brought forth concrete proposals of renewal within our diocesan community.

These proposals represent the beginning of phase three which is the actualization of the efforts of the past three years. In announcing the dates of the Synod, His Excellency marks also the beginning of phase three. During the four-day May session, the delegates will be assembled as a structered parliament debating and voting on the proposed resolutions.

His Excellency Bishop Adolphe Proulx announces the appointment of the Executive steering committee for the Synod proposed by the diocesan Pastoral Council. Father Rudolph Villeneuve, presently Pastor of St. Francis de Sales parish in Cornwall, becomes its chairman. Mr. Anthony Olivier, president of the diocesan Pastoral Council, and employee of Domtar Canada Limited, will be its vice-chairman. — Heading various committees will be Rev. Aime Leduc, Pastor at Nativity Church and diocesan bursar-budget Rev. Rejean Lebrun, Director of religious education for the S.D. and G. separate school Board, French section. Procedures: Mr. Gerald Samson, Head of history at General Vanier Secondary Schol. Logistics: Rev. Rene Dube, associate-pastor at St. John Bosco Parish, special events and liturgy; Sister Jacqueline Chenier, secretary of the Diocesan Centre; Publications, Rev. Laurier Rivet, Associate-Pastor of Holy Cross Parish, Simultaneous translation; Rev. Gary Ostler, deacon, Assistant at St. Francis de Sales Parish, mass media and communications.

The 2nd FORTY

Mixed Marriage

Dear Margaret Brookfield:

I'm 19 and in love with a man who's 22. We're planning to get married pretty soon, but I've been having arguments about it with my parents because they want me to marry within my own religion. However I feel I should marry this man because I'm in love with him and he's in love with me. Fortunately, his parents don't feel the way mine do. They say we should go ahead and get married if we really want to. What are your views in this matter? C.D.

Dear C.D.:

A few years ago, mixed marriages were far less common because resistance to them was much greater. But their growing acceptance doesn't necessarily mean they always work out smoothly. Interfaith marriages are often more complicated and risky because they usually involve considerable differences in basic viewpoints between the man and woman. However, if the individuals contemplating a mixed marriage have some idea of the involvements and adjustments they may have to make, and try to resolve a few of the touchy questions beforehand, their future could be happier. For example, some of the most critical problems concern how the children should be raised. Many such conflicts can be prevented if questions concerning baptism, circumcision and religious instruction are dealt with before the child is born. To learn more about these intefaith problems, it might be a good idea for you and your fiance to get in touch with a clergyman of each of your faiths, then both of you can talk things over with them before the marriage—instead of after.

Strong Sex Drive

Dear Margaret Brookfield:

I'm a mature woman of 43 and have a stronger sex drive than I had when I was 20. Are all women my age subject to this or am I abnormal? I've also been having hot flashes and wonder if this is connected with it in some way. E.S.

Dear E.S.

No, you're not abnormal. Various researchers have learned that sexualit can continue into the sixtieth and seventieth years of a woman's life. Masters and Johnson have pointed out that since women in the menopausal years usually have resolved most of the problems associated with raising a family—and since they no longer fear pregnancy—many do become less inhibited and develop a renewed interest in their husbands. For some, this leads to a "second honeymoon." However, some women will suffer hot flashes and various other difficulties as a result of the menopause. Physicians tell us that such suffering is often needless, particularly when estrogen replacement therapy can be prescribed to alleviate those symptoms.

No Age Immune To Cancer

Many Canadians believe cancer is a disease of middle age or later life. No age group is immune, although cancer may strike more often in older people.

Cancer can occur in any number of forms in almost any part of the bod. About five per cent of all fatal cases occur in or near the mouth.

Even in the mouth, cancer can occur in various forms with differing degrees of severity. About half of all cases of oral cancer are found in the lips, most frequently in the lower lip. However, the tongue, gums, cheeks and bones of both jaws can be affected as well.

Check for the following abnormalities of either the hard or soft parts of your mouth and point them out to your dentist: Any swelling or hardness, however small, which you noticed recently and which is increasing in size; any sore spot, roughening or whitish discolouration, or an ulcer which does not heal.

Although causes of cancer are not entirely clear, chronic irritation of oral tissues is definitely associated with the incidence of mouth cancer. Dental neglect that results in badly decayed, broken-down teeth, open-root abscesses, gum infections and excessive smoking are sources of such irritations.

Early recognition and prompt treatment of oral cancer is vital. Periodic routine dental examinations and regular home dental care will minimize the risk of oral cancer.

Dundas County Farm News

COMSOLVE

Comsolve is part of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food 'Farman' program designed to meet the business needs of today's farmers. It is the introduction of the computer as an aid to the Agricultural Engineer. It is designed to aid farmers in solving machinery management and engineering problems.

Farm Problems It Can Solve Today

Four programs are available for use at present.

3. Silage Corn Harvesting — the computer calculates silage corn harvesting costs and evaluates ownership of machinery versus custom operation.

4. Tractor Size — the computer determines the maximum of the tractor, in engine horsepower, required to do the farm job considering the limits of time, soil type, field size and manpower.

Operation of Comsolve

The Agricultural Engineer reviews the problem with the farmer. The necessary information is entered on a report form and then phoned to a computer terminal. The operator feeds the 'input' information through the terminal to the computer and receives a printed answer or 'print-out' for the problem. A summary of the information is phoned to the Agricultural Engineer who may add additional information before forwarding it to the farmer.

At present there is no charge for this service. By relieving the Agricultural Engineer of many time consuming calculations, his services are available to more farmers with their problems of farm machinery, management, and engineering in general.

Future of Comsolve

The plan is to develop additional programs as well as utilizing any others that are available to aid in the solving of engineering problems on the farm.

Typical problems being considered for the future are:

A comprehensive machinery, processing, and storage system for grain corn.

Manure handling systems — structures and equipment for solid and liquid handling and a cost comparison.

Using Comsolve

Individual consultation is useful in providing the detailed answers required to meet the business needs of today's farmers. Contact your local Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food office for Comsolve.

Will Vida Strike Out Pay Board?

By RALPH NOVAK

WASHINGTON (CEF)

One of the more interesting fringe benefits of the wage-price freeze is that it has shown us how far most Americans are willing to go to help their country.

The trials and tribulations of the Pay Board, in particular, are interesting. There we have seen once again how ready people are to make sacrifices as long as the sacrifice doesn't involve giving up anything. We have, for instance, Vida Blue, the pitcher for the Oakland Athletics baseball team. Last season he made a mere $13,000 for a whole eight months' work.

Now he is talking about asking for a raise next season, something perhaps on the order of $87,000, which would bring him to a nice round figure of $100,000 and make it a lot easier to figure taxes and things like that. The problem is that the Pay Board has more or less (mostly less) established 5.5 per cent as the standard allowable wage increase. And if Blue received $100,000, that would be an increase on the order of 670 per cent, or about 111 times what has been established as the most any patriotic, red-blooded American should get.

The Pay Board found this—and other situations involving athletes and entertainers with erratic incomes—very difficult to deal with. That is no surprise, of course, since they have found just about all wage situations difficult to deal with, lacking as they do any established basis for deciding what is and what isn't a justifiable exception.

Just as Blue's position is comparable to, say, James Franciscus', so is the position of the aerospace industry workers comparable to the miners, who got a 16 per cent increase on the grounds that workers in similar jobs had received increases that big before the freeze semi-went into effect.

The Pay Board has, in this respect, met with a reaction not unlike that which has greeted the Price Board, where businesses have voiced whole-hearted support for keeping prices down except in certain exceptional circumstances, namely their own, and keeping wages down in all circumstances.

There are those who argue that the inflation the freeze was designed to combat is actually an acceptable by-product of the capitalist system and a healthy sign that the competitive juices are still flowing. We could, they continued, learn to live quite happily with inflation by making some minor adjustments.

That would probably be a more realistic way of coping with our problems than trying to artificially limit people's natural selfish instincts, but it appears for the time being that Vida Blue and the rest of us will have to make out as best we can

NOW HEAR THIS

The life and times of the revolutionary leader of the People's Republic of China — Mao Tse Tung —are chronicled in a documentary on CBC Tuesday Night, January 18. It traces his career from his callow, poetic youth to leader of the largest nation on earth. It also includes excerpts from his poetry, thoughts and autobiographical notes, as dictated to journalist Edgar Snow (the first western journalist to meet him). As well, journalists and historians discuss his impact on the world . . .

Playwright George Salverson has come up with a fascinating portrait of a typical railroader in the old days for The Bush and The Salon, Jan. 15 — his father . . .

John Marier of Ottawa, winner of the 1968 Song Market, has another entry in this year's series. In June, sung by Barbara Gryfe will be heard on The Entertainers, Jan. 21. Other songs featured that date are The Beginning of the Ending, written and sung by Ada Lee, of Peterboro, Ont. and Understanding Hand by Alan Chapple of Toronto, who's had a song entered in every contest. Maybe this time he'll come up a winner!

Sunday and Friends begins a new series Jan. 16 called The Crazies—interviews with oddball, outspoken characters across the country who have interesting occupations, pastimes or viewpoints. First off, Marty The Witch who sells spells in Montreal, and Elias Mallett, who sells astrological predictions in Toronto and who predicted in November that Prime Minister Trudeau's baby would be a boy.

On Concern, Jan. 19, an interview with an expert on "space language" who says he's pretty fluent in "Venutian", but as yet can't speak a word of "Martian". Wonder where he went to school?

Alexander Lagoya, one of the leading classical guitarists of the century will be heard on recital from St. James' Cathedral, Toronto, on Distinguished Artists, Jan. 15. Of Greek-Italian origin, he has lived in Paris for the past 20 years and is now a French citizen. For many years he and his wife, Ida Presti, toured as duo-guitarists until her death in 1967. Since then he has continued his career as a soloist throughout Europe, and has taught at the JMC Orford Arts Centre in Quebec, and played with symphony orchestras in Quebec, Kingston and Calgary.

Happy Homemaking

By BARBARA BAKER

The shower is a good place to spray large dusty house plants. Just set them in the shower, turn the cold water on gently and then let them there to dry. Two precautions—do not have the water so cold that it will shock the plants, and put a protective cloth or some other device over the drain so it will not become clogged from any dirt that might escape from the pots.

When getting ready to go on a trip, do not pack newly ironed clothes right away. Let them hang overnight. Try to pack on a clear, dry day and you will find your clothes will be less wrinkled and will shed any wrinkles more readily than those packed when slightly damp or packed on a rainy day.

If you have trouble with a narrow garage, here is a method for saving the car's fenders: Suspend a ball from the center of the garage ceiling or door frame and line up the middle of the car radiator with it when entering.

Fix-It Tip

Oak, walnut and other open-grain woods cannot be made completely smooth with sanding, nor will varnish or other material seal them completely. These woods have open pores in the grain. These must be filled before finishing to get a smooth surface.

Use a special paste wood filler made for this purpose. Thin so that it is about as thick as heavy paint, then brush across the grain a small section at a time. As it dries, rub it in and then wipe off the excess by wiping across the grain.
