Two Houses Burned at Cornwall.

The east end of Cornwall was visited by a fire yesterday morning which destroyed the residences of I. Payette and C. Lapointe, and the sheds and part of the latter's wood-yard, where the blaze originated. The fire brigade fought the flames for four hours, and by their efforts prevented a conflagration. Lapointe's loss will be over $3,000 and Payette's about $1,800. Both are partly covered by insurance.

Peculiar Accident in Tweed Public School.

A peculiar accident ccurred at the Public school at Tweed one day last week, when the prnicipal, Mr. Blake, was conducting chemical experiment. He was passing ozone through a glass tube containing logwood in order to show its bleaching powers, when an explosion occurred. Glass and acid flew in all directions about the room. Mr. Blake's hands and face were cut in a score of places and several of the scholars were also more or less injured. No serious results, however, are anticipated in any case. Colin Helm, son of Mr. H. P Helm, local manager of the Bank Montreal, was badly burned about the face and eyes.

Killed on Track.

On the arrival of an east bound C. P. R. freight at Dalhousie Mills on Monday night, a man's hat was noticed on the pilot, which supplied the first intimation that someone had been struck. The sectionmen taking the hand car proceeded west and near Glen Norman found the remains of the victim so badly mutilated as to be unrecognizable, but by the clothing the body has been idenlified as that of Mr. Andrew Leslie, aged 42 years and unmarried, who had been employed for the past four or five years on the farm of Alex. McLaughlin, seventh concession of Lancaster. He left his employer's after dinner to go to his uncles, taking the track for that purpose, and it was while so journeying that he was run down and killed.

Carlsbad Springs Hotel Burned.

Chesterville people who have enjoyed its hospitality will be sorry to hear that Boyd's hotel at Carlsbad Springs was completely destroyed by fire last week, a clean sweep being made of everything. The fire, originating from an unknown cause, was first discovered about 11 o'clock at night. Mr. T. L. Boyd, the owner was away at the time and there was no pesron at the hotel but Mrs Boyd and her little son. No appliances were available and the flames made more and more progress until at length it was seen that it would be impossible to control them and soon after nothing was left but the charred remains of the once handsome structure. The hotel was large, and the amount of damage will be considerable

Beggs—Irving.

The marraige of Miss Katharine Irving daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Irving of Winchester to Dr. William Beggs took place at the home of the bride on Wednesday afternoon of last week at 2 o'clock. Only the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties were present. The bride and groom are both popular, and their host of friends wish them a long happy journey through life.

A very pleasant function took place the Monday evening previous at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Sweet, when Miss Sweet, gave a "kitchen shower" in honor of Miss Katharine Irving. About thirty of Miss Irving's young lady friends were present who gave evidence of their regard for the bride-to-be by many friendly tokens. Miss Irving was one of Winchester's most popular young ladies'.

Possessed of vocal abilities of high order she generously gave her services to all worthy causes, and her removal will be a distinct loss. The choir of St. Paul's church, of which Miss Irving was a valued member, presented her with a music cabinet, as a mark of their esteem.

Fire At Merrickville.

A fire in the Percival Plow Co.'s establishment at Merrickville Friday afternoon did considerable damage to patterns and the storage building, but the fine fire appliances on the premises prevented heavy loss. The cause of fire was sparks from the cupola. Loss over one thousand dollars. Insured.

At Milton Thomas Crozier was sentenced to nine years' imprisonment and his son to two for making and passing counterfeit money.

Badly Scalded.

A three-year old child of Mr. and Mrs. Weston Beach of Winchester got badly scalded a few days ago. While playing about a creek he lost his balance and fell in at a point where the exhaust pipe of Beach and Co's engine empties in. The water being hot the little fellow was frightfully scalded from the hollow of his back to his heels. When his clothing was removed the flesh peeled off with it. It is thought he will recover.

Human Foot Prints In Soiid Rock.

Mr. Thomas C Houle, Ascot Corner, near Sherbrooke, Que., writes that he has in his possession a stone on which are eight human footprints. This he found on the west side of Moulton Hill.

As these prints must have been made in soft clay, and as the process of solidifying has taken a long period, it shows that Canada was inhabitated ages back. Mr. Houle will be pleased to show his relic to any persons interested in such matters.

Mr. Harold Jarvis, whom Canada so proudly claims, sang superbly last time he was here. All agreed his magnificient voice had reached perfection, but he seemed absolutely grand as he was to be now even "grander still."—"Commercial," Buffalo.

Fire at Newington.

There was a rather odd fire at Newington on Tuesday morning. John Kennedy, who lived on H. McMillan's farm, was milking in the barn when it suddenly burst into flames and after getting out five cows he was forced out, being considerably burned himself. The building and contents were totally destroyed. There was a small insurance.

Mr. Harold Jarvis' Scottish songs received with thundering applause. He fired with enthusiasm every heart in the audience.—"Times," Hamilton.

The Molsons Bank.

The Molsons Bank statement which aspears in another part of this paper, is perhaps one of the most remarkable ever presented by a Canadian bank. It covers the period of the historic financial panic of last autumn, which while it did not affect Canada so much as some other parts of the world, was yet able to produce a very marked shrinkage in all lines of business and a withdrawing of capital from all parts of expansion.

Yet the Molsons Bank is able to show a profit exceeding that of the next best year by $60,000, and is in every way in a stronger position at the end of this critical year.

Stores in Town Robbed.

A few weeks ago several places of business in town were missing goods and finally the guilt was placed on D. E Wilson, an employee in the Molsons Bank, who acknowledged to the act, and after restoring the stolen articles, was let go and immediately left town. All went well until Sunday night last, when Fulton Bros. and Bogart & Dixon's stores were again entered, and money and goods are missing. Every effort is being made to capture the guilty party or parties.

Miss Sweet, the popular elocutionist, of Winchester, will take part in the Harold Jarvis Concert, Wednesday evening, 28th inst.

Mrs. Harper Dead.

Mrs. Julian Harper, an old resident of Chesterville, atter a prolonged sickness, died at her residence on Tuesday last, Oct. 26th, 1908, at the age of 68 years.

The funeral took place Monday to the Methodist church, where services were conducted by the Rev. A. E. Runnells, B. D., after which the remains were interred in the village burying ground.

A Big Boy.

The following was clipped from the Anthon Herald, published at Anthon, Iowa. The parents of boy lived at Connaught about twenty years ago.

"Bernard, the eleven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Sil Coyne of Grant township, makes his playmates look like pigmies in comparison. He is 6 feet, 2 inches in height, weighs 165 pounds and wears a No. 11 shoe. Though not as robust as a man of that size would be, he is healthy and bright and seems to take the same interest about the farm work as the father does. He's a man in every way but in age.

Just where he inherits his size from cannot be satisfactorily solved. His father is less than 5 feet, 10 inches in height and his mother is an ordinary sized woman. It is not probable he will grow much taller nor very much more corpulent. However, bigness seems to predominate in the family of children as one born a week ago weighed 13 pounds at birth."

Fort William's curling rink was destroyed by fire.

A COUNTERFEITING OUTFIT

Plates Unearthed of Seven Banks and Nearly $4,000 in Bogus Notes.

A despatch from Buffalo, N. Y., says: One of the most complete counterfeiting plants ever discovered in this country was unearthed on Wednesday afternoon by United States and Canadian Secret Service officers in a secluded spot on a small farm a few miles outside of Gowanda, Cattaraugus County. It was operated by Thomas Washington Crozier and his son, Milton, who were arrested the other day at Oakville, Ont. More arrests will follow.

W. L. Gammon, of the United States Secret Service, and James Parkinson, inspector for the Dominion Secret Service, went out to the farm early on Wednesday morning and began their hunt. Hour after hour it was kept up, and late in the afternoon their efforts were rewarded. Hidden away in an outhouse they discovered the most incriminating testimony, and returned to Buffalo with a complete counterfeiting outfit.

The capture included 150 Farmers Bank of Canada $10 notes; 80 Farmers Bank of Canada $5 notes; 100 Standard Bank of Canada notes for $10; and 138 United States $5 silver certificates; making a total of $3,645.

PLATES OF SEVEN BANKS.

In the deserted old house were also discovered rubber stamps and letters, 47 engraving tools, one set of United States silver certificates with $5 plates; one set of Imperial Bank of Canada $10 plates; one set of Crown Bank of Canada $5 plates; one set of Quebec Bank of Canada $10 plates; one set of Standard Bank of Canada $10 plates; one set of Farmers Bank $10 plates, and a set of the same bank's $5 plates.

The officers also found buried under an old barn on the premises a front plate of the United Empire Bank of Canada $5 notes, and parts of finished and unfinished plates.

According to the officers, the elder Crozier bought the Cattaragus farm last Summer, and while on his way from Canada always stopped off in Buffalo to drop a little of the queer. The counterfeiters passed United States bills in Canada, and Canadian money over here.

ATTACKED A FARMER'S WIFE.

Tramp Knocked Her Unconscious in Kitchen of Her Home.

A despatch from Brockville says: Mrs. William Charlton, the wife of a farmer residing on the Mail Road, west of Brockville, on Friday morning was assaulted in a brutal manner by an unknown tramp. At 5.30, while her husband was milking in the barn the tramp appeared at the house and asked for something to eat. She took him in and was in the act of preparing a meal when the stranger, seeing she was alone, suddenly changed his mind, demanding that he be given money instead of food. Mrs. Charlton positively refused, whereupon the tramp seized her by the throat. In the struggle she managed to break away and ran for the door. The tramp followed and felled her to the floor with blows on the back, rendering her unconscious. How long she remained in that condition is not known, but on coming to her senses the man had departed. Mrs. Charlton at once notified her husband and a hurried search of the neighborhood failed to find trace of the scoundrel. It was subsequently discovered the tramp had found $1.06 on a shelf, which he appropriated. Mrs. Charlton has furnished the police with a description of the man, who so far has escaped arrest.

LEAP FOR THEIR LIVES.

Several Injured at a Fire in Carleton County.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Early on Sunday morning fire broke out in Mrs. Baird's general store at Fitzroy Harbor, a large three-storey frame building, completely destroying it, together with a blacksmith's shop and several other adjacent buildings. The fire had gained such headway that the inmates had to jump for their lives from the second storey. Mrs. Baird is seriously injured, and is at present in a very critical condition. Miss Baird ran downstairs into the store and had her foot badly burned. Mrs. Hanlan, of Arnprior, and her little son jumped from the third storey. Mrs. Hanlan was badly hurt and will be confined to bed for several weeks. The boy was only slightly injured. The origin of the fire is unknown.

FIREMAN ROASTED ALIVE.

Shocking Accident on C. P. R. Near Stickney, N. B.

A despatch from Woodstock, N. B., says: During a dense fog on Saturday two C.P.R. freight trains collided head-on near Stickney. Robert Johnson, St. John, fireman, was burned to death, and Chas. Humphrey, Woodstock, engineer, was fatally injured and died a short time after. Fireman Johnson was caught between the tender and the firebox, and roasted alive, while he piteously begged the train men to kill him, and put him out of his agony. One leg was burned off before he was extricated. Humphrey had both legs and his back broken. Conductor Taylor was injured about the head and face. The engineer and fireman on the other train jumped and saved their lives.

SHOT HIMSELF IN HEAD.

Young Druggist Commits Suicide at the Capital.

A despatch from Ottawa says: J. A. Pink, a druggist, shot himself in the head at his lodging place, 255 Albert Street on Monday morning. He left no note and there are only suspicions as to a reason for his act. The dead man lived in Ottawa up to about three years ago, when his father died. He then left his position here and went west, where he had been working for the past three years in New Westminster and Vancouver. About a month ago he returned to Ottawa, and since that time he had not worked.

PEACE IS NOW ASSURED

If Servia Keeps Quiet Her Interests Will be Safeguarded.

A despatch from London says: A special to the Times from St. Petersburg says that the Russian Government has sent a note to Servia and Montenegro, promising to safeguard their interests at the forthcoming conference, and expressing the hope that this promise will induce them to avoid a rash policy.

SHE STANDS ALONE.

A despatch from Paris says: A special despatch from Constantinople states that the German Ambassador has declared to Tewfik Pasha, the Turkish Foreign Minister, that Germany would follow the line of conduct adopted by Great Britain regarding the annexation by Austria of Bosnia and Herzegovina. As a consequence of the attitude of the powers, Austria-Hungary now stands alone.

AUSTRIA HOLDS BACK.

A despatch from Berlin says: Neither Austria-Hungary nor Turkey has yet given its consent to the proposed international conference to settle the existing situation in the near east. Austria-Hungary declines to participate unless it is agreed that the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina be not discussed and accepted and legalized by the powers without debate. Turkey desires a free hand in Macedonia, as well as cash compensation from Bulgaria for the Oriental Railroad in Eastern Russia and some other outstanding claims. All the powers are in favor of a fixed programme, and a majority of them are inclined to omit from the discussions the question of the passage of the Dardanelles and the Cretan proclamation for union with Greece.

THE SITUATION AT A GLANCE.

A despatch from London says: The new Europe consists of six great powers equally divided into two groups. Neither of these two groups, nor a single one of their components, desires war, yet the world's peace stands in greater danger to-day than at any moment in the present generation. The past week's events have noticeably diminished that peril. They have established a generaly line of cleavage and they have transferred the point of the acutest irritation from Bulgaria to Constantinople. The question of the hour is whether the splendid qualities of restraint shown by regenerated Turkey will endure the strain of another ten days. If they can and do then the danger of immediate war will have disappeared. The powers will then take up the thankless task of attempting to reconcile irreconcilable interests.

FIVE HURT IN DERAILMENT.

A Mixed Train Was Ditched Near Allandale.

A despatch from Barrie says: Three coaches of a mixed train, No. 42, from Meaford, left the rails half a mile north of Allandale, at 1.30 on Thursday afternoon. Five passengers were more or less injured, Mrs. John Wilson, of Meaford, 75 years of age, being the most serious. She sustained a broken arm, a broken leg and other injuries. Percy Herment, of 159 Wilton Avenue, Toronto, had his head cut and was otherwise bruised. Mrs. John Potts, of Collingwood ankle hurt. Miss Hotson, of Parkhill, arm broken and otherwise injured. The train was running about 25 miles an hour on a level track when the rear trucks of the last coach left the rails, bringing the other coaches after it. The coaches turned on their sides.

RUSH TO STURGEON LAKE.

The Reports of Gold Finds are Very Encouraging.

A despatch from Port Arthur says: Gold prospectors are quietly dropping into the Sturgeon Lake district, and among these are many who have been prospecting in and around Cobalt. Men who have come out from the works on the Grand Trunk Pacific say that there are many looking for the precious metal, and that a large number of them will stay in the country all winter. Some of these who have visited the camps say that there are sure to be many more and richer finds, and that within a very short time there will be a gold rush into the country which will rival some of those which have now become historical. Several parties have left Port Arthur in the past few days for fields of promise, and have outfitted with the intention of staying all winter.

MEN WERE SCARCE.

Scarcity of Labor Delays Work on the T. & N. O.

A despatch from Toronto says: The construction of the T. & N. O. Railway northward has just about reached the National Transcontinental Railway. At present the work has practically been completed to the "Y" joining the other road. The work has been delayed because of a minor strike, and it was found very difficult to procure men. The commission desired 100 men, and with a view to securing these strenuous efforts were made in Toronto. The wages offered were $1.75 a day, and only about 40 men could be obtained. In addition, the men were promised their fares both ways if they served the time stipulated in the agreement.

DELAYED TOO LONG.

Local Option Supporters in Manitoba Bowled Out.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: The local veto campaign in Manitoba, where the temperance workers had planned to submit petitions in 60 municipalities, received a severe reverse on Monday, when Judge Mathers ruled that in every case almost the promoters of the veto had deferred submitting their petition to the Council too long, and therefore, they could not legally compel these Councils to take a vote. This means that the applications are bowled out for a year in nearly all the municipalities, if it is sustained in the higher court to which an immediate appeal will be taken.

IGNORED THE SPEAKER.

Laborite Member Carried From the British Commons.

A despatch from London says: In the House of Commons on Thursday Albert Victor Grayson, Socialist and Laborite, from Yorkshire, constantly ignored the Speaker and his calls to order, and continued to call the attention of the House to the fact that there were people starving on the streets. To the members who were insisting that he sit down, he retorted: "It is all very well for you to cry order, you, who are well fed." Finally the Speaker called on the Sergeant-at-Arms to remove Grayson. While he was being carried out bodily he shouted, addressing the Laborites: "I call upon the traitors to their class who have refused to stand by their class to stand by me."

300 LIVES WERE LOST.

Typhoon Had Deadly Effect in Chinese City.

A despatch from Amoy, China, says: Native reports received here from Chang-Chow are to the effect that more than 300 lives were lost in that city as the result of Thursday's typhoon.

A CONDITIONAL GIFT.

Daughters of Empire Give $10,000 to Fight White Plague.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The Daughters of the Empire have donated $10,000 to the funds of the Anti-Tuberculosis Society, of Ottawa, on condition that a further $20,000 be raised.

FLAMES HEMMED IN TRAIN

Awful Fate of Refugees Seeking to Escape From Burning Town.

A despatch from Detroit says: Seventeen people are known to have perished when a relief train on the Detroit & Mackinaw Railroad, carrying refugees from forest fires in upper Michigan, ran off the tracks right in the midst of a burning pine forest. Unconfirmed reports say nearly every one on the train perished. Bishop Williams of Detroit was reported to have been on the wrecked train, but later advices show that he is safe. Fifteen burned skulls were found in a steel gondola car. When the cars left the rails the train crew and passengers found themselves trapped on all sides by the raging flames through which no human being could pass and live. Fireman Lee took refuge in the water tank, and when the flames closed round it he was boiled to death. The whole country north and west of Alpena is being swept by the most serious fire in years.

RELIEF TRAIN DERAILED.

A despatch from Alpena, Mich., says: Twelve out of the seventeen persons who lost their lives in the forest fires north of here on Thursday night belonged to the town of Metz. The whole town was ablaze and a train of eight or nine wooden cars and a steel gondola was made up to take the people out. Thirty or forty men, women and children, with a mass of household effects, were crowded into the gondola and the train started with a wall of fire on either side. At Nowickis Siding the rails spread and the engine went into the roadbed. The flames immediately swept over the train, setting fire to the wooden cars and the household [illegible] in the gondola. Three mothers and their nine children remained in the steel car and were cremated there. Engineer John Kinville of Alpena and another member of the train crew escaped by crawling on their hands and knees along the track. A number of passengers badly cut and burned made their way to the village of Posen, between here and the scene of the wreck. It is not known whether any of them perished after leaving the train or not.

HINDUS TO BE SENT AWAY

Plan to Ship Them to British Honduras Sugar Plantations.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The despatch from Vancouver, stating that the Canadian and Imperial Governments have co-operated to bring about a happy solution of the Hindus problem in British Columbia, is officially confirmed at the Department of the Interior.

In previous years it has been the practice for the British West Indian colonies to import each year for work on the sugar plantations a number of coolies from India, chiefly from Calcutta. It is now proposed by the arrangement reached between the Governments of Canada, Great Britain and British Honduras, that this year, instead of obtaining coolies from Calcutta, they shall be shipped from Vancouver.

Mr. Harkin left Vancouver on Thursday, and will proceed to Honduras via New Orleans. As soon as all arrangements can be completed, the Hindus now in British Columbia will be transferred to Honduras at the cost of the three Governments.

CHILD SAVED THE TRAIN.

Discovered Broken Rail on Her Way to School.

A despatch from Fillmore, Sask., says: Alice Potter, aged eleven years, was on a recent morning proceeding along the railway track to school. The child had not gone more than a mile when she noticed a broken rail. At once realizing the danger to the eastbound train, the child no longer thought of school and her lessons, but the lives of those on board. She at once rushed home, with the train even at that time in sight. On reaching her home, which was located at the side of the track, she informed her father of what she had seen and asked him if he would stop the train. The father at once rushed in the direction of the fast approaching train, and succeeded in flagging it and bringing it to a standstill. It is reported that the C. P. R. authorities are investigating the matter and are going to reward the child.

BOYS EATING CORDITE.

Startling Discovery Made by London School Principal.

A despatch from London, Ont., says: Principal Wyatt of St. George's school discovered on Wednesday afternoon that a number of his pupils had been eating cordite taken from cartridges. One boy ate so much of it that at noon he fainted. The culprits, when questioned about it, said they had read about the alleged murderer, Private Moir, eating the stuff and were sampling it to observe its effects.

SPILLED MILK IN SEWER.

Rigid System of Inspection Inaugurated in Detroit.

A despatch from London says: A rigid system of milk inspection was inaugurated in Detroit on Friday by Health Officer Kiefer in a crusade against unhygienic surroundings. The idea, Dr. Kiefer says, he got from the Canadian cities where the inspection of milk for public consumption is most thorough. Impure milk is believed to be responsible for the alarming spread of typhoid in and around Detroit, and every gallon of milk from now on will be tested before being sold. One lot of a hundred gallons of rich looking milk was seized by the inspectors early on Friday morning and dumped into the sewer, and the seizures will be continued until conditions come up to the required standard.

SUMMONED TO THEIR SHIPS.

Men of British Home Fleet on Leave Suddenly Recalled.

A despatch from London says: All the men of the home fleet absent from their ships on liberty have been suddenly recalled. Inasmuch as the reason for this has not yet been ascertained, the order has caused considerable excitement.

South Africa imported Canadian goods worth $1,049,499 for the first six months of the fiscal year.

The Provincial Government is preparing a detailed plan to get British farmers to take up farms in the older portions of Ontario.

SEVENTY MILES OF FLAME

Terrible Forest Fires Are Raging in Northern Michigan.

A despatch from Detroit says: Despatches from Alpena indicate that the number of deaths in the forest fires in Presque Isle and Alpena counties will exceed fifty and may run well up towards one hundred. It is reported that there is a solid wall of flame stretching 70 miles from Gaylord to Alpena. In the vicinity of Metz, Bolton and Posen the fires have burned sufficiently to leave several hundred women and children camping with comparative safety in the open fields, but near the city of Alpena on Saturday night the fires were so threatening that Mayor McKnight called out a volunteer force of several hundred with shovels to form a patrol and construct trenches to stay the progress of the flames in the direction of the city.

It is now estimated that 23 people lost their lives in the destruction of the ill-fated Metz relief train Thursday evening.

With the certainty that a sudden drop in temperature would bring untold distress upon the half-clothed victims huddled in temporary shelters in the open fields, every effort is being made to organize a comprehensive system of relief measures.. On Sunday the Detroit & Mackinac Railroad sent out three cars of provisions to be distributed among the stricken.

It is estimated that at least 500 people are utterly dependent upon assistance contributed from outside the burned district.

GANANOQUE MAN OUT OF TROUBLE

HAD RHEUMATISM, BUT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CURED IT.

Hugh Abernethy on His Feet Again —Cure is Easy, Simple, Natural and Permanent.

Gananoque, Ont., Oct. 19 (Special).—That Rheumatism can be cured surely, simply and permanently is the good news that Hugh Abernethy, a well-known resident of King Street, is spreading among his neighbors.

"I had suffered from Rheumatism and stiffness of the joints," Mr. Abernethy states. "My muscles would cramp. I could not sleep, and I had terrible headaches. I took many different medicines, but nothing did me any good till I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. Six boxes put me on my feet again."

Others who have taken Mr. Abnerthy's advice and used Dodd's Kidney Pills are also loud in their praises of the old reliable Canadian Kidney remedy. For Dodd's Kidney Pills cure Rheumatism and other blood diseases by curing the Kidneys. Sound Kidneys keep the blood free from impurities. And with no impurities, such as uric acid in the blood, you cannot have such painful and dangerous diseases as Pain in the Back, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuralgia, and Heart Disease.

Keep your Kidneys strong and well with Dodd's Kidney Pills and you can face the cold, wet days of fall without a fear of Rheumatism.

THERE IS NOTHING NEW

MODERN INVENTIONS ARE MERELY REDISCOVERIES.

Egyptians Probably Used the Telephone — Gunpowder Was Known to Hannibal.

A little more than one hundred years ago the celebrated French scientist Monge, who accompanied Bonaparte to Egypt, was considerably puzzled by the discovery in the Temple of Mehmet-Abn, in Upper Egypt, of coils of wiring which lay —and had probably been lying for ages—in a small stone chamber, and, tangled among them, several ivory and bone objects, which resembled our common drinking [illegible] arrival at the Pyramid [illegible] discovered in a vault of [illegible] the same dimensions as more coils of wiring matter, and similar ivory and bone horns. The telephone was then undiscovered, and, naturally enough, Monge did not understand the nature of his discovery, which has since, says M. Pacory, been shown to have been nothing else but a primitive 'phone.

The instrument is said to have been in use in the days of the Pharaohs. It was naturally a very simple contrivance—much resembling our toy telephones—and did not cover a distance greater than two or three miles. Tacitus tells us that when Antony went ashore after the battle of Actium he was accompanied only by a captain of his guard. Since all others had deserted him, it is not unlikely, says the Frenchman, that he telephoned to the fair daughter of the Pharoahs asking her to come and comfort him in his last agony.

GUNPOWDER AND OXOOS.

We are accustomed to consider that Roger Bacon, the thirteenth century monk, did a very important bit of work when he invented gunpowder, which in its first form was a dangerous explosive very like dynamite. Well, now, if you will just look up a reliable history of the great Hannibal, you will find that as he made his way over the Pyranees and the Alps, on the march up from southern Spain, before he entered Italy, he was enabled to expedite the passage over boulder-bound mountain fastnesses by the use of an explosive which was known as oxoos. This was not what we know as "Greek fire," which was used in the form of hand grenades by the soldiers of Mithridates in his long wars with the Romans, but was akin to our own nitro-glycerine, and was so effective in clearing the mountain passes that the subsequent marches of Napoleon across the Alps and of Wellington across the Pyranees were but child's play compared to what they must have been for the great Carthaginian.

IS WILD YARN.

There is in existence in the National Library in Paris a copy of an old journal called the "Courrier Veritable," dated 1632. Its editor may or may not have been descended from the great classic Ananias. But there can be on possible doubt whatever of the quality of his nose for news. Proof: he tells in his "valuable paper" of the arrival in port from a voyage to the South Seas of a certain ship's captain, by name Vasterloch. Capt. Vasterloch was pregnant with a wondrous tale. He solemnly declared to the star reporter of the "Courrier Veritable" that on a certain island in Polynesia, which he was then exploring in the interests of geographical science and personal plunder, he discovered a peculiar kind of sponge which was capable of retaining words spoken into it by the human voice and of emitting the same when squeezed. It was his custom, he further swore, when his exploring parties were in different parts of the island, to convey messages of instruction to them by means of the marvellous talking sponge.

M. Pacory is far from seeking to justify Munchausenism of any sort. He points out, however, with some cogency that Pascal once observed that man had invented few things of which germinal analogies (which really had afforded him the idea) did not already exist in nature, a remark which has also been credited to the late Lord Kelvin.

THE ROMAN REPORTER.

You know, of course, that the art of printing was familiar to the Chinese, whose great journal, the Pekin Gazette, was in existence several hundreds of years at least before the birth of Christ. The sheet was not first printed on silk with a clumsy, movable type, hardly, if at all, inferior to the type used by Franklin 120 years ago in Philadelphia. It is perhaps not so well known, however, that the reporter was as familiar a mortal in Rome as he has since become upon the face of the globe. For the Roman he was the parasite or the guidnunc, and was a frequent and not unwelcome guest at the table of men like Marcus Crassus, the great trust magnate of his day, or even at Cicero's philosophic banquets.

MOTHERS FEEL SAFE.

Mothers who have used Baby's Own Tablets for their little ones say they feel safe with the Tablets at hand, for they are a never failing cure for all the minor ills of babyhood and childhood. Mrs. Urias Cressman, New Hamburg, Ont., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for stomach trouble and constipation with marked success. I always feel that my little one is safe when I have a box of the Tablets in the house." Baby's Own Tablets are sold under the guarantee of a Government analyst to contain neither opiates nor other poisonous drugs. They always do good—they can't possibly do harm. For sale at druggists or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"That house I have taken from you," said the dissatisfied tenant, "is horribly draughty. When I am sitting in the middle of the room my hair blows all over my head. Can't you do something to the windows?" "Don't you think, sir," replied the house-agent, suavely, "it would be easier and cheaper for you to get your hair cut?"

It is Known Everywhere.—There is not a city, town or hamlet in Canada where Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is not known—wherever introduced it made a foothold for itself and maintained it. Some merchants may suggest some other remedy as equally beneficial. Such recommendations should be received with doubt. There is only one Eclectric Oil, and that is Dr. Thomas'. Take nothing else.

"Hallo, Fitzy, where did you get that black eye?" "Oh, it was only a lovers' quarrel." "Lovers' quarrel? Why, your girl didn't give you that, did she?" "No, it was her other lover."

Put out the fire in a hot, itching, unhealthy skin with Weaver's Cerate. Use it for eczema, nettle rash, tetter and salt rheum.

She—"I understand that drinking is one of your failings." He—"You have been misinformed. It is one of my most pronounced successes."

Repeat it.—" Shiloh's Cure will always cure my coughs and colds."

DOUBLE SUPPORT.

Sir Gavan Duffy, formerly speaker of the legislative assembly of Victoria, Australia, was once returned to his seat by a single vote majority. On visiting his constituents subsequently he was received with a special warmth by an old fellow countryman. "And so," said Sir Gavan Duffy to his friend, "you were one of my supporters?" "No, sir," was the reply. "I was two of them."

"To what," inquired the interviewer, "do you attribute your success in acquiring money?" "Partly indeed principally," replied the great financier, smoothing down the lapel of his coat and giving away another town-hall, "to the success of other men in letting go of it."

OWES CURE TO ZAM-BUK.

Prominent Manager's Telling Testimony.

Mr. D. R. Gourlay, advertising manager for the well-known piano firm of Gourlay, Winter & Leeming, Toronto and Winnipeg, is amongst the prominent men and women who testify to Zam-Buk's great curative power. He writes to the Company as follows:

"Gentlemen,—I have pleasure in stating that upon the recommendation of a relative I purchased a box of your remedy (Zam-Buk), and by a few applications entirely cured a very severe sprain of the back. While not given to indiscriminate use of, or belief in, patent medicines, I can conscientiously recommend Zam-Buk.

"Sincerely yours,
"(Signed) D. R. Gourlay."

That is just where Zam-Buk proves its superiority! It is treated by men and women who have tried it, as altogether different to ordinary preparations. Doctors, hospital nurses, trainers, matrons of convalescent homes—all give Zam-Buk a good word; and better still they use it. Zam-Buk is as good for muscular stiffness, sprains, rheumatism and scitica as it is for skin troubles. Hockey players and athletes in general find it invaluable. For eruptions, pustules, scalp sores, itch, eczema, ulcers, boils, abscesses, blood poison, cuts, burns, bruises, and abrasions, it is a speedy cure. WHAT NAVAL GUNNERY COSTS

Target practice in the British Navy is an expensive necessity. Every time a 12 inch gun is fired bang goes $150 of the taxpayers' money; a 9.2 inch gun fires a cordite cartridge which costs $70; and even the 6 inch gun, which is a modest weapon, uses a $13 charge. Shells run from $62.50 to $17.50 for the common varieties, though armor-piercing ones (not used in the ordinary competitions, of course) may cost as much as $130. Then there is the wear and tear of the guns to consider, and this may be reckoned as expensive, seeing that the "life" of each weapon is brief; and while a 6 inch gun costs $8,360, a 9.2 inch runs to $26,250, and a wire-bound 12 inch means an expenditure of quite $50,000.

He—"So your father thought I wanted to marry you for your money. What did you say?" She —"I persuaded him that you didn't and then he said if that was the case, you didn't have any sense!"

A Clear Healthy Skin—Eruptions of the skin and the blotches which blemish beauty are the result of impure blood caused by unhealthy action of the liver and kidneys. In correcting this unhealthy action and restoring the organs to their normal condition, Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will at the same time cleanse the blood, and the blotches and eruptions will disappear without leaving any trace.

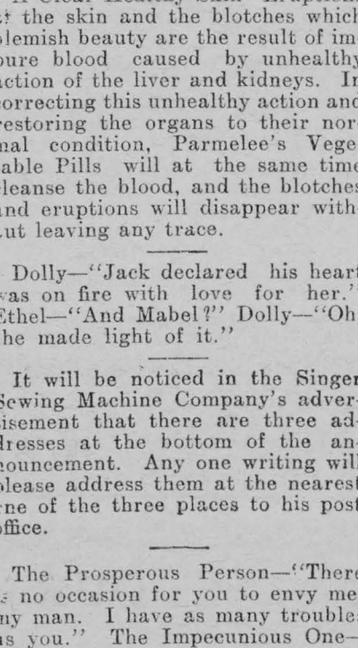

Dolly—"Jack declared his heart was on fire with love for her." Ethel—"And Mabel?" Dolly—"Oh, she made light of it."

It will be noticed in the Singer Sewing Machine Company's advertisement that there are three addresses at the bottom of the announcement. Any one writing will please address them at the nearest one of the three places to his post office.

The Prosperous Person—"There is no occasion for you to envy me, my man. I have as many troubles as you." The Impecunious One—"I dare say you have; but the difficulty with me is that I ain't got nothing else!"

Repeat it:—"Shiloh's Cure will always cure my coughs and colds."

"Before I consent to let you have my daughter," said the square-jawed captain of industry, "I want you to answer a question. What would you do if I were to give you half a million?" After the coroner had viewed the remains and decided that death was due to heart failure, caused by a sudden shock, the old man lit another cigar, and murmured. "That's worth trying again some time."

WHY WE NEED SNOW.

If Snow Did Not Fall, Parts of Earth Would Become Desert.

If all the condensed moisture of the atmosphere were to fall as rain and none of it was snow, hundreds of thousands of square miles of the earth's surface now yielding bountiful crops would be little better than a desert. The tremendous economic gain for the world at large which results from the difference between snow and rain is seldom realized by the inhabitants of fertile and well watered lowlands, says a writer in the Chicago Tribune.

It is the extensive regions where irrigation is a prime necessity in agriculture that the special uses of snow come chiefly into view. All through the winter the snow is falling upon the mountains and packing itself firmly in the ravines. Thus in nature's great icehouse a supply of moisture is stored up for the following summer.

All through the warm months the hardened snowbanks are melting gradually. In trickling streams they steadily feed rivers which as they flow through the valleys are utilized for irrigation. If this moisture fell as rain it would almost immediately wash down through the rivers, which would hardly be fed at all in the summer when the crops most needed water.

These facts are so well known as to be commonplace in the Salt Lake valley and in the subarid regions of the west generally.

Mrs. Gadsby (hugging dog)—"I don't know what we're going to do about poor darling Fido." Mr. Gadsby — "Humph! What ails him?" Mrs. Gadsby (in surprise) —"Why, haven't you noticed how irritated he becomes whenever the baby cries?"

Be There a Will Wisdom Points the Way—The sick man pines for relief, but dislikes sending for the doctor, which means bottles of drugs never consumed. He has not the resolution to load his stomach with compounds which smell villainously and taste worse. But if he have the will to deal himself with his ailment, wisdom will direct his attention to Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, which is a specific for indigestion and disorders of the digestive organs, have no equal.

"I am going to marry your daughter, sir," said the positive young man. "Well, you don't need to come to me for sympathy," replied the father, "I have troubles enough of my own."

Repeat it:—"Shiloh's Cure will always cure my coughs and colds."

"The doctors have given Johnson up." "Dear me, is he as ill as that?" "No, he's quite well. That's why they've given him up."

Holloway's Corn Cure is a specific for the removal of corns and warts. We have never heard of its failing to remove even the worst kind.

Regain Your Strength by taking "Ferrozim." It's the best tonic ever compounded. It nourishes and strengthens the whole system.

Pale, sickly children should use Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator. Worms are one of the principal causes of suffering in children and should be expelled from the system.

The Husband (during the quarrel) —"You're always making bargains. Was there ever a time when you didn't?" The Wife—"Yes, sir; on my wedding day."

Repeat it:—" Shiloh's Cure will always cure my coughs and colds."

PROFITABLE.

"What are you in for?" queried the new prison inspector of a convict.

"Counterfeiting," was the reply.

"Nearly all profit, eh?" said the P. I.

"Well," answered the victim. "It sure was a lucre-ative business while it lasted."

Singer Talks

8. Which is the Best Sewing Machine for You?

¶ All that can be said of the Singer is as nothing compared to the way the Singer speaks for itself. Singer results tell the story of Singer success.

¶ The best way to prove the superiority of the Singer is to try it—try it in your own home—test it by the most difficult work you know.

¶ But you may say "a cheap machine will do all this." Perhaps it will to-day—but how about a year from now?

¶ The Singer lasts a lifetime. The half a century's reputation behind the Singer proves its supremacy—why not let the millions of Singers in the homes all over the world prove which is the best machine for you?

¶ You can't get Singer results with anything but a Singer. Please remember this.

"Have you," asked the judge of a recently convicted man, "anything to offer the Court before sentence is passed?" "No, your honor" replied the prisoner; "my lawyer took my last cent."

In the causes of infant mortality cholera morbus figures frequently, and it may be said that complaints of the bowels are great destroyers of child life. If all mothers would avail themselves of so effective a remedy as Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial many a little one could be saved. This Cordial can be given with safety to the smallest child, as there is no injurious substance in it.

An Unjust Criticism.

At the nomination at Winchester Springs on Monday and during Mr. Andrew Broder's address he took some of the papers published in the county to task for some statements made, and more especially the Morrisburg Leader, owned by Mr. J. Wesley Allison, and who, as we all know, is a Conservative. The Leader is supposed to be a Conservative paper, but independent in its views.

In its last issue there appeared an article which Mr. Broder took exception to, and very unjustly so we think, as the article referred to was not in any way detrimental to him. The article was favorable to both candidates. The old saying is if you look for trouble you'll get it, but in this case there was no cause for trouble, only stating what the demands of Dundas County should be. This is one of the many times that papers are unjustly criticised, and we would ask any who think the same as Mr. Broder has expressed himself, to secure a copy of last week's Leader and read the article carefully. We might also say that we think the best thing Mr. Broder can do is to read the article again and then apologize to Mr Allison for the unjust attack made on the Leader newspaper at the nomination held at Winchester Springs on Mondey last.

Dundas Nominations.

Nominations for candidates for Dominion Parliament, which took place last Monday, was held at Winchester Springs. The weather was fine and a large crowd of people, both Conservatives and Reformers, were there and listened very attentively to the addresses delivered by the nominees. Mr. G. Y. Smyth was selected as chairman of the meeting and which office he capably filled. Only two parties were nominated, being Mr. Andrew Broder, Conservative, and Mr. W. B Lawson, Reformer. By mutual con sent it was arranged that Mr. Broder would speak first and was allowed fifty minutes, and Mr. Lawson foll wed with an allowance of time of one hour, when Mr. Broder was given fifteen minutes to reply. Mr. Smyth, upon rising, stated what arrangements had been made and at once called upon Mr. Brdoer. The RECORD deems it unnecessary to give a full report of the meeting, for it was, just what you would expect, a denunciation of the Laurier Government by Mr. Broder, stating what scandalous deeds they had been guilty of during their administration; also quoting figures of proof of same.

Mr. Lawson followed, and very briefly offset many of the charges made by his opponent, and dwelt more lengthily on the demands of Dundas county from the Government. He stated that the county had never received very much from that source, and showed where the adjoining counties had, and both these were supported by members of the Opposition. Andrew Broder, he said, had never done anything for the county, and now does not say what he intends to do. Mr. Lawson stated that he had written to the department asking for rural mail delivery and from the platform read a reply of assurance of such to be established in this county. Also that an engineer was being sent to Morrisburg on Tuesday to see what improvements were necessary to the locks and dockage along the water front. He rubbed it into his opponent pretty well, but Mr. Broder took it all good naturedly, as he always does, only waiting for a chance. At the close of both speeches both condidates were loudly cheered.

Now came the time for Mr. Broder's reply of fifteen minutes and he came well primed and threw a few hot shots at Mr. Lawson, which were well received by his opponent, when he retired and the meeting brought to a close by giving three cheers for the King.

To the Electors
—OF THE—
COUNTY OF DUNDAS

Gentlemen:—

Having acceded to the request of a delegated convention of Electors to become a candidate at the approaching election, and the time for placing my views before you being too short to permit of the holding of meetings throughout the county and personally discussing with you the issues you will be called upon to decide, I take the opportunity which the press affords of soliciting your suffrages.

It is well known to you all that the progess of Canada during the last twelve years has been greater than at any other period in its history. Our prosperity has been on so large a scale that a depression which is widespread and serious in other countries occasions very little hardship here.

I firmly believe that the policy of the Government, which has contribbted so much to the country's advancement, should be continued.

The increased trade and wealth of Canada has resulted in an increased revenue, availabe for public improvements. The public needs of the County of Dundas should, in my opinion be vigorously pressed upon the attention of the Government, in order that the county may not be overlooked or passed by in favor of other parts of the Dominion, less entitled.

If honored by being elected your representative I shall consider it my first duty to urge upon the Government the just claims of Dundas County. I can see no reason, for example, why this compact and thickly settled electoral district should not be one of the first to enjoy the Rural Free Mail Delivery, now being established in connection with the post office department.

It is impossible in the short compass of an election address, to point out many benefits that this county might and should receive were its claims forcibly presented. I believe a careful examination of our position will convince you that our progress has not been commensurate with the rest of the country.

In the matter of such public improvements as are under the control of the Dominion, we are, and have been for a long time, at a standstill.

I am convinced that your representative should place the interests of the county he represents before that of his particular party, and I promise, if elected, to be guided by this principle.

I am confident that the electors generally prefer progress to stagnation—patriotism to partyism—and I therefore appeal to you, with confidence, for your support.

I have the honor to be, gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
W. B. LAWSON.

A Local Option Loss.

Winnipeg, October 19.—Before Mr. Justice Mather today the local option interests of Manitoba received a serious set-back. The issue was raised several days ago as to the legal date on which the application under the new local option law could be filed with the municipalities. It was contended by the liquor interests that the law required applications to be handed in before October 1, while the municipal councils were in session. The local option interests thought differently. A madamus was issued as a test to force J. S. C. Menlove, secretary-treasurer of the municipal council of Wallace, to receive the application. Mr. Justice Mather heard the arguments. The court decided that the petitions which had not been filed while the councils were in session before October 1 could not be accepted. This throws out some 40 cases, only about 12 being filed in time to come within the scope of this decision.

A Smith's Falls Case.

An action for $60,000 came up in the weekly court Saturday before Judge Anglin. It was the Union Bank of Smith's Falls against Mr. H. A. Crate of that place. Mr. Crate had been doing a very extensive business in real estate, owning about thirty houses in Smith's Falls. He had taken large loans from the bank leaving the accountancy pretty much to the bank manager. Then the manager disappeared and the bank claimed blanket mortgages on his property to about $50,000, and brought first mortgages to make the total indebtedness about $60,000. The defence is that the indebtedness is not that much and the missing bank manager defaulted in his account. An order was made to have the case tried before the local master at Brockville and in the mean time the possession of Mr. Crate's property passes into the hands of the receiver who is the present manager of the Union bank at Smith's Falls.

Mr. James Hutcheson, K. C., is acting for the bank, and Mr. George Henderson, K. C., for Mr. Crate.

A Word to the Wise.

Editor of the Record,—

Sir James Whitney has often publicly praised that body of independent electors, who throw aside party feelings and vote as conscience and judgment dictates. Now is it not high time in this county for this class to show themselves. Mr. Broder claims the chief duty of a representative is to his country. Very true—but what has he done for the country during his 12 years' stewardship? If it was his duty merely to oppose the Government all through, he did his duty well—except on one important occasion when he should have opposed them, and did not—the salary grab.

What has he done for the county? He himself says "that is a clean sheet,"—because a blank one. What has he done for any individual in the county—except himself?

If the managers of the great Conservative party in this county can only offer us a candidate of this stamp after our twelve years of forbearance, is it not the duty of independents to put the interests of the county before party and vote for some one who can and will do something for both country and county.

Take therefore the talent from him, and give it to him which hath the ten talents.

INDEPENDENT.

Your directors have much pleasure in presenting this, the fifty-third report and statement of affairs of the Bank, as on 30th September, 1908.

The profits made during the year have been good, owing to a lively demand for money at fair rates, and the small amount of bad debts met with.

What you need is Ferrozone.

It regulates the gastric juices, puts new life into the stomach, braces digestive powers, gives the aid that's so badly required.

Ferrozone is the best treatment because it goes to the root of the trouble, remedies the conditions that cause dyspepsia and thereby cures permanently.

If you want proof, read the experience of Mr. E. P. Davison, a well known resident of Portland, who writes: "Ferrozone is beyond, doubt a most powerful cure for Indigestion and weak stomach. Food so badly disagreed with me that I was almost afraid to eat. Pastry and starchy foods fermented, caused sour risings and gave me headaches, bad taste offensive breath. I grew weak, my weight ran down fifteen pounds and my looks fully indicated all that was wrong Ferrozone put me on my feet again. It braced me up, renewed my indigestion and made me a well man."

Doctor and patients alike speak of the merit of Ferrozone: it is different because it cures so you stay cured. Try it; sold everywhere in 50c. boxes.

A SHADOWED PATH;

Or, The Curse Of The Family

Up to the last she never kept her bed; when she grew too weak to walk, she was carried into the drawing-room, and placed in an easy-chair, with all her friends about her.

"I should have liked," she said, "a sight of the country again; and if it might have been, to have died beside the sea—but after all, it makes very little difference—only promise to bury me at Llandyl; never let me be laid in Wavour vault—I could not rest there. I am sure I should rise up in my shroud and walk away from it."

"I promise!" answered Mr. Gartmore.

"And do not forget to tell the friends of those unhappy wretches who are confined at Crafton, my experiences there. Say it would be better to kill them at once. I wrote anonymously to those I could get the names of, but your representation will carry more weight with it."

"I shall rout out the big spider that rules there, I swear," said he, savagely.

These, in fact, seemed to be Judith's only two desires; but, occasionally, she harped upon them with a pertinacity which would almost have conveyed the idea that her malady was affecting her mind.

Generally, however, she was calm and collected, talking as much as her strength permitted her about the plans and prospects of her relations, on subjects of general interest—but scarcely ever of herself.

She was very fond of Letitia Darwin, who came frequently to the house, and once told the girl to be sure to send Evan—who was absent from town on business—to her the moment he returned to London.

"I want to see him particularly," she said, and Letitia remembered her message.

One day, when she was weaker than ordinary, and left by a rare chance alone for a few minutes, Evan came in. He looked pale and careworn, and there was a look of anxiety in his face, which deepened into an expression of absolute agony as he beheld the ravages a few weeks had wrought on her.

She held out her hand to him, which he took and retained in his own. Judith felt that he was trembling like a frightened child, and the sight of his emotion caused her voice to quiver as she spoke.

"I wanted to bid you good-bye. I was afraid you would not come back in time to see me before I went."

"Oh! you must not die—you shall not die—I cannot spare you. I have loved you as I never loved anything on earth before. I cannot live after you;" and he fell down on his knees beside her, and hid his face in her dress, and wept like a child.

For a moment she bent over him, toying with his hair, while the tears came into her eyes and checked her utterance.

"And so, poor boy," she said at last, "you have fancied yourself in love with me. Look up, Evan, and listen. I told Letitia I wanted to see you before I died, and it was to say this: you must crush out the feeling you have just expressed; you must think of me as a cousin or a sister lost, but never as of one who might have been your wife. Raise your head, and hear what I have to say. Were health restored to me to-morrow, I could never marry you. I am not what I may have seemed to you, a dying girl reluctant to leave this world, but a weary wife thankful at the prospect of release. You have cast the best gift of your soul before a woman without a heart, who could never be more to you than a wretched, unhallowed memory."

"Long ago," she continued, after a pause, "I loved a man whose murderess I virtually was. I have never cared for any one else. I was his wife before Heaven and my conscience, and yet—don't turn from me—I married a man whom I hated—who had blighted my whole existence—who is now living. I am not Miss Leake, Evan, but your cousin, Judith Mazingford."

With a cry he sprang from the ground, and looked despairingly in her face.

He did not answer. He was back again in his old attitude, weeping beside her; and she let him vent his sorrow thus, whilst she tried to soothe and comfort him, as a mother might have done.

So they remained for some time, until at length a noise and bustle attracted Judith's attention. There was a sound of remonstrance and expostulation; then she heard Mr. Gartmore's voice raised as if in anger; finally, a loud and imperious,—"I tell you I know she is in the house, and by —— I won't be kept back by any one," caused Judith to start up and cry to Evan:—

"Don't let him see me. Don't, oh, don't let him come here! Go and prevent him."

He rushed across the room to do her bidding, as a sound of scuffling commenced downstairs. He had not reached the door, however, when Judith, stretching out her arms, shrieked out the words, "I am dying," and tottered back into her seat, her neck and dress dyed crimson with the blood that poured in torrents from her mouth.

"Help, help, Charles! help!" shrieked Evan, and in another moment the room was full. Drs. Threffman and Duvard were the first who entered; then Mr. Mazingford, accompanied by two policemen, rushed into the apartment, followed by Mr. Gartmore, red with passion who made a spring at the intruder and tried to drag him out again.

"Hush, gentlemen, hush," said Dr. Threffman, solemnly raising his hand; "she is dead."

"I don't believe it," said her husband, furiously; but it was true for all that.

The poor frail bark, which had suffered so terribly and battled so gallantly, had found a peaceful harbor of refuge at length.

Just in time she had reached it, and with an expression of impotent rage her enemy gazed upon the prize which had escaped him—when near enough to touch it, when absolutely within his grasp—a mightier than man had interfered to rescue her from him.

For she was indeed dead—a waif on life's ocean no longer; out into the broad, fathomless, trackless, mysterious ocean of eternity she had floated:—

"From life, across the sea of death—home."

"Bear witness," said Mr. Gartmore, after a long silence, addressing those present, "that on the 25th of this month, Judith, wife of Lewis Mazingford, expired."

On hearing which appeal, Dr. Threffman having looked at his watch, took out a card, and silently made a memorandum of the day and hour.

CONCLUSION.

It was not without good reason Mr. Gartmore called such immediate attention to the hour and day of Judith's death, for within a fortnight from that period, legal enquiries began to be made concerning the date of her decease.

"Why do they want to know? Why do they come teazing here at such a time?" asked Alice, with tearful eyes.

"Because if Judith had died a week later, my dear, Evan would not have been heir to Llandyl Hall, as he is unquestionably at present," answered Mr. Gartmore. "So you see by his brutality that wretch has done himself out of a snug fifteen thousand a year. Serve him right, too. He talks of legal proceedings. I only wish he would fulfil his threat, and I would drag him through every court in England I have not done with Mr. Lewis Mazingford yet, however," added Mr. Gartmore, with a tremor in his voice. "I have got a few accounts still to settle with the fellow who blasted the life of as noble a woman as ever went to her grave broken-hearted. A scoundrel who would not even let her be buried in the spot she had chosen, till I gave him a cheque for the permission. Selling his wife's corpse, in fact—oh, Judith, if I could hang him I would!" And the old man, whose heart had twined around the dead, and clung to her ever in her grave—who could never think of her wrongs and her sorrows without a burst of indignation, lifted up his hands, as if he were addressing some invisible being, and broke out into one of those violent fits of rage and grief in which he had indulged himself ever since he came fully to understand how dear Judith was to him, and that by no possibility could her life be prolonged.

He said truly when he stated he had not yet done with Mr. Mazingford; neither had Mr. Mazingford's creditors. For a long time they had been kept quiet with promises, and for a shorter period they had waited patiently until the decease of Stephen—who was known to be incapable of making a will—should put the ex-member in possession of the Llandyl coal mines; but now that there was no chance of a solitary sixpence of the income ever reaching Mr. Mazingford, now that a perfect storm of public indignation, raised by Mr. Gartmore, abetted by Evan Crepton and Dr. Duvard, burst upon his head; now that the whole dreary story of domestic persecution and frightful tyranny was given to the world—every enemy he had on the earth fell upon him.

As to Crafton, the owner of it was forced to shut up his establishment, and before five years passed away Mr. Gartmore read, much to his satisfaction, that the woman who, after squeezing every shilling she could out of Judith, had sold her secret to her husband, was sentenced to transportation for robbing an old lady whom she was nursing.

And for the remainder of his career, Wavour Hall passed into the hands of Mr. Mazingford's creditors, who sold the antique furniture by public auction, and disposed of his stud and got rid of the carriages, and let the house, and insured his life; and the last place where any of his former acquaintances caught sight of Judith's husband, was at a gaming-table at Baden, where it is generally believed he cheated somebody once too often for his own personal safety.

Be this as it may, however, one thing is certain, that he never publicly appeared in England again, and that the select circle in which he once "lived, and moved, and had his being," from the hour of his wife's death knew him no more!

But as one wave swallows up another, so a very piquant little event which occurred about a year after Judith's death, obliterated the memory of that branch of the Ridsdales from the polite recollection of fashionable society. People laughed till they were tired over the story of how Miss Lestock, making up friends with her dear uncle and aunt, "requested to know who those distinguished-looking people were she had seen them speaking to, at the other end of the room?"

"May I have the pleasure of presenting them to you, Adelaide?" said Mr. Gartmore; and the lady was so delighted at the proposition, that accordingly, in the midst of a large circle of admiring friends, her uncle begged to introduce Mr. Evan Crepton and Mrs. Duvard to their mother, and Miss Lestock to her children.

Amongst the Welsh mountains, amidst the hills and the waterfalls, the valleys and the streams of that wild and beautiful land, Mr. Gartmore bought a property, from which he could easily ride over to Llandyl Hall, and see, as years rolled by, how Evan and his wife and children prospered. For young voices echoed through the old pine plantations, amongst the woods that had caught the sound of Judith's heart-rending recall, laughter, clear and joyous, rang in the summer days—along the path she had pursued, little feet went pattering. The house she had loved was beautified; and in the still, twilight evenings, a happy group might often have been seen, standing on the lawn in front of the once dilapidated mansion—whilst far, far below, where Llandyl spire pointed silently to Heaven — under the shadow of the church porch, beneath the spreading branches of an ancient elm, close to the quiet homes of her father and Marcus Lansing, Judith Mazingford slept tranquilly at last—

"With her limbs at rest,
In the green earth's breast,
And her soul at home with God!"

THE END.

RATTLESNAKE WEED TEA.

Victim of Snake Bite Cured by Drinking Golondrina.

The rattlesnake has a part all his own in the desert practice of healing. Rattlesnake oil cures rheumatism and the stiffened joints a man gets working down in a wet mine; the oil rubbed in the ears cures deafness, and a rattlesnake skin, tanned soft and supple as chamois and worn around the waist, will keep a man well on the hardest trip—but the dust from the rattles will cause blindness which nothing will cure.

There is a plant which the rattlesnake fears—he will not crawl across it, and if it is dropped on him he uncoils and crawls away. Perhaps this is only a bit of myth, but every desert man knows the golondrina—the creeping plant with tiny, round, gray green leaves and minute white blossoms with a brown centre.

"Rattlesnake weed" grows in the little open spaces from the pines to the white sand hills that shift back and forth in each year's wind. The leaves pounded into a wet mass are bound on a snake bite, and the victim, man or animal, is given huge draughts of the bitter, dark tea, into which the whole plant is steeped. The golondrina tea is used as a liniment for rheumatism too, and the Mexican women know that it dyes cotton cloth an enduring purplish black.

If the golondrina is too far to find there is another desert cure for any snake bite—a cure well enough attested and one with which many an Indian fought bullet wound and sabre cut and mastered incipient blood poisoning. The leaves of any flat leaved opuntia, but especially the common prickly pear, are thrown on a campfire till the thorns are singed off and the skin puffs up in watery blisters, then split open and bound hot on the wound. So many a pack mule has been restored to place in the train and many a limb that a physician would have amputated has been saved to do its owner good service on desert trails.

THE HOME-COMING OF CECIL CLIVE

One did not need to be a clever student of physiognomy to recognize that the leading characteristic in Mr. John Barth was concentrated selfishness. It peeped from his small, pig-like eyes, from his heavy mouth, from his wrinkled forehead. It proclaimed itself in every note of his deep, self-satisfied voice. It lurked in every cut of his clothes, the bulge of his waistcoat, the sweep of his watch-chain. Moreover, it was reflected in the faces of the three people who sat at the breakfast table, his two sons, Arthur and George, and his daughter Mabel. Whilst those three endured, or descendants, there was small possibility of the Barth tradition for egotism falling into oblivion.

It was Mr. Barth's practice at breakfast time to read his paper in pompous silence, though occasionally he unbent sufficiently to impart a paragraph to his family. Clearing his throat with much dignity he proceeded to do so on this occasion.

"The luck of some men is amazing," he observed. "Listen to this paragraph."

The report referred to a certain Mr. Constantine McIlwraith, who had succeeded in amassing a fortune of £500,000 in the goldfields of the Klondike. The small procine eyes of Mr. Barth glowed hot with envy as he read the words, and he put down the paper almost angrily.

"It is a painful thing," he observed, 'that men like myself, who have worked hard and steadily, should amass a mere competence, whilst these adventurers should wallow in millions.'

"The governor's got the hump this morning," whispered Arthur to his brother. "No chance of my getting that fiver I expected."

"It's like your confounded sauce to expect it," growled George; "you ought to be ashamed of yourself."

"Shut up!" retorted Arthur, cracking an egg viciously.

Miss Mabel now put in her word. "He will have all the women after him, anyhow," she said. "I wish there was a chance for me."

"I wish so too," observed her father. "It is high time that you got married and did something for me in return for the money I've wasted on your education."

"Selfish old thing," thought Mabel, and then added to her inner self: "If ever I do marry a rich man I'll take good care that dad doesn't have a finger in the pie."

At that moment John, the aged servant, entered the room with a look of intense agitation on his face.

"I beg pardon, sir," he said, addressing his master, "but could I speak to you for a minute?"

"What the mischief are you making a mystery about?" roared old Barth. "What's happened?"

The servant hesitated. "It's about Mr. Cecil," he faltered.

Mr. Barth turned pale. Cecil was his nephew and the family prodigal; he had been brought up by Mr. Barth on a small annuity left to the boy by his father, and at the age of twenty-one had been promptly packed off to Australia, to sink or swim as he chose, or as the Fates decided. Not a word from him had reached the Barth household in the interval, and Mr. Barth had long since congratulated himself on having got rid of the spendthrift so easily. When, therefore, his name was mentioned by the butler, it is not surprising that he turned pale with amazement and fear.

"Well," he snapped, "what of him?"

"If you please, sir, he's come back. And he wants to know if you can lend him a suit of clothes to put on, before he comes in here."

A suit of clothes! Those simple words told their own story. So, like the prodigal of the Scriptures, Cecil had come home, a beggar, ragged and penniless. It was disgraceful. It was unbearable. It was altogether scandalous.

"How dare he come to the house in such a state!" cried Mabel, who once, it was believed, had entertained a tender feeling for Cecil.

"Kick him out, governor," advised George.

"Or let me," pleaded Arthur.

"Silence!" roared old Barth. "When I want your advice I will ask for it, but until then be kind enough to keep it to yourselves. Admit Mr. Cecil, John, but tell him that at present I cannot deprive my wardrobe to suit his convenience."

"Very good, sir," replied the servant, as he withdrew from the room.

A monment later he returned, followed by a tall, thin young fellow with a bronzed, frank face. Looking on him, one perceived that his desire for a change of clothing was highly natural. His garb, which had once been a lounge suit, seemed to have done a considerable deal of lounging since the day when it left the hands of the tailor, and altogether he was an exceedingly good imitation of a particularly shabby scarecrow.

"Halloa, uncle! Halloa, all of you!" he burst out when John had gone. "Glad to see you, though I suppose none of you will return the compliment. The only person who seemed glad to behold my handsome countenance was little Miss Holmes, the nursery governess, who almost cried with joy. But, then, she's unsophisticated, and doesn't count."

"You may sit down, Cecil," observed old Barth, in a dignified voice, "and I will hear what you have to say. I perceive, though, without any explanation, that you have come back to England in a highly deplorable state!"

"H'm! It looks like it, doesn't it?" said Cecil, as he plumped himself into a chair and smiled at everybody. "And, really, I haven't much to say. My clothes will speak for themselves and save me the trouble."

"You are penniless, of course?" observed Mr. Barth. "And, of course, it is all your own fault."

"Well, I don't know; it was my confounded luck, I suppose."

"There is no such thing as luck, sir," declared Mr. Barth, severely, forgetting that ten minutes ago he had made a very different statement; "let me remind you that the rolling stone never gathers any moss."

Cecil laughed.

"My dear uncle," he said, "as the quoting of popular sayings seems to appeal to you, let me remind you of one which suggests that you should never kick a man when he is down."

Mr Barth snorted with indignation.

"How dare you, sir," he exclaimed, tempestuously, "how dare you address me in this manner? Is it not enough that you come back here like a beggar, without adding insolence and impertinence to your other disgraceful doings?"

The outcast smiled bitterly.

"It is as I expected," he said; "if I had returned home laden with treasure my sins would have been forgotten, and I should have had the fatted calf killed in my honor. As it is, I suppose that I cannot look for any help from you, uncle, or from my cousins. I must get on as best I can."

The stony faces of the four people regarded him with cold eyes as he spoke, and he nodded.

"Yes, exactly," he murmured; "your faces speak for themselves. There's not one of you will hold out a friendly hand to me, not one."

A sob sounded of a sudden at the open door, and an instant later it was flung wide open and a slender, pretty girl rushed into the room.

"It's a shame—a terrible shame," she faltered; and I can't stand it. Mr. Cecil, you were awfully good to me before you went away, and I—I haven't forgotten. Let me be your friend, now that the others have turned against you."

Amazement, horrible and overwhelming, was engraved on the face of Mr. John Barth and on the faces of his offspring. For a moment the former could scarce find speech, but when the words came they were Jove-like in their solemn portentousness.

"Miss Holmes," said the magisterial voice, "this is most unusual—most extraordinary—I might almost say unladylike. Obliviously, you have been eavesdropping."

"Yes, I have," she cried. "And I'm not ashamed of it. Was it my fault if you raised your voice that I could overhear every word in the garden? And when I heard those cruel words I couldn't control myself any longer. I felt I must come here, and—and——"

Cecil turned towards her, and in his eyes there shone a light which not one of them had ever seen before. He went towards the girl and took her hand, raising it to his lips.

"Thank you," he said, gently. "I am glad that I have at least one friend left in this house. I—I shall never forget."

(To be Continued.)

KISSING MAY BE DOOMED.

Crusade Against Osculation May Result in its Dying Out.

Is kissing doomed?

It begins to look as if this form of salutation and farewell and mode of demonstrating affection would have to go the way of many other customs. A great French doctor very strongly condemns osculation as dangerous and unhealthy. In Japan it is unknown, and apparently, they get on perfectly well without it.

Yet Western civilization appears to regard it as indispensable, and, really, when one comes to think of it, there are still about as many millions who have survived osculation, as are necessary on the face of the earth. If we heard week after week of cases of sudden death and of infectious disease transmitted from the practice of kissing one's friends and relations it would be time, indeed, to raise an outcry against it; but whoever does hear of such cases? The extreme hygienists and doctors might at least remember that people do not go about promiscuously kissing all and sundry, and that sensible ones do not kiss babies and sick people—when they can get out of it.

Burglar—"Did you ever study geometry, Bill?" Bill — "Yes." Burglar—"Good! I wish you'd tell me how to square a straight policeman."

About the Farm

HEALING OF WOUNDS.

Animals on the farm are continually being injured by accidents that happen in a thousand different ways. Barb wire cuts are most frequent, and a word or two of advice as to the proper treatment in the hands of farmers will not be amiss. The first thing, to gain a correct understanding of a sane and effective method of treating wounds, is to remember that nature does the healing and that remedies applied are simply for the purpose of assisting nature. The right mental attitude in this respect will tend to eliminate a thousand and one nostrums which are tried in rapid succession in the belief that there is somewhere, if it could be found, a specific remedy with a magical influence to bring about the desired recovery in a marvellous way. Mankind has been diligently seeking such remedies for thousands of years and is still keeping up the search. It is time that such a view of the situation, which is based purely upon superstition, should be eliminated and that we should get down to principles based upon scientific research, and instead of groping blindly in the dark seeking the "where" let us always be ready to inquire "why."

The ordinary wound will heal of itself if not interfered with. This interference may be from germ infection, parasites, or too much meddling with various applications on the part of man. Now, let us suppose a case. A horse has a badly lacerated leg from contact with a barb wire. The first thing to do of course, would be to stop the bleeding. This can be accomplished by a tight bandage of clean white muslin, tied directly over the wound, or above it. Often the bleeding artery will protrude, and a thread can be run under it with a needle and the artery tied. Do not use flour, dirt or cobwebs, they are unnecessary and may produce a dangerous infection.

Having stopped the bleeding, remove the clots of blood and cut off the ragged edges of muscles with shears. A pan of antiseption solution should be provided. One of the cheapest antiseptics on the farm, good for man or beast, is creolin. Add a teaspoonful of this to a pint of water that has been boiled. Place the knife, shears, etc., in this solution, and wash the hands before beginning. Then having cleaned [illegible] wash it thoroughly with the antiseptic solution. See that there is good drainage from the wound at the bottom. Do not allow it to start healing with a pocket that will hold pus. As it is practically impossible to keep a wound on a horse antiseptic, it is not advisable for a farmer to tie up the wound; leave it exposed to the air and apply the antiseptic wash several times a day. Three good antiseptics are, corrosive sublimate, which can be purchased at the drug store in tablets ready for use, formalin and boracic acid solution. After about a week, it is well to change to dry dressing. Clean air-slaked lime, powdered over the wound twice daily, is very saitsfactory. The so-called "proud flesh" is only unhealthy granulation. It is seldom advisable for the farmer to interfere with this condition by using caustics; the results are usually disastrous; better [illegible] call [illegible]

Laurey's New Block.

[illegible] little turpentine and [illegible] will help bring them to the surface where they may be picked out. I do not mention sewing up the wound for the reason that in case of the ragged barb wire cut it is very seldom worth while to do so.

A wound, to heal properly, must be gotten perfectly clean and free from germs from the start and then kept clean. Remember that it is largely a matter of keeping dangerous germs out and giving nature a chance.—Vet.

HEART DISEASE.

Most so-called cases of heart disease are nothing but cases of indigestion or nervous disturbance. Whenever the heart is really diseased there are certain common-sense precautions whose observance will lessen risk to life. When one is lying down it is wrong to rise suddenly to the erect position. Even to sit up quickly is dangerous. The reason is that by rising one allows the blood in the veins of the head and neck to run with increased force toward the heart, and one also renders it harder for the heart to send out its blood, for now a large quantity has to be sent upward. Hence the heart is doubly tried.

"Do you remember anything of Mr. B.?" "Oh, yes, I know him very well," was the reply. "Since he's retired from business an honester man doesn't breathe."

SPIES IN GREAT HOTELS

CLEVER DETECTIVES WATCH FOR CROOKS.

Many Smart Scoundrels Who Make Big Hotels Happy Hunting Grounds.

I dare say it would shock many a guest at our great hotels to be told that he is in a network of spies as complete and cunning as any devised by the Russian secret police; and that even the affable gentleman who passes him the salt or the waiter who brings him his soup may be a detective in disguise.

Not, continued the London hotel-manager who made this startling statement to the writer, that the knowledge need take the edge off his appetite or cause him a moment's uneasiness, if he has a clear conscience and has no designs on the spoons. The spies will soon sum him up, and won't trouble him at all; but there are probably some among his fellow-guests on whom they have a very watchful eye.

The fact is, and it may as well be known, that almost every large hotel in London (and elsewhere) has its staff of spies, whose presence is indispensable in the interests of the hotel and its guests. The chief of the staff is a very wide-awake and experienced detective who has an intimate knowledge of the "crooks" who make big hotels their happy hunting - ground — cardsharpers, thieves, and swindling gentry of all kinds, who are about the cleverest scoundrels in the world.

ARE "CALLED AWAY."

These men, as I dare say you know, are almost invariably well-dressed, gentlemanly fellows, with all the appearance of men of wealth and with considerable skill in ingratiating themselves with their fellow-guests—and potential victims. They have to be very clever, however, to blind the hotel-detective, who, if he doesn't know them at sight, knows the type well enough and keeps a very keen eye on their movements.

Usually a tap on the shoulder and a word or two whispered in the ear are enough for these rascals. They may have just announced in the billiard-room that they intend to stay at least a month, somehow they are unexpectedly "called away," and within an hour the hotel knows them no more. These are, of course, the crooks who are immediately spotted by the detective, and who have short shrift; on those whom he suspects but is not sure of he keeps the eye of a lynx, and at the [illegible] sign off they go too quite quietly, with no fuss, but as forcefully as if they had been shot out.

And it is not only the professional crooks, who hail from the Continent and America, that the detective is on the watch for. He is responsible for the morals of everyone in the hotel, from the guest who wanders innocently into a room not his own, and wishes to take away a souvenir of his absurd blunder, to the waiters, chambermaids, and cellarmen, who have mixed ideas as to the rights of property. They are all on his list, and they must be very cute to hoodwink him.

Oh, no, he doesn't work alone; he works through a score or more pairs of eyes as well as his own. He has a staff of assistants among the employes of the hotel, of every class from waiters to porters; and so secret is the system that these auxiliary detectives are unknown as such to their fellows and even to one another.

EYES EVERYWHERE.

You can imagine the difficulty of being dishonest under such conditions of secrecy and mystery; for there are eyes literally everywhere, and some of them are almost sure to be those of a spy, whose duty it is to report the most trifling deviation from honesty.

In some hotels the system is carried to such an extent that the most harmless-looking guests, and even their visitors, are shadowed in their goings and comings until their perfect respectability is placed beyond doubt; the corridors are patrolled by stealthy feet at night to ensure that there is no night-walking with felonious intent; and I have even heard that at one hotel there is a detective hall-porter, with a skill in portrait-sketching, who keeps a record of the features of every new guest for future possible reference.

JAPANESE CADETS.

Their Military School Exercises Include Hand to Hand Conflicts.

"In the Japanese military school," writes Gen. Kuropatkin in McClure's, "where I saw a Spartan system of education, the exercises of the cadets with pikes, rifles and broadswords were not approached by anything of the kind that I had witnessed in Europe—it was fighting of the fiercest character.

"At the end of the struggle there was a hand to hand combat, which lasted until the visitors stood triumphant over the bodies of the vanquished and tore off their masks.

"In these exercises, which were very severe, the cadets struck one another fiercely and with wild cries; but the moment a prearranged signal was given, or the fight came to an end, the combatants drew themselves up in a line and their faces assumed an expression of wooden composure.

"In all the public schools prominence was given to military exercises, and the scholars took part in them with enthusiasm. Even in their walks they practised running, flanking and sudden, unexpected attacks.

"The history of Japan was everywhere made a means of strengthening the pupils' patriotism and their belief in Japan's invincibility. Particular stress was laid upon the country's successful wars, the heroes of them extolled, and the children were taught that none of Japan's military enterprises had failed."

NATURE'S LITTLE SHIP.

While man makes the largest ocean vessels, Nature makes the smallest. This is a species of jelly-fish, found only in tropical seas, which has a sail. The part of the fish under the water looks like a mass of tangled threads, while the sail is a tough membrane, shaped like a shell, and measuring quite five inches, and sometimes more, across. The fish can raise, or lower this sail at will. Wise sailors let this curiosity alone, for each of the threads composing its body has the power of stinging, the results of which are very painful and often dangerous. This power defends it from porpoises, albatrosses, and other natural enemies. It has no other means of locomotion than its sail, and, when seen skimming bravely along the surface of the water, it looks more like a child's toy-boat than a living creature out in search of food.

Growth of a Crab

THERE was once a boy who saw a crab. It was a big crab, but not a very big crab. The boy however, had never seen any but very little crabs, so he was much frightened. And he ran away to his father, crying:

"Oh, father, I saw a crab on the beach that's as big as a toad!"

Of course, the father, who was a sailor, wished to see the crab. So he made his way toward the ocean. While going down the street he saw the village policeman, to whom he said:

"There's a giant crab down on the beach that's as big as a dog!"

And the policeman, hastening after, shouted to the butcher, who was toiling within his shop:

"Come along and have a look at the giant crab that's as big as a deer."

Immediately the butcher hurried from the shop, without pausing to remove his apron. As he darted across the street after the others he called to a hunter passing by:

"Don't miss seeing a giant crab that's down on the beach. It's as big as an ox"

The hunter, very much excited, joined the butcher, and they hurried forward to overtake the others.

When the party came in sight of the beach the policeman pulled out his revolver, the sailor brandished a huge knife, the butcher swung a great meat cleaver in his hand, while the hunter cocked his rifle. No doubt this savage crab was dangerous, and it were best to be well prepared to meet danger.

Then, when the boy pointed out the innocent crab, which had been the cause of all this disturbance, the members of the group nearly swooned with chagrin. Truly, they were shocked. The hunter blamed the butcher, and the butcher blamed the policeman and the policeman blamed the sailor, and the sailor spanked the boy, insisting that he alone was to blame. As a matter of fact, each was to blame—except the hunter, and he probably would have done as did the others had he met any one whom he might have told of the giant crab.

You see, it is much better to stick to the plain truth, even though a few ornaments might make the tale ever so much more fascinating.

RINGS ARE PERENNIAL.

Rings, like the famous brook, "go on for ever." They are never out of fashion. The people of ancient Babylon wore rings. So did the Egyptians. Indeed, it is to the latter we owe the finest samples of antique seal-rings. The Persians, say the historians, did not wear rings of gold, as their religion forbade them having any of that metal about them, when engaged in their devotions. And as these were pretty frequent it would have been too troublesome to be constantly removing their rings. Later, the Greeks carried their fondness for rings to such a pitch, that with them "golden-fingered" meant the same as our modern phrase "rolling in wealth." At first the Romans wore iron rings, which were used as seals, and were useful rather than beautiful. Then they imitated the Greeks so closely that a fashionable man would wear more than a score of rings. Among the ancients, the ring was regarded as a symbol of authority. Thus, by bestowing upon Joseph his ring, Pharoah invested him with kingly powers.

RHEUMATISM RECIPE.

A well-known authority on Rheumatism gives the following valuable though simple and harmless, prescription, which any one can easily prepare at home:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Mix by shaking well in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost, and, being of vegetable extraction, are harmless to take.

This pleasant mixture, if taken regularly for a few days, is said to overcome almost any case of Rheumatism. The pain and swelling, if any diminish with each dose, until permanent results are obtained, and without injury to the stomach. While there are many so-called Rheumatism remedies, patent medicines, etc., some of which do give relief, few really give permanent results, and the above will, no doubt, be greatly appreciated, by many sufferers here at this time.

Inquiry at the drug stores of this neighborhood elicits the information that these drugs are harmless and can be bought separately, or the druggists here will mix the prescription for our readers if asked to.

THE STRENUOUS LIFE.

Tells so Hard on the Stomach it Must Have Help

The stress and strain of the strenuous life in both city and country makes stomach troubles. Five people suffer today where one did ten years ago with sick headache, dizziness, flatulence, distress after eating, specks before the eyes, bloating, nervousness, sleeplessness and the many other symptoms of indigestion.

All who are suffering with stomach troubles, and that means at least two out of three in Chesterville and other towns, should use Mi-o-na stomach tablets. Nothing else is as safe, yet effective; nothing else can be so thoroughly relied upon to relieve all troubles from indigestion as Mi-o-na.

So reliable is Mi-o-na that W. G. Bolster, with every 50 cent box he sells, gives a guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy cures.

CLAIMS HE FIRED IN SELF DEFENCE.

Prospector on Trial for Murder at North Bay.

North Bay, Oct. 18.—Edward Eaton, of Essex, prospector, was placed on trial to-day before Judge Britton and jury, charged with the murder of Frank Ellar, the colored man in Temagami village. Eaton shot Ellar in a pool room at midnight on Sept. 14, firing two shots from a thirty-two caliber revolver.

The defence alleges that Ellar habitually carried a revolver and a razor, and was a dangerous character.

According to the prisoner Ellar threatened to kill him. On the night of the tragedy Eaton claims that he met Ellar, who was partially intoxicated, in the bar room of the Hotel Ronnocio, and on refusing to lend 50 cents to the deceased, the latter threatened to get even with him, and later at the pool room made some remarks culminating with the boost that he would lick any two white men in Temagami. Eaton said you shouldn't talk that way, Frank, no one wants to fight." Ellar then sprang toward accused, saying "I'll kill you. I'll cut your heart out," placing his hand in his hip pocket at the same time. Eaton says he was paralzed with fright, and exclaimed, "My God stand back Frank," and thinking his life was in jeopardy, shot Ellar.

The Crown combats the self-defence theory with medical evidence, that the fatal wound was inflicted by a bullet in the back under the left shoulder blade.

Eaton is a slight, delicate man, while Ellar was of powerful physique and is alleged to have been of a quarrelsome disposition.

The jury awarded damages of one thousand dollars against Mayor Foster, of Haileybury, for injuries received in his sawmill by one Schlemer, an employee.

PAPER GAVE CLUE TO HIDING PLACE

Crozier Barns Yieldec Large Amount in Counterfeit.

Milton, Oct. 16.—Mrs Thomas W. Crozier, whose husband is being held here on the charge of counterfeiting, arrived from Toronto yesterday afternoon and went at once to the jail, and received permission to see her husband. The jailor, who was present at the interview, noticed the two, who had their backs turned towards him, engaged in an animated discussion over a slip of paper, which it seemed, was the subject of the conversation. At the close of the interview this piece of paper was handed to Mrs. Crozier, but the jailer managed to get possession of it before she was able to conceal it.

He delivered it to County Crown Attorney W. R. Dick, who discovered on the paper a rough plan of two barns at Boyne, just across the road from the Crozier farm. Mr. Dick at once telegraphed Inspector Parkinson, of the Dominion Secret Service, who was just leaving for Buffalo, where he was investigating the case of the discovery. The inspector arrive later in the afternoon, and he and Mr. Dick and Constable Chapman drove the four miles to the barns. There are two buildings. Neither have been used for years, the walls and roof seem ready to topple down at any moment. In places the flooring was found to be intact, but much of it was torn up. They began the search in the twilight.

By the dim light of the lanterns they started digging. In the old stables near which a creek flows buried in tea can, they found 270 ten-dollar bills of the Quebec Bank, 104 ten-dollar bills of the Standard Bank; 37 five-dollar bills of the Farmer's Bank; 28 ten-dollar bills of the Imperial Bank, these last only lacking the signature of the president; and 142 Indian Head United States five-dollar bills.

In the barn next the church several plates were found, but they were blanks, no engraving having been started on them. In this barn were also found 50 ten-dollar bills and 99 five-dollar bills on the Farmers Bank, and 140 ten dollar bills on the Standard Bank.

Altogether last night the searchers, after working for several hours, discovered counterfeit bills totalling $7,10. This brings the full amount of bills in the possession of the police up to about $11,000. The tins containing the bills were buried from a foot and a half to two feet in the ground.

The best work was done on the ten-dolar Quebec Bank bills. Although the view of the Citadel on the face is rather blurred, it is a very fair imitation, and would easily be passed.

The ten-dollar farmers and Imperial Bank bills are also well done.

Brockville Woman Attacked in Their Homes.

Mrs. William Charlton, the wife of a farmer residing on the road to Brockville, wnss assaulted in a dastardly manner by an unknown tramp. At 5.30 Friday morning, while her husband was milking in the barn, the tramp appeared at the house and made application for some thing to eat. She took him in, and was in the act of preparing a meal, when the stranger, seeing her alone, suddenly changed his mind demanding that he be given money instead of food. Mrs. Charlton positively refused to meet the request, whereupon the tramp made a rush and grabbed her by the throat. In the struggle she managed to break away and ran for the door The tramp followed, and, before she reached it felled her to the floor with blows on the back, rendering her unconscious. Just how long she remained in that condition is not known, but on coming to her senses again the man had departed. Mrs. Charlton at once notified her husband of the occurrence, and a hurried search of the neighborhood failed to reveal any trace of the scoundrel. It was subsequently discovered that the tramp had found $1.06 on a shelf, which he appropriated. Mrs. Charlton has furnished the police with a description of the man.

CAUSE FOR ALARM.

Epidemic Influenza, Grippe, Catarrhal Troubles, Pneumonia Increasing.

A marked increase in troubles of the breathing organs is noted in many localities. If you will only have Hyomei at hand to use with the first attack of Cold in the Head, Pneumonia, Colds, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Croup, in fact any respiratory affection, the trouble will be quickly overcome.

If the attack is neglected and become severe, speedy relief will come in most cases and a persistent use of Hyomei will cure.

The directions for using it vary, but the principle is always the same, that of destroying all the germs in the air you breathe and having it reach the air passages with dry medication from the Pine and Eucalyptus forests.

Remember that liquids or moisture is barred from the Bronchial Tubes and Lungs. It's the dry air of Hyomei that reaches the spot. W. G. Bolster guarantees it.

Whitby Butcher Henged Himself.

Whitby, Ont., Oct. 16.—Sam W. Cawker, butcher, last night ended a prolonged bebauch by hanging himself. This morning he was found dead in his home, tied by a shawl strap to the rail of the bannister, his feet stretched forward and resting upon the floor. Cawker was 50 years of age, and leaves a widow and two daughters, aged 17 and 19. For years, at intervals, his family say, Mr. Cawker was addicted to drink. He was sent away to a gold cure institute about a year ago. Last spring he came to Whitby. He was apparently doing a splendid business and kept a good shop Of late he had yielded to his old habit, and has been threatening to take his life for some time. Having recently sold his business he was preparing to move away. All his household effects were packed up. The daughters first discovered their father upon their return to the house after a night spent with relatives.

Doctors had termed it lumbago, and arising from inactive and disordered kidneys. Very often and especially in the cold weather it would become very annoying as the pains would leave me unable to straighten up or lift anything. I tried Booth's Kidney Pills on advice o our druggist, Mr. Bolster and I found them to benefit me in a very short time. The pains and soreness left my back and I strengthened.
