CHANGES IN PENSION REGULATIONS PLANNED

Administrative changes designed to eliminate periodical examination of war pensioners this week were announced by Hon. C. G. Power, Minister of Pensions. These do away with the routine medical examinations which pension recipients were formerly required to undergo.

Unless the reason for further examination is aparent, pensioners will not henceforth be called in, while full authority is given to district medical officers to conduct examinations on the request of the recipients themselves. The changes were prompted by the fact that in recent years the number of re-examinations of pensioners had resulted in no change either in assessment or attributability.

TAYLOR—McKAY

The marriage was solemnized at St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church at Chatham, on Monday, February 17th, of Miss Joan McKay, niece of Provincial Officer and Mrs. Victor Summerfield of Blenheim, and Mr. LeRoy Taylor, of Chatham, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Taylor, Rev. Father Maloney officiating. The bride was lovely in a gown of pale blue crepe with navy taffeta coat and accessories, and carried a bouquet of cream roses and violets. Miss Irma McKay, in a rust shade crepe frock with lovely corsage and brown accessories, was her sister's bridesmaid. Mr. Robert Taylor assisted the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor spent their honeymoon in Detroit and Chicago and are taking up residence in the Kent Manor Apts., Chatham. Mrs. Taylor is well known and popular among the young folk of Blenheim, and also in Morrisburg, and her many friends here will join in extending their best wishes to the young couple.

HORNING—BAILEY

St. John's Anglican Church, of Smiths Falls, was the scene of a pretty wedding when Eileen Gladys, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bailey, Smiths Falls, was married to Colin Horning, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dexter W. Horning, Smiths Falls. Rev. R. Eric Osborne officiated. The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Mary Bailey of Winchester Springs, and Mr. Jas. Harry Potter of Winchester attended the groom. Members of the 1st Smiths Falls (St. John's) Scout Group, of which Mr. Horning is Assistant Scoutmaster, attended the ceremony in a body and in uniform and following the wedding formed a guard of honor from the church doors to the street. The couple will reside in Smiths Falls.

CORNWALL MAN FATALLY INJURED

Curtis Shaver, corporation overseer, died at Hotel Dieu Hospital, Cornwall, Saturday afternoon as the result of a peculiar accident.

Shaver was in charge of three men cutting dead limbs from trees in Fourth street west. Arthur Furniss was in the tree and George Lague in another, while Fred Tyo was on the ground with the oveseer. Shaver had removed limbs from beneath the tree in which Furniss was working and returned and walked under the tree in which Lague was cutting.

Suddenly a crash was heard and a heavy dead limb about eight feet long from above where Lague was working crashed to the ground, evidently snapping off from the vibration caused by Lague as he worked at the other limb. Before Shaver could flee to safety the limb struck him on the left side of the head and he fell to the ground.

The men hastened from the trees and summoned aid, and a truck, owned by Ervin Legault, passing at the time, hurried the man to Hotel Dieu Hospital, where it was found his skull was fractured. Dr. M. A. Kelly and Dr. J. A. Hurteau, who were at the hospital, attended to his injuries, but he expired within three hours.

Dr. C. J. Hamilton, coroner, was notified.

Mr. Shaver was born in Osnabruck township, 61 years ago, a son of John Shaver. Before moving to Cornwall 10 years ago, he conducted a bakery and flour and feed store at Osnabruck Centre. During his residence in Cornwall he was in the service of the corporation and was a trusted employe.

Besides his wife, he leaves a son, Kenneth Shaver of Cornwall; three daughters, Mrs. Stanton Eamon of Wales; Mrs. Clifford Eamer and Mrs. Percy Hutt of Cornwall; two brothers and three sisters, Mrs. F. Jackson, Aultsville; Mrs. Alice Alguire and Mrs. Arthur Woods, both of Lisbon, N.Y.; Tiley Shaver of Aultsville, and Isaiah Shaver of Massena, N.Y.

The funeral was held from his home on Tuesday afternoon, the body being placed in the vault until weather conditions will permit burial at Pleasant Valley cemetery.

MR. WATSON CARRUTHERS

The death occurred Wednesday evening of a very well known and highly respected resident of the Elma district in the person of Mr. Watson Carruthers, who passed away at the age of 67 years. For a considerable time he had been ailing with heart trouble, but had only been confined to his bed for about a week prior to his death.

He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Greta Warring of Morrisburg, and Mrs. Catharine Brown of Buffalo; two sons, Harry on the home place and Wilfrid on a farm adjoining. The family has spent the past 25 years on the farm where Mr. Carruthers died. The funeral will take place Saturday at Elma United church at 1.30 p.m.

PRESCOTT WINS ST. LAWRENCE CHAMPIONSHIP

Prescott defeated Cornwall Canadiens in Prescott Tuesday night, 4-3 to win the St. Lawrence Senior Hockey League championship. The largest crowd of the season witnessed a fast and exciting game which was a toss-up right to the final bell.

Three minutes from the start of the game, Newsome and Adams for Prescott broke away from a scramble in front of the local net to race in on the visitors' net. Adams registered on Newsome's pass. Shortly after, Payette scored on a pass from Latour, to make it one-all. Play raced from end to end, and finally Rombough scored on a rebound to make it 2-1 for Prescott at the end of the period.

Play continued at terrific speed in the second period, with both goalies called upon to make many close saves. Prescott had the edge in the play, and Frattura banged Fisher's rebound into the open net to tally Prescott's third goal.

The third period was Cornwall's, with Prescott determined to hold on to their two-goal lead. Six minutes of play elapsed before Lapierre scored on Contant's rebound. One minute later, Bowers slapped Prescott's fourth goal in from a scramble in front of the Cornwall net. Four minutes before the end of the game Contant scored on a passing attack with Wright, to end the scoring for the night. Cornwall continued to carry the play for the remainder of the game and on several occasions came close to tying the score.

Prescott will now meet St. Gerards of Ottawa in home and home games.

MISS LILLIAN N. BAKER

A highly respected citizen in the person of Miss Lillian N. Baker, passed away after an illness of several months, at the home of her brother-in-law, Mr. Arthur Merkley, Morrisburg, on Sunday, Feb. 23rd.

Miss Baker, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Baker, was born in Osnabruck Centre in 1858. In 1906 she came to reside in Morrisburg with her father, who for a number of years successfully conducted a merchant's business here.

Miss Baker was an active member of St. James Church, having been a member of the Women's Guild, the Women's Auxiliary the Choir and a Sunday School Teacher.

The funeral took place on Tuesday to St. James Church, Rev. Holmes officiating, assisted by Rev. Fraser Weegar. The remains were placed in the vault until weather conditions permit interment in the family plot.

MISS DOROTHY B. LYNCH

Miss Dorothy Lynch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernice Lynch of Morrisburg, died in the Civic Hospital, Ottawa on Sunday following a severe attack of pneumonia.

The funeral service, which was held at the family home, Morrisburg on Tuesday at 2.30 p.m., was conducted by Rev. R. D. Smith of Morrisburg and Rev. C. B. Smith of Ottawa. The remains were placed in the vault.

She is survived by two brothers, Douglas and Dalton Lynch, Morrisburg, and three sisters, Miss Eileen Lynch of Cornwall; Mrs. Earl Collison of Iroquois and Miss Geraldine Lynch of Morrisburg.

Among those who attended the funeral from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. William Lynch and family of Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lynch and family of Winchester; Mrs Percy Ellis of Osgoode;; William J. Lynch, Winchester; Mrs. Lucas Lapierre and son of Irena; George Marquette and family of Winchester and Mrs. Earl Collison and son of Iroquois.

MR. JULIUS GUAY

Citizens of Morrisburg were shocked to learn of the sudden death of Mr. Julius Guay, who after having been confined to his bed but a couple of days with pneumonia, passed away in St. Vincent de Paul Hospital, Brockville, on Monday night. The remains were conveyed to Iroquois, Thursday morning, where service, conducted by Rev. Father Coyle was held in St. Cecelia's Church. After the service the body was placed in the vault in Morrisburg.

Mr. Guay, a native of Cornwall, was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Guay. He moved to Morrisburg in 1905, where with the exception of a few years spent in the States, he had since resided. For many years Mr. Guay carried on a successful barber's business in Morrisburg. In 1903, he was united in marriage to Mary Jean Stewart, a native of Carleton Place, who predeceased him in 1917. Four sons survive, Stewart, of Washington, D. C.; Harold of Ogdensburg, N.Y.; Hubert of Iroquois; and Wallace of Morrisburg. He is also survived by four sisters and two brothers: Mrs. Jerry Caufield, Ogdensburg; Mrs. Gene Carroll, Cleveland; Miss Irene Guay of Cleveland; Mrs. Louise Meehan, Cleveland, and Napoleon Guay of Chicago and Daniel Guay of New Yerk.

CANADA, THE EMPIRE

THE WORLD AT LARGE

CANADA

The Speed Demon

The traffic accident statistics for British Columbia last year, as just announced by Inspector Hood, of the Provincial Police, show that 90 persons were killed and 834 injured by motor vehicles in our streets and our highways, and that this was "the highest total for any year since the beginning of the depression." The principal reason for this toll of death on our roads, says Inspector Hood, was fast driving. — Vancouver Province.

A Friendly Act

While the Peace Garden on the boundary is a permanent and visible indication of friendship between the United States and Canada, there have been many other evidences of goodwill. Among them have been the benefactions of wealthy people of the United States which have been offered to Canada as well as to their own country—such as the assistance for higher education from the Rockefeller Foundation.

The latest instance is a bequest by the American painter, Childe Hassam who died recently. He was an admirer of Canada and had many Canadian friends. The will disposing of his estate provides that all oil and water color paintings in his possession are to be given to the American Academy of Arts and Letters to be disposed of at private sale.

Proceeds of the sale are to go to establish the Hassam Fund for the encouragement of painting in the United States and Canada, the income being used to buy works by artists of both countries. The pictures thus obtained are to be presented to public art galleries in the United States and Canada. — Winnipeg Free Press.

Rabbit's Fatal Rest

A jack rabbit was frozen solid while sitting upright, its ears back and eyes open.

The rabbit, perched on its hind legs was found in a ground depression in Regina cemetery, stiff as a poker, and nearly covered with snow, a victim of the cold spell.

Apparently the rabbit had been racing across the cemetery. It stopped to rest and froze sitting upright. — Regina Leader-Post.

Contentment

A man who had never been more than a mile from home, who had never ridden in a taxi, street car, or a boat, who had never attended a wedding, a ball game, a movie or a prize fight has died in Maine, aged 76. And he was probably a good deal happier than most of the people to whom such things are commonplace.

We Can Learn

The Ottawa Journal claims any man who repeats half what he hears talks too much; but the Toronto Star says the trouble is that some of them repeat twice what they hear. Well maybe so, but we still think our wives can teach us a thing or two when they get together. Some of the ladies do know how to multiply by more than two. — Stratford Beacon-Herald.

Those Empty Front Seats

Probably there will be no answer to the question, but it should be asked: "Why do people prefer to sit in the back seats at church?" As a rule the front seats are empty. Ushers explain that a good many people ask to be shown to a seat "not too far up," or "some place near the back."

That leaves a great wide space up in front between the preacher and his people, and that in itself is sufficient to dull the fire in the heart of any man. The man in the pulpit must feel at times as though he would like to come down and stand on a seat in front of the congregation where he could be close to them. He must at times grow weary of the isolation to which the back seat custom has doomed him. If he has some fire and brimestone in his message then it will have chance to weaken before it reaches the occupied pews.

If a dozen or 20 people in any church went up and sat in the deserted front seats we believe the minister would at once begin to preach better sermons. — Peterboro Examiner.

Bankers Good Reporters

A sign of the times, and among the wholesome ones, is the change in the annual statements of our bankers. Time was when bankers, whether through shyness or modesty or for reasons less admirable, were all taciturnity. If they spoke at all it was in a jargon which made their business seem a mystery.

They are different now. Anxious to be understood, certainly considering it desirable, they have become good reporters, have been turning their once dry-as-dust financial rigmarole into readable human interest stories.

We have before us, for example, the addresses at the annual meeting of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. Its general manager, Sidney H. Logan, shunning the usual statistics about trade and industry, gave an intensely interesting exposition of a bank's role in the field of credit and money. It was not an easy task he set himself, but he did it efficiently, made the thing clear, we should say for the average intelligent business man.

More power to him. So many people confuse money with wealth, and so many more talk the idle nonsense about banks creating wealth, which they don't and can't. Had they been told a little more often in the past, with a greater effort at simplification and less propensity for jargon, it would have been better for the banks —and for all the rest of us. —Ottawa Journal.

They Still Croon

There is talk across the border of abolishing the word "croon" but what is wanted is an effective muzzle on crooners. — Calgary Herald.

Timely Warning

Not long ago, while the city council of Pendleton, Indiana was in session, an explosion of gas took place and the roof of the city hall was blown off. The fact that the council was in session is surely an unnecessary detail. Winnipeg alderman should take warning. — Winnipeg Tribune.

It Is Their Trust

So far as the press is concerned it is itself in business and profits most when business in general is flourishing. Its own business, however, involves giving the people the news. In that it seeks to be fair. Otherwise it would certainly have a very limited circulation. The newspaper has regard for the reader, the community, society and journalism, and most newspapers regard this as a trust. — St. John Telegraph-Journal.

Man to Fit the Suit

From a small town in New York state comes an interesting and though provoking story of local economy.

The community was faced with the necessity of naming a new chief of police. The complete uniform of the previous incumbent, purchased at a cost of $200, was available for the use of the next. There were half a dozen applicants for the job.

What was the municipal government to do? Its members decided finally to combine prudence with law enforcement. They named as chief of police the man who came nearest to fitting the uniform, thus saving the price of a new one and getting a law enforcement official in a single move. —Kingston Whig-Standard.

THE EMPIRE

Where Humans Fail

At one of the recent juvenile lectures at the Royal Society of Arts a great many interesting things were said about instinct in animals. Among the illustrations given was the happy case of the young spider. This gifted creature, just out of the egg, can accomplish that miracle of construction —a spider's web, without teaching or without hesitation.

The thought must have occurred to many of the young hearers that the lot of the baby spider is much happier than their own. How simple and easy life would be if only they too had been born fully equipped to do even the most difficult things.

In that tiresome matter of examinations, for instance, which has itself been under critical examination lately, what a different place the world would be if one knew beforehand the answer to every question that would be asked. Then there would be no need to write to The Times, as one young malcontent is reported to have threatened, because the examiners had been so grossly careless as to catch him out by setting the same questions precisely, two years running." — London Times.

Toronto Maiden Prefers Rancher

EDMONTON.—Interested bachelors may learn something to their advantage if they call on Mayor J. A. Clarke, who has been asked by a Toronto girl to assume Cupid's role. The girl, 24, and weighing 165 pounds, wants a "northern rancher or a Mountie" for a husband.

GIRLS FORGET TO THANK YOU

Male Student Says Women Often Prone To Rudeness With Escorts

MONTREAL.—Learning what it costs to finance an "evening out" should be part of the education of all women students, is the view expressed in the McGill Daily by a group of men undergraduates.

"To-day too many women take being asked out for granted," one student commented. "They often look bored and are apt to be rude in this respect, even to the point of not thanking their escorts for the thoughtfulness and trouble involved in giving them an evening's pleasure. If these same girls were forced to ask the men out for a few months and pay the bills they would realize their privileged position."

The comment was aroused by the fact that the co-eds have not been in any hurry to avail themselves of the Leap Year privilege of doing the asking.

"Coal-Black Celts" Down Cape Breton

HALIFAX, Canada—Rudyard Kipling's keen eye for the bizarre seldom spotted a more striking bit of literary material than they did in his discovery of Nova Scotia's Gaelic-speaking negroes.

For discovery it was. Few, even in Nova Scotia, knew the province held "coal-black Celts"—as Kipling called them—until he told of them in his "Captains Courageous". And even then, the scoffers were many.

They wouldn't believe that the negro tongue could master the "volleying syllables, the sighing cadences, the long wash and roll of the Gaelic," as one Scottish writer describes the ancient language of the Celts. And they stirred up a minor controversy over the point.

It was not until years later that Kipling heard of it in London. He had been on this side of the Atlantic, knocking about the Gloucester waterfront for nautical color, when he heard of the black "Scots".

He brought them into his book in young Harvey Cheyne's meeting with the negro cook of the salt banker We're Here, fishing out of Gloucester. Dan Troop, son of the skipper, tells Harvey the cook comes from "the in'ards of Cape Breton, where the farmers speak homemade Scotch," and where the negroes "talk like the farmers — all huffy-chuffy."

The Kipling character stretched the truth a point, though, when he told the gaping Harvey that Cape Breton was "full" of those negroes. Only a handful of Cape Breton blacks speak the Gaelic.

But they have conquered the difficult language as completely as they might be expected to in small farming communities such as Whycocomagh. And they come by it honestly, for their forebears have been handing it down to them for generations.

These early Cape Breton negroes came to Nova Scotia originally as servants to United Empire Loyalists fleeing from the United States. Later, they drifted down to Cape Breton, where they took up farming.

Gaelic was an essential in the Scottish communities of Cape Breton in those days; and the negroes, perforce, had to pick it up to get along. Today, English is the common language of these communities, but the Gaelic heritage still stays with the few negroes who remain.

A few years after "Captains Courageous" came out, a Nova Scotia educationist visited Whycocomagh and met some of the negro Celts. He found they spoke the language like natives, even then.

Meeting Kipling in London later, he told of the discussion over his negroes. The author's reply was characteristic of Kipling's certainty of the factual material that went into his works.

"Fools!" he exclaimed. "Didn't they know I would not put such a thing down if I were not sure of the facts?"

King George Was A War Casualty

It is somewhat noteworthy that King George V was a war casualty. When he was in France reviewing the troops in 1915 his horse became startled by the explosion of a shell, reared and fell upon him crushing him severely so that he had to be taken to the hospital. It is said that even afterwards he had spasm of pain in his stomach. Then, again, at the Armistice services at the Cenotaph in Piccadilly Square, in 1928, he stood with bared head among his people on an inclement day, paying tribute to the fallen heroes of the Empire. He contracted an illness that confined him to his bed for many months, during which his life at times hung in the balance. It was nearly a year before he recovered sufficiently to return from Windsor to London. The significance of this is that on such occasions the dangerous practice prevails of men standing with bare heads, thereby exposing themselves to the menace of severe illnesses which frequently prove fatal. It is a useless and senseless custom, and one which should be discarded. Many thoughtful ministers in conducting funerals during the winter season set the example of keeping their hats on while the cortege is being borne from the house to the hearse and again during the services at the grave. This is preeminently sensible and becoming. The notion that people must expose themselves to danger in obedience to an antiquated observance is ridiculous, and the sooner it is abandoned the better it will be for those who attend such gatherings. The King's sickness should be a warning to the entire world. — Brantford Expositor.

Payment of $8,262,415 To Wheat Pools Asked

REGINA. — Payment of $8,262,415 to the Canadian Wheat Pools by the Canadian Wheat Board is asked in a resolution to be placed before the Saskatchewan Legislature by Clarence Stork (C.C.F.).

Britain's Youngest M.P.

Malcolm MacMillan, the youngest M.P.—he is 22, and 50 years younger than the Father of the House, Mr. Lloyd George—has taken a good look at the House since the general election. "I think I shall like it all right," he said cautiously.

He is going to be very busy, for, in addition to Parliamentary duties, he is studying law, and has yet to take his arts degree. But Mr. MacMillan is not a bit dismayed. He is going to take the arts degree at Edinburgh, and, unless Parliament makes it impossible, continue his law studies.

Mr. MacMillan was "on the stump" before he was 20, and has probably done more public talking in two years than some members of Parliament have done in twenty. He is a singularly quiet, self-possessed young man, of medium height, fair hair and fresh complexion, with brown eyes. He wears horn-rimmed spectacles.

He won for Labor the Western Isles of Scotland — a constituency which he had to cover by motorboat as well as car.—Overseas Daily Mail.

That Weasel Word

Some way after the Toronto Globe, The Ottawa Journal and the Victoria Colonist—"after" in point of time, and not at all in the quality of its detestation—his respectable family newspaper desires to support them in their protest against the use of the word "contacted." . . .

It is to be noted that Webster, the lexicographer, admits the verb "to contact" to its pretty-nearly-all-embracing pages. Contact: verb transitive, says Webster means "to bring into contact"—"too touch." Literally it means pretty much what is intended to mean in most of the recent newspaper usage which evokes the protests here cited.

You "contact" some party or other of the second part; you meet him and you have some other dealing with him. You question him, you find out what he is up to, you put your cards on the table and ask to see his—you meet him or "meet up" with him, and you "proposition" him. If you are going to contact a man, why shouldn't you proposition him while you are about it? —why should you strain at your gnat of elocution when you have so comfortably swallowed your camel?

But mostly, as the word afflicts the sensitive ear in this recent usage, it means little more than is expressed in the good old Anglo-Saxon "meet."—Vancouver Province.

Police Answering Calls Within Two Minutes

TORONTO. — The average elapse of time between a call for police and their arrival at a given spot was two minutes under the new police radio system, Sergeant Richard Pountney, officer in charge of police communications, told a gathering of the Institute of Radio Engineers at the University last week. The meeting listened in on police calls during the evening while the guest speaker, Professor B. de F. Bayly described their benefits.

"The indulgence in grief is a blunder."—Beaconsfield.

"Grief is a species of idleness."—Johnson.

Farm Problems

Conducted by Professor Henry G. Bell

with the co-operation of the various departments of Ontario Agricultural College.

The business of farming is yearly becoming more and more dependent upon facts that have been gathered regarding livestock and livestock management, crop production, soil management, disease and insect control and business organization of the farming industry. Individual problems involving one or more of these, and many other phases of agriculture, engage the attention of Ontario farmers from day to day. During the winter months there is a little more time for study of the most acute problems.

Through this column farmers may secure the latest information pertaining to their difficulties. To introduce this service Professor Bell has prepared the following typical problems to indicate the information which should be given in order that a satisfactory answer can be made.

If answer is desired by letter enclose stamped and addressed envelope for reply. Address all inquiries to Professor Henry G. Bell, Room 421, 73 Adelaide St. W., Toronto, Ontario.

Question:—

R. J. Peel—I want to increase my yields of Silage Corn. I have been growing White Capped Fellow Dent, and manuring pretty heavily but I don't get as good yields as some I have seen. My soil is pretty heavy. What variety of Oats will mix best with O.A.C. 21 Barley and ripen about the same time.

Answer — The Golden Glow variety of Yellow Dent Corn has given the best results for silage purposes of any varieties of corn which we've tested for central and western Ontario.

The Alaska and O.A.C. No. 3 varieties ripen at the same time as O.A.C. No. 21 barley and are the varieties commonly grown in Ontario where barley and oats are grown in mixtures for grain production.

Prof. W. J. Squirrell, Dept. of Field Husbandry, O.A.C.

Your soil may be running low in some of the plantfood nutrients, as phosphoric acid, or possibly phosphoric acid and potash. If you have a good supply of manure on hand, I would advise you to supplement it with super phosphate (20 or 16 per cent). In 1935, a test was conducted on the farm of Mr. A. McKinney, Brampton, prominent dairyman, in your county with the following results:

Treatment	Rate	Yield	G'n Ac.
		11.4 ton
Manure	10 ton	13.2 ton	1.8 ton
Manure	10 ton
20% s. phos.	250 lb	17.0 ton	5.6 ton
20% s. phos.	250 lb	14.5 ton	3.1 ton

If you do not have a supply of fetrilizer for the corn, addition of fertilizer carrying phosphate-potash, such as 0-12-10 or complete fertilizer, such as 2-12-6 or 2-12-10 used at the rate of 250 lbs. per acre, should give you more and better Ensilage, according to experiments that have been conducted in Peel County.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Winter Care of Goats

In view of the increasing popularity of goat keeping in Canada, it is observed that goats require approximately the same care as dairy cows. Goats should be housed in wet, cold weather, and during the fall months they should be brought into the goat barn at night As the weather becomes colder they will be more and more confined, until finally in the winter months their only outing will be once a day for exercise. Clover or alfalfa hay is the best all-round roughage and goats should be fed twice daily on as much as they will eat up readily. Cabbages or roots in the form of turnips or mangels are also relished and may be given regularly. Oats should constitute the main grain, fed twice daily, morning and evening. Five to ten per cent. of oilcake or 25 per cent. bran may be added to the oats. Goats vary in their capacity for grain, so that each goat should be given what seems to be the necessary amount to produce the greatest flow of milk. Goats always like browsing and their craving in this connection, states A. A. MacMillan in the recently published bulletin of which he is the author, "Goat Husbandry in Canada," issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, may be satisfied if a few tree limbs from the bush are brought to the yard in which the goas are turned out for exercise.

HAVE YOU HEARD

A SMILE OR TWO

A football player in a small college was extraordinarily dumb, but to the surprise of everyone, he passed of all his work, including a special examination in chemistry. The chemistry professor was asked about it, and he said, "I decided I would let him pass if he answered 50 per cent. of the questions correctly.

"I asked him two questions—one he answered wrong—one right. Therefore I let him pass. The first was 'What colour is blue vitrol?' He answered, 'Pink.' That time he was wrong. The other was 'How do you make sulphuric acid?' He answered that he didn't know. That time he was right."

Growing Deaf With Head Noises? Try This.

If you are growing hard of hearing, and fear catarrhal deafness, or if you have roaring, rumbling, hissing noises in your ears, go to your druggist and get 1 oz. of Parmint (double strength) and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy, and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to take. Anyone who is threatened with catarrhal deafness or who has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

THE DANISH FOLK HIGH SCHOOL

(By Prof. S. B. McCready)

Editor's Note: This is the fifth of a series of articles which were published recently in the Harriston "Review." While written specially for the "Review" and addressed to residents of Minto Township particularly, we believe they will be found interesting to many of the readers of this paper because the problems of the farm folk of Minto Township are the same problems that confront rural people throughout the Province.

As intimated in the last article the Danes have developed a very remarkable system of education, particularly suitable for farmers. It is known as the Danish Folk High School. At present there are 59 of them scattered over the country and in addition 22 Agricultural High Schools conducted on similar lines to the Folk High Schools. No two are alike. They do not standardize schools in Denmark as we do in Canada. They are all boarding schools attended in the five winter months by young farmers and in the summer months by young farm women. They believe that it is a very valuable educational experience to go away from home for a while. About 10,000 young farm folk attend these each year. Over one-third of the rural population of Denmark has come under the direct influence of these inspiring schools since the first one was started in 1844. They have spread into the other Scandinavian countries from Denmark and have exerted a tremendous influence on rural culture in Northern Europe. The nearest thing we have to them in Ontario is the three month Winter Short Courses, such as that conducted in Harriston a few years ago by the County Agricultural Representative.

Let me tell you of one I visited near the City of Odense, famous as the birthplace of Hans Christian Anderson. It was established in 1908 through the co-operation of the Small Holders' Agricultural Societies of Funen Island. These societies have a membership of about 10,000. A joint stock company was formed and the non-interest bearing shares taken up by the local societies. A beautiful building was erected in the midst of 20 acres of gardens, experimental orchards and demonstration fields. In addition a farm of 35 acres was bought.

The school prospered and the original stock holders donated their shares to the school so that the school now "owns itself" as they say in Denmark. This is the position of many of the Folk High Schools. They are free of debt and they belong to the farm group or the labor group who use them. They are independent schools. Some of them are owned by individuals. No government department controls them. They live their own lives. There is none to make them afraid. It is such a school as might come into existence in Minto Township through the co-operation of the Women's Institutes, the Agricultural Society and the Township Council. In Sweden they are County Folk Schools. The Principal works under a Board of Trustees appointed by the Small Holders and the pupils of the school. He is given a free hand in selecting his staff and managing the institution within strict financial limits. The school must be self supporting. There is no governmental fairy godmother to take care of deficits. The farm, orchards and garden must yield reasonable revenues for the support of the school. Five acres are a Poultry Farm operated on a paying commercial basis. So with the Dairy Farm and Apiary.

The regular courses conducted by the school are a five-month Winter term for young men and a five-month Summer term for young women. When I visited the school in August, the fifty or so young women were busy in cookery classes. Their average age was about twenty-three and a fine looking group of young farm women they were. Just about as lovely, I thought, as the farm girls one meets in the Junior Women's Institutes of Ontario.

And here they were living together in a lovely school-home, in the open country getting inspiring instruction in Danish literature, music and folk-lore, in calithenics and play, in history and theory of home making. And this is one of many such schools! Wellington County might have such a school located on its County Farm at the Old Folks' Home between Fergus and Elora.

It is no wonder that one commonly hears it stated by observers from abroad, that the finest quality of Danish culture is in the farm homes of Denmark, or that the best educated farm folk in the world are in that country. And for this greatly-to-be-admired achievement in Denmark—and greatly-to-be-desired undertaking in Canada, such schools as this Small Holders' Folk High School must be given much of the credit.

The Winter course is attended by from 50 to 60 young farmers whose average age is about 24. None is admitted before eighteen. Folk High Schools are not for unsettled youth, but for young adults who plan to live their lives on the land. They are not so fussy in Denmark as we are in Canada about giving everyone a complete High School education topped off with a university course. Fourteen is the limit of their compulsory school age. Their philosophy of education embodies the principle that work is a valuable educative force and that honest-to-goodness manual labor is more worth while than loafing or aimless attendance at a High School. So the years between fourteen and eighteen are working, growing and maturing years. While the school is not called an Agricultural High School instruction is given in animal husbandry, plant cultivation and fertilizers. For those who wish to prepare for milk control work (we call it cow-testing) an extra month's instruction is required. Practically all milch cows on the Danish farms are under strict and systematic testing. Much emphasis is placed on the cultural subjects of literature and music and the social subjects of history and economics. The Folk High Schools are not Technical Schools. They are schools of Culture. They fit Danish youth for the right use of leisure, no less than the right way of working. And their graduates are co-operators and not competitors!

I shall tell you more of this school and of Danish education in the next article.

Rhodes Scholarship Awarded to Trinity College Student

Sixth Trinity Student Awarded Coveted Scholarship in 10 Years

The selection of Mr. George Ignatieff of Trinity College, Toronto, as one of the two Rhodes scholars for 1936 from the Province of Ontario is something which suggests several very interesting comments.

In the first place, Mr. Ignatieff is the sixth student of Trinity College during the past ten years who has been awarded a Rhodes scholarship. The list is as follows: 1926, Mr. Escott Reid of Toronto; 1927, Mr. W. Lyndon Smith of Windsor; 1928, Mr. George S. Cartwright of Toronto; 1929, Mr. C. H. Little of Owen Sound; 1931, Mr. J. L. Stewart of Toronto. At Trinity College the number of students is strictly limited and it is, therefore, remarkable that so many of its students should have been chosen as Rhodes scholars during the past ten years.

Mr. Ignatieff is a grandson of a famous Russian statesman of the nineteenth century. His father, Count Ignatieff, was Minister of Education in Russia before the revolution of 1917. He is now residing in Canada and is connected with the Russian Red Cross. Mr. Ignatieff will proceed to the University of Oxford in the autumn for a period of three years to study.

These Rhodes scholars are selected from the universities of the province. In accordance with the trust established by Mr. Cecil Rhodes, in the selection regard is had to:

(a) Force of character, devotion to duty, courage, sympathy, capacity for leadership.

(b) Ability and scholastic attainments.

(c) Physical vigour, as shown by participation in games or in other ways.

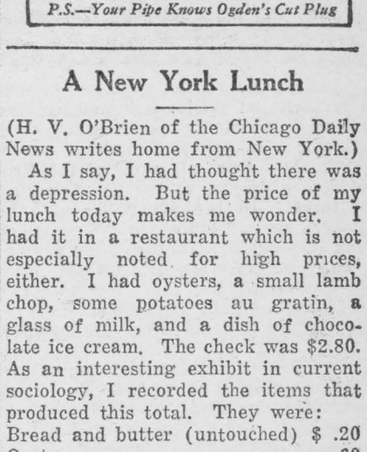

The law has become so strict that there is no legal way to rob people unless you are appointed receiver.

A New York Lunch

(H. V. O'Brien of the Chicago Daily News writes home from New York.)

As I say, I had thought there was a depression. But the price of my lunch today makes me wonder. I had it in a restaurant which is not especially noted for high prices, either. I had oysters, a small lamb chop, some potatoes au gratin, a glass of milk, and a dish of chocolate ice cream. The check was $2.80. As an interesting exhibit in current sociology, I recorded the items that produced this total. They were:

Bread and butter (untouched)	$ .20
Oysters	.60
Chop	1.00
Potatoes	.40
Milk	.20
Ice Cream	.40
Total	$2.80

In a spasm of economy I held the waiter to two bits, thus keeping the total investment (with tax) only a trifle over $3.

News And Information For The Busy Farmer

Furnished by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Ontario Fertilizer Board

Following two years of work assembling facts concerning the use of fertilizer, the Ontario Advisory Fertilizer Board, following its annual meeting in Toronto recently, announced that it was now prepared to assemble and publish its findings and recommendations. It is planned to publish the findings and recommendations in time for spring work this year. These recommendations, arrived at through study of experimental and research work carried on for a number of years throughout Ontario, and taking into consideration all soil and climate conditions will cover the use of fertilizer, both commercial and farm, for the following crops: cereals, hay and pasture; fruit and vegetables, roots and potatoes, muckland crops, sugar beets, corn, and tobacco.

Dr. Robert Harcourt, O.A.C., Guelph, is the chairman of the board which was organized two years ago. Its membership is made up of provincial and Dominion field crop experts, representatives of the various growers' organizations, and representatives of the commercial fertilizer trade. G. R. Paterson, Walkerton, Ont., is the secretary.

Aggricultural Societies

The annual convention of the Agricultural Societies, held at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, early this month, brought together representatives from all parts of the Province to discuss questions of mutual interest. In the arranging of the programme, ample time was given for discussion. In these discussions many points were cleared up. Time was also allowed for the Secretaries of fairs to hold a session.

George E. Foster, Honeywood, was in the chair and in his presidential address reviewed some of the accomplishments of the Agricultural Societies and referred to special features at different fairs.

Secretary J. A. Carrol lgave a detailed report of the year's activities. There are 315 active Agricultural Societies in Ontario and 297 held a fair; 101 of these reported an increase in gate receipts over the previous year.

Last year 66 regular field crop competitions were conducted and in addition 10 combined competitions is barley. During the year three seed cleaning plants were opeated by Agricultural Societies. Several Societies maintain pure-bred sires and grants were paid for the maintenance of one stallion, 27 boars, 68 bulls and 10 rams. One Society had a competition for the best managed farm. In Bruce and Grey the Societies are offering a service in securing reliable fruit trees and other Societies are behind the work on animal parasite control.

Ontario Sheep Breeders Discuss Lamb Identification

Sheep breeders in large numbers attended the annual meeting of the Ontario Sheep Breeders Association, presided over by E. Robson, Denfield Long and inconclusive discussion took place on identification of lambs A year ago the Canadian Association decided on identification tags bearing registered breeder letters allotted by Canadian Live Stock Records, as private ear tas were not entirely satisfactory to our friends across the line who import a lot of our lambs for breeding purposes. There was a wide diversion of opinion expressed at the meeting held by the Ontario Association and the matter was finally left to the directors to decide and send a recommendation on to the Canadian Association.

The breeders present heard the wool outlook for 1936 discussed by Geo. E. O'Brien and prospects are brighter than in the past, although substantial increases in prce may not be expected. W. H. J. Tisdale repoted for the Canadian Lamb Committee whose object is promoting lamb consumption on the domestic market. Methods of advertising and types of advertisements were shown to the meeting, all of which is was believed were producing results. A. A. MacMillan of the Live Stock Banch, Ottawa, reviewed lamb grading and its benefits to breeders and purchaser.

Plowmen's Association

The annual convention of the Ontario Plowmen's Association was held early this month in Toronto, with a large attendance and many interesting addresses. The secretary J. A. Carroll, reported 80 branches active in 1935 and 70 senior matches were held. There was keen interest in junior activities and demonstrations for young farmers were held at 26 points. Hame plowing competitions were conducted in thirteen counties and eight junior matches were held. Matches and demonstrations have been staged at a number of points in Northern Ontario. At the International Plowing Match at Caledonia there as a record entry of 544 and the number of people who visited the Match was estimated by the president to be over 100,000. Reference was made by the secretary to the Farm Machinery demonstrations and the educational exhibits.

An address by Dr. E. S. Hopkins Experimental Farm, Ottawa, on cultural implements gave the results of various expeiments that not only proved interesting but somewhat of a surprise to some who were prresent.

Dr. E. S. Achibald, speaking at the noon luncheon, claimed that soil cultivation was fundamental to getting a crop to weed and plant disease control. There is a wide variation in the soil in the 9 million acres of arable land in Ontario and this must be studied in order to adapt different crops to the different types of soil. Soil changes come about owing to continued cropping, claimed the speaker, and this has given rrise to certain cropping difficulties. Care of soil is not just in turning a fancy furrow, said Dr. Archibald, but in so handling it that after extracting a living the soil may be left as good or better than at the start. Conservation and intelligent handling of soil is very important. Dr. G. I. Christie and others spoke in glowing terms of the 1935 match and of the value ploughing matches were to the agricultural and industrial life of the country.

The annual meeting was presided over by J. Lockie Wilson who, in his own inimitable style, told of the growth and development during the past 26 years of the Ploughmen's Association.

Perth Shorthorn Champion Comes to Ontario

The world's greatest Shorthorn sale was held recently at Perth, Scotland, where the best specimens of the breed attracted buyers from all parts of the world, and particularly from the Argentine.

The United States and Canada have been frequent buyers at this sale, and on this occasion the Honourable Duncan Marshall purchased for the Ontario Agricultural College the Champion Bull of the sale.

"Millhills Ransom" brought 2900 guineas, which is 300 guineas below last year's top prices.

The purchase of "Millhills Ranson" will not cost the Provincial Treasury anything.

Some weeks ago the Honorable Mr Marshall decided to solicit the aid and support of a number of outstand ing business men, each of whom subscribed very substantial sums of money for this purpose.

Among the contributors are: Sir Joseph Flavelle, Mr. J. S. McLean for the Canada Packers, Colonel Harry Magee for the T. Eaton Company Mr. C. L. Burton for the Robert Simpson Company, Mr. Jos. E. Atkinson of the Toronto Star, and Mr. J. H. Tapley for the Swift Canadian Co.

A number of contributions to the purchasing fund have been made in Scotland by Scotsmen interested in the promotion of live stock, and great interest has been shown by Canadian business men supporting this venture.

Hon. Mr. Marshall has received many congratulations upon the organization of such a scheme.

In addition to "Millhills Ransom" an outstanding Aberdeen Angus bull, a proven sire, bred at Harviestoun, from Templetons of Sandy Knowe, was purchesed.

There are very few outstanding Shorthorn sires in Ontario and none as good as breeders would like.

This bull at the Ontario Agricultural College will be available to breeders in the Province for limited use and it is hoped that in this way more rapid stock improvement can be promoted by the breeding of good sires in a number of herds.

The Honorable Mr. Marshall cables that the bulls he has secured will be a wonderful addition to the Shorthorns in Ontario.

The first sire purchased by the Honorable Mr. Marshall for the Ontario Agricultural College was the Clydesdale Stallion "Craigie Realization"—a horse that has "realized" to the full all the expectations of him.

Choice Aberdeen Angus females have been purchased, also a very good bull, and a high-class Hereford bull has been secured to head the herd.

Some good Ayrshires and Holsteins, together with the addition of some Jerseys, will be secured for the School at Kemptville.

A Dairy Shorthorn herd of excellent animals has been procured for the farm at New Liskeard.

An Ayrshire bull, the gift of the Honorable Senator Frank O'Connor, is now at Guelph, and it is the intention of the Minister to improve the dairy breeders already at the College.

Outstanding specimens of various breeders of sheep, now used for class room purposes, will be purchased in the near future.

The reserve Junior Champion Percheron mare at last year's Royal Winter Fair, was purchased and shipped to Kemptville, and two good specimens of this breed will be purchased for the Ontario Agricultural College.

"Breed Better Live Stock" is the agricultural slogan in Ontario thes days.

VETERANS ASK CHANGE IN PENSION SYSTEM

Sweeping revision of the present War Veterans' pensions legislation will be asked of the current session of the Dominion Parliament, officials of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada said at Ottawa this week. An entirely new plan, including abolition or reconstruction of the Pensions Appeal Court, and simplification of the present system of handling claims are the objectives at which the movement aims.

Under the present system pensions for disability due to war service, unless accepted by the Canadian Pension Commission, may, in many cases, have to pass before two tribunals; first, a Quorum of the Pension Commission, and if their decision is not acceptable to the Commission Counsel or to the man himself, then the evidence and record is passed upon by the Pension Appeal Court.

Captain C. P. Gilman, M.C., Dominion Adjustment Officer for the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, states that the Pension Appeal Court is not functioning as intended by Parliament and that perpetuation of the Court, as constituted, is not justified. "The situation with regard to appeals against the decisions of the Commission and Quorums, denying pension, is most unsatisfactory, from the Veteran's point of view. There have been about fifteen hundred such cases in 1935, and from a survey of the cases on our files we know that not more than ten such appeals have resulted favorably to the applicant."

"It is difficult to believe," Capt. Gilman said, "that veterans' claims could be so entirely lacking in justice that, altogether, less than one per cent, should receive the favourable consideration of the Appeal Court. The majority of the members of the Appeal Court, as at present constituted, are lawyers. Either the Court must be abolished, or its personnel extended to include at least an equal number of medical men, if the veteran is to get a square deal. The conditions now existing operate to defeat entirely the purpose for which the Pensions Act was made law."

Disabled Still A Problem.

Canada has by no means yet completely solved the problem of the veteran incapacitated because of injuries or illness resulting from his war services. Files of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, maintained at Dominion Headquarters, Ottawa, still carry more than eight thousand cases in which applications to the Pensions Commission or appeals, are pending.

When the veterans have qualified two courses are open to them. Those who are able to finance smal holdings of their own are assisted in every way possible to establish themselves independently. Anvets Farm Act as a marketing agent for their produce, advises them on such matters as crop rotation, and genarally keeps an eye on their progress. Men who have not the funds to purchase and carry their own small farms are placed with farmers throughout Ontario. By reason of their special training these men are expert in their own lines, and so are able to command wages higher than the scale usually paid to the average farmer.

Operation of Anvets Farm is under the supervision of Captain W. T. Murchie, M.C., Ontario Provincial President of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, and Captain J. P. Evans, Ontario Provincial Secretary, Army and Navy Veterans in Canada.

We feel that we are losing friends who have ever been kind, courteous and willing to lend a helping hand whenever it was needed. Since coming into our midst, we have learned much of each other. Life has its many trials for you but through all its sorrows and pleasures you have had our heartfelt sympathy and kindliest wishes. You have welcomed us to your home, and we have gathered to say "Good Bye" and wish you a bright, happy and successful future in your new home, where, we are certain, you will make a host of friends by your genial, affable manner. Before saying good-bye, however, we wish to express our good will towards you in something more tangible than mere words and ask you to accept this gift as a remembrance of your many friends. We hope the future will bring you much happiness and success and that we may have the pleasure of meeting you occasionally and welcoming you to our homes whenever opportunity affords us the pleasure of visiting us.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Unless the housekeeper has a memory above average, she will often find it necessary while cooking, to refer to a table of measurements. Even the abbreviations used in recipes are somewhat puzzling to the inexperienced cook. I have always found it an excellent plan to keep a list of these useful items close at hand.

Abbreviations

1 teaspoon	1 tsp.
1 tablespoon	1 tb.
1 cup	1 c.
1 ounce	1 oz.
1 pound	1 lb.
1 pint	1 pt.
1 quart	1 qt.
Few grains	f.g.

Weights and Measures

2 c.	1 pt.
4 c.	1 qt.
2 tb. butter	1 oz.
2 c. butter	1 oz.
3½ tb. flour	1 oz.
3½ c. flour	1 lb.
2 tb. granulated sugar	1 oz.
2 tb. fruit sugar	1 oz.
3 tb. brown sugar	1 oz.
2 c. granulated sugar	1 lb.
2 c. fruit sugar	1 lb.
2¾ c. icing sugar	1 lb.
3¼ c. brown sugar	1 lb.
2½ c. cornmeal	1 lb.
3½ c. graham flour	1 lb.
1¾ c. rice	1 lb.
5½ c. rolled oats	1 lb.
4½ c. ground coffee	1 lb.
4¾ c. tea	1 lb.
3½ c. cocoa	1 lb.
2 c. chopped meat	1 lb.
4 c. grated cheese	1 lb.
8 or 9 eggs	1 lb.
1 egg	about 2 tb.
1 square chocolate	1 oz.
4 tb. grated chocolate	1 oz.
4 tb. granulated gelatine	1 oz.

Notes on Measuring

1. When measuring liquids, the cup should be as full as it will hold.

2. Fine dry materials, as flour, should be sifted before measuring. The material should not be packed down.

SANDWICHES

Whether you are giving a party on one of these mid-winter days, or getting the children's lunch, or it's a light "snack" after cards with the neighbours, please do not be guilty of serving makeshift sandwiches, because it is a sure sign of a makeshift home-maker, says Jessie Marie De Both. The smarter and tastier your sandwiches, the smarter is your reputation both with your children and your friends—and honestly, it is actually cheaper to make that kind of sandwiches, even with the commonest materials including left-overs out of the refrigerator.

Ordinary, commercial sliced bread will save you time on family or the neighbor sandwiches; but get unsliced bread and cut it thinner, for party use. There are many kinds of suitable bread you can buy at the stores, such as sandwich bread, raisin, cinnamon, whole wheat, nut, rye, Boston brown, Graham, bran, and certain kinds of coffee cake also make a good sandwich slice.

The fillings for sandwiches are legion. Many of them can be purchased quite reasonably, so that you can keep a supply on hand. These include meat fillings, cheese blends in a wide variety, prepared sandwich spread in a number of combinations, and the like. Frequently you have a reserve of meat, or sea foods, in the refrigerator that combined with a salad dressing of the creamy type will make a delicious filling. Your energy and imagination are about the only limits on what you can work up as a delicious filling.

You may also give interesting variety and added zest to your sandwich fillings, if you take thought about the color schemes that are possible for sandwich spreads. For a party, let us say, you could have the following colored fillings, all delicious:

1. Cream cheese with enough mayonnaise to moisten, then chopped chives, parsley, green peppers, or cherries added.

2. Cream 6 tablespoons butter with 4 tablespoons grated horseradish, 1 small bunch of finely minced water cress or parsley, season with salt, pepper, lemon juice and paprika.

3. Sliced cucumber and mayonnaise.

Pink, Red Rose Fillings

1. Chopped cooked ham or flaked salmon mixed with mayonnaise.

2. Minced chicken tuna or salmon moistened with mayonnaise and mixed as desired with peas or celery or chopped hard cooked egg with pimiento.

3. Red caviar.

Yellow Or Gold Fillings

1. Drained, well grated pineapple and honey worked into soft butter.

2. Mashed hard cooked egg yolks, worked into soft butter and seasoned highly with salt, pepper, mustard and lemon juice.

3. Orange marmalade with moist cocoanut.

Lavender Fillings

1. Cream cheese mixed with grape jam or jelly.

2. Grape butter.

3. Finely chopped red cabbage and mayonnaise.

4. Mashed beets with cream or cottage cheese.

Orange Fillings

1. Any kind of yellow cheese.

2. Creamed cheese or banana pulp with candied orange peel or orange marmalade.

3. Grated raw carrots, seasoned with chopped onions, worked into cream cheese or moistened with mayonnaise

4. Cream cheese with chopped dried uncooked apricots.

Apricot Nut Bread

1½ cups dried apricots, 2 tablespoons shortening, ½ cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 cup sweet milk, 2½ cups flour, 5 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup nuts chopped.

Method: Cook apricots five minutes. Drain, cool and cut in fourths. Cream shortening and sugar, add well beaten egg. Add apricots and milk, then gradually sifted dry ingredients and nuts. Bake in a greased loaf pan for one hour in a 350 deg. F. oven.

Quick Nut Bread

2 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup of milk, 1 cup chopped nuts, 2 tablespoons of melted shortening, food coloring, 3½ cups flour, 6 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teapsoon salt.

Method: Beat eggs and sugar until light; add milk and nuts and mix well. Fold in flour which has been sifted with the baking powder and salt. Turn into bread pan and bake in a moderate oven 350 deg. F. over 45 minutes or until done. Add any desired color of fruit coloring, depending on the color scheme desired for the party.

LEFT-OVERS

It's a standing joke in many families about the Sunday roast and fowl that appear in so many disguises before they finally make their final bow. The way to do with left-overs of course, is to make them so attractive that nobody will care what their origin was.

One of the most appetizing ways to serve left-overs whether they be poultry, fish, meat or vegetables is in a rice ring, decorative and easily made.

Then there are croquettes and ramekins and loaves and pastries and au gratins, to say nothing of salads and sandwiches, and hashes and ragouts.

Creamed fowl in rice ring makes a delicious main dish for a company luncheon. Serve it with asparagus salad, frozen plum pudding, cookies and black coffee.

Rice Ring

Three cups cooked rice, 1 onion, 3 thin slices bacon, 2 cups tomatoes, ½ teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper.

Peel and slice onion and cook with bacon until brown. Add rice, salt and pepper and tomatoes. Mix thoroughly and cook thirty minutes. Pack in a well oiled mold and bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven. Remove from oven and let stand five minutes. This steams the ring loose from the mold. Run a spatula around the edge and invert on a serving platter. Fill centre with creamed fowl and garnish with tender tips of celery leaves.

If the fowl needs stretching, add mushrooms and blanched almonds, and this delicious combination carries no suggestion of left-overs.

Frozen Plum Pudding

One quart milk. 1 pint whipping cream, 1½ cups granulated sugar, 6 eggs (yolks) ½ teaspoon salt, 4 sqs. bitter chocolate, 1 cup seedless raisins, ½ cup candied cherries cut in halves, ½ cup candied pineapple, 4 tablespoons shredded citron, 1 cup of blanched almonds.

Scald milk. Beat egg yolks with 1 cup sugar and salt until thoroughly blended. Gradually beat in scalded milk. Put over hot water and cook until mixture thickens and coats a metal spoon. Remove at once from heat. Melt chocolate over hot water with ½ cup sugar and enough boiling water to make a smooth paste. Add a little hot custard to chocolate and stir until perfectly smooth. Then add this to the rest of the custard and turn into a cold dish. Let stand until well chilled. Fold in cream that is whipped until firm. Turn into freezing trays and freeze until firm around the edges. Beat in fruit which was soaked over night in syrup to cover and drained. Freeze until firm and serve with a garnish of whipped cream and candied cherries.

This pudding can be frozen by packing in six parts ice to one part ice cream salt. Freeze without stirring.

One more recipe this time for Cornish pastries which are different and very effective on a luncheon plate with a creamed vegetable.

Cornish Pasties

One and one-half cups flour, two tablespoons butter, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, water. One and one-half cups minced fowl, ½ cup chopped oysters, 2-3 cup of cream sauce, ½ cup rolled cracker crumbs, milk, salt and pepper, minced parsley.

Mix and sift flour, salt and powder and rub in butter. Cut in water to make a soft dough. Roll on a floured board into a sheet about 3-8 inch thick. Cut into six squares with a sharp floured knife. Combine meat, oysters, crumbs and cream sauce. Season with salt and pepper and also minced parsley and add enough milk to make the mixture quite moist. Place a spoonful of this mixture just to one side of the centre of each square of dough, and fold over to make a triangle. Make a gash across the top and pinch edges firmly together. Bake thirty minutes in a hot oven.

Sunday School

LESSON IX — MARCH 1st

GOLDEN TEXT — "He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same beareth much fruit." — John 15:5b.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING

Time — The last six verses of our chapter fall in the late autumn of A.D. 28; the events in the first seventeen verses of the chapter occurred in the winter of A.D. 28 and 29. The confession of Peter and the transfiguration took place in the autumn of A.D. 29, and Christ's journey through Samaria occurred in November or December A.D. 29.

Place — The events in vs. 1-6 occurred in Galilee; those in vs. 7-10a in Capernaum; the feeding of the five thousand vs. 10b-17 in Bethsaida; the confession of Peter and the teachings that followed in Caesarae Philippi, the transfiguration on Mt. Hermon. Samaria; and the concluding portion of the chapter is to be located at the sea of Galilee.

"The transfiguration," Luke 9 : 28-36. 28 "And it came to pass about eight days after these sayings." There is no record in any of the Gospels as to what Jesus and his disciples were doing during these intervening days.

"That he took with him Peter and John and James." His three most intimate disciples, whom he allowed to accompany him in some of the most sacred, intimate, and epochal hours of his ministry. "And went up into the mountain to pray." The mountain here referred to is Mount Mermon, ten thousand feet high, and easily within six days' reach of Caesarea Philippi, where we find the Lord with his disciples in the verses preceding this paragraph.

"And as he was praying." We cannot doubt that the subject on which he drew near to the Father was his approaching death. "The fashion of his countenance was altered." Luke, for some reason avoids the word used by Matthew and Mark, 'transfigured.' "And his raiment became white and dazzling." The radiance here identified with Christ is not the result of reflection from a great light shining upon him, but the manifestation of such a condition of purity and glory within him as to be seen breaking through the very flesh and form of his body.

"And behold, there talked with him two men, who were Moses and Elijah." Moses had received the law and given it to the people. Elijah had called the people back to the law. They were the two most remarkable figures in the whole of the Mosaic economy.

"Who appeared in glory, and spake of his decease which he was about to accomplish at Jerusalem." The word here translated "decease" is the Greek word exodos, similar to our English word decease meaning a going away."

"Now Peter and they that were with him were heavy with sleep." That heavy sleep was probably the reaction from the six days of mental strain and possibly induced by the long climb up the mountain that day or the preceding day. "But when they were fully awake." Literally suddenly starting into full wakefulness. "They saw his glory and the two men that stood with him." We miss undetected and unimagined things because we are not awake.

"And it came to pass, as they were parting from him." It was because Peter realized that the visit of these two great Old Testament characters was about to be terminated in their departure that he made the following request. "Peter said unto Jesus, Master it is good for us to be here; and let us make three tabernacles." These were little booths or huts made out of branches of trees or bushes, such as were constructed for the feast of tabernacles. "One for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah.." There is certainly nothing darkly selfish in this request as some have claimed. It is a time of joy, worship, and exaltation, and Peter longs for this experience to continue and for him to behold the Lord Jesus and these two great men of old. Of course Peter knew what words he said, but he did not know their significance, nor the wrong in the request which they expressed.

"And while he said these things, there came a cloud, and overshadowed them." A cloud is the constant symbol, or, if not always this, the accompaniment, of the divine presence (Ex. 14:19, 19:16; 33:9; 40:34; 1 Kings 8:10; Psalm 104:3; Isa 19:1; Dan. 7:13). "And they feared as they entered into the cloud." Fear is the natural emotion when one is in the presence of the mysterious, awful, and the divine.

"And a voice came out of the cloud saying, This is my Son, my chosen; hear ye him." Three times in the ministry of our Lord is a voice heard from heaven; at the beginning of his ministry; at the time of his baptism (Mark 1:11); at the chief crisis of his three years of public ministry, when the work of suffering begins to overshadow his preaching, here at the transfiguration; before his final rejection and crucifixion in the temple court (John 12:28).

"And when the voice came, Jesus was found alone. And they held their peace, and told no man in those days any of the things which they had seen The disciples kept this great experience to themselves until after the resurrection (Mark 9:9; Matt. 17:9), because they probably did not realize the full significance of that which they had seen and heard at this time.

"And it came to pass, on the next day, when they were come down from the mountain, a great multitude met him." Those who permanently remain in the mount of religious exaltation are not of great benefit to broken, impoverished and lost humanity.

"And behold a man from the multitude cried, saying, Teacher, I beseech thee to look upon my son; for he is mine only child." Here alone are we informed that this was the only child of this man, reminding us of two similar pathetic touches in preceding passages in the Gospel (7:12; 8:42).

"And behold, a spirit taketh him." We have quite thoroughly considered the subject of demoniacal possession in the preceding lessons, but this particular verse is especially vivid in its description of the awful condition resulting from such possession. "And he suddenly crieth out." The adverb here translated 'suddenly' is used by medical writers of sudden attacks of diseases such as epilepsy. "And it teareth him." Or it convulsed him. "That he foameth." "And it hardly departeth from him, bruising him sorely." The verb here translated bruising means literally "to tread down under foot" or "to break in pieces," "to shiver" (Matt. 12:20; Rom. 16:20) and, in its passive form "to be crushed."

"And I besought thy disciples to cast it out; and they could not." There is nothing more tragic in the world than for one who has a wonderful reputation for helping others to come face to face with a situation in which that one finds himself or herself utterly helpless, especially if he or she knows that there would be ability to do what has been found impossible to do, if the now helpless one were living near enough to God.

"And Jesus answered and said, O faithless and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you, and bear with you? bring hither thy son." It is the contrast, not between one man and another, but between this entire humanity alienated from God, in the midst of which he finds himself, and the inhabitants of heaven, whom he has just left, which wrings from him this mournful exclamation.

"And as he was yet a coming, the demon dashed him down, and tare him grievously." The word here translated "dashed him down" is from a Greek word used by boxers knocking one another down, and of wrestlers throwing an opponent. "But Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit, and healed the boy, and gave him back to his father." When Christ redeems young men from the bondage of sin, he gives these men back again to their parents in more ways than one.

"And they were all astonished at the majesty of God." Majesty here means the visible splendor of God's glory and is the word Peter uses three years later, in referring to this same experience (2 Pet. 1:16).

EVERY DAY LIVING

A WEEKLY TONIC

SOME THINGS SHOULD NOT BE TOLD

How many men and women are there who would like to have their past recalled? Very few, I fancy. And yet, every now and then we come across someone who wants to rake up the past in somebody else's life. Human nature is indeed strange. I have a letter before me now from a young college girl, and it raises a problem which has all the marks of "the eternal triangle" about it. The sort of problem which provides good working capital for novelists and story writers.

Without actually quoting from the letter let me state briefly the problem. Apparently there is a young man from the same town as my correspondent who is a student at the same college. He comes from a very respectable family. He is keeping company with another girl student in the college who has confided to my correspondent an incident in her life which belongs to the past. The companionship between this other girl and the young man seems to rile (I think that is the most appropriate word) my correspondent. She writes me asking me if I would advise her to tell the young man what the other girl has confided to her and adds — "I somehow feel it is my duty to tell him."

I often wonder how many souls have been irreparably damaged by others who have excused their conduct and appeased their consciences by trying to persuade themselves and others that it was all done in the sacred name of duty. Again and again I have to try and get correspondents to see what duty really is. It seems to me to be summer up in those words of Malachi written so long ago—"What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" If that does not sum up one's duty, then what does?

But come back to my correspondent's problem. What is the true motive that is prompting her to tell? Has she herself got a boy friend? Has she an eye on this young man herself? These are items concerning which her letter is silent. It may be that if she will sit down quietly and consider this whole matter, she will discover that, perhaps unconsciously, the motive prompting her to tell emanates from this direction.

The trouble with us is that we so often confuse duty with a petty desire to gain some end of our own—and an essentially selfish end it so often happens to be. We need to carefully examine the inner motives which prompt us to do things before we act. We need to be sure that what we propose to do is right. If it is not right, then it cannot be our duty. And nothing can ever be right which inevitably works harm for another person.

I would like to put one or two questions to my correspondent. Would she like to have her own past recalled in detail? How would she feel if someone betrayed her confidences? Has she considered what the young man's reaction would be? If he is an honorable young man—and she seems to think that he is—then his reaction would probably be to regard her with scorn for having betrayed a confidence. Look squarely at this thing. One person regards another person as a friend. Because of the friendship a confidence is given, but the one to whom it is given betrays it. What is she or he? A traitor! I am quite sure no young lady would like to be known as such.

Take another point of view. Has the young lady with the past incident in her life nothing worth while in her make-up to commend her? Surely she has.! Why, everybody has. There is good even in the worst if we try to find it. Then, if there are good points in a person's character, why talk as though one indiscretion—probably it was only a trifling matter after all—were all that there is to that person's life? Why not emphasise the good instead of the bad?

But then, folks who feel like my correspondent are likely to try and justify themselves and they usually come back with the question—"But mustn't I tell the truth?" Why, of course, we should all tell the truth, but we can at least wait until we are asked for information and even then we can be discreet, and use common sense and, at the same time, be truthful. Long ago the Wise Man wrote in his Proverbs, "There is a time to speak, and there is a time to keep silence." I think this young lady should keep silent.

You recall that poem 'Worth While' by Ella Wheeler Wilcox:

"It is easy enough to be prudent,
When nothing tempts you to stray,
When without or within no voice of sin
Is luring your soul away:
But it's only a negative virtue
Until it is tried by fire,
And the life that is worth the honor on earth,
Is the one that resists the desire."

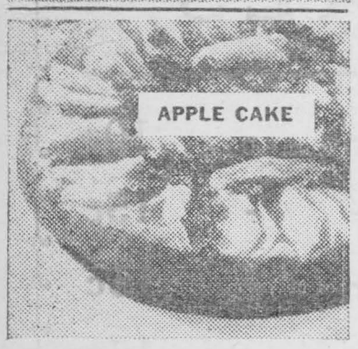

For the one indiscretion that we know of in a person's life, we do not know how often they have struggled against temptation and resisted it to overcoming. If we did, we would be more prone to admire than to condemn. Let us try to keep that in our mind, and remember that the business of every man and woman is to discover the purpose behind his or her life, and by quiet, honest perserverance, to try to achieve that purpose. Only by so doing can we contribute our best to the good of the whole. Why waste time trying to run other peoples' lives? We have each our own life to live. Let us live it as well as we can.

The GREEN GHOST

by Stuart Martin

SYNOPSIS

In the West Indies, Maud Barron awakes with a premonition of disaster. Rushing into her father's study she finds him dead. Dr. Sidney Foster, a friend, is joined by Detective "One Eye" Uttock, a mulatto. Hughes, a member of the household is antagonistic toward all investigation. He accompanies Maud back to England. Foster follows and Maud informs him "The Ghost" has appeared in England the same as at the time of her father's death.

Maud employs Elsie Monteith as a companion. Elsie admits to Foster that she has fallen in love with him. Foster leaves for London and is murderously attacked on the way. On examination, the neck wound proves to be a bite from a poisonous snake.

CHAPTER XIV.
"HE WAS MY BROTHER"

Following on Dr. Foster's cry of dismay at the dreadful discovery came a deep silence. The plash of the fountain in the middle of the palm court became like the thundering of a mighty waterfall. Fully a minute passed during which the doctor stood rooted to the spot, looking at, but scarcely seeing, the dead man. The situation was more than dramatic. It was cataclysmic. Barely fifteen minutes had elapsed from the moment that Foster had seen this man walk through the doorway of the lounge with Maud Barron, and now he was seated, lifeless, in the alcove, his features twisted in an agony of convulsive death.

Foster lifted the limp hand and gripped the wrist. It was a needless act, and he knew it, but he did it from habit. The pulse was absent. He touched the staring eyes with the tip of his little finger, testing for a sign of life. There was no response, no flicker of the lid, no shrinking from contact.

The doctor knew that not a moment was to be lost. He slammed the bell on the marble-topped table, and as he did so he noticed, for the first time with his usual clearness, that two half-empty coffee cups were on the ledge under the table top. Beside the coffee cups was a small bottle, the cork of which was stuck very awry in the neck.

A waiter appeared at the door.

"Did you ring, sir?"

"Fetch the manager! At once! This man is dead!"

The waiter stared, then disappeared at the double.

The manager came in a minute, the waiter behind him.

"What's this?" he asked, apparently suspecting some practical joke.

"This man is dead. He was seated here when I came in—"

"Fetch the hotel doctor," cried the manager, and the waiter ran off again. The manager rushed across the court and closed both doors, pushing the bolts into the concrete floor. He was a man of efficiency. "Wait until the doctor comes before you tell me anything," he said. It may have been a warning or merely a precaution; his eyes did not look at Foster as he spoke.

The hotel doctor came. He examined the lifeless form, and looked at the manager curiously.

"Send for 'the police," he said. "Would you mind giving us your name, sir? We'll want your statement shortly."

Foster handed him his card, and the hotel doctor's manner changed at once. Foster pointed to the coffee cups and the small bottle. "What would you make of it?" he asked.

The hotel doctor withdrew the cork, snifffed at the contents, wetted his finger and gingerly touched his tongue with the tiniest amount. Next moment he went over to the fountain and rinsed his mouth out several times.

"Strychnine!" he said quietly. "We can't touch him until the police have had a look. See how he is crumpled up."

A policeman came, and with him an inspector. They heard the story, Foster giving his version of how he saw the man as he entered the palm garden.

"There are two cups of coffee there," remarked the inspector pointedly.

"Ask the waiter why," replied Foster.

The waiter could explain. The man had come into the palm garden with a lady, and had rung for the coffee. The waiter knew the man's face quite well, he had seen him in the hotel since the previous day, he thought, or perhaps it was only since that morning.

"Do you know his name?" asked the inspector of the manager.

"If he has a key on him, we'll see how he registered—if he is a guest, sir. I think I remember him meeting a young lady in the entrance hall this afternoon. She was one of our guests——"

"Her name?"

Foster's heart almost ceased to beat.

The manager spread his hands wide in apologetic inability to answer offhand. They would find out, he said.

"Lets try to establish his identity first," went on the inspector. To his constable he said: "Fetch a hand ambulance and we'll get him to the mortuary. I shall want the names and addresses of all who were here or saw him; especially the person who made the discovery."

Foster gave his name and address. The hotel doctor gave his also.

"What do you make of it?" asked the inspector. "Looks like suicide, hey?"

"I don't think there is any doubt, inspector. Maybe you'll find a letter or something in his pockets that will explain."

They searched for a hotel key, but there was none; nor was there any letter.. They took the body away, and Foster went back to Shirley.

It was past dinner time when he arrived, and the blinds of the dining room were not drawn. From the drive he saw Mrs. Gibbs, Maud Barron and William Hughes seated at the table. They had finished their meal. Foster took off his coat and hat in the hall and walked quickly into the room. As he entered Maud rose eagerly, Hughes languidly, and Mrs. Gibbs with an exclamation of welcome. Foster disregarded the various ways in which his presence was met; he had the feeling that he had burst in during a prviate discussion, but he was not in the mood to stand on ceremony.

Your Birthday Reveals Your Vocation

By ANN PENNINGTON

One problem of vital importance that confronts young people, is to determine the vocation, profession or trade for which he or she is best suited. The purpose of this column is to be of service to those who are now seeking help in this important matter. Your birthday can be used as a guide to a proper decision.

Let us suppose that you, or someone in whom you are interested, were born between February 19th and the 29th. Such a person should seek an occupation in which personality can find expression. The home will be linked up with the work in some way perhaps as business headquarters. The work of persons born in this period should involve contact with people and such will find a special satisfaction in social service work and will be happiest in those endeavours which call upon the emotions. Some of the most successful kindergarten teachers are born in this period. They have the faculty of teaching through love and understanding and appreciation of the needs of their young charges. A man in this category would be successful in horticulture, particularly in research, finding his greatest satisfaction in producing a new variety of vegetable or more beautiful flower. Fullest success will come through quiet persistence in the selected vocation.

A personal reply dealing with one important question will be mailed to anyone sending the day, month, and year of birth together with 25c and stamped and addressed envelope for reply. Address all correspondence to Ann Pennington, Room 421, 73 Adelaide St. W., Toronto, Ontario.

It Pays To Advertise

The following ditty was read recently by the Lord Mayor of London:

The codfish lays ten thousand eggs,
The homely hen lays but one;
The codfish never cackles,
To tell what she has done;
And so we scorn the codfish,
And the homely hen we prize;
Which demonstrates to you and me,
That it pays to advertise.

In the evening Rev. R. D. Smith is to commence a Lenten Series of Sermons—"The Marks of a Christian." His theme for this Sunday will be "Mountains and Men". He will tell some of the details of the story of the attempts that have been made to climb Mount Everest. This series of sermons will have a particular appeal for Young People. McCAULAY MAY LEAD CONSERVATIVES

It is strongly rumored at Queens Park that Leopold Maccaulay is edging up to first place for the pending Conservative leadership. The former minister of highways, though he has not yet said a word concerning his candidacy, is regarded as running on even terms with Hon. Earl Rowe for leadership of the party.

Recent signs, Toronto Conservatives say, show that Mr. Macaulay is leading in Conservative favor. The Legislature session has given him a chance to show his House ability and it is said that the large majority of the Conservative party are more than pleased with his House conduct.

KING WILL BE HEARD ABOUT TEN MINUTES

King Edward will broadcast a message to his subjects throughout the Empire on March 1, it was announced recently.

No indication has been given as yet of the subject matter of the broadcast and it is not known how long the message will be. It is expected to last about ten minutes, however. The broadcast will stant at 4 p.m. (11 a.m. E.S.T.)

The plan for such a broadcast has been under consideration since the King's accession to the throne a month ago.

It was recalled that His Majesty was the first member of the Royal Family to broadcast. That was in 1922, when as Prince of Wales, he broadcast an address to the Boy Scouts. Apart from the late King, whose broadcasts on Christmas Day were listened to eagerly by people all over the world, few broadcasters have been so popular as King Edward VIII. His delivery is usually clear.

The King's most notable broadcast include his appeal for King George's Jubilee trust fund last April and his inauguration of the "Guy British" campaign of the Empire Marketing Board in 1931.

MONTREAL-NEW YORK WATERWAY TO BE STUDIED

"Canada's interest will be very carefully guarded in the matter" observed Hon. Charles Stewart, chairman of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission, in speaking at Ottawa this week of the announced intention of that body to inquire into the possibilities of establishing a deep waterway from Montreal to New York, via the Richelieu and Hudson Rivers.

The commission's first step is to hold public hearings to determine the necessity for the new route as a deep waterway. Mr. Stewart indicated, and then, if the necessity is established, surveys will be conducted touching three alternative routes. As far back as 1900, a suggested waterways following much the same route was estimated to cost $150,-000,000.

Parts of the existing route permits of boats drawing only six feet of water, while other sections permit boats drawing 12 feet of water. Considerable lumber is shipped over the existing route through the use of barges.
