JUNIOR FARMERS' PLOUGHING COMPETITION IN GREAT- ER DUNDAS

A successful ploughing competition for Junior Farmers of Greater Dundas was held this fall. A number of those in the competition were boys who had been in previous competitions of the kind and on this occasion marked improvement was shown in their work. The object of these Annual Competitions for Junior Farmers is to stimulate a greater interest in better cultivation of the land in which ploughing is the most important operation, and to create a pride in work well done.

There were two classes, one in Stubble and the other in Sod. In all there were twenty entries, the boys being in the Sod Class. The ploughing was completed by October 25th, after which the judging was done. Mr. Robert G. Bear of Morrisburg again officiated at judge and gave the contestants many valuable pointers as well as encouragement in the good work they were doing. We congratulated those who were successful and to those who did not succeed in winning this year we would say that the way to do is to keep at it, your turn will come next year.

We wish here to heartily thank those who responded so generously to our appeal for prizes. Especially Mr. Preston Elliott, M.P., and the County Board of Agriculture. We also wish to thank Mr. Greer for his esteemed assistance.

The judge's decisions were as follows:

- IN STUBBLE
1st—Eddie Deeks, Williamsburg, Ont.
2nd—Harold V. Campbell, Faran's Point, Ont.
3rd—Ralph Tousaw, Iroquois, Ont.
5th—Kenneth Tuttle, Iroquois, Ont.

JULIAN—MOORHOUSE

(Kitchener Record)
A quiet and pretty ceremony took place at the home of Rev. and Mrs. J. Maurer, 47 Irvin St., Saturday afternoon at five o'clock, when their daughter, Eleanor Victoria, was united in marriage with Mr. Bennett T. Julian of London. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Irwin Casselman, and wore a smart gown of blue velvet trimmed with grey squirrel and she carried a shower bouquet of pink Columbia roses and lily of the valley.

Miss Olive Woelfe of Kitchener, played the wedding march. Out of town guests were Mr. J. B. and Miss May Julian of Brampton, brother and sister of the groom Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Casselman and Miss Anna Maurer, Toronto and Miss Eva Rohrer, of Morrisburg.

Following a honeymoon trip, Mr. and Mrs. Julian will reside in London. The hearty wishes of a host of friends are extended to them for their future happiness.

MR. JOHN FITZPATRICK

One of Morrisburg's oldest citizens passed away on Wednesday afternoon in the person of Mr. John Fitzpatrick, at the advanced age of 87 years. The deceased had been in failing health for the past year and a half, but was confined to his room only a week.

The late Mr. Fitzpatrick was born in Quebec in 1836 and when a young lad he came to Morrisburg with his parents, and has been a resident of Morrisburg for the last 30 years. He was a sawyer by trade, but for many years he conducted a grocery on Main street where his familiar figure will be missed by the older residents. In 1866 he was married to Mary McNally of Waddington who predeceased him nine years ago. To them were born ten children, six of whom survive, namely: Mrs. James Henophy, Rochester, N.Y.; Mrs. C. R. Duprau, Ottawa; Mrs. H. Hartell, at home; Arthur, Seattle, Wash.; George, Rochester N.Y.; and John of Morrisburg.

The funeral service was held on Friday morning from his late home Main street to St. Mary's Church, at ten a.m., Rev. Father J. V. Meagher officiating. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

CONSERVATIVE RALLY

(Contributed)

On Thursday, November 30th, all roads led to Winchester Springs where an enthusiastic Conservative Rally was held. The hall proved none too large and under the able chairmanship of Dr. Collison, the meeting got away to a good start.

Several prominent workers from different parts of the county gave short reports expressing full confidence in the ability of the party to meet any immediate or near future election call. Both wisdom and wit were added to the speeches by some of the ladies who proved themselves thoroughly at home on a political platform.

Mr. O. D. Casselman, ex M.P., gave, what was considered to be by many friends, one of the most telling speeches of his career. The broken pledges of the present Liberal Government were handled without gloves and the dual position of the present Liberal U.F.O. member was shown in its true light.

Hon. Howard Ferguson spoke with more than his usual fluency. Time and time again, he referred to the late Sir James P. Whitney for his constructive statesmanship in introducing such legislation as the Workman's Compensation Act; the Mothers Allowance Act, and the high ideal he instilled into Provincial Politics.

In all fairness to the present Drury Government, he gave them credit for some measures of benefit to the Country, at the same time showing in an irresistible manner, how they had failed in the one supposedly strong point—economy.

The Backus deal received special attention, showing how the interests of the province had been sacrificed to an American millionaire lumberman, while farmers of Old Ontario are taxed to the limit.

Rounds of laughter were drawn from the audience at the humorous reference to the present flirtation being carried on by the Hay Wing of the Liberal Party, with the U.F.O. Leaders.

The meeting closed with a feeling that not only had some effective addresses been given, but that there existed a harmony and a strength in the party far in excess of what had been shown in recent elections.

The Collegiate Commencement will be held in the Music Hall, Morrisburg, Friday, Dec. 15th, beginning at 8 o'clock p.m. A good program is being prepared by the students of the Collegiate. Mr. Frank Yeigh has been secured for the evening and he will give us his most popular Travelogue "Old England and New Canada."

The Right Toys To Give

By Mary A. Roberts

Parents and others who give toys to children at Christmas (or at any time) sometimes hold the belief that any sort of a toy that will amuse a child is a suitable gift.

Almost any new toy will amuse—for a little while. Unless these are something back of that toy, something really worth while, it is a waste of money. A toy should always have two purposes: first, to please and amuse the child; second, to really benefit the child. This can easily be done.

A toy flatiron and ironing board really benefits a little girl, first, because it pleases her to "iron just like Mama." Mother shows her how to use the iron, how to properly dampen the clothes, how to fold for ironing, how to use starch. The child soon learns to make her doll's dresses as smooth and nice as her own that Mother irons. And she never forgets how to iron. Result:—it proved to be the right kind of a toy.

Or give a small boy a set of metal construction parts and ask him if he can make a wheelbarrow. He sits down and works over it until he puzzles it out, and then you are as proud of him as he is of what he has made.

There are many mechanical appliances which will bring out all of a boy's constructive ingenuity, and prove a source of great satisfaction and enjoyment to him. Metal construction sets are marvellous to a growing boy; with some of these sets he can build a thousand different structures, and as he puts them together he may be finding his career.

For girls there never will be anything to take the place of the doll. How enthusiastic little Mother becomes in her new world, and she quickly learns to make doll's clothes, to care for her little bed, and a great many other domestic things which would not interest her in any other way. Toys can be Mother's co-workers.

And girls like to cut out things. Educational cut-outs are innumerable, and very inexpensive. Give a little girl a furniture set and she soon learns to be careful with furniture.

Weaving sets quickly train children's color perception. Enamelled steel working looms are built like the big industrial looms, with real treadle and shifters, upon which a child can make miniature rugs, carpets and many other pretty articles, from the directions.

Modeling appeals strongly to most children and is an excellent training for both hand and eye. Some of the older boys and girls will surprise you with their achievements. For the little-ones, sand box sets have animals and shovel, and a big metal box to work in and confine the sand to its proper place.

Among household toys the list is almost limitless. A miniature sewing machine forever holds a little girl's interest and makes a straight seam a beautiful accomplishment. The electric iron that really irons doll's clothes is always wonderful, and a small cooking range with fairy cooking utensils encourages daughter to help mother, to learn how to "make things," and awakens her imagination to the possibilities of a hostess. Little bathrooms, enameled like tiles, have tub, washstand, shower and the other essential appliances, and her play will very easily lead a little girl into hygienic habits. There are also laundry sets, carpet sweepers, galvanized iron refuse cans and almost everything else that Mother uses.

Toyland is full of the right kind of toys for every child—toys that keep the active little people busy and their brains working, storing up knowledge against the years to come. Children never forget things learned through play and parents can gain much by taking advantage of this fact, a blessed one for all concerned.

SOME PRACTICAL GIFTS

Grandma's back gets tired when she sits for any length of time in a hard-back chair. A long, soft pillow with a cord fastened to it to hang over the back of any chair will be a welcome gift from a small member of the family.

Match Scratcher.

Where gas or electricity has not yet made its appearance, lamps must still be used. In this case, the youngsters can make useful and pretty match scratchers for presents to their elders or one another. A ribbon bolt can be secured at any merchandise store. Use ribbon one inch wider than the bolt and shirr both edges of it. Slip ribbon over the bolt and tighten both sides. Cut out two pieces of sandpaper to fit the sides of the bolt. Stick them on with library paste. Sew baby ribbon on for hangers.

Hairpin Case.

A hairpin case can be made very quickly and does not cost much. Use a strip of linen about eight inches long and three inches wide, in whatever color you wish, and a piece of lace net the same length. Run a narrow hem on all sides of the linen and then carefully sew the net to the linen body. You can make a pocket for holding hair nets by lapping the case over about three inches at the end. Tack this pocket down on two sides. Two strips of narrow ribbon twelve inches long sewed on the end opposite from the pocket does nicely for a hanger. Tie ends of ribbon into a succession of little bows at top for a dainty finish.

Clothes Hangers.

Clothes hangers all padded with cotton and covered with silk ribbon make pretty gifts. Either wire or wooden coat hangers can be used. Pad the hook with cotton rather heavily and the rest of the hanger not quite as heavily. Sprinkle the cotton with sachet powder and then cover with satin ribbon.

Child's Towel.

Children love to receive useful gifts which they feel are entirely their own. Buy a pretty towel and embroider the child's initials on the end. This will be especially pleasing. Small sized towels are not very costly and it takes only a short time to embroider two initials.

Sewing Book.

A very practical gift for Mother or Sister, who has just been married, is a sewing-book. Cut two pieces of heavy cardboard each seven inches wide and twelve inches long. You will need four pieces of cretonne seven and one-fourth inches wide and twelve and one-fourth inches long to cover the cardboard on both sides. Before putting the cretonne on the cardboard you can make the pockets and the tabs. Take a piece of cretonne seven and one-fourth inches wide and four and one-fourth inches long and sew it on the bottom of the cretonne that will cover the left side of the book, to make a pocket for holding odds and ends. On the same side a cross strip of cretonne seven and one-fourth inches wide and two and one-fourth inches long for holding spools of thread. Make about five pockets for the spools, sewing a seam about every one and one-half inches apart, or just far enough apart to hold different sized spools nicely. Above this, a small strip to hold the thimble can be sewed. On the cretonne which will cover the right side of the book sew two narrow tabs for scissors, one about two inches from the top and one about two and one-half inches from the bottom, or measure to fit any special size of scissors. A piece of flannel two inches square will hold several sizes of needles. It takes only a minute or so to sew on tabs for pins, and other necessary articles which you may think of, and they add a great deal to the usefulness of the book.

After you have all the pockets and tabs which you think will be needed you can easily cover the cardboard. Join the two pieces of cardboard together with three strips of cretonne three inches long and one inch wide, one two inches from the top, one in the middle and one two inches from the bottom. Basting thread in black and white and also spools of number 50 in black and white should be on hand, a tape measure and a small pencil can be put in the big pocket, and small crayons in white or yellow can always be used by the sewer for marking hems and so forth. A pocket put in for Mother's glasses would be very handy. The book can be folded and put away when not in use and the knowledge that all the sewing utensils are within easy reach is very comforting to a busy woman.

The popular Christmas hymn, "While shepherds watched their flocks by night," was composed in 1703 by the Poet Laureate of that time.

A Real Old Country Treat

THE GARDEN OF XMAS TREES

By Emily Rose Burt.

This notice went in a little Christmas-tree-sealed envelope to each member of a certain Sunday school, from the youngest in the primary department to the oldest member in the adults' Bible class:

Please

Visit the Garden of Christmas Trees Friday evening, December twenty-second

At the Church Parlors

The affair took the place of the usual Sunday-school tree, and was voted over so much more fun.

A huge finger pointed from a tree at the edge of the path toward the proper door, and the sign read: To the North Pole Gardens.

On entering the door everyone was surprised, in spite of the promise of the invitations, to be plunged into a world of little cedar trees.

They grew in groups and rows and circles, all tiny, and fastened to board standards.

Upon closer examination each tree was found to be labeled with the name of some Sunday school teacher—denoting her class.

So everybody began to look around to locate his or her own class tree in the garden.

The gardener, in the person of the superintendent, dressed as Santa Claus, invited everybody to inspect the garden. The fruit, he announced, would be picked later; for each tree bore such fruit as handkerchiefs, harmonicas, dominos, dolls, etc.

In one corner was a group of trees labeled "Refreshment Trees." One tree had its branches loaded with sandwiches tied in wax paper; another was the cup-cake tree; a third bore a crop of spoons; a fourth a shining array of tin cups.

Presently the gardener and his assistants (the teachers), each wearing either a red paper sunbonnet or a broad-brimmed farmer hat, began to harvest the Christmas-tree crop. The grown-ups and children sat down on the floor and benches; and as the name of a tree was called off, the members of the Sunday school who belonged to that class were allowed to flock about their tree and pick off their own presents.

Besides the class trees, there was a Candy Tree, an Orange Tree, and a Popcorn Tree, which the gardener with his assistants attended to.

Of course, the present distributing was the event of the evening, but during the early part there were a few jolly ice-breaking stunts. Ice breakers, you know, are needed at the North Pole.

The first was the Eskimo Race. Each participant was given a small lighted candle, a space was cleared, and the race begun. The object was to see who could get to the goal and back without blowing out his candle. Of course, the younger ones were barred from this. But not so from the Blubber Race. The idea was to see who could "blubber" most comically. Such faces and such cries!

The stunts in which all could join were most enjoyed, and promoted the warmth of sociability for which every Sunday school strives.

A basket of lettered slips was passed, and each person drew one. The leader then announced that he wanted some North Pole animals, and would the seal please step forward. The persons holding respectively the letters S E A and L arranged themselves together in a group. A prim old lady, a wiggling youngster of eight, a young chap of seventeen, and a girl of fourteen presented themselves amid great giggling.

The consolidated seal was then asked to do some stunt worthy of its nature.

After that the walrus was called for, and was followed by the polar bear, the whale, and the penguin.

The mixing-up that resulted was conducive to fun.

At refreshment time the Refreshment Trees were surrounded and plucked of cups and spoons, sandwiches and cup cakes. Hot cocoa was served from the church kitchen at long Christmas tables in the dining-room. Ground pine stretched up and down the middle of them, with scarlet Japanese lanterns swinging overhead.

The tin cups were filled up with steaming cocoa, and the sandwiches and cakes eaten from paper plates.

A program could be given instead of playing games, but the games bring old and young together in a very companionable way.

A Mother to Her Baby.

O Love that will not let me go!
I hold my baby in my arms,
All radiant with a heavenly glow—
And I am captive to her charms.
This gentle warder's tiny hands
Gird my soul from day to day;
The weight of toil the world demands
Passes with her smiles—away;
And oftentimes when the moon's above,
As I lull her to and fro,
I ask in prayer to be worthy of
The Love that will not let me go!

The teacher was telling a long, highly embellished story about Santa Claus, and Willie Jones began giggling with mirth, which finally got beyond his control. "Willie! What did I whip you for yesterday?" asked the teacher severely. "For lyin'!" promptly answered Willie.

Suggestions for the Christmas Dinner

Menu:

Star Canapes Oyster Soup
Olives Celery
Roast Goose Apple Baskets
Mashed Potatoes
Cauliflower Yule-tide Salad
Christmas Pudding
Bon Bons Nuts
Toasted Crackers Roquefort Cheese
Coffee

Star Canapes.

Cut small circles from toasted bread. Butter the bread, spread outer edge of circle with parsley. Chop fine, spread the centre with cream cheese. Dispose in the centre a star cut out of a sweet pepper or red beet.

Roast Goose, Potato Stuffing.

Singe, remove pinfeathers, wash and scrub a goose in hot soapsuds; then draw. Wash in cold water and wipe. Stuff, truss, sprinkle with salt and pepper and lay six thin strips of fat salt pork over breast. Place on rack in dripping pan, put in hot oven and bake two hours. Baste every fifteen minutes with fat in pan. Remove pork last half hour of cooking. Place on platter, cut strong and remove string and skewers. Garnish with apple baskets and water cress.

Yuletide Salad.

Pare and chill six medium sized tomatoes. When ready to serve cut in eighths (not severing sections) and open like the petals of a flower on a nest of lettuce leaves. Mash a cream cheese, moisten with French dressing and make into tiny balls about the size of a pea. Place eight cheese balls in centre of each tomato. Serve with dressing.

Dressing.

Half teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ tablespoon finely chopped parsley, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 4 tablespoons olive oil, 1 tablespoon finely chopped red pepper. Mix ingredients and stir until well blended.

Apple Baskets.

Cut two pieces from each apple, leaving what remains in shape of basket with handle after cutting out pulp. Chop pulp; there should be two cups. Put in a stew pan and add three-fourths pound light brown sugar, juice and rind of one lemon, one ounce ginger root, a few grains salt, and enough water to prevent apples from burning. Cover and cook slowly four hours, add water as needed.

Christmas Pudding.

One cup beef suet, 1 cup raisins, seeded and cut in pieces, 2-3 cups stale bread crumbs, ¼ cup currants, 1 cup grated carrots, yolks of 4 eggs, 1-3 cup flour, 1-1-3 cup browned sugar, 1½ teaspoon salt, grated rind of one lemon, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 tablespoon vinegar, ½ teaspoon grated nutmeg, whites of 4 eggs, ¼ teaspoon cloves.

Work suet until creamy, then add bread crumbs and carrots. Beat yolks of egg until light and add gradually while beating constantly sugar. Combine mixtures and add lemon rind and vinegar. Mix fruit and dredge with flour mixed and sifted with salt and spices. Add to mixture, then add whites of eggs beaten until stiff! Turn into buttered mold, garnish with thin strips of citron, steam 3½ hours. Serve with sauce as follows:

Sauce—1 cup brown sugar, 1-3 cup hot water, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 2 tablespoons cold water, 2 tablespoons sherry wine, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon salt, few grains nutmeg, ½ teaspoon vanilla. Bring sugar and water to boiling point and let simmer fifteen minutes. Add cold water to cornstarch and stir until smooth. Add gradually to syrup, stir until ingredients are blended, then let simmer forty-five minutes. Add remaining ingredients and serve at once.

Christmas Giving.

Making a present as payment for a present that you have received is a poor kind of Christmas giving. So, too, is giving what you wish to get rid of. When a girl gives away a pair of new shoes that are too small for her she does not prove that she is generous; she merely escapes the accusation that she is a dog in the manger. A third type of giver focuses her attention on the recipient's welfare, not on her pleasure. The conscientious daughter may well think of her mother's comfort, but that does not mean that she should give her a hot-water bottle or an electric toaster when she wants silk stockings or an edition of her favorite poet. Farthest of all from being generous is the person who gives presents that benefit herself. The manufacturer who distributes free samples cannot credit himself with philanthropy; he is merely making a shrewd business deal.

The real Christmas generosity keeps both eyes on the happiness of the recipient. The gift should be for her alone, yet with it should go all the kindness of spirit of the giver. "The gift without the giver is bare."

Though the force of that line is blunted by familiarity, it sums up the great fact that true Christmas giving is a matter, not of hand or of mind or of pocket, but of the heart.

Economy in Christmas Cards.

You can make from old Christmas pictures and visiting cards attractive Christmas greeting or tag cards to accompany gifts, or pleasing place cards for a Christmas supper. On winter evenings it is good fun to cut from old post cards, magazines, and so on, Christmas pictures—a jolly Santa Claus, a wreath of holly, Christmas trees, a cluster of lighted candles, gayly decorated bells, a winter scene—and then to paste each one in the lower left-hand side or across the top of a plain white visiting card.

You can cut out suitable and attractive verses or lettering and add them, or you can print and color a cheery Christmas message. When all is done, punch a hole in the upper right-hand corner of the card in which to tie a bow of gay Christmas cord or ribbon.

Holiday

Sweets

Old-Fashioned Nut Candy.

Two cups light brown sugar, ½ cup water, 1 tablespoon vinegar, 2 tablespoons butter ¾ cup chopped nuts.

Place the sugar and water on the stove. When the mixture begins to boil, add the vinegar. Cook a few minutes, and then add the butter. When the syrup spins a thread, pour it over the nuts, which have been spread on a buttered platter. Mark in squares when cool. When cold, break apart, and wrap each square in waxed paper.

Maple Cream Fudge.

One pound maple sugar, 1 cup cream, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup chopped pecans.

Boil the sugar, cream, and salt together until soft balls are formed when it is dropped in cold water. Then add the nuts, and pour on a buttered plate.

Fruit Rolls.

One cup prunes, ½ cup figs, ½ cup walnut meats, ½ cup shredded coconut, 1 cup dates, 2 tablespoons orange juice, 1 teaspoon grated orange peel.

Run the cooked prunes, dates, figs, nuts, and coconut through the food grinder. Add the orange juice and peel. Roll into a long roll, cut in slices, and wrap each one in waxed paper.

WHY RHEUMATISM OFTEN COMES BACK

The Usual Treatment Does Not Reach the Root of the Trouble.

Most treatments for rheumatism do no more than aim to keep down the poison in the blood and enable nature to overcome that particular attack. Then when the system becomes run-down from any cause the disease again gets the upper hand and it all has to be done over.

Sufferers from rheumatism who have found their condition unrelieved or actually growing worse while using other remedies, would do well to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The tonic treatment with this medicine has proved in thousands of cases that it builds up the blood to a point that enables it to cast out the rheumatic poisons through the regular channels of excretion, the bowels, kidneys and the skin. When this is done rheumatism is banished, and as long as the blood is kept pure and rich the patient will be immune from attack. This is proved by the case of Mrs. J. Hewitt, Beach P.O., Hamilton, Ont., who says: "For a number of years I was troubled with muscular rheumatism, which caused me a great deal of suffering. I would get rid of the trouble for a time, but it always came back. A friend recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I have not had an attack of rheumatism since I took them, and that is five years ago. I have since used the pills for anaemia and found them equally good, and I now recommend them to any friends who may be ailing."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Surnames and Their Origin

EYLER.

Racial Origin—English.
Source—A locality.

This is a family name which appears as though it might have some optical significance. But though of pure Anglo-Saxon origin it has no connection with our modern word "eye."

The word from which it is derived is spelled somewhat differently to-day, which explains the difficulty. If the family name were spelled "Isler" you'd stand a better chance of guessing the origin, or perhaps if it were spelled "Islander."

Really, however, there was a shade of difference between the meaning of the medieval word "eyler" and the modern word "islander." The former meant as much "waterman" as "islander." According to geography an island is a section of land entirely surrounded by water. According to etymology, however, it is "water-land," a distinction, perhaps, without a difference. In earlier days the Anglo-Saxons called water "ea," and later the spelling of this root or word developed into "ey" (not, however, with a pronunciation like our word "ee," for in those days the "y," like the "i," was pronounced either as we today pronounce "ee" or the short "i").

Until comparatively modern times, therefore, this family name was not pronounced "Eye-ler," but "Ay-ler," rhyming with "sailor."

Where They Got Their Names.

Quite a lot of geography can be learnt in a stroll round a dry goods shop, for many of the fabrics and materials we use to-day get their names from the places where they were originally made.

For example, calico owes its name to Calicut, a town in India. In the days before Manchester was a great manufacturing centre most of the best calico came from Calicut, and even after the industry came to Britain the old name remained. India is also responsible for muslin, which came originally from a place called Meel.

Two textiles owe their names to France. These are cretonne and cambric, the first of which came from the Normandy town of Creton, while the second is still manufactured at Cambrai.

How many people know that serge takes its name from China, whence it was introduced into England in 1660? The Latin name for China is Silium, which gradually has changed into the modern word serge.

STAPLES

Variation—Staple.
Racial Origin—English.
Source—A locality.

Here is a family name which has nothing to do with the article of hardware of the same name. It is founded rather, upon the same source as our modern adjective "staple" which we used to denote a common article of commerce. What is the connection?

It lies in the original meaning of the word. A staple article is a common or usual article of trade. The phrase has come to have this meaning because it meant originally a "market article," or a marketable article, and in the broad sense only an article in common demand is freely marketable. In the medieval period in which family names were being formed, the "staple" was an open market or trading place.

It was quite natural, therefore, that a man who lived at or near such a place should be referred to as "John De La (of the) Staple," or "William at the Staple." And, as has happened with virtually all of these descriptive surnames as they have become family names through the loss of their original specific meaning, these prefixes have been dropped in the course of time.

Here again is a case in which the addition of the "s" was but a tendency of the tongue, and did not represent a shortened form of the ending "son."

GUARD THE CHILDREN FROM AUTUMN COLDS

The Fall is the most severe season of the year for colds—one day warm, the next cold and wet, and unless the mother is on her guard, the little ones are seized with colds that may hang on all winter. Baby's Own Tablets are mother's best friend in preventing or banishing colds. They act as a gentle laxative, keeping the bowels and stomach free and sweet. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent colds, or if it does come on suddenly their prompt use will relieve the baby. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

GETS HIM IN FINE SHAPE FOR WINTER

"Tanlac built me up in fine shape last Spring, and now I am getting another bottle as a tonic to keep me fit for the cold weather," declared Henry Duesenbach, 450 York St., Hamilton, Ont., recently. Mr. Duesenbach has been identified with the grocery business in Hamilton several years, and is very well known.

"My stomach was troubling me for a long time and I got into a badly run-down condition," he said. "Almost everything I ate upset me terribly, and gas would form on my stomach and keep me miserable. My nerves were unstrung, too, and many a night I never got a bit of rest."

"I was feeling simply all played out when I got my first bottle of Tanlac, but before I had finished it, the pains in my stomach went away entirely, my food began to agree with me and I have never had indigestion since. With my nerves calm, my strength back and my appetite in fine shape, I expect to enjoy Christmas dinner and all the good things of the holidays as I have not done for a long time. They can count on me to always give a good word for Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

Testing Coal for a Queen.

In olden days the Lord Mayor of London was one of the Sovereign's most trusted henchmen, and at times many strange duties have fallen to his lot. One of the quaintest was devised by Queen Elizabeth.

Until her reign coal was almost unknown in the South of England, though sea coal was gathered regularly from the shore and used in the North.

One day a Northumbrian subject sent her a consignment of coal. The Queen saw it burn on the hearth and enjoyed it pleasant glow. "Can it be used for cooking?" she asked. She was assured that it could.

But she was a cautious person. She sent a quantity to her Lord Mayor, ordering him to use it for cooking his own dinner and to report to her whether food treated in this way was fit for human consumption.

Not until the Lord Mayor had reported that he had eaten and survived would she have coal used in the royal kitchen.

The Gentle Hint.

An American editor hit upon the following ingenious method of jogging the memories of delinquent subscribers to his paper:

"There is a little matter that some of our subscribers have seemingly forgotten entirely. Some of them have made us many promises, but have not kept them. To us it is a very important matter—it's necessary in our business. We are very modest and don't like to speak about such remissness."

MOTHER!

Move Child's Bowels with
"California Fig Syrup"

Even a cross, restless, bilious, or constipated child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." A teaspoonful never fails to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the sour bile, and undigested food out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful to-day saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

Help burned Ontario over the Winter

MEN and women of Ontario—it is time that we should all realize the terrible completeness of the fire calamity that devastated Northern Ontario in the early days of October. Fires and calamities we have had before, but never such complete destruction as this.

Over 1,200 square miles laid desolate, town after town nothing but a bleak expanse of ruins, hundreds of farms swept bare, thousands of your fellow citizens "cleaned out" and thrown abruptly back into man's primeval struggle against nature and her grim forces: fire, hunger, ice and the stark northern cold.

Give 1,800 families a fighting chance to get on their feet.
Temporary relief must go on. We must not fail the North.

Winter—the relentless foe

Coming as this terrible fire did, in the autumn, with the harvests in, with the townspeople already preparing for the rigors of winter—the complete destruction wrought is the harder to overcome.

Thousands of people at first had literally no place to lay their head, little to wear and nothing to eat. They had to be taken care of at first, somehow, and then, desperately as the days went by, and the cold grew more intense, rough but serviceable standard shacks, 16' x 20', have been replacing tents, old street cars, packing boxes and sheet iron—a regular food supply has been established, and rough clothing is being distributed.

What can a man do with his house a blackened hole in the ground, his barn a charred heap, his work shop a twisted pile of rubbish—and a northern blizzard raging over all?

Temporary Relief Until Spring

In the name of humanity we must see these fellow citizens through until Spring opens up the land and general business activities are resumed. Money must be forthcoming from the citizens of Ontario, from municipalities, industries, societies, public bodies, lodges, churches, etc.—not for rehabilitation or re-establishment, but for the supply of bare necessities, "temporary relief" in fact, to the stricken North.

The Brighter Side of the Picture

Everywhere throughout the fire swept district one hears only a strong, manly note of confidence, of resolution to go forward, to "stick to the country" if body and soul can be held together, to make good once more, to restore the hundreds of burned farms, to rebuild the eight or ten destroyed towns—And it will be done if the stream of temporary relief from Old Ontario does not dry up!

All for One—One for All

Here is a portion of our Province in ruins, and for the sake of the whole Province as well as for its own sake, this section must be restored to prosperity and happiness. We need the North, we need its vigorous, pioneering spirit so one and all, let's "give a hand into the saddle"—and do it NOW.

Money is needed. The Relief Committee can buy in large quantities, get big discounts, and often free gifts of merchandise from the many manufacturers who are generously co-operating with the Committee. The exact needs are now known.

The Northern Ontario Fire Relief Committee has been enlarged and now is thoroughly representative of the Province of Ontario. The Provincial Government is co-operating to the fullest extent and is doing everything that a Government can properly do to assist in temporarily relieving the fire sufferers.

To give immediate relief the Committee must secure actual cash without delay. If each municipality or county would devise some means of raising an amount equal to one half mill on the total assessment the relief can be continued. The raising of relief funds could be undertaken by public spirited citizens, clubs, churches or councils and provides a most deserving cause for Christmas giving. Now it is up to every community in Ontario to help a neighbouring district in its hour of trial. Make cheques payable to—

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving memory of my dear son Signaler Donald H. Pruner, 87th Battalion, died of wounds, November 18th, 1916, at the battle of the Somme.

Six years have passed, our heart's still sore,

As time goes on, we miss him more;

His memory is to-day as dear

As in the hour he passed away.

Deep in my heart lies a picture

Of a son laid to rest.

In memory's home I shall keep it,

Because I loved him so dear,

My lips cannot speak how much I loved him,

My heart cannot tell what to say,

God only knows how I miss him

As I battle along life's way.

BLUE WATER

A TALE OF THE DEEP
SEA FISHERMEN

BY FREDERICK WILLIAM WALLACE

Copyright by the Mueson Book Company

Thus Frank was left, but with Miss Denton visiting him daily, he was by no means lonely, although he yearned to be up and about again. Sometimes he had his blue moods during which the future looked black; but as soon as Lillian Denton came they vanished like fog before the sun. Daily he looked forward to her coming, and when she failed to arrive one afternoon he had a feeling as if something had gone out of his life.

It is not to be supposed that reading was the only subject which occupied the time. Some days there were when the girl would lay the book down after the recital of a few paragraphs, and they would wander away from the romance of the Doone Valley to the nearer romance of home. She was a lover of the water, of the open spaces and the beauty of nature, and in Frank Westhaver she found a man who had seen and done many things. Unlike the majority of seafarers, he retained the impressions of what his eyes had gazed upon, and had a faculty of simple description which held Miss Denton entranced for many a pleasant hour. His life upon the Banks, the work of the fishery, and tales of the rollicking, dare-devil gangs who manned the vessels of the off-shore fleets, were to her as something entirely new in spite of the fact that she was a Nova Scotian girl and bred in a seaport town. A strange paradox this, but one which is universal. People refuse to see the romance right at their own doors until a stranger comes and opens their eyes.

By the remarks which she was in the habit of letting fall during these talks, Frank wondered how she came to know so much about his history. He had never told her of his trip in from Georges in the Fannie B. Carson, yet she seemed to know all about it; the rescue of Jake Simms; the happenings of his first voyage as skipper, even to the incident of Jules's escape from a St. Malo fisherman, were betrayed by her in casual references to the events. When she left, he was in the habit of pondering over their conversations, and the interest she evinced in his past, and in the ambitions of his future, led him to ask her a question.

"Miss Denton, tell me how you came to know so much about things I've done? I don't remember saying anything 'bout them."

She laughed in her usual sunny way. "Ah, so I've let the cat out of the bag, have I? And I thought I was so diplomatic, too! Captain, it's a fine thing to have good friends—friends who will stand to you like old Salvation Yeo did to Amys Leigh."

"That's all right, Jules!" exclaimed Frank. "So he's the dog!"

"He's a sterling fellow, Captain," she said. "And he thinks the world of you."

Frank nodded, and with a puzzled look in his grey-blue eyes, he asked, "Excuse me, but how did you get to know I was in hospital here? I never rightly knew how that came about."

"Jules again, Captain," she replied. "He had no sooner got you in here before he was up to our house."

"He was, was he?" Frank was still perplexed. "I wonder what put it into his head to go on bother you about my affairs? You were a most a stranger to me. . . . An' it's been him what has been spinnin' ye all these yarns? Poor ol' Jules."

He paused for a few seconds and then gazed into the brown eyes of the girl beside him. "Did he say anything about what happened outside there?"

He hesitated as he saw the embarrassed flush on her cheeks. "How I came to get inter this scrape?"

For a space she turned her gaze away. "Yes," she answered softly. "He told me all."

Westhaver remained silent for a long time thinking. He wondered why his old dory-mate should have told these things. What was his object? Jules had a curious trait of turning things over in his mind and springing unusual questions, and the remarks he sometimes made had impressed

Frank many times with their strange truthfulness.

"You know about that—that girl?" he asked at length.

"Yes," she replied. "Your friend told me all."

For some minutes neither spoke. Frank was gazing hard out at the vista of blue sky showing through the window, and the girl stole a glance at him in his reverie. She remembered the day she first saw him as oilskin clad and ruggedly strong he stood in the door of the berth and looked down upon her. She remembered hearing the tones of his masterful voice as he sung out to the gang while the vessel was lurching and plunging in a Western Ocean gale. How frightened she was then! The roar of the wind and sea; the thunderous crashes of the water on deck; the straining of the little schooner's fabric as she tumbled into the sea; the water pouring down into the cabin; and lastly she retained a vivid impression of his dripping figure as he came below that night. "Yes . . . breeze" up again.

Had I leave her to after she shipped that last load. "How confident and strong he looked! The sun bronze had faded from his face now, but it glowed with the clear pink of health, and the well arm which lay over the white sheets was muscular and powerful. How wistful and gentle his eyes were at that moment! The strong chin, determined mouth, well-shaped nose, and high forehead with the silky brown auburn hair streaking across it made up the features of just such a man as she would imagine had done the things she had heard, and a man who would be no quitter in the face of danger. And he was no common man with but the endowments of strength and iron nerve to commend him. She knew him better than that, and in their many conversations she was able, from the standpoint of a well-educated and clever young woman, to fathom the thoughts which ran in the young fisherman's mind.

Frank turned suddenly and spoke with a half-smile on his face. "Do you know," he said, "I'll be really sorry to get away from here, an' I'll miss you so much."

Miss Denton had been thinking regretfully upon the same question. She too would miss these delightful visits, and for a moment she was at a loss for a reply.

"Yes," he continued, with a note of persistency in his voice. "I'll miss hearin' you readin' to me. You've been so kind to spend your time upon me—a common fisherman, an' you—"

"A common, ordinary girl," interrupted Miss Denton with a laugh.

"No," said the other; " . . . an angel!"

The July days passed slowly, and Frank was glad when the doctor said that he could get up and sit outside in the sunshine. The collar-bone had knit nicely, and it was only the arm which really bothered him. But while he was improving in his physical injuries, he was becoming much disturbed mentally over the fact of leaving the young woman who had cheered the long hours of his enforced loneliness. He had given a great deal of thought to her, and a feeling was beginning to take possession of him that it would be a hard thing for him to leave her when the time came. Whether her feelings in that respect were the same as his own he did not know, and he was afraid—much afraid—that he would make another mistake. To reveal to her the unrest which held him in daily suspense might mean a rejection which would be fatal to their friendship. She was, to him, all that was good and beautiful, and with such a woman to work for he felt that he could do great things. The very thoughts of her inspired him, and an analysis of his attitude towards her showed that he was very much in love.

He had been afraid at first that she was in a social position far superior to his own; but when she admitted that her father's affairs would necessitate her taking up school teaching,

Frank felt almost glad that such was the case. With no barrier of this nature between them, he pondered as to whether she would look upon him in the light which the other girl had—that of his profession as a fisherman. He wondered, but in a vague way he did not think so. Lillian Denton was a girl of the right sort—free from affectation and social airs. Besides, even if he were a fisherman, he could be a gentleman in spite of his profession. He could earn good money and keep a wife in the best of everything. His mother's estate would fall to him some day—but he dismissed the thought. He knew instinctively that Lillian would marry for love and not for money, and Frank wondered if he possessed the attributes which would be likely to attract a girl of her type. "I'm afraid," he soliloquized, "she'll think I'm a feller that's blown about by every wind what blows. Turned down by one girl a few weeks ago, an' proposin' to another a few weeks after. Oh, but I'll never be able to exist without her. She's everythin' to me now, an' if I don't get her, th' bottom'll be knocked out of my life. I'll be no good afterwards. I'll never be able to stick at anythin' . . . but I'll have to do it an' take a chance, for I want her badly—aye, badly."

Westhaver was young, and he loved the beautiful life with his whole heart. It was the way in which he did everything—wholeheartedly. Thrown together so much as they were for many weeks, it is not to be wondered at, his falling in love with Lillian Denton. Frank did not know many girls, and since he was a boy he had lavished all his affection upon one who had proved shallow and false. He was a sailor, and the loneliness of a sailor's life tends to make them respect and honor women more than the ordinary landsman, and when a sailor falls in love he does everything with a rush. Fishermen are said to go the regulation deep-water sailor one better, and there is a saying among the fleets that an extra high-line trip which gives a young fisherman one month's money ahead will send him ashore to marry the first girl he fancies.

The day came when the doctor told him he could leave the hospital on the morrow and go home. Frank received the news with no great enthusiasm, and the medical man—a keen judge of human nature—put two and two together, and made his deductions with a smile. He met Miss Denton on her way up to the institution, and in the course of conversation remarked that "her friend, the Captain, was feeling quite blue about leaving the hospital." The blush which suffused her face when he made the remark sent him off chuckling to himself. "Given a quiet, lonesome hospital; a handsome young sailorman, sick; a pretty girl, sympathetic; daily visits for a few weeks; and the bacteria will take effect. That's the prescription." And smiling to himself at his joke, he went his way.

Frank was sitting by the open window when she entered, and he looked at her with the welcome shining in his eyes. "Got t' clear out t'-morrow," he said when she had seated herself. "Are you sorry?" she asked with a smile.

"Yes," he replied slowly. "I am." She apparently ignored his answer. "Dad wants you to come along to the house and stay for a day or two before you go home. Is your suit-case packed?"

"Everythin' is in it, Miss Denton. But it ain't right for me to impose on you—"

Chrysanthemum Shower for Brides.

Invite the prospective bride to a chrysanthemum luncheon, being careful not to let her suspect that it is to be a shower. Request all the guests to wear yellow chrysanthemums. She is to suspect nothing until she reaches the luncheon table where all the gifts will be piled. Each gift is to bring out in some way, the chrysanthemum motif. The chrysanthemum pattern in linen and cut glass will offer a large field from which to choose, as will hand-painted china. A chrysanthemum vase, parchment candle or lamp-shades decorated with chrysanthemums, a desk set of Japanese material with hand-painted chrysanthemums, are other suggestions for gifts.

As the bride takes her seat, the other guests will shower her with their flowers.

The table decorations will, of course, be yellow and white, using hand-painted place cards and pretty little yellow candy baskets. Small cut-glass baskets with the chrysanthemum pattern and high handles, make charming, though expensive souvenirs for her guests.

After the luncheon, distribute shears, paste, a couple of magazines and a booklet made out of several sheets of white paper and tied with a yellow ribbon, to each guest. These booklets should be marked on the outside, The Bride's Home, the idea being for each girl to indicate with pictures cut from the magazines, her plan for the arrangement of the various rooms in the bride's home. If time does not permit each girl to decorate the whole house of the bride, assign a room to each girl to furnish. The bride will then decide which home or room, as the case might be, most appeals to her, giving her reasons. The girl whose booklet is the choice of the bride receives the prize. It may be preferable to have it understood beforehand, that the bride is to receive the prize, and in that case, a good book on interior decorating would undoubtedly be very welcome.

Possibilities of the Potato.

The most important problem in the world to-day is the future food supply, and in this the potato is an important factor. It supplies approximately twenty-five per cent. of the food of European and English-speaking people. The potato, buttermilk and oatmeal diet of the Irish people has developed one of the most sturdy and enduring races to be found anywhere. There can be no doubt that the liberal use of potatoes has been in a large measure responsible for this sturdiness and endurance.

The potato is not only an easily digestible foodstuff but possesses much higher nutritive value than is generally supposed. According to Gautier, about one-fourth of the weight of the potato is food substance, consisting chiefly of starch. Of the remainder, three-fifths is protein, the tissue-building element, and two-fifths alkaline salts in combination with citric and malic acids, the acids of the lemon and the apple.

Surprise potatoes—Bake large potatoes in skins until three-quarters done. Make an opening in the end and hollow out. Tightly roll a thin slice of bacon, insert in the opening, close and bake until done.

Harvest home potatoes—Cut a thin slice from one side of medium-sized potatoes and scoop out contents. Mince finely, season with salt and pepper then place in shells and cover with thin slices of bacon so arranged that in cooking, the fat of the bacon will run down into the minced filling. Finely chopped celery or cracker crumbs and milk may be added to this filling. Buttered bread crumbs may garnish the top instead of bacon.

Potato cakes—Two cups of hot rice potatoes, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one-half teaspoonful salt, one-half teaspoonful celery salt, one-half teaspoonful of onion juice, yolk of one egg. Mix the dry ingredients, shape and bake in cakes. When all is done, brush the cakes with cream to glaze them.

A SIN TO LET HAIR FALL OUT

35c "Danderine" Saves Your Hair—Ends Dandruff! Delightful Tonic

Hurry! It's your day! Each day you see a little more hair falling out and you are making no effort to avoid baldness. What a pity. Falling hair means your hair is weak, sick, possibly dandruff is strangling it, or the hair root pores in the scalp are not firm and tight, thus wasting the hair-growing oils.

Danderine almost instantly stops falling hair of men or women and cleans every particle of dandruff away, then the hair takes on new life, vigor and strength to grow strong, thick, and long.

Danderine is delightful—not sticky or greasy. Go to any drugstore now and get a bottle. Use it! Have healthy, heavy, beautiful hair and lots of it.

Rupture Kills 7,000 Annually

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificate being marked "Rupture." Why? Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the sign (swelling) of the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance, or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a make-shift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and every truss sufferer in the land is invited to make a test right in the privacy of their own home. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO PAD when adhering closely to the body cannot possibly slip or shift out of place, therefore cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—inexpensive. To be used whilst you work and whilst you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached.

Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended so the rupture CAN'T come down. Send your name and ten cents, coin or stamps, to-day, to PLAPAO CO., 765 Stuart Bldg., St. Louis, Mo., for trial Plapao and the information necessary.

TURKS FIND ATTITUDE OF BRITAIN AND FRANCE SERIOUS BLIGHT TO HOPES

Kemalists See Little Hope of Peace in the Uncompromising Stand of Allies at Lausanne — Speculation on Result of War With Russia, Turkey and Germany in Alliance.

Constantinople, Dec. 8.—After two weeks of fruitless negotiations at Lausanne, the Turkish Nationalists in Angora and Constantinople are in despair that the conference will result in a settlement of the Near Eastern problems. Failure to come to terms on the more important questions before the conference is not troubling Angora most. They find the uncompromising attitude of Great Britain and France the most serious blight to their hopes for an early peace.

The insistence of Great Britain and France that Turkey is a defeated nation, that the Lausanne Conference is based on the armistice of Mudros, and not Mudania, is at the bottom of most of the pessimism of the leaders of new Turkey.

The Nationalist forces fought what they regarded as a war of independence, and they believe they have won this war. The stubbornness of the allies in insisting on a limitation of Mustafa Kemal Pasha's army, demilitarization of the European boundaries, and other measures which the Nationalists believe touch the sovereign rights of Turkey, are convincing them that peace is not yet at hand, and Turkey is wearily grinding up its loins to continue the struggle.

While the Nationalists do not regret the loss of territories which contained only subject peoples, they will not brook the limitation of their new independence without a further struggle, and inevitably they will turn to Bolshevik Russia.

The question on everyone's lips is: "If it is war, can the struggle be kept within the borders of Turkey, or must we face another world conflict, with Russia, Germany and Turkey lined up against Britain and France."

The ruins of St. Boniface College, near Winnipeg, after the fire in which ten people lost their lives. So far only three of the recovered bodies have been identified. Rumors of incendiarism are rife.

GERMANY AND RUSSIA ARRANGE SECRET MILITARY CONTRACT

A despatch from London says:—The Daily Mail, which for a long time has been claiming that Germany is arming for a war of revenge against France, has just published a sensational memorandum sent by "A person in close touch with the best informed circles in Berlin," declaring that a secret military agreement exists between Russia and Germany.

The central idea of this agreement, says the Mail, is that Great Britain, the United States and Italy will hold aloof from the next war, leaving Germany and Russia free to attack France. The memorandum asserts that while Germany is following the letter of the Versailles treaty regarding the number of officers and men allowed in her standing army, she is sending her best officers into Russia to help reorganize the Russian army.

When this is accomplished, says the memorandum, the Russian army will constitute a skeleton to which, at a given signal, immense numbers of German units can be added instantly.

German armament firms are being transferred to Russia, it is said, where they are putting out munitions intended ultimately for German use. Russian submarines and mine layers are being planned under German direction it declared.

A third factor, says the Mail, is the plan of Russia to feed herself and Germany during this proposed war, thus escaping the effects of a naval blockade. Under this alleged bargain, Poland, which lies between Germany and Russia, must be overrun and crushed so as to enable the two countries to co-operate along a common frontier. This war, the Mail's correspondent adds, is only ten years distant.

Algoma Trapper Takes Giant Timber Wolves

A despatch from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., says:—Walter Grunlund, a trapper at Mile 154, on the Algoma Central Railway, brought to the Sault the hides of two of the largest wolves ever trapped in the North country, for which he will receive the Government bounty. Both were grey timber wolves, and one measured over six feet, while the other was five feet eight inches. The wolves were caught in traps. Grunlund was one of the men who discovered the two dead Finlanders at the side of the lake at Regent last August.

Northern Parliament Meets December 7

A despatch from Dublin says:—It is announced that the Northern Parliament will meet December 7, instead of December 12, to contract out of the Free State.

Saskatchewan will harvest ten million bushels of potatoes this year, or approximately 955 per cent. of the average potato crop of the province.

DESECRATING HISTORIC GROUND.
The steam shovel at work at the gravel and sand pit at Burlington Heights, near Hamilton, which roused the indignation of the Wentworth Historical Society. It was undermining the cemetery in which lie buried British soldiers and unknown American soldiers who fought in the war of 1812. The excavating has been stopped.

IRISH REBELS FACE FIRING SQUAD AT PORTOBELLO BARRACKS

A despatch from Dublin says:—Three young men faced firing squads on Thursday. So far, eight prisoners have been executed at the order of the military court.

There was a dramatic scene in Parliament on Thursday night over the death of the youths, who were Joseph Spooner, Patrick Farrelly and John Murphy. First, Labor and Independent deputies rose and criticized the secrecy of the military courts. They demanded publicity for the trials.

Defence Minister Mulcahy, in answer, recited the circumstances of the arrests. The young men were residents of the workers' district in the city. They were arrested a month ago after an alleged attempt to destroy Oriel House. Spooner, it was alleged, had a revolver; Farrelly, a cachy explained, had miscarried because six of the men in the plot disobeyed orders.

Mulcahy quoted from a document, which, he said, was found on the men. The documents revealed complete plans for the blowing up of the building and its occupants. The plans, Mulcahy said, were found on the men.

These young men executed Thursday were shot at Portobello Barracks. Many other prisoners are under trial in the military courts and there may be more executions. Absolute quietness prevails in Dublin these nights, but nevertheless there is uneasiness among the people, because of the fear of an attempt at a grand coup. The Government offices and the Ministers and Members of Parliament are under protection of a guard.

RAPID TRANSIT OF MAILS AT BORDER

International Postal Conference at Ottawa to Promote Efficiency.

Ottawa, Dec. 8.—Reciprocity of good will in the postal relations between Canada and the United States, the banishing of "red tape," and increased efficiency, especially at the border, were the key notes for the International Postal Conference sounded here to-night by Hon. Hubert Work, Postmaster General of United States. Mr. Work and his associates arrived here to-day, and were greeted by Hon. Charles Murphy, Postmaster General of Canada, together with officials of the Canadian Postal Department.

"We speak the same language, we are of the same people," Mr. Work declared when intimating that the boundary, which, he agreed, was unique in history, should not be permitted to be of any hindrance to the rapid handling of the mails.

Mr. Work heartily endorsed the idea of the conference. He is accompanied by the following United States Postal officials: W. Irving Glover, Assistant Postmaster General; John H. Edwards, Solicitor of the Post Office Department; Edwin Sands, Superintendent of Foreign Mails; Peter Schardt, Superintendent of the Railway Mail Service, and Charles Riddiford, Post Office Inspector.

Comet Discovered by S. American Astronomer

A despatch from Cambridge, Mass., says:—The Harvard Observatory has received word by cable of the discovery of a comet by Skjellerup, the South American astronomer, at Cape Town, on November 26. The comet is described as faint. The position given was in the constellation of Crater.

Telescopic photographs taken at Harvard after the receipt of the cablegram show the comet to be brighter than Beade's comet, which was recently discovered, and to be moving more rapidly. It is going south-east at a rate of between three and four diameters of the moon a day.

PRINCE ANDREW EXILED FROM GREECE

Refusal to Obey Orders Resulted in Defeat in Campaign at Sargaris River.

London, Dec. 8.—Prince Andrew has been sentenced to perpetual banishment by the court-martial sitting at Athens, according to a Reuter despatch. In addition, he will suffer degradation in the army.

The refusal of Prince Andrew to obey orders resulted in defeat for the Greeks in the campaign at the Sargaris River, according to General Papoulas; had the second army attacked, victory was possible.

General Papoulas admitted that Prince Andrew had not been dismissed from his command because he was the King's brother.

Athens, Dec. 8.—Prince Andrew and his wife, Princess Alice, embarked at Phaleron this afternoon aboard a British warship. It is understood they will be taken to England.

ELEVEN LIVES LOST ON FOUNDERED SHIP

Maplehurst Breaks Up in Lake Superior During Violent Storm.

A despatch from Houghton, Mich., says:—Eleven men, members of the crew of the Canadian steamer, Maplehurst, lost their lives early on Friday morning when the vessel foundered near the Upper, or canal entrance to the Keweenaw Waterway. Nine others were saved by Captain Charles A. Tucker, and the members of the crew of the coast guard station at the canal.

Not a single life would have been lost, Captain Tucker declared, if the men on the doomed steamer had acted promptly and jumped into the coast guard power boat when he told them to, as he brought it alongside the Maplehurst. Ten times Captain Tucker laid his frail craft alongside the Maplehurst and every man aboard had a chance to get off. Ten out of the twenty on board jumped. First Mate Henry J. Smith missed the lifeboat and went to his death in the lake. The nine others who jumped were saved, while the ten who remained on the Maplehurst perished.

The dead:—George Nelson Menard, captain, 29, in command of the Maplehurst, Kingston, Ont.

Ambrose Dunn, chief engineer, Kingston, Ont.

Frank Smith, first mate, Kingston, Ont.

J. Lalonde, mate, Valleyfield, Que.

John Wood, wheelman, Hamilton, Ont.

Hiram Willard, wheelman, Kingston, Ont.

Garlean Malette, oiler, Cascade Point, Ont.

M. Mackaskill, fireman, Sydney, N. S.

Hughes, steward, Montreal, Que.

C. E. Pelon, deckhand, St. Zotique, Que.

E. Pelon, deckhand, St. Zotique, Que.

The survivors are: Jean Duval, St. Zotique; Will Suave, St. Zotique; Frank Roderique, Coteau; Fred Marshall, Montreal; Henry Burch, Cabong; H. Duval, St. Zotique; Henry Murray, Kingston, Ont.; Thomas C. Brown, Montreal.

The Maplehurst, owned by the Canadian Steamship Co., of Montreal, was bound from Lorain, Ohio, to Fort William, with a cargo of coal. The vessel encountered a storm Thursday, and Captain Menard headed his ship down the shore, intending to enter the canal, but the storm increased so rapidly that he feared to enter. The Maplehurst continued west, three or four miles off shore, while the storm raged with increased violence. The velocity of the wind was over 60 miles an hour.

There are 3,000 commercial orchards in the Okanagan Valley, B.C., bearing approximately 1,000,000 trees, according to the latest statistics. It is estimated that 3,172 carloads of apples and 5,405 cars of all kinds of fruit will be exported from the Okanagan district this year.

The Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior says:—

Federal plans for a chain of wireless stations extending right into the Arctic circle are being completed. The stations will be operated by the Dominion Government, with the primary purpose of keeping its various officials in touch with one another.

Six stations are planned, five of which will be in the Northwest Territories and another at Dawson. The stations on or near the Mackenzie river will be located at Fort Smith, Fort Resolution, Fort Simpson, Fort Norman and Fort McPherson. They will likely be opened early in the spring, before the opening of river navigation. In view of the resumption of active oil drilling operations, the service will be of interest to those who are contemplating operations of that kind.

The annual Bazaar and Supper under the auspices of the Mission Circle of the Methodist Church, held in the Lecture Room, Thursday of last week, was a splendid success. The booths for the Bazaar were prettily arranged, while the Lecture Room was tastefully decorated with Japanese parasols. A large number partook of the bountiful repast served. One feature of the bazaar was that not one article was left over which was a splendid testimony of the low price asked for the articles, and showed what exceptional bargains were to be had. The Mission Circle realized $281.25 from their sale and supper, and they wish to thank the public who helped in such a worthy cause.

Blurred Vision

is the heritage of some children. They start life with eyes out of focus, and, because of either a lack of care or some wrong formation or arrested development of the eyes, they remain blurred and the child thinks all things are naturally fuzzy or distorted and does the best he can.
