JUNE 19 FIXED AS ELECTION DAY

The Ontario general elections will be held June 19. Official announcement of the date was made at Toronto on Wednesday night.

Official nominations will be held June 12, and advance polls on June 16 and 18.

Premier George S. Henry announced the dates and also dissolution of Ontario's legislature.

Premier Henry made his brief announcement from the open window of his automobile as he left Government House. He had been conferring for 20 minutes with Lieut.-Governor Herbert A. Bruce.

The lieutenant-governor signed the order-in-council providing for dissolution of the legislature, and issuance of the writs. Premier Henry did not issue an election manifesto.

For three days, Premier Henry and his cabinet have held conferences discussing the election date, and preparing the Conservative manifesto. At the conclusion of the conference on Wednesday, the election date was announced.

For weeks, party heads have been campaigning in preparation for the vote. Premier Henry and his cabinet ministers have delivered addresses at numerous nomination meetings, and Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader, has waged a busy campaign.

The nomination meetings have placed 67 Conservative, 79 Liberal, 11 C.C.F., one Independent Liberal, three Communist and one United Front candidates in the field.

Premier Henry was chosen unanimously in his riding of York East, and Mr. Hepburn was the unanimous choice of Elgin Liberals.

Premier Henry promised his manifesto would be made shortly, but it may be delayed until this weekend. The government is reported to have some important announcement to make regarding the farming industry in both northern and southern Ontario, and these may be included in the manifesto.

The returning officers for the 90 ridings have been notified of their appointments. Issuance of the writs Wednesday night automatically makes the campaign 34 days long, two days more than the 32 required by statute.

TEACHER WITH ENVIABLE RECORD RESIGNS—POSITION IS FILLED

At the regular meeting of the Morrisburg Board of Education, held on Monday night, Miss Doris Tracy, daughter of Mrs. E.J. Tracy, was engaged to fill the vacancy on the Public School staff, caused by the resignation of Mrs. C.L. Hazell.

The Board were fortunate in securing a teacher who has had considerable experience in her profession, to fill the position made vacant by the resignation of a teacher with an enviable record of more than fifty years of faithful and successful service. While the Board, as well as the citizens generally have, on numerous occasions, expressed their appreciation of the capable and exemplary manner in which Mrs. Hazell, the retiring teacher, has during these long years discharged her duties, perhaps the most appreciable tribute comes from those in whom she has instilled and kindled the spark of future success. Among these ex-pupils, many of whom have taken their places as leading men and women of the community, Mrs. Hazell is held in highest esteem. Her retirement has caused universal regret in Morrisburg.

MR. AND MRS. A.E. McPHERSON BURIED TOGETHER

The remains of Andrew E. MacPherson, retired Cardinal merchant, and his wife, were borne to the grave together at that village on Saturday last, Mr. MacPherson having died suddenly at Aultsville on Thursday, while his wife, formerly Florence Bowen of Iroquois, passed away in April, and her remains were interred at the same time.

Eighty-three years of age, Mr. MacPherson had been in his usual state of health up to the time of his death. On Thursday afternoon, he left for a motor trip to the Longue Sault in company with his nephew, Walter E. Gilbert, celebrated Canadian commercial pilot, who was visiting him, the party travelling in a car driven by Rev. R.C. Archer, Presbyterian minister at Cardinal. As they passed through Aultsville, Mr. MacPherson noticed some old friends in the street, and had the car stopped, expiring almost immediately, and without the slightest warning.

He was a native of Cardinal, and engaged in business there for many years. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. Ida Gilbert, of Cardinal.

Rev. R.C. Archer conducted the double funeral service on Saturday

MR. AND MRS. F. W. BEACH HONORED

More than fifty friends and neighbours gathered on Saturday evening at a surprise party to say farewell to Mr. and Mrs. F.W. Beach, and family, of Iroquois, who are leaving to reside in Winchester.

More than 51 years ago Mr. Beach with his parents and brothers, moved to Iroquois, and his entire life has been spent in that community. He is married to Nellie Burnside, and to this union six children were born, all of whom were home for the first time in eight years, to celebrate Mothers' Day with their parents.

The Ladies' Aid of Iroquois United Church presented Mrs. Beach and her daughter, Hazel, with a chair. The address was read by Mrs. Dora Thompson, the presentation being made by Miss Edith Forward, president.

Mr. Beach thanked the gathering, on behalf of his wife, and spoke very feelingly of his attachments in Iroquois. The rest of the evening was spent in reminiscing and general conversation.

CUP IS OFFERED FOR DUNDAS SOFTBALL LOOP

A meeting of the Dundas County Softball League was held in the town hall, Winchester, Friday night last, to complete the organization of that body and draw up a code of rules to govern the teams. The meeting was in charge of the president, Mr. George C. Lacey of Chesterville. Representatives were present from Hallville, South Mountain, Strader's Hill, Williamsburg, Chesterville and Winchester. Morrisburg was not represented, but informed the president that a team woud be entered from that town. Mountain Station will not be represented in the league.

A letter was read by the secretary to the effect that the Hon. George H. Challies would provide a cup to be competed for.

It was decided that each club must register 20 players; that the visiting team would provide the umpire-in-chief and that the home team would provide the base umpire for all league games except the playoff series, and that all games must start at 6.30 p.m. sharp, E.S.T.

The drawing up of the schedule was left in the hands of the president and secretary. When completed, it is to be submitted to the managers of the different clubs for their approval. It was decided to play the first league game on Friday, May 25.

MRS. E. C. MERKLEY

After having been confined to her room for several months, following an operation performed at Brockville General Hospital, Mrs. E.C. Merkley, an esteemed citizen of the Village of Morrisburg, died at her home on Sunday, May 13th, at 8 p.m.

The late Mrs. Merkley, whose maiden name was Charlotte I. Smith, was the last surviving member of a family of three sons and three daughters, of the late George and Mary Smith. She was born at Williamsburg on Sept. 18th, 1885, and spent the greater part of her life in her native village. On March 12, 1884, she was united in marriage to Mr. Edmund C. Merkley, the late Rev. Jno. Davidson officiating. For the last twenty years she had resided in Morrisburg with her husband, during which time she had made many friends. Most ofher spare time was devoted to the welfare of St. Paul's Church, of which she was a member, and was also recognized as one of the leading workers in the W.M.S.

Surviving are her husband; a niece, Miss Mary Empey of Winchester; and three nephews, Dr. Marshall Empey, Hammond, N.Y., Dr. Chas. D. Empey, Jersey City, N.J. and James Smith, Chicago.

The funeral was held on Tuesday May 15th, at 2 p.m. in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Rev. Mehlanbacher conducting the service. The remains were laid to rest in Mount Pleasant cemetery.

The pall bearers were Messrs R.G. Merkley, Jas. Simpson, John Sheehan, Alex Shannette, Lee Pennick and Walter G. Beckstead.

MRS. CLINTON CASSELMAN BURIED AT WILLIAMSBURG

The body of Mrs. Angelina Casselman, wife of Clinton Casselman of Ottawa, who died on March 5th, was taken from the vault at Brinston for re-interment at the cemetery at Williamsburg. The remains were taken from the parlors of H. Wallace Funeral Home, Brinston, on Sunday, to St. Peter's Lutheran Church, Williamsburg, where a memorial service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. C.R. Cronmiller.

There was a large gathering of relatives and friends at the service, showing the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

Chief mourners were her husband, one daughter, Orma; three sons, Mahlon, Nathan and Walter, all of Ottawa; her father, Mr. Levi J. Casselman; one brother, Mr. John F. Casselman, of Williamsburg; one sister, Mrs. J.D. Deeks of Farrans Point, and several nephews and nieces.

The pall bearers, all nephews, were: Frank Whitteker, Walter Whitteker, Aden Casselman, Clifford Casselman, Arnold McIntosh and Ivan Casselman.

CANADIANS.

The disturbance of a year or two ago over the question of Canadian nationality has evidently borne fruit, with the announcement that children born in Canada can now be desigated on their birth certificates as "Canadians." The following significant paragraph is added to the birth certificate: "Nationality is defined as the country to whcih the person owes allegiance. The term 'Canadian' should be used as descriptive of every person who has rights of citizenship in Canada. Every person born in Canada should be entered as 'Canadian' unless he or she has subsequently become the citizen of another country.' With all our vaunting of Canada's proud position as an autonomous nation in the British Commonwealth of Nations, it has required until 1934 A.D. to remedy the anomalous and preposterous condition which denied Canadians the right to call themselves 'Canadian'."—Simcoe Reformer.

THEY READ EDITORIALS.

At noon today a fine, manly, upstanding young chap left the Star office with a copy of the paper in his hand. He went across the street,—and listen carefully, you editors,—sat down in his car and spread out the paper. He started to thumb the pages. He passed up the front page without notice, carefully unravelled the paper till he got his eye on pages 2 and 3, immediately wet his thumb again, and unleashed another page. Ah, here was what he wanted to see first! The editorial page! And the intelligent youth spread it out and began to enjoy himself.

Now why was that remarkable? Because it was the first time this column had ever seen anybody deliberately hunting up the editorial page to read its contents before tackling any other part of the paper. It struck us as the outstanding event of the day.

That young man is a credit to Algoma. If he is in business he will wind up a very rich man. If he is in politics he will likely be premier some day. But in any case he has knocked on the head one of our favorite theories—that nobody ever reads the editorials. We thank him, and anything in reason he can have from this column even to leaving his name out of the paper if he ever gets into police court.

Just what the event portends is beyond us.—Sault Ste. Marie Star.

PILLOWS AND SOAP.

The New York visitor notices peculiar evidences of economy. At one famous hotel, which cost millions of dollars, the beds in singlerooms are provided with only one pillow apiece. The aggregate saving in laundry and service thus effected in a very large hostelry is considerable. The bathrooms are not as plentifully supplied with cakes of soap as they used to be. In the magnificent Grand Central Station on the 42nd Street the incoming baggage department has been closed so that incoming and outgoing baggage are handled by a single staff. Here again a considerable saving has been achieved. These are examples of the far-reaching economies that are being practised south of the international border.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

REMINDERS OF "TAY PAY."

The presence of Sir Basil Thomson in Paris to help solve the Stavisky affair recalls that "Tay Pay" O'Connor once was requested by him, when metropolitan police head, to lend an editorial hand to prohibit comic policemen on the films. Which, in turn, recalls, according to Hamilton Fyfe's "Life of T. P." that Justin McCarthy once said to O'Connor: "T. P., when you reach Heaven, it won't be more than an hour before you have a cohort of angels setting type for 'T.P.'s Daily Glory'." "T. P.'s own vision was hardly so flattering. "When I am on my deathbed," he said, "and the friars are gathering round to shrive me, I will be found with a typewriter on my chest pounding out an article to pay the funeral expenses."—a prophecy all too nearly fulfilled.—Winnipeg Tribune.

WIDOWS AND PENSIONS.

One evening while in Toronto I was relating an incident which occurred in Orillia this winter. On a certain Saturday night a man who has spent practically all his days in Orillia died at a good age, and the next morning a neighbor's wife came to see the widow. During the conversation the bereaved woman made the remark that it was too bad it was Sunday as she could not go up to see about her pension. She had children young enough to claim the allowance.

A man who heard me tell the story turned to his wife and said: "Now tell yours." She then related an incident she had come across in Toronto. A man died and his wife applied for the allowance. For some reason there were delays and the money was not forthcoming. She began to weary of the delays, and one day remarked to a friend that "It almost makes me sorry my husband died."

I think my Toronto friend had the edge on my story.—J. R. Hale, in the Orillia Packet-Times.

SECRETS NO LONGER.

Yes, this is a wonderful age. In fact, few of us realize just how wonderful an age it is. The grouches who live in the past, and see only the dark side of life, will soon have passed, and the progress of science will make life so transparent that there will not be even a secret to keep locked up in one's heart and mind. They have invented a way by which they can tell whether a convict, prisoner or witness, under expert examination, is telling the truth or lying. They have the X-ray machine that enables a physician to look right through your body, and detect any foreign substance there. But the X-ray does not reveal many ailments that are so often both mysterious and distressing. Now there has been invented, and recently tried at Philadelphia, a small cylinder tube that is a camera, with a tiny electric bulb attached. No one can predict what another fifty years may bring to humanity.—Winchester Press.

TRUE.

Somehow we feel sure the seeds being sown in our garden will never turn out to be such beautiful vegetables as those appearing in brilliant color on the packages.—Smiths Falls Record-News.

The Empire

THE ALTERNATIVE.

Auckland News—If, as is now openly said, neither disarmament nor a limitation of armaments is generally acceptable, but merely a limitation of re-armament, the sooner all the facts are authoritatively known the sooner will peace with security be attainable. The alternative is an unchecked drift into competitive arming, with a ghastly tragedy as its only outcome.

SOMETHING TO BE PROUD OF.

The Empire Review—With the reopening of the Royal Ontario Museum after being closed for some months for rearrangement and building additions, there is a distinct step forward in Empire culture and learning. This can best be appreciated by stating that, outside of London, the collection in Toronto is more than the equal in a general way of any other in the British Empire, and in some branches is the leader in the field. Remembering the recent birth of Canada as a nation, and the small population of the Dominion compared with its vast area, it seemed to me a gigantic monument raised in veneration of the world's historic past.

THE MUSHROOM SEASON.

Johannesburg Times—South Africa has long been famed for her splendid mushrooms—not the edible variety, but the mushroom mining companies that are here today and gone tomorrow. They have been with us ever since gold and diamonds were first unearthed in this country, and will probably be with us long after the last diamond and the last grain of gold have been disgorged. In mining boom times, such as we have experienced during the past twelve months they become particularly virulent, and there can hardly be a bottom drawer in the land that is not lined with beautiful but valueless scrip. We are a patient yet venturesome community and probably nothing will ever prevent us from risking a gamble in what we always hope will prove a second Sub-Nigel—and, especially of late, there have been many stories to encourage us of long worthless shares suddenly achieving considerable value woing to unexpected re-flotations. There is also an encouraging sign in the increasing tendency among shareholders to take a healthy interest in the activities of their chosen companies.

WEATHER IN AUSTRALIA.

The Australasian—This March has seen the tropics leave their usual habitations north of Capricorn and descend upon Victoria and South Australia. It is a safe rule to talk about the weather if one has nothing else interesting to say; but talk about weathery conditions in Melbourne and Adelaide lately has not been dictated by the demands of politeness. In Melbourne, of course, the unexpected in weather is always the expected; but the spectacle of autumn leaves falling in a heat-wave is a triumph of the incongruous. The only people who can have derived any satisfaction from the hot days are the weather officials, who, at least, have seen new records established. "Let our seasons be seasonable" is a slogan (in this age of slogans) which Victoria may adopt in the future. The old idea of an orderly flow of seasons—"If winter comes, can spring be far behind?"—is discredited. The weather god apparently relies upon the toss of a coin. That may be an easy way of administering the flow of the seasons; but it is very inconsiderate!

We deem those happy who, from the experience of life, have learned to bear its ills, without being overcome by them.—Juvenal.

Defies Abductors

Tiny June Redding, 21-year-old girl, who weights only a mere 90 pounds, beat up three men who tried to abduct her sister and herself. She did it with her little hatchet, pardon we mean shoes—see them?

Workers Increase By 150,000

Total of 847,993 Employed in Canada on April 1 as Against 1933. — Gain is Analyzed

OTTAWA—An increase of almost 150,000 was shown in the number of persons employed on April 1, when 8,477 employers reported 847,993 persons employed as compared with 7,975 firms having 698,544 workers on the same date last year, says a report issued recently by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Increases were shown in manufacturing, especially of leather, lumber, textile and iron and steel products. Metallic ore mining, building construction, services and trade also showed improvement; the gains in trade were unusually large, having only once been exceeded in the years since 1920. On the other hand, logging camps reported very large seasonal reductions, a reaction from an exceptionally active season in bush work, and there were important declines in railway construction and maintenance; the persons released by the employers furnishing data in these two industries numbered approximately 13,600 from logging and 6,400 from track maintenance. Pronounced curtailment of a seasonal nature also occurred in coal-mining, and transportation was slacker.

In the Maritime Provinces employment was in greater volume than at the beginning of April, 1933. On the base 1926 equals 100, the index stood at 95.1 as compared with 78.3 on the same date last year.

In Quebec manufacturing, metallic ore mining, services and retail trade afforded more employment, while textile, and iron and steel factories recorded greater activity. Small pulp and paper and other plants. gains were also reported in lumber. The index on April 1 stood at 85.1, as compared with 73.1 on April 1, 1933.

Manufacturing showed further recovery in Ontario at the first of April, 1934, notably in iron and steel products, while improvement also took place in leather, lumber, nonferrous metal, rubber and textile factories. In the non-manufacturing groups, mining, steam railway transportation, highway construction, services and retail trade to the completion of seasonal operations, and building and railway construction were also slacker. On April 1 the index was 98.7 as compared with 78.3 on the corresponding date last year.

As is customary in the early Spring employment in the Prairie Provinces declined; the loss, however, was less than the average indicated in the last 13 years, and also involved a much smaller number of workers than that which occurred on April 1, 1933. The index at 78.3, was then five points lower than on the date under review. Most of the decline at the beginning of April in the present year took place in coal-mining, but highway and railway construction, logging and lumbering also showed curtailment. On the other hand, retail and wholesale trade reported improvement. The working forces of the 1,253 co-operating employers aggregated 104,186 persons, compared with 104,928 on March 1.

An advance was indicated in British Columbia, according to returns tabulated by the bureau from 843 firms with 71,371 employes. A rather large increase had been noted on April 1 of a year ago, but employment was then in smaller volume. There were gains on the date under review in manufacturing, especially of lumber products, and in building and railway construction and retail trade, while shipping companies released help.

White Most Flatter'g Adaptable of Colors

New Evening Gown has Long Sleeves — Both Crisp and Soft Materials in Vogue for Summer

HOLLYWOOD—White, in any material that is cool, and the modern substitutes for crinoline with their fresh crispness are advised for summer wear by the Hollywood stylists.

From the most informal dresses worn in the morning, from beach togs, tennis frocks and street wear gowns to gowns of formal importance, Orry Kelly says white is the most adaptable and flattering of all colors for a woman to choose.

This theory is illustrated in a gown designed by Kelly for Ann Dvorak. It is simply made of sheer white crepe and the skirt is intricately cut in a moulded line, with a slight fullness at its lower edge. The bodice has conical slits at the shoulder line, set in with flesh-toned marquisette and garnished with two huge crystal buttons, which form an anchorage for a detachable cape wrap that has an exciting military dash.

Two interesting touches are the use of long sleeves, even for a summer evening gown, and the draped sash, which ties in front.

With printed frocks, in pastel or bright tones, the practical combination of an ensemble jacket of solid white is suggested by designer Kelly.

Royer, the Fox sartorial expert, is sponsoring the new vogue of crispness. He is designing gowns for summer in such brittle material as organdie, mousseline de sole, stiff piques and failles, net, tulle, and maline. Despite their apparent frailty they make themselves suitable for every summer occasion.

Conscience Causes Girl's Refusal of Her Championship

Won Title at Bridge Olympic Through Connivance — Culbertson Commends Honesty

NEW YORK—The National Bridge Association announced that a conscience-stricken Chicago girl had refused to accept the Illinois championship of last winter's bridge Olympic Her partner played the hands she should have played through the connivance of opponents.

The Illinois State title was awarded originally to J. K. Howe, and his partner, Miss Josephine Marks, of Chicago.

The association announced receipt of a letter from Howe saying that Miss Marks felt she could not accept the trophy; she had taken two lessons in bidding from Howe before the tournament, but never had played a hand; her conscience told her that the victory was unfair to other players.

In consequence the state title was awarded to Breese Davenport and Dr. E. D. Seymour, both of Streator. Howe and Miss Marks were given duplicates of the Illinois championship trophies and Ely Culbertson commended them for honesty.

Japan Seeking 1940 Olympiad For 2600th Anniversary Fair

TOKIO. — Tokio already is planning the Orient's greatest "World's Fair to be held seven years hence and hoping to bring here at the same time the twelfth Olympic games

If the orthodox Japanese histories are accepted literally (which they are not by Western scholars) the Empire of Japan will be 2600 years old in 1940. It was February 11, 660 B. C. to give the exact date fixed by the 'Ancient Books' that the first Emporer, Jimmu Tenno, great-great-grandson of the "divine ancestress" of the Japanese people, the sun goddess Amatrasu-O-Mi-Kami took possession of the islands of Nippon and established the dynasty which still reigns. Hirohito, the present mikado, is considered to be the 123rd successor of Jimmu Tenno.

Thus Japan's World Fair will celebrate history as measured by millenniums as contrasted with the brief centuries of history commemorated by the expositions staged by cities of America, Chicago's 'Century of Progress St. Louis' "Louisiann Purchase Exposition" and the rest.

Promoters of the fair already are holding committee meetings and have petitioned the government to establish an official exposition association at an early date. The exposition is to be called the Dai Nippon Bankoku Hakurankal, or "Great Japan Alltions to participate will be sent to 53 countries.

Present plans call for a seven-month session, beginning April 3rd, 1940, since April 3rd is observed in Japan as the anniversary of the death of Jimmu Tenno in 581 B. C.

Since 1928 Japnese sports leaders have been trying to obtain the agreement of the Olympic committee to hold the 1946 Olympiad in Tokio that year having been selected because of Countries Exposition," and invitasents in Japanese history, or tradition and because plans for the big exposition have been taking form for several years.

White Canvas Boot For the Seashore

Look Like Riding Gear — Protect Satin Slippers From Sand

PARIS—"Beauty and the Beast" has been corrupted to "Boots and the Beach" since Worth showed the new and exciting white canvas boots for the sunny seasides. They resemble riding boots in line, but can be worn on various occasions. They can even be worn—slipped on over delicate evening shoes—when one is going to a beach party and it is easier and quicker to reach the destination by way of the beach than the inland road. They protect the satin slippers from the sands.

Another type of beach shoe is Vera Borea's "Bootee" in white kid This laces across the front of the foot but leaves the toes bare. It gives the bathing ensemble a rather dressy effect, especially when worn with the new linen shorts by Borea.

"The true Parisienne shoe," says a shoe stylist here who knows her business, "has long since aimed to be as light as the proverbial cloud, but, believe it or not, shoes are now rivaling clouds in the question of linings; shoes do not insist on a silver lining, but all other most delicate shades in soft kid line the exclusive shoes nowadays or sometimes a neat printed kid in shades that most aptly blend with the outside of the shoe. A small point, but small points are what distinguish the women of fine taste.

New Type Tests Are Suggested

Would Find Out Attitude Of Students Toward World

Cleveland, Ohio, Children will be no longer marked according to their knowledge of the capital of New Zealand or the chief product of Chile if members of the American Educational Research Association, in session here recently, have their way.

Test based only on the subject matter taught in the schools are not effective methods of measuring learning, the research workers believe, and they are eager to have more use made of the instruments for measuring the attitudes produced by learning

For instance in the field of social science they are agreed that it would be better to find out what attitudes the children are building up toward those of different nations or different economic levels from themselves, and how critical-minded their lessons are making them.

Some of the directions in which research is apt to turn during the coming year were indicated in an interview with Mr. Paul T. Rankin, director of instruction, Board of Education, Detroit, president of the Association.

"Research workers are finding that they must exercise considerable leadership in the discovery and selection of problems on which to work," said Mr. Rankin. 'Certainly we shall need to turn attention more and more to school support and taxation. We shall need to appraise instructional programs in their whole effect upon the child, not upon the segments of learning.

"We shall need to develop more adequate procedures for training for the wise use of leisure time. We need research to discover what uses of leisure time actually help toward the abundant life, toward satisfaction for the individual and the community. For instance we should determine whether a love for literature is best indicated by spending a whole semester with Milton's minor poems or by permitting the students freedom to browse among all the English poets and make their own anthologies."

The association has been hearing discussions over the week-end dealing with problems of research in various branches of education and today is devoting time to new evidence in teaching, and to the Payne Fund studies of the effect of motion pictures on youth.

March Retail Sales In Britain Higher

LONDON—Retail sales in Great Britain during March of this year were 5.7 per cent. in excess of what they were during March of last year, according to an announcement made by the Board of Trade, which adds that the figures are the best since 1930. The total sales in every district were reported larger, some being more than 5.7 per cent. greater and others being less. The sales of foodstuffs and perishables were 4.8 per cent. greater.

Woollen exports have advanced by 12 per cent. during the last three months.

A Baby with a Spade

Observes the New York Sun—"Magistrate Harris sentenced a woman to jail for "a day" because she did not obey a policeman's order to stop her two-year-old child from digging holes in park lawns. The "day" was one of those legal fictions; the period of confinement was four hours. The woman elected to take her child with her. Everybody familiar with the manner in which children are treated by New York policemen will know that the infant did not suffer physically—unless the policeman stuffed too much food into it—mentally or morally from the ordeal. However, there is a to-do over it, and the Magistrate will be lucky if he escapes castigation as a Herod.

Powerful British Flying Boats Cruise From Malta; Range of 1,500 Knots

Cruises in the Eastern and Western Mediterranean by a flying boat of the largest type yet commissioned for service with the Royal Air Force precede the substitution at Malta of a squadron of these craft for the floatplane unit which has been stationed there.

The flying machine engaged is a Blackburn Iris biplane, spanning 97 feet and weighing with full load on board more than fifteen tons. Power is derived from three Rolls-Royce Buzzard 825-930 horse-power engines. Three new craft of this class, differ from those in service chiefly in the provision of a hull which is three feet wider.

Maximum speed attainable by the Iris V boat ,to which group belongs the machine now cruising in the Mediterranean) is 131 miles per hr. and it is capable of making non-stop flights on one fuel load of 1,200 sea miles. The new craft, styled the Iris VI, have more carrying capacity in the larger hull and are expected to fly in still air distances non-stop of up to 1,500 sea miles, or approximately 1,725 land miles.

Five men make up the normal crew of an Iris boat, which is equipped to keep the seas away from the base for long periods at a time. Within the roomy hull is a navigator's compartment, furnished with a chart table, and all the necessary instruments, a radio room which also forms the officers' sleeping quarters, a separate sleeping compartment for other ranks and an engineer's station. Cooking stoves, beds, and water storage tanks provide creature comforts. Full mooring and towing equipment, sea anchors, life-belts bilge pumps and much other gear are carried. Defensive armament consists in machine gun emplacements.

HIS CRUTCHES BOILED KETTLE

Once Crippled with Rheumatism

NOW BACK AT WORK

He was not wrong, either—this man who conculded that he would never need his crutches again. For it is now six years since he burned them, and he is still quite active. Writing of his experiences, he says:—

"For five years I was a cripple, due to rheumatism, and was given up as a hopeless case. I also had a bad stomach, and I could never enjoy a meal without my food repeating on me. One day an old friend of mine told me to try Kruschen Salts. So I bought a bottle and gave it a trial. "After taking two bottles I was able to sit down and enjoy a good meal, and also have a good sound sleep—a thing I had not done for years. I was also getting about more freely. One morning I got up and lit the fire, and put the coffee on. My mother thought I was crazy, because I sawed my old crutches up and boiled the kettle with them.

"That was six years ago, and I am now back at my old job as a chef—and a chef puts in some long hours on his feet."—H. A. B.

Do you realise what causes rheumatism? Nothing but sharp-edged uric acid crystals which form as the result of sluggish eliminating organs. Kruschen Salts can always be counted upon to clear those painful crystals from the system. And more! They ensure such perfect internal regularity that no such body poisons as uric acid are ever able to accumulate again. Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c. and 75c. per bottle.

What Does Your Handwriting Show?

By GEOFFREY ST. CLAIR

(Grapho-Analyst)

All rights reserved.

(Editor's Note: Many letters of appreciation have been received from readers who have accepted the author's offer of a personal analysis from their own handwriting. Have you sent yours? See the announcement following this article.)

The value of Grapho-Analysis is never more evident than when it is used to assist Cupid. For it tears aside the veil that love so often weaves, and reveals in unerring fashion, the characteristics of the writer.

It is not merely a question of honesty and straightforwardness—although these are points that have to be considered. The emotions and the degree of expressiveness of those emotions—these are of vital importance.

EXAMPLE

Take, for example, a girl who has a warm and ardent nature; who feels things very deeply, and who expresses that feeling. She likes to be loved and would be very unhappy without the affection of others.

What chance of happiness would she have, married to a man who is cool and unemotional, who dislikes any manifestation of affection, and who is so governed by his mind that he hasn't a generous streak in his nature?

Only the other day I received a very poignant letter from a girl of 24 years of age. She was married two years ago, but has never been happy, since the first raptures departed. She is of the type I mention above, and asks me why she is unhappy and wonders whether she is responsible.

The writing of her husband, which she enclosed, shows that he has about as much feeling and affection as a gargoyle.

These two are mismated; I can see very little chance of happiness for them. Her's is a case where the advice of a Grapho-Analyst would hace saved much unhappiness.

OPPOSITES

There is an old saying that opposites make the happiest marriages. This is fallacious. Look on every side of you, and you'll find married people who are unhappy and discontented, because their natures are so unlike.

Marriage demands affinity of interests. It is too much to ask, or to expect, that the average couple will have all the same interests, the same likes and dislikes — and there is a good deal of compromise necessary in most marriages.

But a young couple whose natures are at the opposite ends of the pole, are starting out with a tremendous handicap. And that it is too great a penalty is seen by the number of unsucessful marriages.

M. H., Toronto.—By all means sue your husband for divorce. Yours is a sad case. Married four years ago, your husband left you three years ago, and now you meet a young man who loves you. He is a straightforward young man, and is trustworthy—which cannot be said of your former husband. I am writing you direct regarding the personal matter.

Can Geoffrey St. Clair help you? Would you like your handwriting analysed—or have you a friend whose real nature you much desire to know? Send a letter in your normal handwriting, with 10c coin and a 3c stamped envelope, to: Geoffrey St. Clair, Grapho-Analyst, Room 421, 73 Adelaide St. West, Toronto, Ont. Please enclose coin for each specimen of writing you enclose. Your analysis will be a revelation to you.

Call for Canned Peas in Canada

Until recent years most of the domestic requirements for canned peas were supplied by Ontario, or by importation from Europe, but Quebec and British Columbia have established and expanded in output rapidly. In 1921 the recorded acreage of canning peas was 2,202 acres in Ontario. In 1931, Ontario had 9,385 acres; Quebec 3,161 acres; British Columbia 418, and small acreages in other provinces brought the total to 13,248 acres. In the past year or two, imports of this product had been negligible, and the Canadian pack is finding export markets as a result of its high quality. Exports amounted to 34,341 cases in the 1932 crop season, practically to Empire markets.—The Agricultural Situation Bulletin.

Brilliant Social Season Expected in "Dear Old London"

London, — The most brilliant social season since the world war was ushered in recently with the opening of the opera at Covent Garden before a house packed with bejewelled women and scores of the aristocracy.

Hundreds stood in line all day long to obtain tickets in the gallery to witness both the spectacle of society on opening night and the opera on the stage.

The season continued with the Royal Academy exhibition on May 7th, followed by a swift succession of social events, Highlights include the Ascot and Goodwood race meets; the Royal Henley Regatta yachting week the Richmond Horse Show, the Eton and Harrow Schools' annual cricket match at Lord's and the Wimbledon tennis fortnight.

As a background for all these functions are the traditional four courts at Buckingham Palace in May and June, when the King and Queen receive debutantes and many others of the socially elite from numerous other countries who are lucky enough to be invited.

Wool Industry Records High Level in Years

The wool industry of Australia has witnessed one of the most complete instances of price recovery in the history of that industry. Prices recovered to such a degree that they reached the highest level since the 1928-29 season. Over 60 per cent of the wool which will be available this season has been sold at an average advance in prices of 80 per cent as compared with the previous year's clip. Much of the wool reaching Canada is carried in Canadian Steamships vessels which provide direct service between Canada Australia and New Zealand.

Dogs - And Cats

Says the Victoria Times—"Albert Payson Terhune, the novelist, who has written so eloquently of his fondness for dogs, broke down the other day and admitted that cats are really smarter than dogs.

They are smarter, that is, in that they are always looking out for number one. A dog will give you his loyalty and stick to you when there is not anything in it for him. But not a cat.

"You, maybe, have had a cat for years and have treated it like a king," says Mr. Terhune. "I come along. I have a warmer kitchen and more milk and liver. Your cat will gladly come to my kitchen and desert you. To find a cat with loyalty would be like finding one with five ears."

Few people who have owned cats will be inclined to quarrel much with this assertion; indeed, the odd thing about it is that it is precisely this unruffled selfishness which makes the cat a nice pet.

For if the dog flatters the ego by plunging headlong into the most uncritical and unselfish loyalty, the cat does it in a more subtle way by means of a haughty condescension.

A dog goes about the house humbly, looking gratefully at you for permitting him to stay there. A cat goes proudly, regally, looking through you or past you and quietly letting you understand that it is a rare privilege to provide the daily ration of milk and chopped liver.

Even when it submits to being petted—or, for that matter, even when it comes over and demands petting—it does so with an air that lets you know that it is strictly an impersonal matter, and that it is not committing itself in any way by accepting such a favor from you.

And all this, for some reason, is rather agreeable. The unmitigated snootiness of the cat is actually flattering. In a world where most people in one way or another, have to put up with a good deal to keep the daily bread in the pantry, it is somehow cheering to find one pensioner who neither scrapes nor cajoles.

"If," says Mr. Terhune, "I could sponge like a cat, please God, I'd do it. The only thing a cat will ever do is something for herself."

"The greatest man is he who chooses right with the most invincible resolution."—Seneca.

Smokers Pay Canada $24,524,362 Duties

OTTAWA—Consumption of Canadian cigarettes increased during the past fiscal year. The total entered for consumption for the first 11 months of the past year was 4,017,674-385, according to a return tabled in the House of Commons. For the entire fiscal year 1932-33 the total was 3,728,832,089.

Smokers in Canada altogether paid into the revenues of the Dominion during the 11 months of the past year $24,524,362 as imposts on tobacco in its various forms, with the duties on cigarettes supplying about two-thirds of this total.

Cigars seemed to be slipping in popularity. During the 11 months of last year the total was 107,140,045. While this approximated the number for the 12 months 1932-33, when the total was 119,097,104, back in 1919-20 the total was 273,858,046.

Relief Given Little Fellow

U. S. Tax Bill Best Since 1924 For Farmers Of Small Incomes

Washington—Not since 1924 has the small taxpayer had such relief as would pay under the Senate and House schedules compared with the present law and payments ten years ago: Present law $20, House $8, Senate $8.80; 1924 $7.50.

The tax paid in 1924 on 1923 income was given a credit of 25 per cent.

In 1913, 1914, 1915, and 1916 there was no tax at all on a net income of the above type. In 1918, it was $60; 1919 and 1920, $40; 1921 and 1922, $20, and 1923, $15.

Tails Removed

The current issue of the British Medical Journal Cities two cases of babies born during the month of January with tails.

The first baby, not related to the second, was discovered to have at its birth, a tail not unlike that of a pig. It was about three inches long. X-ray revealed it to be of a non-bony structure. The appendage was successfully removed by operation when the baby was five weeks old.

The second baby had a short fleshy tail, highly sensitive which was also removed.

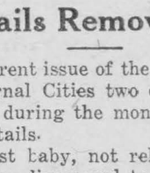

Argentina Improving Fruit Export Quality

Buenos Aires.—Efforts to raise the standard of Argentine fruiti exports to United States and British requirements resulted in the destruction of 17,000 tons of fruit in the first quarter of 1934, pure food inspectors revealed.

Shippers' profits were increased 70 per cent by tightening the regulations, it was estimated, through elimination of losses through deterioration. Grape exports, however, jumped from 222,738 cases in the first three months of 1933 to 408,547 cases in the like period of 1934.

Farmers Get Better Sows

Government and Packing Firm Co-operate In Distribution

Merlin,—Gordon Drew, hog buyer for the Swift Canadian Company, Toronto, is assisting the farmers in Essex, and Kent to improve their breeding stock and recently distributed among the farmers of the Tilbury district a carload of choice breeding sows

Thes sow are made available to the farmers through the co-operation of the Swift Canadian Company and the livestock commissioner of the Dominion Government are ordered in advance and are sold to the farmers at market price, the government paying the freight charges in lots of 20 or more. The government also under approved conditions will supply boars free.

These sows are carefully selected by the Swift Canadian Company at their plant and are all of good bacon type.

Farmers are allowed to send any marketable sow to the packing company and receive one of the selected ones in exchange.

The object of the packing house and the government in assisting in this way is to try and hold for Canada its share of the English bacon market, thus assuring the farmers a better price for their hogs.

Sow Onions and Sweet Corn Early

The onion being a long season crop requires to be sown as early in the spring as soil and weather conditions will permit. Early sowing ensures the plants becoming well established before the dry hott weather occurs. For the short season sections advises the Dominion Horticulturist, use Early Flat Red or Flat Yellow Danvers, and for those regions where the later maturing varieties do well use Large Red Weathersfield, or Southport Red Globe and for yellow varieties Yellow Globe Danvers or Southport Yellow Globe.

Early sweet corn brings the best price, hence the importance of planting as early as possible. Successful sowings made at intervals of ten days apart in the same field is a means of having the first early corn. Should the first planting succeed the second and third plantings can be hoed out or, on the other hand, should the first plantings be killed by frost, the third or fourth planting may develop unhampered.

Fertilizer Mixtures

The plant food content of commercial fertilizer mixtures is expressed by formulae such as 4-8-10, 2-12-16, etc. These figures denote the guaranteed percentages of nitrogen, available phosphoric acid and potash in the order in which they occur in the formula. For example, a 4-8-10 mixture will contain 4 per cent. of nitrogen, 8 per cent. of available phosphoric acid and 10 per cent. of potash. A fertilizer offered for sale in Canada must contain not less than per cent. of nitrogen or 5 per cent. of available phosphoric acid or 2 per cent. of water-soluble potash and not less than a total of 14 per cent. of these constitutents.

Use More Alfalfa

Good soils in the Ottawa Valley are capable of producing fine crops of alfalfa. Experiments over a period of years on the Dominion Experimental Farm sshow that alfalfa and mixtures which contain alfalfa have given much larger yields than when the alfalfa was not included. The feeding value has also been considerably increased. The inclusion of 3 or 4 pounds of alfalfa seed in the timothy, red clover, alsike mixture is well worth while and should be adopted as a regular practice. The best varieties are Ontario Variegated and Canadian Grown Grimm.

Combating Couch Grass

Couch or quack grass presents a very serious problem in Eastern Canada. Experiments have shown that ploughing as early in the summer as the crop can be removed, cultivating the land during the fall and reploughing just before the ground freezes constitute a very satisfactory of control. If this procedure can be followed the next year by a cultivated crop, or a smother crop, practically complete eradication will be secured. It is surprising and disheartening sometimes to find that couch grass will persist even after considerable work has been done onthe land. However, when right methods are followed, and provided reasonably dry weather is enjoyed, complete success may be assured. In Western Canada, the application of commercial fertilizers with a combination fertilizer and grain drill has proved very effective in controlling many weeds.

Severe Winter Killing

From all parts of the province come reports of serious damage to fall wheat, alfalfa and clover. Following are extracts from reports received from representatives in various counties.

Bruce: Fall wheat has not wintered well and many fields are completely killed out. There has been considerable winter killing of alfalfa and clover, too. Dufferin: New seeding of fall wheat is improving and is much more promising than was expected, but most wheatfields will have to be seeded to barley. Halton: A conservative estimate would say that 75 per cent. of the fall wheat will have to be torn up or patched. A heavy increase in acreage of annual hay and pasture mixtures for this purpose are being used. North Simcoe: The majority of farmers report total loss of wheat clover and alfalfa. It is now expected that more than 2 per cent. of the wheat crop will be a normal crop, while another 15 per cent. may be partially saved as a feed grain crop by patching. Waterloo: Over 70 per cent. of fall wheat acreage wil be resown to barley or mixed grain. About 40 per cent. of clovers and alfalfa will have to be plowed up and an annual hay crop sown. Elgin: Fall wheat is very spotty. Some fields wintered well, while others are badly winter killed. Haldimand: Reports indicate that fall wheat, alfalfa and clover will be spotty. Lambton: Fall wheat will be a good 80 per cent. crop. Middlesex: Fall wheat, alfalfa and clover have shown considerable growth during the warm weather of early May. While the majority of fields look quite promising, there are some wheat fields in many sections being seeded to spring grains and some clover fields being plowed up and in many cases seeded to an annual hay mixture. Durham: Most of the fall wheat acreage has been cultivated and sown to barley or recleaned western spring wheat. Hastings: Fall wheat and clovers have been severely killed out and farmersare finding it difficult to secure seed. Ontario: Fall wheat is almost a total loss. Alfalfa and clover are badly damaged, but the warm weatherhas brought them along. Northumberland: About 75 per cent. of the fall wheat in this area will not recover from the severe winter, and the same applies to new seeding of alfalfa. Prince Edward: Due to all fall wheat being killed, as well as a great percentage of clover and alfalfa, farmers will have about double the spring's work to do this season. Victoria: Now that growth has started, fall wheat acreage that has escaped, can be estimated at 5 per cent. York: It is estimated that in this county, 90 per cent of the fall wheat will be reseeded to spring grains. This is the heaviest winter killing on record. Frontenac: For a distance of about 25 miles back from the river front, alfalfa and fall wheat have been from 90 to 95 per cent. killed. Some fields are totally bare. Strawberries would be about 80 per cent. winter killed, raspberries and other bush fruits about 50 per cent. Lennox and Addington: Fall wheat estimated to be practically a total loss, and alfalfa and clovers fully 75 per cent.

WINCHESTER MAN INJURED BY FREIGHT TRAIN

When the east-bound way freight struck the rear of A.W. Beach's car, which had been parked too close to the track at Winchester on Friday, Mr. Beach, who was between his automobile and another, also parked near the tracks, was caught between the two machines and seriously injured. His ankle was fractured and his leg badly crushed.

Well known resident and a former merchant in Winchester, Mr. Beach had gone to the station to superintend the unloading of potatoes. He parked his car too close to a siding, and another machine, owned by T. Allison of Inkerman, was placed alongside.

Seeing the freight train comiag in, and that the engineer was on the far side of the cab, and unable to see the car, Mr. Beach rushed to push it out of the way, when the accident occurred. His car was wrecked. Slight damage was done to Mr. Allison's car.

The annual meeting of the Williamsburg Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Augustus Whitteker on Monday evening last, with an attendance of fourteen. The session opened with the singing of the Institute Ode, followed by the roll call, "paying fees".

The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and adopted. The secretary's report was given, also the treasurer's statement. Both were well received, a substantial balance being noted by the treasurer. Miss Violet Trickey read the sick visiting report, showing where splendid work had been done during the year.

ONTARIO

DEPARTMENT OF HIGHWAYS

MOTOR VEHICLES BRANCH

TO THE CAREFUL DRIVERS OF ONTARIO:

Congratulations—and a Request!

There has been a gratifying decrease in the number of automotive accidents in Ontario. There were fewer deaths in 1933, fewer persons injured, less property damage. The decrease in accidents has been substantially greater than the percentage of decrease in registrations.

To those drivers who helped in this improvement the thanks of this department, the thanks of every citizen of Ontario, is due, and you have mine in large measure.

But, we have only made a beginning!

Despite the improvement shown, there were 8,634 serious accidents last year. 403 men, women and children were killed. 7,877 persons were injured!

By whom? Who were responsible for these deaths and injuries?

The drivers involved were, for the most part, honest, decent citizens; men and women who are usually careful, who only take a chance now and then. They were of no special class. Some of them live in your street, perhaps next door to you. One of them might have been you! Every one of these drivers is sorry now—truly sorry—but all the regret in the world cannot restore life or limb.

The habitually reckless, callous driver is a known, visible menace. Against him swift action can be taken. But it is to the usually careful motorist, like yourself, that this department must look for help in making Ontario's streets and highways safer for driver and pedestrian alike. Will you help?—this season more than ever before! The way is simple, the result can be far-reaching.

Careful driver, respond to this appeal! Remember that it only takes a moment for an accident to happen—one lapse from safe-driving. In that one moment may occur a tragedy which the offending driver may never be able to forget. Every time you sit at the wheel of your car be safety-conscious. Watch! Drive safely always . . . all the way.

MINISTER

Toronto, May 1st, 1934.

STRANGE ABSENCE
by ALLYN SLOAN

SYNOPSIS

Jean Graham and her brother, Euan, stay on the Riviera with Geoffrey Winto and his wife Doreen, who leads Euan on to gamble. Jean coaxes him to go to Paris. While driving there Jean finds a string of pearls in Euan's pocket, He snatches them from her and the car crashes. The accident is discovered by Jerry Grant who takes Jean back to his hostess, Helen Gorst. Euan is missing.

Jean visits Euan's friend, de Laurier, and learns that Euan is in debt to him. Jerry Grant meets M. Perichon, famous detective, who assists them. Jerry proposes to Jean but she asks him to wait.

The Baron insists on accompanying Jean to the Van Dyke party. The next morning Mrs. Van Dyke reports the theft of a diamond. Jean is discovered missing. M. Perichon directs Grant and Washburn to a deserted villa. Grant enters and follows de Laurier into a subterranean cave, de Laurier knocks him out, gags, and binds his arms. Grant works his way free and finds Jean. de Laurier returns and attacks Grant.

Jean is unable to see which is the victor. She faints. Washburn and Perichon find them.

"Gee, she doesn't look any too good to me" muttered Dan as he arranged a coat beneath her head.

"She has probably been drugged," said Perichon. "But now we progress We have the villian and the heroine; we have yet to find the hero."

Dan got up: "Yes, and where in hell are we going to look for him?" he asked.

'Hullo, said a familiar voice behind them. Swinging around abruptly, they saw Jerry coming through the panel He was smiling, but in every other way he looked the worse for wear. His clothes were torn to shreds and in more places than one stained with blood, and his face was so dirty and scratched as almost to render him unrecognizable.

"Jerry" Dan whooped delightedly. Perichon also smiled a welcome, but before he could speak a moan from Jean told thm ehat she was regaining consciousness, and Grant, hurrying over, fell on his knees by her side.

An hour later they were all motoring back to Monte Carlo. On the back seat Grant held Jean in his arms, whilst in front Dan sat next to Perichon. After a long, thoughtful silence, he said:

'Its all very well, . Perchon, but we still don't know what happened to Euan Graham; nor have we found Mrs. Winton's pearls or my sister's ding."

'What lovely moonlight! Look, there upon the water. It is like silver smiled Perichon. Then quite as an afterthought, he added: "To-morrow I will explain it all."

CHAPTER XXVII

Perichon Explains

Three mornings later, the principal characters in the drama, were again assembled in Helen Gorst's sitting room. Facing them at a small table Rivaux and Perichon sat with various papers and notes before them. After a few preliminary questions from Rivaux, Perichon rose, cleared his throat and began: "Today, eMssieurs and Mesdames, we will conclude this miserable affair."

Jerry Grant seated beside Jean, gave her an encouraging smile, but Dorne raised her eyebrows scathingly.

"The story my friends, is nearly finished but not quite. First we will begin at the beginning and see what we have. On the 17th of February M. Euan Grant and his sister Mlle Jean left the Villa Les Palmiers after two week's visit. The young people were in a "Fiat" which M. Euan was driving. Enroute they stopped at L'Hotel de Paris, where M. Graham went up to see M. le Baron de Laurier. Mademoiselle waited downstairs and was accosted by a man named Guardi who had been introduced to her by her brother. A few minutes later they left the hotel being waved off by de Laurier and Guardi. An hour later the 'Fiat' was found by M. Grant who was passing from the opposite direction, overturned and smashed to pieces, high up on the Corniche. Mademoiselle was unconscious and M. her brother was missing."

Perichon paused impressively, but seeing that Jean had sheltered her eyes with her hand, the little man's tone changed to one of deep regret 'Ah, it is terrible for you, Mademoiselle, that I open this wound. And Monsieur—"

Jean took her hand down. "It's all right, go on," she said gamely.

"Bien. Now we come to the first two points in our mystery. Mlle. Jeanne will tell you exactly what happened?"

Perichon's emphasis on the word 'exactly" made Helen glance curiously at the girl, who in a low but certain voice described how she had found the pearls in Euan's pockets. Her explanation was received with amazement by everyone present excepting the detective himself.

With a triumphant gleam in her eyes, Doreen glared round insolently at the girl. "Didn't I tell you so?" she sneered.

Jean paid no heed to any of them She had pledged herself to answer Perichon truthfully, and for the last time she was going through with it.

"That was the last time that you saw the pearls or your brother?" asked Perichon, when the murmurs had died down.

"Yes."

"Pooh!" snorted Doreen.

Perichon turned and gazed at her. 'Madame say 'Pooh,' he said. "Bien! How do you think M. Graham came by your pearls, Madame?"

Doreen shrugged her thin shoulders and answered in her disagreeable way. "I've told you often enough haven't I?"

Smilingly Perichon invited: "Just once more then, please Madame. For the last time."

With bad grace, Doreen repeated the story of how her maid had discovered the loss of the pearls and had pointed it out to her husband.

Perichon pursed his lips and continued to look strangely at Doreen, who, however, did not return his gaze but fished noisily in her handbag for cigarettes.

'Madame—we are telling the truth today," remarked the Frenchman mildly, whereat Doreen looked up and jerked sharply:

"What d'you mean by that?"

"O, but nothing," he shrugged. 'I am just asking if you have nothing to add—to—or—alter?"

Her eyes, met his aggresively, unblinkingly, and did not falter. "You are insolent," she said.

"O, not at all. Only curious. Ah! but now—" Perichon's eyes ran around the faces before him and came to rest on Jean. "Now mon enfant," he began kindly. "Why did you not tell anyone that you had seen those pearls? Shall I speak for you? You will stop me if I am wrong?" Perichon told them of Euan Graham's losses at the tables, of his dissipated life, and of his sister's fears for him Jean did not interrupt him, but suddenly Perichon broke off and shot at her: "Why were you friends with M. le Baron de Laurier, Mademoiselle?"

"He—he knew that Euan had those pearls."

"De Laurier knew of Mademoiselles' love for her brother; he knew also that she did not know how he came by those pearls, and he threatened to make public the fact that Graham had stolen them.

A groan escaped the girl. 'He—ne can't have stolen them. He was weak and silly, but not a thief."

"But that is blackmail," Dan broke out.

Jerry reached out and took her hand.

"Jeannie, why didn't you tell me?"

"I—I couldn't. I was afraid."

Perichon shrugged his shoulders. "That is it, she was afraid. If people were not afraid, there would be no blackmail."

There might be a few more murders though," Washburn put in laconically.

"So—" Perichon went on, "we come now to the theft of Mme. Van Dyke's diamond. Tell me Madamoiselle what happened that night?"

With an effort the girl sat up straighter and appeared to marshal her thoughts before beginning to speak.

'My nose was bleeding and Dan—Mr. Washburn—took me to his sister's room to lie down. The bed is in a recess, and because my head was aching I put out the light. I think I must have gone to sleep, because suddenly I became aware that someone was in the room doing something over by the window which was open. I was rather surprised and watched—Everyone listened breathlessly, including Rivaux, who leaned forward with his mouth half open. 'It dawned on me that someone was stealing something for a torch which the—er man was using showed that a small safe in the wall was open. As he closed it, the light fell on his face, and I saw that it was—the Baron de Laurier."

Baseball Proving Popular Abroad

Russia Latest Nation to Adopt Game — Japan and Other Countries Already Enthusiasts

Baseball, America's national pastime is becoming more and more international in character, writes Irving G. Gutterman in the N. Y. Times. According to recent dispatches, Soviet Russia has found a place for the game in its program of athletics. Thus one more country is added to the number showing an interest in this sport.

While baseball is in its beginning stages in many countries, in Japan it has been enjoying vast popularity for several years. Introduced more than a decade ago and fostered by the larger Japanese universities, it has become one of the most popular games in the country. It is not uncommon for a crowd of 60,000 to see a contest between two college teams.

Picked American teams have toured Japan, receiving rousing ovations wherever exhibition games were played, so that now the names of such stars as Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig are familiar to many Japanese. The visiting major leaguers have been beset by autograph hunters. According to Gehrig, "the interest in baseball in Japan just about borders on the fanatical."

THE NIMBLE JAPANESE

Naturally nimble and active, the Japanese have proved to be excellent fielders and base runners. Their pitchers are clever and well acquainted with the various curve balls. Japanese teams have played American college nines, and have been more than a match for some of them.

Baseball has been well developed in Africa, North and South. Last Fall it was reported that more than forty organized teams were active in Tunis, where there are more than a thousand ballplayers of at least a dozen nationalities. Organized amateur leagues play regularly and many fans turn out for the games. The first contest between an American and a North African team took place in July, 1932. On the North African team were five Arabs, six Italians, one Frenchman, one Anglo-Frenchman and one Berber. Teams in the Ligue Tunisienne include also Turks, Greeks, Spaniards, Portuguese, English, South Africans, Americans, Moroccans, Tripolitans, Egyptians, Senegalese and Maltese.

Within the past three years the rise of baseball in South Africa has been swift. Cricket and football clubs near Johannesburg have been turning their attention to the American game, and last Summer a league of eight teams was in operation. The sport has also thrived in Cape Town; last year the Cumorah team of that city made a tour through the Transvaal. The standard of play among South Africans is high.

South Americans have also grown to like the American game. In Venezuela baseball is fast becoming a national pastime. There are teams not only in Caracas, but in Maracaibo, Valencia, Maracay and La Guayra. Many intercity rivalries have already been established.

VENEZUELAN FANS

That the Venezuelans are enthusiastic fans is evident in the account of a recent games between the Santa Marta team and the Royals. Protesting a decision, the Santa Marta team and many of their rooters warmed the playing field, yelling, "Ladron! Ladron! Protesto! Protesto!" in a manner that would have put even an American bleacherite to shame. They fought to induce the umpire to change his decision, finally insisting that he be ejected and a new one procured. It was the fifth inning and he was the fifth umpire to be chased from the field.

Baseball is played to a limited extent in France, Italy, Spain, Portugal and Rumania. There is a baseball league in operation in Paris, and at the Barcelona Exhibition in 1930 a picked French team turned back the best Spanish nine before 65,000 spectators. In England and Wales there are also baseball teams. The game has been well developed among the Mexicans and Cubans, and the Filipinos have been expertly taught at school by American coaches.

In Moscow baseball classes have been opened at the Physiculture Institute, where the game is being taught by an American and by a Russian who learned to play in Japan.

While America's national pastime has been played abroad for many years, it is only recently that there has been such a definite rise in its popularity as to bring about the suggestion that baseball be made an Olympic sport—a suggestion put forward by the French Baseball Federation, which includes France, Tunisia, Algeria and Morocco.

Society to Protect Children Ends Fifty Years in England

England this year is celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, which was fashioned after the New York organization of the same name. The founding of the English society was the beginning of an expanding program for the protection of children by law.

In 1881 an Englishman, T. F. A. Agnew, while visiting in America, heard of a society of the prevention of cruelty to children, and interviewed its president. On his return to Liverpool he resolved to launch a similar society in that city. At a meeting of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals he made a plea for the children, outlining what had been done in the United States. His effort was successful, and the Liverpool society was formed.

Social workers in other cities followed the affairs of the Liverpool group, among them Hesba Stretton and the Rev. Benjamin Waugh, whose work in thirty-one cities and towns had already created the nucleus of an organization which was later to extend through the country. Through their efforts, in 1884, the London society was launched, followed in 1889 by the national society.

In that same year the first act for the prevention of cruelty to children was passed, strengthening the hands of the society. This was the first "children's charter". In five years a more stringent law was passed, and in 1904 this was superseded by a still more extensive act.

Then came the "Children's Charter" of 1908 with its wide scope and detailed provisions for the protection of children, ranging from the establishment of juvenile courts to the regulation of reformatory schools, from the adoption of infants to precautions against injury by fire. The Children and Young Persons Act, which came into force last November, is the latest stage in this legislative progress.

Pedestrians

John O'Rew in the Baltimore Sun

While I like to think of the kinship between the British people and our there is actually any affinity. My skepticism on this point intensified a few days ago by the receipt of a circular from the Automobile Association of Great Britain on the subject of highway accommodations for pdestrians.

The circular expiated to the effect of some 400 words on the deplorable failure of the British counties and Scotland to make provision for those who travel afoot. It called attention to a "striking deficiency in footpaths, the sad neglect of pedestrians, etc., etc., etc. And it emphasized the urgent need on all main roads for footpaths having a continuous all-weather surface, smoother and more attractive than a non-skid carriageway."

I find it hard to believe that a race of men capable of formulating such an appeal as this has anything whatsoever in common with the inhabitants of this great nation of ours, where to give the pedestrian anything more than a disdainful honk is utterly foreign to the national character. Our British 'cousins" must be quite "distant" to be able to indulge themselves in such sympathetic rhaposdy. Or is that they are more farsighted.

"Proud" Father Demands Recount

Slightly Dazed When Wife Gives Birth to Four Sons —Good Start Towards Football Team

Here are the views of the young man whose wife gave birth to four boys in Birmingham, England, as reported by a correspondent.

First View: Nothing, just slightly dazed.

Second view: 'More than a million inhabitants and it had to be me."

Third view:"Well it's a good start towards a football team.

Stanley Hitchins, the father, is twenty-six years old; his wife is only twenty-three. They have a daughter aged two.

Mr. and Mrs. Hitchins live in the Washwood Heath district.

I found Mr. Hitchins in the Birmingham Matrnity Hospital shortly after his family had been born. He was standing unnoticed by the fussing nurses and beaming doctors.

He had been called from work (he is a painter), and after counting the babies carefully, returned to his work

After congratulating him, I asked him how it felt to be the father of four bonny bouncing baby boys.

He looked round carefully, and then told me — with emphasis.

'When they told me the number," he said, "I almost demanded a recount.

AS LIKE AS PEAS

"You are certain to get the Kings bounty," I said.

"The wife's mother's sister nad twins," he said reflectively. "Perhaps that had something to do with it."

He told me that, counting from left to right, the children weighed in at 3 lbs. 13 ozs. 3 lbs. 15 1-4 ozs., 5 lbs. 2 ozs.; and 3 lbs. 15 1-4 ozs., respectively.

'We've named them John, Fred, Arthur and Stanley to save them getting mixed up," he explained. They are as like as two peas in a pod except the big one who has got a snub nose."

I told him of Birmingham's decuning birthrate, and how glad Dr. Newsholme, the medical officer of health would be. He reminded me of the other million or so inhabitants.

I reminded him of the football team

Almost Instant Relief From Neuralgia

For Quick Relief Say ASPIRIN When You Buy

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia . . . the fastest safe relief, it is said, yet discovered.

Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which an Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glass, here, tells the story. An Aspirin Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to go to work almost instantly.

When you buy, though, be on guard against substitutes. To be sure you get ASPIRIN'S quick relief, be sure the name Bayer in the form of a cross is on every tablet of Aspirin.

WHY ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST

Drop an Aspirin Tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches bottom, it has started to disintegrate.

What it does in this glass it does in your stomach. Hence its fast action.

HOUSE CLEANING

If you are a wise housewife you will have started your housecleaning by now. You will at least, have cleaned out all the cupboards and bureau drawers for that is always preliminary to really scientific work.

And, if you are methodical, you take one room at a time and not have the whole house upset at once. Take down all the pictures, brush the books with a stiff brush, wash the glass and go over the frames with a soft cloth.

Stack them out of the way, and brush walls and ceiling with a soft cloth tied over a long broom, then clean and polish the furniture, then wash woodwork, clean and polish floor before restoring rugs.

Variety ic Spice

Some women think they must change the furniture every week because they "can't abide" monotony in anything, even the arrangement of rooms. Others place a thing once and never change it. Perhaps the best plan is to move your things around spring and fall, and thus get some of the variety that is said to be the spice of life, without having the family trip over the chairs in their new places.

It is a good idea to get rid of the "white elephants" either by selling them or by giving them to some of the numerous rummage sales. Too much furniture spoils the look of a modern room and frequently you can put a desk or an extra chair in a bedroom, or change things around so that all the rooms may be improved.

Too Many Pictures

One of the commonest mistakes people make is to have too many cushions, too many pictures and too many ornaments around. "Raus mit 'em." If you haven't an attic (or if you have) get rid of them by sale, barter or gift. Less work, and a better appearance to your rooms.

Weather Moves.

Sometimes you can move chairs or couches to a window overlooking a garden or some other pleasant view and where you can take advantage of summer breezes. In the bedrooms, too, the bed may be moved to give you more space and air and dressing tables shifted to a better light.

If you are blessed with plenty of cupboard space, you might even give all your ornaments and pictures a rest for the summer, bringing out two or three at a time and changing them as you tire of them.

Make your housecleaning a mental tonic as well as a "clean-up" for the house and it won't be quite so hard to do.

THE GOLDEN BRIDE

The newest bridal fabric is a lame, woven with gold or silver and backed with white satin. Gold is the leading vogue for this season, and a golden bride can be very unusual.

One important London, England, dress artist makes good use of this lovely fabric for a golden bride. The moulded gown is simply fashioned, but suggests medieval splendour.

Over the golden train comes a mass of shadowy tulle which rests on a chaplet of golden leaves.

A charming bridesmaid's gift would be one of the newest crystal rings with golden clip. There is a craze at the moment for crystal and gold.

CHOCOLATE CAKE

The traditional "devil's food" cake usually is made with a cooked sort of custard which is added to the dry ingredients. This produces a black cake of spongy texture that is inclined to dry out quicker than the cakes mixed by other methods.

Chocolate cakes made with yolks of eggs remain moist despite a cooked mixture being added to the batter. In the following recipe only the yolks are used. The whites are used for the frosting, which is in turn colored with melted chocolate. The chocolate forms a hard crust over the icing which tends to keep it soft and creamy and makes an exceedingly delicious whole.

Chocolate Cake Recipe

Two squares bitter chocolate, 1 cup milk, half cup butter and lard combined, 1 cup granulated sugar, 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon vanilla, few grains salt, yolks of 2 eggs.

Melt chocolate over hot water. Add halp cup milk and cook until thoroughly blended and smooth, but not a minute longer. Cream shortening and beat in sugar. Add cookeo mixture. Beat egg yolks with remaining half cup of milk and add alternately with flour. Mix well and add soda disolved in a little warm water. Add vanilla and salt and beat well. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for thirty minutes. This cake may be baked in two layers or in a dripping pan.

Fudge Cake

Two cups light brown sugar, 2-3 cup butter and lard combined and softened, 3 squares chocolate, 3 eggs, 1-2 cup sour milk, 2 cups flour, 1-2 cup boiling water, 1 teaspoon vanilla, few grains salt, 1 teaspoon soda.

Cream shortening and sugar. Melt chocolate over hot water and beat into first mixture. Add eggs one at a time, beating hard after the addition of each. Stir in sour milk. Add flour and beat until perfectly smooth. Add boiling water and mix well. Add vanilla, salt and soda dissolved in 1 teaspoon cold water. Pour into two square pans and bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) Put together and cover top and sides with fudge.

If economy is necessary and a not-quite-so-rich cake is wanted, reduce the shortening to 1-2 cup and use 2 squares of chocolate and 2 eggs, leaving all the other proportions the same.

Sour Cream Chocolate Cake.

One and one-half cups light brown sugar, 1-2 cup butter, 3 eggs, 1 cup sour cream, 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 cup grated chocolate, few grains salt.

Cream butter and sugar and add the yolks of eggs well beaten. Melt chocolate over hot water and add to mixture. Mix and sift baking powder, soda, salt and flour several times. This is very important because the soda must be thoroughly mixed through the flour. Add to first mixture alternately with sour cream. Add vanilla and fold in whites of eggs beaten until still. Bake in two layers in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.).

Sunday School Lesson

Lesson VIII. (20).—May 20. The Future of the Kingdom.—Matthew 24:1-25; 30. Golden Text.—The the kingdom of our Lord, and of Kingdom of the world is become his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever.—Rev. 11:15.

"Then shall the kingdom of heaven be likened unto ten virgins." The expression is very condensed, and that means that the search of mankind for the kingdom of heaven is like, in two contradictory aspects, the action of five of these virgins on the one hand and five of them on the other hand.

"Who took their lamps." Either like the familiar Roman lamps carried in the hand or attached to staves or else torches which were sometimes fed with oil. "And went forth to meet the bridegroom." Christ is the bridegroom and the church is his bride.

"And five of them were foolish, and five were wise." We are not to conclude from this that on the judgement day half of mankind will be accepted and half rejected.

"For the foolish, when they took their lamps, took no oil with them." Olive oil was used, drawn up by a floating wick, which projected through a little notch or spout in the side of the bowl of the lamp.

"But the wise took oil in their vessels with their lamps." They carried vessels full of oil from which they could replenish the supply of their lamps as they burned low.

"Now while the bridegroom tarried." Christ is looking forward to the long period—two thousand years now—that would elapse before his return to earth. "They all slumbered and slept." That does not mean that when the Bridegroom comes he will find none awake. Many a man has died while engaged, Bible in hand, in meditation, upon his favorite theme, the coming of the Bridegroom.

"But at midnight there is a cry, behold, the bridegroom!" The longer the virgins slept, the nearer was the approach of the bridegroom. The longer we wait unprepared for the coming of Christ, the nearer is his sure approach.

"Come ye forth to meet him." Translate this into other words, and it runs thus: Recognize and act upon, the law of preparation of human character.'

"Then all those virgins arose, and trimmed their lamps." The wicks had become charred while they slept, and must be cut to burn brightly.

"And the foolish said unto the wise, Give us of your oil, for our lamps are going out." The foolish virgins are the half-and-half people, people who in any case of difficulty never think of turning to the light within to guide them through the darkness, but they at once turn to some one who they think is living a Christian life, as if a borrowed light would do.

"But the wise answered, saying, Peradventure there will not be enough for us and you. This is a harsh and selfish refusal but arises out of the very necessity of the case.

"Go ye rather to them that sell, and buy for yourselves" We cannot impart our Christian life to another but we can point to him the divine Source of all life, we can turn him to the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit.

"And while they went away to buy the bridegroom came." Just at the critical moment, when all was eager hurry to do the fitting honor to the advancing bridegroom.

"And they that were ready went in with him to the marriage feast." If this is a lesson of terrible warning it is also a lesson of comfort and cheer. If we are ready we shall go in with our Lord to his eternal feast of joy.

"And the door was shut.' These are the most solemn words of this solemn parable. "A new thing it is for that door to be shut. So long has it stood open, thrown wide back, that we forget there is a door that can shut that entrance.

"Afterward came also the other virgins, saying, Lord, Lord, open unto us." They wanted to get in.

"But he answered and said, Verily I say unto you, I know you not." One of Christ's most terribly emphatic statements.

"Watch therefore, for ye know not the day nor the hour." The close of your earthly opportunity may come today—the very next minute. Now is the accepted time.

Old Age Pensioners Show Big Increase

NEW YORK—The number of old-age pensioners in the United States has increased from 4000 to 135,000 persons, Mr. Abraham Epstein reported recently at the opening of a two-day national conference on social security. Mr. Epstein, executive secretary of the American Association for Social Security, characterized 1933 as "the year of greatest achievement in providing security for the dependent aged."

Girls Sleep More Soundly Than Boys

Large Meal Before Bedtime Bound to Cause Restlessness

Is the healthy child a restless sleeper?

New light is thrown upon this question, on which advice is constantly sought by mothers, by Dr. Glenville Giddings in the Journal of the American Medical Association, which contains a valuable study of the activity of a group of children—28 boys and girls—during sleep.

BATTERY OF PINS

To obtain a complete and continuous record of each night's sleep a remarkable electrical machine called a hypnograph was used.

The slightest movement of the child in bed caused a small brass wheel to travel up and down a perpendicular strip of metal attached to the bed spring. This caused changes in an electric current, which were conducted by cable to the hypnograph in an adjoining room.

The hypnograph consisted of a battery of 28 fountainpens (one for each bed), which wrote on a moving roll of paper in different coloured inks, according to whether the subject was a boy or girl.

The tests reveal that the movements of a healthy child conform to a definite pattern. The most active part of the night is during the first half-hour. The most tranquil is in the second-half-hour to 45 minutes, and a restive phase recurs during the hour before waking.

Girls, it was found, sleep more soundly than boys. They not only drop off more quickly, but sleep more quietly

Among 24 children studied, the most restless sleeper showed an average of 110 active minutes during 15 nights.

COLD WEATHER BEST

A drink of warm milk at bedtime was shown to produce definitely quieter sleep. A large meal, however, even though the food was plain, resulted in marked restlessness.

Baths, whether cold or warm, it was found, had no constant effect on sleep, while children sleep more peacefully in the cold than warm weather.

Dress of Women Will be Simpler

Col. H. C. Osborne Forsees Change in Politeness as Well

Ottawa.—A day when women will quite conceivably exercise a leading influence in the state was foreseen by Colonel H. C. Osborne, C.M.G., speaking at a luncheon meeting of the University Club on the subject, "Women—Yesterday and Today."

Venturing into the realm of the future, the speaker predicted that women's dress would become more sober and more simple during business hours. There will be changes, too, he said, in certain forms of politeness now existing between the sexes.

"The myth of weakness as far as women are concerned is all nonsense," he said. "It never was true. In the chronicles of early Egypt we come across a type of civilization where men attended to the lighter tasks and the household, and women did the heavy work—even to the waging of war.

"It used to be thought that a woman was incapable of picking up a handkerchief or opening a door. Indeed, last century they were so bundled and becorseted that perhaps they couldn't. But if you go out on our golf courses and tennis courts or along the ski trails you see that they can pick up all the handkerchiefs in the world and open all the doors too."

Women, continued Col. Osborne, are still in danger of standing in their own light by permitting the spread of ideas that certain subjects fall in the realm of women and others in that of men. He urged that this idea was fallacious, that the entire field of knowledge is open and knowledge is power.

This report was accepted by the Society on motion of the secretary, Miss F.J. Wright, and Mrs. Black.

After all offices had been declared vacant, the minutes of the last annual meeting were read, and the election of officers proceeded with. the result of which was that the following officers were duly elected:
