We wonder how many fellows forgot to get theri spouse a Valentine card or gift last weekend?

A gentle reminder to drivers to take extreme care in approaching all corners in the village. Visibility through a high bank of snow is poor and dented fenders can be expensive.

In comparison to other towns around, we have fared quite well as far as open roads are concerned. If it doesn't stop snowing soon, though, the cost of removing that beautiful white stuff will become a hazard to the village pocketbook.

The other day we might have hit two youngsters playing along the snow banks on their way to school. The two kiddies came into the path of the car from off the high banks and could have been seriously injured.

Drivers have an obligation to keep a wary eye on youngsters walking or playing along the way to and from school (or any other time) but the youngsters themselves might be given a warning now and then to stay at the side of the road—not walk down the centre.

CONGRATULATIONS

OPINIONS

Ours and Yours . . .

The Country Correspondent

Each week The Iroquois Post receives several columns of news from district contributors, we refer to as "country correspondents". In our mind there's no one like them.

The Country Correspondent has become the go-between, bringing weekly and daily newspapers, the news of the smaller communities that lie in rural areas. It's a time-consuming task for each and every one of them and we seldom take time to properly thank these people for the work they do — both for the newspaper and the community in which they live.

Most of them send in weekly contributions, varying from a few inches in length to full columns. They cover news of births, weddings, anniversaries, social events and sundry other happenings that make up the news you read each week.

To each and every one of them we feel indebted, as should the residents of the community they serve.

It's an honorable profession and we are proud to be associated with the fine Country Correspondents that serve The Post.

We Need More Imagination

(The Daily Standard-Freeholder, Cornwall)

Our cartoon highlights one of the most important problems the tourist industry faces. That problem is not really failure to do this or that, or doing the wrong things, it is mostly lack of imagination.

Since the announcement that more than half the tourist dollars spent in Canada last year were spent in Quebec, there have been some searching questions asked particularly in Ontario. And the most probable answer to the question what has Quebec got that Ontario lacks is summed up in one word: atmosphere.

This intangible quality consists in part of unusual scenery and architecture, a language that is strange and totally foreign to practically all Americans. There are some customs that are a pleasant variation from home routine without being so exotic the ordinary family feels lost.

Ontario tourist interests are quick to reply that this province offers the same things, if not more so. And they are quite right, except in the matter of language. But we doubt if the use of French by the people means anything at all to the average traveller from outside the province of Quebec, except an interesting overtone as he hears casual conversation in the streets and shops or painfully deciphers some of the signboards.

Our weakness in not that we don't have plenty to interest the tourist, but rather our tendency to make Ontario look too much like a slightly poorer version of Ohio or Pennsylvania, or wherever. There are too many American flags, too many hot dog stands, and too little promotion of local specialties and local interest. We're definitely moving away from over Americanization, but there is still room for improvement. There's plenty of scope for spreading knowledge of our many real attractions for travellers at all seasons of the year as well.

Ed. Note: The cartoon mentioned in the first paragraph was printed in the Daily Standard-Freeholder, showing what Canadians now do, including the flying of too many American flags instead of playing up the facts about Canada.

Third Weekly Report

Now that the Session is well underway the Members find themselves as busy as any person could wish ever to be. Mornings are replete with committee meetings and afternoons with formal sessions of the House, with night sittings twice weekly. The debates in the House have been most intersting with the CCF Leader attacking Members of the government with big usual wild charges and with some Liberal Members apparently taking their cue from him rather than from their own reasonable and very parliamentary Leader. The affairs of the Niagara Parks Commission and the position of it's Chairman, the Hon. Charles Daley, have been fully explored and the Minister of Energy Resources, the Hon. R. W.Macaulay, tabled documents showing Ontario Hydro's position in the much publicized purchase of lands formerly owned by the Sarnia area Indian bands.

The Committees of the House had a busy week and a great many matters were thoroughly discussed, including the proposal for night harness racing; education policies in Ontario; Sunday performances by "cultural" organizations for an admission fee, and the Liquor Control Board and it's policies. This year the Liberal Opposition Members are displaying an intense, well organized and well informed interest in Committee work, which is a very pleasant and desirable change from previous years and will undoubtedly have the effect of requiring Government Members to do likewise. All in all it would appear that Committees are regaining their important place in Session activities, as the main forum for private Members of all Parties to expound to the Government their views on every important subject.

New legislation has begun to make its appearance and is being referred to the appropriate Committees of the House for clause by clause consideration. Among the new measures are several legal Bills introduced by the Attorney General for the purpose of streamlining the administration of Justice in our Courts and Court offices. The Minister of Agriculture has also introduced a Bill to license all persons engaged in the business of disposing of dead livestock and certain amendments to The Warble Fly Act which will be of interest and benefit to all producers of livestock.

The attendance of interested Ontario citizens in the galleries of the House this Session is much greater than for many years and is an indication that people generally are anxious to follow and know about the legislation being enacted for them by their Legislature.

Parliament Topics

We all remember how easy figure skating looked as Barbara Ann did it. Anne Heggtveit makes skiing look easy and so in any field the person with years of experience and knowledge of every detail can make the difficult appear simple and natural to him.

The Minister of State for External Affairs, the Hon. Howard Green, is such a person. Always conscientious and hard working, his years of honest effort as a lawyer and member of Pariament supply him with a broad base of knowledge. Always modest, he studies assiduously now to master this new portfolio as a struggling student. Completely devoid of smugness or anything resembling the pompous, it is one more mark of his intelligence that he admits one more mark of character that how much he has to learn, and he has the courage to accept the challenge.

Admittedly my estimation of Mr. Green is prejudiced by years of affection for him, but in this I am supported by every Member of the House of Commons. All parties joined in the prolonged desk thumping when he rose this week to make his first major speech as Minister for External Affairs, and afterwards all parties offered complimentary opinions regarding the speech and the man. The qualities of this most human and representative of Canadians may well inspire us all with confidence and these same qualities are undoubtedly arousing admiration in World Assemblies. Already, after only eight months in office, he is being refered to as the Canadian Lincoln.

This reference automatically came to mind when he addressed the House of Commons with simple sincere thanks for their kind reception and announced that he would not read his speech although reading heavy reports prepared by his Department was formerly taken for granted due to the world importance of any inference given by a Foreign Minister. It is typical of Howard Green that the weighty problems involved do not exempt him, in his own estimation, from his belief that Members of Parliament should debate and not put people to sleep by reading. Common sense Green also believes that External Affairs should come down out of the clouds and be understandable. Modestly he looks beyond himself or even the Portfolio he holds for a reason for the interest shown in him, explaining that no wonder Canadians are interested in what he says as Canada's Foreign Minister, because the whole of civilization may well be at stake. This being more or less recognized, Disarmament becomes the most important item for 1960. Delegates at the United Nations showed more interest in this theme than any other question. Around the whole world today grows the realization that nuclear war would probably end the world as we know it.

There is no easy or quick way to achieve world disarmament, but careful, hopeful efforts are being made towards it, as Mr. Green said:

"There is no intention on the part of the Canadian Government to let down the guard so far as Canada is concerned, but we do believe that a genuine effort should be made to work out some scheme of disarmament. If every nation on that 10 member committee feels the same way about it, then there will be results which will benefit mankind."

Mr. Green stressed the value of NATO (North Atlantic Treaty Organization) which was set up to resist aggression from Eastern nations and must continue until we achieve controlled disarmament.

He mentioned a fact sometimes forgotten in the natural worry of defence policies and preparedness, that we do have a permanent army and permanent Air Force which gives strengh to NATO. Canada is doing her full share and can hold her head high.

Another Organization of value against aggression is the Commonwealth, now the greatest bridge between continents. So scattered around the globe this group of nations is so vulnerable that out of sheer common sense they must work for peace. The development and growth of the Commonwealth gives us every reason to be proud of our membership in it.

Plans are going ahead on the Commonwealth Scholarship program. This Fall about 125 students will come to Canada from all parts of the Commonwealth for a two year term, and Canadian students will likewise go abroad for study.

Mr. Green mentioned 2 parts of the world to which he wished more Canadian attention attention paid - the Pacific and Latin America.

My own growing anxiety about Pacific problems and our general ignorance of that world I have felt would be caused by this British Columbia Minister. He expressed this when he said "many Canadians are only vaguely aware that there is a Pacific Ocean, but we of British Columbia have long been interested in this part of the world.

He referred to Latin America as 20 republics all imbued with a love of freedom, all efficient members of World Organization, who have given the United Nations 5 Presidents, a larger percentage than any other nation. There is great friendliness to Canada and interest in increased trade. Towards this end Mr. Green will visit Latin America this Spring.

Steel Company Hosts To Tour Weekly Editors

Members of the Ontario Weekly Newspapers' Association and their families attending the annual convention in Hamilton toured the nation's largest steelmaking plant on February 6.

They were guests at Hamilton Works of The Steel Company of Canada, Limited which is marking its 50th Anniversary this year. Stelco produced 2,438,000 tons of steel in the past year compared to 93,000 tons in its first full year of operations.

Located on 860 acres of property flanking the south shore of Hamilton Bay, Hamilton Works reflects a great deal of the $300 million Stelco has spent in the past 20 years to expand its capacity.

Editors saw the gaint blast furnaces, visual symbols of the industry, and watched coke being pushed from batteries of 191 ovens. They walked through Stelco's No. 3 Open Hearth shop. Here they witnessed construction of a new furnace which will bring the Company's capacity to 3,000,000 tons in 1961. Stelco is spearheading an anti-air pollution drive in central Ontario by building a million-dollar precipitator into that furnace.

Last stop on the tour allowed the Editors to follow operations in a $25 million blooming mill which began production in 1958. It is considered to be one of the most efficient primary rolling operations in the steel business.

Following the tour Stelco was host to the Editors at a reception and luncheon.

THE BIBLE TODAY!

Opportunities for Bible distribution under unusual circumstances occur from time to time throughout the world. At a recent National Brazilian Basketball Invitation Tournament, each of the players, coaches, referees and other officials from all over the country was presented with a Bible.

Recently in Toronto a class of public school children attended the oath taking ceremony at the citizenship court. The Judge, the clerk of the court, the school teacher, and each of the children were presented with a copy of the John Stirling Youth Bible to commemorate the occasion and to remind them of the central place the Bible should hold in the life of a citizen of Canada.

Youngsters Support UNICEF Across Country

In 1959 a gift of $200,000.00 was raised for the United Nations Children's Fund by youngsters across Canada who participated in "Hallowe'en for UNICEF", a substantial increase over the 1958 total of $135,000.00. In addition, purchases of UNICEF cards increased some 50 percent over the 1958 figure of $79,000.00. These totals were announced today by Mrs. Jean Arnold Tory, National Chairman of the United Nations Association in Canada. Committee for UNICEF. "As a result of the success of these two programs", commented Mrs. Tory, "thousands of additional youngsters in underdeveloped countries will benefit from the milk and medicine which UNICEF provides".

Communities ranging from the small villages of Newfoundland and the western provinces, to the thriving cities of Ontario and Quebec all participated in UNICEF's Hallowe'en program. In most cases, the groups of children were sponsored by schools or churches, scout and guide groups, of by civic clubs. Educational programs prior to Hallowe'en stressed the conditions of disease and malnutrition which two-thirds of the world's children live with constantly. Films, stories, maps and posters helped to complete the idea of how UNICEF aid meant better and more productive lives for millions of youngsters each year. Facts such as these inspired former UNICEF supporters to surpass last year's goal, and encouraged thousands of new UNICEF contributors to participate. Children saw the Hallowe'en program as an opportunity to share some of their benefits with others as well as to have fun in a group project. Through the interest of these youngsters, the majority of Canadian citizens were able to help children all over the world on October 31st.

In March, a child will travel to the United Nations building in New York to present a cheque for Canada's Hallowe'en gift to a UNICEF official. The child who will be chosen from among the UNICEF participants in Newfoundland, will be representing all the children of our country who shared their Hallowe'en benefits with others. In previous years, youngsters from the central and western provinces have been selected as Canada's delegates in this venture.

UNICEF is the organization which specializes in the improvement of the welfare of children and mothers in under-developed countries. It is supported entirely by voluntary contributions of governments and individuals. UNICEF helps mainly by supplying medicine, food and equipment for maternal and child welfare service. Last year over 55,000,000 children and mothers in 104 countries were aided, and allocations totalling $28,000,000.00 were approved by the thirty-nation Executive Board which governs UNICEF's financial assistance programs.

The countries which received help, matched UNICEF's contributions by an equal amount or more thus proving their eagerness to attain a better standard of living.

Through the increased sale of UNICEF Greeting Cards and the substantial participation in the Hallowe'en progarm, the Canadian Committee for UNICEF was again able to report in 1959 that millions of our citizens had contributed to the health and happiness of 'all the world's children".

The Ways Of Road Safety

"The Minister of Transport can prescribe a driving mirror, the manufacturers can supply it, but only God can make the drivers look in it." The Ontario Safety League quotes this recent statement by Lord Chesham, of the (British) Ministry of Transport, who was speaking to the point that road safety cannot be dealt with entirely by Goverment action.

The Ontario Safety League says that most of what needs to be known about the correct use of car horns can be summed up in three words: "Beep, don't blare"

Many drivers knowingly handle their cars in a way that leaves the door wide open to tragedy, says the Ontario Safety League. An observation by Sidney J. Williams is applicable:
"Sympathy and help for the unfortunate is one of our finest traits. But undiscriminating sympathy for the victim of a self-invited misfortune does not breed either wisdom or character in the recipient."

"See '60 In Safety" May Be Safety Slogan

See 60 in Safety. This was the theme of the Ontario Safety Conference held February 9th and 10th at the Ontario Agriculture College, Guelph.

Dundas County representatives attending the Conference were Mrs. Allan Farlinger, Morrisburg; Miss Nina Casselman, Williamsburg; Mrs. Hary Allison, Chesterville, Mr. Byron Martin, Hallville and E. K. Pearson, Agricultural Representative, Morrisburg.

The Conference, jointly sponsored by the Ontario Department of Agriculture and the Ontario Department of Transport, drew more than 400 delegates and speakers from every County and district in Ontario. This was the second annual conference, the first being held one year ago immediately before the beginning of the current Ontario Farm Accident Survey.

One of the purposes of the conference was to focus attention on the seriousness of the farm accident problem. Certainly the speakers on the programme supplied ample proof of this in reporting the results obtained in the first siz months of the Ontario Farm Accident Survey. Over 4,000 accidents have been reported including 41 deaths, hundreds of permanent injuries, millions of dollars in costs and property damage and many years of time lost to Ontario farm people.

To show how accidents happen and may be prevented there were speakers on all phases of farm safety. Safety with electricity, with farm equipment, on the highways, in the homes and barns. All these and more safety topics were covered by speakers, interviews, mock courtroom scenes and short plays. One of the most interesting parts of the program was a discussion carried out by a farm family from Perth County, Mr. and Mrs. French and their four children. Their subject was "How Our Family Practices Safety". This group showed how every member of a family can practise accident prevention.

The concluding portion of the conference was designed to declare war on accidents among farm people. There was a unanimous feeling among delegates that an organized attack on farm accidents should be conducted immediately in each county or district. The delegates felt that the present farm accident survey organization could form a basis for continuing a farm accident prevention campaign and that necessary funds should be raised by local associations and Provincial Government grants.

According to Ed Pearson, Dundas County Ag. Rep., a safety programme will definitely be organized in this County. He states that while it is realized that all accidents will not be prevented by any campaign, it will be a weak effort that will not save at least one life and several serious accidents.

Are there any, asks Mr. Pearson, who will not support a cause like this?

Fishing . . . A Popular Winter Pastime

by Dorothy Barker

It was a pleasant trip from Montreal to our first long stop at Levis. Watching the countryside in its fresh blanket of snow was as fascinating as any summer spectacle. I was glad I had chosen this season of the year for my quilt pattern in the fluffy white trip. Rabbit tracks made a crazy surface of the strip farms by the railway tracks, which are peculiar to the Province of Quebec. Here and there would appear a large disturbed spot where perhaps a fox had flushed a pheasant feeding near a bush.

I watched for the fishermen I had seen at one time, sitting patiently on the frozen St. Lawrence, perched on a box or wooden chair over a small hole cut in the ice. I remembered the colourful picture they made with their bright habitant tuques and long knitted scarves dotting the wide expanse of white beauty with a splash of red or blue. This trip, so far, I had not spotted a single fisherman.

Long before insect repellants were concocted or the word "togetherness" was coined, I was taken on a fishing trip. I suppose searching the river for a bent over figure had reminded me of the incident.

We were summering that year, in the Haliburton Highlands of Ontario. Nearby was an excellent golf course which my husband was greatly enjoying, but apparently with a stricken conscience. One morning, when I was all puckered up to kiss him goodbye and hie me to the beach for a sun bath, he announced he was taking the whole family fishing.

I was instructed to pack frying pan, butter, salt and pepper and rols. The idea was that we would catch a fish, then pull into shore and cook it pronto. This was supposed to teach the two lads something, I believe is was camping lore, and provide a relaxing time time for me with nothing to do but twiddle my thumbs. What fun we were going to have, all of us together!

Perhaps my husband could play golf, but I soon had my suspicions he was no fisherman. Hiring the boat was a cinch. We were even able to augment the bamboo poles and "spinners" we had bought at the corner grocery in the resort town, when advised by the boathouse owner, after he had looked over our tackle, to rent some of his equipment.

There were armies of mosquitos and a few black flies left over from the spring invasion, who soon found my sun-suited hide was not only vulnerable but apparently tasty. After I had let out a few yelps I was implored to keep quiet or the fish wouldn't bite. Head of the house insisted, when I invited him to row further out on the lake away from insect headquarters, the fish always ran in schools on the rocky shoals close to shore.

I tried to hide my head every time our bloodthirsty second son changed the worm on his hook to "freshen up the lure" and was almost overcome with admiration for No. 1 son, who calmly sat in the prow of the boat reading the "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn", oblivious of sun, insects or time.

We did finally catch a fish. But not before hours had been spent in untangling lines, seeking new and better spots and arguing at great lengths as to the advantage of trolling over still fishing. Personally I preferred the trolling even if my hands were blistered from rowing while two boys and a man pursued their separate hobbies.

Building a fire was quite a task, especially when father insisted on showing the boys how to light the twigs and dry leaves we had gathered, by twirling one stick against another. When we were all practically exhausted with hunger he gave in and lit the fire with a match.

Thank heaven he volunteered to scale and gut the fish, which must have weighed all of a pound. We then cut it in four tiny pieces and fried it in the butter. It was at this moment, when we were all drooling in anticipation that we discovered I had forgotten the salt. If ever a proud fisherman was deflated, it was at that moment. The fish not only tasted flat, but the entire adventure had suddenly lost its flavour as well. Both parents decided "togetherness" or fun "en famille" was more enjoyable with one member of the family on tne golf course, another on the beach, a third in a tree hut and the fourth slung in a hammock with a good book.

Wonder if the habitant wives ever sit over a fishing hole in the ice? Perhaps on the day my train rode along the river's edge, they had protested and won their argument that fishing is a waste of time.

HANESVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Acil Cooke and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Cooke spent Saturday with the latter's son, John, of the Smiths Falls Hospital. We wish him a speedy recovery.

Much sympathy is extended to the bereaved father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Fawcett, brothers and sister of the late Retta Sakry, of Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Dennison, of Ingleside, spent Saturday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Fader and Mrs. N. Baker.

Born—At the Trenton Memorial Hospital, Monday, February 8, to Mr. and Mrs. Roger Baker, a son.

Mrs. Robbie Hanes and Mrs. Basil Reynolds spent the weekend with the former's daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Graham McInnis, Smiths Falls.

Mrs. Aaron Coughler spent a couple of days last week with her sister, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Fader.

Mrs. N. P. Baker and Jimmie have returned home after spending a couple of weeks with friends in Hansville and Prescott.

Mr. Walter Drummond, of Almonte, spent the weekend with his sister, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Merkley.

Mr. and Mrs. Buffman, of Almonte, spent the weekend with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson.

U. S. parents spent $190 million in extra insurance premiums in 1958 because drivers under 26 were operating the family car. This is three times the amount needed to teach every U. S. boy and girl how to drive in a high school driver-education course. The Ontario Safety League points out that numerous surveys have indicated that every dollar spent on high school driver education results in a direct saving of at least $3, through reduced accidents, and lower insurance rates - to say nothing of the incalculable saving represented by the reduction in injuries and deaths.

"White Cane Week" Now Underway

Because most of you recognize that Blindness is YOUR Business said George Patrick, Field Secretary for The Canadian National Institute for the Blind, "you have made the White Cane the key to a happier way of life for thousands of your sightless neighbours".

With White Cane Week underway and sponsored each year as an information project by the CNIB and The Canadian Council of the Blind, Mr. Patrick thanked the citizens of this locality for their year-round consideration of the blind along the street and in boarding buses and trains.

"No longer is the White Cane a sign of faltering steps and despondent hearts. It has now become a mark of confidence and independence of spirit. Through your understanding" he said "blind Canadians step out with the White Cane knowing that when they need a friendly arm you will be around."

Each year more than 2,000 Canadians lose their sight and begin a readjustment and training program to win their personal victory over blindness. "Doctors state that more than 50 per cent of the blindness in Canada is unnecessary," Mr. Patrick declared. Some people take their eyes for granted and lose their sight through accidents. Others neglect the warning signs and fail to see an eye physician when trouble first strikes.

With White Cane Week underway, learn to take an active part in preventing unnecessary blindness. If you work in industry, wear your safety goggles. You may save your sight like the bridegroom whose goggles stopped hot solder from reaching his eyes, just three days before his wedding. If someone in your family has defective sight, have his eyes examined and the prescribed treatment followed. Around the house carry knives, scissors and pointed tools with the sharp end held downward. Keep bows and arrows, air rifles, and sharp shooters of all kinds out of the way of young children. A thoughtless shot has cost many an eye and even total blindness.

"I'm no spoil-sport," Mr. Patrick said, "but the costs of these haphazard shots are often too high to make the game worth playing. Remember that Blindness is YOUR Business not just during Whit Cane Week but every day of the year. Act on it, - the sight you save could be your own."

THE RECORD WORLD

New LP & 3 Planned For Bobby Darin

by Gary Parmeter

PICK OF THE WEEK

Popular PAUL ANKA has two records out this week, one sung by himself, and one by CONNIE FRANCIS. CONNIE'S is my pick though and it's top ten material for sure. Her latest for MGM is a ballad romancer called "Teddy" that she sings very nicely. On the other CONNIE sings an oldie called "Mama" in both English and Italian. Both should be winners but my money's on "Teddy".

SURE SHOTS

And now for that new PAUL ANKA release. PAUL'S new Sparton disk is a teen tune called "Puppy Love" done in the usual ANKA manner. SID FELLER'S orch backs the songster very capable. On the second session, the Ottawa-born talent moves right along with another self penned item entitled "Adam And Eve", a song featured on the TV show "The Private Lives Of Adam And Eve".

* * * *

Four young fellows are all in there pitching on a tune called "What Do You Want" that is definetely headed for the charts. The four fellows are not a group, but four different singers on four different labels. Cub records has the original by ADAM FAITH, so it probably stands to make most of the money; a good looking sixteen year old, BUDDY HOLLY-sounding songster named BOBBY VEE, who had that great "Susie Baby", has the tune for Liberty; Epic's ERSEL ("Bluebirds Over The Mountain") HICKEY has a big version backed with a strong coupler with his version of JACK BENNY'S "Love In Bloom" which features a rock vocal and a hilarious take off on JACK'S violin playing; there's also a version by Britisher CRAIG DOUGLAS on the American Jaro label; This great tune has just finished a long chat run as number one in Britain by ADAM FAITH and he or any of the others could duplicate the song's success here.

* * * *

Mr. "Battle Of New Orleans - JOHNNY HORTON, has a potent effort in his new Columbia platter-"Sink The Bismarck". The song was inspired by the movie of the same name and was written by JOHNNY and his manager-bass player TILLMAN FRANKS. Like all JOHNNY HORTON records since "New Orleans" the disk is arranged closely to his summer smash. I have a feeling that this disk will be a hit. Flip. "The Same Old Tale The Crow Told Me" is arranged similarly.

It's hard to ruin a song like "Paradise", but SAMMY TURNER has tried his darndest on his latest Quality outing. SAMMY'S vocal is actually pretty good, but the falsetto voice following each line which is customarily followed by a pleasant humming effect has has turned an excellent potential hit into a mediocre potential hit.

The FLEETWOODS, a group who have done exceptionally with things like "Come Softly To Me" and "Mr. Blue", have a new one called "Outside My Window" that has a pleasant sound. The other end is potent too; it's called "Magic Star."

CLYDE McPHATTER'S old group, the DRIFTERS, are doing great business these days and they have a new one which promises to follow the success of their past efforts. It's entitled "This Magic Moment", a worthwhile item for teens 'n' twenties. It's a good follow-up to "Dance With Me" and "True Love, True Love" STAN APPLEBAUM supplies the great arrangement here, as with the new SAMMY TURNER disk.

PERCY FAITH is right up there near the top with his great instrumental recording of 'Theme From A Summer Place" for Columbia. Canada's musical ambassador has a fine arrangements that provide a listening treat with the movie title tune.

"In The Mood" started the ball rolling for ERNIE FIELDS and he intends to keep is rolling with his follow up - "Chattanooga Choo Choo", another item from the swing band era.

SPOTLIGHT ALBUMS

"THIS IS DARIN" - BOBBY DARIN—Atco 33-115. Probably the most eagerly awaited LP in some time is this one by the great young talent who really arrived with his "That's All" album. This big new set features the arrangements of RICHARD WESS and the following songs: "Clementine", "Caravan", "I Can't Give You Anything But Love", "Black Coffee", "My Gal Sal", "Have You Got Any Castles, Baby", "Guys And Dolls", "Pete Kelly's Blues', "Dont Dream Of Anybody But Me", "Down With Love", "All Nite Long", "The Gal That Got Away". There are some potent sigles here.

"WHEN THE SPIRIT MOVES YOU"— JIMMIE ROGERS - Apex R25103. The popular songster has a dozen beloved spirituals and gospel songs that include "Just A Closer Walk With Thee", "Goin' To Walk All Over God's Heaven", "Joshua Fit The Battle Of Jericho", and "Standin In The Need Of Prayer".

"RICKY SINGS SPIRITUALS"—RICKY NELSON - Imperial IMP 165. A 45 Extended Play disk which shall probably be followed up by an LP and possibly by a single. The EP includes a slow one called"If You Believe It", and three swingin' gospel type songs: "Glory Train," "March With The Band Of The Lord", and "I Bowed My Head In Shame".

PLATTER CHATTER

Atco records, who just released a new BOBBY DARIN LP, plan to record three more by the boy within the next month. The first will feature a 23 piece orchestra, the second a polite jazz treatment, and the third the big band of BILLY MAY. The albums will be held for later release.

BOBBY FREEMAN, who has had such hits as "Do You Wanna Dance", "Betty Lou Got A New Pair Of Shoes", and "Ebbtide", for Jubilee records, has parted company with that diskery and has signed a long term contract with Cameo.

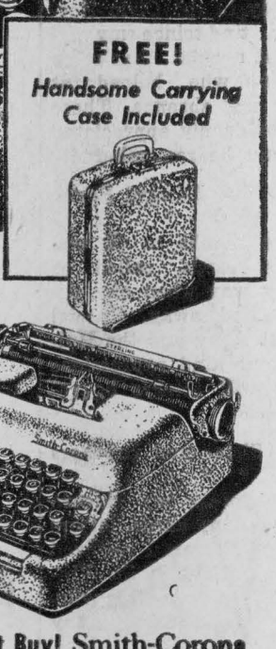

ANDY WILLIAM'S inspirational selection "The Village Of St. Bernadette" which reached its maximum position at number nine on the U. S. listings several weeks ago, is now enjoying its third consecutive week as the number one song in Ottawa according to the CFRA Platter Poll.

AL HIBBLER, the blind vocalist who scored a while back with "Unchained Melody" and "He" has been pacted to an exclusive deal by Roulette records. The one time DUKE ELLINGTON singer had been with Decca for several yars.

RCA Victor and a U. S. beer company have teamed up on a national advertising gimmick. The joint promotion stems from the beer company's advertising slogan "Where There's Life There's. . . .". RCA have named a new LP "Where There's Life" containing a dozen songs with the words life in the title of each (e. g. "Ah, Sweet Mystery Of Life", "Life Is Just A Bowl Of Cherries".) The cover of the LP features a gal by a record player and a pair of hands pouring a bottle of the brewer's product. The beer company in return is featuring full page ads showing the album in the background in all the national magazines. You can see the ad in the current issues of Look, Life, Saturday Evening Post, Time and many others.

Wins Cheese Honours

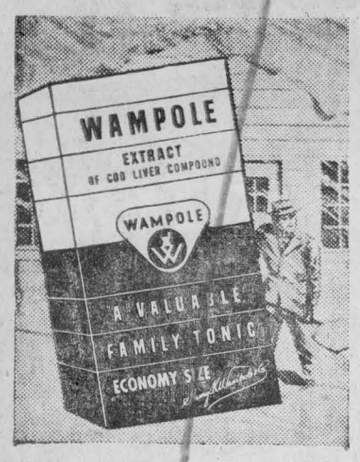

The Frank Herns memorial trophy has been brought to Eastern Ontario for the first time. Emblematic of top points winning in various provincial cheese shows, the elaborate gold-plated trophy is now in the care of Harold Montgomery of Monckland and formerly of this district.

Mr. Montgomery is cheesemaker at the Farmer's Joy factory at Gravel Hill, owned by Wm. and Howard Buell. For a number of years he has exhibited cheese with considerable success, but a long row of medallions on the base of the trophy show that T. S. Aiken of Belton was successful year after year in topping the list of aggregate points at all the shows.

This year, however, the outcome was different. The Canadian National Exhibition, the Royal Winter Fair, the Eastern Ontario Cheese Show at Ottawa, the British Empire cheese show at Brockville, the Western Ontario show at Hamilton found Aiken retired from the exhibition battle and Montgomery cheese taking sufficient honors to win prizes "too numerous to mention" in detail.

The trophy bears the following inscription: The Frank Herns Memorial Trophy, chief instructor for Western Ontario, 1907 to 1941 Presented by the cheesemakers of Western Ontario and associates for annual competition—Awarded to the cheesemaker attaining the highest aggregate score on exhibition cheese at the major exhibitions in the province".

Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery attended the recent cheese show in Hamilton, where the 1960 season for cheese competition got started. Although it had nothing to do with the Herns trophy award, which was strictly on the basis of 1959 scores, the local man brought home a silver serving tray, for highest scoring cheese in the show and a rosewood carving tray for the best finished cheese in the show, as well as a barometer and desk set. Mr. Montgomery had four firsts.

A general meeting was held in the clubrooms on Sunday Feb. 14, with President, H. L. Roberts in the chair. There was a fair turnout considering the weather.

Reports from the various committee's were heard and Sports officer Shaver reports there is a good line up for the hockey teams if they can get the ice. The new goal nets were put to use on Saturday last, thanks to D. Keeler, C. Gellinger and A.
