A real sharp cat on TV the other night came out with a profound prediction on the weather . . .the weatherman reported that cold weather will remain with us for another month. It'll turn warmer, we feel sure, but right in the middle of the coldest weather we've had all Winter, this guy gives forth with such a pleasant prediction! It isn't done these days but if we could, we'd hang him by his ears. We'd just as soon not known what the weather is going to be like a full long month ahead. . . let it come as it will.

Really enthusiastic sportsmen become broomball players. Or so it would seem, when six men head 60 miles for a game with a team they've never heard of. You have to be enthusiastic to travel that far in 15 below weather for a game of that kind. But we did.

It goes without saying that we didn't get beaten at the game either. As a matter of fact we didn't even get to play. Somewhere along the line we were fouled up in our search for the right rink in Ottawa and two carloads, after visiting six of eight rinks in Ottawa's west end, gave up the search. The other car made it somehow.

The invitation is on, however, for the Ottawa team to visit here and with any luck at all, they should find our rink.

Then we'll see how well they play! (From all reports, they're pros and we've decided to have a white flag handy . . . just in case.)

Wasn't it nice to see ice melting on the roads on Sunday . . . that warm February sun gives us hope that old man winter is being chased off north.

RECEIVE BRIEFING

Local men employed at the Iroquois Locks attended their annual "briefing" at the Seaway Building, Cornwall, Wednesday and Thursday of last week. They were Thos. McCaffrey, lock superintendent; W. Eugene Haley, Edward DeBoard and George Ostler.

Walter E. Merkley Died Suddenly Friday

Funeral services were held here Monday for the late Walter E. Merkley who died suddenly on Friday, February 3rd, while sitting in his car as he was about to leave for work. Mr. Merkley, who had celebrated his 63rd birthday on January 10th, had started his car preparing to leave for work at Caldwell Linen Mills and after picking up his lunch pail went out to leave his home on the Broken Second. A few minutes later his sister, Mrs. Jessie Hess, who lived with Mr. Merkley, noticed him still sitting in the car and on investigating found him dead behind the wheel.

It is believed Mr. Merkley died from a heart seizure.

The late Mr. Merkley was born in Matilda Township, east of Brinston, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Merkley. His father a harness maker, had lived in various communities in the area before coming to Matilda Township. The deceased, while having little formal education, became an adept mechanic and had worked for Caldwell Linen Mills Ltd., for 37 years and having worked for 5 years with the present company's predecessor, the Dundas Mills. A man who took great pride in his job, Mr. Merkley was always punctual and well liked by his fellow workmen and operating staff at the mill. He will be sorely missed by both his friends and relatives of the community and area.

Surviving are a son and daughter, Leo Merkley of Cardinal, and Shirley of Toronto; as well as two brothers and five sisters. They are Burnis, Iroquois; Percy of Grantley; Mrs. Jessie Hess, with whom he resided; Mrs. Allan (Emma) St. Pierre, Broken Second; Mrs. Dorothy Guay, Brouseville; Mrs. J. (Bessie) Salmon, Morrisburg; Mrs. Clarence Scott, Morrisburg; Mrs. Arthur (Florence) Keeler, Cardinal.

Rev. J. Leslie Dean, Minister of Iroquois United Church, conducted the funeral service at the W. E. Fitzsimmons Funeral Home, Iroquois, taking as his text Romans, chapter 5, verse 8. Passages were also read from Psalm 39 and 139. The remains were placed in the vault at Point Iroquois to await burial in the Spring. The many floral tributes testified to the high esteem in which Mr. Merkley was held by his many friends and relatives in the community and district.

MODEL U.N.

The students of the United Nations Club of the University of Carleton, Ottawa, are holding a model U.N. Assembly on March 11. Brian Hodgert, Bill Millar, Mr. Robinson, and probably a few girls will attend the assembly. They will take part in discussions based around the current political events of the last year or so. More than likely there will be issues revolving around Cuba, Red China, Russia and Formosa. The participants from I.H.S. will act as delegates from Sweden, and will be expected to be well informed about the said country. The assembly will be held in Fisher High School with about 300 students participating.

Public Speaking

The finalists from the Public Speaking Contest will thrash it out amongst themselves on the evening of the 15th. There is hope for a large attendance at this affair. Again it is noted that these contests have received little support in the form of spectators. Hope to see you there Wednesday at 8.00.

Ice-Party

The French Club is sponsoring a skating party for the 10th. There will be skating from 7.00 till 9.00 after which the group will go over to the High School for refreshments and a dance till 12.00. This party is open to any and only to I.H.S. students. Those wishing to attend will have to secure tickets from either Miss B. Disher or the members of the club.

Snow-Storm Contest

The I.H.S. Star is sponsoring a snowstorm contest! That's right. The staff of the Star is gambling on the weather, in that they are willing to pay one whole dollar to the lucky student who has enough foresight to pick out the day that ole man weather will pick to snow us in.

Annual Vestry Meeting Held At St. John's

On Monday evening, January 30th, the Annual Vestry meeting of the Church of St. John the Baptist was held in the Parish Hall. The Rev. D. F. Weegar was chairman and opened the meeting with prayer. Mrs. Langford was appointed Vestry Clerk, and read the minutes of the previous Annual Vestry meeting. Then the business of the meeting proceeded. Mr. Weegar read his report and Dr. Clifford Greaves in the absence of Mr. Ross Playfair read the financial reports of the year's work. The encouraging reports were cause for thanksgiving to Almighty God for His blessing upon the work of the parish. Mr. Carl Banford was appointed Rector's Warden and Mr. Edward Casentree was elected People's Warden. Mr. Ross Playfair was elected delegate to Synod. The members of the Executive Committee will remain the same with the addition of Mr. Allan Armstrong as will also the cemetery committee. Various interesting discussions arose out of the various reports which made the meeting interesting and informative.

The gratitude of the parish is due in full measure to the ladies of the Guild under the able leadership of Mrs. Fitzsimmons, as well as the Women's Auxiliary, faithfully led by Mrs. Playfair. The women of these groups with the men of the parish have given faithfully of their time and energy throughout the year.

At the close of a very satisfactory meeting the rector said a Memorial Prayer for all those departed this life during the year. Then the meeting joined in saying the General Thanksgiving and the Blesing was pronounced. Refreshments were served and a pleasant social time brought the fellowship to a close.

Will They Learn To Swim?

In addition to being a healthful exercise, swimming has become a necessary art in today's society and thinking about the pollution of the St. Lawrence River, we are inclined to wonder of our children "will they learn to swim?"

As our society contemplates what we are to do with our leisure hours and we find more and more people interested in using the nation's waterways for boating, swimming and fishing, we must prepare our children to protect themselves in this element of nature. The ability to swim is a "must" for every youngster and we should be prepared to supply the facilities for the present generation of young people as well as future generations if they are going to be able to use this element for pleasure, in safety.

The pollution of the St. Lawrence River, from Kingston to Montreal, has plagued many communities and caused much of the shoreline to be posted as unsafe. Even at Kingston, beaches on Lake Ontario have been posted in this regard.

If, as it seems, the problem cannot be solved overnight, communities such as ours must come forward with a practical alternative in swimming facilities. Having decided on a course of action that will provide our community's youngsters with this needed recreational requirement, we should then proceed to eliminate the cause of pollution in the St. Lawrence River. It will not be a short battle but is one very much worthwhile fighting for.

Cardinal residents took the initiative in its battle against the problem and opened a swimming pool last year. It is, as was anticipated, a marvelous and significant improvement in this type of recreation facility.

Iroquois Council is doing all it can, having approached the Ontario Water Resources Commission, in trying to eliminate pollution of our beach area, but all concerned realize long-range planning and action will be needed to bring about safe water conditions in this area.

The building of swimming pools we consider to be only a stop-gap measure and would not relent in our fight against further pollution of our waterways, as well as eliminating present causes. In this respect the Water Resources Commission is carrying on a relentless and time-consuming fight—but would, no doubt, desire all the forces it could muster to its aid.

A swimming pool would take care of the needs of this community but in no way could it handle the hundreds of people who visit Seaway Valley each summer, many for the purpose of a swim in the cool St. Lawrence waters. The tourist industry is growing steadily but without good swimming beaches, in every community, the result is a detriment to the growth of such areas.

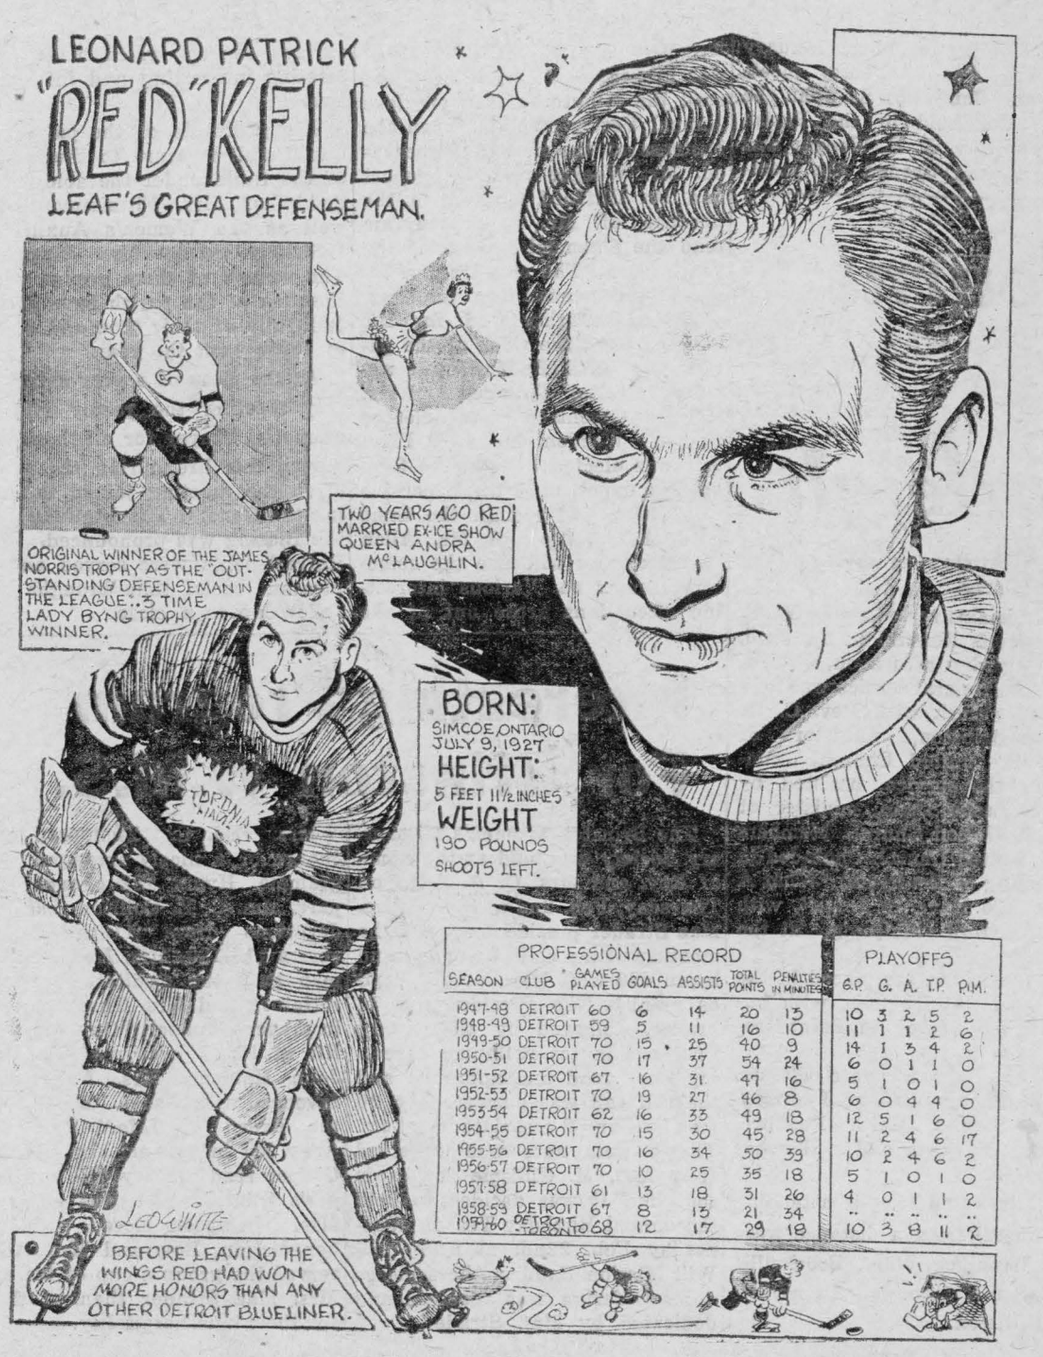

There are many who feel that the government should step in immediately to stop the pollution and clear the river once and for all. The problem is not that simple, however, and a decade may pass before we will begin to see the end of "no swimming" signs along the St. Lawrence River.

But let's take a stand on our own immediate problem first; let's prepare for providing swimming facilities, where our young people can learn water safety and especially how to protect themselves in this element which offers so much in pleasure to us all.

It would take several months to get plans formulated and committees actively participating in a campaign for a pool in Iroquois. Whether the initiative is taken by an individual, by the Iroquois Recreation Association or the initial action prompted by a community organization, is not important. . . . as long as action is taken and soon.

Mrs. J. Casselman Reports From The Capital

The office of Governor General is a strong link in the historic chain of our system of Government.

We have been fortunate that our Governors General have discharged their duties with the dignity, dedication and high principles, which make the office important.

No Governor General has surpassed present Governor General Vanier in dignity and concern to carry out his obligations to the full. These are onerous to a man of his years and seemingly no longer of robust physique. However, General Vanier is only continuing a long life of devotion to public service with his military record and diplomatic appointments.

Close beside him with equal dignity and dedication is Madame Vanier, who likewise has never surpassed as a Chatelaine of Government House. She is an extremely handsome woman and adds such colour to any ceremony by her presence. Surprisingly incorporated in this same personality is a quick broadly educated mind, command of two languages with perfect ease, and a warm heart which produces endearing affectionate mannerisms and always the kind, sympathetic word.

The many duties of the Governor General and his Lady can be increased according to their personal interest and wish to contribute to Canadian society. Consequently, those who take the job seriously, as happily has been the case here in Canada for many years, take upon themselves a number of appointments, public appearances and social duties which is almost staggering.

The advantage to any Service Club or any project of having the presence of the Governor General is well known. Possibly another contribution which they make is less well known. Evenings when they could relax and enjoy their family or personal hobbies, are very regularly devoted to formal dinners, gathering together representative Canadians from all walks of life. Last night it was my honour to represent the House of Commons at this type of dinner and to enjoy the hospitality of Government House. As I drove up the long tree-lined avenue to the impressive building I could not help but be pleased that anyone can drive his own car so happily, as I was doing amidst some more expensive chauffeured cars, and still receive equal courtesy and no differentiation. It was a most interesting group of people that met at 7:45p.m. for the Governor's arrival at 8 o'clock. It is customary for the guests to wait in a Sitting Room and the Governor General and his Lady arrive to welcome their guests and shake hands all around before proceeding to the Dining Room.

Last night when Greetings and Courtesies were completed, the Governor General offered his arm to Mrs. Douglas Harkness, wife of the Minister of National Defence, who looked charming in her orangey-red taffeta dress, with her dark red hair. Next in line was pretty Mrs. Walter Dinsdale, wife of the new Minister of Northern Affairs and National Resources, dresed in purple silk and squired to dinner by Chief Justice, the Hon. H. R. Martland.

I was pleasantly placed between the Hon. Walter Aseltine, Leader of the Senate, and Dr. John Keyston of the Research Council. Senator Aseltine of course, is an old friend, having sat in the Senate for 27 years and close in seniority to Senator Hardy of Brockville, who is Dean of the Senate. Senator Aseltine is from Rosetown, Saskatchewan, very much in love with Western Canada, and full of stories of a lifetime of hunting and fishing, which he assured me, was the best in the world. Dr. Keyston was most interesting, having spent several years in Southern Rhodesia and considerable time in India. With his keen observant mind he had important comments to make on these turbulent parts of the world. It seemed to me that he was expressing the voice of wisdom when he suggested that it behooves us to know something of Africa and Asia before we make severe judgment on the events there. This is an opinion held by people who have some understanding of the intricacies of the problems of Asia and Africa, and can be wel understood when we think of the Golden Rule and how irritated we would be if the Government of another country of public group there, criticized and sat in judgment upon our manner of handling our Canadian problems.

Opposite me sat the reverend A. Y. Jackson, father of the Canadian Group of Seven, which has made such a contribution to Canadian Art. Mr. Jackson is a twinkling and lovable personality.

Also representing the Senate was the gay and outgoing friendly new lady Senator, the Hon. Josie Quart.

The good conversation and the interesting personalities had an equally interesting setting .The Dining portraits of all the former Governors General. The table itself was a delight with huge arrangements of yellow daffodils and white narcissi alternating with silver candelabra, a breath of spring although outside it was more than 20 below zero.

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

Something rather frightening is happening to the steady reliable Canadian citizen. I don't know what's behind it, but it's both unnatural and unnerving. He is beginning to enjoy the winter! Or, at least, he pretends he is.

For generations Canadians approached the winter sensibly. When the first snows came they put on their long underwear; a gloomy look, and a long suffering air, and stayed as close to the fire as possible for the next six months. Winter was something to be lived through and there was no nonsense about enjoying it.

But this dour and honest outlook has been completely shattered within the last few years. Every week end thousands of people head out of the cities with their skis and a couple of crocks. Motor clubs hold races through the blizzards, over the icy roads. Curling rinks are crammed. People are spending week ends at their cottages, tramping through huge drifts to get in to them.

The other day a friend told me he had taken his family out for a midwinter picnic, on a Sunday. The temperature was about 8 above. He dug a hole in the snow, built fire and heated some stew. "The kids loved it," he said. No ants, no flies. And almost no fingers on the smallest boy, by the time they got him home.

But it's not only the young who are revelling in the elements these days. Everyone is infected. Staff members at our school have organized a hockey team. You should hear them sitting around bragging. They may be short of wind on the ice but they're not when they don't have the skates on. Most of them haven't played hockey for more than 20 years. But they are as rabid as the local pee-wees.

Elderly gentlemen who should be sitting at home with pipe and slippers enjoying the peaceful twilight of their years may be found on any curling rink, dashing up and down as though the devil himself was after them, and sweeping as though angina pectoris was a tropical fruit.

Matronly ladies who should be at home knitting bootees for their grandchildren, may be seen hurtling down some near-perpendicular slopes, bowling over everything in their paths, from fellow-skiers to small trees.

Winter carnivals are spreading across the land with the speed of bubonic plague. At these, a few good-looking young ladies are named Queen of the Carnival, and are never quite the same again, while thousands of young ladies who know they are equally good-looking are not named Queen and are never quite the same again.

Where is it all going to end? When are we Canadians going to stop running around with frozen grins, pretending we just love our big, white beautiful Winter? How soon will this hysterical nonsense collapse and let us revert to our old happy misery?

I, for one, can't stand much more of this jolly, healthy love-affair that we are trying to carry on with that frosty old termagant, Madame de Winter, who has been planting her icy feet in the small of our warm backs for lo these many years.

Oh, it's easy enough to be trapped into this false delight in winter. Each of us has within him the tattered remnants of a small child who once wallowed in snow with the grunting pleasure of a small pig rolling in wet mud. And it's this buried memory of the joys of winter that gets us in trouble.

The other day, for instance, I was out with my son, who was learning to ski, rather gingerly. I was egging him on to try the steep slope. "Let's see you do it, Big Shot, if it's so easy," he suggested. There was no way out. I put on the skis, swallowed once, closed my eyes, and pushed off, my overcoat flying out behind me. Seconds later, without once having opened my eyes, I found myself at the bottom, still on my feet.

And this is how we are snared. Immediately, I was ready to buy skis, take lessons, and start crying "schuss" or "slush" or whatever it is skiers cry as they skim the slopes. I was saved only by my iron will, which always comes to my rescue when I decide I'll learn to play the tuba, or write a novel, or take up Russian. But some people, who don't have the same firm control of their fancies, are caught up in the artificial excitement of winter, and go charging about in the snow, uttering shrill little cries of simulated pleasure.

I have always maintained that Canada in midwinter is fit only for jackrabbits, alcoholics and children under twelve. And the sooner we get back to our age-old feud with Winter and forget this game of footsie we're trying to play with her, the sooner we'll regain our old, decent, Canadian, midwinter surliness.

TODAY!

A story, which came from the Bible Depot in Santiago, Chile, states, "A young Arab girl came into the Depot recently asking for a Bible. Having obtained what she sought, she went along, and one of our helpers told how the girl had in some way secured a bible against the wishes of her parents who were Muslims, had read it, and had accepted Christ as her Saviour. Although not permitted to attend a Christian Church, she comes from time to time to buy a Bible for someone she has been able to interest in the reading of the Book.

Owing to the economic and financial difficulties in Chili the Society's application to import Scriptures was turned down six times before the authorities finally granted a permit of sixty days' duration upon payment of a tax of two per cent of the total value of the imports and a deposit with the Central Bank of Chili of a sum equivalent to 100 per cent of the imports. This means that out of 21 different bindings and sizes of the Spanish Valera version of the Bible, the Depjot is only able to stock 11 which are not the best sellers. But in spite of all difficulties the work goes on.

Rev. R. W. Wighton, of Ajax, Ont., wants to sell a Bible published in 1609, to further his work in evangelical and Bible teaching. He is a Baptist minister. He got the book from a young man joining the navy in South Africa who had been given the Bible by his landlady. It is a Roman Catholic Bible, since it pre-dates the King James version printed in 1611, and is considered a "collectors item." Rev. Wighton came to Canada after the war. He is a direct descendent of the explorer Dr. David Livingston.

OUR TOWN—With the Humbys—by McClelland

OUR TOWN—With the Humbys—by McClelland

Another Season Faded Into History

by Dorothy Barker

Another gay, mad exciting season has faded into the limbo of memories. Weeks of shopping, cooking, trimming the house, wrapping presents and of fun have assumed the identity of all Christmases past. The smell of spruce, pine and stuffing still hangs in the draperies. Now and then the vacuum cleaner picks up a bit of broken glass from where a tree ornament was shattered by the too eager hands of the newest member of the family, or by the collie Holly's great bushy tail which knocked it sailing into the farthest corner of the room, unnoticed in the hilarity.

I became aware once more of the split personality of this memorable time of the year when, after all the hubbub of preperation was over, I slipped into the last empty pew in our church and bowed my head in a prayer of gratitude that another year had come and gone and bestowed on our family the blessings of peace and plenty. Stained glass windows reflected the glow from a myriad of candles while the pungent fragrance of cedar and pine mingled with the odour of burning tallow. Sweet, sad, familiar carols, sung by this large choir of parishioners, drifted from the majesty of "Silent Night" to the hallelujah joy of "Hark the Herald Angels Sing."

Only the squeeky sound of overshoes on newly fallen snow had broken the silence of Christmas eve as I walked home at midnight along our country road. I watched the gaudy coloured lights that decked every home dance in the reflection of sparkly snowflakes. As I trudged along, I reviewed the contents of a letter I had received which, I felt, gave purpose to my work as a columnist.

A year ago I wrote rather wrathfully about the tremendous popularity of warlike toys as reflected in a survey of purchases across Canada. At the time I made this plea to parents, I asked them to consider more constructive toys for their children rather than nurture a taste for destruction. My correspondent reminded me of this column and asked if I had heard the result of this year's toy sales survey. Guns and all manner of military toys were at the bottom of the list. Constructive toys, sewing sets, art supplies and books headed the survey. "Too bad you can never assess what good your editorial might have done to awaken parents across Canada to the harm they might do in cultivating a warlike desire in the bosoms of their offsprings, merely through their choice of toys. I know I, for one, returned a gun after reading your column". This letter was a gift I had not expected though every writer hopes, at some time during his or her career, to make a contribution through the space at their disposal toward influencing a better way of life.

And speaking of gifts, there was one under my tree that settled forever a family argument regarding the degree of respect children should show their grandparents. Or in my case, me. With the advent of the new baby girl into the family circle, my younger son claimed he wanted his daughter to early learn that she must respectfully call me "Grandma."

The three bairns in the elder son's family have always called me "Dot". I have been their pal and the image of me as a grandparent has never entered their minds.

This parcel I speak of was a bulky creation held together by fifty or more Santa Claus gummed seals and tied with yards and yards of red tinsel string. Hanging from it was a crayon image of the great Saint himself created by eight-year-old Susan and in wobbly letters an inch high was written "For our Darling Dot from Ricky, Susan and Janet". The parcel contained bright paddy green leotards size "L".

I had hardly snapped the seals when Iwas urged to model my gift by a chorus of excited childish voices. Little did it matter that the garment hung off my toes like a pair of aquanauts' flipped, hugged my arm pits and folded in stretchee nylon drapes around my knees and bum-si-daisy. This was apparel I had craved according to them. They had remembered for almost twelve months that I remarked, as I watched the girls dress a year ago, I wished I had a pair of leotards as warm and cozy as theirs. Their mother told me they had saved their pennies for this gift.

This is the kind of love thought that makes it easy to face the unknown challenge of this New Year. What more could anyone wish for, than that they might always remain, in the opinion of their grandchildren, young enough to sport leotards.

"THE PENNY WOULD LIKELY GO OUT OF CIRCULATION — IF IT WEREN'T SO POPULAR IN CHURCHES."

COOKING COMMENTS

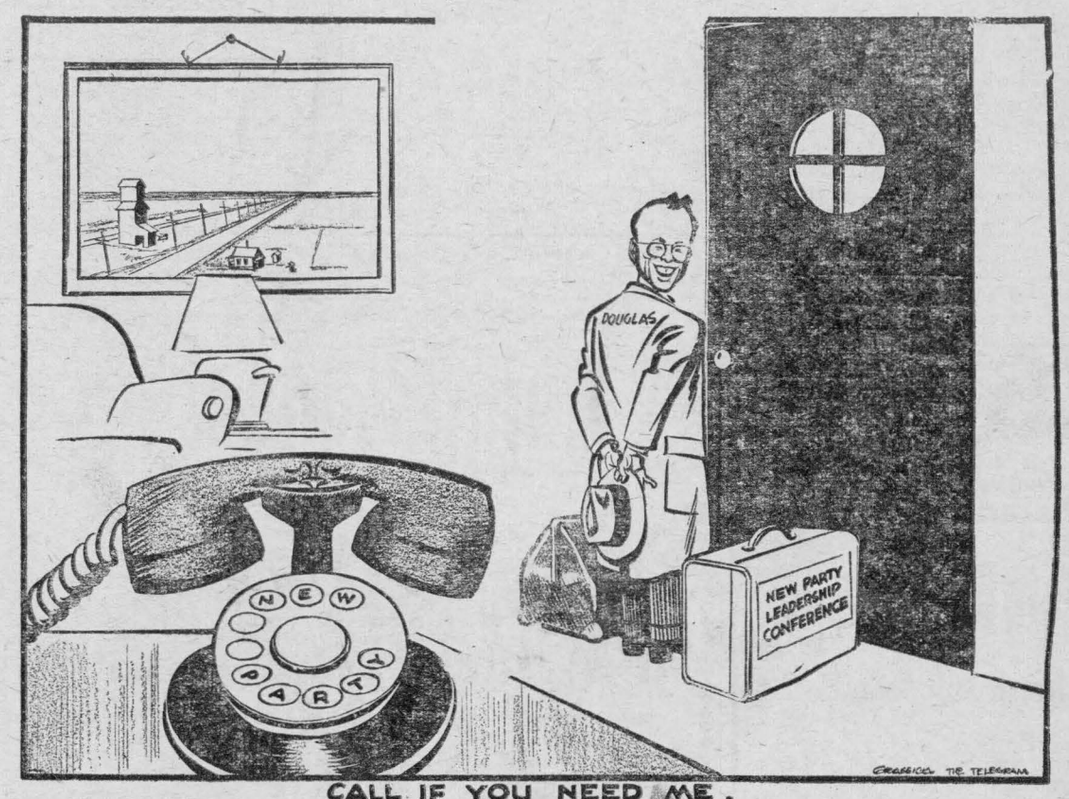

Among the foods created for man's dining pleasure, cheese is unique in many ways. No other family of foods is so varied or numerous and none is more universally known and enjoyed. In Ontario, production of cheese provides for all tastes, including many varieties such as cheddar, processed, cream, cottage, brick, blue, and Limburger, states the Food and Nutrition Department, Macdonald Institute, Guelph.

Described simply, cheese is the solid or casein portion of milk separated from the whey portion. The coagulatin of the casein is helped by the action of rennet or lactic acid. The many different cheeses which result are the product of variations in the method of making and curing each variety after the initial coagulation has occured, according to the Food and Nutrition Department, Macdonald Institute, Guelph.

Cottage cheese is an uncured cheese made from pasteurized skimmed milk. It is available dry or creamed and is a valuable source of protein, advises the Food and Nutrition Department, Macdonald Institute, Guelph.

TIMELY TIPS

Even if you can make only a temporary job of fencing your farm pond now, it might keep your livestock safe this winter. Recently one Ontario farmer reported that 2 cows drowned and another 4 needed rescuing by tractor and ropes when the ice in his pond gave way under the weight of 20 cows.

A famous movie cowboy was taken to the hospital with severe burns. That's what comes from making love on the range.

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to extend grateful thanks to all for the many expressions of sympathy tendered us and acts of kindness rendered at the time of our bereavement of a dear father, Walter Merkley. We also wish to thank those who sent floral tributes and all who assisted in any way.

Hon. Douglas Harkness, Federal defense minister, started a storm of controversy when he made a speech to officers of the naval reserve telling them a considerable number of people were putting forward propaganda of "a neutralist and pacifist type," and charged their objective "is to undermine the will of the Canadian people to resist aggression." Critics says Mr. Harkness is working against the Prime Minister who has been calling for disarmament, and has also slurred people demonstrating for the same principles stated by the PM.

St. John's Ambulance Providing Service

It is often said that to be good spy, or a good detective one should appear as a meter-man or a postman. Such a statement is quite true and it is true because such people are so much a part of our daily life, their service is so taken for granted, that we are hardly aware of them.

Another such group whose effective and unasuming service is often overlooked, is that of St. John Ambulance.

The next time you attend a public gathering, look around you. Somewhere, in the background, you will see the trained men or women of St. John Ambulance Brigade. You'll find them wherever a crowd is gathered, wherever accidents occur and expert first aid help is needed. Who are these dedicated men and women who proudly serve under the symbol of the Maltese Cross, who give their time willingly and without a penny's payment?

They are housewives and businessmen, doctors and typists, truck drivers and farmers, factory workers and students. . . .all working as volunteers for the good of the community in what is probably the world's oldest welfare organization.

Today, more than 200,000 serve in St. John Ambulance throughout the world, 9,000 of them in Canada and 2,850 in Ontario.

The St. John Ambulanse has a proud record in Ontario. Along our highways, there are 71 first aid stations staffed 24 hours a day, ready to give on-the-spot help to accident victims. In the past year, St. John Ambulance first aid at rugby games, parades, exhibitions, and fairs provided help for more than 25,000 people. St. John Ambulance first aid training has done a great deal to reduce time loss due to accidents in factories. In the Province, more than 31,000 were trained in first aid and efficient nursing care, and 41,000 people were taught artificial respiration. Many lives have been saved, many injuries minimized as a result.

February is "St. John Ambulance Month" in Ontario. A month when every one of us might take time out to consider the constant, careful and unasuming service that the volunteer members of St. John give so willingly in our community.

If you have visitors in your home, write them down and send them in to The Post.

6th WEEKLY REPORT

Second Session Ontario Legislature

HON. F. M. CASS, Q. C., M.P.P., Grenville-Dundas

For the first part of the week the Members continued with the Speech from the Throne debate. And again it was remarkable how many Members of both old Parties had simliar views and difficulties with respect to the problems and aspirations of their home areas and people.

The Committees of the House were especially busy, with those on Education, Highway Safety, Legal Bills and Private Bills having long sessions to consider the many pieces of new legislation proposed by the Government.

Estimates of the Department of Public Welfare were tabled on Thursday and showed a very considerable increase in allowances for food and shelter. The figures given to the House by the Minister, the Honourable Louis P. Cecile, Q. C., indicated that the Provincial Government had accepted indeed the greatest part of the financial responsibility of providing for our disabled, widowed and indigent citizens.

There was also a stirring and rather acrimonious debate on Ontrio Hydro during the course of which the Minister in charge, the Honourable Robert W. Macaulay, Q.C., gave a most masterly review of Hydro origins, accomplishments, financing and problems. It is certain that we have every reason to be proud of our provincial and municipal hydro systems.

During the week Prime Minister Frost discussed with the House the suggestion from the Federal Prime Minister that the Dominion-Provincial conference on Fiscal matters be re-convened on February 23rd and 24th to consider further the present fiscal arrangements. In view of this Mr. Frost advised the Members that the Ontario Budget, slated to be brought down around February 14th, could not be prepared before the conference and that consequently it would be delayed at least a fortnight in presentation. Mr. Frost again pointed out that the position of Ontario remains unchanged over the years, namely, that Ontario needs, and is entitled to, the proper rights and fair proportion of taxes given her under the British North America Act.

Everyone who had known him was saddened when it was announced to the Members on Thursday afternoon that the Honourable W. J. Dunlop had died in hospital. Always a gentleman, always ready to help the other chap, generous, learned, sage and experienced, Dr. Dunlop had secured himself a place in Ontario's history and was loved by all. During a long lifetime devoted to education he had in various important capacities, and finally as Provincial Minister of Education for many years, been in great measure responsible for the excellence of our educational plant and system. To younger and newer Members of the Legislature, Dr. Dunlop always gave understanding, advice and support in their aspirations and heavy duties.

News Notes

Support Price Stays

Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton today stated that because of discussions which have been taking place regarding the price suport program for the coming dairy year May 1, 1961 to April 30, 1962, there have been rumours that the support program might be changed before the end of the present support year.

The Minister said that because of the uncertainty in the minds of producers and the trade created by these rumours, he wished to emphasize thatt the present support price for dairy products would be continued until next April 30.

Mr. Hamilton stated that the support program for the coming dairy year, commencing May 1, would be announced as early as possible.

CURLERS ENJOY EXPERIENCE AT UTICA

Our curlers have returned from from the Utica Teen-age Bonspiel and from all reports it was an experience that will long be remembered. Our curlers certainly enjoyed themselves and will be looking forward to attending the tournament next year.

Our curlers, and their chaperones, travelled to Utica in two cars and after registering at the rink attended "Open-House" at the home of Dr. Robert Hurd, where everyone had an opportunity to become acquainted.

Saturday morning found our curlers at the rink where they curled the first of their three games against teams from Cornwall and Schenectady. In the afternoon a team skipped by Teddy Robinson out-curled a team from Perth to enter the semi-finals on Sunday morning against Cornwall while a second team skipped by David Harris was defeated by Albany Saturday afternoon and again by Smiths Falls Saturday evening.

The curlers and their chaperones and friends enjoyed a banquet and party in the magnificent and spacious curling club on Saturday evening. Before returning home on Sunday the curlers enjoyed a luncheon at the curling club and a guided tour of the five million dollar Art Gallery in Utica.

It is understood that the girls of our curling club will be entering an all girls tournament later on this month.
