Library Board Meets Reviews 1948 Work Appoints Officers

At a meeting of the Public Library Board held in the Clerk-Treas., office on Thursday night, when six members were present, Reeve Chas. McMillan was re-elected Chairman as was the Sec.-Treas., R. Lynch, and Mrs. P. G. Hewitt as librarian.

The Purchasing and Book Selection Committee is to be comprised of Mrs. L. H. Doering, Mrs. A. Hughson and Mrs. B. Campbell.

It was decided to spend about $200. in new books paying special attention to the ready needs of children. The increased membership which stands at 268 is very encouraging. The entire circulation for the year 1948 of books of all types was 4299.

The members decided to buy "The Gathering Storm" and "Their Finest Hour" by Winston Churchill and "In Search of South Africa" a good travel book, and Lloyd Douglas' "The Big Fisherman" are proving very popular with the patrons of the Library. The other members of the Public Library Board are Mr. Edwin Hutt, Mr. G. C. Lacey, Mr. P. G. Hewitt and Mr. J. F. Moriarty.

Mrs. Herbert VanAllen Heads W.M.S. In Grenville-Dundas

The 23rd annual meeting of Dundas-Grenville Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada, held in Merrickville, Tuesday, elected Mrs. Herb VanAllen, of Iroquois, president for 1949-50.

Miss Gwen Suttie of Montreal, former missionary in Japan, spoke on the need to give Christianity a chance to grow in the vanquished Nippon.

Other members of the new slate of officers are: Mrs. J. I. Murdock, Cardinal, honorary president; Mrs. W. E. Wright, Chesterville, past president; Mrs. C. H. Ferguson, first vice-president; Mrs. Cecil McIntosh, Winchester Springs, second vice-president; Mrs. Roy Leizert, Cardinal, fourth vice-president; Mrs. S. Simms, Mountain, recording secretary; Mrs. Ingram Cross, Iroquois, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Hugh Adams, Prescott, treasurer.

With about 175 delegates from 23 different localities attending, the annual gathering heard reports from the many committees and auxiliary organizations of the presbyterial.

Mrs. W. E. Wright, retiring president, conducted the morning and afternoon sessions and thanked her fellow-officers and members for their cooperation during her three years of office. Mrs. R. S. Peterson expressed appreciation to Mrs. Wright for her leadership.

"New Life Calling", a special technicolor sound film on the missionary undertaking in China was shown by E. Fennel, of Winchester, and a playlet was performed by Mrs. W. Hutton. Mrs. W. Fowler and Mrs. A. Brown of the Iroquois branch, pointing out the need for increased membership in the auxiliaries

"We know the power of the atom bomb", said Miss Suttie in her address, "but there is more power in the super-bomb of Christian love."

There are, she said, innumerable evidences of that power in Japan today.

Since the old pagan ways brought their country to the verge of economic destitution, she told the meeting, the Japanese have realized they must seek a new ideology.

Communism is competing with the three main religions to supply this need, she warned.

Churches of Japan are crowded today as never before, the mission worker declared. The Japanese people who have bought more than 2,500,000 copies of the Scripture since the nation's surrender, are fairly trying Christianity, she said, "we must take advantage of our opportunity now."

The presbyterial was invited by Mrs. C. H. Ferguson to hold its 1950 meeting in Kemptville.

Mrs. Christine Whellen, 87, Passes On Monday

LETTER FROM HOLLAND

The following is a letter received by Miss Shirley Beckstead this week:

Rotterdam, April 20th, 1949.

Dear Miss or Mrs. Beckstead:

Today we received the dress given by you and sent to our country. We enjoyed it very much. We found your small letter and hasten to write you, as you asked, thank you very much for your kindness

I think you were expecting tidings for a long time, but we received it today. We have a daughter of 13 years and the dress is very suitable. We are so glad to get it, for clothes are rather hard to get over here, and only for coupons. Although nowadays clothes are getting better than a year ago, quality is not so good and prices are highly expensive. At the moment nearly all victuals are hard to get without coupons, except cigarettes, tobacco and coal. Life is very expensive, more when we have three children: 2 daughters, 13 and 11 years and a little son of 2 years. We should be very glad to know further particulars from you. Did you live a long time in Canada? I think your forefathers came from Scandinavia, for Becksted is a Norwegian name, I believe. If I can do something for you please let us know. My profession is detective at the Alien Department of Rotterdam Police. We are expecting news from you, with full address, please.

Yours sincerely,

J. Steenbrink,
Insulindestraat, F 3a,
Rotterdam C., Holland.

He leaves to mourn, two daughters, Miss Ellice Smith at home and Mrs. Lawrence Walker, Winchester. Also left are six grandchildren, eight great-grandchildren and three sisters, Miss Amanda Smith, Kemptville, Mrs. Milton Fennell, Winchester, and Mrs. L. Collander, Sask.

EMBRUN MAN REACHES MONTREAL ON TRAIN ROOF

What started out as an apparent suicide, on the Toronto-Montreal train, developed yesterday in court into a possible mental case when Lorenzo Menard of Embrun, Ont., was arraigned on a charge of disturbing the peace.

A CPR lawyer told Judge Gerald Almond that the accused boarded the train at Smiths Falls, paid his fare, and disappeared at about Apple Hill, leaving his hat and baggage at his seat. A search by most of the train crew was made in vain. When the train arrived in Montreal last evening, Menard was found on the roof

He was booked on the technical charge, and the judge today ordered a mental examination.

THE NATION AND THE FAMILY FARM

By R. J. Deachman

Every little while someone wakes up from a sound sleep, tells us that the family farm will soon be a thing of the past, wants something done about it. Why this sudden urge? The change has been going on for generations. Mechanization made possible the large sized farm. A hundred years from now conversations will continue on the most efficient farm unit so far as size is concerned, but there will still be small farms, large farms and very large farms. Success is not determined by the size of the farm but by the ability of the man who runs it.

In the old days, when I had time to do it, I used to drive through the rural areas in the different provinces. I wanted to see what was happening. There was a nice little farm a few miles out of Ottawa. It was run by a man who was making a success on a farm of approximately 60 acres. He was a good farmer. He sold cats for seed at $2 or $3 a bushel and bought feed for his cows at normal market prices. He specialized in a high grade of milk. He raised pure bred stock. Everything around the farm was smooth as a duck's foot.

I happened to meet him at a corner store a short distance from his farm. He was driving a new car. I took a hard look at it. "Times are looking up", I said. "Not particularly," he answered, "I get a new one every year. It's amazing what you can do in this country if you can find a banker foolish enough to lend you money." He wasn't the type of man bank managers worry about. He was bright anyway you liked to take him, he made money on a small farm.

Some years ago a farmer in Western Ontario dropped me a little note in answer to something I had written in a farm paper. He asked me to see him the next time I was passing through his town. A month or so later I availed myself of the invitation. He was an elderly man, quite vigorous, a Scot by birth. He had farmed all his life and liked it. He hadn't a big farm – he specialized in pure bred sheep. I asked him where he sold them. "Well", he said, "that's a peculiar story. Some years ago a man wrote me and said that he had heard I was a breeder of pure bred sheep and wanted me to send him two rams. He lived in California. I took a chance on it without knowing anything about him. From that time my business grew and now I ship, at good prices, all the sheep I can produce – mainly to the Western States." There was a man who was making a success of a relatively small farm. He was specializing in a particular line.

The same thing exists in almost every area of Canada and will continue to exist. The higher the intelligence, the better the education, the wider will be the variation in types of agriculture, in lines of production and in methods employed. The modern farmer is not tied to the traditions of the past. He has seen changes coming in his business. He believes that change is a continuing process and that there is no definite rule which sets the pattern for the farming of the future.

Not long ago I was talking to a business man who owns a farm and likes farming. I asked him about the labor problem. He was convinced that it could be solved. With modern machinery we could pay higher rates of wages to men who were thoroughly efficient. If costs of building went down the large farm could afford to provide comfortable houses for a number of workers in a closely grouped centrally heated unit, and while the average worker may not make as much – purely in terms of money, the cost of living is less, rent would be at a minimum.

Price instability is one of the problems of agriculture. Volume of production is not readily adjustable to changes of demand. In the depression years, volume of farm production did not vary widely. In industry, when demand falls of, production drops, prices tend to stabilize but in agriculture the farmer goes right on producing, recovery is slow. Yet over a period of years, average prices of manufactured products are not much higher than farm products. It is not alone the price level, it is price instability which worries the farmer.

What of the future of these farms, small and great. In one sense the world is hungry – say rather that it lacks the capacity to produce the things which might be exchanged for food. It's a fluid world. Men will move from the farms to the cities – or vice versa, if they can satisfy their desires with less effort by so doing.

Beyond this lies the real problem of the future, a problem which transcends all others. If after World War I there could have been some real guarantee of peace and comparative freedom in exchange, there would have been no limit to human progress. As it is we live in a desperately poor and hungry world. There is a tremendous demand for food but inability to pay for it. That means frequent attempts to give permanence to prices by sales on long-range contracts. These efforts are not solutions, not even palliatives. Give us peace – world peace, without that we struggle in darkness, see, only at odd times, faint glimpses of the light.

IT MAY BE

By S. E. Kiser

IT MAY be that you cannot stay
To lend a friendly hand to him
Who stumbles on the slippery way,
Pressed by conditions hard and grim;
It may be that you dare not heed
His call for help, because you lack
The strength to lift him, but you need
Not push him back.

It may be that he has not won
The right to hope for your regard
He may in folly have begun
The course that he has found so hard;
It may be that your fingers bleed,
That fortune turns a bitter frown
Upon your efforts, but you need
Not kick him down.

ABOUT THIS TIME every weekday, CBC's Farm Broadcast for Ontario and Quebec ends its ten-minute visit to Briarwood Farm and the Craigs. The four people grouped around the microphone are the same four who started out as Thomas, Janice, Bill and Martha Craig ten years ago. From left to right, they are Frank Peddie, Alice Hill, George Murray and Grace Webster. The face in the control room window is that of Dick Gluns, the program's present producer.

REFLECTIONS
By Dean Hughes

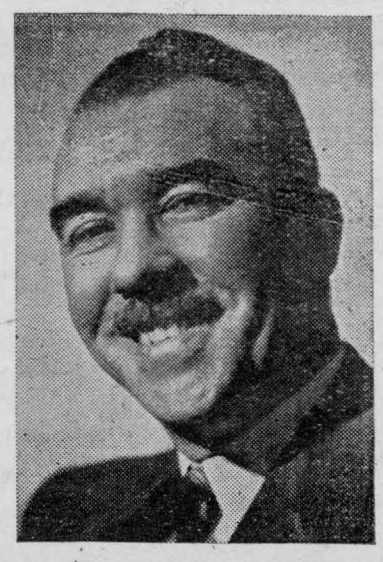

Now that my battered Underwood's keys have pounded out twenty-four hundred scripts and three million words of The Craigs, maybe it's time to light a cigarette and think back over its ten years of life.

It was born on a rainy first of May back in 1939 after several pre-natal huddles between Orville Shugg, former supervisor of CBC farm broadcasts, Jack Radford, former CBL manager, and myself. And it suffered the birth-pangs of all radio scripts. However, it was allowed to survive the first few weeks while I tried to give the family flesh and blood and voice, and gradually they began to talk and act more like real people.

Right here is as good a time as any to toss a few well-deserved bouquets. Through the entire twenty-four hundred scripts, my words have been interpreted by the four people in the permanent cast—yes, and by the extras, too—in a manner that makes me wonder at times if I've written the script. I say that because there are days when I'm none too proud of what I've written. Call it an off-day—call it what you like—but my "family" lifts the words off the paper and gives them a life and meaning I wouldn't have thought possible.

So, orchids to Frank Peddie, Grace Webster, George Murray and Alice Hill—and to extras like Alex McKee, Tommy Tweed, Syd Brown, Joe Carr and all the rest of them. And the same to producer Dick Gluns and farm commentator Jack McPherson for leaving my scripts "as is" ninety-nine per cent of the time.

Reflecting . . . I've often been a bit puzzled by the Elliott-Haynes urban rating we get. It has held up well. And, after all, the raison d'être for The Craigs is to promote better farming practice—to get across constructive thoughts and ideas to farmers. It aims to entertain as well, of course. But it's gratifying to know that urban listeners still like to know about the day-to-day doings of a farm family. I like to think The Craigs are doing something to bring the city and country a little closer together.

DEAN HUGHES, creator and author of The Craigs, the drama serial which is heard each weekday as part of the CBC's noon-hour farm broadcast for Ontario and Quebec. Mr. Hughes began life as a farm boy, moving to the city as a young man to take up journalism. He worked as a newspaper man in England and in Canada, then as a radio announcer. His career is now in advertising, which he combines with part-time farming and script-writing for the CBC.

Some Difference

"Cheer up," said the doctor. "I've had exactly the same complaint myself."

"Yes," replied the patient doubtfully, "but you didn't have the same doctor!"

Nice of Him

A woman went shopping at the local super-market and when she looked over her parcels at home she found that there were five oranges in the bag instead of the six she had ordered.

She called the grocer immediately. "Well, madam," he explained, "I noticed that one of the oranges was bad, so I threw it away for you."

The Wandering Zoo

Tame indeed are the thrills experienced by a city zoo visitor when compared to those in store for the visitor fortunate enough to take a trip over the 1,200 miles of well kept road in South Africa's famous Kruger National Park. For in this most unique of game preserves the visitor, although forbidden by law to leave his automobile, may watch a lion bring down its prey, watch a happy elephant or two uprooting trees and watch, in the flesh, the hundred and one other dramas of nature which occur daily.

The Kruger National Park encompasses a territory of roughly 8,000 square miles. This preserve was originally set aside a the Sabi game preserve by the late great South African president Kruger in the year 1898 when that country's game and wildlife was being depleted at a rapid rate. It stretches for 200 miles along the western border of East Africa and varies in width from 30 to 60 miles. The Northern tip touches Rhodesia.

Located Near Civilization

The park is only 270 miles from the skyscrapers of Johannesburg, and thousands of city dwellers take advantage of this close proximity and take their families to the park on week-ends. On one Sunday alone a thousand cars have passed through the gates to the park.

After many years of experience and careful scientific study, those responsible for the operation of the Park have come to the definite conclusion that it is best to let nature take its course. As a result there is no tampering at all with the natural ways of the animals within the preserve.

Among the animals likelwy to be encountered by the motorist as he carefully drives his vehicle through the park are any of 500 elephant, 1,000 lions, 3,000 buffalo. Also to be found in quantities are wildebeeste, waterbuck, kuda, eland, nyala, hippopotamus, giraffe, sable, roan, steenbuck, duiker, tsessebe, bushbuck, reedbuck, klipspringer, monkeys, baboons, leopards, cheetah, wild dogs, hyenas, jackals, civets, ostriches, vultures, crocodiles, pythons and other snakes.

There are numerous rivers wending their way through the preserve and fourteen waterholes have been strategically placed so that the visitor's chances of seeing many of the different types of animals is enchanced.

The months between June and September are best for visiting; the weathr remaining dry and clear. Nights are cool and, during the day, the temperature rarely rises above 75 degrees fahrenheit.

The visitor who wishes to spend a night or more on the preserve must do so in one of the many rest camps provided. The dwellings are a modern adaptation of the native huts and this is done so that the harmony within the preserve may be maintained.

Visitors Thrilled

Visitors, previously unacquainted with the ways of the South African vedt, are invariably thrilled by the coming of dusk within the park. An uncanny silence settles over everything and this mysterious and ominous silence, that precedes complete darkness, seems charged with tension. And so it is, because it is at this time the larger carnivori start out on their hunting excursions, and the hunted prepare to use their wits and agility in the continual battle for survival.

Visitors to the camp must reach a rest camp before nightfall, and penalties are provided for those disobeying. Since the park became a top tourist mecca in 1826, there have been no serious accidents. Several close calls have been experienced however.

Park authorities tell the story of the lion who took umbrage at his own reflection in the rear of a nice shiny automobile. After several minutes of futily hurling itself against the shiny intruder, Leo imped away into the bush, leaving a group of badly scared motorists in the badly damaged car.

Jokers Persist

In spite of the many signs warning motorists not to approach within 50 feet of an elephant, the odd joker will persist. There was the case of one visitor who impatiently blew his horn at a large tusker in his way. Irked more than somewhat, 35 foot high jumbo calmly waddled over and sat on the bonnet of the car. When he wandered away to uproot a tree or two the bonnet and engine of the car were crushed into the ground, otherwise no damage was suffered.

Signs along the river banks warn tourists to "Beware of Crocodiles". The visitor who ignores these warnings is liable to find himself firmly grabbed by the ankle and dragged under water until drowned. Whereupon the pleasant little saurian critter will tuck the body safely away in his underwater cave for future consumption. Crocs don't like fresh meat.

Small wonder indeed that Kruger National Park in South Africa's best tourist attraction. The lure of the bush brings back the same visitors year after year, many of them coming from far abroad to taste the thrill of close contact with nature at its most beautiful and most terrible.

Visitors to the wandering zoo will find the cinema a pretty poor substitute ever after.

"I trust them more than I'd trust myself"

THE BANK'S the place for my money. I always put part of my pay into my bank account—otherwise it burns a hole in my pocket. I guess I trust the bank more than I trust myself! I figure that's one reason why my savings have been building up the way they have.

Another reason I'm sold on a bank account is that I always know just where I stand. All I have to do is take a look at my pass-book. They're a lot better bookkeepers than I am.

What's more, what's in my pass-book is my business, and I can count on the bank people to keep their mouths shut about it. And that suits me just fine!

Church News

MOREWOOD UNITED CHURCH

The service on Sunday morning at Morewood United Church was conducted by the minister, Rev. W. J. Copsey, B.A. The theme was "Everlasting Life". The text Rev. 22, 4, "They shall see his face and his name shall be in their foreheads". The Christian has assurance of life beyond physical death, that personality continues for ever because of the eternal purpose of God which is to bring forth children of God fit for fellowship with himself and with one another. God in His nature of love is able to bring this purpose to completion through the redeeming work of Christ on Calvary and His resurrection from the dead. Christ's resurrection and exaltation gives assurance that the long struggle between sin and Grace will have an end, the Kingdom of God be revealed in its fulness, and God's eternal purpose be accomplished. Future blessedness or future separation from God depends upon acceptance or rejection of Christ as Saviour and Lord. "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord".

The Anthem was "Father Lead Me For I Need Thee". Mrs. Sam Barrington presided at the organ.

A well-known film star, having just completed the ceremony of opening a bazaar, was talking vivaciously to an engrossed circle of reporters when a kid pushed his way through them with an autograph book in his hand.

"Sorry," snapped the star, "I can't sign my name just yet."

"Oh, never mind," said the lad. "If you can't write, put a cross."

The professor was absent-minded, as all professors are said to be, but one thing he did vaguely remember was that he had to get his wife a preserving jar. He walked into a shop and saw some displayed upside-down on a shelf. He touched the jar absently and exclaimed:

"Useless. Quite useless; the thing has no mouth."

Then he picked it up and looked at the other end.

"Ridiculous. Quite ridiculous," he murmured. "The thing has no bottom, either."

FORESTRY FIELD DAY FOR UNITED COUNTIES

Plans for three Forestry Field Days are well advanced now. The Junior Farmers of Oxford and Augusta Townships are sponsoring an event for May 4th in Limerick Forest, and several organizations headed by the County Council of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry are planning Field Days for Stormont and Dundas on May 11th and 13th, respectively. The main purpose of these Field Days is to get better acquainted with the County Forest properties, and a secondary one is to have the children plant enough trees to give them a sense of ownership and so to interest them.

FOX HUNTING LAWS IN ALL OF ONTARIO

Conservation Officers find that there is a great deal of misunderstanding concerning the laws about fox hunting, so the following explanation is offered.

The open season for foxes all over Ontario, established by the Game and Fisheries Act, is from October 31st to February 28th. County Councils however, may request permission to declare an open season during any part of the remainder of the year. Recently all Counties in the Rideau District, that is, those from Lanark and Leeds eastward, have requested and obtained this permission. As County Councils have expressed a desire to remove protection from foxes, they may be killed but dogs are not to be used to run them.

The use of dogs to run foxes in an area which deer frequent is forbidden by section 30, sub-section 3, of the Game and Fisheries Act. As deer are found throughout the Rideau District, it is illegal to use dogs at this season to hunt foxes. The conservation officers of the district and inspector Baker urge hunters to observe this regulation, as deer are not in a condition to be chased at this season. Fawns and their mothers are easily killed even by the exhaustion from a chase, so dog owners can keep on good terms with the other hunters and the officers of the department by keeping their hunting dogs at home.

SPRING RUN REPORT OF PICKEREL & SUCKERS

The spring run of pickerel and suckers has been in full swing in many parts of the District for the last week. Conservation Officer Forrest Richardson reports that he had never before seen so many pickerel moving up the Mississippi River; nor so many people watching them. As there are several rapids which he must watch, he was given some help by Overseers Robinson and Headlam of Ottawa.

Richardson reports also that this has been a good season for beaver trapping and that more than 100 have been taken in Lanark County. The trappers are well pleased with the seals provided for the hides as these furnish positive identification. Many trappers ship their furs to distant points and if they are not satisfied with the grading they may ask that the furs be returned. The seal insures that no unfair advantage can be taken.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! Anyone who works with food acquires tricks-of-the-trade which is the result of a constant effort to simplify cooking and save time. We are on the perpetual look-out for new ideas. The other day we watched a demonstration by the Home Economist of a meat packing company and learned many ways to save waste and to prepare different pieces of meat.

Here are some secrets which will appeal to you:

1.–To avoid left-over roast beef, ask the butcher to saw the long rib bone of roast at two inch intervals. Cut off short ribs, and freeze and use later for braised pot roast.

2.–The roasts of beef (sirloin, rib, rump) should be cooked in a moderate oven of 350 degrees allowing 35 minutes per pound. No searing, no water, no cover are necessary. Sprinkle with salt when partially cooked.

3.–Buy a shank half of ham for economy. Stand it on cut surface and split it lengthwise, allowing the knife to follow the bone closely. The thick, boneless "cushion" is excellent for slicing and braising. The bone-in piece can be simmered and used in salads, sandwiches, casseroles and soups.

4.–Expert suggest baking chops and steaks in preference to frying unless you have a good heavy skillet.

5.–Broiling with the door partly open is the best way to cook steak. To prevent the meat juices from drying on the bottom of the pan when a small quantity is broiled use a small flat pan. Place smaller pan on regular range broiler pan.

6.–To make flank steak filets, place a strip of inch-thick salt pork lengthwise down the middle of meat. Roll the meat around salt pork and place skewers at 1½ inch intervals. Slice roll between skewers. Cook filets like Swiss Steak and serve with tomato sauce.

7.–To open canned meat, cut out both ends of can below the rim. Push contents out whole by pressing thumbs against one end. this method applies to loaves, not meat with sauce. Chill the meat before you slice it to cut attractive servings. Use cookie cutter for a special occasion when you serve a cold meat platter. Then mince the trimmings for sandwich filling.

8.–When you need a large quantity of bacon bake it. Slightly overlap slices of bacon on rack of a shallow pan and bake twelve to fifteen minutes on top shelf of hot oven at 425 degrees. No turning is necessary.

9.–To save fifty percent baking time, shape meat loaf mixture into individual servings. Use the same favorite recipe . . . it is only the size of the loaf that changes not the flavour.

10.–Before freezing ground meat to be stored, shape it into individual patties and stack them with heavy wax paper in between the layers. Then roll in laminated paper and put in freezing unit.

11.–Use two forks, instead of one, to turn meat while it is cooking. Lift meat with one fork and guide or turn with the other. This method avoids excessive spattering of fat.

12.–To flour small pieces of meat, put the flour, seasonings and meat into a paper bag, fold the top of the bag and shake it for a minute or so until pieces are covered with flour.
