Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Comfort—The Mother's Friend.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" SAVED HER LIFE

This Fruit Medicine Always Gives Relief

917 Dorion St., Montreal.

I suffered terribly with Dyspepsia. I had it for years and all the medicines I took did not do me any good.

I read something about "Fruit-a-tives" being good for all Stomach Trouble and Disorders of Digestion, so I tried them.

After finishing a few boxes, I was entirely relieved of the Dyspepsia and my general health was restored; and I am writing to tell you that I owe my life to "Fruit-a-tives"

Mlle. ANTOINETTE BOUCHER.

50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Water-Proofing Concrete

Concrete will not leak if it is properly mixed and laid. If it leaks it is porous—the cement and sand grains are not solidly in contact all through the mass; there ars spaces between the sand grains not completely filled with the cement. The chief cause of concrete leaking is that uot enough cement was used in the mixture, or concrete was too wet or to dry when placed in the forms, not properly mixed or not sufficently tamped.

However, if a wall does leak there are two things that can be done: The pores may be plugged with some substance that will not dissolve in water, that may be cheaply and easily applied and that not chemically attack the concrete. Or a layer of waterproof material may be plastered on to the concrete on the side next to the water.

One of the following coatings may be made up and applied to the surface of the concrete exposed to water: neat cement, asphalt, paraffin and alum-soap compound. Pure cement is not the most efficent water-proofing material but the easiest to make and apply. It peels or cakes off after a short time. It is most useful for temporary repairs. Asphalt and other bituminous products are not usually available but if asphalt can be got it makes a sure waterproofing covering. Two coats are usually applied.

The alum-soap treatment is one of the most effective. A hot Castile soap solution is made by dissolving three-quarters of a pound of soap in one gallon of hot water. An alum solution of one-half a pound of alum to four gallons of water, is then prepared. The solutions are applied to the wall alternately, the wall being perfectly dry before being treated. The hot soap solution is applied first, a flat brush being used and care being taken to avoid bubbles covering the work. Let this coat dry for twenty-four hours and then apply a coat of alum solution. Let it dry a similiar length of time and follow with another coat of the soap solution, continuing alternately until five coats have been applied.

A common treatment for cisterns that leak is to first carefully fill from the inside all cracks in floors and walls with neat cement, Then paint with three or four coats of silicate of soda, commonly called waterglass. Mix the silicate of soda with water in the porportion of one pound to a gallon. Apply with an ordinary whitewashing brush. —Nor'West Farmer.

Identified

An old farmer could not believe that people who were miles apart were able to converse over a telephone wire. One day his wife went to a distant friend who had a telephone in her house. In the course of the afternoon the farmer sought shelter from a thunderstorm in the house of a neighbor who also possessed a telephone and who persuaded the farmer to call up his wife as a little surprise.

Following instructions, the farmer put the receiver to his ear, and after the usual preliminaries shouted, "Hello, Sarah!"

Just then a flash of lightning struck the wire and he fell to the floor under the force of the shock.

Rising to his feet and shaking his head wisely, he said, "It's wonderful! That was Sarah right enough!"

Cornwall Garage Employee Shot By Woman

A near tragedy was enacted at Hurleyo garage in the north end of Cornwall Thursday night when Mrs. J. J. O'Neil, of Isabel Street, Montreal, whipped out a 32 calibre revolver and shot at Emile Mischkie, of Mance street, Montreal, a mechanic in the garage, th e bullet striking him in the left jaw, and knocking out a few teeth. The man was taken to General Hospital, and the woman was arrested by Officers Cowney and Crites, and placed in the jail, where she is on remand for a week. The trouble which culminated in the shooting commenced about five weeks in Montreal, it is said, when Mischkie is alleged to have induced the 18-year-old daughter of Louis Knapik, who at that time conducted a glove factory and gents' furnishing store in St. Lawrence Main, to leave the city with him. The father of the girl who claims o bt: an American of Polish decent being born in Chicago. According to the story told by him, after his daughter left home she wired from Vaudreuil to have her clothes sent on to her. The father went to Vaudreuil but could uot find the couple, and learned that thev had bought tickets for Milleroches. He proceeded to that village, but again there was no trace of them. He than came to Cornwall, and spent a few days in fruitless search and returned home.

About a week ago he located the girl here, and learned that Mischkie, was working in town. With some reluctance the daughter went back to Montreal, and so did Mischkie. who is said to have a wife and two children in the city. The girl was again spirited away, and efforts made by letters sent to Cornwall failed to locate her. The girl claimed that Mischkie had assured her that he was getting a divorce, and would then marry her, and she appeared to have unbounded faith in him. In Montreal an altercation took place between Knapik and Mischkie. The latter returned to Montreal, and last night Mrs. O'Neil. who is a sister of the girl; came here. She found Mischkie at the garage, and asked information to her sister's whereabouts. She claimed she could get no satisfaction from the man. and becoming excited drew a revolver and shot at him. Leonard Hurley took the victim to the hospital in an auto, and the matter was reported at Police headquarters, with the result that Mrs. O'Neil was locked up.

Mr. Knapik stated that he was waiting at Bonaventure station, Montreal, for a telephoue message from Mrs. O'Neil as to what progress she was making as to securing information from Mischkie about her sister's whereabouts,and having received no word up to 7.25 p. m., he boarded the the 7.30 train out of the city and came to Cornwall, and on arriving here learned of what had taken place. He is of the opinion that his daughter is detained somewhere in the city.

The injury to Mischkie is not considered serious, unless complications set in. He is about thirty four years of age, and is described by those who know him as s fine fellow, and an expert mechanic. It is said Mischkie told the girl he had not lived with his wife for two years.

The Muskrat

In her valuable book on "The Fur Trade of America," Miss Agnes C. Laut has a chapter on "Farming muskrat for fur," and she declares that in a single year the muskrat is now bringing more money into the fur trade than the real Alaska seal ever did in 10 years. She says, among other things: "The muskrat was selling at Cumberland Lake (Saskatchewan) and Norway House (Manitoba) for 90 cents at the opening of the war in 1914. Then came the perfecting of American dyeing processes producing muskrats that could not be detected from Alaska seal. Last year the muskrat sold at Cumberland Lake and Norway House for $5 a pelt. That figure would be too high an average for the 10 million muskrats yearly taken in America. Well, put the figure at an average of $3. You have a total of $20,000 000. It is only a few years ago that America's entire fur trade did not equal $20,000,000. Even when 100,000 seal pelts were coming out of Alaska in a year valued, undyed, at $10, as I found them in 1911-12-13, you have the entire output of Alaska seal in its best days not equal to one-sixth the value of muskrat to-day." Of all fur-bearing animals, muskrats can be the most easily farmed. All you have to do is to stock a marsh where the muskrat's natural food is plentiful and nature will do the rest. Miss Laut concludes that muskrat farming will easily produce aggregates that make the silver fox totals look small.

Long Sault Dam would Inundate 8,000 Acres

Eight thousand acres of farm lands in Matilda and Osnabruck townships, as parts of the villages of Iroquois, Morrisburg, Aultsville, Farran's Point and Dickinson's Landing, will be inundated should the proposed Hydro-Electric dam at the Long Sault be installed, Engineer McLachlan, of the Department of Railways and Canals, stated at a public meeting called at Morrisburg to discuss the matter.

The water works system, electric light and power plants at Morrisburg will also be put out of commision.

The meeting, however, advocated the improvement of the St. Lawrence or navigation and power at the earliest possible mon e nt to relieve the unemployme t situ ati n. and asked for an extention of one month r m t e I ter tional Joint Waterways Commission to enable municipalities to discuss the matter.

Oh, How Very Shy

Joe: I tried to teach Effie how to play billiards last night. She's the shyest girl I ever saw.

Al: How shy, for instance?

Joe: Why, she blushed every time the balls kissed each other.

Don't Be Too Skeptical

Mark Twain once said, "Don't get more out of an experience than there is in it," For example, a cat will sit on a hot stove—once—and having sat on a hot stove once, will forever after refuse to sit on a cold stove.

At The Darktown Parsonage

Minister: Do you take this man for better or for worse?

Bride: No, suh, I takes him jes' as he is. If he gets any better he'll die, if he gets any wus ah'll kill him mah se'f."

"History repeats itself."

"I'm afraid so," replied Miss Cavenne "Tendencies in farhionable attire begin to remind one of the Garden of Eden."

Red Cross Favours Dundas

The Ontario Division of the Canadian Red Cross Society is assisting Medical supervision of schools in the rural districts by giving the people of Dundas a school nurse free for six months.

The county of Dundas has been chosen as the model county and Miss Pike of Toronto, is already here. Miss Pike will carry on the work in the townships of Williamsburg and Matilda showing the people in a concrete way how the work can be carried out in rural districts.

In other counties after the survey of the school children is made only one demonstration nurse is given free by the Department of Education for 3 months or less. Then if the people wish to have the work continued they must join together and engage a school nurse of their own as their is no repetition of the survey or demonstration work.

Dundas is the first county in the Eastern part of Ontario to have the survey made. The reasons for this are: Firstly, the people of Dundas asked for it and see the value of any investment which deals in safety first. Secondly, there is no need of giving the alarm that a child is drowning if there is no means of rescue, soit is with the survey of the school children. Where the Department of Education feels there is no possibility of follow-up work the survey is a waste of time, energy and money; but where the people wish to engage a nurse of their own the survey is most valuable.

How Many Working Hours?

At a recent convention of railway employees there was much discussion as to how long should be the working day. The reds and radicals voted for four and six hours; the moderates for eight. Eight until such time at least as they could impress upon the public the desirability of cutting down the schedule.

It would seem that the spectacular failure of the Russian experiment would have taught people that in order to live it is necessary to work, but apparently there are many who still believe that by some hocus pocus they should be able to live without effort. One thing sure, the primitive man put in all the hours there were in order to gather together food and raiment for himself and his family. And the farmer of the present day, who is the nearest thing to primitive extant in respect to the labour he performs, has never even attempted to unionize his hours.

Go back into the "lonely lands" and attempt to live on the country. See how many hours out of the twenty-four it takes to gather in three meals a day and put some sort of a roof over your head. One will spend half a day a mending a boot, not to speak of making one, and be proud of his accomplishment.

Spread in front of you in the "lonely land" are all the natural resources of a great country, fish in the streams, game in the forests, wood and stone with which to build and wood to burn. No rent, no taxes. And still it will be necessary to hustle from daylight to dark in order to eke out a living. There is but one thing which will relieve this strain, and to introduce what is to all intents and purposes our present indnstriai system, whereby the individual is multiplied into a community in which individuals specialize in the things they can do best. One digs and plants, one builds, one cuts down forest trees, another one fishes and some hunt. In this manner the stress of on man attempting to do many things, some of which he does badly, is eased off. And pretty soon the entire community finds that it has some leisure as well as sense of security against famine. Such is our industrial system which the Red rises in his wrath to denounce.

So long as the good Lord gives one man a brain superior to that possessed by his neighbor, just that long will there be inequalities in this world. Skill, knowledge, experience and achievement have always brought the individual to the top and always will. One man will accomplish more in three hours than his neighbor does in eight, but this gives no excuse for the demand of the eight hour man for a three hour day, though the three hour man may be justly entitled to it.

Generally speaking a man gets what is coming to him in this world. Nature does not play many favorites. And industry brings its own reward.—Saturday Night.

Solving the Hauling Problem

In these days of advancement along co-operative lines, the story of how a group of New York State dairymen cut down the cost between producer and consumer, in the hauling of their milk, is interesting. These milk producers had been drawing their milk to the main road, while the delivery man hauled it to the creamery at 15c a cwt. When he tried to raise the price to 25 cents, the trouble began. They found themselves with three alternatives from which to choose. The first was to meet the demands and pay the 25c a cwt. for hauling. The second was to go back to the old system of each farmer delivering his own milk, or co-operating with two or three others and making alternate trips. The third alternative was that of getting a truck of their own and being independent of the other fellow. Finally, 52 producers got together and decided to purchase a truck co-operatively.

After the purchase of the truck they still continued to draw their milk individually to the main road, but it is their own truck that calls for it. The total distance from the creamery to which this milk is delivered to the farthest member of the club is 14 miles. The driver lives at that end of the route. He starts out at half past six in the morning and by the time his first load is on, he is still eight miles from the creamery. He takes this load in and returns with empty cans instead of full ones. Starting at the point where he left off, he again turns towards the central point and picks up his second load, leaving the empty cans. By the time he has reached within two miles of the creamery, his second load is full. This he takes tothe plant and, in the meantime the cans from the first load are washed and ready for return. The third load is managed in the same manner.

Silo Ventilation at Filling Time

With Silo filling still in progress in many parts of the cou itry, persons likely to be engaged in this practice may well take warning from fatalities that have occured through workmen entering a half-filled silo after the deadly carbon monoxide gas emanating from the freshly cut corn before the gas has been dissipated by ventilation. Records kept by the United States Department of Agriculture tell the annual occurrences of fatalities among farmers and their helpers as a result of neglect of proper precautions at silo filling time. It is advisable to turn the machine blower on and leave it on for at least two minutes before anyone is permitted to enter a partly filled silo.

Another precaution which should be practiced religiously is not to wedge the silo doors into place until they are needed to prevent the waste of the ensiled corn. Many farmers follow the practice of placing most of the doors before any great amount of corn is cut and deposited in the silo. This prevents free circulation of air through the silo which, in turn, operates to favor the accumulation of carbon monoxide and other deadly silo gases.

Why Agriculture is Losing Grouud

Some people were surprised when the census showed that more than half of the population of the United States is living in cities of more than twenty-five hundred inhabitants;but previous censuses had shown that we were tending to become an urban rather than a rural people. The reasons for the change are not difficult to understand, nor are they alarming.

The first and simplest reason for the movement toward the cities that is that the enlarged use of agricultural machinery enables fewer men on the farms to do a given amonnt of farm work. A part of the farm work is now done by the makers of farm machinery, and they live in towns and not on farms. Another thing is that as people grow in wealth and the ability to indulge in luxuries they demand more and more refined products. Those refined products do not require anymore raw material than the less confined products that they formerly consumed, but they do require more work in the process of manfacturing, and that work is done by people who live in towns. It takes no more wool, cotton, linen or silk to make fine clothes than coarse clothes, but it does take more work in factory and shop, and the people who work in factories and shops live in towns.

A third reason, not so simple as the two just named, but probably of even greater importance, is that we are a mechanically gifted race and the opportunities for "cashing in" on that special gift are somewhat better in the mechanical than in the agricultural industries. True, agriculture is, to some extent, a mechanical industry, but not to the same extent as manufacturi ng. There are vast populations in other parts of the world, less mechanically gifted than we, who can supply us with the products of non-mechanical industries and who will pay us a good price for the products of our special mechanical gifts.

The English people, our nearest relatives, were the first to profit by that k nd of international division of labor, and they grew rich by it. We followed closely to their train. Lately the Germans, the French and the Italians have been moving in the same direction, and we must expect that other nationalities will follow the same example. It is difficult to see where the tendancy will lead, but it is certain that it will result in increasing competition among those nations that turn to manufacturing. There will be fewer non-mechanical nations with which to trade and there will be more mec hanical nations trying to trade with them As a result the intense competion among manufactures, agriculture will probably become a more remunerative occupation. —Youths Companion.

The "Black Boners" Party

Kingston Standard—There is no political party that does not yet exist in Canada but which, if ever it is formed, here, we will unhesitatingly join and throw all the other parties, Conservative, Liberal, Farmers and Labor, into the discard. That party is the "The Black Boners"— a new political organization which has just come into existence in New York city and has nominated a canidate for Mayor on the platform, "Free meals, free houses and a four-hour work day."

Think of it! Free meals! And as though that wereu't enough, Free houses! and on top of both of these a four-hour work day! Heavings! wouldn't that be glorious?To work only four hours a day—if we worked at all—and to have free houses and free meals into the bargain.

If any party platform ever "listened" well, this is it; and if it is generally adopted—as we h pe it will be –not even the Figi Islander who sits around naked all day doing nothing but eating fruit and cocoanuts and fanning himself with fig leaves or similiar device would have anything on us.

Personally we should like to see the "Black Boners"go a step farther and give us free drinks—not necessarily the kind that inebriate (for they are hard to get now) but at least the kind that cheer. If we could have these and free cigars life would be, as ex-President Cleveland once described his married life, "one grand sweet song."

We will be glad in the interest of suffering mankind here and hereabouts to help form a Black Boners party in Kingston and to take any offiice in it be it never so lowly. For free houses, free meals, free drinks, free cigars and an almost workless day we would, indeed, join any party and we only hope and pray that the new party will send its organizer here without delay.

Lancaster Girl Accidentally Killed In Cornwall Hospital

An accident attended with fatal results occurred at the General Hospital Cornwall. Saturday night when Laura Labelle, 18 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elzear Labelle, who live about two miles west of Lancaster, met instant death. Exactly how the accident happened may never be known, as it was witnessed by none of the hospital staff or patients.

Miss Labelle had gone to the basement for a basket of clothes to take up to the third floor. Miss Whiting, the superintendent, and Miss Hill, assistant, saw the girl get into the elevator and start, and all apparently went well until the elevator was about midway between the second and third floors, when nurses on the third floor heard screams coming from the elevator.

They found Miss Labelle with her head jammed in the elevator shaft and her body lying on the floor of the elevator. A hole had been made in the plaster where her head was lodged. The elevator was moved and the girl released, and Dr. D. O. Alguire and Dr. A. Ross Alguire were both called, but the girl died before they arrived. The unfortunate girl's neck was found to be broken.

More Water More Milk

25% More Milk From Cows When Given Enough Water

Why is it that many cows are such poor milkers? Why don't they give enough milk to pay the cost of their feed?

The first reason is that many cows do not get enough water. Milk is 87½% water, and a good milker has to drink 4 gallons of water to produce a gallon of milk. To produce 3 gallons (30 lbs.) she must drink 12 gallons of water per day.

Now, no cow will drink 12 gallons of icy water from a freezing trough.

The BT Water Bowls Increase Milk Yield 25%

The BT Water Bowls increase the milk yield because they provide a constant supply of water at an even temperature. The Cow can drink the water as she needs it and in 24 hours will drink more than 12 gallons. She will drink all she needs for her maximum milk yield.

Water Bowls Pay Back Their Cost in Two Months

The BT Water Bowls will increase the milk yield of your cows enough to pay back the cost of the bowls in two months. They increase the milk yield the first day they are used. Some farmers declare that it is like the cows coming in fresh again.
