HEAVY DAMAGE IN FIRE AT MAXVILLE

Causing loss estimated at over $70,000, fire which commenced in the main business section of Maxville, a village of 900 population, at 10.30 o'clock last night, razed to the ground an entire business block and damaged a number of establishments in the vicinity.

Handicapped by lack of effective fire-fighting apparatus, and the fact that all the water in the town comes from wells, the volunteer fire department had a stiff fight, before the blaze was under control.

O. Villeneuve, councillor and volunteer fireman, receivd painful burns on both of his hands, but this was the only casualty of the stiff battle.

Three stores, among the largest in the village, were a total loss. They are:

General store of Smillie and McDiarmid, loss estimated at $40,000;

Printing shop of J.W. Weegar, loss $5,000;

Store house for grain and feed of G.H. McDougall, loss $5,000.

Sparks from these three buildings set other buildings in the vicinity on fire, causng damage to the Presbyterian church, the Catholic church, and the Burton block. The front of all these buildings was damaged by smoke, fire and water, the accumulative damage being estimated at $20,000.

The fire was first noticed by Mrs. J.W. Weegar as she was going to bed about 10.30 p.m. Looking out the window, she noticed a flame coming out of the rear of the Smillie-McDiarmid store, which is adjacent to her home. She immediately rushed out and gave the alarm.

At three o'clock this (Friday) morning, all that remained of the business block of Maxville was a mass of smoldering ruins. Firemen stood on guard throughout the night, playing streams of water on the ruins and guarding against further outbreaks.

ANNUAL PRESBYTERIAL MEETING

The ninth Annual Meeting of the Dundas-Grenville Presbyterial will be held in the United Church, Winchester, on Wednesday May 1st, with three sessions: at 10 a.m., 2 p.m. and 7.30 p.m. Mrs. W.L. Smythe, President of Bay of Quinte Branch, will bring inspiring messages in her addresses during afternoon and evening sessions. Remember the date.

MRS. MERRILL FOSTER,
Press Secretary.

MR. JAMES SHAW

There passed quietly away on Saturday morning, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Morley Earle, Prescott, a very much respected citizen in the person of Mr. James Shaw. Mr. Shaw was in his 94th year, and had been confined to his bed for the past three years. He was born in Hallville, and lived there all his life, until he went to live with his daughter some years ago. His wife, who was Miss Elizabeth Ann Sipes, predeceased him two years ago. In religion he was a member of the United Church, in politics a staunch Liberal.

The funeral was held on Monday at 2 p.m. from the home of his daughter, service being conducted by Rev. Coburn, assistd by Rev. J. Holt Murray, Rev. Mr. Howitt, Rev. Donald Morrison of Hallville, and Rev. Woodwark, Elma. The flowers were very beautiful, and mute evidence of the esteem in which he was held.

Left to mourn his loss are his daughter, Mrs. Morley Earle, Prescott; his son, W.H. Shaw, Hallville; Ralph Shaw and Frank Earle, grandsons; a grand-daughter, Viola R. Shaw, R.N., Atlantic City; several grandchildren in Regina; also a brother, Mr. Hugh Shaw, of Elma.

A large number of friends gasthered for the service at South Gower cemetery, to pay their last respects to one whom they loved.

This is not a Carnival but a huge Indoor Circus under the personal direction of Geo. A. Hamid, well known to Canadians as the result of his having staged the attractions at the Ottawa Exhibition and Toronto Exposition for many years.

MOTORISTS' LIABILITY ENDS WITH CHANGE IN HIGHWAY ACT

Automobile owners have at last something to be thankful for. They will no longer be responsible for accident or death of persons to whom they are giving a "lift". On April 18th last, section 41a of the Highway Traffic Act as enacted by section 10 of the Highway Traffic Amendment Act, 1930 (No. 2) was amended by adding thereto the following sub-section:

"(2) Notwithstanding the provisions of sub-section 1 the owner or driver of a motor vehicle other than a vehicle operated in the business of carrying passengers for compensation, shall not be liable for any loss or damage resulting from bodily injury to, or death of any person being carried in, or upon, or entering, or getting on to, or alighting from such motor vehicle."

This has the effect of abolishing the liability of the owner or driver of a motor vehicle to gratuitous passengers for accidents occurring on the highways of the Province. This change in the law may not, however, relieve motorists from their responsibility to gratuitous passengers in respect of accidents occurring OFF the highways of Ontario, and certainly does not relieve them of their liability anywhere in other Provinces or in the States of the United States which have not enacted similar legislation. It is understood that the new legislation will result in lowered premiums to motorists who carry this type of insurance.

HONORED ON DEPARTURE

On Wednesday of last week, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Reddick and family of Williamsburg, left for Spencerville where they intend to reside in future. That Mr. and Mrs. Reddick had won many friends for themselves was evident last Friday evening, when some sixty of their neighbours and friends gathered at their home to unitedly bid them farewell and to extend best wishes. A pleasant time was spent in dancing and games, after which an appropriate address was read by Mr. Clinton Stewart, while the presentation of a beautiful woollen, blanket, silk bed spread and a pair of linen pillow slips was made by Miss Nina Casselman.

Mr. Mahlon Strader, on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Reddick, fittingly replied, thanking the guests for their kind remembrance, after which refreshments were served by the ladies.

Dancing was then resumed till an early hour, when the gathering broke up by all singing "They Are Jolly Good Fellows" and "Auld Lang Syne", and all wishing Mr. and Mrs. Reddick and family every success in their new home.

NORTH AUGUSTA FIRE CAUSES $5,000 DAMAGE

Fire of unknown origin completely destroyed the head office of the Leeds and Grenville Independent Telephone Company at North Augusta early Tuesday evening. The building included the local telephone exchange, office and directors' rooms and the residence of the local manager, T.E. McVeigh.

The fire, which is believed to have started in the partitions of the directors' rooms, was first noticed by Perry A. Barber. He notified Mr. McVeigh, who was having supper at the time, unaware of the fire. The diretcors' rooms are between the office and the residence.

A volunteer brigade was formed, and the local chemical apparatus was used. The fire spread rapidly and at times threatened other buildings nearby. If a wind had arisen, the blaze would have endangered the entire village. The Brockville fire department was summoned, but little could be done to save the building, as the fire had gained such headway.

The main switchboard and connection, valued at $1,400, a smaller supply switchboard, other equipment and some furniture ownd by Mr. McVeigh were completely destroyed. The loss is estimated at $5000, partly covered by insurance.

MR. WALTER A. CARR

Testifying to the esteem which he enjoyed, many relatives and friends of Walter A. Carr, who died on Friday, paid final tribute to his memory at the funeral held from the family residence to Grantley United Church on Mondaay afternoon. Born in the vicinity of Grantley 65 years ago, Mr. Carr was the son of the late Alexander Carr and his wife, Martha McMartin. Forty-three years ago he married former Miss Christina Shaver. Early in life Mr. Carr became a cheesemaker, later learning the carpenter trade. He was a steward of Grantley United Church, and a member of the Indepndent Order of Foresters. For a number of years he had farmed south of Grantley. His death occurred after an illness of three months.

Chief mourners, in addition to his widow, are one son, Clifford, at home; two daughters, Mrs. Clarence Countryman of Bush Glen, and Mrs. Roy Brownell of Newington; two sisters, Mrs. John Clark, Boucks Hill and Mrs. Wm. Servage, Ogdensburg; two brothers, Donald, of Grantley, and William, of Boucks Hill.

THE LONG TRIP HOME.

Two Stratford lads of seven and eleven years went to shoot muskrats and took along the usual 22 rifle. Things went well until in loading the weapon it discharged and the bullet went through the foot of the younger lad.

Then it was that the boy of eleven picked him up and decided to carry him home, and that meant a distance of about a mile and a half. He did not get the smaller lad on his back which would have been easier, but carried him in his arms as one might a child.

How many times he might have had to put his load down in the mile and a half tramp home is not recorded. In view of such a performance and in admiration of such sustained effort one is tempted to forget saying anything about the folly of boys of that age going out hunting with a rifle.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

NEIGHBORLINESS.

Neighborliness on the farms is apparently something not confined to any nationality, color or creed. It is the outpouring of human good will and sympathy which is often invaluable to those in distress. We may yet see the day when more of this spirit will spread to the cities as well.—Chatham News.

BU! WILL THEY?

A naturalist asserts that mosquitoes can get along without preying on humans. If he could only convince the mosquitoes! — Kingston Whig-Standard.

GREEN BELT.

The London county council has set aside the sum of $10,000,000 to buy up land so as to preserve for all times a green belt around London, so that no matter how big the metropolitan area grows, nobody will be far away from green fields and flowers. This is a commendable spirit, worthy of the greatest city in the world. London is well supplied with parks and open spaces, far more so, for example, than New York, and the transportation system is so extensive, rapid and cheap that it does not take long to get out into the country.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

LONG TRIP.

A letter sent from Rowno, a small township in Eastern Poland, to Brazil in 1922, has just been returned to starting point. During these twelve years the letter went round the world three times. The sender is dead, but his son, to whom the letter was returned, has been offered some 5,000 zlotys, nearly £200, for the envelope.—Montreal Herald.

THE NORTH FOR TWINS

If you want to have twins, the best thing to do is to live in a northerly country. This conclusion is reached by the Soviet paper "Segodnya" after an exhaustive study of international birth statistics, which show that climatic conditions apparently form an important factor in the birth of twins. Twins are far more frequent in the North than in the South. In Norway, for example, one out of every 37 births is a case of twins; Sweden comes next with twins once in every 66 births; Germany third with one in every 80. In Brazil and Ceylon twins only occur once in every 200 births.—Sault Ste. Marie Star.

PERMANENT XMAS TREE.

A thirty-foot Norway pine tree, which will serve as a permanent Christmas tree at Waterloo town hall, was recently moved there and planted. Now there's an idea for you!—Guelph Mercury.

BACK TO THE MIDDLE AGES

An enterprising British real estate firm, marking a new residential sub-division in Middlesex, has equipped its new estates with built-in dugouts, guaranteed gas-proof and bomb-proof, and is making quite a point of the matter in its advertising.

"Live here and be safe in time of war," is its sales slogan.

It would be hard to find a grimmer bit of testimony to the insecurity of life in the face of modern warfare. Centuries ago people built their houses without windows so that each home could stand a siege. Today we have advanced immeasurably from the disordered conditions which made architecture necessary.

But if we have to equip our homes with bomb-proof dugout, where is the gain? Our boasted civilization has simply gone back to conditions of the middle ages. — Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph.

RABBITS FOR GASOLINE.

It is reported from Melbourne that the Minister of Customs of the Commonwealth has strongly supported a plan under which Australia would rid itself of 5,000,000 rabbits in exchange for Russian gasoline. Under the proposal, these millions of frozen rabbits, caught by 100,000 young men throughout the country, would be shipped to Russia for consumption as food, in return for which Russia would send several cargoes of gasoline to the Antipodes.—Brockville Recorder.

NEIGHBORS' LAWNS.

Seasons of soft soil has arrived, and, as usual, one hears fails from all parts of the city of thoughtless people cutting across corners of lawns, irretrievably ruining many of them, as far as this year is concerned. A little more consideration and a few more steps on the sidewalks instead of on lawns will prevent much damage at this time. No home-loving person will spoil the appearance of the property of anyone else.—Niagara Falls Review.

CLEAN SHOWS.

Standards are changing. The "leg shows" and mawkish romances have had a long innings, too long even for this artificial age. So it is back to decency and the homely moralities, upon which after all, society is founded and without which it cannot endure. One fact at least has been established—the public does appreciate clean, wholesome sentiment, the "classics" of literature can be made to pay, even when served up in the form of pictures for the entertainment of all and sundry—Hamilton Spectator.

CLERICAL ERRORS

Ministers, more than any other men, according to a Toronto divine, should guard against mistakes in pronunciation. And yet so many of 'em make mistakes when they pronounce a couple man and wife. — Border Cities Star.

REVELATIONS.

Trenches dug in Northern Mesopotamia indicate at least ten older civilizations, covered up one after the other. No saying what they might find if they were to employ diamond drilling.—Port Arthur News Chronicle.

Baronet Wed At 74 —— Father At 75

Sir Walter Gilbey, noted 75-year-old British sportsman, shown here in Hyde Park, London, with Lady Gilbey and their baby son, born Feb. 27. Lady Gilbey, the former Mrs. Marion Broadhead, is the Baronet's second wife, whom he married in 1934. Sir Walter was divorced in 1926.

HUMAN NATURE.

There was a crowd on hand at the departure of Betty Gow from New Yorw and there was a crowd on hand for her arrival at Southampton. Human nature is much the same at both sides of the Atlantic—Kingston Whig-Standard.

THE EMPIRE

MELODIOUS AUTO HORNS.

Another cause of nervous strain, the raucous motor-horn, is an equally needless affliction. Here again research has proved that a double-note horn tuned to a major or minor third combines great carrying capacity with absence of offence to the ear. Its use might well be standardized. The general noise of transport is hard to reduce, but it is by the glaring offenders that the nerves are jarred, and the worst of these can and should be eliminated.—Manchester Guardian.

A PUZZLER.

At least it can be said that the British authorities are doing something to check the slaughter on the roads. What puzzles most common folk, motorists or pedestrians, is to discover why on earth any ordinary person should want to travel more than half a mile in a minute.—Irish Independent.

CONSCIENTIOUS DEFIANCE

Is a man necessarily a bad citizen because he is a defiant citizen? Three men were fined at the Brunswick Court recently for not having voted at the last Federal election. The penalty in two cases was 10s. and in the third £1. The defendant who was fined the double amount addressed to the Court a letter that the police magistrate described as "remarkable." It certainly was. He objected that it was contrary to British justice to force a voter either to vote for a candidate in whom he had no confidence or to make his ballot-paper informal. Presumably the Bench had its reasons for punishing more severely a determined defiance of the law; but many people will disagree with the decision. Ordinarily the man who flouts the law invites sterner treatment than the man who falls foul of it through negligence; but the circumstances in this case were not ordinary. Compulsory voting is aimed at shirkers of a public duty. A man who takes the trouble to explain his conscientious objections to the Bench is not of that class.—Melbourne Argus.

NEW METHODS AND OLD.

The rapid progress which is being made in nearly every sphere of human activity and endeavor today has profoundly influenced educational systems. The centre of gravity has shifted from the subject to the child; the old order of things is passing away, and in its place are being established methods based on the results of modern educational experiment. In response to an inquiry as to how he attained such proficiency in Latin, Dr. Johnson once sad, "My master flogged me very well, sir." Education in Dr. Johnson's day was carried out according to the principle that "it does not matter much what you teach the young devils, so long as they hate it."—Trinidad Guardian, Port of Spain.

Canada's Message To His Majesty

Ottawa.—Premier Bennett recently placed on the House of Commons order paper notice of a resolution asking that an address be voted to the King congratulating him on completion of the first quarter century of his reign.

The text of the resolution follows:

"We, Your Majesty's loyal and dutiful subjects, the House of Commons of Canada in Parliament assembled, beg to offer our sincere congratulations on the happy completion of the 25th year of your illustrious reign.

* * *

"The eventful years which have passed since Your Majesty's accession to the Throne have witnessed great and significant changes in economic, social and political conditions that have constantly demanded the exercise of the highest qualities of courage and of leadership. During these years important and definite developments in the constitutional relations between the several parts of Your Majestie's Dominions have more firmly established that political unity of which their common allegiance to the Crown is the symbol and inspiration.

* * *

"We rejoice that each year has been marked by an increasing appreciation of Your Majesty's inspiring example of conscientious labor for the welfare of your people. Your Majesty will celebrate the 25th anniversary of your accession enjoying the unreserved respect and the loyal affection of the people in all parts of your Dominions, which is a striking demonstration of the righteousness and wisdom which Your Majesty has exhibited both in war and in peace through years of unexampled difficulty.

* * *

"We ask that our loyal and respectful congratulaations may be accepted by Her Gracious Majesty the Queen, whose untiring interest in every movement for the relief of distress and suffering and for the welfare of humanity has given her a secure place in the affections of the people of Canada. We rejoice that the Queen will share the demonstration of loyalty and devotion which will be shown to Your Majesty on this memorable anniversary.

* * *

"From time to time during Your Majesty's reign the people of Canada have enjoyed the honor of welcoming to this Dominion His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales and other members of the Royal Family, whose visits have not only deepened the loyal devotion of the people of Canada to Your Majesty, but have enhanced their appreciation of the interest which is always taken by the members of the Royal Family in all that pertains to the progress and welfare of this Dominion.

* * *

"We trust that we may continue for many years to enjoy the benefit of your gracious and peaceful rule. Our earnest prayer is that He Who is the Ruler of all nations and the King of Kings may uphold, direct and preserve Your Majesty in health, in happiness and in the affectionate loyalty of your people."

1936 Motor Markers

White letters on a black background will be the colors of the 1936 Ontario license plates. Hon. Harry C. Nixon, Provincial Treasurer, has announced. The plates as usual will be manufactured at the Ontario reformatory at Guelph under supervision of the St. Thomas Metal Signs, Limited.

A Loaf Of Bread

The weight of a loaf of bread in Canada is not standardized but it is regulated by municipal by-laws in the various provinces with the exception of Ontario. In Ontario the legal standard weight of a loaf is fixed at 24 and 48 ounces, except that in the case of "small bread" the limit is fixed at 12 ounces.

"To believe in illusions certainly brings human happiness." — Luigi Pirandello.

Elevator Gallantry

There may not be many men writing to etiquette authorities about the propriety of keeping their hats on in elevators when they share the ride with feminine acquaintances.

Nor need this be accepted as an indication that chivalry is dead. After all hats are one of the few possessions ever so many men have been able to hold on to during the blusterous winds of the passing stress.

In Australia, however, the propriety of wearing hats in elevators seems to be a not entirely irrelevant item of public consideration. This is indicated by the notice pasted in the seven elevators of a large bank in Sydney. " We would ask gentlemen to keep their hats on in the lifts. This will tend to reduce congestion during busy periods and so contribute to the greater comfort and convenience of all." Twenty instead of sixteen persons could be carried in each elevator during rush hours, according to the bank's officials, if men did not bother to remove their hats.

Rush-hour trips in elevators not infrequently make men keep their hands as close to their sides as their trouser pockets. If one has the knack of some trick whereby he could project his hat up from his forehead and then back, without touching it, he might be able to accommodate those females of his acquaintances touched with a special consideration for the niceties.—Buffalo Courier-Express.

More Cigarettes

Cigarette smokers in Canada spent more than $48,000,000 for their "ready-mades" during 1934, according to excise tax returns, which show that 4,822,405,065 cigarettes were placed on the market, an increase of approximately 12 per cent. over 1933.

Cigars were also smoked in greater number, consumption increasing approximately 5 per cent. from 114,352,000 in 1933 to 119,671,000 last year, and the use of smoking tobacco increased by 4 per cent. to 17,983,000 pounds.

Chewing tobacco showed a decrease in popularity, the quantity entered for consumption dropping from 4,225,000 pounds in 1933 to 4,170,000 pounds in 1934. In addition to domestic consumption Canada exported 8,769,979 pounds of unmanufactured tobacco valued at $2,026,802 to twenty-five different countries in 1934, and also exported manufactured tobacco in different forms to the value of $65,802. — Canada Week By Week.

"NAUGHTY MARIETTA"

Based on Musical Adventure Romance by VICTOR HERBERT

Captain Richard Warrington and his troop of trappers turn back and attack the pirates mercilessly. The trappers have been signalled by Princess Marie who has been captured from the ship on which she was sailing for Louisiana, disguised as her maid. The other girls who are to marry the French colonists in New Orleans all take to cover but Marie moves in the thick of the raging battle, waving her torch. The trappers whoop their blood-curdling battle-cries, firing guns and throwing tomahawks. The pirate leader fights Warrington with his cutlass. Warrington swings his musket and tries to reach his knife but the next minute goes down from a musket-butt blow on the head. Then the leader and the other pirates beat a cowardly retreat to their skiffs and rapidly paddle away.

The trappers place the girls in their boats to escort them to New Orleans. Marie is with Warrington. He does not know she is a Princess and teases her about marrying one of the Colonists although he assures her it will not be he for he is not the marrying kind. Marie is scornful but later they sing the air together, "I'm Falling in Love with Someone."

At New Orleans the Governor addresses the townspeople and welcomes the girls, The men are to choose their brides from among them. Marie violently objects but the Governor says she will be forced to do so. Marie is in a predicament. To avoid marrying, she must reveal her identity and this is impossible. What will she do? Don't miss next week's exciting installment of "Naughty Marietta."

A Barber Who Had Rheumatism

Tells How He Carried On

A barber who has been a martyr to rheumatism writes:—

"I have been a martyr to rheumatism for some ten years. For five years I was so affected that it was with the greatest difficulty I was able to carry on my business. I may say I am a barber by trade. After having tried numerous remedies, I was finally advised to try Kruschen. I am pleased to say that after having used Kruschen for some twelve months, I am now freer from aches and pains than I have been for some ten years. In fact, I consider I am rid of rheumatism, thanks to Kruschen Salts."—W. M.

Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts are the most effectual solvents of uric acid known to medical science. They swiftly dull the sharp edges of the painful crystals, then convert them into a harmless solution. Other ingredients of these Salts have a stimulating effect upon the kidneys, and assist them to expel the dissolved uratic needles through the natural channel.

A NEW HEN

Canada has contributed materially to the making of what is claimed as a new hen which has been evolved by agricultural scientist at Cambridge University, England. The bird at the moment is the object of considerable attention in the Old Country, and concerning it the "Spectator" says — "Few successes of greater interest and practical possibilities have been won in the field of agricultural biology than the making of the new Cambridge hen. Her chicks declare their sex at birth, because the males and females are differently marked. This is a great advantage to the poultry industry, since chicks travel safely and well only during the first two days of their life. The new breed, known as Cambar, was developed by Dr. R. C. Punnet and his associates at Cambridge, England, by the application of Mendelian principles. By the use of the Canadian Barred Phymouth Rock (supplied by the University of British Columbia to Cambridge University) both silver and golden Cambars have been evolved. They are prolific layers of large coloured eggs, whilst still possessing the virtue of sex-linked chicks. These chicks mark an epoch in the scientific breeding of poultry."

Amazing New Cure Found By British Woman Doctor

Characterized as "amazing" by a University College official, a drug treatment discovery by Dr. Mary B. Walker of St. Alfege's Hospital, Greenwich, is described by the London News Chronicle's special representative as "compared in importance with that of the insulin cure for diabetes and the liver cure for anaemia."

Myasthenia gravis has baffled the doctors of the world for years, the paper says. It afflicts people between the ages of 20 and 30, affecting all the voluntary muscles and causing almost complete paralysis similar to that produced by the curare poison used by Indians to poison their arrows.

Dr. Walker experimented the drug, prostigmin, obtained striking results, and recently demonstrated them at a meeting of the chemical section of the Royal Society of Medicine.

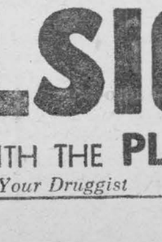

University College research workers decided to test prostigmin on a girl art student of 28 suffering from myasthenia gravis in such an advanced form that she could not sit up in bed.

This was their own report: "Three weeks ago the patient was treated at home with prostigmin. For 10 minutes no change took place. Twenty minutes after the injection, the patient was asked to raise the arms above the head. This was done immediately, although for 10 years she had been unable to raise her arms even to the horizontal position and keep them there."

Improvement continued and the reports stated that shortly the girl was able to dance.

"No one must be allowed to suffer for lack of life's necessities, but self-reliance must be encouraged and thrift rewarded." — Jesse H. Jones.

BEFORE BABY CAME

Mrs. George Schrumm of 128 Stoney Rd., Woodstock, Ont., says: "My strength was almost gone before the birth of my little girl, I couldn't sleep, did not care to eat and headaches upset me terribly. Two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription strengthened me so that I suffered no more weakness. I continued in the best of health."

A Horse's Intelligence

Writes the London Spectator—

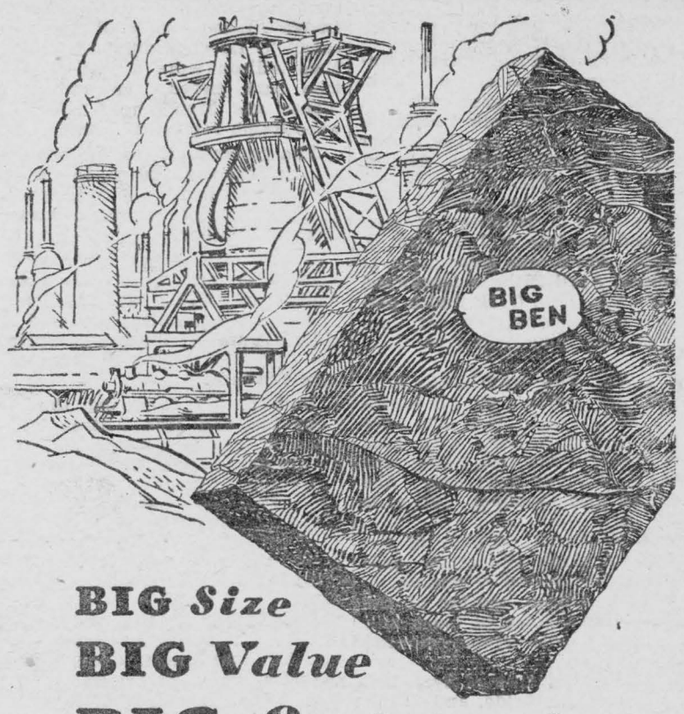

"The tale of an incident reaches me (from an Australian Rectory) that should qualify the view held by some of our biologists that the horse must be put down as one of the least intelligent of animals. The thesis has been very highly maintained of late; and one of its advocates is Miss Frances Pitt, the best of all our natural history writers on the subject of mammals. The incident is as follows: During a flood in New South Wales, small foal

"caught in a paddock near the racecourse, apparently too frightened to follow its mother when the rising waters forced her to leave, or she may have been driven out in a mob. Several men watching with keen interest the little animal careering around on the dry ground determined to rescue it by boat, if it did not come out. Presently several horses were seen making their way back through the flood waters and ,surounding the baby with almost human intelligence, coaxed it through the shallowest part to safety. Their delight on being able to rescue the youngster made a deep impression on all who were fortunate enough to witness the spectacle."

The Toll Of The Roads

Says the London Daily Herald: The real problem is not so much how people use the roads, but what kind of roads are provided for them to use. In narrow, congested streets, in wide roads without facilities for pedestrian crossings, in all thoroughfares where traffic of vastly different kinds is mixed up together, accidents will occur. They are inherent in road chaos, and we wish we could feel sure that there was at the Ministry of Transport as much appreciation of the need for road reform as there evidently is for safety devices.

GOOD FOR THE AUTOMOBILE BUSINESS

The Bell Telephone Company has a fleet of over 800 motor vehicles. This Spring it is replacing 132 cars by new ones — a nice little order for Canadian motor vehicle manufacturers.

ALLISON—MARTIN

A profusion of Easter lilies beautifully arranged against a background of ferns and pussy willows, with white wedding bells overhead, made a pretty setting for the Easter wedding of Harold Blake Allison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anson B. Allison, Morewood, to Anna Louisa Martin, youngest daughter of Mrs. Martin and the late A.J. Martin, of Morewood, which was solemnized at two o'clock, April 20th, in Morewood Unitd Church. Rev. G.H. Smith performed the ceremony, and the wedding music was played by Mrs. G.H. Smith.

The bride, who was unattended, was given in marriage by her brother, Max Martin, of Ottawa. She wore a suit of hyacinth blue, with blue fox trim, while her hat, shoes and accessories were of light grey. She carried an arm bouquet of calla lillies.

Mrs. A.J. Martin, mother of the bride, wor a black silk crepe tunic dress, with variegated trimming.

Mrs. A.B. Allison, mother of the groom, was in a gown of black silk crepe trimmed with cream-coloured satin.

Mrs. J.M. Ballantyne of Syracuse, N.Y., sister of the bride, and Ralph Jervis, witnessed the ceremony. During the signing of the rgister, Miss Louva Allison, sister of the groom, sang, "O Love, Divine and Tender". Miss Allison wore a suit of brown tree bark tweed, an embroidered blouse and brown hat. The ushers were Ralph Jervis and Hugh Loucks.

The groom's gift to the bride was a grey snakeskin purse, to the soloist an initialled gold bracelet, and to the organist a black purse of morocco leather.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Verna Kent and Mr. Al. Dowbraskie of Syracuse N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. G. MacLean of Manotick; Mr. and Mrs. R.S. Allison of Winchester Springs; Mr. and Mrs. Milton Swerdfeger of Glen Stewart.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Allison left on a motor trip to Toronto and Western Ontario. Upon their return, they will reside in Morewood.

What have I done!

SUPPOSE THIS HAD BEEN YOUR CHILD!

THE number of children killed and injured by automobiles in Ontario is appalling!

Children by nature are carefree. You must think for them, and for other pedestrians, constantly. Be sure your brakes, tires and lights are effective. Drive slowly and be particularly careful wherever there may be children . . . especially on holidays and week-ends. Train yourself so that safe driving becomes second nature to you

If you don't, some day you may find yourself not only severely penalized but also minus a driver's license . . . for life!

THE TUDOR HOUSE

By MRS. STANLEY WRENCH

(Author of "Sing for the Moon," Strange Lovers," etc).

SYNOPSIS

Michael Borde, 40, unmarried, born and bred in a Birmingham slum, is now a wealthy motor manufacturer One day he visits the countryside around his old home and meets Daphne Eden He falls in love and proposes. Daphne accepts and introduces him to her father, who greets him with the words: "Get out of here you cur—you ruined my home — stole my wife — curse you."

Daphne's father dies and she disappears. Michael explains to her friend, Mrs. Gregory, that he was misrepresented. He buys the old Tudor House owned by the Hamill-Hardy's. Michael collides with a car driven by Diana Hamill-Hardy. Mrs. Eden notices an announcement of the engagement of Michael and Diana.

Mrs Gregory dies. Daphne hears from her solicitors. Michael becomes involved financially. Diana breaks the engagement.

The car was brought round, he got in, took the wheel, and again that horrible sense of home-sickness possessed him. He was like a boy who dreads to leave the shelter of his home knowing that he will be bullied and whipped when back at school. His eyes lingered on the old porch over the arch of which were the arms of Henry VIII., with on either side the Tudor double rose of York and Lancaster beneath a crown. How proud he had been of those carvings. Even though the Hamill-Hardy crests were inside, the outer porch bore only the arms of England's king, as much a heritage to him as to the Hamill-Hardy's. Werburge Lucy would have to go if what the newspapers hinted at was true.

He drove on with a hard, set look in his eyes, and as he reached the top of the hill, where the road had wound up between the beech woods, stopped the car for a minute at a particular bend, where he knew, by looking down, he could view the house.

Was it pride of possession only that thrilled him so? He remembered his feelings as a boy. He could not then have dared to hope that the place could be his. Yet even then he had loved its grey stone beauty. A sigh escaped him as regretfully he drove on. Of course he would see it again; even if things were as bad as he feared, even if he had to sell again, he would come here and look at the place where he had buried his dreams. Here Michael Borde bit his lip, cursing his folly. What had possessed him to believe that he could marry Diana Hamill-Hardy and link up the past with today? Ever since she had come into his life things had gone wrong.

"He travels the farthest who travels alone."

He remembered that grimly. It was true. Better have kept to business and shut out women from his life. It was not Diana only. It had started with Daphne Eden. Until she disturbed his consciousness he had been secure.

He knew now that Lorna Gregory was dead, but he did not know that Trenkills Farm belonged to Daphne, but approaching the white gates that led up to the bungalow at the top of the slope, on the other side of which lay the whole Vale, his thoughts went to Daphne. And as he thought of her she came into sight, walking with a young man, who also he remembered seeing before, although for a minute he could not remember where.

Slowing down with deliberation, he lifted his hat. At last he would be face to face with her.

The young man flushed vividly, but Daphne looked at him as though nothing were there. It was a cut calm and deliberate, and he drove on, but Michael Borde felt like a man in a dream.

Mechanically he proceeded for a few hundred yards, then something hot and fierce sprang up within him. After all, Daphne had never given him a chance to explain. Even when her father had hurled those accusations at him, she had accepted is word without letting him say anything in defence, she had ignored his letter. Now he was within reach of her for once she should listen—

For once in a lifetime of driving Michael Borde lost his head, although what happened, as another car shot around the bend just as he decided to turn back, was difficult to say. He shot across the road in turn, through the hedge, his car turned turtle, and Michael Borde lay crumpled up, the horn of his car shrieking ceaselessly, turning the countryside into clamor.

The other driver, startled and taken unawares, drew up in a few paces, ran to the car, fearing, perhaps, a passenger was beneath, cut the wires, silencing the metallic horn then turned to the man lying on the grass, feeling him all over.

"Stunned but he isn't dead, thank goodness," he cried, his face white with anxiety. "Silly blighter. It was his own fault, too. What's to be done now? Miles from anywhere I'll be bound, and not a scout for miles. That's the worst of these by-roads."

He turned him over, felt his heart again, opening his coat; yes, that was beating, and except for a few scratches from brambles he did not appear to be hurt. Probably pitched on his head. Might be concussion. The only thing to do was to rush and get a doctor, or at any rate, find help of some kind, and mopping his forehead, for it was a hot day, he climbed back into the roadway, thankful to see a young man hurrying towards him, followed by a woman.

"Anything wrong?" he asked. "We heard that motor horn shrieking like blazes."

He looked over the hedge, where the wrecked car lay, saw Michael Borde lying there, recognized him, and Denis Birch turned to the other man, his face flushing.

"I say, keep her away, there's a good chap," he said. "It's ..... it's somebody she knows. It'll be an awful shock. Is he dead?"

"Dead, no ..... look out .....".

Dazed, putting his hand to his head, Michael Borde sat up, and it was then that Daphne Eden reached the side of the two men.

"Who is it? What has happened?" she asked.

Her lips were white.

Hope To Improve Safety Traffic Record

Kansas City, Mo. — The record for traffic safety compiled in Kansas City in 1934 was so low it was not even ranked when the National Safety awards to cities were made, but it will be different this year if police regulations can accomplish the needed change.

More than 100 persons lost their lives in traffic accidents here last year. The figure should be well below that, however, for deaths this year are about two-thirds of what they were for the same period in 1934.

Important stop street intersections are being watched by motorcycle officers. Arrests for drunken driving frequently result in sentences to the city farm as well as fines and revocation of drivers' licenses.

There also is some feeling for a drivers' license law that means something more than an additional tax on the motorist. At present it is not even necessary to establish that an applicant can drive a car, that he can read sufficiently to know a "stop" sign from a "slow" one, or that he knows and understands even the simple traffic rules. There is also no test to determine if the applicant is color blind and therefore unable to distinguish between red and the green traffic lights.

Is Your Mental Age 18 or Over? Answer These

Here's Test That Will Help Determine Your Intelligence Quotient

Washington—Sharpen your pencil and find out your mental age.

You may be 16 or 60 years old, but these questions will help you determine your mental age on representative intelligence tests prepared by the office of education in the United States Department of the Interior.

Dr. David Segel, who prepared these questions, believes that the average adult should be able to answer at least two out of every three. This would give you the mental age of 18, which recent tests have shown to be the average adult age.

While Dr. Segel said that the exact mental age of a person who was able to answer five out of six questions could not be determined, other educators said that, if the same ratio were continued on more extensive tests, it would be 20 years. Missing fewer than one question in every test would entitle you to become of age--mentally.

Resources, Industries Group Make Film Visit

How the development of one of Canada's most important natural resources led directly to a kitchen revolution was one of the interesting facts revealed at an unusual gathering of members of the Toronto Council of Women last week. Sponsored by the committee on national resources and industries under the chairmanship of Mrs. C. A. Northover the group made a synthetic tour of Canadian mines, smelters and refineries which culminated in a semi-technical study of kitchen operation, when it saw a private screening of new technical and popular Canadian screen studies which included camera shots of the Canadian nickel industry.

Two C.N.R. Hotels Show 1935 Profit

Ottawa — The Chateau Laurier Hotel in Ottawa and the Nova Scotian in Halifax were the only two units of the Canadian National Railways Hotel System to show a profit on operating revenues last year, Hon C. P. Fullerton, chairman of the Board of Trustees told the House Railway committee. The Chateau's profit was $152,000 and that of the Nova Scotian was $9,500.

To date, said Mr. Fullerton, $8,544 000 had been spent on the unfinished C.N.R. hotel at Vancouver. It was estimated $2,700,000 more would be required to complete that establishment including the furnishings.

WHAT DOES YOUR HANDWRITING REVEAL?

All Rights Reserved

GEOFFREY ST. CLAIR
Graphologist

I have often been asked of what practical value is it to any one to have their handwriting analysed? Well, the more we know of ourselves, our innermost natures, the greater will be our understanding of ourselves, qualities, characteristics, talents. And the more we understand ourselves the greater our opportunity of getting on in the world, the better able we are to make friends and keep them. In other words, to be happy, popular and successful.

Are you happy? — or are you continually frowning, with a constant chip on your shoulders?

Are you progresing in your work? —or are you dissatisfied; a square peg in a round hole; unable to make any real progress in the work you are doing, yet not knowing what to do to effect a change for the better?

If you are married, are you contented? — or is disquiet and unhappiness creeping in, with perpetual bickering between yourself and your wife or husband.

Do you make friends and keep them? — or are you living the life of an involuntary recluse, unable to enjoy the society and companionship of real friends?

Are you self-confident? — or are you diffident and bashful, restrained from realising yourself to the full because of inner qualms and self-consciousness?

If you go through life without knowing and understanding yourself — your faults and your virtues; your merits and your weaknesses of character and disposition — you will be seriously handicapped.

Graphology helps you to know yourself, to the end that you will seize on your strong points and make the most of them; and shows you the way to overcome the weak traits, so that you will not be handicapped in the race for happiness and success.

Handwriting is not merely a matter of puting your pen to paper. You have to use your brain in order to write. And because the brain is the captain of your body, everything that you do emanates first from your brain. Handwriting is merely the physical expression of the brain impulsees. Whatever you are and what you might be if you make the fullest use of your capabilities, are expressed in your writing.

A character analysis from your handwriting will not, of itself, effect a change in you, but it WILL show you wherein you need to strengthen yourself, and what traits you have but are not building to the full. And knowledge is the forerunner of action.

Would YOU like to have your character analysed from your handwriting? Have you any friends whose characters you would like to know? The author of these articles will send you a personal delineation. Send specimens of the handwriting you wish to be analysed, stating birthdate in each case. Send 10c coin for each specimen, and enclose with a 3c stamped addressed envelope, t: Geoffrey St. Clair, Room 421, 73 Adelaide St. West, Toronto Ont. In confiding in Mr. St. Clair, you may be sure that whatever you write will be treated confidentially. Letters will be answered as quickly as possible.

Garden Hints by Depart'nt Editor

When the trees begin to leaf out spring is at hand and seeding may begin in the open.

Remember it is always better to thin out than to transplant. Transplanting invariably checks the crops and seldom makes good.

Do not cultivate your garden when the soil is very wet. Where the soil is damp very little covering is required for fine seed.

Where fine seed is sown in the open ground cover the beds during very heavy rains.

Commercial fertilizer tends to make flowers bloom earlier and more freely, but it should be used in combination with manure since flowers require a certain amount of humus which the fertilizer does not supply. Nitrogen is readily available through nitrate of soda and sulphate of ammonia, which contain from 13 to 20 per cent., and may be applied as top dressings.

The person who has the best plants is the one who gives them most attention. This does not mean the person who works among them the most, but the one who studies their peculiarities and knows just what each plant requires. In Gardening and Horticulture intelligence counts.

Forking Among Fruit Bushes

Much harm is often done by forking among small fruits bushes, the digger often thinking it impossible to kill a currant or gooseberry, and at this season, early spring, when manure is spread over the soil above the roots, its is frequently forked or dug in regardless of the damage done.

There is a right and a wrong way of manuring fruit bushes, and the proper way is to mutilate the roots as little as possible.

The finest small fruits have been grown on bushes where no fork or spade had been used for years, they however, received a liberal mulching of manure on the surface after they were pruned in the early winter and this treatment they like above all others.

Raspberries, too, are very impatient of having their roots disturbed and mulching them also is the safest way of dealing with them.

Sap Running and Its Relation to Fruitfulness in Fruit Trees

Fruit buds are generally in bearing the third year after their first development. They are developed from the less vigorous buds upon the wood branches.

In a vertical branch, owing to its position the sap will run to the extremity with the greatest force and be most active for the end third of the branch, on the other two thirds buds will remain dormant. Therefore to develop the lower buds this branch must be cut back one-half its length.

If a branch is inclined at an angle of 45' the flow of sap is not so rapid and the buds for two thirds its length will be tolerably well developed, while those on the lower one-third will remain dormant. In order to promote the due development in these buds, shorten this branch about one third from the terminal bud.

If the branch is horizontal all the sap will act with equal force at every point of its length and therefore this will not need shortening.

If any branch should grow intermediate between these, the proportion must be maintained.

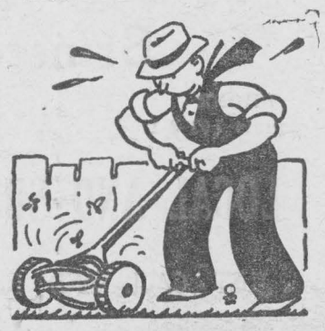

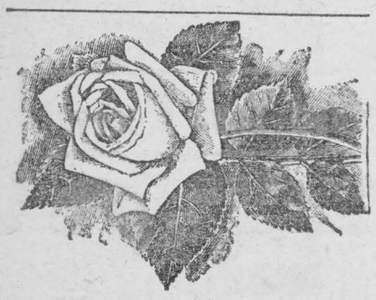

Gardening With Rocks

A few years ago a steep bank at the end of the lawn was regarded as a distinct handicap. Grass and ordinary flowers could not survive spring downpours. About the only solution was large trees and in front of these a screen of shrubbery or vines to hide the raw earth. Now-a-days, people want such banks to create a rock garden and often where no bank exists, one is raised by artificial and expensive means. This is not to be confused with the old stiff and rather unsightly rockery. In the kind advocated here, boulders are set into the side of the hill, embedded so deep that frost will not seriously disturb them, and also in such a way that the soil between will lead back into the main bank. Between the rocks a miniature Rocky Mountain range is created with gulleys, alpine meadows, crags and steep canyons. Seed catalogues usually list alpine rock garden plants separately. It is most important to secure seeds and plants suitable to Canadian conditions and it is also advisable to get special literature on the subject, or visit a neighboring rock garden, before attempting too elaborate a lay-out.

Use the Catalogue

A good seed catalogue is indispensable. Height of the flowers, times of blooming, whether they are suitable for such special purposes as edging, screening, cutting and fragrance are all mentioned and are vital facts in laying out a satisfactory garden. In the vegetable line the catalogue continues this useful service by listing different varieties under the heading of early, late and medium, so that a succession of vegetables is possible right through the season.

DRESS UP THE BATHROOM OR BEDROOM SUGGESTS LAURA WHEELER

CROCHETED RUG AND ACCESSORIES
PATTERN 938

If you want something in the way of crochet that will be a delight to you for a long, long time, crochet this rug. It will transform your bedroom or bathroom. It works up quickly — it's washable — and last, but not least, it's a handsome decoration. It is done in white and a color or two colors in that heavy crochet cotton used on candlewick spreads. Yu can do it in rags if you prefer; it will be equally lovely. The band on the towel goes with the rug and is done in matching string. If you want the rug for the bedroom, the scarf in filet goes with it.

Pattern 938 comes to you with detailed directions for making the set shown; illustrations of it and of all stitches used; material requirements, and color suggestion.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin, coin preferred, for this pattern to Needlecraft Dept., Wilson Publishing Co., 73 Adelaide St. West, Toronto, Ont.

Sunday School Lesson

LESSON IV—APRIL 28

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES — Deuteronomy 6:4-9; Joshua 1:8-9; 2 Kings 22:8-20; Nehemiah 8:1-8; and Psalm 19:7-14; Luke 24:25-32; Acts 17:10-12; 2 Timothy 3:14-17; Hebrews 1:1-4.

GOLDEN TEXT—"Oh how love I thy law! It is my meditation all the day. — Psalm 119:97.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING :

Time and Place — The words of Moses recorded in this particular passage from Deuteronomy, were uttered about B.C. 1451. This is the same year in which Joshua began his great life work. Josiah began to reign in 639 B.C. The great Reformation occurred about 621 B.C. The events recorded in the passage from Nehemiah about 445 B. C. The Emmaus discourse, recorded by Luke, occurred on Sunday afternoon, April 9, A.D. 30. Paul and Silas were at Beroea, a city of Macedonia, about A.D. 53. 2 Timothy was the last Epistle written by Paul, probably A.D. 66.

"The law of Jehovah." Law is truth considered as that to which rational beings are under obligation to conform their characters and action.

"Is perfect.' It lacks no truth necessary for man's perfect life; it reveals God as perfectly as God can be revealed; it will never be equalled and can never be surpassed. "Restoring the soul." It calls it back from its wanderings by reminding it of its ingratitude, by setting before it its high destiny, by bringing it to its true Shepherd and Guardian. "The testimony of Jehovah." Not only as testifying bearing witness of God's character, but also testifying of man's sinfulness. "Is sure." The word is aman, which means faithful, steadfast, verified, established. "Making wise the simple." The simple here are not those of limited intelligence, but those whose minds are open to the truth.

"The precepts of Jehovah." Divine directions designed to secure obedience, or check disobedience. "Are right." Straight, as opposed to the crooked ways of men. "Rejoicing the heart." Mark the progress; he who was converted was next made wise and is now made happy. "The commandment of Jehovah." As such it is imperative. "Is pure." There is neither error nor adulteration in any of its pages. "Enlightening the eyes. This refers not merely to the enlightening of the understanding, but of one's whole condition.

"The fear of Jehovah." Another name for the Law, but as contemplated not so much in its outward aspect, as in its working on the heart. "Is clean." Its action on the heart is like that of water upon the body, hence, often in the Scriptures running water is a symbol of the Word endureth forever. "The God's law; God, who endureth forever, changeth not; therefore, his his Word endureth forever. "The ordinances of Jehovah." The judicial decisions and sentences of God. "Are true". They are characterized by truth which endures and verifies itself. "And righteous altogether." Thus are they distinguished from the laws of men.

"More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold." The one never satisfies; the other always does. "Sweeter also than honey and the droppings of the honeycomb." Things that are right and to be desired are not always productive of pleasure and delight.

"Moreover by them is thy servant warned." The Scriptures warn men of Satan's devices of the heinousness of sin, of the consequences, of sinful acts, of the ultimate punishment God must inflict upon the sinner if unrepentant. "In keeping them there is great reward." In requiring from us whatever is contained in the law; he demands nothing but what he has a right to; yet such is his free and undeserved liberality that he promises to his servants a reward, which, in point of justice he does not owe to them.

"Who can discern his errors? Clear thou me from hidden faults." The contemplation of the law cannot but lead to self-examination, and that to petition.

"Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins; let them not have dominion over me." Presumptuous sins are those committed in the full knowledge of the sinfulness of the sins indulged in, and with deliberate intent.

"Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart." David here expresses his fervent desire that not only the outward acts of his life may be right, but the innermost depths of his being the fountains of life. "Be acceptable in thy sight, O, Jehovah, myrock, and my redeemer." The One in whose sight he would be acceptable, the One who is altogether holy.

"But abide thou in the things which thou hast learned and hast been assured of." This is the last letter that Paul wrote before his death, as far as we know.

"Knowing of whom thou hast learned them." A reference no doubt to his grandmother Lois, and his mother Eunice.

"And that from a babe thou hast known." The Jewish parent's duty was to teach his child the law when in his fifth year. "The sacred writings.' The Scriptures are sacred because they proceed from the Spirit of God. "Which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus." They reveal the need of a Saviour, who came to fully meet that need, and they reveal how the Saviour becomes a Saviour for us by faith in him.

"Every scripture is inspired by God. Men may speak, if they choose, of the inspiration of Dante, or Milton, or Shakespeare, but no other writing in the world can be truly characterized as inspired of God. "It also profitable for teaching." It teaches us those great spiritual realities which are never discoverable by human reason alone. "For reproof." No other volume in the world can be read with such a result. "For correction." Literally, for restoring to an upright position. "For instruction which is in righteousness." It disciplines us, instructing us how to live rightly.

"That the man of God." A man of God is one whom God has called, one who belongs to God, one in whom God lives, and one who in turn, lives wholly for God. "May be complete, furnished completely unto every good work." Good works in the New Testament sense of the term, are those which lead others to God.

Rules of Courtesy

Efficiency experts have discovered that courtesy is an asset of importance in the conduct of any business. It requires no citation of cases to prove that politeness pays.

The rules of business courtesy and its effects upon customers ought to be incorporated in every school program and home system—at least in principle. The rules of business courtesy are wrapped up in five favorable actions of customers. Customers are chiefly influenced by interest of the employees in their needs, the quality of information given, the mode of address of the employee, politeness and courtesy in act and word, and neat attire, which is a form of politeness.

While courtesy is said to be its own reward, legion are the instances where it has won recognition in promotions, gifts and legacies. But it is feared that discourtesy is the more often recognized.

How much of this grace is conferred upon the youth of today by their parents and home surroundings? If it is true that modern youth is without reverence and respect, where does the fault lie?

"All doors are open to courtesy," goes an old German proverb. Is there a better business motto?—Kingston Whig-Standard.

Due to the low water level in the St. Lawrence canals, especially at Morrisburg, the Department of Railways and Canals has issued an order restricting the draft of vessels passing through the canals at the opening of navigation, to thirteen feet, three inches. The draft thus becomes about the same as that which prevailed during the low water season last year. At this time of year, however, high water is normally expected.

Mr. Wm. Roach has purchased the vacant lot on Main Street, west of the Town Hall, from Dr. Cook, of Toronto. We understand Mr. Roach will, during the coming summer, build a modern, fire-proof garage and service station on the western portion of the property, leaving a cornr lot of sufficiently large dimension for another building. The site is one of the best in town, and should prove very popular with motorists.
