CHESTERVILLE'S CELEBRATION OF PEACE

The most momentous occasion in the life time of any living man was ushered in in the early hours of Monday morning, when the news was confirmed from Washington that the armistice had been signed by Germany and the great war with all its bloodshed and destruction had been brought to a close.

The announcement, two days before of the abdication of the Kaiser, had brought the realization of the nearness of the end to many and apparently had given people time to realize what the blessing of peace restored to a warweary world meant. Every community affected by the war, the world over, had come to the same conclusion and the celebration of the event was carried out in the most enthusiastic manner.

If any other town had more enthusiasm to the square inch than Chesterville displayed it has yet to be heard from.

The first intimation that the longed-for event had taken place was conveyed to the sleeping citizens by an early morning east-bound express proclaming with its whistle, as it speeded on its way, that something of the utmost importance had taken place which the early birds soon had confirmed from other sources. The Maple Leaf Condensery whistle then took up the good work in spreading the news, while sextons hurried to their belfreys to add the tones of their loud throated bells in extending the glad tidings to the farthest limits. Everyone was soon on the move; restlessness was everywhere. Who could work at the old prosaic daily labors with the air filled with the song of victory? Clerks could not collect their thoughts long enough to wait on their customers; customers could not remember what they had come for. Insurgency broke out among the school population and pupils flatly refused to take up their tasks. There was nothing really seemed to matter except that this was the day of days for rejoicing.

Order soon regained the balance, and a meeting of the business men was called at the town hall for the purpose of guiding a fitting celebration to be participated in by the town and district. W. B. Lawson, acting as chairman, soon had committees named and at work formulating plans for a monster street parade and for an evening programme of thanksgiving and jubilation. These events were so well taken care of and improvised with such satisfactory results that Chesterville's celebration of the great victory will stand out in the memory of those who participated as the crowning rally of the great war, in a town where many a notable gathering has taken place in the gathering of men and resources to carry it through.

The square and the streets adjacent to it had by common consent been turned over to Mr. H. Hooks, Superintendent of the Maple Leaf Condensery, whose organizing skill in the matter of handling street demonstrations is so well known and that the choice was justified was borne out by the result, achieved as by the waving of a magic wand. The pupils of the three schools were given prominent places following the place of honor given to the returned veterans preceeded by the band. The employes of the Condensery to a man, with an impromptu fife and drum band, a troup of mounted boys and men. decorated autos and trucks and a float representing the execution of the Kaiser, followed by a long procession of farmers and business men carrving flags of the allied nations made an imposing spectacle as it wound its way along the streets, first on the north side of the river and then on the south, back again to the square where a programme of short addresses, songs and band music was carried out under the direction of O. D. Casselman, M. P.

Chesterville was particularly honored on this occasion by the presence of Captain Abbott, rector of the Anglican Church, who is one of the original first contingent and who has the destinction of being the first one of the contingent to set foot on the soil of Old England. Capt. Abbott went over as Chaplain in the Virginian, one of the great fleet carrying the Canadians, and was the first man allowed to land with messages to this country announcing the arrival of the Canadians.

With the ending of the afternoon programme, knowing what we know uow, it might have been said that it was just a prelude to the main event. Such a meeting as was held in the Music Hall was never contained within its four walls before. It was packed to the limit of its capacity by men, women and children still eager to celebrate the great event. Here, again Capt. Abbott ingratiated himself into the hearts of the people of this place. Before the main programme was taken up he conducted a "sing—song" with the audience and had everyone singing the familiar songs of the war which were capped by the telling of some of the amusing incidents of his three and a half years of service as chaplain in the overseas forces. Dr. A. S. Morrison presided in a graceful and tactful manner as chairman of the evening and at his call addresses of more than ordinary brilliance were given by O. D. Casselman, M. P., Capt. Abbott, J. T. Kearns, E. E. Ball and W. B. Lawson, K. C., while an invocatory prayer was offered by Rev. J. B. Hicks. Mr. A. E. Bolster, a South African veteran, rendered a couple of selections assisted by the massed choirs of the churches of the town. Solos by Miss Simser and Mr. Pat Flynn with an instrumental duet by the Misses Thurston and Hooks provided musical numbers of much excellence. Mrs. Beach acted as accompanist.

Miss Anna Smith sprung an innovation when she headed a procession of girls to the platform rendering a concerted vocal salute to the veterans who had prominent places on the platform.

As the large crowd left the Music Hall, they were treated to a display of fireworks from the south bank of the river as a fitting wind-up to an eventful day.

Chesterville Man Leads United Counties Outside of Cornwall town

The race is keen in the Victory Loan Campaign in Winchester township, including the two villages. Three Winchester men have been pitted against one Chesterville man and the latter is leading the way with over $100.000 sold. In fact outside of the town of Cornwall there is not even a close second in the three United Counties. Chesterville and district is holding up its proud name of having the men and the money, too, to carry on their share of the war and giving both without stint.

Winchester township has earned an honor flag by exceeding its objective of $200.000 of which more than half has been raised by J. G. Tate.

KEEP MILK COLD.

(FARMERS CUT THIS OUT)

The sooner the milk can be cooled the better. It is almost impossible to produce milk without some bacteria in it, so that the problem now is to prevent these bacteria from increasing in number. At a temperature of seventy degrees, one bacterium may increase to two in twenty minutes while at fifty degrees it requires a very much longer period. One bacterium in milk at fifty degrees may increase in twelve hours to six or seven, while at seventy degrees it may increase to 600 or 700. When, therefore, it is remembered that much apparently good milk contains many thousand of bacteria per cubic centimeter, which is about thirty drops, it is readily seen how soon millions of bacteria will develop when the milk is warm. Milk should be cooled as soon as possible to fifty degrees lower and kept at that temperature.

On Wednesday night, the 6th inst. there was a good crowd of men assembied at the school house here to meet Mr. Hooks and Mr. Flynn from the condensery and heard what they had to say in regard to winter prices for milk. Messrs. Ault and Ellis are offering big prices just now and some of the Condensery patrons were considering the advisability of making a change, but Mr. Hooks informed them that their milk would not be taken in at the Condensery in the Spring again. He showed how the price is fixed by a commission and said there was an appeal in now for better prices and if these were obtained the patrons would get the benefit of them. He gave a very interesting talk on war conditions to which the ladies would have been pleased to listen had they been included in the invitations to attend.

In the special Temperance program given in our Sunday School last Sunday, Thomas Clarkson gave an address on Prohibition and Patriotism, and John Birnie on the Duty of the Hour. Seven of the boys sang a chorus. ,,Hear the Temperance Call''. They all did their parts in an excellent manner. Their readiness and ability to help in any good work is a credit to them. When the pledge-sheets were circulated nearly all who were old enough to understand pledged themselves against the use of strong drink, tobacco and cigarettes.

Memorial Service For Pte. Seeley

A memorial service to honour the memory of Pte. G. F. Seeley was held in Holy Trinity Church on Sunday, Nov. 3rd. Pte. Seeley was a faithful member of the Church of England, a gallant soldier, a true gentleman and a faithful communciant. The Rector, Captain Abbott, speaking to a full Church pointed out how foolish people were to think that they could go on living just as they pleased and then at the last simply say "Lord have mercy on me" and all would be well. It is no where revealed that the mere act of dying produces a state of instantaneous perfection in any soul, saint or sinner. For all, there is, surely, a state not of material purgatory, but of moral purification, in which the souls of the separated are made more and more like unto the great white Christ. We don't become saints simply because we die. Our church teachs the doctrine of Paradise where Christ works both in saint and sinner, and who but the all-knowing God knows which is the saint and which the sinner? For after all a saint is only a purified sinner.

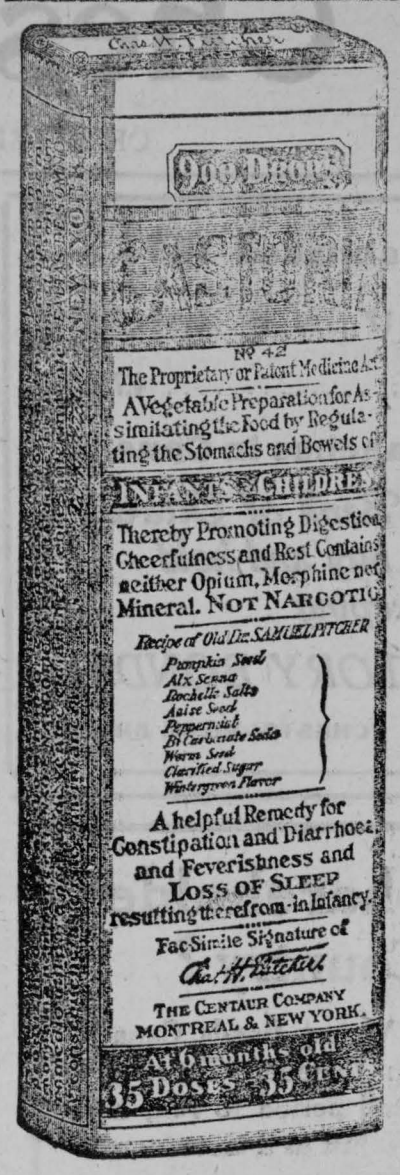

Pte. George Seeley was killed in action on Sept. 28th. He enlisted in 1915 with an Ottawa Battalion afterwards reinforcing the Princess Pats. Previous to enlisting he was employed at the Experimental Farm and by Y. M. C. A. of Ottawa and for two years was head gardener for Mr. Duncan McLennan, Ridgewood, Lancaster. He leaves a wife and three children in Chesterville, being Doris, Aileen and Cyril. Two brothers-in-law are now in France. He came to this country six years ago from Sidmouth, England, where his mother still resides. Two brothers of Mrs. Seeley have also made the supreme sacrifice in the British Navy.

Beats the Fish Story

"Well, here is a dog story that can't be beat: My friend Smith had a most intelligent retriever. One night Smith's house caught fire. All was instant confusion. Old Smith and wife flew for the children and bundled out with them in quick order. Alas, one of them had been left behind! But up jumped the dog, rushed into the house, and soon reappeared with the missing child. Everyone was saved; but Rover dashed through the flames again. What did the dog want? No one knew. Presently the noble animal reappeared, scorched and burned with—what do you think?"

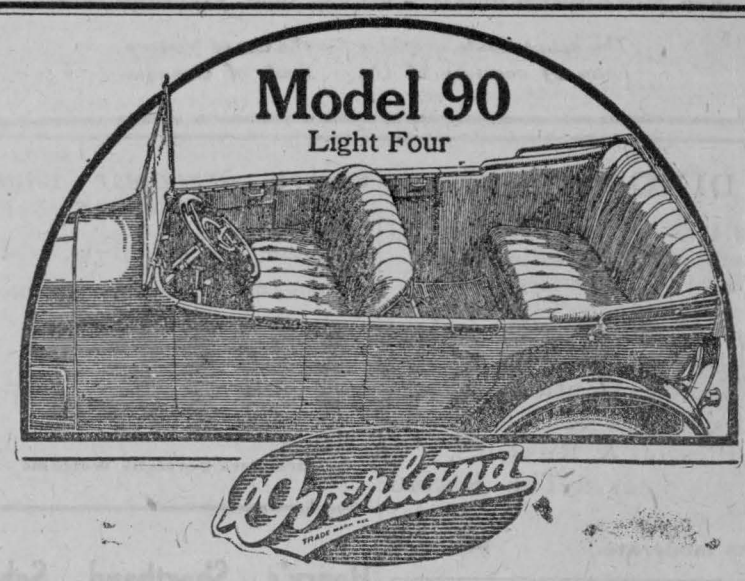

"Give it up", cried the eager listeners.

"With the fire-insurance policy, wrapped in a damp towel, gentlemen!

The Late Miss F. M. Bogart

At 4.30 p. m. on Saturday Oct. 26th, death entered a happy home at No. 102 Wellington St., Kingston, and tore from the hearts of loving parents and a little sister, Miss Flossie Bogart B. A. eldest daughter of Dr. and Mrs. I. J. Bogart. Miss Bogart was very ill for just one week and though Kingston's best skill was employed and all willing to help and do and consultations held with Toronto and Montreal specialists she succumbed to the ravages of the dread disease influenza-pneumonia. She bore the ordeal patiently and cheerfully in fact, in the very manner characteristic of her whole life—a sweet, unselfish, kind disposition.

The deceased was born in Western Ontario twenty-two years ago, but received all her education in Kingston schools, passing her entrance at the age of eleven, and graduating from the Collegiate with her senior matriculation and the Watkins scholarship in her seventeenth year. In Queen's she chose the honor classic course, and in 1917 was awarded her honor B. A. degree with specialist standing in classics. Last year she took the faculty of education course, and qualified for teaching in Collegiate Institutes. Before her illness Miss Bogart was continuing her studies at Queen's University for her M. A. degree next spring.

Though always an ardent student, Flossie Bogart had ample time to lend a helping hand to juniors and take an active part in all college functions. Having done an exceedingly heavy year's work in college yet her patriotism took her to the Niagara Peninsula where she spent the summer of 1917 doing gardening, farming and fruit picking for which she was awarded the national service (N. S.) badge, which she justly prized most highly. She was a member of Sydenham street church choir.

The following quotation taken from Queen's Year Book of 1917, on the eve of her graduation, gives the fairest portrayal of the deceased;

"Flossie Bogart first came to life in Western Ontario at the close of the past century. After a meteoric flight through the Kingston schools she entered Queen's University by senior matriculation with the Watkins scholarship. The honor classic course satisfied her ambition and by degrees we came to know her and to pride ourselves that 17 could claim her as a member. Flossie is a two sided person, one the brilliant student, graced with common sense and determination: the other, the girl with the merriest laugh, the funniest speech on her tongue and capable of giving the most warm hearted friendship, who mixed reason with pleasure and wisdom with mirth." To the grief-stricken parents and little sister the deepest sympathy is felt.

The Bank will trust you

Perhaps you never had an account in a bank—maybe you've never done business in a bank—hardly even cashed a cheque in one. But—that is no reason why you cannot go to a bank and borrow money to buy Victory Bonds.

If you are a steady, industrious, thrifty citizen, working and saving a part of your income, you are just the kind of person Canada's chartered banks stand ready to help to-day.

Any bank will lend you as much money as you can save during the next twelve months, with which to buy Victory Bonds.

All you have to do is to pay ten per cent. of the amount you want to buy and deposit the receipt for that ten per cent. in the bank.

The bank wil lend you the 90 per cent. balance at 5½ per cent. interest and will give you a year to repay it, the interest you get on your bond being just the same as the bank charges you.

This is a fine opportunity for you to begin a real savings account, to make a first class investment and to help your country at the same time.

Why not see a banker to-day—he will tell you all about it and you will be glad of the advice and help he can give you.

Another Battle Won for Dairymen

FOR months we have been experimenting—investigating—testing—fighting, to find a way to make the Empire Milking Machine, already the unquestioned leader, still more efficient for the dairy farmer.

THE BATTLE IS WON.

We have given the milking machine a new heart—the pulsator is the heart of the milking machine—and the result of our experiment, the new Empire Super-Simple Pulsator, is the most wonderful development since the invention of the Empire—the competent milking machine.

To be successful a milking machine must have a perfectly acting pulsator to cause the alternating action of suction and massage on the teats (to imitate the calf's "suck and squeeze") to occur with absolute regularity; and to make the change from suction to massage and back again instantaneous.

The Empire Super-Simple Pulsator, the pulsator without a piston, does that and more. It really is Super-Simple—so simple that it can be taken apart and put together again in less than two minutes. It has but five moving parts; nothing to wear out or "get out of gear." It cannot lose vacuum, so its action is perfect.

It places the Empire Milking Machine immeasurably in advance of all competition. Your cows should be milked by an Empire Milking Machine with the new Super-Simple Pulsator. It will milk them more rapidly than ever—it will solve your labor problem—it will increase milk production at a decreased cost; it will transform milking from drudgery into a pleasant chore.

Our factory is overtaxed by the increased demand for Empire Milking Machines, so go to your dealer at once, see the new Super-Simple Pulsator and tell him to order your Empire outfit without delay; or write for Catalog.

Killed in His Dugout

Pte Bismaak Shaver

The following letter received by Mrs. Bismark Shaver in England was received last week by Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Shaver giving the particular of the death of their son in France.

France, Sept. 20th, 1918.

My dear Mrs. Shaver—

I am so sorry owing to stress of present operations I have been unable hitherto to write you a word of sympathy over the death of your husband.

He met his death well asleep in his dugout late at night, a large shell landing alongside demolished almost the whole place; in all five men were buried of whom two were recovered alive. I am quite sure he suffered little or not at all judging by the quiet calm of his features. I don't much care about retailing details of this sort but I know those who love them like to know at least briefly how their dear ones came to their end.

Your husband was one of the finest men I have been honored to have serving under my command. I miss him, he was so sincere and straightforward in everything. He was a fine character and his simple faith and fine personality made him loved by those under him. Why such men whose influence is all for good should be removed from among us always remain a problem One thing I am sure of and that is he was ready to die. His duties here are finished but he will live in my memory and in that of all who know him, I know.

For you, his wife, I cannot fully express my sympathy, nor dare I encroach on your sorrow, but you have the profound sympathy of myself, my officers and all the men of the battery, who all hope that in your time of trouble you will find comfort sufficient for your need.

I was able to have your husband buried some miles behind the lines in a proper cemetery. The chaplain will send you fuller particulars. All the little effects we were able to recover are being sent on to you.

Accept my deepest sympathy, Jas. Alex MacDonald, Major Commanding.

Consult Mr. A. E. Bolster, if your case can be helped by the use of lenses, he can do it for you. Free test—day or night every day—at W. G. Bolster's Drug Chesterville.

Germans Must Leave West Bank of The Rhine

The period given in the armistice terms for the evacuation of the left bank of the Rhine by the German forces has been extended by twenty-four hours, according to a French wireless despatch received.

In the armistice, as officially announced, the Rhine territory is to be evacuated within eleven days after the expiry of the fourteen days set for the evacuation of the invaded territories of Belgium, France Alsace-Lorraine and Luxembourg.

The evacuation of the left, or west bank of the Rhine means that, pending final adjustment of the boundary at the peace conference, and for the further peroid necessary for the fulfilment of the peace conditions which the Allies will impose, the Germans will be required to relinquish control not only of Alsace-Lorraine, but of the remainder of Germany west of the Rhine. The territory is roughly twenty thousand square miles in extent with a population of about 9,000,000. It includes some of the most important mining and manufacturing districts of Germany, and such great centres as Cologne, Strassburg, Metz and Essen, home of the Krupp works.

The territory west of the Rhine consists of Alsace-Lorraine, the Palatinate, the Rhine province, Birkenfeld and about one third of Hesse.

The Rhine province is the largest of these districts. Its area is 10-423 square miles, and the census of 1910 gave its population as 5,759,000. It contains great coal and metal deposits, and some of the largest iron and steel manufacturing centres of Germany. There are also textile industries on a vast scale, as well as extensive farming and wine-growing regions. The most important cities are Cologne, Essen, Dusseldorf, Coblenz, Bonn and Aix-la-Chapelle. It is the most westerly province of Prussia, by which it was acquired in 1815.

A Matter of Percentages

(Samuel G. Blythe, in the Saturday Evening Post.)

In considering the effort of the American Navy in European waters and elsewhere it is necessary that we should keep our perspective, retain our sense of proportion. The American Navy, as I am describing it, in the articles I have written and shall write, is doing its allotted work in foreign waters, and doing that allotted work in excellent American manner and in full accord with the traditions of the service—efficiently, loyally, spendidly; but when compared with the entire naval field our share of the total is small though being expanded constantly.

For example, in the anti-submarine campaign Great Britain supplies eighty per cent. of the destroyers, France six per cent. and the United States fourteen per cent. We have only five per cent. of the submarines operating here, and three per cent. of the miscellaneous patrol craft while Great Britain has seventy-eight per cent, and France seventeen per cent of the submarines and eighty-six per cent. and eleven per cent. respectively of the miscellaneous patrol craft.

Our percentages are even smaller, in fact the smallest, in the Mediterranean.

Of the total number of patrol craft operating in British and Eastern Atlantic waters we supply but five per cent. The British naval aviation service is four and one-half times as large as ours at present, though we are increasing our percentage daily, and it is large as it is. The British have three times as many officers and four times as many enlisted men operating in European waters as the Americans, and this does not include the very great number the British have in their auxiliary patrol service. So far as transports are concerned Great Britain supplies destroyer escorts for seventy per cent. of them, the United States for twenty-seven per cent , and France for three per cent.

We supply thirty-five per cent. of the cruisers needed for escort of convoys and transports, Great Britain sixty-one per cent. and France four per cent. The British Navy also operates in many other ways in protection of our shipping.

These percentages are presented in order that the sense of proportion shall not be lost at home. The United States Navy is playing a great and a glorious part in this war, and in European waters and is daily expanding its line and strengthening its position, but it is not doing it all, as some home comment has stated.

As a matter of business, what do you think of the plan?

You are a farmer.

Canada is a farming country.

Canada grows more food than the people of Canada need.

To prosper she must sell that surplus food.

Great Britain is our best customer for grain, pork, beef, cheese and other farm products.

Every practical man must see how important it is to hold the British trade. Canada wants not only the profit on this trade, she wishes to create a good-will in Britain towards Canadian products and thus assure our export business for the future.

At the moment Great Britain asks for credit, asks Canada to sell her the products of the farm, "on time." To hold her trade, it is necessary to give this credit.

This takes capital—immense capital. For Britain's purchases from Canada are huge, and these purchases must be paid for in cash.

In these times, it is not easy even for a nation as wealthy as Canada to procure money. Certainly, no other country can lend us money. The only way now open for Canada to secure money is to borrow from the people of Canada.

This is the reason for selling Victory Bonds.

Can anyone deny the sound business sense of this plan of protecting our valuable market?

From the standpoint of the man who lends, what better security could he get for his money? Where else could he get a five and a half per cent. return on such security? Where would he find an investment to pay interest so regularly and with so little trouble to the lender? Certainly Canadians have an opportunity to benefit very directly from this borrowing plan.

And the money Canada borrows is spent entirely in Canada—a very large part of it for the very crops the farmer has to sell.

Therefore, if the Victory Loan is a success, business in Canada must be good, the nation must prosper and so be able to carry on a vigorous war effort in France and Flanders.

As a practical man you must approve of the Victory Loan plan.

Then help it along. Put your own money into Victory Bonds; urge your friends to buy; work hard among your loyal neighbors to make the Victory Loan 1918 an overwhelming success.
