Dundas County Ideal High School Area Outlined By Public School Inspector At Winchester Meeting

At an invitation meeting of High and Elementary school boards and members of municipal councils of Dundas County held in Winchester on Monday evening, Mr. W. J. Stewart, inspector of Public Schools for the county outlined a plan for the organization of at least the major part of Dundas County into one High School District with the eventual aim of having one large High School serve the whole territory. Mr. Stewart had with him Mr. Gordon Young, B.A., inspector of Public Schools from Middlesex West who outlined the steps taken to organize the whole of Middlesex County into larger High School districts, and told how the transportation plan for rural students was working out. While there were certain minor problems to be straightened out, the organization of the larger areas in his territory had resulted in decided advantages for the students from rural areas. Mr. Young explained why it is not feasible to give all the desired courses in a small High School, and why this can be done in a large High School.

Mr. Stewart then addressed the meeting with particular reference to Dundas County. He said that experience had shown that for the best conditions a High School district should have an assessment of at least $10,000,000 and a population of at least 10,000 people. Dundas County has an approximate assessment of $13,000,000 and a population of about 16,000. This being the case, he just could not see where it was in the best interests of High School education to attempt to have more than one High School in the County. Cutting the above figures in two would give two schools neither of which would have a sufficient back-log of either population or assessment to guarantee the financing of the project through any depression years which might lie ahead. An additional million or two of assessment and an additional few thousand of population was, in his opinion, a real advantage.

He then quoted from the Report of the Minister of Education for the year 1945 showing that there were in operation in that year in Ontario thirteen transportation routes to High Schools, having mileages for the round daily trip ranging from 54 to 70 miles; forty-six having miles of over 30 and less than 50 miles; and eighty with mileages ranging from 20 to 30 miles. A total of 215 transportation routes were in operation that year, and it was known that the movement for transporting pupils to High School was gaining in momentum all the time. He also showed that a number of the longer routes operated in Northern Ontario where road and weather conditions would be at least as adverse as in Dundas County.

High School costs were next dealt with, and a comparison made between costs in Dundas County, and in Cornwall Collegiate Institute. The average pupil-day cost in Dundas County for 1945 was 93 cents per day while in Cornwall Collegiate the cost was 67 cents per day, although the Cornwall school paid larger salaries and in many respects provided a more varied programme. Mr. Stewart attributed the difference to the fact that the Cornwall school had a sufficient number of pupils to have teachers operating in full class-rooms, while in most of the Dundas County schools teachers were instructing classes consisting of only a few pupils, particularly in the upper grades. There was a close analogy in certain respects between Cornwall Collegiate Institute and Dundas County. Dundas County had enrolled 680 students while Cornwall Collegiate Institute had enrolled 628; average attendance had been respectively, 587 and 590. The speaker next dealt with the probable effect upon the tax rate for High Schools if a really up to date school were erected for the County. His figures were as follows: Proposed cost of school $455,000 (estimated at $700 per pupil of average attendance). Salaries, $71,500 for 28 teachers. There are 33 teachers now in the High and Continuation Schools of Dundas; but with one large school the speaker expressed the view that 28 teachers would make a full staff. Transportation at a cost of $95.00 per pupil would cost $66,500 and an estimated amount of $10,000 per year was made for maintenance costs. The present provincial grants would allow a grant of 75 percent of the cost on a ceiling operating cost of $130,000, and an attendance grant of $10 per pupil of average attendance. Grants on this basis would be $97,500 for operations, and $6,500 for attendance. Total, $104,000. To retire a debenture issue of $455,000 at 4% over a period of 20 years would cost $32,743 per year, so total costs per year would include: Debentures $32,743 Transportation, $66,500; Salaries, $71,500; and maintenance $10,000. Total, $180,743. Grants would be $104,000, leaving a balance of $76,743 as the local cost. With an assessment of $13,000,000 this would mean a local rate of approximately 5.9 mills. Mr. Stewart did not know just what the High School rate is in a number of the municipalities, but did not think that this rate would be much in excess of what is now being paid. Anyway, he thought that the people of Dundas County who possessed no less than seven of the Secondary Schools in the United Counties, having been forward-looking educationally in years gone by, would not shirk at a little extra taxation, if the added cost meant real educational advantages for the youth of the County. He showed that the present organization did not give fair representation to the rural areas, the management of the schools is at present in the hands of urban boards. With one representative from each municipality on a large County Board, all municipalities would be represented fairly. In addition to a representative from each municipality, the public school having the largest number of pupils would name one representative, there would be one Separate School representative, and the County Council would name one member. Thus all classes of schools, and all governing bodies in the County would be represented.

On Saturday a supply of home-made soap was offered for sale on Brockville market and found ready sale at five cents a cake.

MARTINS BACK SPRING IS HERE

The two-inch fall of snow on Monday was not very much appreciated by us, but it proved to be no hindrance to the matins who put in their annual appearance, right on the dot on the 28th of April. Since we put up the birdhouse in 1938, the chittering and chirping of the first martins has greeted us, rain, snow or shine, as regularly as the calendar comes around. The swallows of Capistrano may have something, but our martins don't stop off in California. They have a through ticket to the ancestral birdhouse in Chesterville and when they arrive it is time to unlimber the fishing rod.

Cabinet Ministers Address Winchester Hospital Meeting

Hon. Russell T. Kelley and Hon. Geo. H. Challies addressed a meeting of the Memorial Hospital board, district reeves and others Saturday night, when the former said he hoped to see hospital facilities in many of the municipalities now without them throughout the province, because a great service could be rendered to the standard of health.

Mr. Challies in introducing the Minister of Health said he hoped some scheme could be worked out where a small contribution to a common pool would provide hospitalization for all without the financial worries attendant on long periods of illness.

The preparation of plans for the building of the hospital are nearly completed and tenders will shortly be called for its erection, it was announced by the architect, Cecil Burgess.

Edward Sauve, 76, Passes Funeral Monday

After being in ill health for some time, Edward Sauve died last Saturday night. He was in his 76th year. A respected and life-long resident of this community, he leaves to mourn his wife, son Henry and a daughter, Mrs. O. W. Brooks of Lake Forest, Illinois. Born at Bourget, Ont., Mr. Sauve came to Chesterville at an early age and later acquired the present farm south-west of Chesterville where he lived until the time of his death. After service at St. Mary's church, where Requiem High Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father P. J. Keaney, the remains were buried in the Upper cemetery.

The pallbearers were: A. Lefebvre, J. Lefebvre, E. Lefebvre, A. Ball, G. F. Johnston and Patrick Kelly.

CHARLES W. CRUMP ASSUMES NEW POSITION

This week Charles W. Crump of Cornwall, formerly of Chesterville, will assume the new position of General Manager of the Collection Department at the G. A. Bringloe Furniture Ltd., Pitt St., Cornwall. He succeeds J. F. Armstrong, who leaves this week for Trenton where he will take up similar accountancy duties in the Civilian Army there.

Mr. Crump received his education from Morewood and Chesterville High Schools, Cornwall Commercial College and I.C.S. Scranton, Pa.

For the past 5 years he has been employed in the engineering department of Courtaulds (Can.) Ltd. at Cornwall. We wish him much success in his new position.

HAWKESBURY DRAMATIC CLUB "HERE COMES CHARLIE"

The Anglican church Dramatic Club of Hawkesbury was greeted by a large audience in the Community Hall Thursday evening when the comedy by Jay Tobias, "Here Comes Charlie" was presented under the auspices of the Women's Association of Trinity United Church. The dramatic club's share of the proceeds will be used for the renovation of the Anglican church in Hawkesbury. The play was well presented and much enjoyed by the large audience.

MILK PRODUCERS BENEFIT WITH NEW BUDGET

Under the changes in the new budget presented Tuesday afternoon by Finance Minister Abbott dairy farmers stand to benefit considerably. Concentrated Milk Producers through the raise of thirty cents per case on evaporated milk should receive for their milk this summer $2.50 per hundred for 3.5 milk.

Cheese producers will likely benefit by a cent and a half increase for cheese with the dropping of the subsidy of thirty cents and an increase of four cents per hunded allowed.

The price of butter has advanced ten cents per pound which should net producers one and a half cents for their butter fat.

CATTLE KILLED BY LIGHTNING IN FREAKISH MANNER

During the electric storm which passed over this district last Thursday morning, Robert L. Allison lost three head of cattle under peculiar circumstances. It is believed that lightning struck near a window where the first animal was killed. The second was killed about half way along the row of cows while the third was killed at the far end of the line, the bolt travelling along the metal pipe connecting the water bowls and stanchions, the killed animals making contact with the metal.

FIRST GUERNSEY DAY AT CHESTERVILLE FAIR

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Miss Shirley Cassidy, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Cassidy, entertained ten of her girl friends at a birthday party Monday evening, when a most enjoyable time was spent. Shirley received many nice gifts. The evening was spent in games after which delightful refreshments were served.

VERY BACKWARD WEATHER FOR SPRING WORK

The unseasonably cold and wet weather is beginning to cause a good deal of uneasiness among the tillers of the soil throughout this district. Two inches of snow Tuesday morning did not help matters to any extent, and almost continuous rain since leaves the soap opera announcers about the only ones who could add a ray of sunshine to the situation. There has not been enough heat to start any pasture growth nor can any work be done in preparation of the earth for the sowing of crops.

J. Howard Fulton Tells Rotary of Florida Trip

By vivid description and interesting souvenirs, Howard Fulton entertained a 100% attendance meeting of the local Rotary Club, last Monday night. Mr. Fulton and his wife travelled over 5,000 miles, 2,500 of which were covered in the state of Florida.

Opening the program, Leon Marcellus, the president, welcomed Dr. Lloyd as a guest. After some discussion of the plans for the forth-coming visit of the Ottawa Temple Choir on the 19th of May, nominations were completed for the complete slate of directors for the coming year.

In his talk, Mr. Fulton expressed a Canadian's amazement at some of the natural life to be found in the lakes and rivers of Florida. His description of the baby sea cows, of manatees, that would tip the scales at about 800 pounds was very interesting, and the mention of 12 pound bass, eager to be caught, filled some of the local Walton fans with an urge to visit Florida. An occasional snake only added zest to the 80 degree temperature, he said. Mr. and Mrs. Fulton visited many of the well-known cities of the Sunshine State in their journeys. Fort Lauderdale, Miami, Sarasota, Daytona Beach, were but a few of the places they toured.

After leaving the sunshine and warmth of Florida, Mr. Fulton returned by way of Georgia, Tennessee and Kentucky.. While in Kentucky he visited some of the stables of horse-racing champions, and saw the famous old horse, Man-O-War who was shortly to celebrate his 30th birthday.

Reaching northern New York State the Fulton's found themselves in the midst of one of the worst snow storms of the year.

Gallingertown

Among those who attended the A. Y. P. A. Formal Dance at Aultsville on Friday evening were, Mr. and Mrs. Clair Gallinger, Harry Froats, Misses Keitha and Carol Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Gallinger, Mrs. Jack DeGey, Clifford Neill, Misses Keitha and Frances Gallinger and Mrs. Beverley Weagant.

Mr. and Mrs. George Weagant and Donald of Athens spent Sunday with Mrs. A. O'Neill and Mr. D. Weegar.

Miss Luella Neill and Miss Flossie Neill of Cornwall spent the week-end with their mother, Mrs. Gertrude Neill.

Misses Fern and Aileen Gallinger were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Gallinger and family.

FARMERS LOSE RIGHTS TO SHOOT ON OWN LANDS

According to press reports the C.C. F. government of the Province of Saskatchewan is introducing a bill to amend the Game and Fisheries Act, prevent a farmer from hunting or fishing on his own land. The effect of the legislation appears to be that in case a farmer puts up signs, "No Shooting or Fishing" his property automatically becomes a designated game sanctuary on which no one, including himself, can hunt or fish without permission of the government bureaucracy. The excuse given for the proposed legislation is that the erection of such signs opens the way for the owner of the property to lease the game privileges to commercial interests and that sort of private enterprise comes under the socialist taboo. If the case is as stated it is certainly a novel way of circumscribing individual liberties. To prevent wild ducks strippng whole fields of wheat farmers better not put up those signs.

SELLING CHEER AS WELL AS GOODS

This Ottawa Valley town has a grocer whose face is as familiar from coast-to-coast as that of Canada's Prime Minister—yet until recently few of his admirers knew that he existed.

Telesphore Lortie — "Uncle Teles" to Aylmer and the surrounding district—has operated the Aylmer Cash Store with his brother Lionel for forty years. He rarely wanders far from the Ottawa Valley, but his picture is displayed from Halifax to Vancouver. When he appeared as guest-of-honour on a Trans-Canada broadcast of Canadian Cavalcade, Mr. Lortie became more than a face to his thousands of admirers.

Mr. Lortie is the man depicted in an almost life-size display card showing a kindly grocer serving a customen. The keen, friendly features, the white apron, the touch of grey at the temples typify for grocers and their customers all over Canada, the neighborly merchant with whom it is a pleasure to deal.

Ten years ago, Mr. Lortie was persuaded by Simon Labarge, of Ottawa, vice-president of the Chateau Cheese division of The Borden Company, Ltd., to pose for the card. A summer resident of Aylmer, Mr. Labarge had noticed the friendly merchant at his work; the way in which he served his customers the jolly repartee which never failed to bring a smile. He felt that Lortie, the salesman, philosopher and friend to his customers should be perpetuated as the ideal grocer.

To capture what Labarge had seen in Lortie's face, Ernest G. Frosberry, prominent portrait artist, of Ottawa, was commissioned to paint his portrait. For six months Lortie travelled between Aylmer and Ottawa for sittings. The final painting, now hanging in a place of honor in the Chateau Cheese Company head office in Ottawa was reproduced in window display cards, distributed across Canada.

Thousands of tourists and summer residents pausing at the Aylmer store have identified the man in the picture. Thousands more who have never visited Aylmer have been impressed by the sincere friendliness in the face looking at them from store counters and windows. Company representatives gathered to consider new sales presentations made one unanimous request: more Lortie!

Thus the man whose happy knack of selling cheer along with his goods, caught the attention of Mr. Labarge ten years ago, has become a well-known face and a goodwill ambassador, throughout the Dominion.

The heart is an astrologer that always divines the truth.—Calderon.

The strongest man in the world is he who stands most alone.—Ibsen.

PRINT REPRESENTATIVE PRICES ON MONEY

Money misleads people in more ways than one. Particularly it misleads them into thinking of money as money, rather than as the food, clothing, movies and other goods and services which it represents. The emphasis placed on purchasing power of money during the war tended to make people more aware of what money means in shelter, clothing, fuel and food; but it is hard to remember that the dollar in your hand is only worth a part of the dollar you had in hand some time ago.

Almost anyone today would rather be paid $40.00 per week, with a purchasing power of $35.00, than $30.00 with a real value of $37.00, in relation to a base period. It is virtually impossible to discuss any problem of prices or wages in terms of real values and base periods. When all other arguments fail, the cost of living index, the commodity index or any other reference index, is damned as false or inadequate. The fact that the index usually represents the changing values of the same things is ignored.

Perhaps a simple and effective way to impress the real value of money upon the holders of it, would be to print the prices of representative goods and services, at the date of issue, on the backs of Canadian bills. If we could learn from the back of a dollar bill printed in 1897 that it then bought 10 lbs. of beef-steak, 12½ lbs. of fowl, 8 doz. eggs, a pair of work boots, 6 2|3 hair cuts, 4 good meals, or a day's room and board at a good hotel, we might appreciate better what has happened to the purchasing power of money.

The prices quoted are sheer guesses. We have no reliable information on 1897 prices. It would be nice if we had it, as conveniently as on the back of a dollar. This year would be a good year to start. The real value of money ought to begin to increase as corrective re-action to high prices sets in. We might learn also that the price level is not nearly so important as the exchangeability of our goods and services.—The Scene, Shingwauk Farm.

SOMETHING CAN BE DONE ABOUT CANCER

"He that cures a disease may be the most skilful—but he that prevents it is the safest physician". This is an ancient saying but its message has lost none of its significance today. The Ontario Cancer Society hopes to bring home this message to every family in the province with the "prevention rather than cure" slogan paving the way.

Letters have been received from many parts of Ontario—grateful, heart-warming letters expressing gratitude from those who discovered they had cancer and acted upon their discovery. Many attribute being alive today to the literature they received from the Society, telling of symptoms and signs to watch for.

"Until we bring cancer into the open it will continue to spread icy fear into the hearts of our people", says Bruce Taylor, chairman of the drive. "Few people realize that 80 percent of many types of cancer can be cured, and our job is to tell them of the facilities available for diagnosis and treatment of the disease, with total cure as our ultimate aim.

"The most vital fact about cancer is that we can do something about it! By joining the society, members will receive information regularly which will keep them informed of the latest developments in research and treatment, thereby teaching them what to watch for and look for in themselves and members of their own circle. Your dollar can possibly save your life or the life of one dear to you."

WHY NOT SOME UNION-OPERATED FARMS

Trade unionists who attribute all of their troubles to the greed or inefficiency of employers or farmers, should give practical proof of their goodwill and efficiency by estabishing demonstration farms operated under union regulations. With their unselfishness, brains and efficiency, they could manage the farms, with competent, scientfically-supervised farm workers, to produce food at low cost, thus raising both the standard of living and the real wages of their members. It would be easy to acquire, at prices less than the cost of the buildings and improvements, all the land required to feed all the workers in Canada. They might start with sufficient to feed their own members.

A THING BEYOND PRICE

The farmer who would not admit, even to himself, that his strength was on the wane, had worked too hard. Wearily he went into the stable to find his wife feeding the animals to help him with the chores.

When the work was finished they went down the slope together to the house. The last rays of the sun reddened the bark of the birches and brightened the evergreens. The field of snow was laced with the shadows of the elms and the poplars. The dusk was deep in the cedars. Quiet was complete.

When they paused, he asked her, "What would you exchange for this?" Taking his arm, she said "Nothing, nothing in the world."

When a check comes back marked "No account", maybe it means the man who wrote it.

Thousands Will Worship At Marian Congress

As preparations for the Marian Congress, to be held in Ottawa, June 18 to 22, advance the religious significance of the event becomes clearer.

Inquiries from all parts of the continent assure the attendance of many thousands of worshippers. At least eight cardinals including the Cardinal Legate, the Pope's personal representative, as well as three hundred bishops and archbishops and several thousand priests will participate.

James Charles Cardinal McGuigan, archbishop of Toronto, called attention to the spiritual note recently when he said: "The Marian Congress will be the greatest event in the history of our country. It will be a solemn act of worship to God, a great testimony of our belief in the Divinity of Christ. It will honor Mary because she is the Mother of God."

Worship is the dominant note of the program, details of which have just been finally settled, worship and prayer for peace to a war-weary world.

Three huge outdoor masses have been arranged to take place at the specially constructed repository in Lansdowne Park before which there will be seats for 75,000 worshippers. A mass at midnight on June 20 will provide an opportunity for thousands to receive Holy Communion and 500 priests will assist in distributing the Eucharist. The celebrant will be Monsignor Ildebando Antoniutti, apostolic delegate to Canada and Newfoundland.

The following day the principal mass will be offered for the fostering of vocations to the priesthood and the religious life with the celebrant being Archbishop John Thomas McNally of Halifax.

Largest of the three in attendance and impressiveness will be the Pontifical Mass on the last day, Sunday, June 22, celebrated by the Papal Legate with sermons by Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York and Bishop Augustin Bonnabel of Gap., France. It will be followed by the presentation by radio of an address by Pope Pius XII and will be the Congress' greatest offerng of prayer for peace.

As a framework to and supplementing these solemn acts of worship will be processions, pageants and dramas, all on the religious note and emphasizing the theme of the Congress, that is, devotion to Mary the mother of Jesus.

These will include the illuminated procession of the Blessed Sacrement by boat on the Rideau canal culminating the final benediction service on the night of Sunday, June 22; a procession of floats picturing events in the life of Mary and aspects of her personality; and the consecration of the assembly and of Canada in which two cabinet ministers, Justice Minister St. Laurent and Revenue Minister McCann will take part.

HOGG—BLACK

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Black, Mountain, when their youngest daughter, Frances Isabel, was united in marriage to Eric Francis, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hogg, of Peterborough.

Rev. W. J. V. Buchanan officiated and Mrs. Buchanan played the weddin music. The house was decorated with white streamers and ferns.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a street length dress of white spring wool with pastel colored wool applique on yoke. She wore a white halo head-dress and white accessories, and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses. She wore a strand of pearls, a gift of the groom.

Later, a reception to about 60 guests was held. The young couple left on a trip to Western points, the bride travelling in a grey suit with black accessories and wore a corsage of pink roses. On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hogg, Misses Doreen and Audrey Hogg, Mr. Bernard Hogg, Mr. and Mrs. George Killenbeck, Ray Harrison, Edward Close and Jack Emo, all of Peterborough, Mrs. J. M. Jarvis, North Bay; Mr. and Mrs. E. Spencer, Prescott; Mr. and Mrs. L. Malette, Ogdensburg, N. Y.

MIX PAINT WELL

In doing paint work at home, one reason why the job does not turn out as well as it might have done is that the paint has not been thoroughly mixed before starting. To realize the importance of thorough mixing of paint, the user has to keep in mind that he is working with a complex material consisting of oil, pigment, dryer and thinner. The proportions of each in any can of paint is a matter of careful technical measurement, so that the resulting paint can do its complete job of protection and beautification. Because of their different densities, all these materials tend to separate when left standing, and the mixture becomes good paint again only after they are completely blended together again before using.

Stirring is the most common method of recapturing the perfect blending of the materials, but it must be done thoroughly. A few quick stirs after the can is opened will not do.

Hadn't The Accent

The Highlander turned to the stranger in the pub and asked: "To what country do you belong?"

"To the greatest country in the world, I guess," answered the American.

"So dae I", answered the Scotsman "but ye dinna speak like a Soct."

The Telltale Kind

Storekeeper: "What kind of soap do you want, my boy?"

Henry: "Just any kind that's got lots of perfume in it so's Ma kin smell it and won't make me wash all over again."

Hopeless

Edith was bewailing to her mother her latest failure to elicit a proposal of marriage from her chosen swain.

"I declare," she moaned in tearful exasperation, "John is the most bashful man I have ever seen."

"Have you tried to encourage him?" her mother asked hopefully.

"Encourage him!" shouted Edith. "Why only last night I coaxed him over to the sofa and I said, "John, do you know that the length of a man's arm is just right to go around a woman's waist? And what do you think he did?"

"What any red-blooded man would do," replied mother: "he tried it."

"Oh, no," snapped the disappointed maiden. "He asked me if I could get him a piece of string so we could measure and see if it was so."

Youth Today

Remarking that it used to be thought nice to say of a child: "He is just like his father," or "She is just like her mother," and that parents were not flattered unless it was said, the April Monthly Letter of The Royal Bank of Canada declares: "Today's youths are not just like their parents."

After telling the progress made in material things, such as technological development and the growth of savings from $41 per person in 1901 to $296 this year, the article continues in part: "This means that life today is not the same as it was in the boyhood of men who are now at the top in business and industry and farming, and insofar as it is different we cannot expect young people to live the same lives their fathers did.

"The design which served so well for so many generations was shattered in 1914. It had, of course, been fading under the bright glare of the industrial revolution and the advance of technology, but the war finished it. Instead of dependence upon authority there grew up reliance upon individual instinct. Instead of trust in the wisdom of age there arose worship of the pushfulness of youth. Instead of quiet fireside gatherings there came car rides, movie shows, hustle, noise and mechanical unrest.

"The wars had another result. There were 60,000 lads brought up in the old tradition who did not return from the first war, and their absence allowed the new ways to grow that much faster; 38,000 did not come back from the second war. There might have been easier transitions for young people—easier, too, for adults who associate with them—if these tragic spaces had not been blasted in our ranks.

"It is not only individually that we have been affected by changing circumstances. The family has been subjected to violent shocks, and though it has shown amazing resistance there is no doubt that some values have been lost. How could it be otherwise? The early pattern of family life just could not stand unaltered through the rapid change in material culture. The new model may be better on the whole, but youth needs to remember that parents are tied by sentimental strings to the past, and may have difficulty in adapting themselves to the new ideas of their children.

"There are, too, changed standards of living. Much of the extra money in circulation during war years went to families who did not receive so much before, and they are eager to keep up the freer spending habits they have formed. Alongside these are many families which have less buying power than they had in 1939, because they lived on fixed incomes and feel the pinch of inflation and taxation. When you take a fixed income and deplete its buying power by 30 percent, that makes a big difference in the habits and outlook of families and individuals.

"In addition to environment and families, youth itself has changed. Youth is non-conformist: it will follow the most fantastic fancies without caring what the world thinks or says. Youth feels safe in stepping into the thick of emotions which bewilder their parents. Life becomes a thing of sudden revolts, with introspective intervals. No institution, church, educational or business, escapes criticism. Formalism and ritualism are treated with impatience; social conditions call forth conferences, inquiry and resolutions. Restless youth is critical of the past, and willing to suffer from experience. This is healthy, provided youth does not mistake mere movement for life, and mere speed for progress.

"When adolescence merges into young adulthood, old problems are intensified and new ones are added. While physically fit and psychologically ready for marriage and to begin fashioning his own life, the youth is likely to have difficulty in fitting his abilities into his living situation. The average age for marriage today is 28 for men and 25 for women. Entering into the cause of late marriage is the vexed question of delayed independence. This is not only a matter of obtaining jobs, but involves the raised standard of living which requires income at a higher level than was formerly needed. It is complicated by the fact that so many girls now earn good wages in their teens, and dislike marrying if it means having less to spend.

"Youth is travelling a wrong road when it makes pay and time off the criteria of the first job. Life deserves more of young people than a demand for easiness as their main objective. Before approaching someone for a job, they should have decided clearly in their minds that that job is the right one for the fullest development of their abilities and then they must convince the employer that they are the right persons for the job.

"Having won a place, they can not depend upon passage of time and "hard work" to bring raises and promotion. 'Mix intelligence with your energy,' they should be told. 'Activity isn't everything. The Mexican jumping bean is so active because its inside has been eaten away by a moth larva. If you wish to take the ceiling off your pay, keep in mind that nobody wants to know how hard you have worked, but what you have accomplished'.

"They must go on learning, too. Learning is more than reading a book a month; it is a continuous adventure, in which every day adds its experience, and every new acquaintance offers an opportunity to round out knowledge. It isn't enough to be given a place at the bottom of the ladder: one must be willing to keep climbing. The world won't make itself over to suit people clamouring at the foot of the ladder for elevators and escalators.

"Those who study intelligently, not only for knowledge but for understanding of what "makes men tick," are better prepared for opportunity, and opportunity is nothing apart from the ability to grasp it. There never were greater opportunities than in Canada today, but they still have to be worked for. They are competitive; in competition the training must be done ahead of the testing time, and there's no use in blaming others for unpreparedness."

Remarking that times have changed for parents, too, the article comments: "Compulsory school laws, regulation of child labour and deferment of youth's independence have increased the economic burden on wage-earning parents. A Census Monograph, using 1931 statistics, gives some figures which represent the cost of bringing up an average Canadian child through 18 years of dependence. According to this calculation the cost for each child in 1931 was $320 a year; at that same period the average year's pay of all persons on salary or wage was $1,111, so that the entire earnings for five years would be required to meet the cost of raising one child. In 1946 the cost had increased to $363 a year, and the average pay was $1,678 a year."

Education is extensively covered by the article, which goes on to say: "After education comes employment. A man out of work is troubled, multiply him by thousands and you have a mass that is willing to accept any panacea no matter how fantastic or dangerous.

"Employment in Canada, if it is to take in youth, must be full employment for all, because youth will be among the first sufferers of a slack period. To contemplate unemployment is to think not only of the actual condition, but also of the years between now and its occurrence. Unless youth has some certainty of profitable occupation young people will be lured away, year by year, to apparently greener fields.

"In an uncertain world it is natural that people should like to have as many immediate certainties as possible, and should avoid vague and wistful speculation. Young people, spurred by the divine dissatisfaction of youth which has been so potent in advancing mankind, are not going to be satisfied with castles promised them when Canada develops, or with haloes awaiting them in the future if they devote their lives and talents to building up the country. International boundaries mean less every year, as transportation and communication push them more and more into the realm of imaginary lines. Should a condition of dissatisfaction with things as they are become merged with hopelessness of improvement, youth cannot be blamed for packing its bags.

"There is no need for despondency. The same intelligent energy as was given to solution of war problems of production and utilization of manpower would be effective in meeting the peace-time need. Inertia is the greatest evil we have to contend with. Whatever is done must be done thoroughly: it's not efficient to cut a hole in the floor to let out the water from a leaking roof. If Canadians were roused, and went to work effectively to meet their problems—including that of youth—this country, in this century, could be made a place no Canadian, young or old, would wish to exchange, though offered a choice of all past ages and all presently great countries".

IMPORTANT POWER TEST

Road tests now being carried out by the Canadian Pacific Railway with diesel-electric locomotive 1501 if successfu may revolutionize rail motive power in the Dominion. In this layout (left), the engine is leaving the Farnham, Que., yards on its first test hauling 40 loaded box cars, with Engineer N. Roy (top right) at the throttle in the spotless cab, while Operator W. B. Patterson (bottom right) works at the chronograph table of the C.P.R.'s dynamometer car, only one of its type in North America. This car, designed by Canadian Pacific technicians, gives a complete picture of the performance of any locomotive through a complex system of dials and automatic recorders. Following exhaustive tests on the heavy-taffic Farnham division, 1501 will run on the level Chesterville subdivision of the Montreal-Toronto main line and on the curves and grades of the Laurentian division.

British Worker Gives Clothing Donation Ideas

A former member of the British Women's Voluntary Services, now resident in Ontario, has come forward with some excellent suggestions on the types of clothing which should be sent overseas to help clothe the victims of the recent floods in Britain. While a member of the W.V.S. in England, she helped to organize the distribution of clothing sent to them by the Canadian Red Cross Society, and she has provided the central organization in charge of the campaign for British Flood Relief with copies of the instructions which were carried out in making that distribution. In Britain, the clothing is divided into three categories for clothing, (a) for men and boys; (b) for women and girls; (c) for children under four years of age. The lists contain the following suggestions for garments which are found most useful by the needy people of Britain, and these are given as a guide to the people of Ontario in making their contributions of clothing to the fund;

Men and Boys: Suits, overcoats, raincoats, headwear, trousers, jackets, shorts for boys only, sweaters, shirts, underwear, nightwear, socks, shoes, scarves, gloves, handkerchiefs and ties.

Women and Girls: Coats, raincoats, headwear, jackets, light dresses, cotton dresses, sweaters, blouses, skirts, underwear, nightwear, shoes, scarves, stockings, gloves and handkerchiefs.

Children under four: Outdoor sets, headwear, dresses, suits, woollies, underwear, socks, sweaters, diapers, shoes, shawls, blankets, mitts and layettes.

It is also suggested that in thousands of Ontario homes there is clothing which has been outgrown by boys and girls, but which is still in excellent condition, and might be donated during the campaign. It is also pointed out that all clothing should be cleaned before being contributed, as it is desired to send articles that are of as good quality as possible, but which are also clean. All clothing should be first sorted out in the local receiving stations, and the further suggestion is made that local churches and school rooms might provide accommodation for the work of sorting and elimination of useless articles. Where clothing requires cleaning, it may be possible to enlist the co-operation of cleaning and pressing establishments in having this work done prior to packing.

So far as food is concerned, preference is expressed for staple foods, canned and packaged goods, particularly fruits and meats, and on no account should perishable foodstuffs be contributed.

Plans for collection are in the hands of the committees in each local municipality, which are making arrangments for the collection to be made from May 1 to 15.

SHIELD BABY EYES

Even when baby is old enough for sunbaths, the eyes should be given special protection, say the health authorities. An infant should be shielded from the direct rays of the sun until able to move about easily. Doctors suggest that the baby be placed with feet pointing away from the sun, so that eyebrows and upper lids shield the eyes. It is also a good idea to line the hood of a baby carriage with some dull, preferably dark, material.

GARDEN CHATS

By Mrs. Harry Allison

Hello Neighbours:

May I drop in for a few minutes and get warm? I was going to write something about the weather but I have exhausted that subject in previous chats with you. Now, as I write this, its a rather cold subject to discuss, so let us move on. Everything has been said about the weather anyway.

Last week we talked about shrubs. Have you done anything about them yet? I've got my eye on some wild pyramidal cedars. If only the man who owns them will let me have some, you will see cedars growing, (or dying), at our house befoe too long. Wish me luck.

You know there are few things that excel a perennial border in outdoor decoration. Properly planned it will produce a blaze of colour from Spring till Fall—that is if the weal ther man cooperates. The tulips, daffodils, and all those bulbous plants are up now and at the earliest opportunity will burst into bloom. I just can't recall what comes next but lilies, peonies, oriental poppies, perennial phlox, delphs, likmus and so on and so on, follow each other in rapid succession bringing joy to the heart of any gardener. These, with care, come year after year, without replanting. Unfortunately, however, they seem to end early in July and from then on till frost time, we must rely on annuals for colour.

If you are fortunate in having a hot-bed these can be started from seed any time now and transplanted into your border later when the time is right—that is when you have spaded around the perennials and the danger of frost is over. Now, I'm lazy and always considered that method looked like a lot of work. So for the past few years, when the time was right, I very carefully put a seed in a place all through the border between the other plants, with the hope that they would grow in the right places. My theory was good but for some peculiar reason it didn't work too well. Weeds, I've found seem to sprout faster than flowers and in a day or two I've had a nice crop of them. Well, I dare not hoe out the weeds because my precious flowers seeds were in there somewhere. So I waited. The weeds did well. The flowers either forgot to grow or when they did come though, I didn't recognize them and hoed them nearly all out. I'm sure the latter reason accounts for the fact we usually just have zinnias. I know zinnias as soon as they come through the ground.

However you choose to plant them be sure to do so and prevent that letdown feeling when the last perennial fades. There are so many beautiful annuals from which to choose I need not to mention any of them here. Just look over the gaily illustrated seed packets and you will go home with many more varieties than you intended buying.

So, when the time is ripe get out into your garden and plant flowers—either by your method or mine. Some of them won't grow anyway. Gardening is, perhaps, the finest nerve medicine and guaranteed to produce sleep; it will slim your waistline—unless it gives you an appetite like a horse, and besides it does something for your soul to work in the good earth with the cooperation of the Good God.

Sincerely.

Hyndman

Pallbearers were Lawrence Francis, Charles Pelton, Harold Beggs, Lloyd Grant.

Interment was in South Gower cemetery.

"...and please hurry Doctor!"

If you have ever faced an emergency, you know how important it is to get right-of-way for urgent calls. Remember the master rule "Do unto others as you would like them to do for you — and do it first."

The $3,500,000 being spent this year alone will provide more rural lines and mean fewer parties on each line.

FOR BEST RESULTS FROM YOUR TELEPHONE

1. Keep calls brief.
2. Space your calls.
3. Avoid "listening-in."
4. Give right-of-way to urgent calls.

One High School

Dealing with the location of the new school when erected, Mr. Stewart favored Highway 31 at a point approximately half way between Winchester and Morrisburg. Such a point would be approximately halfway between Chesterville and Iroquois. So far as the four urban centres are concerned, no situation, the speaker thought, could be fairer. This new school would have about fifteen acres of land, a forestry plot, grain plots, gardens, etc., and a sufficient number of students to guarantee full classes for all teachers employed. It would still give the academic courses to those students preparing for university and other professions; but in addition, it would give all of the practical courses, and in particular an agricultural course which would interest and hold the attention of the rural-minded student.

Mr. Stewart, by means of a map showed that no main route to the school need be more than 20 miles in length, and that there would be 12 of these main routes, plus as many auxiliary routes as might be necessary. He quite agreed that it would not be feasible to pick up every student at his own gate. It would be necessary for certain students to walk a few miles to get the conveyance; but were not healthy High School students able to do this, and since when had a sturdy nation been built on a system of making everything extremely easy for the young people? One large school was, in his opinion, the answer to equality of educational opportunity and of equality of cost to the ratepayers. One ratepayer suggested that the transportation problem might be a headache, and Mr. Stewart said he agreed that this would be the only headache; but if transportation could be carried on elsewhere, it certainly could be in Dundas County. Better equipment was being used and longer mileages kept open every year, and he thought this problem would become easier of solution in future years.

At the close of the address several members of school boards and members of councils were asked to comment, and a motion asking Mr. Stewart to try to arrange another meeting of High School trustee boards and members of Municipal Councils with a view to going into the problem more thoroughly and if agreeable to take the initial step toward organizing the County into one High School district, not with a view to erecting a new school immediately, but to get the organization set up and perhaps try out a transportation plan to the schools now operating.

A noticeable feature of the meeting was the manifest interest of the audience in all phases of the problem—a problem that is being faced and solved in many parts of the Province today—more uniformity of educational procedure in the administration of High Schools, a fairer spread of the cost, and fairer representation on the boards for rural areas, and equity of Secondary School opportunities for all the young folk of the area concerned.

A vote of thanks was tendered Messrs. Stewart and Young at the close of the meeting.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN

Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! There is a limit to the amount of fresh rhubarb you can use in pies and puddings. Yet if there is rhubarb growing in your garden you will not want any of it to go to waste. And no matter how surfeited your meals have been with rhubarb dishes recently there will be times next fall when you will welcome a rhubarb betty or ruhbarb jam with a piece of toast. We consider rhubarb easy to grow in our garden—if you buy it is cheap. It is also easy to put some "down" in jars without sugar to be enjoyed next winter. Meanwhile use your sugar wisely in the recipes given below.

RHUBARB UPSIDE DOWN CAKE

2 cups rhubarb, diced, 2 tsps. grated orange rind, 2 tbsps. melted butter, 1 cup white sugar, 1 cup shortening, ½ tsp. vanilla, 2 eggs well-beaten, 1¾ cups sifted pastry flour, ½ tsp. salt, 2½ tsps. baking powder, ½ cup milk.

Combine rhubarb, orange rind, butter and ¼ cup of white sugar; spread on bottom of greased 8 by 8 inch pan. Cream the shortening; add vanilla and remaining ¾ cup of the sugar—blend well and add well-beaten eggs. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with the milk. Pour on top of rhubarb mixture. Bake in a preheated electric oven at 350 degs. for 45 mins. Let stand in pan 5 mins. then invert. Serve warm with orange sauce. Serves 6 to 8.

RHUBARB PASTRIES

3 cups finely cut rhubarb, 2|3 cup white sugar, ¼ tsp. cinnamon, 1 tbsp. cornstarch, 2 cups flour, 2 tbsp. brown sugar, 1|3 tsp. salt, ½ cup shortening, 1 egg, ¼ cup sour cream, ¼ cup dry crumbs, 1 tbsp. rich milk.

Prepare rhubarb and mix with white sugar, cinnamon and cornstarch. Sift flour, brown sugar and salt; cut in shortening until mixture is like coarse oatmeal. Beat egg and mix with sour cream, then pour into flour mixture. Mix lightly and chill. Divide batter in two parts; roll the first half into a rectangle about ⅛ inch thick; lay on greased cake pan. Roll out second half of dough and place on top of fruit. Pinch edges together and prick top with a fork. Brush with the milk and bake in an electric oven at 425 degs. for 15 mins., then reduce heat to 350 degs. and bake 25 mins. Cut in squares and serve slightly warm.

CANNED RHUBARB

Select young tender stalks. Wash and trim, but do not remove skin. Cut into ½ to ¾ in. lengths.

Method 1—Pack rhubarb in sterile jars. Force cold water into every corner; seal with hot ring and tops. Wrap in newspaper and store in cool place.

Method 2—Add enough water in large kettle to prevent burning—about one cup. Cook until soft using Low heat as soon as it begins to steam. Add sugar to taste (about 1 cup of sugar to 1 quart of raw fruit). Fill the sterilized jars. Seal tightly. An added precaution is to process jars in electric oven preheated to 275 degs.

RHUBARB-ONION RELISH

2 quarts rhubarb, 2 quarts cooking onions, 6 cups vinegar, 4 cups brown sugar, 4 cups dark corn syrup, 2 tsps. cinnamon, 2 tsps. allspice, 2 tsps. salt, 2 tsps. pepper, 2 tsps cloves.

Wash rhubarb and cut into small pieces and measure. Chop onions and measure. Put all ingredients into large preserving kettle, bring to a boil stirring occasionally. Boil 1½ hours. Pour into sterilized jars and seal. Makes 2 quarts and 1 pint.

THIS WEEK'S PLEASURES

—Cooked dandelion greens we selected from a big basket of clean young leaves and served with a sprinkling of vinegar and melted butter.

—Licking off the spoon after we made a creamy lemon pie filling.

—The look of the storage closet after we had folded away all the clean woollens and tucked moth balls among them.

—The pleasure gained by remembering to soak all the preparation dishes before we sat down to each meal.

—The balanced budget showing that meals for two averaged 36 cents each without estimating the eggs and milk from the farm.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. J. R. asks: Recipe for Rhubarb and Pineapple Conserve.

1 large pineapple, 4 cups diced rhubarb, 5 cups sugar, 2 cups light corn syrup, 2 oranges, juice pulp and grated rind, 1 cup raisins, 1 cup walnuts, chopped.

Cut edible portion of pineapple into small pieces and chop fine. Add diced rhubarb, sugar, light corn syrup, orange rind, juice and pulp. Stir the ingredients thoroughly and let stand overnight. In the morning add the raisins and cook until thick. Add nuts and cook five minutes longer.

Miss M. T. asks: Recipe for Rhubarb Jam.

4 cups rhubarb, ½ cup sugar, to 1 cup cooked fruit, 2 cups pineapple, 1 cup water.

Cook water and fruit together until soft. Measure cooked fruit. Add sugar. Boil to the jellying point then bottle and seal with paraffin.

Farmers here report that the Daylight Saving Time is a set back to food production and their advancement. The councils of nearby villages and cities have adopted it despite the fact that Mrs. Ethelwyn Hobbes, of the CBC spoke by radio and said that there were thirty million under-nourished children in Europe in need of food, and Sir John Boyd Orr, director General of the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization also spoke from Washington some time ago warning, "There is no alternative to a third world war if governments and people fail to co-operate in a food plan for the benefit of all peoples".

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our friends and neighbours for cards of sympathy, acts of kindness and helping hands, on the death of our brother, William McNamara; also to thank Rev. Mr. Wright and Ladies of the Choir, and Rev. Francis Foley of Cornwall.

John McNamara, Finch.

IN MEMORIAM

YOUNG—In loving memory of Michael Young who passed away May 3rd, 1945.
I often sit and think of you,
The things you used to say and do.
And wonder why you had to die
Without a chance to say goodbye.
