Cam Thompson Shows Pair of Ring Horses At Toronto Winter Fair

Facing the stiffest of competition, Campbell Thompson of town is competing at the Royal Winter Fair, Toronto, this week, with his horses Jaffa and Love Call entered in several classes. To date Love Call has placed fourth in the Standard Bred class, and was judged 5th in the Roadster class. Tonight the same horse will enter the $1500 roadster stake, and coming up is the bike class in which a racing sulky is used. Both horses will take part in the roadster team class under 15.2 hands.

Making his first appearance at the winter fair, Mr. Thompson told The Record this morning the competition was extremely keen with the best horses and showmen of the continent in the ring. Even though he may not come away with a great deal of the prize money he says the education gained from observing the opposition is a great asset, and he is already making plans to enter next year's show. He is the only exhibitor from this district.

Mr. Thompson arrived back in town this morning, being called home by the death of his mother, Mrs. Jas. Thompson, of Morewood. In his absence his horses will be handled by John Campbell of Georgetown. James McAvoy accompanied Mr. Thompson to the fair.

Others from the district attending the fair are Thos. McCadden, W. O. Dixon, Thos. Hamilton; Thos. Reveler of Morewood, and Leonard McEwan of Russell.

Entries at the fair were exceptionally heavy this year, and accommodation for exhibitors and animals has been at a premium. In the horse section alone, over 200 entries had to be turned away, Mr. Thompson said.

Farm Home Beautification Discussed by Radio Forum

Each week another Forum starts in our county. If present plans materialize there should soon be at least 10. Laughlin Ridge started last Monday with an attendance of 23.

S. S. No. 10 met at the home of Angus Smith with John Sutherland as convenor. Eleven members were present. It was collection night and $5.00 was sent to the Provincial Secretary.

Topic under discussion was "Obstacles to Farm Home Improvements." Several reasons were discussed such as, lack of desire for an attractive home, lack of imagination, lack of know-how, lack of income and just plain laziness, but perhaps the major reason is our peculiar type of taxation. If a farmer spends his money on sports and refreshments—leaving his farm home run down and without improvements it's all right. But another farmer saves his money—paints his house, builds a porch, installs hydro and running water and up go his taxes. In other words we are penalized for making improvements.

Next Monday is review night and S. S. No. 10 takes a holiday. On November 25, the forum meets at Oscar Foster's with Angus Smith, convenor. Any farmer and his wife are welcome. Until rationing is over bring your own sandwiches.—It is not collection night.

Mystery of the Missing Heifers Deepens With Discovery of Hide and Skull

Somebody's larder is bulging with young beef and one of two farmers is short a young heifer—whichever is the loser will probably take the hide—for that's all the thief left when he slaughtered and dressed a heifer among a large herd pasturing on the property of Weldon Beckstead, about two miles south of the old McMartin sawmill.

The animal had been killed by a shotgun at close range as indicated by a neat hole drilled in the skull the butchers left behind.

When farmers gathered yesterday to sort out their stock that had been grazing for the past summer, three farmers were each missing one heifer. A search revealed the hide of one heifer and indications the beast had been killed, dressed and carted away about two weeks ago. The farmers missing stock were O. Foster, Bernice Woods and Wendall Harper. Since then Mr. Foster's animal has turned up. So it looks like one of the latter, who are neighbours near Dunbar, will be the unlucky one if the mystery is settled.

P.S.—The case of the missing heifer deepens. At noon today The Record was informed the heifer located was not Mr. Foster's, so the three may have to draw lots for the hide.

Memorial Service Impressive Ceremony Sunday Afternoon

Under auspices of Chesterville Branch 434 of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., Chesterville and district observed Remembrance Day at a most impressive Memorial Service in the Community Hall Sunday afternoon attended by more than 300 veterans and other citizens. The ceremony concluded with the laying of wreaths on the "Broken Column" monument outside the Community Hall by representatives of the Legion, Village Council, Women's Institute and Rotary Club, and the placing of poppies by the veterans as they marched past in single file.

The parade of veterans, under Sergeant-at-Arms Charles T. Hart, formed up at Trinity United Church in two platoons, one of veterans in uniform and the other of veterans in civvies, and marched to the Hall, in a downpour of rain. Boy Scouts of the 1st Chesterville Troop assisted as ushers and giving out programmes.

Rev. W. E. Wright, Protestant chaplain of the Branch, read the opening sentences and offered the prayer of Thanksgiving following the singing of the hymn "Onward Christian Soldiers". Mrs. P. J. Gilroy was at the piano and the singing was lead by a composite choir from the various churches.

The Psalm was read by Flying Officer Harold Williamson, and the lesson by Acting-Reeve P. S. Boyd. After the hymn, "O God, Our Help in Ages Past", Rev. E. A. Martineau of Morewood United Church, offered the prayer for the fallen, Last Post and Reveille were sounded by Percy Smith, and Mr. Martineau voiced the prayer for the bereaved.

"Lest We Forget" was sung by the assembly, and Rev. W. E. Wright delivered his Remembrance Day message which he followed with the prayer of dedication. The closing hymn was "For Ever With the Lord". Rev. Mr. Martineau pronounced the blessing, and the National Anthem concluded the service in the hall.

The veterans filed from the hall and formed upon markers in two platoons facing the monument where wreaths were placed by Lyle E. Alford, president of the Chesterville Legion Branch. Acting-Reeve P. S. Boyd, for the municipality, Mrs. Geo. G. Merklev, for the Women's Institute, and H. L. Hough for the Rotary Club of Chesterville. Following a minute's silence the veterans went past the monument in single file, depositing their poppies as they passed.

The "Broken Column", with its wreaths and poppies, was illuminated over Remembrance Day.

The programme was in charge of a committee headed by L. H. Doering as chairman. J. Frank Casselman, George Crawford, Hubert McCloskey and Staley Chambers.

Emergency Reserve Nurses To Assist Chest Clinic

Meeting in the Public Library last night, members of the Home Nursing and Emergency Reserve Nurses Class agreed to take on the responsibility of organizing and conducting the mass chest clinic to be held in Chesterville next spring when it is hoped every person in the village and district will co-operate in the drive to stamp out tuberculosis.

Mrs. Gordon A. Cummings was named chairman of the organization, and three vice-chairmen will be appointed to supervise publicity, canvassing and the clerical work on the days of the clinic.

The task will entail a great deal of work as the district will include all the local districts and the Morewood district. Dr. Cragg, of the St. Lawrence Sanatorium, will be in charge of the mass chest survey for the entire district and will meet the local organization to explain details of the clinic to be held in the spring.

Legion's First Annual Poppy Day Nets About $150 Despite Rain

The first Poppy Day held by Chesterville's young Branch of the Canadian Legion was very successful on Saturday, and it is expected over $150 will be realized to start off the branch's relief fund to be used soley for assistance to veterans or their families who may find themselves in distress through illness or other cause.

Mrs. L. H. Doering very ably headed the committee of veterans' wives who handled the campaign from headquarters in the Post Office building loaned by W. N. Fulton, Public and High School girls canvassed the homes, business places and streets from morning until evening.

About a dozen wreaths were sold to business places in the village, and the response through dressing of windows by eight stores was very heartening to those responsible for the Poppy Day campaign.

LEGION AGAIN POINTS THE WAY

As our Veterans returned home from victorious battlefields, they were told time and again in speeches of welcome that Canada looked to them for a lead in building a greater Dominion—that their experience and education earned in travel and training should be put to practical use in peace. To a great many individuals that sounded like great stuff, but after the frustration of post war days were experienced the hero-talk was likened to the "guff" they had heard in the services so many times.

But where organization was developed, such as provided by the Canadian Legion, leadership has been given and success achieved. Last fall a group of local veterans planned organization of a branch of the Legion in Chesterville, and started out by planning and putting across Chesterville's first Memorial Day service with the Community Hall packed to the doors. Last Spring the Legion Branch became a reality, and the group took up the challenge to reconstruct the covered skating rink. About $3.000 was collected and the Legion Memorial Rink is now about ready for cold weather and ice to again provide skating and hockey.

On this Remembrance Day just passed, the Memorial Service was organized by Chesterville Branch 434 of the Legion, and a very fitting climax was provided with the ceremony of laying the wreaths on the temporary memorial erected outside the Community Hall — "broken column" constructed by one of the Legionnaires.

We have talked of a memorial to our war dead ever since the first Great War but have never been able to get anywhere, even though some money was subscribed. But the simple impressive memorial provided by the Legionnaires on Sunday opened our eyes to what might be accomplished if we have the will to follow this lead provided.

NEEDLESS INJURIES FROM HALLOWE'EN

Each Hallowe'en brings its toll of injuries resulting from efforts of "practical jokers" who retain the impression that all's fair on the 31st of October. After experiencing a very quiet Hallowe'en in Chesterville—thanks to the alertness of our police—we were a bit shocked to read in our Exchanges of vandalism in neighbouring towns.

In Winchester a lady was badly injured when she failed to notice her verandah steps had been carried away during the night, and it may be weeks before her injured back is well once again. This is only one instance of injury resulting from such misplaced humour. One city daily says such rowdies require a sound strapping. But the problem of picking out the culprits from the crowds of innocent merrymakers presents a problem.

From the experiences of the past two years in Chesterville, it would seem that the best way to retain order on Hallowe'en is to prevent rowdism by means of an adequate police force—preventing before a cure is required.

The hunting season opened at the week-end, and already the excuses—pardon us, we meant to say explanations,—are being expounded.

The middle of November, with Christmas a few short weeks away, and we hear still that strawberries are in bloom.

Our citizens have shown their generosity toward worthwhile endeavors by their support of Scout Apple Day a week ago last Saturday and Poppy Day last week.

More Work or More Leisure?

By R. J. Deachman

Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, Chancellor of the University of Chicago, has been telling us lately that hours of work will soon be sharply reduced, we are drifting into the age of leisure. What will happen then? Rumor based on experience, suggests that Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do. So in the days to come we shall sin more and work less, a rather unhappy portent for the future of mankind.

There is no need for alarm. This is not a program for tomorrow or the day after. In the United States the government has called a conference on productivity, it will be needed. Production lags in the land of greatest capacity. In Great Britain a Labor Government asks for more production per man-hour. In Russia they have extended the hours of labour—there will be no shirking there.

The world is desperately poor—even now it may be getting poorer. It is too early to turn from work, to go in search of leisure. The chances are we would be bored stiff if we found what we are seeking. Mankind is not so lazy as some seem to think.

Assume, for a moment, that this almost work-less age arrived to-morrow and that we have a four-hour day—from 8 a.m. to 12 noon with fifteen minutes off at 10.30 for a spot of coffee. How will the editor get his paper out, will it be necessary for him to employ two shifts? Ah, perhaps a machine will write his editorials and bring in the news. Then what of the Minister of the Gospel who delivers two sermons on Sunday and attends to the rest of his ministerial duties during the week? "Elementary, my dear Watson." This will be worked by two shifts—two pay rolls to meet—that will be hard on the congregation—if there is one left by that time.

What about the farmer? He must never be locked out of our planning schemes. Cows must be milked, calves fed, the orchard sprayed, the eggs gathered, the incubator regulated and the children put to bed. There are some things which can't be done on a four-hour day on the farm but here perhaps the wife will work—she works now, heaven knows, but the government will pay her then. I knew I could fix the farm problem. Can the farmer pay for two shifts, each working the four hours. Yes—if the payment is made to his wife.

Vision two nations side by side. The conditions in both are the same except that in one they work four hours a day, in the other they work eight hours. What will happen? I am here assuming that all other things will be equal save that in one there is a will to work and in the other a lust for leisure.

In which land will there be the greatest happiness. Is there anything from past history which tells us that greatness grows from leisure. Is there not more joy in work and accomplishment than in endless idleness. The real purport of the message of Dr. Hutchins is that mankind needs a new crusade—some unselfish purpose into which the life of humanity can be poured. When it comes we shall have work work, less leisure but there will be exultation in the task, life will be more worth living than it has ever been before.

PRICE SKYLINES ARE CHANGING OVERNIGHT

New York's famous skyline that has been the pride of the United States for years practically stays the same. The Statue of Liberty and sky scrapers, and all the shining towers of Manhattan still loom above the sidewalks, but her price skylines are changing overnight, and no one knows where the next peak will appear.

Before the 'mikes' were cold after President Truman's famous 'ceilings off' speech, prices began to rise and in less than a week many had more than doubled, and the end is not yet.

In Miami steak was $1 a pound, chopped steak 85c, while chops at Pittsburg were $1.05 lb. In Chicago, butchers chalked up $1 a pound for spare ribs. Some butchers—whose conscience pricked them a bit—promised a price roll back within a month.

In Philadelphia beef roast sold at 80c a lb. In Nebraska (the cattle country) housewives urged a meat boycott and carried banners in parade urging that meat prices be forced down.

The New York Times said "following the end of meat control, prices went skyward, in some cases even higher than former black market prices."

The Department of Markets reported that "after a city-wide check, that most retail prices were 50 percent or more above the ceilings eliminated a week ago. Lamb appeared the best buy with average prices 25 percent above former price ceilings. Beef steak remained at $1 a lb. The old ceiling had been 64c. Butchers all over were reporting that women were walking empty-handed out of shops in protest against high prices."

Such prices as $1.05 a pound for steaks were not uncommon for meat hungry people to pay while veal chops sold at $1.30 a lb., cutlets at $1.10 a lb. and calves liver at $1.10 a lb.

A mid-town delicatessen store offered bacon at $1.19 a lb., the ceiling eight days earlier had been 42c.

Sky scrapers of New York make an interesting and beautiful picture against the sky but sky high prices aren't quite so easy on the eyes. . . or the pocket book.

THERE'S MONEY IN BUTTERFLIES

There are all sorts of ways of earning a living, but few people think of butterfly farming. In the BBC's Overseas Service recently, L. Hugh Newman talked about his butterfly farm in England. He breeds butterflies and caterpillars for collectors, biology teachers and scientific research institutes. There is quite a large and steady demand. His smooth skinned caterpillars are bred especially for cancer research, and thousands of common Cabbage Whites are regularly taken by manufacturers of insect sprays and washes who want to test their new products on them. The rarer specimens are disposed of in special auction sales every month, and sometimes fetch high prices, as much as £110 for a pair. Each year there are "fashions" in collecting certain species of butterfly. The more delicate kinds of butterfly are bred in large greenhouses and given special food. The more common kinds are produced out-of-doors on trees covered by enormous envelopes of mosquito netting. What seems to mark out the job as a good one, however, is that every now and then wealthy collectors commission Newman to travel or cruise far afield in search of rare specimens for their private collections.

The small son of the house was doing his homework, and his parents were sitting by the fire.

"What's a fiancee, dad?" asked the youngster presently.

"A woman who is engaged to be married," replied his father.

"And what is a fiasco?" asked the boy next.

"Oh, that's the fellow who's going to marry her."

Ability and Necessity dwell near each other.

Today's Challenge Gives More Opportunity Says Rotary Speaker

Bringing a Remembrance Day message, Arthur C. Morton, Montreal Rotarian, who recently retired as managing director of The Montreal Daily Herald, urged members and guests of the Rotary Club to be fair with themselves first if they hoped to bring light into a chaotic world as he spoke Monday evening on "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow."

Following the sing-song, led by O. L. King, a minute's silence was observed before the business session. Guests present were Reginald McCloskey, George Laroux, Dr. H. G. Barton and G. C. Lacey. Lewis David introduced the speaker and Fred M. Cass expressed the thanks of the club.

Opening his address, the speaker asked:

"What right have we to celebrate that sacred hour in which out from our pain and suffering we fashioned a hope for mankind and vowed to it our soul's allegiance? And yet this I know well—that despite our failures and our present controversaries in these still dark days, there are in tens of thousands of hearts memories that will not be denied. It is love that prompts those who keep this day to go back across the years to look again into the eyes of those who left in all the valour of their young manhood and came not home again.

"What do all these memories bring us?" asked Mr. Morton. The answer must be a practical one, and I think chiefly it tells us that we cannot live unto ourselves. Each is affected by things in distant countries. We cannot settle this by ignoring them. As Rotarians and individuals in society we have responsibilities of mutual interdependence, and if we shrug them off there will be consequences.

Rotary is applied Christianity, said the speaker, as he stated sincere Rotarians today, through daily business, social and civil contracts are endeavouring to reconcile the conflict between the desire to help one's self and the obligation to help others—to live Rotary's motto: He profits most who serves the best. The axis countries suppressed Rotary because their leaders, on their own admission and accord neither loved God nor their neighbours.

Rotary and the United Nations are the only non-ecclesiastical, non-dogmatic international organizations today as far as I know, declared Mr. Morton, so we have an ideal set-up in Rotary for furthering the greatest need in the world today—understanding and good will between nations and peoples.

"What's the use?" is asked by those who see today no pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, for today there is no rainbow. To you who ask this question there is no answer. You might as well quit and have it over with for every man must quit with his hands. But, if you're a man who believes in himself there's more use than ever in this tired old world today because the challenge is greater than it has ever been before. We are not in need of the respect of the world so much as we are in need of respect for ourselves. They who are driven by impulses from within are the moulders of destiny. Only the weak in spirit can ask themselves—what's the use?

Certainly we cannot make the United Nations behave, no, but we can behave ourselves—we can be fair in our thoughts and acts one with another. Who can ask for greater use than comes with the soul satisfaction of work well done—or, if not well done, at least done the best we can? Only the weak in spirit can ever ask themselves the question "What's the use?"

Honoured by Dunbar Friends On Leaving for Morrisburg

About sixty friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Bernice Barkley, Elma, recently to honour his mother, Mrs. Mary Barkley and sister, Mrs. Maude Barkley before their departure from the community.

The evening was spent in music, games and visiting. An address was read and the honoured guests were presented with electric table lamps and kitchen utensils.

Following is the address:

Beckstead, Ont.

Dear Maude and Mrs. Barkley:

We, your friends and neighbours, have learned with keen regret that you are leaving our community to make your home in another. We know that we are losing two of our most highly respected citizens but what is our loss is another's gain.

You have always given a helping hand in all our community affairs and have worked faithfully in our Red Cross Society. Your home has always been a place of welcome. We have gathered here this evening to bid you a fond farewell and to wish you much happiness in years ahead.

We ask you to accept these gifts as a token of our esteem and as you go to your new home, may they carry our best wishes.

Signed on behalf of all.

Mrs. F. A. Beckstead, Mrs. Hyndman McMillan and Mrs. Burton Beckstead.

They have since moved to Morrisburg where Mrs. Maude Barkley has purchased a house on Gravel street.

DUNBAR SOCIETIES HONOUR MRS. MAUDE BARKLEY

The members of the Missionary Society of St. Luke's Lutheran church, Dunbar, took advantage of a quilting bee recently held to honour one of their members with an address and presentation on the occasion of her changing her residence from Dunbar to Morrisburg, when she was presented with an electric iron and hot plate. Following is the address:

Dunbar, Ont.

Mrs. Maude Barkley,

Dear fellow worker—It was with the keenest regret that we learned of your impending departure from our midst in order that you might take up residence at Morrisburg. We all wish you much happiness in your new home and please be assured that to that end our prayers will surely follow you.

We recognize that your removal is a distinct loss to our society and our church. Your cheery nature will be greatly missed. Your willingness to help at all times was very much appreciated in the years gone by. However, our loss will be gain in Morrisburg and we do hope that you will visit us often in the days to come.

As a small token of our high regard for you we ask you to accept this gift from all of us, and in using it we trust that your thoughts will wander often to your old friends in St. Luke's Church, Dunbar.

Signed on behalf of the Ladies Aid of St. Luke's Lutheran church.

Mrs. Arthur Barkley, Church Pres.

Fish and Wildlife Poster Contest

Boys and girls in grades 7 and 8 of Ontario Public Schools are greatly excited over the marvellous prizes being offered by the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, Fish and Wildlife Division, who are having a poster contest. Details of this contest are being forwarded to all teachers by the inspectors, and a good many students are already gathering ideas so that they may win the $100.00 first prize.

Provincial authorities urge that we should stress the conservation of fish and wildlife. Shorter working hours leave more time for enjoyment; and a steadily increasing proportion of this time is being spent in the woods. Many of those who spend their leisure in the forest know the wise conservation measures which have been made law, but too many are "trigger-happy" or "game hogs", and ignore these laws. By so doing, they are cheating the good sportsman, their neighbours, and their children, as well as the businessmen of the neighborhood who might profit from the tourist traffic. Tourists don't return to areas where there is no fish or game, so we should conserve game for them; but it is even more important for us to have good sport for curselves close at hand, and we can do this by cooperating in the conservation of our fish and wildlife.

The posters should carry a definite message to the sportsman or traveller. Probably the Ontario Government will be issuing new posters next year based on ideas received from the contestants, so all posters submitted become Government property, and proud indeed will be the lad or lass who sees his poster on some portage when he goes fishing or hunting.

Ideas for slogans and pictures may be developed by studying the game laws, newspapers and magazines, or talking with the fish and wildlife overseers, (formerly called game wardens). The overseer himself might be the subject of a poster, for he is the best friend of the wild creatures, and everyone should help him in his noble work. Birds, animals and sporting scenes would be suitable illustrations. A movie show on the subject might even be arranged through the National Film Board, Ottawa, Ontario or the District Forester, Kemptville, Ontario.

Posters must be submitted by November 29th so all contestants have to work quickly. The winning poster should carry a vital message, possibly in the form of a slogan, arrest attention and be legible at some distance.

EARLY GUNS WERE POOR

THE Canadian hunter of 1946 carries a dependable, straight-shooting gun. Very different was the flint-lock still in wide use a century ago. It's maximum range was 150 yards. It was convenient to use, uncertain enough in good weather, worse in bad.

Our great grandfather used a flint-lock, such as those on display in the Royal Ontario Museum. In order to use his gun, he had to cast his bullets, round pellets of lead and test the black powder which was very variable in quality. To load his weapon, he measured out a quantity of powder, poured it down the barrel and over this tamped in a piece of wadding. The lead ball was dropped in, and was held in place by another piece of wadding. Finally a little powder was sprinkled on the firing pan. On pulling the trigger, a spark formed by the impact of flint on steel, ignited the trail of powder which in turn set off the powder inside. Its explosion propelled the lead shot. Much of the power was lost, since the shot fitted the bore loosely and the flintlock had no rifling.

Special selections included duets by Miss Norma McKercher and Miss Wilda Barkley, "Wonderful, Wonderful Jesus", and "I Have Been Born Again", by Mrs. Ray Helmer and Mrs. Arthur Summers, also a solo by Mrs. J. L. Belway.

STORING POTATOES NOW IS ADVOCATED

Consumers who wish to make sure of their potato supply for the coming winter and spring months may now secure their requirements with confidence that they will retain their favourable eating qualities under suitable storage conditions, says R. E. Goodin, Potato Fieldman for the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Although movement from farms to consumers is very active, says Mr. Goodin, many potato growers an anxious to dispose of their crops before colder weather prevails, owing to lack of farm storage. With the exceptionally fine fall weather of recent weeks, some consumers have delayed their purchases, but it is expected demands will develop further within the next few weeks.

Grades for Ontario potatoes are included in the Farm Products Grades and Sales Act, which requires that each bag be identified with the name and address of the packer, net weight of contents, the words "table potatoes" and the proper designation of the grade. Further, with the licensing of potato truckers now under way, all potatoes must be properly graded and each bag tagged before being accepted by the trucker or buyer. Requests for official inspection, or any complaints with regard to non-compliance should be referred to the local Fruit and Vegetable Inspector in each locality, or direct to the Department of Agriculture, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

RUNAWAY HORSES
Windsor Star

Those who prate of the "good old days" are wont to point out that a horse would take you home of its own accord, something an automobile can never do. True enough, but on the other hand, a motor car seldom runs away.

Anyone who can remember the horse-and-buggy days recalls the occasional runaways with something akin to horror. There was a thrill to them, but they were terrifyingly dangerous. A panic-stricken horse can become an agency of dire destruction.

Perhaps automobiles are superior in many ways, but at least they never shy at a piece of paper blowing about, take the bit in their teeth and set off down the street at break-neck speed, out of all human control.

SNORING
Snoring and breathing through the mouth are serious matters not always given the special attention they deserve. For instance, doctors know that mouth breathing, in children, can lead to pronounced change in actual facial structure.

Snoring indicates failure of the nasal passages to perform their proper functions and is common among those suffering from some form of blockage of the nose.

Medical advice should be sought for the chronic mouth-breather and where there is a tendency, particularly in cold weather, for a child to develop nasal colds with persisent discharge, the family physician should be consulted at once.

COMING OUR WAY

While many of our feathered friends have taken themselves south with the approach of chilly weather, that does not mean that the birds have all gone. To many a bird Ontario is practically tropical. During late autumn and winter we may observe birds which we cannot see at any other season of the year, ornithologists of the Royal Ontario Museum declare.

Among these birds are the familiar ones such as the slaty grey junco, sometimes called the black snowbird. You'll know him at once by the white feather at either side of his tail. In company with tree sparrows, also down for the winter, the juncoes feast on weed seeds that remain above the snow level. Snow bunting too whirl up from fields of weed seeds like a flock of snowflakes blown by the wind.

The Bohemian waxwing is a jaunty fellow in grey and brown and yellow, with blobs of red on each wing, like drops of sealing wax. The scarlet berries of the mountain ash are his favorite snack. He is a little smaller than a robin, as are the Pine Grosbeaks and the Evening Grosbeaks, also winter guests. The Pine Grosbeak is rosy red in colour, and you'll see him searching out the seeds of the ash tree. The Evening Grosbeak is a dashing fellow in canary colours. He prefers the seeds of the Manitoba maple or box elder.

The Northern Shrike, with the black mask over his eyes, may be a desperado, but he's not all bad. Mice form the greater part of his food. He hangs them on a thorn or barbed wire fence until his lunch hour comes, accounting for his name the "butcher bird."

Royal Commission Studying Milk Question Opens Sittings Monday

The Hon. Mr. Justice Dalton Wells, Commissioner appointed to enquire into the production and distribution of milk in the Province of Ontario, stated today that the Commission would commence its sittings on the 18th of November, next. The Commissioner proposes to sit first in the City of Toronto and to deal first with the history of the relevant legislation and control of milk and milk products and the operation of the Milk Control Board. Representations from interested parties in the Toronto area will not be heard at these preliminary sittings, but a further opportunity will be given at a later date after the time for filing representations has expired. A formal announcement, which will be published throughout the Province, will call for briefs to be submitted to the Secretary of the Royal Commission at Osgoode Hall by the 21st November.

The Commissioner plans to sit in various Ontario centres selected with a view to giving the fullest consideration to any special local conditions. Tentatively, the plan is to sit in Hamilton, London, Windsor, North Bay, Port Arthur or Fort William, Ottawa and Belleville. The final public hearings will be held in Toronto. This itinerary has not been finally settled and will, of course, depend to some extent on the briefs which are submitted.

The Commissioner emphasized that the enquiry had been authorized to conduct the fullest and most complete investigation in this matter of great public concern and hoped that all interested parties would take full advantage of the invitation to submit representations on relevant facts to the Commission.

NEW MACHINE FOR SPRAYING ORCHARDS

If experiments now being conducted in the Okanagan Valley in British Columbia prove successful, air blast utilization by a simple, light and economic machine may be the answer as to what future methods of spraying orchards and fields may be. A sprayer-duster of this type has been brought into the Okanagan Valley by the Division of Entomology, Science Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture, writes Dr. James Marshall, of the Division at the Summerland Laboratory, and is being operated at Summerland, Penticton and Kelowna. It is still in the experimental stage and consequently has undergone a number of adjustments and alterations.

Even now it is not suitable for the use of the commercial orchardist. It require a change in spraying procedure quite apart from the fact that it operates with entirely new types of spray concentrates. Nevertheless it is less expensive, much faster, and more easily operated than a high pressure machine. At the same time, it indicates that the new type of spraying and dusting equipment will be light and moderately priced and probably operated by one or two men at a speed five to twenty times that of conventional two-gun high pressure equipment.

The future machine may utilize the air-blast principle, whereby fairly concentrated solutions or dusts, or perhaps both together are pumped or injected at little or no pressure into a powerful current of air.

FROM BLOSSOM TO FRUIT—Georgie Palmeter of Kentville, N.S. queen of the 1946 Nova Scotia Apple Blossom Festival, holds a basketful of luscious Nova Scotia apples now being harvested and packed. The inset shows Miss Palmeter in her robes as queen of the festival during blossom time last spring. Lower picture shows apples passing down assembly line in Nova Scotia Apple Marketing Board's new cold storage warehouse near Kentville, where they are sorted for size and quality and then wrapped and packed in boxes for the domestic market. Information for Hunters

It is getting close to the time of year when the hunters are getting ready to go on their annual hunting trips to different parts of our wonderful north woods. A few of the ways in which you may cooperate with the Fish and Wildlife enforcement officers of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests are listed below:

(1)—Know your Game Laws and observe them .

(2)—Help prevent abuse of these Laws by others.

(3)—Hunt only during authorized seasons.

(4)—Keep within your bag limits.

(5)—Follow and recover wounded game, don't leave them to suffer, die and waste.

(6)—Help prevent Forest Fires as this ruins the homes of our wildlife.

(7)—Keep the safety-catch on your gun at all times when the gun is being carried.

(8)—Be sure of your target before you fire—Human life is precious—Do not shoot until you are sure.

(9)—Be sure the tag attached to your license is tied to your game and is properly filled in when you are transporting your game. It saves delay when you are stopped by an officer.

(10)—Be sure your gun is unloaded while you are carrying it in a motor car. If shells are left in the magazine, the gun is deemed to be loaded within the meaning of the Act, and this is a violation.

(11)—Do not allow the flesh of any bird, animal or fish suitable for food to be spoiled or destroyed as this is against the law.

(12) No person shall use or be accompanied by a dog commonly known as a police dog or any cross-breed thereof while hunting deer or moose.

(13)—It is unlawful for any person to engage in the business of cold storage of game except under the authority of a license. The fee for this license is in cities $5.00 and in all other municipalities $2.00.

(14) It is unlawful to use a rifle for shooting ducks, geese, rails, coots or other Migratory Birds but a rifle may be used for shooting partridge during the open season.

(15)—When an officer stops and wants to examine your car, assist him in his effort, as he is merely doing his duty and trying to protect your rights as a sportsman from parties who have no respect for our wildlife.

(16)—And remember also that a license is not transferable and no person shall buy, sell, exchange or in any way become a party to the transfer of any license or shipping coupon, or in any way use or attempt to use a license or coupon issued to any other person.

Something About Pearls and Fish Scales

Amelia MacMillan Lambkin

It is claimed that most people, men as well as women admire pearls. Much has been written about them of late and I would like to add some information which I imagine many readers of The Record will find interesting.

Three doors from my cousin's office on the avenue here in Brooklyn, N.Y., there is a work-room where thirty to forty women are employed. These women (mostly colored) are busily engaged the year 'round doing most unusual work.

Seated before long tables, they each have before them, two small baskets. One is filled with round, crystal-clear, glass beads about as large as the end of an ordinary lead pencil. The beads are solid and quite heavy. The other basket is filled with stout tooth-picks. The work of the women is to stick a bead firmly on the end of a tooth-pick and toss it into a larger basket standing near them on the table.

There is a supervisor who goes the rounds, inspecting the work. She also keeps their baskets replenished with tooth-picks and beads, taking care of the larger baskets as they fill up. These women grow very adept at this work and can turn out many thousands in a day. Now this is the foundation of what is known at a jeweller's, as—"Richelieu Pearls".

The beads thus prepared are taken to another factory where each one individually, is dipped (much as are chocolates) into a glittering, opalescent paste, whose basic ingredient is —fish-scales. Here the work becomes intricate and scientific. It is imperative that the bead is carefully dipped, so naturally the dipper is the most competent among the workers, since the lustre-coating must be evenly distributed over the surface of the bead. By holding the tooth-pick firmly, the dipper moves the bead about in a rotary fashion, until it is thoroughly and professionally coated with the opalescent paste, after which they are set in racks to dry before removing the tooth-pick. They are then sorted and strung in the different sized necklaces, and are ready for the velvet background of the jeweller's display window.

I was amazed when the owner of this concern told my cousin that he had paid seventy-five thousand dollars for fish scales early this year. The scales he uses are from "Mackerel" and are shipped here from Cape Cod. This is an industry which has grown by leaps and bounds, especially since the advent of "costume-jewellry". It has meant a harvest to the fishermen who are realizing now, ten times more from the scales, than from the fish themselves.

In the old days, scales were given to the helpers in exchange for their labor, and at best all they brought in cash was from three to four cents a pound. Now, they have reached the staggering price of $3.75 a pound and even at this figure, manufacturers, are on the spot to enter into close competition in bidding for them.

In order to cope with the problem of saving scales, fishermen are now using a new style boat which has a false-bottom floor. The scales are carefully gathered here while the fish are being handled, thus none are wasted. This boat is called a scale-skow.

I believe this industry is carried on also in a big way along the Bay of Fundy. There, however, the scales used are those of sardines, which although tiny things, bring amazing prices because of the exceptionally brilliant lustre they contain.

It is interesting to know, as we admire a necklace of "Richelieu" pearls, that their radiant beauty, comes to us from the opalescent, silver scales of—fish.

After having gleaned this information from a manufacturer of—Richelieu Pearls—and having watched the women in the initial performance of preparing the beads for coating, I felt I wanted to pass the story on to my old friends back home, so—here it is.

BEE EATING TOADS

Bee keepers in Australia are faced with a new enemy. About 12 years ago, Australian sugar growers imported from Hawii the giant toad, bufa marinus, to combat the cane beetle which had become a pest. Now the toad, in turn, is becoming a pest, says the Australian news. A recently killed toad was found to have 500 bees in its stomach. The toads grow to about a foot in height and weigh 5 to 7 pounds. They have a tongue six inches long and with these they sweep large numbers of bees from the entrances to hives. The toads are breeding fast and are migrating south. They have been found in the suburbs of Brisbane, Queensland. At a beekeepers' conference in that city it was decided to ask the Apiarists' Federal Council to have the toads declared a noxious pest.

Personality of the Week In Canadian Radio

BYNG WHITTEKER
CBC Announcer

Byng Whitteker, who got into radio at the ripe age of 21, has had a career as colorful as the Van Goph prints he collects for his living room. For over 500 war-time nights, he was heard from London on the BBC's Radio Newsreel. He has toured most of Canada as M.c. of the Mart Kenney show; served as narrator for CBC News Roundup; conducted his own "Round the Town" program in Toronto; given play-by-play accounts of football games and other sports events; and is also noted in the records as a co-founder of CJBC's Ten-Ten Swing Club.

Born in 1914 on a farm at Dundela, Ont., Byng made his first money by driving cattle to market. After that, he says, life was uneventful until one slushy April day in 1935 when he traded the Waterloo College halls for a radio booth, having been accepted as staff announcer by station CKCR in Kitchener. Later he moved to CFCH in North Bay, and then joined the CBC in the fall of 1937. After service in Toronto, Windsor and Ottawa, Byng added to his experience by taking a summer course in radio production and dramatics at Michigan State University.

In 1943, the BBC was looking around for a good Canadian voice for its North American transmissions of Radio Newsreel. Byng was selected, and the CBC seconded him to the BBC. Within a few months of his arrival overseas he had taken over the writing as well as the narration of Radio Newsreel, putting out more than 1,000 editions.

Ad lib broadcasting is Byng's favorite work. He's fast on his mental feet, and likes nothing better than interviewing people without benefit of script, or giving play-by-play accounts of football and hockey games. Six foot three, he tips the scales at 200-odd pounds; likes Sibelius and Ellington, Steinbeck and Shaw; fishing and playing records. His wife is radio pianist Jean Dean. A small daughter, Deane, is still in public school, but has already appeared on at least one radio program.

REPORT ROUNDUP ON FARM FORUM

Provincial "Farm Forum" secretaries are to report to listeners on farm taxes and farm living standards, on Monday, November 18, in the first National Farm Radio Forum Roundup to be broadcast this season. The program will be carried over stations of a national CBC network, at 8.30 p.m. EST.

Their reports will summarize what farm groups across Canada are thinking in relation to taxes and farm home improvements—the subjects discussed during the opening forum series. Ralph Staples, national secretary of the Farm Forum groups, will also provide a review.

Following the roundup of talks, at 8.55 p.m. EST, there will be a five-minute interval for reports by the provincial secretaries to their separate regions. This will be the first time that provincial secretaries have been given this extra period following a "Roundup" broadcast. The time was made available by the CBC at the request of provincial groups, to provide a wider opportunity to report on regional matters affecting Farm Forum listening groups.

HE IS STILL ALIVE

There is a man in Western Ontario who has lived up to this teaching. Always he declared that if his car ever stalled on a railway track, with a train approaching, he would waste no time on the car, but would make for safety. "I can buy another car, but I can't buy another chance after I'm dead," he said.

A couple of weeks ago he bought a new car and took it for a run. Crossing a railway track it gave a cough and quit. A train was approaching from a distance. People told him he had time to get her going, but this brave chap got out and walked to the other side of the road. The new car was reduced to matchwood.

Some people said he was a fool, but if so he was a wise one. He had insured his car and was taking no chances. He left the debris to the railroad wreckers and put in a claim to the insurance company. He is still safe and sound and his wife is not a widow.

BIG GAME OF THE PAST

A mastodon skeleton on display at the Royal Ontario Museum was found in Welland County, and stands about 10 feet high, the single remaining tusk in this specimen curving out about 7 feet. THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! Because vegetables are difficult to store in crowded housing conditions, the best use of perishable vegetables should be considered.

Take cauliflower, for instance; how good it tastes when washed, sectioned and cooked in rapidly boiling salted water until tender, and no longer. Sprinkled with finely grated cheese, chopped parsley or a little paprika, it makes a superb dish. Cauliflower can often be served raw in a salad bowl or instead of pickles on a sandwich plate.

Some people dislike certain vegetables because of their familiarity. Done in the same way with monotonous regularity, is it any wonder they lose their appeal? Yet to get your full quota of good health, vegetables must be included in two meals of each day for they are second on the list of protective foods.

BEET DISHES

Boil beets in the skin for 1 to 2 hours depending on size, or peel and slice and cook in 2 cups water. Variety of dishes include Family Favourite (diced beets with harvard sauce flavoured with cloves).

Saladventure (diced beets with sliced oranges and onions with zippy French dressing).

Red Flannel Hash (mix two cups of diced beets with 3 cups meat hash and saute together).

Man-style Beets (sliced beets in vinegar to which bay leaf, onion, peppercorns, celery seed and cloves have been added in a cloth bag).

Raw Nippy Beets are good on salads. Grate peeled beets and mix with grated turnip seasoned with French dressing.

GREEN TOMATOES

Dip thick slices in egg and crumbs and fry them. Or add to stews and vegetable soups for a new flavour.

Molito is a Mexican dish that is wonderfully flavourful. Cook together 1 cup meat stock (use bouillon cube), 1 chopped carrot, 3 onions, 12 green tomtaoes, 2 red tomatoes (diced) ½ tsp. chili powder, 2 bay leaves and piece of garlic, some salt and pepper. Simmer an hour, sieve and add 1 tsp. butter. Bake meat balls in sauce.

FRENCH STYLE ONIONS

5 cups small silver-skinned onions (peeled), 1 can condensed consomme, pinch of pepper, 3 tbsps. of grated nippy cheese.

Heat the consomme to boiling, add onions and cook until tender, about 40 mins. Then add pepper and grated cheese just before serving.

CELERY IN TOMATO SAUCE

4 cups celery cut in pieces about 1 inch long and 1 can tomato soup.

Cook celery 15 minutes in salted boiling water. Heat condensed soup and pour over celery.

CORNED BEEF PEPPERS

4 medium green peppers, 1 cup catsup, 2 cups cooked corned beef hash, ½ tsp. prepared horseradish.

Cut slices from stem ends of peppers; remove seeds. Parboil peppers 3 to 5 minutes; drain. Combine beef, catsup and horse radish. Fill peppers with hash mixture. Place in greased baking dish. Bake in electric oven (400 degs.) for 20 mins. Serves 4.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. R. J. asks if honey can be made into a jelly.

Answer: Yes. Be sure to bring to a full rolling boil.

Orange Honey Jelly

2½ cups honey strained light-coloured honey, ¾ cup strained orange juice, ½ bottle fruit pectin.

Blend honey with the orange juice, heat to boiling, stir in liquid pectin and bring again to a full rolling boil. Remove at once from heat, skim and pour into glasses and cover with melted paraffin.

Mrs. J. T. asks for recipe for apple pudding topped with oatmeal.

Apple Oatmeal Crisp

4 tbsps. butter, ¾ cup light corn syrup, ¼ tsp. salt, 1 cup quick-cooking oatmeal, 5 large tart apples.

Cream butter with corn syrup until light, add salt and oatmeal. Peel, core and slice apples. Place in a baking dish and cover with oatmeal mixture. Bake in electric oven (350 degs.) for 1 hr. Serve hot, plain, with whipped cream or with sauce. Yield: 6 servings.

Mrs. T. B. asks for candy recipe using corn syrup.

Mint Taffy

1½ cups dark corn syrup, 1 teaspoon vinegar, 1 tablespoon butter, pinch of salt, ½ tsp. soda, 3 drops oil of peppermint or spearmint.

Boil corn syrup and vinegar in saucepan until mixture reaches 270 degrees or candy forms hard ball when a little is dropped in cold water. Do this slowly and stir to prevent burning. Remove from electric element, add butter, salt and soda. Stir until the candy ceases to foam. Pour out to cool on oiled pan. When cool enough to handle, pour the oil of peppermint into the centre of the candy, gradually folding corners toward the centre so that the flavouring will not be lost. When the candy is light in colour and rather firm. Stretch into a long rope, twist and cut into small pieces with oiled waxed paper. Yield: about 60 pieces (1-inch long) or 2|3 pound.

THE DEER ARE STILL GOING

Last week-end Leon Marcellus and Keith Graham each chaperoned a hunting party into the woods, the former into the Chalk River area while the latter put his hopes in the Lavant region. Leon thinks he bagged a deer but it had not stopped running Monday afternoon when he had to leave for home. Keith heard venison rustle in the undergrowth and when it came into view just over the brow of a hill he caught it through his telescope, but it wasn't a deer.

RIDDELL—MERKLEY

A pretty Autumn wedding ceremony was solemnized at Johnstown United Church on Saturday afternoon when Marjorie Mae Merkley, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. F. Merkley of Johnstown, was united in marriage to William Glenn Riddell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Colin Riddell of Crystal Rock.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. E. B. Sexsmith of Cardinal. The wedding music was played by Miss Marian Adams, and Mrs. T. King was the soloist. The church was attractively decorated with mauve 'mums, white pom poms and ferns.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Jean Merkley, as bridesmaid, and John Riddell was his brother's best man. The ushers were Jack Merkley and John Adams.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length dress of white lace over taffeta. Her full-length veil was held in place by a lace cap, and she carried a cascade of red carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church hall which was decorated for the occasion with pink and white streamers and illuminated with white tapers.

Mr. and Mrs. Riddell left later for Quebec City by motor. For travelling th bride wore a rose wool dress, with black hat and accessories and a top coat of light grey. On their return they will reside at Crystal Rock.

Among those from a distance in attendance were Mrs. H. Mills, Miss Eleanor Mills of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Allison, Chesterville; Mr. and Mrs. F. Marshall, Brockville; Mr. and Mrs. J. Scott, Ottawa; Miss Edith Webb, J. Webb, Winchester; Mrs. W. Whaley, Mr. and Mrs. R. Jackson, Miss R. Tompkins, Kemptville; Miss R. Bowman, Morrisburg; Mr. and Mrs. C. Wynn, Mr. and Mrs. E. Kenny, Mrs. A. Colleson, South Mountain; Mr. and Mrs. S. MacIntosh of Williamsburg.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to take this opportunity of thanking my friends and neighbours for their cards, letters, flowers, gifts and personal visits while I was a patient in Brockville General Hospital and since returning home.

Mrs. Hugh Smith.
