SUSTAINS BROKEN ANKLE

On Tuesday Mr. Jay D. Bailey met with an unfortunate accident when his right leg was broken at the ankle. He was in the act of unlaoding hay in the barn and was gathering the last forkful of the load to send up into the mow when he stepped in to an opening in the rack and fell sideways with the above results. Mr. Bailey. was. married. about. three weeks ago.

BOY'S LEG BROKEN BY AUTO

On Sunday afternoon the eleven-year-old son of Oscar Simmons, living east of Morrisburg, had a leg broken and was otherwise injured when struck and run over by an automobile. The lad walked backwards while his attention was attracted by a boat on the river, right in front of aslowly moving car, said to be going about eight miles an hour, when he was knocked down and run over by one wheel before the car could be stopped.

LeROY—DURANT

A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday afternoon of this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Durant when their eldest daughter Arlie Beatrice became the bride of Mr. William G. LeRoy of Queenston, Ontario, formerly of Ottawa.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Miss Hildred Durant, the bridal couple entered the parlor, which was decorated with sweet peas and bridal roses. After the ceremony which was performed by Rev. Roy M. Pounder, a buffet luncheon was served, the color scheme being pink and white.

The presents were numerous and beautiful.

The bride's gown was white georgette trimmed with satin, with tulle veil and orange blossoms, she carried a shower bouquet of ophelia roses and lilies of the valley. Her travelling dress was of brown canton crepe with hat to match.

The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Louis LeRoy and Mr. Kenneth LeRoy, Mrs. Virtue, and Mrs. Horner, all of Ottawa.

MARY JANE FRITH

There passed away in Winnipeg early Friday morning Aug. 1st, one who was well known throughout Eastern Ontario in the person of Miss Mary Jane Frith, aged 72 years. Miss Frith spent her early life in Melvin settlement, after which she taught school for a few years until the call came for her to engage in Missionary work, and she was the first woman Missionary sent out by the Baptist Foreign Missionary Board. Her early Missionary work mate did not agree with her, so after was in Southern India, where the cli- a rest at home she went to Assam in Northern India, where she labored faithfully for many years. Just two years ago she came home for a rest, and about five months ago when at the home of her brother J. P. of Winnipeg, she suffered a severe stroke from which she never recovered. Her remains accompanied by her brother J. P. and her sister Mrs. McBain of Toronto, reached Winchester on the fast train on Sunday afternoon, and were taken to the residence of Mrs. Blackman. The funeral was held in the Methodist Church Monday at 2 p. m. The sermon being preached by Rev. White, pastor of Winchester Baptist Church. He was assisted in the service by Rev. J. A. Waddell, pastor of Winchester Methodist Church, Rev. Geo. Robertson of Ormond Baptist Church and Rev. A. N. Frith of Ottawa a cousin of deceased, all spoke of the noble life of Miss Frith. Mrs. Percy Durant sang very effectively: "There'll be no dark valley when Jesus Comes." The W. M. S. of the Methodist Church sat in a body with the mourners as a token of respect for one who gave her life in the Missionary cause.

THE REASON IS PLAIN

The reason advertisers are the best people to deal with is because they have something they are anxious to get rid of and take that means of telling people who are likely to buy from them. It is well-known that a better deal can be made with one who is anxious to sell than with one who does not care whether he sells or not and who does not invite you to come and buy his goods.

WITH THE BOWLERS

The local bowling tournament advanced a stage on Friday night when the only game played was the final in the First competition in which Geo. Cass came through victorious over Fred Merkley.

Thursday evening two rinks from Winchester were entertained by the locals when Dr. Hutt's rink were winners over W. Johnston's with Fred Merkley's losing out to Albert Dixon.

At the Ottawa tournament the first of this week, Chesterville was represented by one rink skipped by Dr. Hutt with Dr. Doering, W. O. Dixon and Geo. Lacey. While hardly coming within sight of the prize-money, they were successful in staying in the running at least, until the end of the second day, when they were eliminated by a crack Ottawa rink, skipped by the new vice-president of the Eastern Bowling Association, F. A. Tory.

On Monday next a tournament at Winchester offers opportunity for three or four rinks from here to try out conclusions with representatives of other clubs.

QUITE ABSURD

A man with a gun under his arm walked into a village butcher's shop the other day, and asked for a couple of rabbits.

Sorry, sir, said the shopkeeper, but I'm completely sold out of rabbits. I could let you have some nice ham, though.

Don't be ridiculous, snapped the customer angrily. How the dickens could I go home and say I'd shot a pig?

My, Oh, My, That Pipe! ....

A man was sitting in the station the other day smoking,wh en a woman came in and sitting beside him remarked: "Sir, if you were a gentleman you would not smoke that pipe in here."

"Mum," replied the man, "if ye wuz a lady, ye'd sit further away."

Pretty soon the woman burst out again: "If you were my husband, I'd give you poison."

"Well, mum," snapped the man, as he puffed away at his pipe, "if you wuz me wife, I'd take it."

THOUGHT OLDEST MAN IN GLENGARRY COUNTY

Probably the oldest resident in the County of Glengarry, William Powers, is dead at the home of his only son Mark Powers, in the township of Kenyon. Mr. Powers was born in Huntingdon, Que., on January 10th, 1822, and thus passed his 102nd year in January. He was a son of the late Edward Powers, who came to this country from Tipperary, Ireland. Deceased was twice married, both wives predeceasing him, together with 13 children. He enjoyed good health until last fall and was only seriously ill for two weeks previous to his death. Besides his son, he leaves two daughters and one brother.

LIGHTNING'S PRANKS

During the heavy electric storm on Tuesday, lightning struck the residence of Mr. Godfrey Nabert in Mansfield. The bolt destroyed the chimney and then came down into the stovepipes which it scattered in all directions. It ran along the line of pipes in the second storey of the house, splintering wood as it went and knocking the pipes apart until it came to the stove in the kitchen. Here it did some damage also and after apparently splitting into two sections the bolt went through the basement and into the ground, leaving in its wake a large crack in the foundation of the house. Mr. Nabert was quite close to the chimney at the time but was uninjured and Mrs. Nabert who was standing directly under an elbow of the stove pipes in the kitchen, was only slightly stunned. Parts of the woodwork in the kitchen were splintered and a piece of linoleum was torn from the kitchen floor and flung upon the table. Those who saw the lightning say that it took the form of a ball of fire.—Arnprior Chronicle.

MR. THOS. GORDON

Morrisburg Leader—The funeral of Mr. Thomas Gordon, prominent farmer of this district, and former well known building contractor of Ottawa, who met his death by falling from the roof of his barn at his home here, July 29th, was held on Thursday to North Williamsburg cemetery. The service was held in Knox Presbyterian Church, Morrisburg, conducted by the Rev. J. D. MacKenzie.

Mr. Gordon and his grandson, Garnet Collins, of Ottawa, were hurrying to complete the shingling of his barn when a heavy rain storm came on. They had just finished work when Mr. Gordon went to descend when the scaffold broke, causing him to fall a distance of 25 feet. He was thrown to the ground with great force, the heavy scaffold falling on top of him. Five ribs, both jaw bones and his skull were fractured. Garnet Collins immediately summoned help and Mr. Gordon was removed to his home. A doctor was summoned and an examination revealed that he was suffering greatly from shock and injuries.

Mr. Gordon who was in his 71st year, was born in North Williamsburg, and had spent the greater part of his life in Ottawa, where he was prominent in the building trade.

He was a member of the Masonic Order, and a charter member of Earncliffe Lodge No. 283 I. O. O. F. who had charge of the service at the grave.

In 1915 deceased moved to Winchester to resume farming, and after living there for a short time, he moved to Morrisburg. His death has caused a heavy gloom over this community, where he was exceptionally popular..

Besides his wife he is survived by four sons, George and Myles of Morrisburg, Will of Johannesburg, South Africa; Stanley of Detroit; four daughters, Mrs. G. H. A. Collins, Ottawa; Miss Muriel of Montreal, Miss Bell of Morrisburg, and Mrs. F. W. Blatch, of Montreal; two brothers, George of Tottenham and Will of Sand Lake City, Mich.; three sisters, Miss Sara Gordon of Toronto, Miss Annie Gordon, Missionary from Smyrna, Turkey, and Mrs. Sam Hayes of Beeton, Ont.; and fourteen grandchildren.

The floral offerings were numerous and beautiful.

Among those from a distance present at the funeral were: Miss Annie Gordon, Mrs. Sam Hayes of Beeton; Mr. Geo. Gordon, Tottenham; Mr. Wm. Gordon, Salt Lake City, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Blatch and family of Montreal; Mrs. Wm. Davidson of Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Hutt of Cornwall; Mr. C. Sproule, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Buchanan; Paul Brunet of Moose Creek; Jas. Miller, Monkland; J. R. Sproule, Apple Hill; Mr. and Mrs. I. Garrow, Mr. and Mrs. T. Houlahan; Jack McEvoy of Chesterville; Charlie Winegard, Prescott; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Winegard; Mr. I. WHITE INDIANS CAMPED NEAR PRESCOTT

Mr. Richard O. Marsh, who is the leader of the Marsh-Darien expedition, and his family, are in camp at the North Channel on the St. Lawrence, five miles east of Prescott, at the Cleveland Place, a beautiful spot. They have with them a number of the historic White Indians of the Panama, who are the centre of attraction and study to Canadian scientists and medical men and interested parties. These Sanblas Indians were discovered in the jungles of South Panama by Mr. Marsh, who arrived last month with them from Rochester,, N. Y. They are of the Paleolithic type from the interior of Darien and the party comprise Chief Jim Berry and wife, Margaret, 14 years old, and Chepo "Boy," 10 years old; also several Brown Sanblas Indians. The White Indians have golden hair in abundance, hazel eyes, pink gums, fair white skin with numerous freckles. They have very large, round, high heads, larger than those of the normal white face, and are exceedingly quick mentally, very chunky or stocky in build—similar to people of the primitive Sweden. Mr. Marsh stated that during the expedition they saw 400 White Indians of all ages, and of these 100 were photographed. The whites live in the interior mountain valleys protected on all sides by hostile Brown Indians. Whites intermarry and produce white children. The Marsh party started with 12 white men and 13 black men, but only three whites and four blacks finished the trip, the others having died taken sick or deserted. Practically all scientists agree that the White Indians are not standard Albinos, but do not know how to account for them. The little party will be at the North Channel for several weeks and are apparently enjoying themselves, becoming acustomed to the strange environment and are adapting themselves to conditions in this country in a remarkable manner. They are fond of boating, swimming and fishing, which the place affords and which they are enjoying to their hearts content. Mr. Marsh said some days between 200 and 300 visitors came to the camp, who are very cordially welcomed. Scientists and men of the medical profession are especially interested. Several theories as to their origin have been expressed.

BANDITS STEAL MONEY PACKETS SENT TO OTTAWA

Three armed bandits, each masked with a grey handkerchief, held up a Canadian Transfer Company wagon on St. James street, in the financial section of Monteral, on Tuesday night, selected o locked pouch containing registered mail from the 20 sacks in the vehicle, and escaped.

Victor Gaudet, Montreal post-master, stated that the contents of the stolen pouch will not be known until tomorrow, as it will be necessary to ascertain from several clerks what they put into the pouch. He understood, however, that the contents were 10 registered letters and two packages of money destined for Ottawa.

The bandits were in an auto which they drove into the path of the transfer wagon, halting it. One of them got out of the car, pointed a revolver at the driver and mail clerk, and shouted, "Hands up." Another man then jumped into the wagon and took the pouch. Thereafter the bandits drove away westward.

One of the bandits who was acting as a scout on the street tried to hold up a second transfer wagon that was with the first. The driver, however, whipped up his horses and succeeded in escaping.

The holdup took place in full view of the occupants of another automobile, and the chauffeur of this car drove off to find a constable. He finally pickey up two, but when he reached the scene of the holdup the bandits had disappeared.

PROTECTION AGAINST LIGHTNING

A Bulletin of the National Fire Protection Association draws attention to the fact that there is only one way of safe guarding buildings and other structures from serious damage by lightning and that is by a reliable system of lightning conductors. Unfortunately prejudice still exists against "lightning rods" because of the methods of unscrupulous salesmen who overran the country when the use of such protection was first advocated some fifty years ago. "Rods" of every description were then erected at an excessive cost to the purchaser and without regard to the construction requirements necessary for reliable protection. Hundreds of people were swindled and in consequence lightning rod protection fell into disrepute.

The value of proper protection has, however, been amply demonstrated. A case in point is the Washington Monument which is well equipped with lightning conductors. It has been struck at least eight times since the conductors were installed and has suffered not the slightest damage.

There are certain fundamental principles which must be observed in installing a system of lightning conductors.

1. All points of a building most likely to be struck by lightning should be provided with rods. The rod points should be high enough above the structure to obviate danger of fire from the flash. One rod placed at the highest point of the building is not sufficient to protect the building.

2. The conductors from the rod points should be arranged to offer the least possible obstruction to the passage of a stroke between the point and the ground. The most direct path is generally the best and there should be no sharp bends or loops for the lightning to jump across. From each point there should be at least two widely separated paths to the ground for the lightning to follow. Insultation of the conductor from the building is not necessary.

Grounding of the conductors should be thorough and permanent. If a water pipe enters the building at least one conductor should be connected to it at a point just outside the foundation wall. If the ground is moist clay or other soil of similar character as to electrical conductivity, the conductor can be driven into the ground for a depth of at least ten feet to make the ground connection. Where the soil is largely sand, gravel or stones, and thus liable to be dry in the summer, more extensive artifical ground connections are necessary. The ground conections should be distributed about the outside of the building.

Since a lightning conductor system as a general rule is expected to remain in working condition for long periods with little attention, the mechanical construction should be strong and the materials used such as are not readily subject to rust or corrosion (copper, for instance, being one of the most desirable materials for this purpose).

These four essential factors are required in any system of lightning protection. There are, of course, other factors which enter into the proper design and installation of these systems. The purchaser is advised to deal only with responsible and reliable concerns specializing in lightning protection equipment.

MR. BOOTH'S SECRET

John R. Booth, Sr., America's lumber king, serene and active at 98, loves work, and is a practical lover. That is his secret of longevity and success, he says.

While scientists and bio-chemists delve and nature-negators try to evolve a treatment which will prolong the life of a man beyond the ordinary, Mr. Booth, sound as a nut, tough as a pine knot and vigorous in body and mind, scoffs at the artificial elixirs.

From his home in Ottawa he directs the vast work of his lumber empire of timber tracts and mills. But he is no armchair observer. Up with the lark, he makes his daily visits to his properties nearest him. Often he goes into the woods, where nobody in the camps steps livelier or evinces greater zest for work. The music of the axes and the saws is sweet to his ears—and he still can do his trick with either.

Master of many millions, he doesn't have to work. But he does want to live out his days, as he puts it.

Thus his recipe: Stick to the job; don't retire; work, rest and play in turn, and never loose your grip on yourself or your work; and, above all, be natural in all things and never go back on a friend , or forget him.

HALF MILLION MARK IS AIM OF DIRECTORS

A half million attendance is the aim of the directors of the Central Canada Exhibition Association for the annual Ottawa Fair to be held September 5th to 15th.

This exhibition has been steadily growing for years and in order to secure the objective in attendance, the directors have planned things on a more elaborate scale than ever. The prize list has been revised and increases made to suit the greatest number of exhibitors so that there is every indication that the displays of live stock and in other departments will excell all previous records. Every building will be filled to capacity and demonstrations and exhibits of a highly interesting and educational nature will be seen.

These, as usual, will be the backbone of the fair but the entertainment factor has been given special attention. For the midway, a contract has been made with Boyd and Linderman and it will consist of shows and riding devices entirely new to Ottawa. The midway has been filling a number of engagements in the United States and Canada and has been inspected by the committee which gives an unqualified assurance that it will be the finest ever assembled for the exhibition or for any other purpose in Ottawa. There will be fun, thrills and novelty to appeal to old and young.

In front of the grandstand there will be great programmes afternoon and evening. A feature will be a big historic pageant in which four hundred people will take part. This will be elaborately staged and costumed. Then there will be horse races, big vaudeville features from the Hippodrome and other American amusement places, new comedy numbers and sensational aerial performances. Whippet races have been arranged and special contests for these speedy dogs are assured.

There are cast-iron contracts that call for every show and act being ready for the opening day. The aim of the directors is to give a full week's show, complete in every detail. For the opening day, children will be admitted free. There has also been an arrangement made by which every ride and show will give a five cent rate for children up to six o'clock on Monday.

Features of the exhibition include the Pure Food Show, Automobile show, Dog and Cat shows, Baby show and Child's Welfare Department, Horticultural and Agricultural exhibits, Machinery and Processes, Poultry and Pets, Art Exhibit, and a score of other departments which have made the Ottawa exhibition second in all annual fairs on the continent.

Entries, Entry forms, and all information may be secured from J. K. Paisley, secretary-manager, City Hall, Ottawa.

A GOOD PLAN

A rural church in Ohio has adopted a plan that is said to have led more persons to attend its services. It has mapped out routes that pass the houses of its present and prospective members and has asked owners of automobiles to go the rounds every Sunday and pick up anyone who wishes to ride to church. For many persons—especially the old and the infirm—the knowledge that an automobile will call for them makes it easier to decide to go.

RISKED HIS LIFE BUT SAVED CHILD

A report made to the office of the general superintendent of the Candian Pacific Railway, covering an enquiry into the cause of delay to a freight train at Versailles on August 3, has uncovered an act of heroism almost unparalleled in the history of the company. Fireman J. A. Griffin, Montreal, features as the hero in the incident which rivals that of the most lurid movie thriller.

While approaching Versailles at a fairly high rate of speed the engineer noticed something fluttering on the track ahead, and called Griffin's attention to it. At first the object was thought to be a newspaper, but when the train came within a hundred feet of it both men men decided it was a child. The engineer immediatetly applied the emergency brakes while Griffin, without hesitation, crawled out and along the running board and jumped down on the pilot, risking his own life in an attempt to save that of the child. The jerking of the engine as the brakeswere applied caused the fireman to slip on the pilot, but he managed to retain his hold with one hand while with the other he was able to reach the child and push it away from the track and against the platform. When the engine stopped, the child was found under the cylinder but unharmed.

Some Family

The little boy was greatly elated when informed by his mother that the liveliness of her hair as she combed it was caused by electricity.

"Oh, my!" he exclaimed. "Ain't we a wonderful family! Mama has electricity on her head, and grandma has gas on her stomach."

WHITE INDIANS CAMPED NEAR PRESCOTT

Mr. Richard O. Marsh, who is the leader of the Marsh-Darien expedition, and his family, are in camp at the North Channel on the St. Lawrence, five miles east of Prescott, at the Cleveland Place, a beautiful spot. They have with them a number of the historic White Indians of the Panama, who are the centre of attraction and study to Canadian scientists and medical men and interested parties. These Sanblas Indians were discovered in the jungles of South Panama by Mr. Marsh, who arrived last month with them from Rochester,, N. Y. They are of the Paleolithic type from the interior of Darien and the party comprise Chief Jim Berry and wife, Margaret, 14 years old, and Chepo "Boy," 10 years old; also several Brown Sanblas Indians. The White Indians have golden hair in abundance, hazel eyes, pink gums, fair white skin with numerous freckles. They have very large, round, high heads, larger than those of the normal white face, and are exceedingly quick mentally, very chunky or stocky in build—similar to people of the primitive Sweden. Mr. Marsh stated that during the expedition they saw 400 White Indians of all ages, and of these 100 were photographed. The whites live in the interior mountain valleys protected on all sides by hostile Brown Indians. Whites intermarry and produce white children. The Marsh party started with 12 white men and 13 black men, but only three whites and four blacks finished the trip, the others having died taken sick or deserted. Practically all scientists agree that the White Indians are not standard Albinos, but do not know how to account for them. The little party will be at the North Channel for several weeks and are apparently enjoying themselves, becoming acustomed to the strange environment and are adapting themselves to conditions in this country in a remarkable manner. They are fond of boating, swimming and fishing, which the place affords and which they are enjoying to their hearts content. Mr. Marsh said some days between 200 and 300 visitors came to the camp, who are very cordially welcomed. Scientists and men of the medical profession are especially interested. Several theories as to their origin have been expressed.

BANDITS STEAL MONEY PACKETS SENT TO OTTAWA

Three armed bandits, each masked with a grey handkerchief, held up a Canadian Transfer Company wagon on St. James street, in the financial section of Monteral, on Tuesday night, selected o locked pouch containing registered mail from the 20 sacks in the vehicle, and escaped.

Victor Gaudet, Montreal post-master, stated that the contents of the stolen pouch will not be known until tomorrow, as it will be necessary to ascertain from several clerks what they put into the pouch. He understood, however, that the contents were 10 registered letters and two packages of money destined for Ottawa.

The bandits were in an auto which they drove into the path of the transfer wagon, halting it. One of them got out of the car, pointed a revolver at the driver and mail clerk, and shouted, "Hands up." Another man then jumped into the wagon and took the pouch. Thereafter the bandits drove away westward.

One of the bandits who was acting as a scout on the street tried to hold up a second transfer wagon that was with the first. The driver, however, whipped up his horses and succeeded in escaping.

The holdup took place in full view of the occupants of another automobile, and the chauffeur of this car drove off to find a constable. He finally pickey up two, but when he reached the scene of the holdup the bandits had disappeared.

PROTECTION AGAINST LIGHTNING

A Bulletin of the National Fire Protection Association draws attention to the fact that there is only one way of safe guarding buildings and other structures from serious damage by lightning and that is by a reliable system of lightning conductors. Unfortunately prejudice still exists against "lightning rods" because of the methods of unscrupulous salesmen who overran the country when the use of such protection was first advocated some fifty years ago. "Rods" of every description were then erected at an excessive cost to the purchaser and without regard to the construction requirements necessary for reliable protection. Hundreds of people were swindled and in consequence lightning rod protection fell into disrepute.

The value of proper protection has, however, been amply demonstrated. A case in point is the Washington Monument which is well equipped with lightning conductors. It has been struck at least eight times since the conductors were installed and has suffered not the slightest damage.

There are certain fundamental principles which must be observed in installing a system of lightning conductors.

1. All points of a building most likely to be struck by lightning should be provided with rods. The rod points should be high enough above the structure to obviate danger of fire from the flash. One rod placed at the highest point of the building is not sufficient to protect the building.

2. The conductors from the rod points should be arranged to offer the least possible obstruction to the passage of a stroke between the point and the ground. The most direct path is generally the best and there should be no sharp bends or loops for the lightning to jump across. From each point there should be at least two widely separated paths to the ground for the lightning to follow. Insultation of the conductor from the building is not necessary.

Grounding of the conductors should be thorough and permanent. If a water pipe enters the building at least one conductor should be connected to it at a point just outside the foundation wall. If the ground is moist clay or other soil of similar character as to electrical conductivity, the conductor can be driven into the ground for a depth of at least ten feet to make the ground connection. Where the soil is largely sand, gravel or stones, and thus liable to be dry in the summer, more extensive artifical ground connections are necessary. The ground conections should be distributed about the outside of the building.

Since a lightning conductor system as a general rule is expected to remain in working condition for long periods with little attention, the mechanical construction should be strong and the materials used such as are not readily subject to rust or corrosion (copper, for instance, being one of the most desirable materials for this purpose).

These four essential factors are required in any system of lightning protection. There are, of course, other factors which enter into the proper design and installation of these systems. The purchaser is advised to deal only with responsible and reliable concerns specializing in lightning protection equipment.

Here and There

It is announced that vigorous efforts will be made by the Government of Manitoba to effect the actual settlement of 224,000 acres of vacant provincial land now under the administration of the Crown.

For the week ended June 21st traffic earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway amounted to $3,301,000, as compared with $3,159,000 for the corresponding period of 1923. This is an increase of $142,000 or 4.4 per cent.

Reports from the Rouyn gold fields of Quebec continue to indicate a great future for that territory. Development is proceeding apace and the English capital now flowing into Canada in search of good investments is interesting itself in this area.

Three carloads of seed grain are being shipped weekly from the provincial seed cleaning and marketing plant at Edmonton, Alta. About 50,000 bushels of seed grain have been handled by the plant since last fall and 20,000 bushels more will be handled before the year's seeding is completed.

The International Paper Company intends to add two new machines to their plant in Three Rivers, Que., so as to increase their production from 300 to 450 tons daily. Another project is also under consideration, viz., to build a plant in Batiscan instead of enlarging the Three Rivers one.

Out of every dollar the Company earns, the sum of 81 cents is spent by the Canadian Pacific Railway in the home markets of Canada for wages, materials, supplies, taxes and insurance, figures recently issued show. In 1923 the total earnings of this great corporation were $195,837,089, and every community in Canada directly benefitted by the expenditure of 81 per cent. of this huge amount in the home market.

The 1924 cut of the East Kootenay (B.C.) forestry district gives promise of running to a grand total of 150,000,000 feet. There is a particularly brisk business in poles of longer lengths and in railway ties, and a cut of some 1,000,000 sawn ties and the usual quantity of the hewn variety is looked for. Sixteen sawmills are now in operation and indications are that there will probably be thirty going before the season closes.

Canada now takes third place, and second place among British possessions, of the gold-producing areas of the world. The total gold production of the world for 1922—the latest year for which returns are available — was 15,440,000 fine ounces, of which the Transvaal produced 7,020,110, or 45.5 per cent. The United States came second, with 2,363,075 ounces, or 15.3 per cent., and Canada followed, with 1,263,364 ounces. or 8.2 per cent.

June 18th was the anniversary of the running of the first Imperial Limited, the Canadian Pacific Railway's famous transcontinental. This was not the Company's first transcontinental, as trains began regular service between Montreal and Vancouver as far back as 1886, but for several years it was the crack Canadian Pacific express. To-day the premier place is held by the Trans-Canada Limited, the fastest long-distance express in the world, which makes the run in 90 hours, or 10 hours less than the time of the original Imperial Limited.

BEAUTIFYING RURAL SCHOOL GROUNDS

Whenever the question of beautifying the grounds of rural schools is brought before the Board much trepidation is created in the minds of many members, fearing as they do that the work will be of an elaborate and expensive nature. Perhaps it is this thought which has largely proved a deterrant to the work.

The work of adornment of the rural school grounds should not be effected in an elaborate or costly way. Simple adornment is never costly, but it is very pleasing and effective. The keynote of all the work should be simplicity, not because the simple layout is the most attractive, but simply because it is very necessary that the child mind should be able to learn something from the work, and to be able to emulate it in some way in later years. Give the child an impression, a favorable one—he'll remember it all the days of his life. The most discouraging thing, however, is for the child to try to emulate something which is beyond his comprehension, because elaborate.

When rural school grounds are beautified they express the fact that the trustees realize the educational value of the work. They also indicate that considerable intelligence of thought as well as sacrifice of time has been expended by the trustees of the school. When trustees recognize the educational and the aesthetic value of the work more generally, the unbeautiful school grounds will disappear.

No matter what form the beautification takes it should be permanent. Hardy trees, shrubs and herbaceous perennials should be used, or any of these as desired. When possible the area to be beautified should be that immediately around the building, the playing areas being somewhat removed and partly isolated nevertheless in a prominent and readily accessible position. The planting of shrubs and perrenials should be made at the sides of the lawns, a definite border being established for the perennials, these not to be mixed with the shrubs. Shrubs as well as at the extremities of the lawn, may be used with great effect along the base of the school

Simple grouping of shrubs, as well as perennials, is best. A few shrubs of one kind followed by a few of another, not lined but grouped and flowering at different times, would be appropriate, so with the perennials planted in the border, three or so to each group. Tall shrubs or tall perennials, as the case may be, planted to the rear and the dwarf kinds grouped in front. Even were only a few kinds of each used the effect would be pleasing.

Trees to provide shade should be planted wherever considered necessary, especially, however, along the sides of the playing areas, or be grouped in a position readily accessible to the children from the heat of the Summer sun. They should also, where possible, be grouped or perhaps aligned to afford shelter from the prevailing cold winds of Winter, but not so as to shut out the Winter sun from playing areas. For purposes also of shade and shelter, trees could be planted in proximity to the school at the most exposed points not necessarily so close as to preclude the planting of shrubs, but close enough to serve as a barrier to cold winds. This would result in more than saving the cost of the trees in fuel during the first winter, to say nothing of the gracious shade during summer, which would prevent the heat from being radiated into the school.

If for no other reason than for the comfort of children and teachers, trees should be planted out on the school grounds, but not so thickly planted that they will act as a detriment to the growth of grass or of other subjects. It is necessary that we have trees and shrubs and flowers—comfort is a great factor in providing happiness; happiness is a state of mind and heart which can only be achieved by pleasant thought. Nothing will maintain a state of happiness better than pleasant surroundings.

Under a capable instructor much of the work attendant upon beautification could be done by boys and girls of the upper forms. The digging of borders and manuring of same. Planting and watering the subjects, and even the maintenance work of cutting the lawns and cultivating the borders could in turn be given to responsible scholars, during school hours, so distributed that the work would not become a burden as far as either time or money is concerned.

The writer has yet to meet a principal of any rural school who is not anxious to have the surroundings beautified. Much is being done by the Ontario Department of Agriculture through its local agricultural representatives in co-operating with teachers and trustees, and soon the condition will be changed. Where today we have ten schools, the surroundings of which are in a neglected state to every one which is beautified, in a few years the reverse will be the case.

"THE LONG AND THE SHORT OF IT"

Mrs. Mack had moved into a new neighborhood. Next door lived a little dot of a woman, with a six-foot husband. The little wife had eyes that looked as if tears were never far away; the palid face that accompanies fear; and a timid, shrinking manner.

Mrs. Mack tried to be friendly. The neighbor was graceful, but uncommunicative. The "run-in-and-see-me" invitations were never extended.

The explanation came very shortly, as the six-footer lurched down the street and staggered into the house, banging the door behind him.

Unavoidable Listening In

Loud talking followed———though only one voice was audible .. .. Louder.... .... Angrier .... Then the crash!. crash!. crash!!. of furniture and crockery.

To Mrs. Mack, tense with nervousness, and boiling over with wrath and sympathy, it seemed an eternity before silence fell.

No————she dare not go in to comfort the terror stricken little woman, who tried to hide her shame from all eyes; but that night—and many subsequent nights— Mrs. Mack relieved her over-wrought nerves by telling her good man what she'd like to do to that six-footer, and the whole iniquitous drink traffic.

A Revolution

Mrs. Mack moved to another part of the city and lost sight of her sorrowful neighbor. The war came———then Prohibition.

Within the last six months Mrs. Mack was in the City store, when she found herself side by side with that little dot of a woman. With her was the six-footer, but so changed he would have been unrecognized but for his tiny partner.

And they were together!——— a thing none of the old neighbors had ever seen!

As they shopped he deferred to her opinions. She looked so sweet and cheery and happy, and he so proud of her, Mrs. Mack quite forgot the mental thrashings she had time and again administered to him.

"Come and see us————do come. We have a business and a house of our own now, and are getting on well," said the small matron. Here followed directions as to location.

This is an actual occurrence, in every particular. Before Probibition this couple owned nothing. No one was ever invited to call——— for who would desire company when every day was a tragedy?

Of Course You Don't!

"No one wants the old bar," says an Anti-O. T. A.

Friend, what do you want?

The British Columbia experiment in Government Control?

In that Province, according to the Attorney General and the press, there is an average expenditure for drink of $40.00 for every man, woman and child. And since tens of thousands are teetotallers, that means that other thousands are drinking enormously. And that means drunkards and drunkards' homes.

The Same Old Tiger

Or perhaps you prefer Quebec's liquor control system, where the Montreal Courts recorded, in two years, the arrest of 2,000 people "found lying dead drunk in a public place." Anybody who could navigate,, even though it took the side walk and part of the road to accommodate them, was not interfered with.

Responsibility?

Drink makes drunkards———no matter who serves it, or whether it is fermented or distilled. The voter who endorses it, in any guise or under any auspices, becomes a partner in the business. We have each of us enough short-comings of our own to answer for, without assuming responsibility for the cruel, indefensible wrongs inflicted by the Drink Trade.

AMONG THE FLIES

"Will you join our party in the jam preserves?" asked the first fly.

"No," said the second fly, "the lady of our house has baked a cake with icing on it. We're going in for winter sports."

Curing Stone Throwing

A lad in a western town had a mania for throwing stones through windows. Finally he landed in juvenile court. The Judge sentenced him to throw 2,000 stones, under the eye of a policeman. When last heard from, the boy wouldn't throw a stone for pay.

VALUE TO A NEWSPAPER

The newspaper man is blamed for a lot of things he can't help such as using partiality in mentioning visitors, giving news about some folks and leaving out others, etc. He simply prints all the news he can find. Some people inform him about such things and others do not. An editor should not be expected to know the names and residences of all your uncles, aunts, and cousins, even if he should see them get on or off the train. Tell us about it. It's news that makes the newspaper, and every man, woman and child can be associate editor if they only will. Never apologize when you give the editor this bit of information, for if there lives one so dead that he has lost his appreciation of such favors he is dead, indeed, to every virtue that imparts value to a paper.

WHEN THE HOME LIFE FAILS

Brooklyn's bobbed-haired bandit has been landed in prison. The record of crimes committed by this dare-devil young woman has occupied the front page of all the daily newspapers for some weeks past. What is the record back of all this hectic career that led to prison? It is a sorry story, but one to often told. The young girl Cecilie Coney, had no proper up bringing. She was born on the east side, the squalid section of New York City. Her father was a drunkard. She was reared in neglect. Sometimes she was cared for the Children's Society and sometimes she slept in the coal cellars when there was no other shelter for her. As a child she had to live by her wits, and growing up, she lived with whatever men she chanced to meet. Finally, she adopted as her philosophy the immemorial attitude of criminals, "What the world does not give me, I take." From the very day she was born, Cecilia got a bad start. Her mother could neither read nor write. The father had very little education and had been an habitual drunkard all his life. He never worked steadily and never supported the family. What little support came into the family came through the mother. The children —there are eight of them, and Cecilia was the youngest, were sadly neglected; they were sent out to beg, and as little children had been known to sleep all night in the coal cellar and in the morning be aroused and sent out on the street to beg for pennies to buy their father whiskey. Half the time they were scantly clad and had very little to eat.

It is a sad story all the way through. The mother, heartless and indifferent, the father, a drunkard. What is the likely fate of the children of such parents? Just what we see here, a life of crime and then the prison.

Character-building, uprightness, honesty and decency are products of heredity, but they are also products of environment. The family life, the home circle, must never depart from our country or its doom is sealed. A nation's greatness depends upon the character, uprightness and trustworthiness of its people.

What a lesson there is here for parents to learn. What a clarion-call it is for them to bring up a child in the way he or she should go. The care of the child does not cease at weaning-time or when it goes to school. Intelligent supervision, kindly interest and true comradeship are necessary even up to college days and after if the young person is to benefit to the fullest from parental care. If more of the old family spirit, carried out amid the right environment, was in evidence, it is most likely that fewer young folks would stray from the paths of uprightness and honesty.

COMMUNICATIONS

(Note—The editor is glad at all times to receive communications expressing the opinions of others on matters of public interest when the writers names are attached. We in no way hold ourselves responsible for opinions expressed by correspondents.)

Representation

To The Record:—At this time when parliament has prorogued, and we, who have been following closely the trend of events at Ottawa, have had time to sum up what has been done and what share of good we as farmers may get from the legislation enacted at the session just ended.

First, we will get some relief from taxation by the abolition of the Sales Tax which cost us a good many dollars per year, more perhaps than some would like us to believe.

The amendments to the Bank Act also which will contribute to the safety of our small deposits were very much needed.

The amendment concerning greater care in making loans is one which we should appreciate as we have only to go back a very little to the time when were badly bitten by the very careless way in which a certain bank lent money to a dealer in farm produce.

The revision of the tariff downward on the instruments of production will help the producer to hold on, but the tariff on all the necessities of life must come off before there is a proper adjustment of prices and an equal opportunity to all men to live and save a little for a rainy day. In all these matters concerning the welfare of the masses of the people our honorable member, Mr. Elliott, took a strong hand, and with a manly spirit strove with all his might for those things which he and we believe in, and believe to be for the common good and today the producer who is the base and the building of the nation, is represented in Parliament in a manner which we feel is very satisfactory indeed.

Hitherto our county has been represented by men who saw or thought they saw, prosperity in concentrating the wealth of the country in the hands of a few men or corporations, instead of in a happy, prosperous and evenly developed community and in accordance with that idea taxed the many for the boosting of the few, and the result as we can see has been disastrous indeed. It is a strange anamoly, but it always holds true, that the first shall be last and the last first.

A few short years ago a delegation of farmers went to Ottawa to place their grievances before what we fondly thought was a people's parliament, and none of us have forgotten the strange manner of their reception, but the last shall be first and today the representatives of these same farmers are in parliament in every sense of the word, and our part is to keep them there to continue the good work so well begun.

Our best thanks go out to the men who throughout this last stormy session withstood all the sly tricks of one party and the jeers and accusations of the other party, and with splendid courage stood by their convictions and their people, and claimed and received a goodly share of the benefits heretofore denied them. Our best wishes and a mighty hand shake to Mr. Preston Elliott who stood out as one of the best among this little army who fought for the rights of the people, and although the historic county of Dundas no longer forms a Federal riding but is merged into another let the farmers of Dundas stay with the man who stood by them and all will be well.

R. Carkner.

BLANCHING CELERY

Celery has a bitter flavor and dark color is not properly blanched. Well blanched stalks vary in color from chalk-white to golden yellow according to variety. Blanching may be gin from two to four weeks previous to harvesting, according to the season. Early blanching may be accomplished by placing boards along the sides of the rows about six inches apart at the bottom and about two or three inches at the top. The soil should be pressed slightly against the base of the boards, and the top should be firmly held by means of a strip of wood or by a wire spanner. The boards should be from ten to twelve inches wide or more if tall celery is grown.

Days of Great Opportunity

We live in the days of great opportunity. The greatest opportunities are within our grasp.

Our own country is becoming to-day as never before a factor of importance in the councils of nations, and our great commercial enterprises are depending more and more upon high grade commercial colleges to supply their increasing demand for expertly trained young men and women.

You desire a good position. You want to be independent. But there is one thing you have to do on your part. No one can do it for you. You must say: "I am going to the Cornwall Commercial College;" and you must do this; telephone or write the Principal that you will be in on Monday, or sit down and write for complete information.

Every minute of your course will be filled with pleasure, and certainly every day of your employment will cause you to say we "speeded" your "journey of contentment"

CHOIR LEADER AND ORGANIST HONORED BY THEIR CHURCH

On the evening of July 17th, 1924, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Reveller of Cannamore, were very pleasantly surprised by the gathering to their home of a very large number of their friends, the members and adherents of the Morewood Methodist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Reveller have been very active members of their church for a great many years, taking a leading part in all things of interest in connection therewith, and the church has desired, for sometime, a suitable opportunity of expressing its appreciation for their invaluable services. An evening of very great joy was spent, during which Mr. H. Loucks, B. A., read an address of presentation, following which Mr. Joseph Moore presented Mr. Reveller with a Rocking chair beautifully upholstered in leather, and Mr. W. J. Glasgow presented Mrs. Reveller with a gold wrist watch and a leather music case.

Mr. Reveller replied for Mrs. Reveller and in his own behalf in a fine speech in which he expressed their appreciation to their friends, and voiced their delight in the opportunities for service which come to them in connection with the church and community life.

Following the address there was an impromptu programme of music and addresses all of which were richly enjoyed by the large number of friends present. The delightful evening was made even more replete by serving of refreshments, till all with one consent began to make excuse for not receiving any more.

The following is the address of presentation:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Reveler:—

Your Methodist friends including the members of the choir have gathered here this evening to enjoy a social hour. It is right that the spirit of brotherhood should manifest itself in some way. We assure you that it is more than a pleasure, it is a real joy to be with you on this occasion.

Both of you have freely laboured in the church in many ways. In the Sunday School you have taken a deeply religious interest that has been, indeed, a great blessing to all who have, in any way, been associated therewith. For long years you have nobly and efficiently assisted in many sphers of usefulness in our church. We wish to speak particularly of the splendid services you have rendered in connection with the church music, of your means you have frequently and cheerfully provided choir books; you have patiently and regularly attended choir practice, often when a rest at home would have been a real treat; you have, as highly efficient choir leader and organist respectively, been instrumental in training many who have, as a result, been more able to bring the gospel message in song; and upon many and many occasions you have rendered beutiful and inspiring solos.

We assure you both that the members of the choir are glad to express their appreciation of your ability and patience in training them. Too often members have been absent from practice and consequently have failed to benefit therefrom. In the future, we feel sure that there will be a greater interest than has obtained in the past.

All are, indeed glad that you are both enjoying good health. It is our earnest prayer that our Heavenly Father may spare you both for many years that your helpful services may continue. This is the desire of, not only those assembled here this evening but of the entire community where you have proved you worth as citizens.

"With what measure ye mete it shall be measured to you again." The seriousness and inspiring power of the substance of this passage are, we think, too often lost sight of, partially or almost entirel. We as beings are not fully conscious that all our just and righteous activities are certain to bring their reward. Your frienrs feel that words of appreciation, however eanest, are but a weak return for your willing and highly beneficial services, so they wish to express themselves in a more tangible way. Mr. Reveler, please accept this chair, and Mrs. Reveler the music-bag and wrist-watch, while these but feebly measure the debt due you, you have the consciousness that your full measure will come in present satisfaction and eternal rewards.

Signed Com.

VICTORS OF SUICIDE ACT DIE IN EACH OOTHERS ARMS

Peterboro, Ont., July 30.—Clasped in each other's arms, the bodies of Samuel Taylor and Mrs. Joseph Sharpe ere found floating on the Otonobee river near here shortly after six o'clock tonight. Coroner T. W. H. Young, after viewing the remains, decided that an inquest was unnecessary, that in each case death was due to suicide. The position of the bodies, tightly clasped together, he said gave every evidence that the act had been premeditated and there was no indication that there had been any effort on the part of either to save the other. They were both about 40 years of age.

Mr. Taylor was the district manager of a life insurance company here and is survived by his widow. Mrs. Sharpe, it is stated, had been estranged from her husband for 15 years. It is reported that he has since been in business in Detroit. Mr. Taylor and Mrs. Sharpe were said to have been much attached to each other.

The discovery of the bodies follows a search for the couple who had been missing since Sunday night. The police had been directed to look in the river by finding there a woman's hat and a man's cap which were identified as belonging to the missing couple. Many citizens joined in the search with grappling hooks and other devices for locating bodies in deep water, but they were unsuccessful until a party in canoes found the remains tonight.

On Sunday evening Taylor left his home for the office, stating that he was leaving later on one of his regular business trips to Kinmount, where he had an appointment for next morning, Lindsay, Fenelon Falls and Haliburton. He carried with him a club bag, later located in his office, which carried insurance papers ready for distribution during his contemplated trip. He stated that he would probably be away longer than usual, but in any event he would return by Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Sharpe, according to her brother, Robert Matchett, had been in her usual spirits during the past week. One or two of her actions, however, had since struck him as peculiar. He said that she had sent flowers to a number ofher friends on Saturday. Only last week she presented a pin to a friend of hers with instructions that she wear it as a slight token of regard.

She also left home at about six on Sunday evening to visit the home of Thomas E. Pratt, whose son, W. E. Pratt, had died on the preceding Saturday. She had not been seen after she had left the Pratt home.

A peculiar feature of the affair was the care with which Taylor settled up his business affairs at the week-end. Everything was found in order. His accounts were correct to the cent. and his bank balances had not been disturbed.

Taylor, on Saturday appeared unusually cheerful, according to his stenographer, and he had intimated to her that his proposed business trip would be a little longer than usual. At the close of the week he had returned several papers to Ross L. Dobbin, which action was regarded as usual.

FOUR BARNS ARE BURNED ON FARM NEAR RENFREW

John B. McLaren, farmer, two miles from Renfrew, suffered loss through fire Friday of upwards of $18,000 when four large barns were totally destroyed, leaving only his home and nearby Garage.

The fire started in a barn into which men were unloading hay, 35 to 40 tons of which had been drawn. McLaren had left it a few minutes before the fire started and does not attribute it to combustion as the hay was newly garnered and dry. Neither was he smoking. There is left therefore, the assumption that the origin was the result of defective electric wiring. The loss is covered by $6,000 blanket insurance, which includes the house and garage left standing.

His Only Extravagance

Old Hen Roddy, from Hogskin Hollow, is fond of boasting of his amazing thriftiness, by virtue of which he has accumulated a fairly substantial bank account.

"You're very careful about your expenditures, aren't you, Uncle Hen?" the village schoolmaster asked one day.

"Yes perfesser, I'm right smart that way. Fact, I don't recollect that I ever spent but one quarter for jist dern foolishness. That was when I let a storekeeper talk me into buyin' a pair o' socks."

CEMETERIES MUST BE KEPT UP

By a recent amendment to the cemetery act when the owner of a cemetery cannot be found, is unknown or is unable to maintain it, the municipality in which such cemetery is situated shall be deemed to be the owner and the council shall be charged with the duty of keeping it in order. Every county Council shall have the power to appoint one or more inspectors to look after the cemeteries and to enforce the act. If a township Council fails or neglects to properly care for a cemetery the inspector may secure a court order directing the Council to do so. If this order is not obeyed every member of such council can be held liable for contempt of court and punished accordingly, unless they can prove to the satisfaction of the court that they were not consenting parties to the neglect. The rural cemeteries have in the past been saved from utter neglect, to a large extent, by the exertions of Women's Institutes. MUST PAY FOR FURS WHICH HE NEVER GOT

T. E. Curvin, trading as the Peterboro Raw Fur Company, recovers $395.10 from Victor Zender, fur dealer, of Napanee, in a lawsuit in which the judgement has been handed down by His Honor Judge Ward of Port Hope, who sat on the case in Peterboro.

Zender made a deal with Curvin for the purchase of furs to the value claimed, chose the furs in Curvin's warehouse and sewed them in sacks ready for shipping. He then handed Curvin his cheque for the purchase price. This was about 1 o'clock on the morning of December 22nd last. When Curvin went to his storehouse to get the furs for the express company at 9 o'clock that morning he found that the room had been stripped of furs valued at thousands of dollars, including those purchased by Zender. The loot was never recovered, and the same men are believed to have burglarized other stores at Oshawa about the same time.

Curvin deposited the cheque to his credit in a bank and immediately telephoned to Zender, informing him of the burglary. On the cheque being presented for payment in Napanee it was returned, and the suit followed. The defendant contended that Curvin's promise to 'phone the express company to remove the furs was a part of the contract, and that after learning of the burglary he failed to telephone, thereby vitiating the contract. This arugment, Judge Ward declared untenable, the promise being merely an act of courtesy. Selection of the goods, bagging them up and giving the cheque is considered by the Judge sufficient acceptance.

WHY TESTS VARY

(Hoard's Dairyman)

The following statements are taken from a letter received from a man who is doing the testing for a cow testing association and who was asked by Professor Farrington of Wisconsin to give from his experience some explanation of the complaint sometimes made by farmers sending milk to a cheese factory or to some other milk buyer, that the test they receive of their milk sent to the buyer does not correspond with the test of the milk given them at the farm by the cow testing man.

The following are quotations from the cow tester's letter:

The occasional controversy between farmers and testers of cream and milk is in my opinion about 90 per cent. the fault of the farmer himself. He is not versed, nor does he care to think deeply enough, to make a solution of the difference that they think exists. I wish, however, you could make some explanation and relieve us cow testers of the criticisms we are getting.

"I have tested at the farmers' homes and at the cheese factory, and will submit a few ofthe reasons I have found for differences in tests of the same milk at the two places.

"First some of the milk taken to the factory was slightly sour.

"Second, the milk was sometimes skimmed before it went to the factory.

"Third, the milk of the Jersey cows in the herd was taken to the house and not sent to the factory.

"Fourth, the stripper cows were stripped when I came to the house, but let go dry when I left, and this rich milk which made four points difference in the test was left out when the milk was sent to the factory.

"Fifth, at the farm where I tested, tested higher than that at the house because the farmer fed all the poor milk to the calves and took the rich milk to the factory.

"At another place the cows were milked irregularly and this affected the test at both places.

"At one farm the difference in test was due to an abnormal high feed which they gave the cows when I came to do the testing at the farm. These cows at that time were at their best flow of milk and it gave a lower test for the day, but the cows were all unstrung and feverish so that the test after this incident was high and the milk flow was down.

"At another farm where 500 pounds of milk per day were produced; the top of the milk from the cans was poured off into a separate can from which the farmer took his own milk for the house before sending to the factory.

"I have tested at a number of farms where it seemed to me the farmer was trying to fool the tester, and by trying it, he generally gets into hot water himself. I have had water put into my acid, which made a cloudy test, and also water put into the sample on account of my having a poor lock on the sample case. However, I try to treatall the farmers as fair as possible because the cow tester has to go to all the farmers' homes and that is one good reason at least why he does not want to have any suspicion or bad feelings in his relations to the farmers. There is no doubt in my mind that if anyone will take some of the same sample of milk to the cheesemaker at the factory and the cow tester at the farm, the two tests will be the same.

"I know one cheesefactory where the milk samples that had been collected for several days, and to which a preservative had been added, were left with the cover off and the cat came along and licked the cream off the top of several bottles. The way I know this is because the cat died, but I am still liable to be accused of trying to cheat the poor innocent cows, which are the most humble servant man ever had."

Clever Mother

Julian sought information from his father as to what one calls a person who "reads heads?"

"A phrenologist, my son," said dad.

"Gee!" exclaimed Julian, "then mother must be one of 'em!. She felt on my head this afternoon and said right away, 'You've been swimming!'"

Two of a Kind

"Do you know," said a cunning Yankee to a Jew, "that they hang Jews and jackasses together in Portland?"

"Indeed, brother, then it's well you and I are not there."

Here and There

Although it is only 18 years ago that Alberta became a province, its population has increased fourfold, while the grain yield has increased twentyfold. Even at the present low prices, the total agricultural products of Alberta in 1923 were worth $223,000,000.

Reports concerning the apple crop in the Annapolis Valley show that the entire crop, including the estimated local consumption, was 1,816,000 barrels. It is reported that 70,000 apple trees and 3,000 plum trees will be set out in the valley this spring.

The railways of Canada up to the end of last April earned $6,000,000 more than they did for the corresponding period in 1923. This favorable result is due entirely to the fact that the people have been doing more business. All authorities are agreed that such a condition means growing trade.

Nearly 68,000 bushels of high class seed were handled at the Alberta government seed-cleaning plant during the past season. A total of 22,823 bushels of Marquis wheat seed was handled, 3,160 bushels of ruby wheat, 23,073 bushels of Victory oats, 17,862 bushels of Banner oats, and 684 bushels of Bark's Barley.

Three prizes for anglers at the bungalow camps on French River, Nipigon River, and the Lake of the Woods, have been offered to Canadian fishermen by the Canadian Pacific Railway. The trophies are silver replicas of the bass and the trout, and a wonderful reproduction of the head of a fighting muscalonge.

Among the speakers to address the great convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World at London, England, to be held July 14-17, will be E. W. Beatty, K.C., Chairman and President of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Mr. Beatty will speak on July 17, and has chosen as his theme "Building an Empire with Advertising."

Canada's national wealth in 1921 was $22,195,000,000, according to a report just issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. In the tabulation, agricultural wealth comes first with $7,982,871,126, nearly 36 per cent of the total and about $908 per head of population. The Western provinces lead, the Yukon topping the list with $4,058. The first in absolute wealth was Ontario, to which is credited the sum of $7,358,000,000, or thirty-three per cent of the Dominion total.

Shipping in and out of the port of Vancouver, B.C., for the calendar year 1923, showed an increase in all departments, according to the annual report of the Board of Harbor Commissioners. Over $133,000,000 worth of goods were exported, an increase of $30,000,000 over the value of the 1922 exports, while the imports totalled $224,000,000, an increase of $13,000,000 over the 1922 figures. GEORGE L. SHAY

Health Restored by The Fruit Treatment

Fourteen years ago, Mr. James S. Delgaty, of Gilbert Plains, Man., was a nervous wreck. His system was shattered by Nervous Prostration, and he was reduced in weight from 170 to 115 pounds.

He wrote on May 15th, 1917, "Every medicine I tried proved useless until a friend induced me to take 'Fruit-a-tives.' I began to mend at once. After using this fruit medicine for three months, I was back to normal. I have never had such good health as I have enjoyed the past six years. We are never without a box of 'Fruit-a-tives' in the house."

Writing again on September 27th, 1923, Mr. Delgaty says, "I stand by my letter to you in 1917—I still recommend 'Fruit-a-tives'."

"Fruit-a-tives" is a complete fruit treatment—being made of the juices of fresh ripe fruits and tonics.

BEEF SCRAP VERSUS SKIM MILK FOR HENS

(Experimental Farms Note.)

It is an accepted fact that hens must have some form of animal protein in their feeding ration and this is usually supplied by beef scrap. Two years ago an experiment was started at the Experimental Farm, Nappan, N. S. to determine the relative values of beef scrap and skim milk when added to the laying ration. Two pens were made up of ten birds each, as uniform in breeding, age and type as it was possible to select. The rations fed to each pen were alike and constant except that Pen 1 received beef scrap and Pen 2 skim milk . The results obtained show the possibilities there are of realizing good value for skim milk by feeding more of it to the hen.

The average production from the ten birds receiving beef scrap for the two six-months feeding periods (Nov. 1 to April 30 each year) was 615.6 eggs at a feed cost of $13.75 or 26 cents per dozen, leaving a profit over feed cost of 97.2 cents per bird. In Pen 2 the ten birds receiving skim milk over the same period had an average production of 699.5 eggs at a feed cost of $12.70 or 21 cents per dozezn leaving a profit over feed cost of $1.49 per bird.

By taking the average of two years it was found that 598. 7 pounds skim milk valued at 20 cents per hundred and thus costing $1.20 gave greater returns than 39 pounds beef scrap at a market price of $7.24 per hundred thus costing $2.62. It as believed at the Experimental Farm, the increase in production from the pens receiving milk can be attributed to the value of skim milk as a food for laying hens, it would be fair to state that the farmer had received slightly better than one dollar per hundredweight for his skim milk when he marketed it through his eggs.

As this feeding test has only been carried on for two years it does not permit our drawing definite conclusions yet. However, the results to date would leave one to believe that a part of the skim milk available on the farm can be very profitably marketed through the egg and would seem to be a more profitable proposition than paying $7 per hundred for beef scrap in order to supply the amount of protein so essential for profitable egg productin.

The Know-it-Alls

Senator Smith, the new chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, said at a dinner in Washington:

"Some pretty fantastic suggestions are put forth about the regulations of the railroads. Raise wages, lower rates and increase profits—that is the idea of a good many amateur regulators. These men remind me of the old fellow who said: 'My boy Ben's got a grand old job now, Savin' money hand over fist.' 'Yep?' said the grocer. 'What's Ben doin'?' 'He works all night and saves his lodgin', and then sleeps all day and saves his grub.'"

To Whom The Credit.

Doctor—Young man, you owe your very remarkable recovery to your wife's tender nursing.

Patient—Thanks, doctor. I shall make out the cheque to my wife.

A Safety Tip for Night Driving

One sees a great deal in the newspapers advocating the dimming of headlights when meeting another car at night, but to dim the headlights is one of the most dangerous things a motorist can do. When driving at 25 miles an hour, and when the headlights are suddenly dimmed, the car will go more than er can accommodate themselves to see 100 feet before the eyes of the driv- the dimmed path of light in front and before the driver is able to distinguish objects on the road or turns, or anything else that might interfere with safe operation of the car. It is much better to have the headlamps on—but properly adjusted, so that the brightest beams are kept down within three feet of the road surface at a distance of 25 feet. At this distance there will be no danger of blinding of oncoming drivers from glare.

PEGLEG'S SWEEPING

By Frank Lewis Nason

Imagine a cellar three quarters of a mile long, from five hundred to one thousand feet from floor to roof, with innumerable props of rock and timber to keep the roof from falling in! Then imagine the cellar four hundred feet under ground, and you will have a good idea of the Union lead mine. The cellar stairs are called a shaft, and in the shaft is an elevator that the miners call a cage; by means of the cage three hundred men go down into the cellar three times a day, and three time a day two hundred men come up out of it. Between times the cage is busy lifting lead ore for the mill. The cellar is leaky of course; to keep it dry a huge pump draws two thousand gallons of water to the surface every minute of twenty-four hours.

Four times a day there is a terrible commotion in the mine. A man with a flaming torch--he is the "shot-firer"—goes from heading to heading, and for half an hour thereafter the ground four hundred feet above trembles, and from the head of the shaft puffs of steam and smoke drive out. The foreman will tell you if you ask him, that they are firing the rounds of shot to break down the ore.

The foreman stands at the head of the shaft and counts: "One, two, three, four, five—" and so on to a hundred or more. Then he straightens. "All over," he says, meaning that all the shots have exploded. Or perhaps he looks sober and shakes his head, as when he has counted only ninety-nine explosions, and the shift boss has reported a hundred holes loaded. Then he turns to the shift boss. "You've missed a hole in number three heading. Look out for it."

One day while I was a student in a mining school I stood at the head of the shaft. It was "tally,"—that is, time to begin work,— and two hundred men were waiting to go down. As the cage came up the men crowded in, an air signal whistle shrill, and the cage dropped.

Leaning over the mouth of the shaft when the last load had gone down, I could hear through the clack and throb of the great pump a muffled patter begin and then another and another till a perfect bedlam of patters had set in; the machine drills in the headings were boring another round of holes.

The foreman, Bob Sizzemore, was drawing on a pair of oilskins, preparatory to going down.

"May I go down with you?" I asked eagerly. I was all excitment, and my nerves tingled with a delicious fear.

The foreman shook his head doubtfully. "What for?" he asked.

"I've never been down in a mine, and I want to see how it feels."

"Oh, you do, do you?" The foreman looked scornful. "Let me bandage your eyes right here and bid you chase yourself off. You'll stumble over rocks and sticks no doubt, and you'll fall and break your neck. Never mind; 'twill be safer so. I can pick you up and seewhere you have been hurt. But underground when you break your neck as you are bound to do, I'll have to pick you up, put you in a powder box, load you on a car and send you up in the cage."

"But I shan't break my neck."

"Come along then if you don't know what's good for you and won't listen to them as does," said the foreman gruffly.

Sizemore went down with me. I began to think he was right; I never knew what darkness was until I stepped from the cage. I could see nothing not even the floor of the mine. The torches in our hats made only a sphere of light in the velvet darkness. And noises! They leaped from the darkness at me. The rattle of drills, the deep, tremulous sighs of the groaning pump, the crack of the valves as they snapped on their seats under the pressure of four hundred feet of water, all filled me with a terror that I tried to conceal. I did not see the rocks and rails that I stumbled over and but for Bob's grip on my arm should have fallen over. Water was dripping from the roof down my neck and running into streams from my oilskins. Then I saw in one heading detached bits of yellow light bobbing in the black and heard rocks clanging in to the steel cars and hoarse cries—perhaps they were warning us of some impending danger! My heart stood still; then I was partly reassured as I heard through the din the steady clump, clump of Bob's boots at my side.

Finally the last remnant of my self-possession fled. Right at my feet a shrill, whistling hiss began and then a succession of hissing shrieks. I jumped and almost freed myself from Bob's grip. Through the din heard his derisive chuckle; then he shouted in my ear, "It's the donkey pump. It won't bite."

For two hours I was yanked and dragged from heading to heading. Then we turned a sharp corner, and the din suddenly died to a confused murmur.

Bob's voice was staccato. "Do you see the bit of a box house over there?"

"Yes," I answered. It was the first thing I had seen, a kind of house ten feet square.

"It's the powder magazine," Bob explained. "Sit down and rest a bit. Do you see the blackened boards on the house?"

"Yes"

"There's a story about those blackened boards. I'll tell it to you while you rest."

Bob again pointed to the magazine. "Do you see the sawdust on the floor?"

"Yes," I answered.

"That sawdust is from the powder boxes that the powder is packed in. 'Tis soaked full of glycerine, and 'twill burn like tinder. Do you see the man on the chest?" he continued. "Well, that's Pegleg. He used to be Bill Snead till he got his leg shot off by a missed hole. Now he's Pegleg. He's priming now and giving the powder a chance at what's left of him. Priming," Bob explained, "is putting a cap on the end of a fuse and then puttingthe cap into a piece of powder. After that it's put into the charged hole to explode the charge.

" 'Tis a year ago this very day Pegleg came near having the rest of himself sent after his leg. In the magazine are two tons of dynamite and one ton of black powder. In the chest where Pegleg is sitting are the exploders. 'Tis against the law to store exploders with powder. For that matter three tons of powder in a mine's against the law too, but there it is.

"Well," Bob continued, "one day Pegleg had finished his priming and was up at the collar of his shaft chatting with the top man when up came the cage with a tram boy scared so white that it showed through the black of his face. 'The magazine's afire!" he yelled and started for the superintendent, who was in the door of the mill.

"The super didn't stand long after the tram boy showed him the white through the black face of him. Two hops and he was on the cage floor, and me and the shift boss beside him. The whistle sounded and the cage dropped as if an engine wasn't tied to the other end of the rope. On the way down the old man said, Bob, you go to number oneheading, Jack, you go to number two, and I'll go to number three."

"Number three was towards the magazine. It'e the most dangerous place of course, —the old man's the stuff,—but there wasn't any time to dispute, for the cage bumped the bottom, and we were off to warn the men. In ten minutes the men were at the foot of the shaft with the old man herding them on the cage. 'Hustle!' was all he said. Then the cage began to shoot up and down.

"I never saw an engine eat rope like that. The engineer knew what was up, and he just fed them cylinders steam till they near burst. The last one up was the old man himself. He looked around over the men. 'Are all up?" he asked?"

"Then the top man looked scared and said, 'All but Pegleg. He went down next cage after you. I couldn't stop him. He said he was to blame for the fire and, if he couldn't put it out, he'd be blowed out of the shaft with the rest.'

"The old man hopped the cage again, and I was with him. 'Get off!' he yelled. 'One man's enough.' That was the only time I ever disobeyed orders. The old man tried to put me off, but in the scuffle I yanked the whistle cord and the engineer dropped us."

Bob paused thoughtfully.

"Well?" I suggested impatiently, for it was exciting; three tons of powder afire and Bob stopping in the midst of his story!

He resumed leisurely; I knew by his eye that he was purposely tantalizing me.

"The old man didn't say any more. 'Twasn't no use. We were both at the bottom, streaking for the magazine. Any second that powder might go off and blow the shaft up against the sky and us with it. When we turned this corner"—Bob jerked his thumb over his shoulder into the blackness—"we didn't see anything. We began to think that the boy was mistaken. We couldn't even see Pegleg's lamp. We knew that the powder couldn't have gone off without our hearing about it, and so we stood for a minute wandering what was up.

"Just then we saw a light. It was on the floor, and Pegleg was back of it, crawling out from under the magazine. The old man grabbed him and lifted him up. He was a sight! His whiskers were gone, and so were his eyebrows. All the hair he had left was under his hat. The rest of the story is Pegleg's.

" 'You see,' Pegleg said, 'I forgot and left my torch on the cap chest. A shot must have jarred it into the sawdust and set it afire. When I got here the magazine was blazing. I grabbed a pail of water on my way and was just going to throw it on the fire when a streak of sense hit me. I knew if I threw water on the fire there would be an explosion that would send off the hot powder with a bang. So I grabbed a broom and began to sweep. I never did any such sweeping before in my life! Of course my broom began to burn, but I dipped it in the pail and shook off the free water and then went to sweeping again. Well,' — Pegleg laughed a little.—'you see I swept it out! But I'm sort of nervous now its over. The men were scared white, wa'n't they?' Then he laughed again.

"Well," continued Bob, "the old man and I opened the magazine." Bob looked at me queerly. "Do you know what we found?"

"The magazine was empty!" I exclaimed, excitedly jumping to a conclusion.

Bob looked at me with disgust. "Empty!" he exclaimed scornfully. "Didn't I tell you that there was two tons of dynamite and one ton of black powder in there?"

"Yes," I answered, "so you did."

"Well, the paper labels on the black powder cans were burned to a cinder with the heat. You don't know what that means either do you?"

I shook my head meekly.

"Well, if you're going to be a miner you want to know. Dynamite 'ill burn like a torch; without you jar it while it's burning it won't explode. Black powder's just the other way. You can jar it all you want, so long as you keep fire away from it. Well, as I told you, that black powder was near hot enough to explode. If it had exploded, the dynamite would have gone with it, and Pegleg wouldn't be priming there, nor me and you sitting here. There wouldn't be any mine either. Pegleg put that fire out just in time."

HOW POISON IVY WORKS

"When people say that poison ivy has a vapor and that people can be poisoned at a distance, it is simply a fairy tale," said the Prof. Thompson. "The poison is contained in the inside tissue of the plant. In walking through a place where the ivy grows, people crunch it with their boots, and then unlacing removing their boots their hands come in contact with poison. After rubbing their warm hands over their warm brows the work is complete, but as they have not handled the plant they cannot understand how they come to be poisoned. The best remedy is iodine or alcohol—if obtainable."

THE SMALL TOWN

If there is any more wholesome and beautiful place to live in this world, than in any one of hundreds of so-called small towns, the Editor does not know where it is.

It is difficult for the resident of any one of our large cities to understand the attraction of the smaller places. But that the charm is there in abundance, the most skeptical has only to visit one of these communities of home living people to be convinced.

The writer has had the great privilege of visiting many of these towns of from one to fifteen thousand in population, and has often compared the greater happiness of these people with that of the people in our crowded cities. Always there are handsome churches and schools, the streets are shaded by beautiful trees, the houses are comfortable and homelike, the yards are large and weil kept, and the stores are up-to-date and attractive.

Best of all the people living in such towns have real neighbors. They know each other and they enjoy visiting back and forth. The happiness of one family is shared by all as are their sorrows. When trouble comes there are plenty of friends and helpers. The people have time to read books and magazines and they are not hurried and crowded.

Good roads and automobiles make access to the entertainment of the city easy and living expenses are not excessive. It is an ideal life and the splendid growth of industry in these towns provides ample opportunity for successful business. More and more as the cities grow larger, do the people of the smaller towns have reason to be happy and satisfied with the attractiveness and comfort of their own mode of life.
