Unveiling at Morrisburg

The Soldiers monument at Morrisburg will be unveiled on Sunday afternoon September ninth at 2 o'clock. The Countess of Minto is returning to her old home to perform the ceremony. The Reeve and council extend to all and especially to returned soldiers a cordial invitation to be present.

Rain Still The Hodoo

The races billed for Tuesday and Wednesday on the local track were held up by rain, which put the track in such shape that the programme for the first day had to be held over until the following, and the big card until this afternoon.

Work Has Commenced on King Street

Work commenced yesterday on the section of King street between The Square and Ralph street preparing it for the laying of the cement roadway which is to extend to the C.P.R. grounds. The breaking up of the surface proved a very strenuous job for two teams of horses and the man who held the plough.

Field Day at Finch

On Monday next, Labor Day, a big programme of sports is billed to take place at Finch, with a dance in the evening. A feature that will attract many is an address to be delivered by Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Dominion Minister of Agriculture. At the present time the minister should have something particularly interesting to say to the farming community.

High School Re-opening

The High School re-opens on Tuesday Sept. 4 at 9 a. m. The staff consists of Mr. Fred. J. Barlow, Principal and Miss Mullett of Carleton Place and Miss Ann Henry of New Toronto as assistants. The scholars of last year did real well at the final examinations and the board is hoping for as good if not better results this coming year.

Error in Examination Results

We regret very much that, through an oversight, the report of successful candidates of Room A, of the Public School, as published in last week's issue, did not include the following names:

Passed Entrance: Graham Weegar.

Promoted from Sr. III to Jr. IV: Kenneth Haley, Eldridge Perault, Margaret Perault.

Results of The Middle School Examination Chesterville High School

Of the pupils who wrote in the local High School on this examination 8 were successful in all the papers on which they wrote and thus complete their Entrance to Normal, of the others the first number after the name indicates the number of subjects on which the candidate wrote and the second number indicates the number of papers in which they were successful.

Those who were completely successful are:

Andrew Clement, Evelyn Curran, Hosea Droppo, Arnold McMartin, Kathleen Masterson, Lenora Merkley, Nina Short, Lera Fetterly.

Those who write supplementals in September or else complete their work next year are:

Annie Barkley 10, 7. Karl Bowman 7, 6. Evelyn Carr 3, 2. Katheryn Covne 3, 2. Grace Cunningham 8, 5. Erma Durant 5, 3. Florence Flynn 6, 5. Eva Gillissie 7, 3. Margaret Grady 6, 5. Marion Gray 3, 2. Aura Graham 8, 7. Geo. Hess 8, 2. Margaret Kearney 8, 5. Eva Kirby 5, 3. Madolyn McAvoy 8, 2. Harold MacDonald 8, 1. Nellie MacDonald 8, 3. Arthur MacElroy 6, 5. Douglas McGee 5, 4. Bruce MacMillan 8, 3. Stuart MacMillan 7, 2. Katie Manley 6, 4. Jack Sanders 8, 1. Ellen Smith 8, 7. Lottie Taylor 8, 1. Matilda Wilson 3, 1.

It is expected that about 12 pupils from our school will attend Normal this year.

Mr. Adamson of the Lyon Dress Company of Toronto, will be at H. J. McMahon's store with the latest styles in dresses for misses and ladies, on Saturday of this week.

Merkley—Spearman

A marriage ceremony took place at seven o'clock Thursday evening August 23rd, in Ottawa South Methodist church, when Miss Elsie Muriel Spearman, only daughter of Mrs. W.O. Spearman, became the bride of Mr. Gerald Ira Merkley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Merkley of Chesterville. Rev. Richardson Kelly, pastor of Westboro Methodist church officiated.

Given in marriage by her mother and attended as flower girl by a little cousin, Miss Lois Colquhoun the bride was lovely in a dress of white Duchesse satin, and long bridal veil edged with lace and arranged in fan shape effect at the back of the head. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses. Presiding at the organ was Miss Lily Revill, and vocal solos were given by Mr. Oliver Dawson.

The groom's gift to the bride was a gold mesh bag and the bride's gift to the groom was a gold watch chain. The organist received a silver coin purse, the soloist a gold watch chain, and the little flower girl a ring.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, 210 Flora street, which was attended by sixty guests. Mr. and Mrs. Merkley left on a motor trip to the Eastern States, the bride travelling in a deep blue tricotine costume and a small felt hat. Upon their return they will take up residence on Flora street.

Chesterville Gold Mine

The Chesterville Larder Lake Gold Mining Co. now has several large camp buildings on their property at the northeast arm of Larder Lake. The management has started surface trenching and test pit sinking and have uncovered a vein fifteen feet in width, which carries visible gold. The total length of the vein will be uncovered before a shaft is sunk. It is expected that a shipment of a few tons of ore will be sent to the Temiskaming Testing Laboratories from this and other veins within the next couple of weeks. Messrs. Hermon Hummel, W. G. Barkley and J. T. Kearns still hold the greater part of the stock in this mine, and appear to be in a fair way to be richly rewarded for their continued faith that they had one of the best properties in the north country.

Don't forget the date of Mountain Fair Thursday and Friday September 6 and 7th. $2000 in Society prizes, $500 in trials of speed. Over $300 for special prizes. Big midway and other special attractions. For particulars, write or hone the Secretary Treas., H. E. A. leland.

Freaks of the Storm

Some freaks of the hail storm in Winchester are in evidence in Mr. Sweet's store where a hail stone cut a hole in a window. The hole in one window is about 2 inches in diameter and perfectly round. The piece cut out by the hail was found inside, and is a perfect fit for the round hole. The other piece is about four inches in diameter, but not perfectly round, but almost a heart shape. This also fits perfectly the hole in the window. No other part of either window was broken.

After The Owner of Cattle

An automobile-cattle case is reported from Kincardine. A driver ran into a herd of thirteen cows on the road, disabling his car to the extent of $200. The cattle were impounded. The owner of car now claims damages from the owner of the cows There is no township by law forbidding the roaming of cattle on the highway, but it appears that when there is no township by-law the county by-law becomes applicable.

Fire Near Osnabruck Centre

The house of Mr. George Brownell, North of Osnabruck Centre, was burned down on Tuesday evening of last week. The fire is supposed to have started from the chimney. Mrs. Brownell and child were alone at the time, Mr. Brownell, who is a carpenter, being engaged on work near Finch. There was a high wind and but for the strenuous efforts of the neighbors, who quickly gathered, the splendid barn would have been destroyed. They succeeded in getting out the contents of the lower floor of the house, but everything upstairs was burned. The loss is heavy and only a small insurance.

Bull Breaks Loose Butts Car Into Ditch

Maddened by the scent of blood at the Abattoir to which he was being led in Kitchener, a bull broke loose from a farmer and for two hours defied all efforts to catch him. The infuriated animal bowled over a man on the street, ditched a small touring car and knocked down a horse on its wild career. Residents were terrorized when the bull invaded their back lawns and gardens. Children playing had narrow escapes from being gored. The animal was finally lassoed by park workers and subsequently shot.

Beans in Brine

You do not need a big jar or tub, to put up brine beans but can use your glass-topped jars. The jars with snap tops, not screwed on rings, are best for this purpose. To every nine cups of beans, tipped and broken, add one level cup of sugar and one level cup of salt. Mix well in an enamel, or earthenware, dish or basin aud let stand over night. The brine will form without any added water. Next morning, pack the beans in your glass jars, fill to overflowing with the brine and seal air tight. When cooking, drain them, pour boiling water over them, drain and repeat. They may then be cooked as ifthey were fresh beans.

The Busy Ten-Dollar Bill

Mr. Brown keeps a boarding house. Around his table sat his wife, Mrs. Brown; the village milliner, Mrs. Andrews; Mr. Black, the baker; Mr. Jordan, a carpenter and Mr. Hadley, a flour, feed and lumber merchant.

Mr. Brown took ten dollars out of his pocket and handed it to Mrs. Brown with the remark that there was ten dollars towards the twenty dollars he promised her.

Mrs. Brown handed the bill to Mrs. Andrews, the milliner, saying. "That pays for my new bonnet."

Mrs. Andrews in turn passed it to Mr. Jordan, remarking that it would pay for the carpenter work he had done for her.

Mr. Jordan handed it to Mr. Hadley, requesting his receipted bill for lumber.

Mr. Hadley gave the bill back to Mr. Brown saying, "That pays ten dollars on my board bill."

Mr. Brown again passed it to Mrs. Brown, remarking that he had now paid her the twenty dollars he promised her. She in turn paid Mr. Black to settle her bread and pastry account. Mr. Black handed it to Mr. Hadley, asking credit for account on his flour bill.

Mr. Hadley again returned it to Mr. Brown with the remark that it now settled the balance for that month's board.

Mr. Brown put the bill back in his pocket, observing that he had not supposed a green back would go so far.

But, suppose Mrs. Brown had sent to a mail order house for her new bonnet, then the ten dollars would have gone out of town and never come back.—Walkerton Telescope.

Motored to Winnipeg and Return

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Fetterly and two children of Cornwall, returned home last week from a motor trip of 36 days to Winnipeg and the Western States. The trip, was a most enjoyable one, and was made mostly on the American side and Mr. Fetterly was loud in his praises of the roads in the States. They spent a week with friends in Winnipeg and also in Iowa, two days in Buffalo, and two days in Toronto, and only encountered one day of rain on the entire trip, that on the last lap of the journey. Crops of unprecedented proportions were predicted by Mr. Fetterly in Canada and the U. S.

"A PROFITABLE WAY OF SPENDING A HOLIDAY"

A paper given by Mrs. Fred Reveler of Cannamore, at a recent meeting of Morewood Women's Institute.

A change of surroundings has been the great stimulus to bodily and mental activity. Had there been no changes in our invironment everything would have been in a terrible condition. A year of steady temperature, or constant sunlight, would be intolerable, and though we often complain of the cold of winter and the heat of summer, and tire of a week of rain, these brief stretches of monotony only serve to heighten the happy effect of a change when it comes.

Occupations and everyday associations usually grow to be more of a bore than the weather, and a temporary change even to something less agreeable in the long run seems a boon.

One benefit of temperary change not to be overlooked is that it gets a person out of his ruts of diet, exercise, thinking or what not. It always does us good to be pried out of our ruts for a season, for after having a good look at them we are more apt to steer to one side.

This change then is a stimulent. Its effect may only be temporary but it gets one away more or less from old mental or physical habits and associations.

Summer is the holiday season. During July and August all the hotels and boarding houses at the seashore and mountain, as well as at the various lake and country resorts, are crowded with people in search of rest and recreation. It goes without saying that everybody, old and young, wants to have a good time during this annual outing.

Now, there are many different ways of spending this annual holiday and there is only one sort of person who is sure to enjoy herself wherever she goes, or what ever happens, and it does not matter much whether she is young or old, rich or poor, pretty or plain, her vacation will never be a failure, if she makes up her mind to take her good time with her, thus making her holiday not only profitable to herself but to others as well.

If the opportunity be given us to go away for a few weeks to some pleasant resort, let us resolve to make the most profitable and enjoyable holiday out of it we can.

Nobody doubts the benefits of an occasional change, and nobody but would advise those who are tired of the sameness of ltfe, and everyday repitition of household duties, the endless following of like things one after another, to "get away" from home.

But suppose we admit physically we cannot do this, that the round of duties must be made day by day, no matter if the body falters and the mind wearies with it all. What then? Then we must take a mental vocation. After all, one need not move his body to be truly at a distance from cares and occupations. Consider for a moment the "absence of mind" that makes one forget his surroundings. That "absence" is a time fact and may be systematically cultivated until one may at a moment's notice take a trip to distant points, profit by the absence and come back feeling refreshed in mind and spirit and hence correspondingly in body. When these little journeyings are undertaken let them be in pleasant paths. Labour and its necessities are blessings but it is profitable, as well as duty, to supply something to act pleasantly over against a too intense and strained application of our physical faculties. This way out of possible dreariness due to overworking in a too continuous sameness of things may be relieved as said by mental means—a vacation of the mind, which brings relief, relaxation and enjoyment, even if indulged in but a few moments eaily.

If our vacation is to be spent at home; I am sure it would be profitable to us to occupy our time with some particular hobby, that we had not time to indulge in before Suppose we give up a few minutes each day to the care, cultivation and study of something we like. No matter what its form. Flowers? Very well, let it be flowers. Plant, sow, tend, water and watch them grow. Study them, try to discover the best method of raising them. They will reward to all who live within sight as well as to yourselves, for what greater pleasure could there be chan carrying some of God's sweetest gifts to some one to whom a bouquet is rare indeed.

Those who love good reading, indulge in it. Get even light reading, and spend a few moments each day in its enjoyment Reading gives the brain something pleasant to do, to consider. The mind is relieved from tensioe and furnished with material for fresh varieties of thought that certainly do bring the rest that comes from change.

In conclusion, I might say, that our vacation may br spent profitably both to ourselves and to others, whether we are at home or abroad, if we resolve to enjoy to the utmost every little pleasure that comes our way, and to gloss over any annoyance with a laugh and pleasant mind. It is a homely old adage that "honey catches more flies than vinegar" yet it possesses a deal of truth, for the person who greets the world with a smile and a cheery word can make harmony wherever she goes, and happiness by a certain law of attraction will draw near and they will literally take their good times with them everywhere, and find that as the long summer days begin to come to an end and the maples take on a golden hue, that their vacation has been both a happy and profitable one

Okanagan and Fruit Conservation

The view is that of a flourishing new fruit district in the Okanagan Valley near which Mrs. Smith (inset) has opened her dehydration plant (bottom left).

THE fruit products industry of Mrs. M. B. Smith of Naramata, Okanagan Valley, is a story of Canadian initiative that has assumed large proportions. After extensive research work and experimenting on a small scale, Mrs. Smith is this year opening up a large plant for the dehydration of fruit at Poplar Grove, between Naramata and Penticton, where seventy fruit products will be prepared instead of eleven as sent out by Mrs Smith from her ranch on the benches.

The site of the new factory is a point in the very heart of the fruit district and convenient to the railway. A siding of the Kettle Valley Railway will be run into the premises.

The most important factor of the enlarged scope of the work is that the new industry will utilize much soft and perishable fruit that would otherwise go to waste as most of the fruit must be in a tree-ripened condition for dehydration and therefore much too ripe to ship.

Mrs. Smith was visiting on the prairies in the early stages of the war when conservation of food was beginning to be a vital question. She saw dried logan berries for the first time and it led her to dwell on the possibilities of the dehydration of other fruits and vegetables. Later, visiting in the Okanagan Valley, she was much concerned over the large quantity of fruit and vegetables that could not be shipped so, with broad vision and patriotic idea, she began the evaporation of fruit. Mrs. Smith made an extensive study of the work and persisted, despite the fact that men of experience declared that she could not dry fruit, other than apples. Now she is in the unique position of being the first one in Canada who has dried fruit, other than apples, on a commercial basis. Her dried peach is the only totally peeled peach on the market, either in Canada or the United States.

Mrs. Smith, being very much interested in movements to promote the practical usefulness of women, declares that there is a large opportunity for women in this work. Having no desire to keep a monopoly of the new industry of which she may be said to be the founder, she hopes that all women in fruit growing districts may start small evaporating plants to care for their surplus fruits, not only for their own households but also for export.

By dehydration a large part of the fruit and vegetables which otherwise spoil is saved. The products are so reduced in weight and bulk that one railway car or one ship will carry as much dehydrated fruit as ten of fresh.

Mrs. Smith, in continuing to make a study of conditions, is opening up a new field and demonstrating that women are the natural housekeepers of the race.

Finishing Hens and Broilers

(Experimental Farms Note).

Dispose all hens that are not to be kept over for breeders just as soon as they stop laying. If this plan is followed the marketing will be extended over a considerable period. If you can get them all marketed before broilers become plentiful you are certain to obtain much better prices than if you market them later in the season.

After hens have been laying heavily they are likely to be thin in flesh and should not be marketed until put in good condition again. Even hens that have been loafing and are consequently fat are not in as good condition for killing as they should be. Ten days feeding in the crates will make a great difference in these birds, as the crate feeding and the inactivity softens the muscles and make the fowl much more tender and juicy.

Many poultry growers do not consider that special feeding of broilers is necessary. They think that because the chickens are young that they will be tender and consequently they take them from the range and market them as they are. Such methods tend to retard the demand for poultry meats. A consumer who gets a broiler that is hard and stringy is not inclined to order another, but if he gets a broiler that has been properly fed in confinement for ten days to two weeks the quality will be such that he will want more. To properly finish either fowls or broilers they should be crate fed. Nothing but soft feed should be used and to get the finest quality it is necessary to mix the mash with sour milk, in the proportion of about three pounds of milk to two pounds of grain. A mixture of equal parts of finely ground oats and cornmeal is one of the best feeds but other grains may be used if lower in price or more easily obtained.

A little salt added to the feed will make it more palatable and the fowl will eat more Do not over feed for the first day or two, as the birds will go off their feed and will loose weight instead of putting it on.

Only by marketing poultry of the highest quality, will an increased demand be created.

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

Mr. Joe Walsh is home for his annual holiday.

Mr. Alfred Harradine was in town for the week end visiting his mother.

Miss Minnie Neelen is in Smiths Falls spending her holidays with her aunt and friends.

Mr. George Dunn of Carleton Place, is spending a few days with his sister, Mrs. A.O. Robertson.

Agent R.L. Stevens and operator A. MacMillan of Winchester, paid a flying visit to town last week.

Miss Helen Price left this morning for Battle Creek, Mich., where she will enter the Sanitarium as a nurse-in-training.

Mr. Wensley of the Picton branch of the Molsons bank is relieving teller in the local branch during the absence of Mr. Nadeau.

Mr. L.C. Benthorn of Governeur formerly connected with the Nestles Food Co. here, renewed old acquaintances in town last week.

Mr. C. L. Hamlin is in town this week making an inspection of the plant. "Ham" looks quite at home on our streets again.

Since our last issue the editor and his family have enjoyed a ten days holiday at the summer home of Miss Rose McNaughton on the Lake of Bays in Muskoka. Visions of many large catches of fish were in our mind as we neared these beautiful waters but fortunately our larder was not dependent on what we hoped to secure from the lake. Undoubtedly many fine fish are in the waters as was repeatedly explained to us by the settlers and was at least demonstrated once when we caught a very fine lake trout which was thrown to us from a canoe by a kindly disposed fisherman. We did manage however to hook up unassisted with a few fair sized bass. Lake of Bays is a wonderful body of water on which to enjoy a vacation if the fishing is left out of consideration. It is not very wide at any part but consists of a great number of bays, from which it gets its name. These extend in many places several miles, affording fine opportunities for little excursions and picnics with great change and variety of scenery. On the last night but one of our stay the great summer resort hotel, Wa Wa, was wiped out of existence by fire with the loss of ten or perhaps more lives. We were three miles away from the actual scene of the fire, which occurred at twenty minutes after midnight, supposed to have been caused by a carelessly thrown cigarette stub in the vicinity of the elevator shaft from which the fire spread with astonishing rapidity. The building was some six hundred feet long and two stories high with a third story known as a cupola over the centre portion. It was all built of pine and offered no resistance to the flames once they got started. Five minutes after the discovery of the fire the flames had reached both ends of the structure, the guests jumping from windows of the second and third stories to save their lives, many receiving broken limbs and other terrible injuries. In twenty minutes after the outbreak the great building was only a mass of burning embers. The survivors were cared for at the Bigwin Inn, another very large summer hotel almost opposite the Wa Wa, situated on Bigwin island and among the cottagers in the vicinity. The scene of the fire viewed Sunday morning showed everything burned that was inflamable, not enough wood being left with which a fire might be kindled, the iron beds and boiler of the boiler-room with the standing chimneys of several fire places were about all that were left to mark the place where but a few hours before more than two hundred people had been enjoying life to the fullest. Several bodies were still in the ruins Sunday morning but could not be reached. During the few minutes in which the flames were at their height the reflection in the low hanging clouds was very brilliant with the hills so clearly lighted at a distance of three miles that the blades of grass could be counted at some distance. The ruddy glow of the clouds was again reflected in the waters of the lake producing an effect that was most beautiful and at the same time weird. Many of the guests of the WaWa returned to Toronto on the same train we did dressed in clothes provided by others more fortunate than themselves.

Auto Features For Ottawa Exhibition

Auto polo and auto races will again be features in the grandstand program for the Ottawa exhibition. Each afternoon and evening there will be auto polo and this is sure to furnish thrills aplenty when the fire spitting polo cars, handled by skilful and daring drivers, tangle up on the track. It was a big hit last year and stronger teams have been secured for this year.

The auto races will be given for two afternoons only. On the first four days the trotters and pacers will be seen in competition for $5,000 in purses, and then they will move out of the spotlight to make room for the begoggled space eaters and their glittering distance consumers from all over the land, headed by some of the greatest speed stars that ever trod on the throttle of a high-powered racing car.

Burr Lampkin Coming.

Burr Lampkin, noted daredevil and world's short distance champion, heads the long list of pilots and he has entered his French made Peugeot in the local events, the same car which holds the foreign car track record made on the famous Indianapolis paved course. This car won the 500-mile speed classic in 1919 from perhaps the greatest field of speedway drivers that were ever assembled together in a single meet. Lampkin will make an attempt to lower his own speed record on the local oval. He will also make a try at the world's record, which is at the present time held by little Sig Haughabl, the Norwegian pilot, with his three-miles' a minute world's wonder car.

Ray Claypool, gray-haired youngster and veteran dirt track driver, will also be in line at the wheel of a De Lage. He hails from Kansas City, where they start them young and teach them to drive fast, and if dope is right, he should prove a strong contender when the points are counted at the end of the Ottawa sweepstakes, the big event on the program.

Fred Lecklider, a newcomer from Toledo, Ohio, and San Diego, Californi , is also in the heavy car division, and because of wins in the Southwest last year, he is thought to have a good chance at the big event with his Earl Special.

"Pop" Daily, another veteran, is also a new comer in Eastern Canada, and he will be seen at the wheel of a Deusenberg. This is the same make of machine that formerly held the world's mile record, and Daily will try to uphold on the dirt tracks the reputation that this make of machine has gained on the beach courses and on the speedways.

Cleo Saries, famous Ford driver, and Jack Petticord, of Essex fame, are the strong contenders in the light car classes, and they are batting about even with race fans who claim to know what they are talking about.

Nearing The End

"I am not going to talk long this evening," said the speaker. "I've been cured of that. The other night I was making a speech when a man entered the hall and took a seat right in the front row. I had not been talking an hour when I noticed he was becoming fidgety. Finally he arose and asked:

"Shay, how long you been lecturin?"

"About four years, my friend," I replied.

"Well," he remarked, as he sat down, "I'll stick around, you must be near through."

John Bull Misses Again

Several Americans and an Englishman were touring the Pacific coast in an automobile. The Americans were much amused at a roadside sign which read:

"Three miles to San Francisco. If you can't read, ask the blacksmith."

When nearing San Francisco, the Englishman burst out laughing, saying that he had just caught the joke. When the Americans asked what it was, he said:

"Suppose the blacksmith wasn't at home?"—The Open Road.

Cultivation of Root Crops

(Experimental Farms Note)

The object of Cultivation is four-fold:- (1) To destroy and prevent the growth of noxious weeds (2) To develop various degrees of openness of texture and uniformity of soil conditions suitable to plant growth (3) To modify the movement of soil moisture and soil air (4) To change soil conditions so as to make it either warmer or colder.

The cultivation of the soil should begin at the first indication of weeds: in fact it is still better to make a start before the weeds get rooted. To expose them to the hot sun in the germinating stage is the most effective way to kill weeds. If harrowing has been properly carried on cultivation may begin with a cultivator the teeth of which are 2 to 2½ inches wide, but, if the soil is soddy or lumpy, a narrow-toothed cultivator will be necessary to do effective work. Be sure the cultivator has a sufficient number of teeth to cover the ground effectively that is, so that the whole surface of the ground will be thoroughly stirred to a depth of from 2 to 3 inches.

The harrow tooth cultivator is the best to start with; the teeth are narrow, they do not throw the earth over the young plants, and one can cultivate closer to the plants without covering them. Later the larger tooth is better, and as the cultivation season advances and the plants get well rooted, the cultivator should be narrowed and cultivation should be deeper in the centre of the rows. The most efficient work can be accomplished by first going one way all over the field. In a day or two cultivate again but go in the opposite direction to that of the previous cultivation. Cultivation should be continued at intervals just so long as the plants are not injured by horse or cultivator.

The reasons for thorough cultivation are briefly as follows:—the soil particles are rounded in form, and when massed together without being crushed they leave a large amount of unoccupied space this unoccupied space in the soil is needed for the movement of the soil water and air and spre ding out of the root fibres; it is also the home of micro-organisms which develop the available nitrogen used by the higher plants.

If these soil particles are too large and too loosely packed the soil permits the rain-fall to pass through it too freely and the water is soon out of reach of the plants; nor does it return rapidly enough through capillary action to meet the needs of the crop. If the particles are too small and too closely crushed together the water moves very slowly and the air is excluded from the soil; and when the water dries out, the particles are cemented together too strongly by the salts, which have become too concentrated to stay in solution. Consequently, the root fibres are unable to set the soil particles aside; the root system of the crops, is prevented from proper development; the plants are cut off from sufficient food supply; and as a result the yields are reduced.

If thorough and continuous cultivation is carried on it will, correct the detrimental conditions mentioned, will lessen hand hoeing, and increase the yield and profits, which is one objective to be borne in mind in all farming operations.

His Lordship's Relations

One of Lal Brough's best friends was J. L Toole, the famous Irish comedian. While playing in "Dearer Than Life," it was necessary for Lal Brough and Toole to visit a West End photographer in the rags they wore on the stage. On the way back Toole suggested a joke, and Lal Brough was willing They went up to the door of a mansion and pulled the bell loudly. A magnificent flunkey threw open the door and demanded their business.

"Is his lordship in?" asked Toole.

"No, certainly not," said the footman, haughtily.

"Can't we see him?" asked toole, in an appealing manner.

"Go away at once," said the man, or I shall send for the police."

"Well," said Toole, "if you won't let us see him, please let him know that his cousins from the workhouse called this afternoon."

Morewood Honors Departing High School Principal

On Thursday evening, Aug. 17th, the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Loucks assembled at their home in Morewood to bid them farewell on the eve of their departure for Ottawa, where Mr. Loucks goes to take up his duties as principal of Westboro High School. His retirement from the principalship of Morewood High School was marked by the presentation to him of an oak writing desk, and to Mrs. Loucks a rocker, accompanied by the following address:—

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Loucks:—

Your many friends in this community have assembled here this evening to spend with you a few hours of social intercourse and to recall the many pleasant memories of the past, before you leave us to take up your future home in Ottawa. Although we all feel glad on account of your promotion to a field of greater opportunities and one more suited to your capabilities yet it is with feelings of regret and sadness that we realize that you are leaving us and the loss to our community will be very keenly felt.

As a teacher we have learned to love and respect you for your many noble and excellent qualities and your high ideals. Your conduct towards the pupils, who were privileged to receive instruction from you, has always been marked by kindly courtesy and consideration for their welfare, and you have been a constant friend ever ready to help and advise. You have always been a true example of manliness and your lofty and upright character has ever filled your pupils with respect, both in the class room and in after life, and the influence you hvae exerted upon them is indelibly written on their lives and characters and they will always cherish the fondest of memories for you.

Your influence and work have not been confined to the school room alone but in all forms of activities that tended toward the betterment of the social and moral life of the people at large. In the Church and Sunday School you leave a vacancy that will be hard to fill, but such are the vicissitudes of life, and God fulfills himself in many ways.

It has ever been your aim to so improve this school that it might be second to none in the province and in that aim you have without a doubt succeeded. Beginning first as a public school, then as a continuation school and finally as a High School principal, it has steadily progressed upward until at present, owing to your untiring zeal and ambition, it is a seat of learning reflecting credit upon the community. Not only has the school progressed but you yourself by steady application to study, have kept pace with the changing times and by extra-mural study have equipped yourself for better work and service by obtaining your B.A. degree from Queens University.

You have been a credit to the school, the community, to yourself and family and we feel confident that in the new field of your labours the greatest of success and happiness awaits you. And in severing the bonds which bind you here you will still be retained in our hearts and memories, by the immutable ties of friendship, love and respect.

It is impossible for us to adequately express our deep sense of gratitude and obligation, for the devoted service you have rendered our school and community for the past twenty-three years, or to express our regret and sorrow at losing your services and companionship, but in order to express our sincere feelings in some tangible manner we kindly ask you to accept this writing desk,—and to you Mrs. Loucks, we humbly present this rocker, they will ever serve as remembrances of this school section and in the years to come.

"When memory's chain brings, the light of other days about you."

They will serve to recall the many friends in this community whom you leave behind.

And in conclusion, as we sadly bid you farewell all can assure you that we cherish in our hearts only the most kindly feelings and we sincerely wish you and Mrs. Loucks the greatest success and happiness in the future which lies golden and mystic in the bosom of time.

Mr. Loucks was unable for some moments to reply, being so deeply moved by these manifestations of friendship and love on the part of the people of that community. He thanked them for their loyal and interested support of the school, and hoped that they would give the same support to his successor. He expressed his gratitude to the School Board for their zeal and interest in all matters pertaining to the school, and concluded by expressing his gratitude for the beautiful gifts, the address and the expression of friendship and regret.

Lunch was served by the ladies after which all bade Mr. and Mrs. Loucks good-bye, with the feeling that the community was losing, good citizens, true friends and a real good teacher.

Toronto will be well represented at Chesterville Fair, Aug. 28th and 29th, when Miss Gladys Robinson, worlds champion Lady Skater, will be on exhibition both days, also Billstone 2.06¼, J. A. Shibley's grand trotter and show horse will race in the Free-for-all.

A Lift May Be Costly To The Giver

As the motor car flies by him with most of its seats unoccupied, the wayfarer is prone to reflect on the selfishness of the driver as if he himself abounded in the milk of human kindness. Very possibly if the difference in the means of locomotion were reversed, still less consideration would be shown for the pedestrian. We are all fine moralizers when the luck is with the other fellow. But not all the trudgers are passed by, though undoubtedly the majority are, and not always does the man to whom a lift has been given show a feeling of gratitude as lively as if the feeling of grudge that is expressed by many who left on the road. Praise is due to the man who generously picks up the foot passenger more than blame is due to the man who drives on. The proprieter of the car is entitled to keep it for his own use, and to take good care of it so that it may retain its usefulness and its good appearance for as long a time as possible. To make everybody free of it is to subject it to wear and tear beyond what its use solely for his own transit would entail.

Apart from consideration of selfishness whether of the blind or calculating kind, there is the question of risk. Up to the present the idea of risk has not largely influenced the minds of motor car owners, though it is probably a fact that in the case of some of them the presence of a passenger has always had an effect to restrain their speed. Even those who are most reckless with the lives of passengers must now bethink themselves of the consequences of the law, not simply in the way of punishing them for exceeding the prescribed rate per hour, but also in the way of loading upon them damages for fatal or other injuries to passengers. About a fortnight ago, a case that was tried before the Lord Chief Justice of England and a special jury at the Leeds Assizes was decided in favor of the wife and children of a man who was killed in a motor accident damage of 5 000 pounds and costs failing on the owner of the car in which the man lost his life while riding upon it as the guest of the owner. It appears that the guest of the owner, Mrs. Atkinson, had taken her guests, Mr. and Mrs. Welch, to play golf some distance away. In a collision of her car with a motor bus Mr. Welch was killed. Mrs. Welch took action to recover compensation for herself and four little children, the defendants being Mrs. Atkinson and the owners of the motor bus. The judgment of the court was that the accident was caused by Mrs. Atkinson's negligence As we have said, the damages awarded amounted to 5,000 pounds and costs were ordered to be paid by Mrs. Atkinson. Owners of automobiles may well be admonished by this decision to be sparing of the hospitajity of their vehicles.

Hinsects

One day an old lady came on to the station platform with a small tortoise in a basket. She bought her ticket and then consulted the stationmaster as to whether there was anything to pay for the tortoise. The stationmaster scratched his head, went and found a book, consulted it studiously, scratched his head again and then said: "Well, mum, as far as I can see cats is dogs, donkeys is horses, canaries is parrots, but tortoises is hinsects on our railway and travels free."

Jewing Him Down

A Christian asked his Jewish employer for a raise.

"You aren't worth it," said the Jew. "There are 365 days in the year, but this being leap year makes 366. You only work 8 hours a day, which is only one-third of a day, therefore that makes 122 days. There are 52 Sundays, which you don't work; that leaves 70 days. And 52 Saturdays, which is our Sunday, that you don't work; that leaves 18 days There are 4 bank holidays, so that leaves 14 days. You have 14 summer holidays. Why, confound you, you don't work here at all!"

Mr. Peaslee's Coat

"What on earth, Kellup," Deacon Hyne demanded as he came in at the carriage-house door, "are you tryin' to do? You gin't gone and j'ined the ladies' sewin' circle, have you?"

Mr. Peaslee, who had started guiltily when the deacon's shadow fell across the floor, brought his work forward again; he had hastily thrust it behind him in his first alarm. Now he resumed his labor, though with diffidence. "Rest yourself on them bags there," he said to his neighbor with affected carelessness "I had a minute or so to spare, and I thought I might jest as well ketch a stitch or so in this coat of mine whilst I settin' here restin'—save my wife dom' it mebbe." He bent his reddened face and perspiring forehead closer to his work and plied his needle with what he fancied was easy deftness.

Deacon Hyne in spite of his gruff nature and forbidding features was moved to smile. "Don't seem to be restin' you a gre't sight," he observed. "Your face is near as purple as a damson pium; and if you sweat much freer you'll have to be follered with a mop. I'd advise you to chuck that thing somewhere out of sight and cool off, 'less n you want to get a heat stroke."

Caleb mopped his face and leaned back with a gusty sigh. Meeting the deacon's unyielding eye, he colored afresh. "Oh, I'll tell you all about it," he hastened to say. "I'm kind of ashamed in a way, but I'd ruther tell you myself, if it's got to be known; and it will be if you git to nosin' round and askin' questions of my wife.

"I'm as good as most men," he began a little pettishly, "and I do all jobs round the house; without bein' a Phar'see, I know I'm better'n some, though my wife won't give in that I be. But you know yourself a woman'll take a man's whole time, if he's easy 'nough to let her, chorin' here and there about a house. Women don't seem to figger a farmer's got to grow crops if he's goin' to find food for 'em.

"Comin' right down to the case in hand, I ain't goin' to deny my wife may have asked me more'n once—and mebbe more'n twice—to fix up a shelf in the winder in the shed for her geran'ums so they'd git the sun and prosper. But she never asked me a dozen times nor half of that, no matter what she claims!

"But that's what she was maintainin' when I was pickin' her up off'n the floor"

"Pickin' who up?" the deacon interrupted him.

"Pickin' my wife up," Caleb replied simply. "She'd got tired, she said of havin' to inch every little job out of me, so she'd put a board across two barrels, and she was tryin' to nail up a shelf herself. I s'pose when she hauled off to hit a nail and missed it an inch or so and fetched herself a welt right across the j'int of her thumb with the hammer it may have jiggled her 'nough so the board canted under her. Anyway I heard her screech once when she started to fall and once when she hit the floor; so I run my best to see what the matter was. And there I found her!

"I don't know, and I ain't just felt like askin' her, c'nsiderin' the state of mind she's in, whether she hit her thumb more than once, or whether she may have wrenched it some way when she struck on the floor; but it don't seem as if one lick with a hammer could put it in the bad shape it's in." He sighed again dejectedly "Mebbe she'l tell me in time, but jest now, seein' she's kind of simmered down talkin', I'm willin' to let her stay so 'thout questionin' her too snug.

"And about that coat I was a-sewin' on when you come in," he said, anticipating the deacon's question. "When I was runnin' to help her up I had to ketch my coat on the latch of the shed door; and with the gait I was goin' either the coat or the latch had to give; so it was the coat! And, c'nsiderin' the state of mind she's in toward me and the way her thumb's swelled up,—on her needle hand too,—I didn't feel 'sif this was the best time in the world to speak of havin' her mend it for me.

"I didn't quite know what she'd say if I asked her, but I had a mistrustin' and I didn't want to know any closer. I ain't so awful bright as I let on to be sometimes mebbe." Caleb concluded sapiently "but I'm bright enough to realize that she ain't got all talked out over my failin's yit. So I figgered I'd take a stitch or so in my coat myself and make it do 'thout botherin' her with it."

He pulled the garment out and held it up for inspection.

"It's kind of drawed and puckery," he admitted, "but not more'n half as much so as her temper is right this minute. I'm full of belief that I've picked the wiser course, Hyne."

Going To Bed

Of two friends staying at a hostelry where most keys fit most doors, one went off to bed, undressed, and turned in, mistaking his friends room for his own. Half an hour later the friend followed, saw his bed occupied, and returned to the coffee-room. "Did you see me go to my room just now?" he said to the night porter. "Yes, sir," was the reply. "Well, then, why didn't you tell me I'd gone to bed already?" he grunted, and continued to finish the night on a chair in front of the fire.

Sandy Took No Chances

The proprieter of a San Franciso hotel noticed a boot boy crouching in the corridor polishing a pair of shoes.

"Here, boy," he said, "don't you know that the rule is to take shoes to the basement to polish them?"

"Yes, sir," said the youngster, "but these shoes belong to a Scotchman, and he's got hold of the laces."

A Horse Laugh

They tell this of a young married man who has a predilection for talking in his sleep: Several times recently he mentioned the name "Irene" and his spouse questioned him about it.

"Oh that," said he, thinking fast (it was during race week), "is the name of a horse"

Several days later when he came home he asked his wife the news of the day. "Nothing exciting happened," she said, "except your horse called you up twice."

Oh, Denis!

"Didn't you feel homesick sometimes, Denis?"

"I did; but I used to look at your photograph, my love, and then I didn't feel homesick any more"

"Cold In The Head"

is an acute attack of Nasal Catarrah. Those subject to frequent "colds in the head" will find that the use of HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will build up the System and render them less liable to colds. Repeated attacks of Acute Catarrah may lead to Chronic Catarrah. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is taken internally and acts through the blood on the Mucous surfaces of the System, thus reducing the inflammation and assisting Nature in restoring normal conditions.

BONDS
Are Mortgages on Fixed Assets
When a township issues debentures (or bonds) it gives a mortgage on the whole township for security to the buyers of the bonds for the loan of their money for a definite number of years at a satisfactory rate of interest.
If the amount required is large it is divided into small mortgages, (that is, bonds or debentures) of $500 or $1,000 each, with the same security behind each, so that investors with small sums may take advantage it.
Bonds or debentures are rated the safest kind of an investment.
