Frustrated Van Kessel storms out of meeting after council defers zoning vote

Greg Hewitt

CHESTERVILLE — Chesterville's planning consultant has recommended the village modify its proposed Official Plan for development to allow only a building only half the size of that proposed by developer Peter Van Kessel.

And council's decision to delay a vote on the controversial zoning for a week in order to "digest" its planner's 10-page report prompted a frustrated Van Kessel to storm out of a council meeting last Wednesday.

Van Kessel, a councillor and developer, proposes a two-storey, 25-unit apartment complex targeted toward seniors on land bordered by College, Main, South and Mary streets. He has requested an R3 zoning for higher density dwellings, and was expecting council to decide the matter during the meeting.

The controversial plan has drawn objections from neighbors who own surrounding properties. Council will hold a special meeting tonight (May 17), where a vote on the zoning is expected.

The village's report, prepared by its planning consultant, Calvin Pol of McNeely-Tunnock, was received by the village earlier in the same day as the last council meeting, May 10.

When the matter came up for discussion last Wednesday, Van Kessel was preparing declare a conflict of interest in the matter when clerk Howard Smith said Pol had suggested council take time to read the report and vote on the matter at the next meeting.

Van Kessel then said he would "Be very, very upset if it doesn't go by council tonight."

"It's not an easy decision for council to make and there's a lot of stuff to read," Smith said, noting the time and cost put into Pol's report.

An angry Van Kessel said he was frustrated by waiting for council to make a decision, saying his plans have been on the table for a year.

But Reeve Jim Cook agreed with the clerk, recommending council take time to study Pol's report, noting also that two new members of council are not as familiar with the issue.

He also said that while council is familiar with much of the plan, the actual location of the building on the vacant five-acre parcel was revealed just recently.

Cook strongly urged the vote be held off until council members had time to read the report, requested by council April 26. It outlines the village's options and obligations as to the zoniong of the land.

Cook also recommended the vote be taken with full council, as councillor Sharon Casselman was absent, having accompanied husband Ross Casselman to a convention in Brockville.

Trial date set for man charged in double fatality

Greg Hewitt

L'ORIGNAL — A 24-year-old Russell man will go to trial December 5 and 6 in connection with a tragic accident that claimed the lives of a Chesterville couple last year.

Michael Van Breugel will be tried in provincial court in L'Orignal. He is charged with two counts of criminal negligence causing death, two counts of operating a motor vehicle while ability impaired causing two deaths, one count of driving with blood alcohol over 80 mg and one count of impaired driving causing bodily harm.

Van Breugel last month pleaded not guilty to all charges and chose to be tried by judge alone. He is not in custody.

Allan and Margot Johnson, of Albert Street in Chesterville, were travelling southbound on St. Marie Road near Embrun October 7 when their vehicle was struck at the intersection of Route 400 at 10:15 p.m.

Allan Johnson, 45, was pronounced dead at the scene and Margot Johnson, 42, died the next day in hospital. Van Breugel and a passenger were admitted to hospital and were later released.

Pre-trial discussions in the matter were heard last month, said OPP Const. Jim Horner, court liaison for the jurisdiction.

The pre-trial is a discussion between the crown, defense and a judge to determine which issues will be contested during the trial, and is held as a means of determining how much time to set aside for the trial.

The judge who presides over the pre-trial cannot be the same one who hears the trial, Horner said.

The maximum sentence for impaired driving causing bodily harm is 10 years in prison and the maximum sentence for impaired driving causing death is 14 years in prison.

The maximum penalty for criminal negligence causing death is life imprisonment.

Second time even luckier for Newington lottery player

NEWINGTON — Lottery luck has struck a second time for Newington's Corallee Sanderson.

The mother of three recently claimed a $50,000 cash prize after scratching the winning numbers in the Ontario Lottery Corporation's Keno game.

This is her second win within the year. She won $5,000 on a Bingo scratch ticket last summer.

Since collecting the prize, Corrallee and her husband, Bill, have purchased a new van and plan to put new windows and floors in their house.

"I locked the ticket inside a fireproof safety box," she said, "after I went to the store to check for sure. I was half-way down the lane when I had to stop just to make sure again," she said. The winning ticket was purchased at the Finch Variety Store.

At the time of the win her husband was in Winchester, she explained, "and I had to wait two hours for him to get home because I couldn't find him."

Corallee, a regular lottery player, says she certainly has no intention of quitting. "We played all the way to Toronto and back when we collected the prize."

Despite her previous win, she says, "I just couldn't believe it."

The Sandersons waited a week before picking up their prize because "we are farmers and we needed someone to do the milking and my niece baby-sat."

Although they are thinking of taking a trip, before hay season begins, she says there are no definite plans.

With Corallee having four brothers and Bill having two, their generosity included their families.

Corallee Sanderson appears to keep a horse shoe on her at all times. The Newington mother of three recently claimed a $50,000 cash prize from the Ontario Lottery Corporation. Last summer summer the 33-year-old won $5,000 on a bingo scratch ticket. Her current win came after she scratched a Keno ticket. Sanderson and her husband, Bill, have already purchased a new van and are making plans for new windows and floors. A trip is a possibility, but plans aren't definite yet.

Planner recommends village zone for smaller building

But Van Kessel said he was "sick and tired" of waiting for council to make a decision. An appeal to the Ontario Municipal Board is likely, regardless of council's decision. The concerned neighbors will likely appeal and R3 zoning, and Van Kessel will likely appeal a lesser zoning.

After about 10 minutes of animated discussion, Cook suggested council hold a special meeting Wednesday, May 17 to decide the matter.

"I would like to see it done (tonight) one way or the other and if they (neighboring residents) want to appeal it, that's two weeks sooner it will be heard," Van Kessel said, adding it was unfortunate councillor Casselman was absent.

"But at this point in time, I don't feel qualified to vote for this — I haven't had enough time to digest this (report)," Cook responded. "All I'm asking is time to study this."

Cook finally stated he would not vote on the zoning that evening, meaning in effect no vote could be held at all, with Casselman's absence and Van Kessel's conflict of interest leaving just two voting members, not enough to pass a motion.

"The hell with it, I'm going home," Van Kessel then said, gathering his papers and leaving the building.

Council left the matter and continued with the agenda for another 45 minutes, until 11:15 p.m., before the meeting was adjourned.

Pol's report, based on demographics and other factors, recommends that council consider modifying a section of its Official Plan, now awaiting provincial approval, to allow a 12-unit, one-storey apartment building.

The report also includes background information on the issue to date as well as the correct procedures for a number of options.

Pol also suggests that while the decision is up to council, further public meetings are not necessary even if council approves an R3 zoning designation, given the amount of public input that has already been received and the fact that council has notified concerned residents to meetings where the issue has been discussed.

Storytime offered

Features Munsch, Seuss

CHESTERVILLE — With the idea of promoting children's literacy, Chesterville's Stephanie MacLeod has developed a Saturday morning reading program for children at the Chesterville branch of the County Library.

The two-hour program, which will begin Saturday at 10 a.m., will be offered to children of all ages and will introduce to them the works of such well- known authors as Robert Munsch and Dr. Seuss.

"I felt it would be important for children to have a time to come and listen to stories and perhaps participate in a relative craft or activity."

Although librarian Verla Levere conducted a similar program this spring, it is no longer running and MacLeod saw a gap.

"I just thought it would promote literacy and the importance of learning to read," says the recent graduate of Trent University in Peterborough.

For the next six to eight weeks, MacLeod will be conducting the storytime.

"I was involved in a literacy centre at university and I wanted to start something here. I felt this was the perfect opportunity."

During the previous program, she adds, children between the ages of six and eight attended and she hopes the same age group will attend the new program.

Books being read will reach all children at an average level, says MacLeod.

All children are welcome and no parental supervision is required. The Chesterville Branch of the County Library is in the village's Municipal Building on Mill Street.

Guides thank supporters

The First Chesterville Girl Guides May 3 thanked two members of the community for their support to the organization. Bernice MacLeod, top centre, was given a gift in recognition of her contributions to the unit as a Guider, treasurer and badge secretary. And Olive Cass, below, was presented with the Girl Guide Silver Thanks pin, the only award for non-members. Cass was honored for the "generous and open-hearted" support she has shown the unit over the years.

Village reminds dog owners of licensing and tag bylaw

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE — Attention all dogs — please register with the clerk's office.

Chesterville is reminding dog owners in the village that their canine pets must be licensed through the clerk's office and wear a dog tag.

The reminder is being issued after it was noted at a council meeting last Wednesday that the number of dog tags currently issued is lower than it should be.

"It's believed there are probably more than 21 dogs in the village, hence the reminder," village clerk Howard Smith said Monday.

Reminders of the dog bylaw are being sent to village residents in the next hydro bill.

When a dog is registered with the village, its name, breed, description and other information is recorded. A metal dog tag is issued for the dog's collar.

The cost is $10 if the dog is spayed or neutered and $15 if it is not, and the tag is valid for one year. Lost tags can be replaced for $1, and guide dogs for the blind are exempt.

The village's dog control bylaw requires all dogs older than two months to have tags, and states that dogs must not be allowed to run at large "at any time of the day or night or at any given time of the year," and that a dog is running at large when it is "found at any other place than the premises of the owner and not under the control of any person."

Contravention of the bylaw can carry a $50 fine under the Provincial Offences Act.

Dogs found running loose in the village are collected by the village's dog catcher, Danny Roy. They are kept in a cage at the public works office on Industrial Drive for a day. If the owner is not located, they are taken to veterinarian Dr. Larry Gray in Winchester, who provides pound facilities for the village.

Gray keeps the dogs for at least three working days in hopes the owner will be located. Generally, though, Gray waits until local newspapers are published to see if the animal is advertised as missing.

If the owner cannot be found, Gray attempts to find a home for the animal. Only sick or injured dogs, or those that bite or are otherwise not adoptable are put down.

Dog owners who retrieve a lost pet from the village are charged the $50 fine, plus the cost of the boarding.

Smith noted that a dog wearing a village tag is much more easily identified when found.

Updated in 1983, Chesterville's current dog control bylaw also states that no more than two dogs shall be kept on any premises in the village at one time. It also gives the dog catcher the authority to "use a tranquilizer gun for the purposes of seizing dogs running at large in any area of the village, when he deems it necessary to the performance of his duties."

Thin blue line

Good policing involves a partnership between police and the public. And with that in mind, local police are marking Police Week May 14 to 20.

For many years, policing was something the public took for granted, and was able to take for granted.

But fiscal realities at the provincial level have strained police resources, and we have to give a second thought to our own role in public safety.

Local OPP will be the first to tell you they don't have the human resources they need to cover eastern Ontario as thoroughly as they'd like.

But they're addressing that issue straight on, by encouraging the public to become involved in community policing initiatives.

So far, that message has been heard locally. Community Watch programs, guided by police but initiated by the public, are underway in Chesterville and Winchester. And in Finch the community has worked with police to enhance police presence, through the opening of a community policing office.

These are excellent examples of ways the public can take the torch from police and carry it when it needs to be carried. They're excellent examples of co-operation.

Police Week is also a good time to think about policing from the cop's point of view.

Recent police-related controversies in Ottawa have underscored the necessity of a good relationship between police and the public.

The public has to understand that police work also involves danger. Any situation a police officer is involved in can turn deadly in a split second.

Police officers lose their lives every year in Canada, while defending the public. Should we blame them if they approach every situation as if that potential is there?

Please remember that police are on our side, they're protecting our homes, our businesses, our safety. Please remember if they stop you or need your assistance, they have a job to do.

Police officers are trained professionals. And they are also human beings, subject to the same human strengths and weaknesses we all face.

Treat them with dignity, with respect and support them when they need it. Consider the job they have to do, and the important role they play.

Because if we don't support our police, then who exactly are we supporting?

Off The Record

Just dial 1-900-FOR-CAST

By Robin Morris
Meteorological Editor

In an interview on CBC Ottawa's Radio Noon program one day last week a senior Environment Canada official stated that Canada's cash-strapped weather forecasting service will be closing some of its regional weather offices as a cost cutting measure and this fall may be instituting a 1-900 telephone service meaning that those requesting local weather information will have to pay for it.

The interview was in response to a complaint about the closure of the Kingston weather office which provides reasonably accurate information on the micro-climate surrounding the Limestone City. Weather information for those in the Kingston area will be provided out of Ottawa once the station is closed.

Now if Environment Canada is as skint as it claims to be, the 1-900 service may be a Godsend. Look what it's done for the obscene telephone call industry and the psychic scam. Not only is JoJo rich beyond her wildest dreams but some television stations derive most of their late-night revenue by shilling for these transparent hucksters.

Think of the variety of services Environment Canada could offer if it adopts the 1-900 service (adults only, $1.99 a minute, 10- minute maximum, service in the official language of your choice).

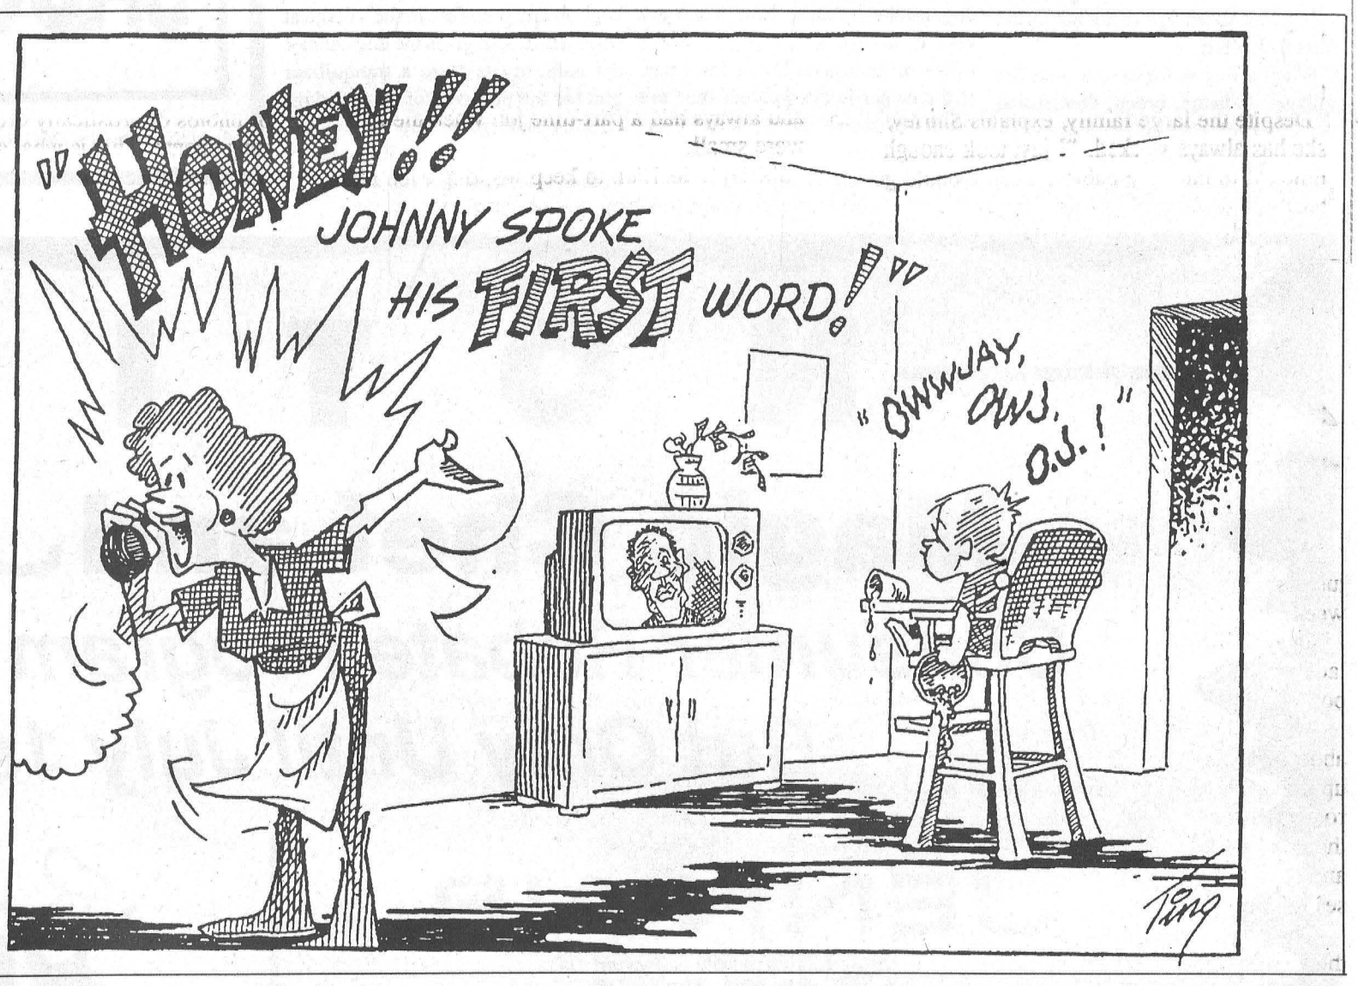
Service to fit every orientation, all on a proven basis so profitable that it could soon lead to the end of the federal deficit. (After all, if we are financing a large part of public sector spending with cigarettes, alcohol and betting, isn't the 1-900 telephone service the next logical step? And given the accuracy of weather forecasts, they may as well be delivered by JoJo and her pals.)

- One on one weather with live weather girls. (Oh baby, when you talk like that I feel my temperature rising.) Wet and wild party-line weather with big haired weather bimbos (new girls every day).
- Foreign weather with ladies eager to meet Canadian men.
- S/M Weather with the dominatrix of forecasting, Mistress Gale Force.
- Gay weather: "Tomorrow will be absolutely precious."
- Momma's boy weather: "Button up your overcoat. Take good care of yourself, you belong to me."
- Psycho weather: "Hi, this is Norman Bates. Showers could be hazardous to your health."

And why restrict it to the traditional 1-900 industry? Why not open it up to political parties or any special interest group who would get to put their own spin on their forecasts?

- How about the Progressive-Conservative Weather service? "Look for a high of 68 with winds out of the west at 10 to 15 miles per hour."
- The Liberal version would be "Look for a high of 20 with winds out of the east at 16 to 24 kilometres. And despite the forecast of the Red Book, expect no changes."
- How about the Ontario NDP Weather Service: "Expect winds of change to blow from the left bank, accompanied by little Raes of sunshine."
- Or the Reform Party: "Daylight Saving Time comes into effect at 3am tomorrow so set your clocks back 20 years before turning in tonight. And expect an early return of the Ice Age."
- Or the separatist movement: "In an independent Quebec it will never rain on our Bloc/Parti."
- The C.D. Howe Institute: "A yes vote in the Quebec referendum can be expected to return Canada's economy to a deep freeze."
- Or the Wall Street Journal: "The Canadian federal deficit has made this country an honorary member of the Third World. Given its climate it's sort of a Banana Popsicle Republic."
- How about the Monarchist League of Canada: "We're in for a term of heavy precipitation. Long may she rain over us."
- Or a neo-Nazi like Ernst Zundel: "Hail Hitler!"
- The National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML): "Wow, man, like today's high is Lebanese Black Gold at $15 a gram. The low will be a real bummer."
- The Ark Movement, the animal rights fanatics who have high-jacked the Toronto Humane Society, "Expect it to rain cats and dogs for 40 days and 40 nights. No animals were harmed in the preparation of this forecast."
- The Polka Dot Door Weather for Kids: "Mother West Wind and her Merry Little Breezes destroyed Texas today. And it's going to be c-c-c-cold tomorrow, kittens, so don't forget to wear your mittens."
- The World Boxing Federation: "Hurricane Carter is innocent."

All of which goes to show that Bob Dylan was right when he wrote, "You don't have to be a weatherman to know which way the wind blows."



THE FARMER'S WIFE

By Wyn Thompson

Would you like to go to the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers Ltd. operation in Carleton Place? I was asked.

"I certainly would," I replied, my reasoning being that I knew nothing of the production of a good fleece, and it was time I learned for I love woolen clothing, throws, rugs and what have you.

"This is a receiving and grading operation," the office manager informed me. I enquired about the scouring process and found that the fleeces have to be shipped outside the country for the process. This is because of environmental concerns over the strong and harmful scouring agents that must be used to cleanse the wool.

Certain qualities such as fineness, length, color and appearance determine the end use and value of wool. Fineness - the fiber diameter, or grade, and its distribution —is one of the most important of these quality factors. It largely determines whether the wool is used in a suit, sweater, blanket or in a pair of socks.

As I walked up and down through the bales of wool, I appreciated what an awesome job this could be. A specialty craft, like the shearing of sheep, I suspected.

I was told that sheep farming is big business in Canada. Whereas local farmers might bring in 200 pounds of wool, large western farmers might ship 2000 to 5000 pounds.

More than two million pounds arrive annually from every part of Canada to be graded in Carleton Place, Ontario, the national headquarters of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers Ltd.

Farmer owned, the co-op was set up in 1918 to sell Canada's wool clip. It occupies a large stone structure over a century old, built by the railway in 1887 to repair locomotives. Traces do remain of the building's original purpose.

The price of wool has improved this year, the farmer receiving 60 cents per pound as opposed to 15 cents per pound three years ago.

The Wool Growers Real Wool Shop shares the same historical location and the items for sale are indeed, lovely. Best of all, it's an all-Canadian operation and right in our own backyard.

We were back home mid-afternoon, just in time for tea. Tell me...are you a tea drinker? Well now, it seems that tea is coming into its own again.

I happily poured myself a good stout cup of tea and sighed a happy sigh. For over the past few years I read article after article on the harmful effects of tea. I then cut my consumption to bare bones.

I wanted to remain politically correct and not be a consumer of the precious health care services. For the life of me, though, I can't imagine anyone wanting to unnecessarily consume health care services!

Nor do I want to become an elderly Bed-Blocker, Placement Problem, or Gomer (Get off my Emergency Ward) if I could possibly help myself.

Overnight, it seems, hospitals have become factories. Run in on a conveyor belt, treated, and shot out the other end. And tea was bad...bad...bad!

Now I discover that drinking tea has many health benefits. Real tea, that is! Not herbal tea, that poor excuse for a good cuppa I've been coerced into drinking during my abstemious period.

Research shows that various compounds found in tea benefit those with cardiovascular disease, lowers cholesterol levels, decreases cancer risk.

Wow! Of course one must also be an adherent of a healthly lifestyle. Always a fly in the ointment!

Cure a common cold? No. But, it does soothe one through a beastly cold. And I've just beaten a doozie BUT I didn't consume any health care services. I was sorely tempted as I never before had such a sore throat.

I consumed patent medicines like a kid let loose in a candy shop. If one didn't work, I switched to another pronto.

The druggist smiled broadly each time she witnessed my progress toward her —nose running, eyes glazed and brimful. The latest remedy grasped firmly in my fist, I returned home. By my calculations, the cost of these remedies was four times that of a prescription for an antibiotic. What these medicines did to my gastro-intestinal track, better I don't know.

BUT, I didn't consume any health care services!

Two weeks or so, after the fact, I'm alive. Not lively. And enjoying May, wonderful May! It is the gardener's month!

Dr. Ernest Wilson, an author and lover of gardens, said, "There is no royal road or clean-out path to the making of a garden." How true, but for those dedicated souls, there is no other path in May but the one to the garden.

I like Charles Dudley Warner's comment: "What a man needs in gardening is a cast-iron back with a hinge in it."

He also said: "Lettuce is like conversation: it must be fresh and crisp, so sparkling that you scarcely notice the bitter in it."

A little bit of everything keeps Shirley Baker busy

Melissa Batchilder
Record staff

Shirley Baker has done it all.

As she peeks over the meat counter at Mike Dean's Superstore in Chesterville to hand you a wrapped package of chicken, customers don't realize just who she really is, what she's done in life and the roads she has travelled.

It's time to spend a few minutes with her at her favorite spot to stop during the day, the Heritage Cafe, for coffee and a cigarette.

Although she hasn't been working for the past couple of weeks due to surgery she recently had performed on her hands, the mother of six can't wait to get back behind the counter.

Shirley was born in Maxville, she explains, and lived there until she was 12 years old. "It was the Maxville-Alexandria area my family hailed from. There aren't too many of them left mind you. Now this isn't to be confused with the fact that I was brought up in Cornwall."

The youngster moved to Cornwall when her mother remarried and remained there until five years ago.

"My husband died eight years ago and my son-in-law and daughter, Diana built on an addition to their house in Newington for me and now I live there."

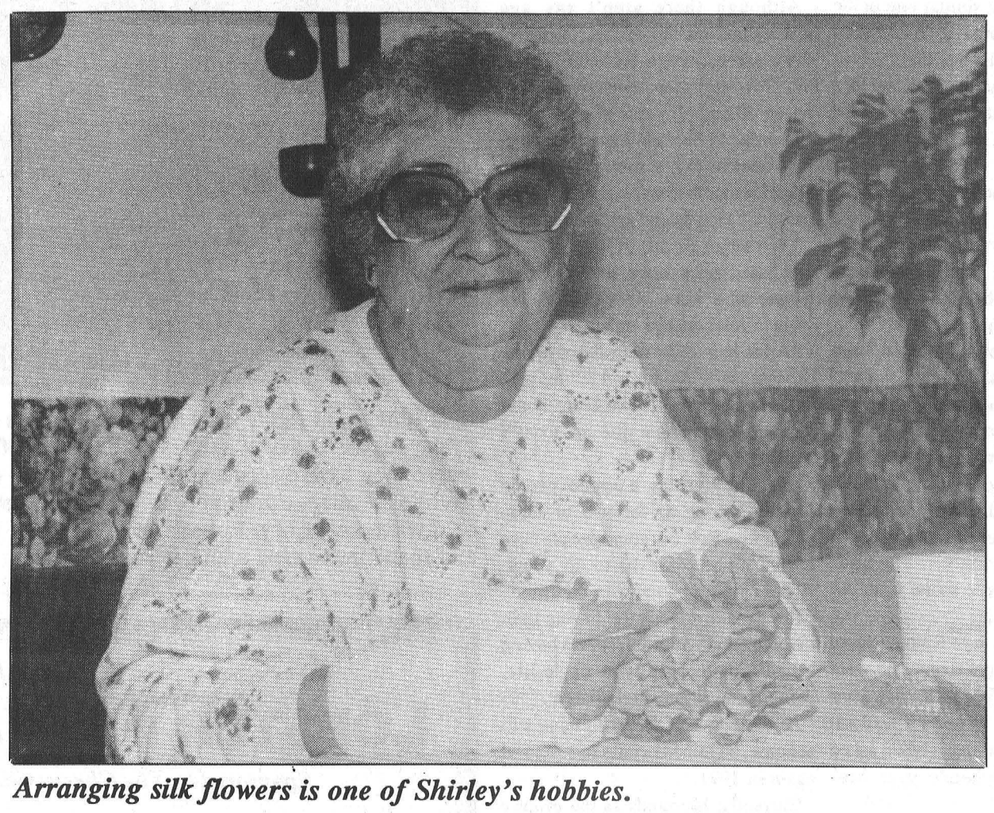
She chuckles that people don't often realize Diana Taylor, who is a cashier at Mike Dean's, is her daughter. "Yes, she is really my biological daughter."

However, Diana is even a little skeptical, laughs Shirley. As the youngest in the family that was hit like many others by hard times, there aren't any baby photos of Diana, explains her mother.

"We were having hard times and there just weren't any photos." Diana still kids her mother about this episode in life.

Along with Shirley's six children, she is also the grandmother of 14.

Despite the large family, explains Shirley, she has always worked. "I just took enough time off to have the babies. Then I would go back to whatever I was working at."



Arranging silk flowers is one of Shirley's hobbies.

Retail was her first love, she admits. "Although I did work as an office manager and training instructor at a sewing plant for eight years. I always preferred retail though."

Regardless, she adds, "I have done it all. I've sold records, stereos, clothing, groceries...you name it."

From department store to grocery stores, says Shirley, her experience is extensive.

Leaving her children with baby-sitters was a necessity, explains Shirley, "cause raising six children isn't easy."

Her husband worked at Domtar, she adds, and always had a part-time job when the kids were small.

Shirley's decision to keep working even after moving out this way was an easy one. "I certainly wasn't ready to retire then and I'm not ready now."

It was a fluke, she says, that she got the job at Chesterville's only grocery store. "I saw an advertisement in the paper and I was looking for work out this way at the time. That was five years ago." She went to work on the cash and later moved to produce and then meats. "I know pretty well all aspects of a grocery store."

As Shirley sets down her coffee for a moment, she reaches into her handbag and pulls out a photo album. Inside the book are dozens of photos of artistically created silk flower arrangements. This is what she does when she has spare time.

With supplies from various craft stores, she creates a variety of flower arrangements, for weddings and other occasions.

"I saw an advertisement for a course in silk flower arranging a few years ago. I took the course and have loved it ever since."

Her crafty hands have added to the beauty of at least two or three weddings each summer since she has learned the trade. With working full-time, she explains, she doesn't always have a lot of time for it so she keeps her work minimal.

However, those who have seen her bouquets, arrangements and hair pieces, know her talents well.

Shirley's talents are also obvious in her seamstress work. "I could always be seen when I was a young girl sitting on the floor beside my grandmother as she sewed."

As her grandmother was a seamstress, Shirley explains, the talent came naturally. "In those days, you were to be seen and not heard. You were handed a needle and thread and told to make doll clothes."

Of course, she laughs, she has improved over the years.

Along with her flower arranging and sewing, Shirley also crochets and has an intense passion for literature. "I just love to read and I do a lot of it."

Mysteries and historical pieces are often the books found in her hands, "but pretty well anything will do," says the woman who reads at least a pocket novel each day."

One learns all kinds of things, she insists. "I've learned all kinds of trivia and other things. You would be surprised what stays in your memory."

Finding time to do all the things Shirley likes to do in life isn't always easy, but it has to be found. "You have to make time for what you want to do."

A good sense of humor has taken Shirley a long way in life, she admits. "You have to be able to laugh at yourself. I love a good joke and don't care if it's one on me or not."

Anyone who has ever shopped at Mike Dean's is sure to know this. Shirley's warm smile never fails to brighten the spirits of those around her.

Melissa! — by Melissa Batchilder

It seems this week started off in a positive light. I mean there just ain't nothing like stumbling over a black cat to start off any week.

Okay, let me just note, I am not superstitious. I'll saunter under ladders and stomp on every crack on the sidewalk. It doesn't bother me. However, this black cat did upset me a bit.

There I was walking out to the parking lot behind my building at about 8:15 a.m. this mornin'. Bein' as vain as I am, I couldn't pass up the opportunity to catch a glimpse of myself in the laundry room window at the side of my building. Heavens Melissa, I thought, your bangs are lookin' mighty fine this mornin'. Michelle and Brenda from downstairs won't be able to poke fun at your tresses today.

Oh, I was justa beamin', I thought I looked some grand. It was then that my day fell apart. Oh, it was a gross sight. Let me of course remind you that it was rainin' Monday mornin' and there are a number of puddles with worms in them about the streets.

So anyways, I was truckin' on to my car when out of the corner of my eye I spotted the black critter from hell. Kitty-cat, (oh and I hate all cats by the way) was just scampering along when my foot got locked under his belly. Well, then I tried to maneuver out of kicking the cat into the middle of next week and as I did so, I seemed to have lost my footing. Oh yes my baby, it was a grand sight as I slammed my shoulder into my neighbor's car.

All was not done. Oh no my darlin', if I'm gonna fall, I'm gonna do it in grand style. My body flings back and then it thrusts forward. Of course, I needed my tongue stickin' out of my face for balance. Well naturally, I have to bite my tongue and then fall to my knees. Okay, it's not a pretty sight, but the worst is yet to come.

As I try to recompose myself and stand up, with my purse hanging off my shoulder, my foot catches on the bottom of the purse and off I go in fine style this time. I just jerked forward and landed smack in the middle of a lovely mud puddle. And I mean this was a mud puddle as my parking lot isn't paved.

Well, I was not a happy camper. I was not happy at all. There goes the lovely outfit, which is why my clothes look a little strange today. I mean don't ever expect me to come up with two co-ordinating outfits in one day. Worst of all, my bangs got a goin' over too and now I'm hidin' upstairs at d'Record so Michelle and Brenda can't make fun of them. Oh woe is me. Damn cats!

Oh here's a bit of news I have t'tell ya. Y'know that prize the girlie-girl from Gone Loonie gave me. Remember it was glass balls inside of fishing net and separated by cork. I remember what they are now. They're decorative buoys that are used to decorate the ceilings of seafood restaurants. Can you imagine giving something like that away. Doesn't everyone want one of those?

******

Here's a wonderful story I have to tell you. It happened when I was out for a walk Friday night. Yes, that's right. I was walking. I'm such a little fitness queen.

Anyways, there I was walking along the water listening to the soundtrack from Forrest Gump. Actually, I think it was Aretha's Respect, when I observed this man standing with his dog looking out at the water.

It was a good kilometre away from any form of civilization when I spotted him, but I'm not one to be leery of too much, so I sauntered on up to this guy and said hello. I can sense a visitor to the area from a mile away, so I asked him where he was from.

Gosh, the whole experience of meeting this guy just made my day. Jules, as I later found out his name is, had been travelling for a few weeks. At the age of 72, he is a retired optometrist from Florida who decided it was time to take advantage of life and board he and his wife, Dorothy, into a motor home and head for Canada. Oh yeah, they had their dog with them as well.

Anyways, there we stood by the water for the longest time discussing our philosophies on life. He told me that now was the time to travel, while I was still young and on my own. I told Mr. Jules I had travelled a bit before moving to this area and that it was time for me to start moving within a specific community. We shared views on everything. Then of course, I hit him up for a free eye exam. I'm kidding. Well, not really. I did get him to look at my pupil because I think there is something wrong with it. Then again, I'm known as the office hypochondriac, so don't listen to me.

Well, it turned out Mr. Jules was heading east and so naturally, I gave him my father's address and told him they could stay there. (Once I actually gave my father's address to German folks I met at a laundromat and told them to go stay there. The German folks did and they all had a wonderful time.) Dad was pleased to hear that at least Jules and his wife would be bringing a motor home.

Anyways, after experiencing this wonderful couple I just wanted to tell the whole world about them. (I met Dorothy after Mr. Jules dragged me back to the motor home which was parked nearby. I bet she was glad to see me just as she was putting supper on the table.)

I thought afterwards about what Mr. Jules had said about travelling and realized that if we would all open ourself up to new people and new experiences in life, then we don't necessarily have to go very far to have travelled a great distance. Aren't I being the philosophical one!

******

There are two kinds of people on earth; those who lift and those who lean.

******

I thought I'd give you a bit more insight into my life of the past 10 years. This of course, is because I'm still trying to fill out the application for my high school reunion. I'll probably still be trying to do this long after the reunion has ended.

After I realized that the theatrical life was not the path I should be takin', I tried to make sandwiches for a livin'. I'll never forget that Mr. Tweedy guy grabbin' the back of my over-alls and yellin' at me. "You don't be wearin' no dungarees here." Well, I thought. "Then you be a takin' your dill pickles and mustard and ..." I was so classy then.

So I was unemployed again. I tried waitressing for a day or so and then got promoted to busgirl. I could clear tables at home, I thought, so I better be findin' myself somethin' a bit more productive.

That's when I found Heather. I once wrote an entire column about this soul that was the focal point of my life for almost three years. Heather was a 34-year-old severely mentally challenged woman I shared an apartment with. What a time that was. I don't know if I have ever since experienced such simultaneous laughter, tears and growth.

We moved in together just when I turned 18 and during the next couple of years we did absolutely everything together. She was my sole responsibility for 24 hours a day. That was my job and my life.

I was responsible for overseeing Heather's integration into "normal" society. So off we went to what I believed was "normal" society. We were at K-Mart all the time and of course, I found the odd dance hall to swagger into. We watched a lot of theatre and always made it to church on Sunday. We had a ball.

However, that just wasn't enough for me. I knew I couldn't do this forever. I realized it was time to go back to school and find meself a career. After checking out the possibilities, I decided, I was going to be a writer. That's it. I would be a creator...a journalist. And Heather would be right there beside me each step of the way.

That's just another vignette of life. Doncha feel like ya know me better everyday?! Stay tuned.

Area singles find alternative source of entertainment

Solitude doesn't mean boredom

Melissa Batchilder
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE — Being single no longer means spending weekends alone, attending functions alone and being bored alone.

At least that's what a number of local singles are learning thanks to at least two organizations that meet on a regular basis in the Cornwall area.

RR 2 Chesterville's Elva Rutters, a divorced mother, says she found it hard to meet others.

"I wasn't meeting any singles," she says, so she decided to round up a few of the single people she did know and head to Cornwall.

This is where she discovered the Portobello Single's Dinner and Dance held at least twice a month.

The organization was started by Cornwall's Barbara Collette about a year ago after she realized there wasn't any form of entertainment for single people over 25 in SD&G.

The events take place on either Friday or Saturday nights at the Portobello Restaurant in Cornwall. After dinner, a DJ is on hand to play 50s and 60s music along with a bit of country. On average about 75 people attend the events with a 50-50 ratio of men to women.

"People come from Winchester, Chesterville, Morrisburg and Ottawa because there isn't anywhere to go other than the bar scene," says Collette.

The dinner and dance definitely isn't the bar scene, she adds. "It's like a big family party.''

Anyone who is 25 years old and is single is welcome to attend the event, and most are between 35 and 55, Collette says.

So often people in that age bracket have married friends, explains Collette, ''And often feel like a third wheel." This dinner and dance offers singles a chance to mix with others in similar circumstances.

Although it isn't a dating match environment, she adds, there are those who have gotten together. "There is one dance a month where people can come back if they have met a partner."

After having attended singles' events in Ottawa and Montreal, Collette says she felt a similar one in the Cornwall area would be successful. "It has proven to be just that."

As a result of the event, a number of people have gotten together for the purpose of cycling and others went on a cruise.

"It's a safe and classy environment," she adds.

Rutters agrees. "I wanted to meet other singles and since I've started going to the Portobello, I have met so many wonderful people."

A group of men and women from this area attend the event, she explains, and anyone wishing to tag along is more than welcome.

"I've gained new friends and a lot of self- confidence," says Rutters, along with the addition of recreational activities in her life. "I've even learned to line dance."

For Rutters, it is a social time out without any threats.

After divorcing, says Rutters, there were many different stages she went through. "Initially it was very hard for me to go out." It was a difficult response to have to make when asked the question, "where's your husband?"

Now, she says, she doesn't have to field that question "and I feel a part of something."

The other group filling the gap in Rutters's life is Joie de Vivre. Translated into English, it means "Joy of living."

Also based in Cornwall, the group meets in English on Fridays and in French on Thursdays. Both meetings are at 7:30 p.m. in the basement of Holy Cross Church.

Finch's Roger Roy, a member of the group, explains the group has been developed for separated, widowed and divorced people and touches on 30 different themes throughout the year.

"We have guest speakers, videos and theme presentations."

Although there aren't any age restrictions on the group, currently there are members between 21 and 87. However, most members are between 40 and 60 years of age.

In order to become a member, says Roy, one has to just show up and then attend a member week-end based on personal growth and self-discovery.

The themes of this group, he adds, are based on a book by Dr. Bruce Fisher who wrote about rebuilding when a relationship ends.

"A lot has to do with the grieving process, self- esteem and letting go," says Roy. As well, "we learn about dealing with single life in today's world."

Joie de Vivre is a group people usually belong to for two or three years, says Roy, but some people have been members for 10 to 15 years. "There are no boundaries on time."

Roy says he joined after having been divorced and widowed. "I was having a hard time coping with single life, being alone and a single parent."

As the father of five, with one still at home, he joined briefly in 1987 and again in 1991.

Currently, he stands as the group's outgoing president. There are 11 chapters of Joie de Vivre in Canada, with Cornwall being the only English club.

Both groups have proven extremely valuable in many single people's lives, says Rutters, "and are open to all meeting the criteria.''

For more information on the Portobello Single's Dinner/Dance, call (613) 933-5902, and for information on Joie de Vivre, call 984-2894.

Elva Rutters, at right, joins a group a friends for a bit of fun before heading out to Cornwall Friday night. The area singles participate in the Portobello Singles Dinner/Dance each week where they have discovered that being single doesn't mean boredom. Another group, Joie de Vivre also caters exclusively to those who have found themselves in the widowed, separated or divorced category. Rutters says belonging to both groups has brought her self-confidence and social interaction with her peers.

The Chesterville Lions Club Monday presented the Chesterville and District Figure Skating Club with a cheque for $1,000, a third of the estimated cost of a music room for the club, to be built at the Chesterville Arena. In the photo, Lions president Sam Hummel presents the donation to senior skaters Mallory Feeley and Shanon Gasser and club president Karen Thompson. Better musical facilities at the arena will allow the figure skating club, with more than 100 members, to host skating competitions. The music room will also be available for other arena events.

CPS milk mascot needs a name

CHESTERVILLE PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

This cow needs a name: Chesterville Public School is holding a contest for students to name the school's mascot, a model cow donated by the father of students Stephanie and Jason Catellier. Your child could win a prize if his or her entry is chosen. The cow serves as a mascot for milk promotion, part of a campaign to reinforce healthy eating habits.

CPS's Environmental Gang raised $533 toward the purchase of playground equipment for the school at its open house and social tea May 5. A big thank you to everyone involved.

The Environmental Gang also used the profits from its Christmas rummage sale to protect tropical rainforest, and to benefit Friends of the Earth, the Alfred Bog Trust Fund, Canadian Nature Federation and World Wildlife Fund.

The Chess Team, coached by Kevin Cooper, traveled to Mother Teresa Catholic School in Russell May 7 for a tournament. The CPS team of Matthew Bird, Warren Meredith and Alicia Hunt won gold, silver and bronze medals respectively in their age divisions. Congratulations to these students.

The CPS Book Fair May 1 to 5 raised $877 toward the purchase of new books for the school.

Students in kindergarten to Grade 3 can go to Aultsville Hall in Cornwall the afternoon of May 23 for a live adaptation of six Robert Munsch works. The cost is $3.75 per student, and the bus will be paid for by Walk-a-thon funds. More information will be sent home with students.

Members of the Principal, Teacher, Student Advisory Committee May 10 attended leadership workshops at the University of Ottawa. It was a great opportunity for the students involved.

CPS students took part in the Canada Quiz Tournament in Cornwall May 9 and placed seventh out of 20 teams under the tutelage of Mrs. Boals and Mrs. Chapman. Congratulations to students Jamie Pitruniak (spokesperson), Daniel Gasser, Jeffrey Graham, Laurie Gasser and Kimberly Dings.

G& J Yelle Inc. begin construction of new building.

Farm dealership to rebuild

Melissa Batchilder
Record Staff

CRYSLER — Flames may have consumed the building which housed G&J Yelle in April, but business itself was not extinguished.

A late morning fire destroyed the offices and shop of the Stormont County farm equipment dealership April 12. However, it was less than two weeks later that owners Gilles and Jacques Yelle began to rebuild and in the meantime, business never stopped.

"It was about a week and a half after the fire that we started to rebuild and we hope to re-open in June." This, Gilles adds, only applies to the actual structure itself.

Business didn't even slow down as they continued to work in a nearby garage. "We can't lose our customers. The business never stopped." he said. "No one had to be laid off as a result of the fire either."

The new building, which is currently in the early stages of construction, will house more office space, says Gilles, and will also be just one structure.

The structure destroyed by fire was actually two buildings, he explains, with the latter being added when business expanded in the 1980s. When completed, the new building will take up the same space as the older two combined.

G&J Yelle Inc. has been in his family since 1960, explains Gilles, when it was established by his father.

The fire started in the barn-shaped shop at the right of the lot and burned quickly despite rain showers.

Fire crews from Finch, Crysler and St. Albert fought the blaze for about 90 minutes before it was brought under control.

Finch police office opens door to a safer community

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

FINCH — Ontario Provincial Police now officially have a place to call their own in Finch and Finch Township.

At a ceremony Friday, the OPP's Community Policing Office, in the southeast corner of the Finch Village municipal office at the Finch Arena, was officially opened with much fanfare.

Since it first opened in September, the office has been a place for the officer on duty to make phone calls, interview people and perform paperwork.

It's not a permanently-staffed satellite office with an assigned officer, but it enables the officer on local duty to spend more time in the area. And that increases police presence in Finch Village and Finch Township.

The office is open from 6 to 10 p.m. Fridays, manned by auxiliary police members, or when the officer on duty is there.

Before the office opened, the patroling officer would have to return to the detachment in Long Sault for phone calls and paperwork.

Recent changes in the way OPP cover Stormont County will increase the benefit of the office. Each of the county's four townships, Finch, Roxborough, Osnabruck and Cornwall Township, have their own sergeant. Each shift, an officer is assigned to Finch Township.

OPP Insp. Vic Burns, on hand for the ceremony, acknowledged that with limited manpower, OPP now encourage community policing initiatives.

"No longer can we do it alone, and we ask you please to drop in and bring your concerns to us and we will bring our concerns to you and work together."

"Community policing is the community and the police working together. It's going to make for better policing and a better relationship between both parties," said OPP Const. Joel Doiron.

Const. Gord MacKillop said further development of the office's role in the community will take place in the near future.

The office represents a joint effort between OPP and the Finch Police Committee, as well as Finch Village and Finch Township.

The village supplied the office space, and Finch Township supplied the phone. The two split other costs involved.

Finch Township Reeve and SD&G Warden Floyd Dingwall said there had been "A lot of head- scratching" in planning the office, "But here we are today."

"I think one thing it's going to do is pull our community together and give us a safer way of life," he said during the ceremony.

"I think it's a good idea that we have police here. It will curb some of the things before they happen."
- Finch senior Eleanore MacLean

Finch Village Reeve Lynden Hough said he was pleased with the opening of the office.

"Crime is on the uprise and I think now it's time for the local people and the police to work together."

SD&G and East Grenville MPP Noble Villeneuve said seeing a police car on the highway makes drivers behave. And a strong police presence will have the same effect on the streets and in the backyards of Finch and Finch Township. He extended thanks to the Ministry of the Solicitor General for supporting community policing initiatives.

"They realize that rural Ontario is special, because we feel so much safer when we have a visible presence."

The Finch Police Committee is also working on other ways of getting the public involved in community policing. One such initiative, suspicious activity report forms, was unveiled Friday.

The one-page forms will be distributed to bus drivers, delivery people or anyone else. They ask for vehicle or personal description and location. They can be dropped off at the office or at a number of participating businesses in Finch and Crysler.

Also being considered is a contest among local school children, to design a logo for the community policing office.

The number for the office is 984-0192. Police remind the public, though, that emergency calls in Finch and Finch Township should still be placed to 1-800-267-2677 (1-800-COP-COPS).

Finch seniors Eleanore MacLean and Helen Curran, who attended Friday's ceremony, both say they feel a little safer now that police have a place of their own in the area.

"I think it's a good idea that we have police here, MacLean said. "It will curb some of the things before they get started."

"We feel more protected now that they're here," Curran added. "It is great to have their presence here."

Open for safety

SD&G and East Grenville MPP Noble Villeneuve, centre, officially opens the community policing office for Finch and Finch Township Friday. Villeneuve is flanked on the left by OPP Const. Gord MacKillop and Finch Township Reeve and SD&G Warden Floyd Dingwall, and on the right by Finch Village Reeve Lynden Hough and OPP Insp. Vic Burns.

Judge feels his hands tied

MORRISBURG - "I am subject to the Ontario Court of Appeal and so is Mr. Cougler," Judge J.A. Fontana said in provincial court here Tuesday afternoon in finding 30-year-old Morrisburg resident Robert Cougler guilty of impaired driving.

Judge Fontana was referring to provincial appeals court decision which ruled that any evidence of impairment, from slight to extreme, bears out the charge of impaired driving.

Cougler was found guilty of impaired driving dating from an incident Sat., Sept. 17, 1994 in which he was stopped by Morrisburg OPP officers on his way home a few minutes after leaving to drive to a convenience store for a late night snack, Cougler failed a roadside breath test and was taken to the Morrisburg OPP station where Const. Tony Kerr administered a breathalyzer test. Cougler twice blew readings of .130, despite his claim that he had consumed only two mixed drinks, the second only a a few minutes before leaving his home.

He was charged with impaired driving and operating a vehicle with a blood -alcholol level of over .08.

Judge Fontana found him not guilty on the charge of over .08, saying testimony given by Coughler and especially by his wife, Vicky, whom Judge Fontana called a "very careful and honest witness", cast a reasonable doubt on the Crown Attorney Sheila Seguin's attempt to prove guilt.

Both husband and wife testified that Coughler had consumed two drinks of rye and ginger ale, a total of about five ounces of alcohol, between 12:30 and 1:25am although both were hazy on other details of the evening.

Cougler, who said he only drinks about 10 times a year, testified he then left the couple's Victoria St. home to drive to a convenience store to pick up a snack. He stopped at Mac's Milk and then the Morrisburg Post Office, continuing west on Fifth St. before turning around and heading for home, a distance of only a few hundred yards from the convenience store.

His vehicle was observed moving into the oncoming lane on Fifth St. by OPP Const. Peter Valiquette, who testified Tuesday that Cougler spun his wheels twice at intersections and that he began following Cougler's pick-up truck in his unmarked car, switching on his red dash light and alternating headlights in an attempt to get the truck to stop after it had turned south from Fifth onto Ottawa St.

Cougler did not stop until almost reaching his home, a distance of about 250 yards.

By that time Valiquette had radioed Const. Kerr, on patrol that night in a regular cruiser, to say he may need assistance in getting the Cougler vehicle to stop.

By the time Kerr arrived Cougler was in the back of Valiquette's car. Cougler failed the roadside test, although his lawyer was later able to prove to Judge Fontana's satisfaction that no evidence had been introduced to prove how the roadside machine had been calibrated and therefore what the threshold for failing the test would have been.

Grenkie also introduced a letter from the Ministry of the Solicitor General which showed that, based on Cougler's claims, at the time he was stopped his blood-alcohol level could not have exceeded .08.

In delivering his decision Judge Fontana said there was no doubt Cougler had been drinking and had consumed a not inconsiderable quantity of alcohol but that it was not as much as sometime seen.

The testimony of two witnesses clashed with evidence obtained by mechanical means and that, in combination with the letter from the ministry, cast enough doubt on the Crown's case to lead to an acquittal.

Judge Fontana found Cougler guilty on the impaired charge based on the tesitmony of the two OPP officers, particularly Const. Kerr, who administered the breathalyzer tests at the detachment office.

Kerr testified that Cougler gave off a strong odor of alcohol, his speech was slurred, his face was flushed and his eyes glassy and watery.

He passed one sobriety test - touching his index fingers to his nose - but stumbled twice during a heel-to-toe test.

The two charges are "very, very, very different" and the judge said his hands were tied by the Court of Appeal decision on impairment which "which narrows the ability of trial courts to act judiciously".

He told Grenkie that if this had been a trespassing case, Cougler would have been found guilty of having had one foot on the property.

He fined Cougler $500, giving him three months to pay, and suspended his driver's licence for 12 months.

Crown attorney Sheila Seguin had sought a fine of between $500 and $800 and a suspension of between 12 and 18 months.

Seven year old Alexandre Seaver of Moose Creek tests the Eastern Ontario Health Unit's 60th anniversary commemorative quilt, which was assembled by his grandmother, Juliette Grignon of Casselman. The quilt contains 200 hand-stitched messages and will be on display through SD&G and Prescott-Russell to mark the health unit's anniversary.

Annual dog walk May 27

CHESTERVILLE — Participants don't even need a dog to join in on the fun of the Chesterville Lions Club's Fifth Annual Earl Cross Memorial Walk-A-Dog-Athon.

The event will take place May 27 at Chesterville Public School and all proceeds will be donated to the Chesterville Fire Department.

A presentation by the fire department will begin at 10 a.m. with the feature event taking place at 10:30 a.m., rain or shine.

Sponsor sheets are available at Lorilea's Clip Salon, Seaway Valley Pharmacy, Canada Post, Chesterville Record, Chesterville Public School and St. Mary's School.

Organizer Tom McMahon says he is hoping for a "good sized" turn-out. In previous years, up to 30 people have participated.

Earl Cross, adds McMahon, was a charter member of the Lions Club. He died a few years ago and this event has been hosted for five years in his memory.

Although the club will be pleased with whatever funds are raised, said McMahon, "the last time the event was held more than $700 was donated to the Humane Society."

Sherrer named best midget girl at EOSSAA championships

CORNWALL - The conditions could not have been much worse. Cold, windy and a driving, soaking rain hampered the athletes here at St. Lawrence High School when they hosted the 1995 SD&G Track and Field championships.

In spite of the miserable weather there were glittering individual efforts turned in, including one by Inkerman's Rhonda Sherrer who won the 800m, 1500m and 3000m runs and was named the Top Midget Girl athlete in the 10-school competition.

Sherrer's three-gold medal day was one of the highlights for North Dundas District High School coach Hugh Conlin.

"We had 18 people qualify for EOSSAA (May 18 in Arnprior). Rhonda Sherrer was the the Top Midget Girl, our Midget Boys team was first overall and our Midget and Senior Girls were both second overall. It was a good day for the school," he said.

The powerful La Citadelle Patriotes took the 'AA' school team championship and the Seaway Spartans were second overall and the top 'A' school team.

Conlin is quite pleased with the personal performances of his team.

"Rhonda Sherrer's three firsts. Matt Carkner, Mike Flowers, Monique St. Pierre, Mary Linton, Maggie Graham all had first places," added Conlin, "Murray Link won the 400m and 800m. Lauren Clobridge had three seconds. Melissa Douma had two seconds and a third and we had three relay teams qualify for EOSSAA."

"Yes is was a pretty good meet but I'm especially pleased with the Midget (boys and girls) teams. The boys were especially strong," he said.

Conlin, however, felt his Junior Girls team, with just two members, could have been stronger but he was happy to see the Senior Girls, including Kerry Howes, Mary Linton, Maggie Graham and Melissa Douma do so well.

Also encouraging for his team were the three second place finishes by the relay teams.

The Open girls 4x400m team of Rhonda Sherrer, Monique St. Pierre, Lauren Clobridge and Melissa Douma has qualified for EOSSAA.

Also going to Arnprior is the Senior girls 4x100m squad of Maggie Graham, Melissa Douma, Lauren Clobridge and Mary Linton.

The Midget boys 4x100m unit of Chris Barkley, Todd Sloan, Craig Holmes and Tyler Copeland will also make the trip.

EOSSA QUALIFIERS

Sandra Dillich
Record Staff

The Char-Lan Crusaders are at the top of the 'A' division Junior and Senior girls high school soccer league.

The Crusaders remain undefeated in both categories as they head into the playoffs this Friday (May 19).

The Senior Crusaders held tightly onto first place when they blanked the Rothwell-Osnabruck Lancers 3-0 and the Seaway District High Spartans. Heather Smith posted both shut-outs.

In the Crusaders contest against the Lancers Christina Lalonde, Kelly Lariviere and Michelle Owen popped in singles for the 3-0 victory.

Owen gave her Crusaders another victory when she capitalized on the final play of the game to put them in the win category for the fourth time this season.

TAGWI WARRIORS

The Tagwi Warriors blanked the Seaway Spartans and the Rothwell-Osnabruck Lancers by scores of 4-0. Shelly Villeneuve dumped in two for the Warriors in both contests to lead the way to victory. Kathy Doan and Christine Labelle chipped in singles for the win over the Spartans.

In the Warriors contest against the Lancers Villeneuve and Doan both popped in doubles.

Amy Sanders posted two perfect performances.

STANDINGS

Char-Lan ends the regular season in first place with a 4-0-2 (10 points) record followed by Tagwi with seven points (3-2-1). Rothwell-Osnabruck is in third place with a perfect record of .500 (2-2-2, 6 points) while Seaway brings up the bottom with a record of 0-5-1 and one point.

In semi-final action the Lancers take on the Warriors (Tuesday, May 16) for a chance against the Crusaders (Friday, May 19) who have earned a bye.

JUNIOR

A hat trick from Char-Lan Crusader Shawna Atcheson in their contest against the Rothwell-Osnabruck Lancers gave the Crusaders a perfect regular season record (5-0-1).

Tessa Humphries rounded out the score in the 4-0 victory over the Lancers.

The Crusaders also downed the Seaway Spartans by a score of 2-1.

Humphries and Anik Green popped in singles for the victory.

Seaway's lone goal scorer was Maria Leonarde.

TAGWI WARRIORS

In the Tagwi Warriors final two outings they found themselves unable to get on the board and pick up a win.

The Seaway Spartans were the first to hand the Warriors a loss as they downed them 2-0.

Playoffs in the future for senior Devils

Sandra Dillich
Record Staff

MAPLE RIDGE - The North Dundas Senior girls soccer team chances of making it to the 'AA' division playoffs are looking good.

Spear-headed by Cathy Auger's solid goaltending (2/2 GF/GA) the Senior Devils have posted a 1-1-2 record so far this season.

"Hopefully we'll make the playoffs. The chances of us going to the playoffs are certainly alive," noted Devils's coach Kelly Durant.

On Tuesday May 2 the Devils opened their season with a 1-0 victory over the Cornwall Collegiate Raiders.

Chrissy Linton fired in the only point of the game while Auger posted the first of her three shut-outs.

Following their victory over the Raiders the Devils then took on the General Vanier Vikings who proved to be in equal opposition to North Dundas.

Both goalies left the field with shut outs to their credits in the 0-0 tie.

"It certainly looked good for the first games of the season," noted Durant.

"We had a lot more shots in these two games than all of last season."

On Tuesday May 9 the Devils took their 1-0-1 record to the field against the St. Joseph Panthers and the St. Lawrence Saints.

It was the battle of goaltenders when the Devils and Panthers squared off against one another.

Both teams were unable to penetrate through the defensive zones and while both net minders posted perfect performances for a final score of 0-0.

The Saints proved to be a bit more difficult to stop as they handed North Dundas their first loss of the season by a score of 2-1.

The Saints popped in both of their points on penalty kicks.

"Cathy (Auger) stopped a few penalty shots before this but this (the winning goal) was a very nicely placed one so there wasn't much she could do about it.

Sandra Brunner was the lone goal scorer for the Devils when she kicked the ball in from well outside the 18 yard box.

With the Senior girls soccer 'AA' division being evenly matched this season, Durant is finding the players are becoming frustrated and losing their game focus.

"I'm seeing a lot more roughness all around in terms of language and sportsmanship, and not everybody's guilty of that, but we have to concentrate more on the game."

The Devils saved their toughest competition for the end of the season. North Dundas travels to Alexandria this Friday (May 19) to take on the Gaels and the La Citadelle Patriotes.

"They're (Glengarry) probably our stiffest competition. They always have a tough team," added Durant.

JUNIOR DEVILS

The Junior Devils are experiencing a respectable season as they have a 0-1-1 season record.

In the Devils first contest of the season they fell victim to a more organized St. Joseph Panthers squad by a score of 1-0.

North Dundas took their loss in hand and gave the St. Lawrence Saints a tough battle as both teams ended the day with a 1-1 score.

"The Juniors did a good job. They were digging and getting out there but they were just a bit disorganized," explained Devils' coach Kelly Durant.

"In the second game they were more organized and it showed."

Diane Charron scored the Devils only goal in two outings when teammate Sheena McBean kicked in a cross from outside the net where Charron was waiting to tip it in.

A Junior North Dundas Devil kicks the ball into a St. Lawrence Saint during their game last Tuesday afternoon.

Long season ahead for Wings

Sandra Dillich
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE - The Red Wings are looking a shade darker as the Legion Blues embarrassed them with a score of 12-0 in last week's Chesterville/Winchester Men's Ball Hockey League.

Aron Sherrer, Corey Van Delst and Ray Sherrer each netted hat tricks in the victory.

Brad Pringle posted the shut out.

After the first round of action the Red Wings found themselves down 3-0 following goals by Denis Ouelette (from Aron Sherrer and Chris Mann), John Guy with assistance from Aron Sherrer and Ben Henry as well as a single by Henry from Van Delst.

The Blues kept the momentum going in the second stanza as they popped in four more goals.

Ray Sherrer dumped in a double bracketing a single from Van Delst. Aron Sherrer rounded out the period with goal number seven from Henry.

Picking up assists in the second round were Shawn Clarke, Ouelette, Aron Sherrer and Henry (2).

The third period looked much like the first two with the Blues dominated the ball in the Red Wings' end and the Wings unable to capitalize on their few goal scoring chances.

Firing in goals in the final round for the Legion Blues were Ray Sherrer, Aron Sherrer (2), Troy Helmer and Oulette.

Grabbing assists were Henry (3), Van Delst (2) and Mann (2).

The losing goalie was Denis Desormeaux.

FLASHES 5 - FLYERS 2

The game was a bit more of a goalie's battle when Jumpin Jacks Flashes took on the Frog's Flyers. The Flashes came out on top with a score of 5-2.

After one period of play the Flashes had garnered themselves a 2-0 lead thanks to singles by Chris Berkers and Willy O'-Connor.

Berkers put the Flashes on the board when he fired in a pass from Erick Beugger and Andrew Holmes with 12:07 left in the first.

O'Connor made it 2-0 when he completed a play started by Tyler Copeland and Barry Bell with 5:55 left on the clock.

Paul Melenhorst put his Flashes up by three midway through the second stanza when he finished a play started by Berkers.

The Flyers finally put themselves on the board when Clinton Holmes cut into the Flashes lead with 47 seconds left in the period. Jason Desormeaux netted the assist.

The Flashes continued to dominate the slab as they fired in two more third round points for a final score of 5-2.

Kevin Moore fired in Jumpin Jacks' third point of the night early in the final round when he completed a play initiated by Berkers and Sandy Johnston.

Melenhorst made it 5-1 with 9:48 left until the final buzzer when he drove to the Flyers' net alone.

With 4:38 left in the game the Flyers' managed to cut their deficit by one when Mike Desormeaux handed off to Colin Cotnam.

Four teams off the board

Sandra Dillich
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE - Few goals and shut-outs were what last week's Chesterville/Winchester Ladies Ball Hockey League produced.

Four of the eight teams were shut out of the scoring race while the most amount of goals in any one game was three in the contest between the Green Things and the Orange Peelers.

Lorraine MacIntosh was the first one to put the Peelers on the board when she fired in a pass from Debbie Shaver and Monique Rutley with 11:36 left in the opening period.

Shaver then made it 2-0 for the Peelers when she completed a play initiated by MacIntosh and Trish Burke.

Both front lines were held off by goalies Roxanne Backes (Green) and Diane Shane (Peelers) in the second round.

With six minutes left until the final buzzer Shaver popped in an insurance goal with help from MacIntosh and Burke for the 3-0 victory.

Shane posted her first shut-out of the season.

MELLOW 3 - DEEP PURPLE 0

It was not until late in the final period that the Mellow Yellow crew were able to put some balls into the net.

Heather Graham finally broke the deadlocked score with 9:27 left in the game when she completed a pass fed to her by Rhonda Kelly.

Kelly followed up her assist with a goal of her own less than three minutes later for a 2-0 Mellow Yellow lead. Kim Pollock and Terri Hoy picked up assists.

With 2:12 left in the third Coreen Skuce popped in a third for the Yellow squad with help from Jen Casselman and Hoy for the 3-0 victory.

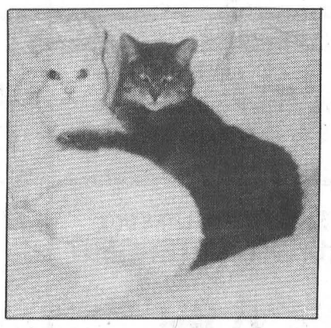
Petra Meier and Pam Berry each collected three firsts in the 14 year-old bracket. Meier won the 800m, 1500m and the Triple Jump while Berry topped the High Jump, the 200m and 400m. Jaime Long (60m), Erinn Foley (100m), Genna Doorward (Shot Put) and Amanda DeVries (Long Jump) were also gold medalists.

The 14 year-old boys' leader was sprint specialist Jesh Edgar who ran to victory in the 60m, 100m and 200m. Marty Link won the 1500m and the 400m while Grant Norris turned in the best 800m time. Leonard Murphy took the Triple Jump and the Long Jump while Travis Wright soared to a win in the High Jump. Clayton Viling was the best shot putter.

Sitting on the sidelines

With Sandy With a Y



Well, folks it has finally come to this. I have to actually write about something sports oriented that has absolutely nothing to do with me.

And can we all guess what this week's topic is boys and girls? That's right, NHL predictions.

Now, I have a hard enough time trying to predict the outcome of the food I cook (edible or not edible are my two choices, sometimes it's so bad my cats even turn their noses up at it) so having to deal with all of these choices may be tough but I'll give it a shot.

Let me preface this by saying that during the first round last year I did pick New York to take the Cup so let's see if I can go two for two.

Now, like everyone else I'm going to have to go with Detroit taking the Cup so the real question (prediction) comes in figuring out who they will destroy on the way to victory lane.

We could go through all of the statistical mumbo-jumbo and come out with a winner but why? I'm not a number cruncher and I hate the law of mathematical averages. I much prefer going with my gut. And please don't insult me with that 'women's intuition' stuff.

OK, after all of that my pick is New Jersey and Detroit in the final. How many games...who cares I'll be sipping my adult beverages out on the balcony, catching some rays while watching the games. Who needs Florida?

****

Well, my Automotive Angel has decided camping in the wilds of Ontario and using nature at its latrine is too uncivilized and has opted for the comfort of a a cabin which leaves me and Engine Joanna to survive for three days and two nights all by ourselves. Who was the smarter of the three?

So if I fail to appear in this spot next week you know that I probably tripped and fell into a puddle and drowned or had some other silly thing put me in traction.

So come back next week for another episode of The Adventures of Hucketta Finn and Engine Joanna.

Time for a change?
