MRS JANE ERRINGTON

At the ripe old age of 99 years and 23 days, Mrs. Jane Errington, one of Morrisburg's oldest residents, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jas. Lane, early Wednesday morning, November 4th, after a short illness.

Deceased spent most of her life at Dundela where she resided until ten years ago, when she came to reside in Morrisburg. Her husband, Mr. Wm. Errington, predeceased her 24 years ago.

Notwithstanding her advanced age, Mrs. Errington was active during her residence in Morrisburg and made many warm friends who esteemed her more highly as the years passed by.

Five generations were represented at the death bed to witness the removal of a loving and generous heart from earthly care to her eternal rest.

She is survived by four daughters and two sons: Mrs. G. E. Dillabough and Mrs. Jas. Lane of Morrisburg, Mrs. J. E. Hutt, Winchester, Mrs. Marjell, Canastota, N.Y., John of Freehold, Mich.; and William of Iroquois. She is also survived by 27 grand children and 42 great grand children and 3 great, great grandchildren.

The funeral service was held on Friday afternoon, at 1:30, at the home of Mr. Jas. Lane, Rev. E. Lawson officiating. The remains were laid to rest in the family plot at Dundela.

NATIONAL POPPY DAY CAMPAIGN

During the past four years branches of the G.W.V.A. and other Organizations throughout the Dominion have organized a Poppy Day Campaign for Armistice Day, in order that those who remember sacrifices made during the Great War may indicate their appreciation by wearing a replica of the flower which blooms above the graves of our comrades in Flanders Fields.

The Poppy Campaign has been the means by which local branches of the G. W. V. A. have created the fund for the alleviation of the distress among the ex-service men and their dependents during the period of unemployment prevalent during the winter months and during sickness, and there is every evidence that the demand for such assistance this winter will be greater than ever.

"Veteran" Poppies are being put on sale by the local branch of The Great War Veterans Association. All Poppies are stamped Veteran, indicating that they are made by disabled men and nobody should refuse to again buy a Poppy this year.

AUTOIST SENTENCED

James Blanchard, who, on the evening of August 4, while driving on the East Front road near Cornwall, ran into a coupe belonging to Dr. W. C. McGuire, Mrs. McGuire being killed, was tried yesterday at the Fall Assizes at Cornwall on a charge of manslaughter and was found guilty by a jury.

His Lordship, in sentencing the accused said that people who drive automobiles recklessly, causing the death have to be dealt with severely. A feature which weighed with his Lordship was the fact that the accused had served for four years over seas, and in view of this he was let off with one year's imprisonment.

DEEKS—MERKLEY

A very quiet but pretty wedding took place at the parsonage on Tuesday evening November 3rd, 1925, at 6:30, when Mr. Allen Edward Deeks, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Deeks of Morrisburg, was united in marriage to Miss Dora Georgina Merkley, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Merkley, Morrisburg.

The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Elwood Lawson. The happy couple left on the 7:59 train for western points, amidst showers of rice and confetti, and best wishes of their many friends.

McKEEN—GOODWIN

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of the Bride's Parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Goodwin, Nelson St., Aultsville, Ont., on Friday Oct. 30th, 1925, at 1 p.m. when Edith Fletcher, their eldest daughter, became the bride of Mr. Frederick H. McKee of Gaspe, Que., son of Mr. John McKee.

The bride, who looked charming in a gown of Sandle wood crepe entered the parlor on the arm of her father, carrying a pink rose bud arm bouquet to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Muriel Stewart. The bride couple, who were unattended, were united in marriage by Rev. G. W. Dustan pastor of Trinity United Church. After the signing of the register a buffet luncheon was served. The happy couple left amid showers of rice and confetti on the International Limited for Sackville, Fredericton, N.B., and will later reside in Gaspe, Que. The bride, who had only resided here for one short year had made many warm friends who join in heartiest congratulations for their happiness.

BLAIR—RAYMOND

At the "Trinity" United Church Parsonage, Aultsville, on Thursday, October 29th, 1925, Mr. Daniel Blair of Newington was united in marriage to Miss Raymond of Avonmore by Rev. G. W. Dustan. Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple left for a short motor trip.

AUTO HURLED ASIDE BY TRAIN

Their automobile crushed when struck by a C.N.R. train at a level crossing in the village of Maxville, on the Ottawa-Montreal line, seven people lie in Civic Hospital, Ottawa suffering from serious injuries.

At the moment of the impact the automobile broke out in flames, and imprisoned in a flaming cage, the occupants of the car were dragged down the track for perhaps 150 feet before the automobile broke loose and fell beside the track. Before it broke loose Mrs. Stanley Allen with her baby in her arms fell out of the blazing sedan onto the right of way. When the train came to a stop the automobile settled against the second class coach of the train, the flames mounting steadily higher.

Two bystanders, Messrs. John McKilligan and James MacDonald, and Constable Ripert, of the provincial police, who was perhaps first off the train, ran to free the imprisoned occupants of the blazing machine, and after great difficulty and much personal risk succeeded in dragging them to safety. Mr. Stanley Allen's clothes were blazing and his hands badly burned.

While none of the party is able to make a statement concerning the accident, it is understood that as the first of two automobiles crossed the track and the other was about to do so, a bystander waved frantically for him to stop. Mr. Allen jammed on the brakes, but in spite of the slow speed at which he was going, was not able to stop clear of the tracks. The train which was slowing for the station about 100 yards farther on, struck the front of the automobile and dragged it down the track.

Kit Kennedy

BY S. R. CROCKETT.

CHAPTER XLVI.—(Cont'd.)

Presently Mary Bisset stayed the current of her gossamer gossip. "What is the matter, Kit?" she said, looking intently into his face.

"Nothing," asserted Kit, more gloomily than before.

Mary smiled a little private smile confined to the side of her face furthest from her companion. She thought that he was sulky about the visit of Mr. Cathcart. And being a sensible girl she was not a bit sorry that he should feel that way about the matter.

"It will do him good," she said to herself; "they are all apt to take things too easily."

It is curious that she never thought of connecting Kit's gloom with the man who had claimed him for a son, after stopping them both at the door of the Ellysium.

To Mary Bisset, innocently conscious of her own attractiveness and of Kit's admiration, only one subject appeared likely to influence his moods.

At last Kit burst out.

"This is good-bye," he said.

"Good-bye!" faltered Mary Bisset; then with a slight smile she continued, "You are angry with me—you are joking?"

"No," said Kit, blurring out his trouble at last, and glad to be done with it. "I am disgraced, whatever I do. I have lost my bursary money. It was stolen out of my desk late last night. I cannot stay at college and run more deeply into debt. Yet I have to send my certificates to the secretary because I have taken their money."

As he spoke Mary Bisset's face grew pale, and her sweet lips fell pitifully away from each other.

"But why," said she, breathlessly, "why do you not apply to the police?"

Kit smiled grimly, thinking neither of his sweetheart nor yet of her words, but of his own sick heart.

"Because the only two who entered my room were my own friend Rob Grier and—and my father! That is the reason."

"Your father!" cried Mary, incredulously; "the man whom we saw at the music hall—he was really your father?"

"I have no choice but to believe so," answered Kit.

As Kit spoke they had been nearing the defile of houses down which they were wont to turn in order to reach their homes.

Mary touched Kit's arm.

"Don't let us go in yet," she said; "let us walk across the Meadows and talk it all over!"

Kit, wrapped in his trouble, gloomily acquiesced. It had begun to rain a little, and Mary Bisset wanted to pick up her skirts a little before venturing through the grimy needle's eye of Archers' Hall.

"Will you hold my umbrella for me?" she said, glancing up at Kit.

Kit reached a hand for the closely entwined, lady-like article of protection, which he held like a toy. He himself walked forward in all weathers and took the rains of heaven as they fell. But the girl's practical words awoke him out of his selfish sorrow.

He held the umbrella over Mary's head.

"It is kind of you to mind," as he spoke he stammered in his speech; "why should you care that I am ruined—disgraced?"

He said the last word with a sort of sob. He thought of going back to his mother and those who had been so proud of him. The white flag would still be flying on the pine tree on the lochslope, and he knew that his mother would look towards it at morn and even.

Mary Bisset's lips were pressed closely together now. They denoted a kind of womanly determination equally foreign to the soft childish curves of her cheek and to the sweetness of her eyes. She was rather longer than she need have been in settling the swing of her skirts to her mind. For there was that in her eyes which Mary did not care to trust even to the gloomy November night. Then at last she laid her hand on Kit's arm and drew him away to the right, along the little walk through the Meadows, with the bare boughs dripping overhead and the lights of the city twinkling mist-blurred through a pale bluish haze.

"Kit Kennedy," she said sharply, "you call yourself a man, yet you are ready to give in at the first obstacle. I have been going to speak to you for some time. I am glad the chance has come now. You have been taking things far too easily. They tried for a bursary. You won it. And—well, you have done nothing since. I know, for there is one of our teachers attending your classes."

"Mr. Cathcart!" said Kit, gloomily. "No—not Mr. Cathcart! Mary went on, "But it does not matter if it were Mr. Cathcart. The thing is so. And I dared not tell you. But now, when you speak meanly of giving up—why, I can speak, and I will."

"What can I do?" said Kit, who was becoming a little sulky. He had not been so spoken to ever since he began to think well of himself.

"Why, at the very first check you would cast all to the winds. I tell you, Christopher Kennedy," she flashed round upon him so swiftly that Kit stopped. The pretty girl stood fronting him, one small gloved finger pressed peremptorily into the palm of the other hand, with the action she used when emphasizing a fact to a stubborn class (and the inspection day was near). "I tell you plainly, I am twice the man you are. You think I am only a girl, and in one way I am. But I have kept myself and helped my father and mother with the rent ever since I was thirteen. Then they would not take me as a pupil teacher, because my father was an Infidel Lecturer. But I became a pupil teacher all the same. Parents would not send their children to be taught by me for the same reason. They took them from school. I went and saw them—and the children came back again. Then I could not be admitted to the training colleges here because they were denominational. I went alone to London at seventeen and got through my two years there. With worse than no influence I gained an assistantship in a school where influence does nearly everything."

Mary was talking swiftly now, still standing in front of Kit. Both of them had forgotten all else. And more than one passer-by turned and smiled at the tableau. Kit, a tall awkward lad, stood holding an umbrella over his own head, while this slender, emphatic little person demonstrated fiercely into the palm of her gloved hand.

"A lovers' quarrel!" they said to themselves, and retailed the matter as a joke at their cosy tea-tables on the other side of the Meadows.

Kit was dumb before Mary's outbreak. Yet even in the turmoil of his thoughts he could not help being stimulated and quickened. Mainly, however, he was thinking how pretty she looked. The light of one of the rare lamps fell directly upon her piquant face and flashing eyes. The sweetness seemed gone from these last, and in its place there was such a flashing contempt for cowardice, such an ardency of resolve, so pronounced a snap and glitter of belligerence, that Kit could do nothing but stare.

"You are lovely!" he stammered, as if ignorant that he was speaking at all.

Mary Bisset stamped her foot. "Pshaw," she cried, "that proves it. I speak to you for your good. I tell you my heart as I have not done to my own father, and you have nothing to answer but that! Did I not tell you that I was twice the man you were? You ought to be ashamed of yourself, Kit Kennedy."

But all the same, because no woman can stand and look at the admiration in the eyes of a man who—well, who is worth taking the trouble with that Mary Bisset was taking with Kit, the sharpness oozed out of her declaration, though the earnestness remained.

After all, Mary Bisset was a pretty girl as well as a very practical person. And she knew her merit on both scores.

But she was not going to be less practical because Kit admired her, and because even in the midst of her tonic indignation she could see (as it were) her own quite satisfactory person reflected in the mirror of Kit's eyes. Still Mary was conscious that she ought to have been annoyed, and this made her more than ever determined that Kit should pay for the feeling.

"And now," she said, with a vicious snap of her white and regular teeth, "instead of standing up to trouble like a man, you would basely turn your back on it as soon as the wind blows. You mean to disappoint your friends and break their hearts, to rejoice your enemies—and I shall be sorry. I am sorry now—that is, unless you have something more in you than ruffling away."

Kit had thought specially well of himself in this matter. He had hidden his trouble successfully from his father, from Mr. Strong, from Rob Grier. Hitherto his conscience had continuously applauded itself. But this was decidedly looking at the matter from a new standpoint.

"What am I to do?" said Kit, yet more mournfully.

"First, give me a share of my own umbrella," said Mary, still indignant, "and then walk along like a reasonable being."

But within herself she was saying, "I am doing it all for his good."

Which process is rarely pleasant for the beneficiary.

"Do?" said Mary, suddenly losing patience as the helplessness of Kit's question came back to her mind, "well, first of all—try. What does your companion do—teach in the evenings. Why cannot you? Get some work to do out of college hours. Your preparation, by your own account, does not take so much of your time. My father will get you some, if you are not too proud to take what turns up."

"God knows I am not proud," said Kit Kennedy, earnestly.

"Well, then," said Mary, relenting a little. "I am sure you will do very well. I am sure you will never speak any more of going away or giving up college." Now we must go home. They will be wondering where I am. And besides (as if the state of the elements had occurred to her for the first time) it is raining and my hat is soaking. More than that, I have talked to you as no girl ought to do. And they were quite right to try to stop me teaching in the schools. For I never do what I ought. But all the same, they did not."

Thus Mary talked on as they left the twinkling gloom and converging lamps of the Meadows alone in the misty "haar" (easterly mist off the

$100.00 IN PRIZES FOR BEST LETTERS

The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. Offer Twenty-Eight Prizes in a Letter Writing Competition.

Some years ago the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont., offered a series of prizes to residents of Ontario and Quebec for the best letters describing benefits obtained through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Hundreds of letters were submitted in this competition, and yet there must have been thousands of other users of the pills who did not avail themselves of the opportunity to win a prize. To all these another letter-writing competition is offered. Thousands have benefited through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills whose cases have not been reported. These will furnish the material for letters to be written in the contest. There is no demand upon the imagination; every letter must deal with facts and facts only.

The Prizes.

The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont., will award a prize of $25.00 for the best letter received on or before the 21st day of November, 1925, from the residents of these provinces on the subject: "Why I Recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." A prize of $15.00 will be awarded for the second best letter received; a prize of $10.00 for the third best letter, and twenty-five prizes of $2.00 each for the next best twenty-five letters.

The Conditions.

The benefit derived from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills described in the letter may be in the writer's own case, or that of some one in the writer's home.

More than one case may be described in the letter, but every statement must be literally and absolutely true.

Every letter must be signed by the full name and correct address of the person sending it. If it describes the case of some person other than the writer of the letter, it must also be signed by the person whose case is described, as a guarantee of the truth of the statements made.

The writer of each letter must give the name of the paper in which he or she saw this announcement.

Fine writing will not win the prize unless you have a good case to describe. The strength of the recommendation and not the style of the letter will be the basis of the award.

The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. shall have the right to publish any letter entered in the contest, if they desire to do so, whether it wins a prize or not.

The contest will close November 21st, 1925, and the prizes will be awarded as soon as possible thereafter. Do not delay. If you know of a good case write your letter NOW. Observe the above conditions carefully or your letter may be thrown out.

Address all letters as follows:—

The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. Letter Contest Department.

German Ocean). She did not want Kit to say any more. She could see perilous things—things for which she was not ready, things which were better unsaid for the present—hovering in his eyes and trembling upon his tongue.

They got to the foot of the stair. Kit paused to take down the umbrella.

"Mary," he began, in a thick, suppressed voice, speaking with more than his old difficulty.

"Good-night," she said, lightly, "there is my father waiting for me. But you are not going to keep my umbrella to yourself now, if you have done so all the time we have been coming home. Deliver it up! And mind what I have said to you!"

So with a flash of admonitory finger, and a kind glance which she left Kit as a salute to his feelings, she tripped up the steps, leaving the young man standing limp and dazed by the greasy lintel of the common stair.

"Why," said Kit to himself after a long pause, "I thought she was only a girl!"

But at that moment Mary Bisset, who after all was only a girl, or at most only a woman, was lying on her little white bed with her face to the pillow.

"Oh, what shall I do—what shall I do?" she was saying in accents that were sobs. These are words that do not vary with rank or age, wisdom or experience, when women are in trouble.

The only difference is that after the storm is overpast some do know what to do, and upon such descends a time of clear shining after rain. And Mary Bisset was of those who do not spend long in fruitless mourning. For by the time her mother came knocking at the door she had eaten de Cologne, and begun to make up her mind for a second and more bitter interview. For as yet only the easier part of her work was done.

CHAPTER XLVII.

MARY IMPROVES DICK'S ARITHMETIC.

"Dick, I want you!"

"All right—plenty of time. I'm getting up," grumbled the voice of Dick Bisset from the little corner room which he occupied next Mary's. Then he lowered his tones, "Mary, go into the kitchen like a good girl and get a fellow some baking soda without letting father see you. I was on an awful tear last night, and I've a head on me as big as the Castle Rock."

Mary did as she was asked. Her father had already gone out. Her mother was putting the finishing touches to breakfast.

"Dick will need more than soda," Mary remarked to herself, "when I have done with him."

"Now be quick; I'm all ready for school and I want to speak to you in the parlor!"

Dick groaned audibly within his locked chamber door.

"It's no use taking trouble with me, old girl," he said; "I am not your sort—nor yet father's. But, I say, I must have had a grandfather who made things hum in his time, though!"

The last sentence he confided to his mirror, in which he regarded his swollen and discolored face, his pale watery eyes, and closely-cropped reddish hair.

"Dick, you're not an Adonis," he admitted, shaking his head; "it's well you are smart, and can get the rhino together where another would starve. Or Violet, good girl as she is, would never look at you for your beauty."

Checked flannel was used for the separate skirt, which is cut in two pieces, and has an inverted plait either side of the front and back. The skirt is joined to a two-inch band, and straps suspended from the shoulders hold it in place. Plain flannel of a harmonizing tone fashions the little blouse, which fastens up the front beneath a narrow box-plait. The round boyish collar is of flannel to match the skirt. The long sleeves are gathered into a narrow band at the wrist. The skirt and the blouse may be joined beneath the belt, making a one-piece dress; but if kept separate, blouses of different but harmonizing colors could be worn with the skirt. No. 1202 is in sizes 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Size 8 requires 2½ yards of 36 or 40-inch material for the dress when made of one material, or 1½ yards for the blouse and 1½ yards for the skirt if made of contrasting materials. Price 20 cents.

Our Fashion Book, illustrating the newest and most practical styles, will be of interest to every home dress-maker. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

RED BLOODED MEN AND WOMEN

Get More Pleasure Out of Life and Are of More Use in the World Than Sickly, Rundown People.

There are people who lack the red blood to give color to their lips, warmth to their hands and brightness to their eyes.

These people tire easily and cannot compete in school, store or shop with the more energetic. Their blood being thin they are nervous and do not sleep well. Arising in the morning refreshed they begin each day bad and miss much of the pleasure of living.

To become active and energetic, like most red-blooded Canadians, these people need a blood-building tonic.

A tonic that gives strength, that revitalizes weak nerves, that increases the appetite and aids digestion will put color in the cheeks and lips and give vigor to the step. That means new joy in living, increased usefulness and longer life.

Where ever you find a person who has taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills faithfully you find an enthusiastic friend of the tonic that has made life mean more in many ways. These blood-making pills have been used by three generations of Canadians and in almost every community, however small, can be found those who owe health and happiness to this famous household remedy.

Weak and Run Down.

"I wish from my heart I could persuade every person who is run down in health to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial." Thus writes Mrs. Louise Mitchell, Oak Point, Man., who further says:—"About a year ago I was a weak woman, suffering from a run-down system and impoverished blood. Any little exertion would cause my legs to tremble and my heart to throb violently. I could not sweep a room or walk fifty feet without being exhausted. Then I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after taking only six boxes I am as well and strong as ever. I can walk and run without stopping every few seconds gasping for breath as previously. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will be my stand-by in the future if ever my blood needs building up again, and I shall always find pleasure in recommending them to anyone needing a tonic."

Help for Nervous People.

Are you pale and weak, tired most of the time, out of breath on slight exertion?

Are you nervous, is your sleep disturbed so that rest does not refresh you?

Is your appetite poor, your digestion weak and do you have pains after eating?

If you have any of these symptoms you need the help of such a reliable tonic as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Read what Mr. W. W. Francis, of Calgary, Alta., says of this tonic. "After returning from overseas," writes Mr. Francis, "my whole system was in a badly run down condition. I became nervous, irritable, pale and lost weight. Of course I was given treatment and recommended many tonics, some of which I took, but with no apparent result. At last I could not even sleep. My sister, who is in England, wrote and urged me to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial, and I can scarcely say how glad I am that I took her advice. My friends were surprised at my complete recovery, but I assured them it was due entirely to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I now always keep a box on hand in case of emergency."

Keep Your System Toned Up.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills assist digestion, correct the lassitude, the palpitation of the heart, shaky nerves and the pallor of the face and lips that are the results of thin, impure blood.

Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for anemia, rheumatism, neuralgia, nervousness. Take them as a tonic if you are not in the best physical condition and cultivate a resistance that will keep you well and strong. Get a box and begin this treatment now.

Send for These Health Books.

Two useful books, "Building Up the Blood," and "What to Eat and How to Eat," will be sent free by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., if you mention this paper.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or will be sent by mail, post paid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box.

The Frontier College.

The first calendar of the Frontier College strikes a new note in education. This institution endeavors to relate an Arts course to life, and is therefore designed to open the door of opportunity to manual and other workers, hitherto neglected.

This institution claims, and with a good deal of reason, that too many of our young people have been sent away from home to acquire an education. This has detached them from the busy work-a-day world, and unfitted them for the daily round and common task of earning a living and helping their families and neighbors.

The Frontier College has broken new ground, and studiously avoids competition with the older universities. It seeks to create an interest in the homestead, farm, camp, shop and other forms of isolated employment so long overlooked.

There can be no question that the time is ripe for such a university. In a country like Canada where manual workers are needed most of all, and where this class will settle in large numbers in the future, it is necessary to bring education to the worker rather than take him away from his work to obtain an education elsewhere. For matriculants who have the ambition, energy and capacity to study alone, courses of study are outlined therein, and due provision will be made so that candidates may write their examinations locally.

Perhaps one of the most interesting features of the Frontier College is the fact that no boy or girl living in the city can win a scholarship. These are offered as a premium to encourage a "trek" back to the land. Substantial fellowships running from $100 to $500 are offered to young men and women who go to the frontier and combine manual labor and a few hours of teaching with private study. This is something decidedly new in education and every fair minded person interested in Canada will wish the experiment successful.

Fuller information may be obtained by writing to the Frontier College, Toronto.

Music, the Great Civilizer.

Music is the greatest civilizer in the world—its language is universal, its magical effect is the same, to black or white, red or yellow. It can stir the emotions of every race.

Fill the world with song by every means available. Let music be broadcast, as it were, to the remotest parts of the earth, and the beneficent results will be, more beauty in life, greater prosperity in the world of commerce, less unemployment in the ranks of labor, and a golden age of good-will to men of every race and in every clime.

Now the words, or, to employ the metaphysical term, the thoughts we entertain every day, are being stored up according to our belief in them, and as we accept or refuse them, so is our consciousness being formed. —Brian Brown.

A Poem You Should Know.

"The Happy Heart."

Thomas Dekker was a contemporary of Shakespeare and a popular poet and dramatist in his day. Charles Lamb said of him: "He had poetry enough for anything," and it is quite certain that the following song would not have disgraced Shakespeare himself:

Art thou poor, yet hast thou golden slumbers?
O sweet content!
Art thou rich, yet is thy mind perplexed?
O punishment!
Dost thou laugh to see how fools are vexed
To add to golden numbers, golden numbers?
O sweet content! O sweet, O sweet content!
Work apace, apace, apace apace;
Honest labor bears a lovely face;
Then hey nonny nonny, hey nonny nonny!

Canst drink the waters of the crisped spring?
O sweet content!
Swimm'st thou in wealth, yet sink'st in thine own tears?
O punishment!
Then he that patiently want's burden bears,
No burden bears, but is a king, a king!
O sweet content! O sweet, O sweet content!
Work apace, apace, apace apace;
Honest labor bears a lovely face;
Then hey nonny nonny, hey nonny nonny!

Light Brains Are Good.

Anatole France was a tall and well built man, and the weight of his brain, which is given by Regault as 1,017 grams, did not express its quality. The average weight of the male brain in English tables is a little over 1,350 grams and in French text-books is given at 1,390, so that the brain weight of Anatole France was considerably below the average.

It is obvious that in this case the common belief that the weight of the brain bears a definite proportion to the scope of genius was not exemplified. Autopsies of distinguished men reveal so many variations in the weight of the brain that no deductions even of a general character can be made.

Regault does note that the convolutions of the brain of Anatole France were specially marked and the furrows deep. As it is clear that the convoluted condition of the surface admits of a great increase of the gray matter without the sacrifice of large additional space, so it is reasonable to suppose that the number and extent of the convolutions as well as the depth of the intervening sulci should bear a direct relation to the intellectual powers of the individual.

There is evidence from the consideration of many post-mortem examinations that such is the case, and the weight of the brain of another great Frenchman, Bamberga, is being quoted in support of the generalization, as Bamberga, like Anatole France was found to have a comparatively light brain, with many well defined convolutions separated by deep sulci.

Testing a Tradition.

Near Ullensaker, in Norway, is a grass and tree-grown tumulus, 60ft. high and over 300ft. in diameter.

Dateless legend says it contains a stone chamber in which are the remains of an unknown king, lying on a couch between two white horses.

In 1870 an attempt was made to open the mound, but after several perilous falls of tons of earth and sand the excavators abandoned the work. Archaeologists are now preparing to make a fresh attempt to test the truth of the tradition.

Flowers Get Seaisick.

Flowers, in common with human beings, suffer from seasickness. This is particularly the case with daffodils, violets and lilacs of the valley. To keep these in good condition requires a great deal of ingenuity. The softest tissue paper is one of the main stand-bys, and in this the flowers are wrapped. They are kept in an even temperature, without water, until the day they are wanted.

Then they are plunged into iced water. The effect is magical. Very soon they are making the "green-house redolent with their smell."

By Keeping Baby's Own Tablets in the House at All Times.

It is a recognized fact that where the stomach and bowels are in good order that colds will not exist; that the health of the little one will be good and that he will thrive and be happy.

Thousands of mothers have become convinced through the actual use of the Tablets that there is nothing to equal them in banishing constipation and indigestion; breaking up colds and simple fevers; expelling worms and making teething time easy. Among the thousands who praise Baby's Own Tablets is Mrs. Alex. J. Perry, Atlantic, N.S., who says:—"I always keep Baby's Own Tablets in the house as I know of no other medicine for little ones to equal them."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The World's Best Joke.

What is the world's best joke? It isn't about some man's mother-in-law.

Neither is it what Pat said to Mike. Nor is it what one colored man said to another man during a crap game.

Here is how per capita is determined:

A man has a million dollars. Another man hasn't a dollar. But according to per capita, the wealth of the two men is $500,000 apiece.

Artificial Niagara Runs All Trains in Switzerland.

Taking a leaf from the rich book of nature, the Swiss have just completed an artificial Niagara Falls which will produce enough electrical power to operate all of the trains in Switzerland. Located at an altitude of 6000 feet in the Swiss Alps, the falls were put into operation the other day by the canton of Valais.

The falls are slightly higher than the American Niagara. Covering an area of more than 250 acres, the dam is 818 feet long and holds 39,000,000 cubic yards of water. Three years were required to build the dam, which cost approximately $12,500,000.

Mankind has long appreciated the power possibilities in moving water. There is ample evidence of this fact in his early development of the water wheel and in his attempts to harness the tides and even the waves. The increasing emphasis in recent years on both sides of the Atlantic on the development of hydro-electric power is an earnest of what the future holds. And the creation of artificial sources of such power as well as the harnessing of natural waterfalls are engineering feats of which ingenious man may well be proud.

The great advantage in "water fuel" for the production of power is that it can be used over again, indefinitely. When a ton of coal is burned it is gone forever, but after the descending water runs through the turbines, nature picks it up into the air again. The moisture will still be evaporating into the air and the rains descending into the streams, long after our great coal belts shall have been exhausted.

A penny in the slot—down come
The roasted peanuts, crisp and brown,
And with a whirl of soft gray wings
The eager pigeons flutter down
To eat from out the tender hands
Of the quaint figure standing there,
Each morning, waiting for the car—
A kind old man with snowy hair.

He little knows the picture fair,
The music sweet, I hear away
Upon the noisy train to town
To linger with me through the day:
Those outstretched hands, that gentle face
So full of love for helpless things—
How fine a sight! What music sweet,
That melody of whirring wings!

A WOMAN'S SUFFERING

Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Verdun, Montreal, Quebec. — "I am one of thousands who have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have great faith in it. I can safely say it has relieved my troubles and I shall never be without a bottle of it in my house. Since my last baby was born I suffered from pains and backache and would feel so tired I could not do anything in my home. Since I have been taking the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine I feel so different. I recommend it to all my friends and hope it will cure other women who are suffering from the troubles I had." — Mrs. THOS. H. GARDNER, 821 Evelyn Street, Verdun, Montreal, Quebec.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a dependable medicine for the new mother. It is prepared from roots and herbs, contains no harmful drugs and can be taken by the nursing mother.

Its worth in restoring the mother to normal health and strength is told again and again in just such letters as Mrs. Gardner writes.

A recent canvass of women users of the Vegetable Compound shows that 98 out of every 100 women taking the medicine are benefited by it. They write and tell us so. Such evidence entitles us to call it a dependable medicine for women. It is for sale by druggists everywhere.

"You don't need his Telephone Number for Station-to-Station calls"

"If I could remember his number I would make my call Station-to-Station and save money."

This subscriber had the wrong idea. He didn't need to know the number of the distant telephone.

All he needed to say to the Long Distance operator was: "I will speak to anyone at —" (then give her the name of the person who has the telephone—and the address too, if he knew it).

Perhaps this information will enable YOU to use the lower Station-to-Station rate more frequently.

WHY AKEN BOUGHT A SPREADER

And How the Old Club Got a Little Jolt.

BY J. D. C.

I dropped in at the store to look in on the weekly meeting of, what Doc Tanner jokingly called, the "Spit and Whistle Club," last Saturday afternoon, just as the boys were discussing Jud Aken and his new manure spreader.

"Who'd a'thought," Bill Briggs was saying, when I came in, "that old Jud, after all these years of spreading manure from a farm wagon with a fork, would ever spend $160 for such a thing as a spreader?"

"Does beat the band," remarked light-haired Peter Wagenor, and two or three others nodded their heads in knowing assent.

You see, Jud has a reputation of being just a little close. The boys at the store used to pull a lot of good ones at Jud's expense. Almost every story they told on Jud had something to do with his Scotch ancestry. I recall one of Doc Tanner's. Doc said that he had it on good authority that old Jud went out behind the house one Christmas eve with his shotgun, fired it off in the air, then came in and told the kinds that Santa Claus had just committed suicide.

Another mean one that someone told on Jud was about Jud's latest lapse of regular form, Jud's second oldest boy, Tom, came into the store for a breast-strap for a harness.

Asa Brown saw him first and, giving the rest of the boys the wink, called young Tom over. Now Asa himself was never accused of being what you might style a spendthrift, but then, it's usually these real tight old wads who like to tell how close other people are. I guess they think that, in that way, they draw attention away from themselves.

Well, anyway, Asa called Tom over and said, "They tell me you've got a nice new green and yellow spreader out to your place now, and that you boys all put on your Sunday suits when you spread manure."

"We've got a new spreader, that's right," answered Tom, good naturedly, "but you're all wrong about those Sunday clothes."

"What the heck ever induced your father to invest in a spreader at this stage of the game, anyhow?" asked Asa. "I never knew that you young skates over there on your farm ever broke so many fork handles working that the old man would figure he'd save money by buying a spreader."

"Oh, we haven't broken any fork handles lately," replied Tom. "In fact, the only fork handle that's been broken on our place in the last year was the one you broke when we threshed last fall, and Dad always insists that you were leaning on that one when it broke."

That sort of turned the laugh on Asa, for that's exactly what did happen over at Aken's last fall. The joke was that young Tom himself had switched forks with Asa at noon and had given him an old fork with a rotten handle and when Asa used it to help himself down off the wagon, it snapped.

"No, I'll tell you about that spreader, if you care to hear the truth of the matter," Tom went on after the laugh on Asa had died down. "No one sold Dad that machine. It sold itself to him."

That sounded like a queer sort of statement. Nobody said anything, and Tom went on:

"You all know the McPherson farm over in Hoyt township. You all know, too, that it is considered about the finest farm in the county and, whether you know it or not, that farm is held up as one of the high producing farms of this province. When I was at the college taking a short course last year, the teachers kept talking about soil fertility and the methods of building up worn-out land, and they often spoke of the McPherson farm in this county and explained how Mr. McPherson had built up his land from practically nothing, to one of the finest farms in the province, simply through a systematic fertility program and a herd of dairy cows."

"I came back home this spring and told my father about this McPherson farm, and how they did things up there. Dad listened at first, but after a while he got tired and told me that he didn't believe all that those teachers told about the place, and so on. Finally, I persuaded him to go over and visit the place with me. I wanted to learn more about it, and I believe that he was just a little bit curious himself. To make a long story short, we drove over."

"We had quite a talk with Mr. McPherson. The old fellow seemed glad to tell us about his place, and how he had built it up. He took us over his fields and explained his system of fertilizing. On the way back to the house we went through the barnyard, and there we saw his manure spreader standing under the manure shed. The old gentleman, stopping a minute, turned to Dad and said, 'There's the most valuable machine on my farm. I couldn't have built this place up without it, or one like it. I can load it up and know just exactly how much manure I'm putting on my fields, and I can be sure that I'm getting it spread evenly and well. I wear out one of those machines every two years and I buy a new one that often.'

"I noticed Dad look a little wild-eyed when he heard that, and when the old gentleman told Dad that he paid $160 for his last spreader, Dad asked him if he didn't think that was a lot of money to be spending for a spreader every two years."

"Mr. McPherson said, 'I used to think so at first, but I've come to believe that it's the best investment I made on my farm. That machine pays for itself in less than two years, operating for the last six months on velvet, you might say.' That last statement did stump my father."

"About two weeks after that visit to the McPherson farm, Dad came home one evening towing a new manure spreader behind the wagon. He'd been in town all day dickering with Harve Jameson. He finally worked a deal with Harve by trading him a buggy and an old feed cutter, but he came home with the spreader. The first thing he said when I went out to help him unhitch was, 'I don't expect to buy one every two years, Tom, but I reckon if old man McPherson can make one pay for itself in that short time, we can sort of make this thing pay out if we can nurse it along for eight years or maybe ten.'

"Now, that's the story. I expect that some of you duffers got quite a jolt when you heard that my father had bought a spreader, but I know of at least three of you who don't have one and who never have had one, and it might not be a bad piece of business if you'd go over and have a talk with Harve Jameson. He's got a new carload in and he's pretty anxious to get rid of them."

With that, young Tom left the store. There followed a prolonged silence among the members of the "Spit and Whistle Club," which was finally broken by Peter, one of the spreaderless farmers. Peter rose quickly to his feet, and remarked that he had better be going home. With one accord some unseen spirit moved the other members of the club, and they, too, left without so much as suggesting that at future sessions the matter of Jud Aken and his manure spreader be further discussed.

Silage Taint in Milk.

Now and then off flavors have been found in milk from silage-fed dairy cows. To determine the cause and the cure, the Dept. of Agriculture initiated experimental work. Thirty pounds of corn silage fed within an hour of milking gives the milk fed an odor objectionable to most consumers. With a ten-pound feeding there is but very slight ill effect.

Silage made from sweet clover, fed in as small quantities as five pounds before milking, has a disagreeable effect.

Not over fifteen to twenty pounds of corn silage, or fifteen pounds of legume silage can be fed twice daily, even after milking, without imparting a plainly discernible flavor and odor to the milk.

The slight taints may be overcome by aeration of the milk. In this case, even with sweet-clover silage, it was found that fifteen pounds fed twice daily did not permanently injure the commercial value of the milk if aerated when still warm. Spoiled silage, even in small quantities, will injuriously affect the milk.

Green alfalfa fed at the rate of thirty pounds one hour before milking produced very pronounced effects upon the milk; in fact, objectionable flavors and odors were present when this preliminary feeding was reduced to fifteen pounds.

When the alfalfa was fed three hours before milking, the taint was still appreciable. Feeding five hours before milking failed to show any effect upon the milk.

The light feed consumed immediately after milking caused no noticeable reaction to the ensuing milking. Strange to state, a heavy feeding, thirty pounds, immediately after milking seemed to bring about some improvement in the flavor and odor of the milk.

The conclusion reached, therefore, is that green alfalfa is a more satisfactory soiling crop if fed after milking.

With green corn, the case is different. Twenty-five pounds was taken as the usual feeding and milk from cows receiving this quantity just before milking was sampled by numerous persons, and but slightly off flavors, if any, could be detected. Corn fed after milking had no effect upon the milk.

OUR THANKFUL DAY

There's lots and lots of gratefulness around,
There's still a nut or two upon the ground;
We gather colored leaves and woody things
To brighten up the parlor; Grandma sings
Her old, old hymns out of a happy heart;
We have a play at school and I take part;
Mother makes cakes and crocks of mincemeat too
And gives me all the fussy things to do
Like seeding raisins, slicing citron up
And smoothing butter level in a cup.
We're all right there at church, Thanksgiving Day,
And Father shuts his eyes, I s'pose to pray;
The preacher doesn't hurry as he would
If only he could smell our turkey good.
But we get home at last, the gravy's made,
And Grandpa slowly his long grace has said,
The plates are heaped and we begin to taste
And not a single goody goes to waste.
This being Thankful once a year is nice
But I'd be Thank-fuller to do it twice!

Harvest Festival.

Saint Bridget's door stood open wide,
A rare fine smell there was inside
From fruits piled up for what they call
The Harvest Feast.

—When I was small
I smelled that first. Eh! How I sat
And sniffed it up then, till the fat
Old beadle gave my head a clout
And said, "Stop that, or ye'll go out!"
I love that smell. 'Tis one grand blend

Of all things that we do tend.
'Tis apples, ev'ry sort and kind;
And wheat and oats, which they do bind

In cunning little sheaves, to go
On Parson's desk there, in a row.
And 'tis great purple grapes, and green

Ones too, and piles of clean
Potatoes, and tomatoes red,
And giant leaves of new-baked bread,
And marrows, onions, carrots, plums—
The scent of all these creatures comes
In one strong breath, that fills your heart

With joy and peace.

—There is a part,
So I've heard tell, where they use smoke

In church each Lord's Day; they bespoke

His blessing that way, so they say.
But I do think Thanksgiving Day
With all its fruits is best. And why?
Because Lord made them all, says I.
—B. M. Powell.

A Thanksgiving.

I offer thanks for home and dear ones
in it,

For friends long cherished that the
years have tried,
For village streets where peaceful
homes stand dreaming,
For hills' blue splendor, and for meadows wide.

I'm thankful for deep woods so calm
and silent,

For giant pines upon some steep
alone,

For sunset's glory, and the hush of twilight,

For shaded cloisters and deep organ tone.

I'm glad that little children know and love me,
That I can welcome shade as well
as shine,
And humbly do I thank the great all-
Giver

For priceless heritage, this land of mine.

The Farmer's Thanksgiving.

The earth is brown, the skies are gray
And the windy woods are bare,
The first white flakes of the coming snow

Are afloat in the frosty air;
But the sparks fly up from the hickory log

On the homestead's broad stone hearth,

And the windows shake and the rafters ring.

To the lads' and lassies' mirth.

The farmer's face is furrowed and worn

And his locks are thin and white;
But his hand is steady, his voice is clear

And his eye is blue and bright
As he turns to look at his sweet old wife,

Who sits in her gown of gray,
With the cobweb kerchief and creamy
frills

She wore on her wedding day.

He bows his head to the laden board
And his guests are silent all:

"Thanksgiving, Lord, for the sun and rain,

And the fruit on the orchard wall;
For the silver wheat and the golden corn

And the crown of a peaceful life—
The greatest blessing that Thou canst give,

A true and loving wife!"

This white-haired lover he bends to kiss

Her hand in its frill of lace
And the faded rose on her wrinkled cheek,

With a proud and courtly grace;
And the snowflakes click on the window-pane

And the rafters ring above
And the angels sing, at the gates of God,

The words of the farmer's love.

—Minna Irving.

It's come to thankful time again—
The yellow corn is shining,
And every purple autumn grape
Can show a silver lining.

FIXIN'S FOR THANKSGIVING

BY IRENE HUME TAYLOR.

Even though the housewife may follow a hobby of searching for the new dish or novel menu every other day in the year, when it comes to Thanksgiving there is only one menu, and the traditional dishes appear on the table of every real home.

The menu is as set as the laws of the Medes and Persians, and the only difference the country over in the food served lies in the cleverness of the cook in seasoning and dressing up the various viands.

If you haven't lost the appetite that honors the plainest dish, you're surely going to enjoy this Thanksgiving dinner, with all its fixin's and trimmings.

To begin with, there's the turkey. Everybody, of course, knows how to roast it to perfection, all crispy and brown and juicy; and each one of you no doubt has your own pet idea about how to stuff it too.

But do you all know about sausage stuffing for the king bird?

If you will take one and a half quarts of stale bread crumbs and mix with them one and a half cupfuls of fresh pork sausage meat, a small chopped onion, one teaspoonful of poultry seasoning, two tablespoonfuls of finely chopped parsley, the juice of a lemon, and one and a half teaspoonfuls of salt, you will have something pretty nice. You may find it necessary to moisten the dressing a bit to make it hold together. It will make sufficient stuffing for any medium sized bird.

PUMPKIN PIE DE LUXE.

When the sauce has been poured over the potatoes dot them generously with butter and place the dish in a moderate oven—350 degrees—and cook till the sauce begins to caramelize.

Though you may have turkey and mashed potatoes, cranberry sauce, and all the rest of the fixin's from soup to nuts, your dinner won't be a real Thanksgiving one without a plump homemade pumpkin pie.

You will be sure to have your own favorite recipe for this one kind of pie, so it won't do me any good to give you mine, for you wouldn't try it for Thanksgiving anyhow.

But have you ever tried making the crust a bit higher than usual, to hold a circle of tiny cream cheese balls? These are placed about the pie at the crust edge at intervals to allow the serving of one ball with each cut of pie.

A Home-Grown Thanksgiving Dinner

It is rather difficult to suggest a menu which will suit all sections of the country, but the one given below is elastic and calls for very few supplies which are not home-grown.

For the centerpiece, hollow out a pumpkin, and fill it with fruit, evergreens, pine cones, branches of bitter-sweet, bayberries, rosehips, or other available berries. Place on the table and surround the base with ferns, autumn leaves or sprays of hemlock.

Tomato Soup Whipped Cream
Celery Home-Made Pickles
Salted Nuts or Buttered Pop Corn
Roast Rabbit and Savory Croquettes or
Baked Fowl and Potatoes
Cole-slaw String Beans
Cranberry Jelly
Pear Salad Rolls
Saltine Crackers and Cheese
Steamed Carrot Pudding, Hard Sauce
Coffee Candy

Many of the dishes could be prepared the day before and reheated just before serving. The soup is made of canned tomatoes and meat stock, a spoonful of whipped cream being added to each plateful just before serving. For the croquettes, butter very lightly slices of stale bread, then cut to form small blocks. Dust lightly

HOW TO CARVE THE TURKEY

1. Place on platter, neck to left. Cut off leg on side nearest you. Separate the thigh from drumstick, and cut each into two servings.
2. Cut off wing on side nearest you.
3. Starting at top of breast-bone, carve vertical slices of white meat.
4. Serve one piece of dark and one piece of white meat, unless a preference is expressed. Serve a spoonful of stuffing also. Gravy is passed.
5. Carve enough pieces to serve all the guests before starting to serve, so that all may be served at nearly the same time.
6. When one side is carved, turn the platter around and carve the other in the same way.

Good pumpkin pie has to have its fresh pumpkin and eggs and good country milk and all the rest of it; but have you ever intrigued the family by serving each portion with a whipped-cream rose adorning it? To make them, sweeten the cream and squeeze it through a pastry bag.

There must be cranberries in some form or other, that's sure; but they don't always have to be just cranberry sauce. They may be made into jelly or sherbet to lend a delightfully refreshing note to the general color scheme of pumpkin shade.

Instead of a large dish of jelly or sauce, try moulding tiny portions of either in wine glasses or other small containers. These may be grouped together on a platter and one of them slipped onto each individual plate.

Or tiny jelly molds may be used around a molded gelatin salad, which may be served from the table. A gelatin salad made from finely sliced cabbage and celery makes a very good Thanksgiving salad.

And after dinner, while the nuts and raisins are slowly disappearing, those most concerned—if they can express themselves by that time—are surely going to vote that the cooking and eating of a Thanksgiving dinner is anything but a lost art—in their particular home anyhow!

ROAST RABBIT.

Wash the rabbit well in soda water, lay it in salted water for an hour, then stuff with onion, celery, or chest-nut dressing and sew up. In a baking dish place one sliced onion, a few cloves and whole peppercorns, one diced carrot, and one bay leaf. Rub the rabbit with salt and pepper and place it in a pan, putting fat here and there over the rabbit. Sift a little flour over the top and pour a cupful of stock or hot water in the pan. Cover tightly and roast, basting frequently. When ready to serve, place on a hot platter and garnish with currant jelly.

Savory croquettes are made thus: To one quart of hot, freshly-mashed white potato add a teaspoonful of salt and one teaspoonful of poultry seasoning, the yolks of two eggs and one-half cupful of chopped nut meats. When the mixture is cool, form into round balls or long croquettes, roll in fine dried bread crumbs, then in the whites of the eggs, which have been mixed with two tablespoonfuls of cold water, and again in the bread crumbs. When ready to serve, fry in deep hot fat. These can be prepared ready for frying the day before.

Members of Government Defeated.

Members of the Government who suffered defeat were: Right Hon. Mackenzie King, the Prime Minister. Right Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways. Hon. T. A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce. Hon. G. N. Gordon, Minister of Immigration. Hon. James Murdoch, Minister of Labor. Hon. Vincent Massey, Minister without portfolio. Hon. Herbert Marler, Minister without portfolio.

Winnipeg, No. 2.—With reports from outlying polls tabulated over the week-end two more prairie constituencies were removed from the doubtful list, the election of E. J. Garland, Progressive, being indicated in Bow River, Alberta, and the election of G. Spence, Liberal, indicated in Maple Creek, Saskatchewan.

The standing in Manitoba was unaltered over the week-end. The constituencies remaining in the doubtful list early to-night were Kindersley, Sask., and Peace River, Alta. In the former the Progressive candidate is leading on the basis of very incomplete returns, and in the latter the Conservative is leading.

The victory of Garland in Bow River, which late returns assured, was the result of majorities received from polls in the rural districts. Jesse Gouge, Liberal, who led the poll at one time ran second, with a Conservative, J. Douglas, trailing. Mr. Garland represented the constituency in the last House.

With the success of Spence indicated in Maple Creek, Sask., the Liberals registered another gain from the Progressives in that Province. The fight was a tense one, with the Conservative candidate a close second. The Progressive candidate, who represented the riding in the last House, was last in the three-cornered fight.

As the constituency of Kenora-Rainy River, Ont., has since the early returns been transferred from the Conservative to the Liberal ranks, and Maple Creek, Sask., has been won by the Liberals, the latter have 101 seats. Mr. Meighen will have 116 seats in the new Parliament. Besides the last-named, the only other constituency in doubt is Kindersley, Sask.

SIXTEEN SEAPLANES MANOEUVRE AT SOO

Ontario Air Service Machines Demonstrate Before Minister of Lands and Forests.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 1.—Sixteen seaplanes of the Ontario Air Service, yesterday flew in formation over the city, giving a series of manoeuvres, in the presence of a number of distinguished visitors, including Hon. James Lyons, Minister of Lands and Forests, in whose department the air service is included. The flight, which was the most extended undertaken by flying boats of a commercial air service in Canada, was very spectacular.

All of the sixteen machines have been engaged for the past seven months on forest patrol duties, and remote transport flying, which included the transporting of eight or ten tons of provisions to the Red Lake gold area, north of Long Lac.

The first flight on the program was a flight past the machine on the water, on which were stationed Hon. James Lyons, Mr. W. C. Cain, the Deputy Minister of Lands and Forests; Prof. E. J. Zavitz, Provincial Forester; Squadron Leader A. T. Cowley, Controller of Civil Aviation for Canada; A. J. Wilson, Secretary of the Royal Canadian Air Force of the Dept. of National Defence, and Capt. W. R. Maxwell, director of the Provincial Air Service. The machines flew by the barge one at a time for the purpose of inspection and demonstration of service ability. The machines then proceeded north and south and formed up in two groups, the manoeuvres following.

In the evening the first annual banquet of the Provincial Air Service was held at the Algonquin Hotel.

One Woman Elected and Three Defeated

There will be only one woman member in the next House of Commons, namely, Miss Agnes McPhail, Progressive candidate in Southeast Grey and member of the late House, who defeated Dr. L. G. Campbell, Conservative, by a majority of about 1,000. Three others tried their luck at the polls with poor results. In Carleton-Victoria, N.B., Mrs. Minnie Bell Adney, Independent, received only 78 votes, Hon. J. K. Fleming, Conservative, getting nearly 7,000. In North-west Toronto Dr. Caroline Brown, Independent Conservative, received 545 votes. In New Westminster, B.C., Mrs. Rose Henderson, running in the Labor interests, lost out.

22,000,000 in Gold is Shipped to Canada

New York, Nov. 1.—Gold to the amount of $22,000,000 has been sent to Canada from the United States during the past month, according to the Federal Reserve Bank. This shipment of bullion to the Dominion laid to the account of the extreme steadiness of Canadian exchange, which has been at a premium for months, offsets shipment of gold to the United States banks from Great Britain and Japan. During the first twenty-seven days of October, shipments of gold from Great Britain totaled $32,000,000, and Japan had shipped via San Francisco $4,000,000. The inflow of gold to the United States is the heaviest recorded since May, 1924.

Canada from Coast to Coast

Summerside, P.E.I.—One of the largest consignments of live foxes exported from Prince Edward Island, was recently made to New York for trans-shipment to Norway, consisting of 200 foxes with a gross value of $40,000.

Halifax, N.S.—The lobster fishing season this year was the most successful in the history of Western Nova Scotia. During the season 86,287 hundredweight of lobsters were caught with a value of $1,371,992.

Saint John, N.B.—Potato exports through this port this season to date, largely to Havana, have been considerably greater than during the corresponding season of last year. For the period ending October 8, 1925, exports totalled 77,627 bags and 19,400 barrels, as compared with 61,622 bags in the same period last year.

Quebec, Que.—Since the year 1910 to date, the Dept. of Roads of the province spent a total of $68,000,000 on highways and roads. Out of this amount $51,000,000 has been expended to build roads and $17,000,000 on improvements and maintenance. In the course of the current season over $5,000,000 has been spent, mainly on maintenance.

Kingston, Ont.—Kingston's population for 1925 is estimated by the City Assessor at 21,689, a slight increase over the figures of last year. The total assessment for the year 1926 amounts to $17,436,511, an increase over this year of $252,211.

Winnipeg, Man.—The growth of the dairy industry in Manitoba is well illustrated by a comparison of the figures of production in 1900 and 1924. In 1900, the total value of dairy products produced in Manitoba was $1,681,305. Last year it was $13,093,902. In 1924, 198 carloads of creamery butter were exported from Manitoba totalling 4,435,200 pounds.

Regina, Sask.—A voluntary pool for the marketing of dressed turkeys will be operated in Saskatchewan this fall by the co-operation and markets branch of the Provincial Dept. of Agriculture. The dressed turkey pool will be open to any turkey raiser in Saskatchewan, providing a local organization is available through which the birds may be assembled.

Calgary, Alta.—Alberta had 10,463 acres of registered cereal seed this past season, according to the applications for inspection made to the seed branch at Calgary. There were 278 growers of cereal seed and while it is yet too early to make a statement as to the amount of registered seed there will be this year, it has been estimated that there will be around 360,000 bushels from Alberta.

Vancouver, B.C.—The first shipment of pure bred dairy cattle from British Columbia to Southern China left Vancouver last week, when thirty head of stock went forward to Shanghai.

INCREASE EXPECTED IN IMMIGRATION Canada's Crops Have Received Much Favorable Publicity in Great Britain.

Montreal, Nov. 1.—"Conditions in Great Britain indicate that there will be an increase in the number of individuals and of families leaving the Old Land during the coming spring for the purpose of taking up land and settling various parts of Canada, as well as engaging in agricultural work," stated W. J. Black, Director of the Dept. of Colonization, Agriculture and Natural Resources, Canadian National Railways, in discussing immigration matters on his return to Montreal following a brief journey to England.

"The fine crop gathered in this season's harvest has received a great deal of publicity in the British Isles," said Dr. Black, in explaining the increased interest in Canada, "and, naturally, people appreciate that a country which can produce such an abundant crop should offer excellent opportunities to those who want to live and work upon the land. The stories of the crop carried a direct appeal, and this very desirable news spread rapidly, aided by direct reports from successful settlers contained in letters to friends and relatives."

He is delivering a series of lectures describing the dash by plane which he made with Lincoln Ellsworth and four others towards the north pole this summer. MALTA, CORSICA, NICE CLAIMED BY FASCISTI

Dangerous Pan-Italian Movement Spreading — Part of Switzerland Also Claimed.

Geneva, Nov. 1.—An open Fascist move for Pan-Italian claims to territories which at present belong to four neighboring nations to Italy, is causing some anxiety in diplomatic circles. In a booklet just published under the heading "Fascist Catholicism," which, it is stated, is approved by Premier Mussolini, and which has crossed the Swiss frontier, here is a simple question: "Are all areas of Italy in our possession?"

Answer—"No, we must still obtain from England Malta, from France Corsica and Nice, from Switzerland the Canton of Ticino, and also a portion of the Canton of Grisons; from Jugoslavia, Dalmatia."

This dangerous pan-Italian movement apparently is spreading to counteract the difficult emigration problem. "Decidedly the Fascists are exaggerating. If they follow this course, they have chosen the best means to arouse distrust of their neighbors."

Elector in Australia Must Vote or be Fined

A despatch from New York says:—Compulsory voting will be introduced in the Federal elections in Australia for the first time on Nov. 14 next, Sir James Elder, Australian Commissioner here, announced on Friday.

Under a new law passed by the last Parliament, registrars are required to prepare lists of all persons entitled to vote. Any elector who fails to go to the polls without giving a valid reason for staying away is liable to a fine of $10.

For the last ten years compulsory voting has been enforced in the State of Queensland, but this is the first time it has been applied to Federal politics. The law was made general last summer.

VIOLENT STORM IN ST. LAWRENCE VALLEY

New York State Reports Abnormal Weather Conditions.

A despatch from Quebec says:—According to reports reaching here on Friday, the most violent snow and rain storm in recent years has done much damage in the St. Lawrence Valley below Quebec, the tug Lord Roberts being wrecked from its moorings and dashed to pieces on shore and three Government wharves in the Bas Des Chaleurs suffering severely. Pole lights, or portable lighthouses, were washed away at Fox River on the Gaspé coast.

A despatch from New York says:—A driving combination of snow and rain on Friday swirled into the metropolitan area, spilling the earliest official snowfall in this city on November 9, 1892. The storm left its trail of snow in an area extending north to Southern New England and south to Pennsylvania. All New York State and New Jersey experienced abnormal atmospheric conditions. A four-inch snowfall was reported at Oswego, on Lake Ontario.

Honduras Settles Debt Owing to Great Britain

A despatch from Washington says:—A Honduran debt floated fifty years ago in Great Britain which was originally $5,000,000, but with compounded interest amounted to nearly $30,000,000, was settled on Thursday through an agreement signed at the British Embassy.

Honduras agreed to pay a total of $1,200,000 in semi-annual instalments without interest over a period of thirty years. The money is to be provided by a 3 per cent. tax on all Honduran consular invoices and collected through sale of stamps, beginning Aug. 1, 1926, by the National City Bank of New York as fiscal agent.

Shah of Persia Deposed, Premier Aims at Dictatorship

London, No. 1.—The Shah of Persia has been deposed. The news from Tetheran that this action was taken in respect of the Kajar dynasty by a vote of eighty of the eighty-five members of the Parliament does not surprise diplomatic circles here as it has long been known that Riza Khan, the Premier, has been aiming at a dictatorship, and this is confirmed by reports that Riza has been appointed head of provisional Government.

Oil-Soaked Seagull is Rescued from Breakers by English Boy

A little lad named Derek Ford, of Golders Green, N.W., London, making holiday at Trebarwith Sands, Cornwall, rescued a seagull which, its plumage clogged with oil, was being buffeted and drowned in the breakers, says "The London Mail." When the bird was got ashore it was a pitiable object and ravenously hungry.

After it had been hand fed with bread some petrol was obtained and the task of cleaning it was begun. This occupied several hours, and the gull, which made no attempt to fly away, has been placed in a private aviary to recuperate.

Doukhobors Rebuild the Schools They Burned

A despatch from Victoria, B.C., says:—Canadian Doukhobors living in the interior of British Columbia, who for years refused to send their children to school and burned a number of public school buildings, have abandoned their hostility to Canadian education entirely. The Russian colonists have completed the construction of seven new schools themselves and these are being used to educate 300 Doukhobor children along Canadian lines.
