Local News.

Mrs. H. M. Beach and daughter Florence of Ottawa are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Beach.

The ringing of church and school bells this week is a glad sound. It meant that the Flu epidemic was passed.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Irving and nephew Lieut. Brown of Vancouver B.C. are the guests of Winchester Friends.

Mrs. Jack Challies and little daughter Ethel are the weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Challies.

Eddy B. Pigot, of Toronto, the well known entertainer who was at Winchester last fall at the fair has died of pneumonia.

Nurse Susie Dixon, of Moose Jaw arrived in Winchester and will be the guest of her sister Mrs. Dan Le Vere for a few weeks. She came east in charge of a patient who is to undergo an operation.

Brookville churches set an example in fuel conservation that is likely to be adopted throughout the province. The churches there have worked out a plan of "Union Services" on Sundays, whereby many tons of coal will be saved. There is no reason in the world why a similar plan could not be adopted in Winchester.

REPORTED

SURRENDER

The report is received this afternoon that Germany has surrendered unconditionally, Great Celebrations in Montreal, Toronto and other cities.

A later report denies that Germany has surrendered, but that she is expected to at any moment.

REPORTED

Some people have very little faith in the influenza vaccine but one who has been inoculated says:—It certainly will keep you from having it, says one authority.

In proof of this he quotes statistics, showing that of ten thousand soldiers in one camp in the States who were inoculated, not one contracted the disease. Seven hundred people in Kingston were inoculated, he says, and not one of the seven hundred has had the influenza.

The death of W. H. Wood, one of the old pioneers of Eastern Ontario occurred at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Robt. Scott, on Monday October 28th, at the age of 92 years. Owing to failing eyesight he made his home with his daughter for the past few years. In his younger days he was a prominent farmer and lumberman living in the township of Mountain, west of Ormond. The funeral was held on Wednesday at North Russell Cemetery, a large number being present to pay their last tributes of respect to the deceased.—Russell Leader.

Dr. Locke, of Cardinal, was buried on Tuesday the funeral being a Masonic one at which R. Wor. Bro. A. Sweet, D. D. G. M. officiated. Dr. Locke was a victim of influenza, having in his profession worn himself out in serving the ill, he fell an easy prey. He will be kindly remembered by the Masonic fraternity of this district, as he was its last District Grand Master. He visited Henderson Lodge, Winchester on a dark and stormy night when the roads were almost impassable. He was royally received and a very pleasant time was spent with him in the lodge room. He was to all appearance a splendid specimen of physical manhood. But his labour of love and usefulness is ended here on earth and he has passed over.

On Monday evening, Mrs. J. G. Challies and Miss Maud Kindred, were hostesses at a Miscellaneous Shower given in honor of Miss Mabel Sweet at the home of Mrs. J. G. Challies. About 50 girls and married ladies assembled, to extend their congratulations and best wishes to the bride to be. At the opportune time while the Wedding March was being played, two charming young ladies entered the drawing room with a pretty decorated creation laden with gifts and placed it in front of the future bride. Miss Kindred graciously assisted in removing the exterior wrappings, also in reading aloud the interesting poetical verses, attached to each. This afforded great amusement for all. Light refreshments consisting of Ice-Cream and cake were served, after which Miss Sweet extended her thanks to her many friends. The pleasing event was ended by all present completing the Circle and singing "For she's a jolly good fellow."

Victory Loan Campaign.

The Victory Loan Campaign is going splendidly, and those who have money to invest, and do not do so, will be sorry when the opportunity passes. A $50 bond is better than a $50 Bank note. It is secured by the Dominion of Canada, and it draws good interest.

On Monday evening 40 per cent of the objective for the United Counties had been raised, Winchester 49 per cent, Mountain 83 per cent, Williamsburg 39 per cent and Marlton 32 per cent. Winchester objective is to-day over 50 per cent raised.

The Boys were Good

Heeding the request of Reeve Fisher the boys of Winchester behaved exceedingly well on Halloween night. They did not disturb the people in their homes; they did not remove or destroy property. In fact the night was quieter than usual, and so far as the Press can learn there was not a single complaint of unruly conduct.

Flu Vaccine

Dr. McLaughlin, Medical Health Officer last Saturday received a quantity of anti-Flu vaccine which he distributed among the profession here. It is a supposed preventative, but not to be used once a person is afflicted. Two injections are necessary, and any who have a desire to use this preventative can have it free on application to their local physician.

Kennedy Farm Sold.

Mr. Rowat Kennedy has sold his farm a few miles south west of Winchester together with all of there live stock and Machinery to Mr. Gordon Baldwin of Inverman. Mr. Kennedy and mother and sister are as yet undecided where they will go, and if they cannot get a house in Winchester they may move to Toronto.

Who is She.

Word came to the Press yesterday that a strange woman was collecting for the Red Cross Fund near Kemore. She had no credentials, and had collected at Vernon and at Ormond, and from all reports had met with good success. We understood that she was yesterday arrested, and will have to explain on what authority she was collecting before the Magistrate.

Died Out West

Mrs. A. Utman received word recently of the death of her brother, Charles D. Brown, aged 23 years at Saskatoon, Sask. from influenza. He was connected with Sask., Telephone system. He visited his relatives here about two years ago. He is survived by six sisters and one brother. The sisters are, Mrs. William Stephenson, of Macrorie Sask. Mrs. G. Hammond Brown, of Minneapolis, Minn., Mrs. Lyman Ellis of Movers, N. Y., Mrs. Wm. Barkley, VanCamp and Mrs. Jas McCaslin and Mrs. A. Utman of Winchester, Mr. J. R. Brown Mountain is the brother.

Passed Away

At the home of her son William Robinson, Portage la Prairie, Man. on Oct. 31 1918, Margaret D. Sumner, aged 82 yrs. wife of the late John Robinson who preceased her over fifteen years ago. She leaves to mourn her loss three sons; Charles and William Portage la Prairie Man. Steven at Hanna, Alberta, and two daughters Mrs. John Hogoban, Cassa Bride, and Mrs. John Johnston St. Lawrence, St. Winchester, also a brother and sisters, Charles A. Sumners, Methodist St. and Mrs. Ezra Fetterly, Chesterville.

Methodist Church.

The Methodist Church which has recently been repainted and redecorated on the interior, will be opened on Sunday next by Communion in the morning Rev. Mr. Miller officiating, and regular service in the evening. The following Sunday a formal opening of the church will take place when Rev. Hiram Hull, B. A., Supt. of National Training School Toronto, will preach. Special music will be presented for the occasion, and Congregation will be asked for a special offering to cover the expense of the redecoration church.

Red Cross

On Tuesday quite a number of interested workers assembled in the hall and attended to the various phases of work, getting parcels ready for clubs, packing and preparing boxes for addressing for overseas, which was a very pleasing sight, all feeling encouraged with the good war news and prospects of a speedy peace.

The thanks of the Society is extended to the young ladies who so kindly addressed all the boxes also to those people who so generously donated cakes and money which enabled the committee to send very nice boxes of cheer to the boys who are fighting so bravely.

The packing has been delayed owing to the epidemic hence we purpose packing next Tuesday the 12th, please bring in all finished work early on that date.

The annual meeting with election of officers will be held on Tuesday the 19. at 3 o'clock.

All who are interested are asked to come and hear the reports from various departments.

Subscriptions received, Mrs. Robt. Brown June, July and August $3, Mr. J. H. Ross, Oct. and Nov. $4.00, Mr. B. F. Smith, Oct. $2.00, Mr. A. W. Burn Water Instead of Coal

A Bulletin issued by the Free Administration says:—

Temperature recommended by the Ontario Fuel Administration for working and living rooms, 64 F.

(64 is the "optimum" temperature, or the degree of heat, at which science agrees man is at his best.)

Temperature recommended for sleeping rooms, 50 F. or less.

"Make water warm instead of burning an excessive amount of coal to do it," is the advice of the Ontario Fuel Administration in urging the importance of properly moistening the air in the home.

Dry air at 70 or 72 may feel cooler than air at 60, the Administration declares. Moist air holds the heat longer and saves coal.

There are ten per cent. more deaths at the given temperature if the relative humidity is below 40 per cent. than if it is above 70 per cent.

SPANISH INFLUENZA RAGES IN CANADA

Thousands of Cases Reported With Many Deaths.

THOSE WHO ARE MOST SUSCEPTIBLE TO IT

"FRUIT-A-TIVES"—The Wonderful Fruit Medicine—Gives the Power To Resist This Disease.

The epidemic of Spanish Influenza which played such havoc in Europe, has reached this continent. Thousands of cases of the strange malady have appeared and many deaths are already reported; Surgeon-General Blue of the United States Public Health Service having stated that "Spanish Influenza will probably spread all over the country in six weeks".

Practically every ship which touches our shores from abroad, brings those infected with the disease.

Surgeon-General Blue urges that "the individual take all the precautions he can against contracting the disease by care and personal hygiene". Plenty of exercise should be taken; the diet should be regulated, etc.

Spanish Influenza affects most severely elderly persons and others whose powers of resistance are weakened by illness, work or worry, especially those who are "run-down" or "not feeling up to the mark".

The really great danger from the disease is not so much in the disease itself, as that it often develops into pneumonia.

What everyone needs now is a general tonic like "Fruit-a-tives". This wonderful fruit medicine is not a germ-killer. It is a body-builder; a strength-maker; a blood-purifier; a power in protecting against the ravages of disease.

"Fruit-a-tives" regulates the kidneys and bowels, causing these organs to eliminate waste regularly and naturally as nature intended. "Fruit-a-tives" keeps the skin active, and purifies and enriches the blood. "Fruit-a-tives" tones up and strengthens the organs of digestion, insuring food being properly digested and assimilated.

Everyone can take ordinary precautions, avoid crowded places, and use "Fruit-a-tives" regularly to insure sound digestion, to keep the bowels and kidneys regular and the whole system in the best possible condition. Then we are safe from disease.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by dealers everywhere at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

"I don't believe it did. I think it probably depressed him; I think he was probably unhappy after it than before. If I could have assumed something I didn't feel while I was with him—but I couldn't. Sitting in that place I felt as if I was polluted. I don't do Dave any good by going to see him, and I do myself harm."

Jerry questioned that assertion, but she insisted that it was true. Of course, she explained, she did not mean that she would entirely give up going to see Dave. And perhaps in time she might get used to the surroundings and not mind them so much.

Again Jerry had a vague desire such as he had felt when Dave had intimated disappointment over Nora's attitude—a desire to defend and protect her—this time against herself. He knew that she did not do herself justice when she talked in such a strain. He withheld, however, that peculiarly irritating comment, and contented himself with feeling sorer for her than before. Poor little soul, with her sensitiveness and her softness, it was not to be wondered at that she rebelled so bitterly against this last, this uttermost sordid and squalid experience.

He did not go to see her very often. As he said to himself quite truly, he had no time for calling on people. But his real reason for staying away as he did was that he did not want to expose his effections again to capture, and he feared her power, even involuntarily, to annex them. It would be most unsettling if he again found himself thinking of her and looking at her with desire in his heart, and this was too critical a period in his life to justify his running the risk of such unsettling. Even as it was, he had her for a while too much on his mind.

Not until the next autumn did Nora finally secure employment, and then it was desultory and not very remunerative. Twice a week she served as pianist for a children's dancing-class. Among the pupils was Patrick Maguire's little niece Laura O'Brien. Maguire came occasionally with his sister to look on, and was introduced to the dancing-teacher and to Nora, who was ignorant of what a privilege had been hers until afterwards, when the dancing-teacher enlightened her. Nora at once grasped an idea. Patrick Maguire was a power, a political power. Everybody knew that in some mysterious way he had but to command and his bidding was done. He could get Dave pardoned if he chose to. She must improve her acquaintance with Patrick Maguire; she must win his friendship and sympathy and prevail on him to use his influence in Dave's behalf.

She did not think it worth while to confide this brilliant inspiration to Jerry. Fortune favored her intentions; one day when she was first to arrive at the hall, Patrick Maguire came without his sister, leading his niece by the hand. Mrs. O'Brien, it appeared, was not well—no, nothing serious, thank you, just a bad cold; and as Laura had wanted to come, he had volunteered to bring her. Nora agreed that it would have been the greatest pity if the little girl had stayed away—she was such a good little dancer—one of those that Nora liked especially. It was quite unusual for a child so young to show such a sense of time; she must be very musical. Mr. Maguire thought likely; she had never taken any lessons. Nora suggested that she sit down at the piano and try a little fingering; the young lady, in an amiable frame of mind after so much flattering, was nothing loath, and almost immediately won surprised, enthusiastic admiration for her natural talent, her manner of touching the keys, the tone that she produced—it was almost as if she had an instinct for the instrument. What a satisfaction to be such a child's music teacher! Patrick Maguire beamed and nodded his approval of such appreciation.

"You really think she's something remarkable?" he asked.

"Think!" exclaimed Nora. "All I can say is, I'd rather teach that child than any ten ordinary children. I know what I'm talking about," she added. "I've studied both piano and voice at the Conservatory for four years. I always thought that if I could find just the right kind of beginner I'd love to teach."

Mr. Maguire made no response to that, and Nora had a fear that her remark had lacked subtlety. But at the next meeting of the dancing-class he approached her with the proposal that she had longed yet hardly dared to hear.

"I've talked things over with my sister," he said. "She wants to know if you're willing to come to the house a couple of times a week and give our little girl lessons on the piano."

"Why, Mr. Maguire!" exclaimed Nora. "How did you ever think of such a thing? Of course I'd love to do it! Why, I never had the least idea of being asked. I know I shall be so proud of my little pupil some day—shan't I, Laura dear?"

She caressed the child affectionately, and the child looked up at her with a serene, self-confident smile. In her heart Nora felt a little ashamed of her subtlety. But, as she said to herself, who wouldn't be just as disingenuous, scheming, and tricky as necessary to get a brother out of prison—a brother unjustly sentenced for twenty years?

How she was going to accomplish her purpose she didn't yet know; but already she felt certain that Patrick Maguire would be her tool.

CHAPTER XXV.

Just what burden Nora had taken upon herself in engaging to give music lessons to Laura O'Brien she very soon learned. The child, so far from proving a prodigy of promise, revealed a singular inaptitude and a disposition, after the first novelty of interest wore off, frequently sullen and at best indifferent. To teach a stupid pupil is a supportable trial, one of the commonest, endured creditably by quite unheroic persons; but to maintain the pretense, against all the evidence of one's senses and the conviction of one's spirit, that the dullness of scholars is brilliantly endowed and is making extraordinary progress—that was the task that Nora had recklessly assumed and that grew daily more oppressive. Either Mrs. O'Brien or Patrick Maguire—and sometimes both of them—sat within hearing of the lesson; and Nora soon wondered at the blindness to obvious facts that maternal and avuncular affection could engender—wondered at it, with irritation, but at grateful for it. Without its assistance she could never have carried through her part; it seemed almost right to trade upon such serene, complacent ignorance, she was having to submit to such a strain upon the temper. Always to be pleasant, encouraging, and flattering, even when she wanted to scold and slap, was humiliating to her spirit and detracted from her sense of personal dignity. But she kept her great aim always before her, and knew that to accomplish it she must win the liking of Patrick Maguire. And to do that, she must always be nice to the little girl, even in the child's most detestable moments, and she must never tell the truth about her.

Finding the man so glibly caused her both to like him and to be contemptuous of him. He was both a nicer and a stupider person than she had supposed one of such political power could possibly be. Men were queer creatures to let themselves be bossed by that kind of a person. Boss—yes, that was the word usually applied to Patrick Maguire. She knew he deserved the name, because he sat at home and had men come to see him—police, tough-looking, roughly dressed men, and sometimes well-dressed men too—she saw them all when they passed the open door of the parlor where she sat giving the lesson. Then the door of Patrick Maguire's little room at the end of the hall, where he was an unseen auditor, would be closed, and—if Mrs. O'Brien was not somewhere about the house listening—Nora's manner could relax. She was careful, though, never to let it collapse; Laura, even though feeling resentful at times of the inexplicable alteration in treatment, never had any grievance to treasure up and make a ground of complaint.

When Nora knew that Maguire was at home and unoccupied with callers, she would finish the instruction period with a singing lesson—which always meant that by way of illustration she would sing a song to her pupil. She did not confine herself to songs of a nursery or juvenile character; they were such songs as "Father O'Flynn," "Kathleen-Mavourneen," and "The Wearing of the Green." They would draw Maguire from his retreat as a hurdy-gurdy draws a child; he would come in and seat himself to listen, and at the end express his satisfaction and his hope that Laura would some time learn to sing like that. Then Nora tried omitting this feature of the lesson; and promptly the pupil's uncle appeared and asked her as a special favor if she wouldn't sing something before she went home. He listened with rapt attention to the old Irish melodies. Nora spent a considerable part of the interval between lessons in committing to memory and practicing other Irish songs, of a kind likely to please his taste rather than her own.

My Poor Feet.

When my sister last visited me she gave me a new name, Woman Who Walks. I said that a better name would have been, Woman Who Weeps, for I was suffering so much with my feet that I had frequent crying spells. There were countless reasons in the countless steps I have to take every day, a long day of fifteen hours that repeats itself seven times a week because chores and housework have a way of claiming one with deadly regularity even on Sundays and holidays.

The night before sister's visit ended I was unusually footsore. I threw myself on the lounge and cried so hard that she was alarmed. A few days later there came from her a package and letter. I opened the letter first and read:

"Dear Sister: For the first time since you were 'Big Sister' and I was Baby, tugging at your skirts, I find you down and out—down as to courage and decidedly out-at-heel as to common sense, so here I come with a lecture and a present."

"Since those two feet of yours form the actual physical connection between your body and your daily path of duty, why don't you take as good care of your feet as I saw you take of the litter-carrier, the day it screeched on its cable and ran hard? You cleaned and oiled the bearings and observed while you worked over it, 'I always feel sorry for neglected machinery. It is made to give service and since it cannot repair itself I am always condemned when I do not give it a chance to do its best work.'"

"Please use the contents of the box I am sending to give your feet a chance!"

Here is what sister sent me. A shoemaker's iron last; a shoemaker's hammer and sharp-pointed awl; a keen, strong-bladed knife for cutting leather; a box of shoemaker's nails; an extra large bottle of sweet oil and a dozen pairs of new stockings.

Every article bore a tag and the sentences on the tags were characteristic of the writer. This was on the tag fastened to the iron last:

"When the engine of your lighting plant broke down you were provided with tools and knew how to make the simple repairs needed. Why not straighten up the rundown heels on your shoes and hammer down the nails that bruise your soles? A woman's feet are more precious than a shop-made machine. Take care of them."

This was fastened to the stockings: "These stockings are a gift. A woman's feet—but perhaps you now can say the rest for yourself!"

I was touched by my sister's thoughtfulness. A bit of resentment too crept in as I hurried away to the barn to see if the latest lamb was prospering. No one was to blame because Martin, my husband, had to leave the charge of all the young stock to me. It was our farm and our work. If my feet ached from the miles I walked every day, let them ache—one must do the best she can. Martin had not built the big inconvenient house or planned the location of the farm buildings. We had bought the place and it was a valuable place.

It was time to feed the pigs. With sister's preaching sounding in my thoughts in spite of my flash of resentment, I set myself to counting my steps. I grew interesting. By bedtime I had begun an imposing array of figures:

From barn to house, eighty-four steps.
From barn to windmill, thirty steps.
From barn to pigpen, one hundred steps.

From windmill to pigpen (laden with two pails of water) one hundred and thirty steps. (Lovely when it rains and blows!)

From pantry to kitchen table, fourteen steps.
From kitchen table to dining table, ten steps.

From kitchen upstairs to my bedroom, fifty steps.
I could go on piling up figures by counting the steps I took every day back and forth and cross-cross, over and over, with heels run down, shoes not well adapted to my work, stockings roughly darned and wrinkled, feet none too well bathed, nails not always trimmed. But the time! How hard time for fussing over my feet? Sister's labels insistently answered me and I realized how I had been foolishly wasteful of my strength and nerves.

"I will reform," I resolved, "and I will reform methodically and sensibly." It would take resolution and time but if it saved me from fits of crying and crossness, if I could do my work better, if I could be a better partner and wife, surely it was worth while.

That night I bathed my feet in hot water, plunged them for a minute into cold water, dried them thoroughly and then gave them a good massaging with oil. What relieved feet! My whole body felt the comfort. I slept like a baby.

In the morning I put on a pair of the new stockings and my best shoes, resolving to cobble the crooked heels of the old ones as soon as breakfast was over. I am handy with tools so in an hour the heels were straight and I had mastered the sharp nail on the inside of the shoe over which I shifted less than I had been keeping a pad of folded paper to protect my flesh.

After dinner my feet were not so tired as usual. I had some sewing to do. Off came my shoes and for five minutes I vigorously pinched and slapped and limbered them, leaving my shoes off until again I had to be on the run.

"What in the world are you doing?" asked my husband, coming in as I was putting away the bottle of oil after bathing and rubbing my feet that evening. I told him the whole story. He listened thoughtfully.

"This house certainly was not built for a step-sister," he said when I concluded. "I could move the pigpen and I've been thinking how to pipe water to the barn and the poultry yard—maybe to the pigs too."

"Oh, if you could, Martin, there'd be so much less to do I could raise turkeys! There's money in turkeys. When we are out of debt—"

"Now isn't that like a woman! Take one load off her and she goes hunting for another!"

There was a world of tender affection in his voice.

"That's the way to advance, Martin."

The next time I went to town I bought walking shoes and decided that it was poor business to use worn-out best shoes to work in. Life looks better to me now! The nightly bathing, the every-other-night oil rub, the shoe heels kept in repair, the piped water and the fine brood of young turkeys are reasons enough for my gain in flesh, in nerve and in good temper. I am still the Woman-Who-Walks and my husband says I am also the Woman-Who-Smiles.

Food Control Corner

"How can we help the Food Board?"

The question is the most frequent in the correspondence with which the central staff at Ottawa and the Provincial Committees of the Food Board deal. It is an expression not merely of individual good will, but of an underlying desire, a restless aspiration, felt in a far wider circle than those who say it, to do something towards bringing the war to the only end we dare contemplate.

Beyond question, the most pressing thing for which the Board now can ask the aid of outside workers is the combating of the misconception that we may "rest on our oars." Further food saving and greater farm production are as imperative as ever. The clearer one sees the world's needs, the more does methodic saving seem requisite.

Tension in the food situation in Europe, let it be repeated, has been eased. The acute shortage of last winter is not present. But they have not relaxed a particle of their strict individual rationing in Great Britain, France or Italy.

Besides there is the gaunt fact that nearly 5,000,000 people have died of starvation or malnutrition through the war. Can we, dare we, in Canada ignore a decimation which would total over one-half of our own population? Food workers at the beginning of the winter season can do nothing better, nothing more patriotic than to repeat again and again that our share of food war work is only just beginning. Measured by our unprepared-

FROM CAPTIVE RUNS

Thoughts of Home Amid the Comforts of Prison Camps.

The excellent treatment received by German prisoners of war in Stobs, Scotland, can be gleaned from the columns of the Stobsade, a little periodical issued in the prison camp in their own language. A recent issue which has arrived here tells of theatrical performances in the camp theatre, of concerts, dancing and laughter. But now and then the merriment gives way to sadness and melancholy, as the following extract shows:

"Despite all our comforts and conveniences here, thoughts of home now and then overwhelm us. Are we to remain here forever? Yonder is a prisoner standing on the hill, calmly smoking his pipe. He is thinking, He looks around at the vista before him and he sees the houses with the red roofs in the valley. Then he thinks of home, of wife and children. Those red roofs remind him of little houses on the Rhine. Yet how long back that wondrous happy time now seems? His heart is heavy and gloomy thoughts overwhelm him. Those red roofs have brought back memories, and he turns slowly and walks down the hill, still thinking."

"What sort of a patriot is he?" "He's the kind that will cheer the boys marching off to war, and then grumble about having to pay an income tax."

LIFE UNDER GERMAN RULE

ALL LACE-MAKING MACHINES DESTROYED

British Prisoners Who Escaped Were Shot at Edge of a Trench They Were Forced to Dig.

I passed through Beaufort, Serain and many other villages which still retained evidences of the German occupation, says a war correspondent. The civilians contributed a strange note in the picture.

It is something of a shock, after driving through miles of deserted, devastated country to suddenly come on trim red cottages and see women quietly washing clothes and children playing with a dog. Nearly 50 inhabitants of Serain, old men, women and children, remained in their homes to greet the British, ad-to-day they are going about their usual occupations as though they had not been through battle and seen men killed in the kitchen gardens. There were several hundred people still at Selvigny and they had no desire to leave although they could hear the thunder of the great guns which are still quite near and the farms around them are dotted with dead and wreckage of battle.

Foulest of Brutal Deeds.

Many brutal acts were committed by order of the German army commanders, but the foulest was the deliberate destruction of all lace-making and embroidery machinery by which the people of this region made their living. Nearly every cottage had its machine, a delicate and costly affair and greatly valued. All the machines of Selvigny were smashed and I am told the neighboring towns including Bohain, Ruisigny and Caudry, whose population subsisted almost entirely on this industry, were similarly paralyzed by the Boche.

Revelation of life under the Boche is only coming to light. One atrocious crime deserves the fullest publicity throughout the world. At the time of the German advance last spring, when thousands of British soldiers were captured, some of them managed to escape behind the Hindenburg line and in villages. Wherever they were found they were shot. A villager, a resident of Selvigny, tells how one little group of fugitives were taken. They were made to dig a shallow trench and then shot at the edge of it.

Science and the War.

The advance of scientific investigation during the period of the war has not been more rapid than it would have been under the normal conditions of peace, and in all probability has been very greatly retarded. Many centres of energetic research have been overrun by armies or congested with sick and wounded and overwhelmed with the problem of their care. Hundreds of investigators have been wrenched from their proper tasks to the performance of duties trivial in themselves, but of vital and immediate urgency in this crisis. Others have already fallen in the defence of principles far more dear to them than knowledge. The advance of science has thus been unquestionably retarded. What has indeed been accelerated, and in very patent measure, has been the application of knowledge, long since garnered and imperfectly utilized, to the service of the nations in arms.

Take, for example, the development of aviation. Most of us are indeed aware that mechanical flight had been achieved before the war, but few are acquainted with the true history of its origin, or of the trivial part played by war, or the anticipation of war, in the development of its fundamental principles. The problem of mechanical flight appears to have been for the first time competently and scientifically approached by Leonardo da Vinci, who, besides being one of the greatest painters, one of the greatest sculptors, one of the greatest architects and one of the greatest anatomists of his epoch, was one of the greatest engineers which his century produced. It was he who first pointed out the importance of the angle of the wing or plane in determining the direction of motion.

Practical application of the theoretical principles which he discovered was of course impossible at that time for lack of mechanical motive power.

The next and final fundamental step in the solution of the problem was taken by Langley, late secretary of the Smithsonian Institute, who was the first to discover the dependence of the buoyancy of the air upon the speed with which the planes move through it. The fundamental laws having been elucidated, and adequate motive-power rendered available by the development of the automobile industry, the aeroplanes were not merely a logical but a necessary outcome. As a matter of fact, the first aeroplane was built by Langley in 1903 and successfully flown by Curtiss in 1914. Meanwhile Blériot and the Wright brothers had built and flown aeroplanes constructed in accordance with the fundamental principles laid down by Langley—Prof. T. Brailsford Robertson, in The Canadian Magazine for October.

HOW I RECEIVED MY VICTORIA CROSS

LT.-COL. W. A. BISHOP RELATES NOTABLE EXPERIENCE

When Canada's Foremost Airman Appeared Before the King at Buckingham Palace.

One day I had truly a wonderful surprise, says Lt.-Col. Bishop. It had been a very rainy day, and as there was no flying I went over to lunch with a cousin of mine, who was stationed only three miles away. After luncheon I returned, and, upon seeing my new squadron commander, went up to speak to him. He told me that the general in command of the Flying Corps had been trying to get me on the telephone, and said he wanted to speak to me when I came in. I could not imagine why so important a person as the general should want to speak to little "me," but rang him up. My cup of happiness overflowed when he told me that he wanted to be the first to congratulate me upon being awarded the Victoria Cross.

I could hardly hold myself down after hearing the great news. Walking across the aerodrome to the squadron headquarters, which was stationed on the other side, I had tea with the men there and then came back. The next night we had a big celebration in the way of a dinner, and managed to collect guests who came quite big distances to be there. It was a wonderful success, lasting until after midnight, and several of our guests remained all night and returned early the next morning.

A few days afterward I returned to England on leave, when I went to the investiture by the King. I had, on the previous day, received a telegram of instructions, telling me to report at Buckingham Palace at 10.30 in the morning dressed in Service uniform. At 10.10 I was there, not wishing to be behind time on such an occasion, and realizing I had better find out before it happened just what was expected of me.

The Ordeal of a Lifetime. Walking into the Palace, I came to a hat-stand, where everybody was checking things. I handed in my hat, gloves, and stick, whereupon I was told to hang on to the gloves, wearing one on my left hand and carrying the other. Then, following a number of other officers, also there to be decorated, I came to a room in which a general was standing. I asked him where I was to go, and he asked me what I was getting. I began the long rigmarole of V.C., D.S.O., and M.C., but before I had finished he told me to go in with the D.S.O.'s, as I was the only V.C. So I slipped away into a room where there were about 150 other officers. After waiting there for over half an hour, another general came in and gave us explicit instructions as to what to do in the King's presence. It was a terrible moment for us all.

Finally the door opened, and we were headed toward the room in which the King was standing with his staff. Following some generals and colonels, who were being admitted to the Order of St. Michael and St. George, it came my turn to march in. I knew my instructions well. Ten yards across to the middle of the room, and then a turn to the left and bow. Imagine my consternation when, at the first of those ten paces, one of my boots began to squeak. Somehow or other I managed to get to the proper place, where I was facing His Majesty. Here I had to listen to an account of my own deeds, read by one of the staff, while I myself stood stiffly at attention. Then, approaching the King, he hooked three medals on my breast. These had been handed to him on a cushion. He congratulated me upon winning them, and told me it was the first time he had been able to give all three to any one person.

Modest Hero Escaped Crowd. After a short, one-sided conversation, in which my only attempt to speak failed utterly, although I was trying to say "Yes, sir," he shook hands with me, and I bowed and backed away, turning and walking thirty squeaky paces to a door in the corner of the room. The moment I reached the outside of this door I thought I had been thrown into the arms of a highway robber. A man suddenly stepped from one side, and before I could stop him had snatched the three glittering medals off my chest, and was fifteen yards ahead of me on the way down the hall before I realized what had happened. I took after him, not knowing what to do, but he picked up three boxes from a table, put the medals in, and handed them back to me. Then he returned to meet the next man coming out, who incidentally was a great friend of mine, and also in the Flying Corps. The next thing to be feared was the crowd at the Palace gates and the photographers. Luckily, I had a car waiting in the enclosure, and by getting into this managed to evade everybody.

British Air Uniform. British air ministry announces in London that a light blue uniform has been approved for officers and airmen of the Royal Air Force. Some months must elapse before the new uniform can be generally provided, but khaki uniform will shortly be unavailable, and will gradually be replaced by a blue uniform.

A Gillette enthusiast has boldly stated his belief that the famous razor has caused a complete revolution in social life in the rural districts today!

It is true, as he says, that one cannot now distinguish between the city man and his brother in the country.

But do not give all the credit to the Gillette Safety Razor.

Smooth chins assuredly do prompt correctness in other things, but it hardly seems possible that the smartness of the social gathering in present-day farm homes is due to a razor—even the best razor in the world.

You answer an invitation to call at a friend's house, and enter a softly-lighted room to find well-dressed women and keen looking, clean-shaven men.

How glad you are that you came prepared to hold your own in any company.

And how satisfying it is to know that if guests drop in on you unexpectedly, the daily few minutes with your Gillette finds you READY to receive them.

One thing is certain—a Gillette Safety Razor should be part of the equipment of every man of today.

Gillette Sets are sold by Jewelers, Druggists and Hardware Dealers everywhere at five dollars.

LOOKING INTO THE FUTURE

British Scientists Have Evolved Many New Materials.

Becoming economically independent of Germany, in the future, and to a lesser degree of other nations, is an incentive which has appealed to the best brains among the Allies. What has been accomplished by British scientists so far promises much for the future. Rare metals have been experimented with for use in both war and peace; chemicals which have become available make a long list. There is a new stainless steel, among other things, and the discoveries in glass-making places optical work well beyond German monopoly. Dyes re-also out of Germany's control. Among the new materials which have been evolved is one made of resin that will soon appear in parasol handles, frames of lorgnettes, cigarette holders and numberless dainty accessories. It comes in finest clear amber color as well as in green and brown.

Herb growing holds a noticeable place in this research work and hygienic appliances for the caring of milk and the making of cheese show the importance which these will have in the future. Much of this work lies easily within women's sphere. Already she has shown herself to be an expert in optical work and nothing more delightful can be imagined for the woman gardener than herb growing. Everything pertaining to dairy work is legitimately in women's realm and if many of the flagrant shortcomings and omissions existing today are carried over into the new world of to-morrow it will be due quite as much to woman's neglect of her duty as to man's. Indeed, the day is already passed when women can rightly complain of many things which need improvement. The world of to-morrow will be a place where men and women will work together and where praise and blame will be shared equally.

An Unsinkable Spirit.

There was a submarine on the port bow. The captain and every member of the crew knew it. There was the usual nervous efficiency. Seamen who had been torpedoed before were assuring their comrades that they would all get off safely, hurrying while they spoke to get their life-belts adjusted. One of the stewards, full of anxiety for his commander, rushed up to the captain and asked where his life-belt was.

"I wanted to buckle it onto you, sir," he said, excitedly.

"Mind your own business," retorted the Irish captain promptly, "and you help with the guns. I'm from Cork and I don't need any life-belt."

Chinamen at the Front.

In France at the war's close there were about 50,000 Chinamen employed in road and railway making, machine repairing, and blacksmith and carpentry work for the allies. Their wages range from $9 a month for coolies to $6 a month for skilled fitters; board and lodging, clothes, light and fuel being found by the Government, which also conveys the workmen from and to China free, and gives a bonus in hard cash of $270 on embarkation, $75 in case of injury, and $150 in case of death.

LEMONS WHITEN AND BEAUTIFY THE SKIN

Make this beauty lotion cheaply for your face, neck, arms and hands.

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quart of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whiten and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quart of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It is marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.

CURIOUS FACTS ABOUT COLD.

Strange Effect Which Extreme Cold Has Upon the Human Body.

Cold presents many odd facts. In the first place, water made by melting snow is very unwholesome and causes painful inflammation of the throat, palate and tongue.

Intense cold causes a dulling of the senses, taste and smell becoming almost nil. The lack of these two senses seems, however, to be a very kind and wise provision of nature to enable the traveller in the cold regions to eat all kinds of oily, disagreeable foods like blubber and fat, which are necessary as heat producers. The effect of cold on the eyes is very dangerous. It causes them first gradually to close and then to freeze tight.

Beards do not freeze except where the moisture from the breath is converted into snow; but the color glands are rendered somewhat torpid by the cold, and dark beards gradually become lighter, until after a while they seem entirely changed in color.

Another curious fact about the cold of the Arctic regions is that when a person stops walking or working in any way whereby the feet get exercise, the sole of the foot loses all sense of feeling.

In all extremely cold lands, the moisture exhaled from the body condenses into small, hard crystals which make quite a bit of noise as one walks about.

To Utilize Old Tin Cans.

It is estimated that $3,000,000 worth of used tin cans are wasted every year in Canada. A company, called Can Conservers of Canada, Ltd., has been formed in Toronto to collect these, and cleanse, sterilize and re-top them for use again. It is understood that Mackenzie-Mann interests and J. P. Morgan & Co., of New York are interested in the undertaking.

Origin of Sandwich.

Sandwich takes its name from John Montague, fourth Earl of Sandwich, in 1792, who used to have slices of bread served to him while he was at the gaming table so that he need not stop playing. To go farther back, he derived his title from Sandwich, a town in Kent, England, the name of which was made up of the Anglo-Saxon words, sand and "wic," meaning town—sandy town.

There are many advantages to a single pitch roof on the poultry house. This type is most easily built. It gives the highest vertical front exposed to the sun's rays and throws all of the rain water to the rear.

An Uncanny Clock.

The most uncanny clock is in the possession of an Indian prince. It has no dial, only a round disk to which numerous little bells are attached. Its mere sight at every full hour is sufficient to strike an awe into nervous persons. For this uncanny clock indicates the hour by uniting, as if by magic hand, into a skeleton a number of bones heaped about it. The skeleton then seizes a bone and strikes with it at the bells as often as are hours to be indicated. This done, the skeleton falls again to pieces. The strange clock has, of course, many admirers. Thus, an English banker recently offered $5,000 for it, but the owner could not be induced to sell it.

Australia's Contribution.

Australia sent abroad 336,000 men of a population of 5,000,000. Of that number the total casualties were 290,191. The dead reached the remarkable figure of 54,431, while the prisoners numbered 3,401, and the wounded 156,000. The recruiting when the war ended was at the rate of 4,240 a month.

A Quick Relief for Headache

A headache is frequently caused by badly digested food; the gases and acids resulting therefrom are absorbed by the blood which in turn irritates the nerves and causes painful symptoms called headache, neuralgia, rheumatism, etc. 15 to 30 drops of Mother Seigel's Syrup will correct faulty digestion and afford relief.

CUTICURA

Quickly Heals Eczemas, Rashes, Itchings and Irritations

In the treatment of all skin troubles bathe freely with Cuticura Soap and hot water, dry gently, and apply Cuticura Ointment to the affected parts. These fragrant super-creamy emollients tend to prevent little skin troubles becoming serious if used for every-day toilet purposes.

WINCHESTER, ONTARIO, NOV. 21th 1918.

Don't this give one the shivers; An Ottawa paper on Monday announced a Barefoot-Winter wedding.

It is announced that the defaulters under the Military Service Act are to be exonerated. Surely this is a mistake. It would show a weakness as well as injustice. The least punishment to give them would be to disfranchise them for at least twenty years.

Marcel Hutin, writing in the Echo de Paris, says: "The first words the German plenipotentiaries said to Marshal Foch were, in substance, 'Germany's army is at your mercy, Marshal. Our reserves of men and munitions are completely exhausted making it impossible for us to continue the war.'"

The American people will not have to deprive themselves of a mouthful of food to feed Germany, Herbert Hoover declared before sailing for Europe. "We are not worrying about Germany," said Hoover. "She can take care of herself. What we are worrying about is the little allies who have been under the German yoke. They are faced by famine. We must give them help and lose no time in doing so."

If there is one man more than another who is deserving of sympathy in these days of epidemic it is the family physician. Early and late, in all sorts of weather, almost dead for want of sleep, he must answer day and night the imperative calls which come to him for his professional skill. Yet for much of his work he is never paid, not even with thanks, while his life is liable to forfeit at any time for his devotion to duty. The family doctor is certainly a hero. Even if he does not consider himself to be such. —Exchange.

The Hon. H. J. Cody, Minister of Education for Ontario, returns to Canada from the war zone persuaded that it would be good policy on the part of the Government of which he is a member to have as many soldiers as possible engaged in school teaching after the war. He would have public money spent in equipping men for the profession. Most people of the province would gladly see more members of the sterner sex engaged at pedagogy, if for no other reason than it would mean more in the way of supervised playgrounds. In Ontario today, so far at least as public and separate schools are concerned, men have all but disappeared from the profession. Ren-frew Mercury.

There has come to our desk a "War Catechism" which, it is stated, has been compiled in the United States "for the convenience of teachers of all grades, high school and elementary." The author is W. W. Ernest, a superintendent of schools of Chicago and in the state of Illinois. What makes the book worth noting by Canadians is that this "War Catechism," which goes into the causes and progress of the war very thoroughly, has not a single mention of Canada's contribution. Every nation from Montenegro up is told about, but there is not a word about the Dominion. Why is this? Canada is larger than Serbia, Greece, Rumania, Belgium or Montenegro. Our army is a stronger striking force than the armies of any of these countries. We "saved the day" at Calais, captured Vimy Ridge, were the spearhead of the drive at Amiens, broke the famous Queant switch line and we have full army corps still in field. Fifty per cent of the flying men on the British front to-day are Canadians, nearly twenty per cent of all high explosives turned out in the British Empire are produced in Canada. Canadian-made airplanes surpass all others and we have laid up a national debt in four years of war of over $2,000,000,000. Yet in this "War Catechism," published at our very doors, Canada is not even mentioned.

The above is from the Ottawa Journal-Press. Only a few weeks ago the Ottawa daily was finding fault with those Canadian newspapers that were criticising the American Press for its Spread-Engelism, and its loud boasting of what the American Army would do with the Kaiser etc. It was hoped, and is still hoped that the present alliance between the United States and Great Britain would bring about a better understanding, wipe out old prejudices, and evolve a closer Anglo-Saxon unity in the preservation of civil and religious liberty in the world. The histories used in the Public Schools of the United States for many decades past have tended to prejudice the young Americans against all that was British. They simply do not tell the truth. And this new "War Catechism" is another example of the narrow-minded prejudices of those in control of the School System of the United States. When the American troops, who were landed in France by British boats, return home, and tell of what they know of Great Britain's power, of Great Britain's open handed and open-hearted justice and fair play; when they tell of what the British Navy has done in the Great War, and how it saved the United States from invasion by the Hun, and their coastal cities from destruction by the German war ships, perhaps they will revise their school histories and their "War Catechisms."

If the high cost of living would only step down from the throne that would be the most popular abdication of them all.

A Presbyterian elder rises to remark that some people seem more cheerful about closing the churches to save coal than they were about closing their garages to save gasoline.

The women of Germany who refused bread and a drink of water to the English and Canadian prisoners of war, are now appealing to the Allies for bread to save their own children from starvation. The mills of the God's grind slowly, and the German women are being justly punished for their inhumanity.

The people of Canada and the Finance Minister are to be congratulated on the splendid success of the Victory Bond Campaign. The amount of $500,000,000 was largely oversubscribed, and the province of Ontario took over half that amount. It is an evidence not only of loyalty and patriotism, but also of thrift and prosperity. If the people had not saved the money they could not have lent it to the government. It is one of the best investments ever offered the Canadian people.

In the twelve months ending September 1918, Canada exported $163,488,362 worth of animal products and $440,742,430 worth of agricultural products, a total of $604,230,792. In addition to her farm products she exported over $33,000,000 worth of fish. In the first 47 months of the war Canada exported $1,874,701,900 worth of foodstuffs. This effort has helped to maintain the Allies and it has helped Canada maintain her war efforts. The call to Canada is still for production and by increased production Canada can easily pay her billion dollar war debt and maintain Canadian prosperity.

Now that the war is over, and our soldier boys will be coming home, it is but natural that every wife and every mother should desire their husband and son to be among the first to return. The department at Ottawa has been literally besieged with urgent requests from wives and parents asking that special preference be given to their claims. The Government has found it necessary to issue a statement to the effect that it will be impossible to either comply with or answer those requests. Where they find that the request received is deserving of special attention, they will do what they can to hasten the return of the one asked for. It has been practically decided that the married men will be the first to come over, and then according to the length of their service in Europe.

MR. LORENZO LEDUC
8 Ottawa St., Hull, P.Q.

"Fruit-a-tives" is certainly a wonder. For a year, I suffered with Rheumatism; being forced to stay in bed for five months. I tried all kinds of medicine but without getting better; and thought I would never be able to walk again.

"One day while lying in bed, I read about 'Fruit-a-tives' the great fruit medicine; and it seemed just what I needed, so I decided to try it.

The first box helped me, and I took the tablets regularly until every trace of the Rheumatism left me.

I have every confidence in 'Fruit-a-tives' and strongly recommend them to every sufferer from Rheumatism".

THOS. IRVING, Auctioneer.

Editor The Press:—

Dear Sir: The Official Boards of the Methodist and Presbyterian Churches of our town desire to make a statement regarding the action taken by properly authorized members of the Boards on Monday 11th inst. in connection with the Armistice celebration.

We were pleased to extend all facilities for the expression of the thankfulness and joy of the community naturally called forth by such an outstanding event in the history of the world. But, by common consent, both churches were locked at noon, by officials whose duty it was to look after the church property, after having been open to the public from about six o'clock a.m. In the afternoon, and up till a late hour at night, a number of young men took occasion to abuse their liberties and were guilty of trespass, and to some extent, damage of the church property by making forcible entrance thereto. The officials above mentioned, to prevent further trespass and damage, relocked the doors several times thereby incurring the displeasure and resentment of trespassers who proceeded to vent their feelings in a more or less public way on the gentlemen in question by means of insulting language, hoodlum acts and reflections on their loyalty.

We think a statement of these facts is only justice to those officials who were endeavoring to carry out their duty and it must be a matter of regret to our community at large, that respected citizens such as these gentlemen are, were singled out for such extremely unjust and disrespectful treatment.

Signed on behalf of the managing board and session of the Presbyterian church, and the Quarterly official board of the Methodist church as authorized by them.

F. M. Eagleson, clerk of session, Pres. church, Geo. Quart, Sec. Board of Managers, Pres church, A. Sweet, Recording Steward, Meth. church.

FREE IN EVERY HOME.

At this time every home should have one of Mr. Edison's latest inventions. The new Edison Diamond Amberola parven at a recent test against all makes of talking machines, including the Victor, captured the prize of being the best and easiest instrument to operate, that is to be found on the market to-day.

They are not a talking machine in any sense of the word, but a genuine Musical Instrument of the Highest Type. No talking machine dealer will now submit his talker to a test with the Amberola. No talking machine can successfully meet it. Talking machines scratches out the harsh music with a needle, while the New Edison Diamond Amberola plays with a genuine Diamond Point, that never needs changing, playing the longest records in the world. They reproduce them with a faithfulness you can't resist.

Don't listen to what talking machine dealers tell you have heard one of these latest Amberolas. Mr. Edison has more musicians and singers of the Highest Type than all others combined. The Diamond Amberola is the family friend, as they are played by the smallest child without fear of destroying the record. Talking machine records have usually two thirds of the selection, while the Blue Amberola has the full and lots of music between.

Space will not permit us to give any idea of this wonderful entertainer. You must hear them and we want every home desirous of good music, to test them in your home at our expense and after hearing them if you desire to keep it our terms will make it easy for you to own it, and you will never regret the day you place an new Edison Diamond Amberola in your home.

Congratulations are extended to Lt. John H. Barkley, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Barkley of this town, who has been awarded the Military Cross says the Morrisburg Leader.

Mr. and Mrs. David Robertson of Morrisburg received the sad news this week that their youngest son Pte David Allan Robertson, previously reported missing, had been killed in action on October 18th.

Lieut. Norman Cameron, a Winchester boy, son of the late Alex. Cameron, spent a few days in town last week, and was warmly welcomed by his old friends here. Lieut. Cameron is connected with the Royal Flying Corps of England, and, as recorded in the Press a few weeks ago, had a most thrilling experience and narrow escape from an awful death when fighting a Hun flying machine. His gas tank was punctured, and the gas and oil splattered all over him. He managed to keep control of his machine and landed just inside of the Allied lines. He was badly shaken up and is off on a six months leave of absence. Lieut. Cameron is a fine athletic young man, and is one of three brothers who have been rendering splendid service in the war.

Santa Claus will visit the Big Store, Winchester on Saturday, Dec. 7th, at 2 p. m. See his invitation in next week's Press.

A Fatal Accident

On Sunday last our citizens were shocked to hear the news of the sudden death of Bruce Roode, of Humber, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Roode. As near as we can learn, the deceased was ploughing with a tractor on the Ferguson farm about two miles west of Morrisburg, and owing to wet weather the machine got stuck in the mud. Bruce then uncoupled the plow, and with the aid of a few fence rails jacked up the tractor, so as to be able to pull out of the rut under his own power. All being ready he shoved the lever into second gear and applied the gasoline. Something had to move, and quicker than a flash of an eye the tractor opened, pinning young Roode under the engine where he lay for some three hours before being discovered. On being found he was conscious, and related exactly how it happened, while receiving medical attention. This was on Saturday. On Sunday afternoon however he got worse, being delirious, and passed away the same evening. The body was brought home on Monday and the funeral held yesterday.—Mountain Herald.

Obituary

On Sunday morning Nov. 10 there passed away one of Vernon's elderly residents in the person of George Bowman. Deceased had been ailing sometime but never confined to his home. He made his annual trip with the hunters to the Rainy Lake District and while there was taken very ill and was hastened home, arriving Saturday evening. His illness until midnight was not considered serious but he then weakened very rapidly and passed away at 7.30 a. m.

He was born in Mountain Township but moved to Vernon in 1887. He leaves to mourn his loss his wife and four children: Mrs. Peter Wyatt, Mrs. J. B. Wyatt of Dalmeny, John of Three Valley B. C. and Wallace at home. One daughter, Mabel, predeceased him by six years.

The funeral service was conducted in the Presbyterian church by Rev. G. G. Trainor after which interment was made in Springhill Cemetery.

Mountain Red Cross,

Mountain Red Cross was somewhat hampered during the month of October on account of so much illness yet the shipment has a fairly good showing.

We wish to acknowledge with special thanks a special donation from Van Camp-Patriotic Club of 26 pairs of hand knit socks, also all other donations.

We rejoice that the war is over and yet our deepest sympathy is with those of our friends and workers whose boys lie somewhere in France, for them a great deal of sadness is mixed with the rejoicing.

Our sympathy is extended to the parents and family of the late Jay Bennett who did his bit so nobly and yet fell a victim of the flu here in Canada. There is work yet to be done for the boys who have so nobly done their part and we feel sure that our Branch will continue the work till the boys come home.

Mr. Sellick of Kemptville who married Miss Effie Hains, of Morrisburg, died at Green Court, Alta, on 29th, Oct.

Mr. Vincent Barry, of Saskatoon, Sask., formerly of Morrisburg died at St. Paul's Hospital, Saskatoon, on Monday, November 11th.

Successful Sale.

Notwithstanding unfavourable weather the auction sale at Geo. Earle's, Melvin Settlement, was one of the largest held in a long time. The sale totaled over $7100, and the milk cows averaged over $91.00, each. Needless to say the sale was advertised through the Press, and the attractive posters printed at the Press Office.

Our Regrets.

The Press regrets that circumstances compel us to hold over considerable news of importance this week, including Inkerman notes of last week, also the Winchester Red Cross, the Korner Man, and other communications. We hope to be able to manage to take care of all such news notes next week.

Auction Sales.

No less than six auction sales are advertised in this issue of the Press. More and more the farmers are recognizing the value of the Press as an advertising medium, and the Press office as the place to get their posters. There is some very valuable stock advertised in this issue.

Thanksgiving Services

Acting on the suggestion of the Government, the churches of Winchester as well as in all parts of the Dominion will observe Sunday Dec. 1st, as a day of Thanksgiving to Almighty God for peace. The churches here will observe the day individually as it has been thought advisable, the considering the continued interruption of regular church services, to do so instead of a union mass meeting.

Notice to Subscribers.

With coal at $14 a ton, wood even dearer, and food away up in price, the Editor of the Press finds it necessary to appeal to delinquent subscribers to pay up. Just look at the label on your paper and if you are in arrears, just be kind enough to make it right. The aggregate of those in arrears amounts to hundreds of dollars, and it is not fair that we should be kept waiting for what is due, and over due. Again we ask you to consult the label on your paper.

Winchester Red Cross

The members of the Winchester Branch Red Cross Society held their annual meeting on Tuesday afternoon the 19th, in the town hall.

Favourable reports were submitted on both the finances and the work during the year by the ladies.

The officers were elected by acclamation except that Mrs. Campbell is re-elected sec, as well as cor. sec. Last week the report says we sent 24 pairs of socks instead of 124.

Motor Trip.

On the 24th of October last Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Earl and family left Morrisburg, Alta, in a Ford Car bound for Winchester. They crossed the line travelling through the States and visiting the principal places along their route, and report a splendid trip, but on arriving at Chatham, Ontario, their motor trip was discontinued owing to the fact that Mrs. Earl had contracted a bad cold on the way, and Mr. Earl was obliged to continue the trip with his family by train arriving here Saturday evening the 16 inst., leaving Mrs. Earl in the Hospital at Chatham. Mrs. Earl is expected to arrive to-night. We are pleased to learn that Mrs. and Mrs. Earl and family intend residing in our midst. At present they are the guests of Mr. Earl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey Errett, Winchester.

After supper Jerry had an hour before he had to go on duty; he took his place in the sitting-room with the rest of the family and began to review his notes on Blackstone. His mother was busy with her knitting; the others were studying as usual. Looking up from his notes from time to time and trying to fix them in his memory, Jerry found Kate's altered appearance an obstacle to thought.

She sat where the light from the lamp fell full upon her hair, and until this moment he had never appreciated what beautiful hair it was. When it had been in a pigtail it had never displayed the sheen, the variety of light and color that glowed and sparkled from it now. He had always thought of it as just brown hair, and here he was discovering under the lamplight that it was red and gold and coppery as well, with waves and curls in it that he had never suspected. And now that it was all rolled up above her head he was discovering for the first time what a pretty head she had. On the whole, he was discovering for the first time that she was quite grown up.

She had her head industriously bent while he watched her; she was writing with pencil on a tablet held in her lap. Once she looked up as if to invoke an idea and encountered Jerry's eyes. She blushed and smiled, a deprecating smile that seemed to say, "Don't think I'm any different, please don't." Jerry's smile in response must have been reassuring, for in another moment her head was bent again and the pencil was traveling steadily back and forth across the pages.

By nine o'clock Peter and Betty had been sent off to bed; Mrs. Donohue was yawning and dozing over her knitting, and it was time for Jerry to start on his patrol.

On his way to the police station Jerry met four persons marching abreast, with arms linked together. The two on the flanks were young men of a tough and reckless type; the outside one gave place to Jerry grudgingly and defiantly. Their companions were a young woman whose character there could be no question, and another young woman whom in the moment of passing Jerry recognized as the older Armstrong girl.

In that moment the Lesbian said, with a caressing intonation,—"You're not going home yet, are you, dear?"

Replying with a cackle of laughter, Clara Armstrong chanted in a vinous voice,—

"Oh, we won't go home till morning. Till daylight does appear."

Jerry continued on his way, reflecting that Clara Armstrong, as well as Kate, seemed suddenly to have grown up.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

The longer that Nora postponed speaking to Maguire about her brother, the more difficult it seemed to become. Several times she went to his house fully determined, if there was a favoring opportunity after the lesson, to make her plea; indeed, she had rehearsed it even to the inflections of her voice. Yet when the favoring opportunity arrived, her tongue clove to her mouth.

She came one day in late April to give Laura her lesson; it was a day of balmy south wind and warm sunshine, and as she stepped along she was feeling unwontedly sanguine and happy. Surely she would be able to set her brother free; once people understood, they were ready to do what was right. She must speak to Mr. Maguire soon—perhaps this very day. A bright new ribbon tastefully arranged upon her old hat, indeed transforming the old hat, it raised her confidence and increased her courage.

At the end of the lesson he appeared in the doorway, bearing in his hand, not a pipe, but a bouquet of may-flowers. He presented them to Nora with a certain ponderous courtesy.

"Oh," said Nora. "Thank you. Aren't they lovely?"

She fastened them in her belt; meanwhile, Maguire observed,—

"Spring. They look springy. Nice day, don't you think, for an auto mobile ride?"

"A perfectly wonderful day for it," Nora agreed, hardly daring to think this was an invitation.

"I've got a new car; it's to be brought round in a few minutes. You might come out and try it with me."

"Oh, I'd love to," said Nora.

"Can I come too, Uncle Pat?" asked Laura.

"Not to-day; your mother wants you upstairs. Here—wait,"—as Laura's expression became more ominous—"look here what I'm going to give you." He put his hand in his pocket and drew forth some coins. "You can have 'em if you don't make a fuss. And I'll take you out riding later to-day, maybe, if you're a good girl."

Somewhat appeased by the twofold bribe, Laura consented to go upstairs. The car was large and luxurious. Nora in all her life had never ridden in anything so magnificent; she said so, and Maguire seemed pleased by the tribute. Neither had she ever been wrapped in such a costly fur coat as that which Maguire borrowed from his sister for her comfort.

When they had gone about fifteen miles from the city, they came to a park of woodland with an arched entrance that bore the name "Silver Grove."

"I always give a couple of picnics here every summer," said Maguire. "Want to come in and look round?"

He ran the car into the park and left it near the entrance. He and Nora walked along a woody path that led past a pavilion for dancing.

"Great place for young folks," said Maguire. "Every picnic I give I feel I'm helping along some young couple. Gives 'em a chance to get acquainted. Many's the pair that's come here, you might say single, and gone away engaged."

"It's a funny thing you've never done it yourself, Mr. Maguire."

"Well, I never seemed to meet up with any one that quite fell in with my ideas. I've always had tastes in advance, you might say, of them I was likely to see. This field here is where they play baseball. Pretty soon now we'll see the river."

"This is where the boys like to take the girls and sit," said Maguire. "They get such a fine view. It kind of makes them feel romantic, I guess."

"It is a fine view," said Nora sedately, yet full of wonderment.

"We might sit down a few moments on this bench," suggested Maguire.

He led her to a bench between two pine trees.

"I'm mighty sorry," he said after an interval of silence, "that you won't be teaching Laura any more."

To Nora, who had been preparing herself for something embarrassing yet pleasant, the cruelty of this announcement seemed only less emphatic than its crudity.

"I didn't know that Mrs. O'Brien didn't want me to go on."

"It isn't that, but you see my sister's going to move away. Going to Baltimore to live. Going to marry a lawyer there."

The explanation was balm to Nora's spirit. She expressed her interest.

"Yes," said Maguire, "it's kind of romantic. Jack Moriarty wanted to marry her long before ever she married Ed. O'Brien. It was a loss up which of the two she'd take. Then after Ed died, Jack Moriarty waited what you might call a decent interval, and asked her again. She thought, though, she could never marry a second time. But Moriarty has stuck to it, and at last she has given in. Well, he's a good fellow, and I can't help feeling glad for them both, though of course it's going to be kind of lonesome for me."

There was an appreciable pause, and then he said slowly and distinctly,—

"Unless you could be persuaded to marry me."

Faced thus abruptly with the knowledge that she had been rather hoping to get at, Nora found herself at an utter loss.

"Why, Mr. Maguire, I never thought of such a thing." She glanced from him to the ground in honest embarrassment. "I—I don't know what I can say—except that I don't see how I can—and, anyway, I'm sure you couldn't want it really."

"Now don't you make any mistake about that, Mrs. Corcoran. I'm accustomed to knowing what I want. I've considered this step more than a little. In fact, I've talked it over with my sister. She feels just as I do, that it would be a fine thing for me. There's no manner of doubt in my own mind about that."

"But you must have often seen women you might have married."

"Not that I wanted to marry. It's this way, Mrs. Corcoran; as I said to you, I'm in advance of my friends in my tastes. It's only a high-toned woman that I could think of marrying, and I've not been by way of meeting high-toned women very often. I know one when I see her, now I tell you. And you're the highest-toned woman I ever knew."

Nora was touched by that crude compliment. It pleased her to feel that he regarded her as an ideal character, who was to be won only upon the loftiest ground—was not to be influenced by a consideration of the material advantages that he could bestow. If he viewed her in such a light—well, for once she would try to act in a manner befitting an ideal character. And without waiting to think twice and be afraid, she said:—

Do Not Worry If You Cannot Get Sugar

You do not have to forego sweet things because of the present shortage of sugar. Corn Syrup is available, and for years has been available, as a perfect alternative for sugar for cooking, in puddings and preserves, in the making of desserts, and on cereals.

People didn't recognize this fact while sugar was cheap and plentiful. Now they are hailing the discovery with delighted surprise.

Buy Crown Brand or Lily White Corn Syrup from your grocer. They are wholesome, delicious and nourishing—true products of the Corn—and, you will soon find, most economical, too.

CROWN BRAND AND LILY WHITE CORN SYRUP

And the use of Corn Syrup instead of Sugar is a War-Service to-day! The carrying of raw sugar on the ocean has meant a huge loss of life and tonnage. It takes ships that are sorely needed to carry troops and supplies.

Corn is grown on this continent and the syrup is manufactured right here in Canada.

Write to the Canada Food Board, Ottawa, for a booklet of recipes in which Corn Syrup takes the place of Sugar. The authorities heartily approve of this movement to conserve Sugar.

Sold by grocers everywhere in 2, 5, 10 and 20 lb. tins.

Do the food laws for public eating-places govern patriotic teas and all entertainments where refreshments are served?

Yes. They apply to all public entertainments, lawn socials, bazaars, tea meetings, public luncheons, dinners, picnics, fairs, club and fraternal societies' meetings; private and semi-private luncheons, dinners, parties and picnics where food is served to fifteen or more people other than members of the family.

Is a license required before food can be served at any of these gatherings?

No.

Is the Food Board opposed to the serving of refreshments at patriotic entertainments?

The Food Board lays down no hard and fast rules on the subject, but believe in every woman exercising common sense and good judgment in this matter.

Can sandwiches be served at all?

Yes, any time except between 11.30 a.m. and 2.30 p.m.

What can be served in place of sandwiches?

As it is only in the middle of the day that they are taboo, there should be no difficulty on this score. Salad, chicken, fish or eggs, with substitute breads, give plenty of variety and adequately fill the bill.

May bread be served as a garnish? Only with poached eggs.

Can white bread be served without a substitute being put on the table as well?

No. Substitutes must always accompany white bread when served at any kind of public function.

Where can recipes be secured for the use of substitutes?

Write to the Food Board for its bread-making booklet, enclosing five cents for same. Clip the papers for recipes.

How much butter may each guest have?

Half an ounce is the allowance, although an additional half-ounce may be given if asked for.

What are the meat restrictions?

Beef and veal may only be served at the evening meal on Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Only one helping is allowed to each guest.

When can bacon be served?

Any time. The pork restrictions have been removed.

What about sugar?

Here a hostess has to step warily. No sugar bowls must be in evidence. One level teaspoon or two small cubes

Food Control Corner

In a statement on the sugar distribution difficulty, the Chairman of the Canada Food Board, Mr. Henry B. Thomson, says:—

Since last May, when the use of sugar in Canada was rigidly cut down, manufacturers, candy makers, public eating places and large users have played the game fairly, and have abided by the rulings of the Canada Food Board.

Approximately 300,000 tons of sugar will be required in Canada for 1918. Only 12,000 tons of this will be used in the confectionery industry. If the Food Board issued an order absolutely closing down the factories, we should disorganize the industry and throw hundreds of people out of work.

If the people in the homes would not put the "second spoonful" of sugar in their tea and coffee it would save 50,000 tons of sugar a year. This amount is more than four times the sugar allotment to the confectionery manufacturers. It could be done with a little good will.

Notwithstanding the order issued on September 15th, there is reason to believe that a large number of people hoard sugar in the homes. It is only a little, possibly, in some cases, but when multiplied by the number of homes in Canada, it is a huge quantity in the aggregate. There is possibly also a good deal of waste which, if checked by everyone, would make the situation easier.

It is for the consumer to "get in behind" the Food Board now as the manufacturers have done. There will then be an ample supply of sugar for all.

Food in France.

France, so far as food is concerned, is in a bad way; worse than in 1917-18. The total nutrition value for the 1918 crop of cereals, beans and potatoes is below that of last year.

The French Food Controller is authority for this statement and that the wheat crop is large and of better quality, but the maize, barley, oats, beans and potato crops are much smaller.

The potato situation is particularly grave for this year; the crop is not more than 7,500,000 long tons, as compared with an average for the last ten years of 12,000,000 long tons. According to private estimates, the total wheat crop in France for 1918 will be about 180,000,000 bushels, an increase of about 25 per cent. over last year's production. For the three years preceding the war the average production was 324,187,000 bushels. In 1914 it was 282,689,000 bushels, while for the years 1917 and 1918 it dwindled to 144,149,000 bushels.

It is seen that France is "up against" it as regards the food situation.

ENGLAND'S DEBT TO RAIN

Helps Solve the Problem of Supplying London With Water.

The average rainfall for the Thames Valley in 1917 was 30.09 inches, or nearly two inches above the average for the past 34 years, says a London newspaper.

This is the sixth year in succession that the average has been exceeded, and there was never before a sequence of more than two years in succession with rainfall above the average since records were first taken.

This freak of weather has been a stroke of luck for London. It has assured her water supply at a most difficult period, London's water supply comes principally from two sources—the Thames at Hampton, and the New River.

The water is taken from the Thames at two points about a quarter of a mile apart. All you see is a screen of cast iron bars about half an inch apart, let into a stone wall, yet through these openings pass tens of millions of gallons daily.

The head of the New River is a pond between Hertford and Ware, but the supply is increased by thirteen great wells. From these and the river nearly fifty million gallons of water pass daily into the great "service" reservoirs of North London.

Since 1893 these wells have been failing. The Chadwell spring has ceased to flow. The rivers Darent and Cray have dried near their original sources. The Orpington springs have vanished, the Halesbury College well has had to be deepened. During the next spell of dry years there is going to be a water shortage in London unless a good deal of money is spent to prevent such a calamity.

After the war one of the great works which will have to be seriously taken in hand is the bringing of a new water supply from Wales to London. It is said, by supporters of the scheme, that £65,000 per annum would be saved in soap alone, owing to the fact that the Welsh water would be soft and free from the chalk which London's present supply contains in such quantity. Apart from this, too, the bringing of the water to London would help to solve the after-the-war labor problem.

The price of butter in Constantinople ranges from $4.60 to $5 per oka (slightly less than 3 pounds).

The lady bug is one of the gardener's best friends. It is an implacable enemy on all forms of plantlice. "Will not a tiny speck very close to our vision blot out the glory of the world, and leave only a margin by which we see the blot?"—George Eliot.

THE RHINE, ITS NAME AND ITS FAME

THE SCENE OF MANY EVENTS IN EUROPEAN HISTORY

In the Near Future it Will be the Grand Question of the Entire Civilized World.

The Rhine is the principal river of Germany and one of the most famous rivers of the world. It has a length of about eight hundred miles, rising in the canton of Grisons, Switzerland, and emptying into the North Sea just north of The Hague. It has strategic value at the present time for the armies of Ludendorff, because of the rapid flow of its waters at the section to which Gen. Pershing, if he should continue a straight eastern drive, would send his forces. It has also historical interest.

One who has studied causes and effects has written:

"Before the commencement of history, perhaps before the existence of man, where the Rhine now is there was a double chain of volcanoes, which on their extinction left heaps of lava and basalt lying parallel, like two long walls. At the same epoch the gigantic crystallizations formed the primitive mountains. The enormous alluvions of which the secondary mountains consist were dried up. The frightful heap is now cold and has snow accumulated on it, from which two great streams issued. One, flowing toward the north, crossed the plains, encountered the sides of the extinguished volcanoes and emptied itself into the ocean; the other, taking its course westward, fell from mountain to mountain, flowed along the side of the block of extinguished volcanoes, which is now Ardèche, and was finally lost in the Mediterranean. The first of these inundations is the Rhine, the second the Rhone."

The First Rhine Dwellers.

The first people who took possession of the banks of the Rhine, we are told, were the half savage Celts, who afterwards received the name of Gauls. In the height of his glory Caesar crossed the Rhine and shortly afterwards took the entire river under his jurisdiction. The river was, in Roman times, a boundary between the province of Gaul and the German tribes, and at a later date and until 1871 was the frontier between Germany and France.

It is a stream of varied aspects. Victor Hugo, who wrote what was perhaps the finest article ever written about it, said: "The Rhine is unique; it combines the qualities of every river. Like the Rhone, it is rapid; broad, like the Loire; encased, like the Meuse; serpentine, like the Seine; limpid and green, like the Somme; historical, like the Tiber; royal, like the Danube; mysterious, like the Nile; spangled with gold like an American river; and like a river of Asia, abounding with phantoms and fables."

Crossed by Many Warriors.

In the destinies of Europe the Rhine, says Hugo, "has a sort of providential significance. It is the great moat which divides the north from the south. The Rhine for thirty ages has seen the forms and reflected the shadows of almost all the warriors who tilled the old Continent with that share which they called the sword. Caesar crossed the Rhine in going to the south; Attila crossed it when descending to the north. It was here that Clovis gained the Battle of Tolbiac; and that Charlemagne and Napoleon figured. . . . For the thinker who is conversant with history two great eagles are perpetually hovering over the Rhine—that of the Roman legions and that of the French regiments. The Rhine . . . bore at one time upon its surface bridges of boats, over which the armies of Italy, Spain and France poured into Germany."

And the same writer adds further in his article that some day "it shall become the grand question of Europe." This prophecy is now at its fulfillment, for the Rhine is now, or shortly will be, the grand question of entire civilization.

MAPPING THE SKY

Cloud-Maps Form a Difficult and Intricate Study.

Few of us possess an intimate knowledge of the significance of cloud effects. A cloud-map would, therefore, be unintelligible to any but a meteorological student. But there have been cloud-maps printed for over thirty years, the first one, consisting of some 300 cloud pictures, being published by a German student.

Cloud-raps are, naturally, a far more intricate and difficult study than a straightforward geographical atlas. They were first intended merely as a meteorological asset, but since the advent of the airman, have now become a vital side-issue in the work of the Royal Air Force.

A certain professor, who has been experimenting with cloud phenomena in Aberdeen, has proved so successful that his photographs and sketches are to be reproduced in the form of a cloud atlas. The map is intended to replace the International Cloud Atlas, executed by German professors and published in Paris before the war.

The rough war breads are undoubtedly more wholesome than all-white bread.

Montreal Daily Star

WHAT SOLDIERS WANT.

A suggestion to those who are sending gifts to soldiers overseas comes from Lt.-Col. (Canon) Frederick George Scott, Senior Chaplain of the First Division, in a cable received by friends in Montreal. He says "The men want playing cards and chewing tobacco."

CHEW STAG TOBACCO

"Ever-lastingly Good"

HUNS ARE BRUTES, SAY BELGIANS

TERRIBLE HATRED AROUSED BY GERMAN ATROCITIES

$5,000,000 Plant Wrecked by Bombs—Ostend and Bruges Virtually Stripped.

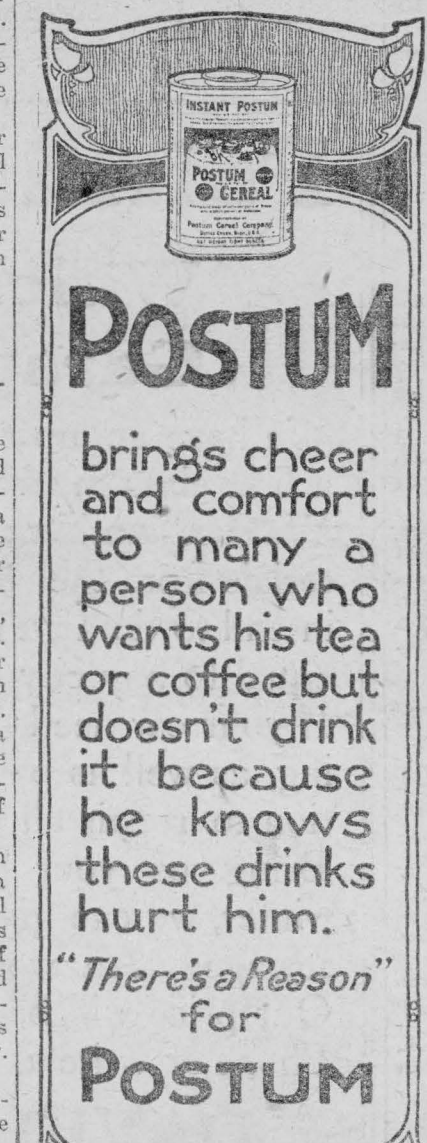

Rejoicing among people in the liberated districts continues unexhausted and indescribable, says a British war correspondent on Oct. 20. I reached Ostend yesterday, passed the night there and returned to Bruges through an extensive tour of the parts of Belgium recently under German rule.

What impressed me more than anything after I talked with so many civilians, first in the Cambrai area and then in Lille, Ostend and Bruges, is the extraordinary skill with which the Germans got themselves hated everywhere. National hatred as enemies was to be expected, but sentiment has universally aroused something more. The individual German is loathed by people of all classes as a brute, bully and thief. Thief, bandit and brigand are terms heard everywhere, applied to officers even more than to the men.

In regard to Ostend, the place is not seriously damaged. The area about the station and harbor docks and that part of the sea front where there were big guns (some still remain imbedded in a deep concrete emplacement) show abundant evidence of the excellent marksmanship both of our airmen and of our gunners. But so true the aim had been that the bulk of the city is untouched. Along the water front, where many hotel windows were broken, many buildings show some injury. At first glance Ostend looks as if it had been roughly handled, but the damage is very small, and Ostend can soon be as gay as ever.

Ostend Crowds Sing All Night.

She was gay enough last night. One of the last acts of the Germans before retreating, as in other cities, was to wreck the plants and sever the connections in the gas, electric light and water service, so that Ostend is without light except lamps and candles. Only rain water is available for domestic use or in case of fire. Last evening it rained incessantly, but in spite of the darkness the wet crowds with improvised bands swept through the chief thoroughfares all night singing the Belgian anthem and the "Marseillaise."

POSTUM

brings cheer and comfort to many a person who wants his tea or coffee but doesn't drink it because he knows these drinks hurt him.

"There's a Reason" for POSTUM

One of the great sights in Ostend is the vindictive. There she lies, noble in her huge gray nakedness against the piling of the wooden pier. The Germans succeeded in sinking her stern around until she lies almost parallel to the pier. She is a wonderful sight. Two hundred yards nearer the harbor the Germans themselves sank two dredges and a small steamer, which also partially block the fairway. The people of Ostend say the vindictive, if it can be done without damage to the harbor, must be left lying where she is as long as she holds together. They are very proud of her.

There has been in these towns the same continuous thieving as in Lille and elsewhere, the same abuse of requisitions and terrorism. In Ostend all houses were stripped clean of everything, also the great hotels there in the last days furnish rich hauls in requisitioned goods. A kitchen battery in a large hotel has, on the average, a ton of copper, which, of course, is all gone, also all mattresses and woolen goods, under formal requisition. Then every day soldiers took one thing after another. The guardian of one hotel told how they came with sacks and carried off all things portable, and finally all the furniture.

Huns Wreck $5,000,000 Plant.

One of the worst outrages was in Bruges where before leaving the town the Germans deliberately blew up and destroyed the great Compagnie Brégoise plant, valued at $5,000,000. Before the war it was a wagon factory, but was adapted by the Germans to make munitions. Squads of engineers came and the officers laid mines and nests of bombs and wrecked the whole place.

As in Ostend and elsewhere, all empty houses in Bruges were stripped of their contents, also the houses that Germans had put to their own use. A beautiful private house was occupied by Governor General Von Schein, who was away ill. Before leaving the house the officers of his staff looted everything and left it empty.

Bruges, as a city, is unhurt and still stands in its beauty, except for the destruction of bridges and other injuries like that to the Compagnie Brégoise and the damage we had done to canal and docks by bombing. The famous belfry, the beautiful Hotel de Ville and the Chapel of the Holy Blood are all unharmed, but minor vandalism was perpetrated with scandalous characteristics.

From the people at Tourcoing and at Roubaix I gather that the conditions there were precisely the same as at Lille, the same abuse of "bons de requisition," the same stealing and fines, the same horrible deportation of women at night.

Order for Deportation.

I have seen a copy of the official proclamation regarding the deportation. It narrates all the horrible procedure of families having to assemble at their doors and "an officer will then definitely decide which persons shall be conducted to the assembly place." I have told of the hideous system of procedure: "Anybody who attempts to disobey will be pitilessly punished." Nothing Germany has done will remain a deeper stain to her name than the deed to which this document testifies.

At Tourcoing and Roubaix, where there are many English workers, they had a terrible time. It seems without doubt that among the poor people some actually died of starvation. An Englishman named Richardson, a cotton spinner, who refused to make clothes for the German Government, was sent to prison in a Baltic fortress for six months. He was kept in loathsome quarters, but there is so much to tell of the greedfulness and brutality on one side and heroism on the other, that the tale would never end. The thing itself is ending. Surely mankind will never permit its repetition.

Enjoyed the Change.

A negro soldier now on the western front captured a German major. On his way back to headquarters to report his charge the soldier made his captive carry his trapping and baggage, prodding him along gently with his gun.

"Why were you so anxious to put him to work?" his officer asked him. "Well, you see," explained the negro, "it made me feel good to see him toting that equipment. Befe' the war Ah was a po'tah."

WORLD'S BIGGEST FUR AUCTION

IN SIX DAYS THE TOTAL SALES WERE $6,004,000.

3,500,000 Pelts Bring Record Prices With Buyers From Twenty-seven Countries.

What buyers who attended say was the largest fur sale the world has ever known, both as to quantity of furs sold and the financial results has just ended at the International Fur Exchange, 115 South Second Street, St. Louis. In the six days it lasted sales totaled $6,004,000, or an average of more than $1,000,000 daily.

The week also saw the purchase by the fur men of Liberty bonds to the amount of $2,500,000, and generous donations to the Red Cross, Knights of Columbus, Jewish Welfare and other war relief funds. In addition, transactions among the buyers totaled more than $2,000,000 and it is estimated that more than $10,000,000 was involved in the week's trading.

Sixty-four kinds of fur, known to dealers from every part of the world, were listed in the 350-page catalogue of the sale. They comprised more than 3,500,000 pelts, divided into 110,000 lots for the convenience of buyers. Every state in the Union, every province in Canada, and twenty-five foreign countries contributed to the catalogue. Each pelt had to be checked, entered, graded and catalogued. St. Louis gradings and lottings are quoted and accepted as standard wherever furs are bought and sold.

All Furs in Demand.

The demand for all kinds of furs was unprecedented during the entire week, a demand that was voiced by dealers from all parts of the world and from every class of trade and many varieties sold for record prices. Muskrat, a fur that sold a few years ago for a few cents a pelt, sold as high as $2.25, while a record price of $11 for skunk was reached. Another fur that sold higher than ever before was lynx, the record skin bringing $85. It was later sold for the benefit of the Red Cross and brought $125.00. Fisher sold as high as $102 and marten at a top price of $81.

Buyers and brokers say the record prices made in all but two or three of the furs may not stand long. They look for prices to increase rather than to diminish. The labor situation was expected to hold prices down a bit, but evidently manufacturers must have settled the labor question more or less to their own satisfaction before coming to St. Louis, for the manufacturers were well and ably represented by large and important orders. Most of them are far too busy in their factories at this juncture to journey westward, but the local brokers took good care of their wants in all respects.

And, incidentally, the rise of the fur broker is coincident with the rise of the St. Louis market. Whether it were the market that made the broker, or vice versa, were negligible. Sufficient it is to know that where the big market is there the big brokers gather together.

The next sales are announced for January 27, April 28 and September 15, 1919.

Foreign Dishes.

LIFT YOUR CORNS OFF WITH FINGERS

How to loosen a tender corn or callus so it lifts out without pain.

Let folks step on your feet hereafter; wear shoes a size smaller if you like, for corns will never again send electric sparks of pain through you, according to this Cincinnati authority.

He says that a few drops of a drug called freezeone, applied directly upon a tender, aching corn, instantly relieves soreness, and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts right out.

This drug dries at once and simply shrivels up the corn or callus without even irritating the surrounding tissue.

A small bottle of freezeone obtained at any drug store will cost very little but will positively remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's foot.

If your drugist hasn't stocked this new drug, yet, tell him to get a small bottle of freezeone for you from his wholesale drug house.

Buy a Bond.

"So I Sent My True Love,
Lips that still were laughing,
Eyes that still could dance—
So I sent my true love
On his way to France.

Through the dark days he needs me,
While we are apart,
He shall feel my laughter
Lifting up his heart.

He shall go unburdened
By any grief he knows,
Down the dusty roads of France
Singing as he goes.

All my love and laughter
Through his days shall flow—
If I cry before the dawn
He shall never know!

LEMONS MAKE SKIN WHITE, SOFT, CLEAR

Make this beauty lotion for a few cents and see for yourself.

What girl or woman hasn't heard of lemon juice to remove complexion blemishes: to whiten the skin and to bring out the roses, the freshness and the hidden beauty? But lemon juice alone is acid, therefore irritating, and should be mixed with orchard white this way. Strain through a fine cloth the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing about three ounces of orchard white, then shake well and you have a whole quarter pint of skin and complexion lotion at about the cost one usually pays for a small jar of ordinary cold cream. Be sure to strain the lemon juice so no pulp gets into the bottle, then this lotion will remain pure and fresh for months. When applied daily to the face, neck, arms and hands it should help to bleach, clear, smoothen and beautify the skin.

Any drugist will supply three ounces of orchard white at very little cost and the grocer has the lemons.

Character.

What is your brave act without a brave nature behind it? What is your smile unless I know that you are kind? What is your indignant blow unless your heart is on fire? What is all your activity without you? How instantly the impression of a character creates itself, springs into shape behind a deed! A man cannot sell you goods across a counter, or drive you a mile in his carriage on the road, or take your ticket in the cars, or hold the door open to let you pass, without your getting, if you are sensitive, some idea of what sort of a man he is and seeing his deed colored with the complexion of his character.—Phillips Brooks.

Japanese and Home.
The real meaning of the word home is not understood by the Japanese. There is nothing home-like in a Japanese house. By the shifting of a few shutters it can be thrown open to the four winds of heaven, and, although the greatest care is taken to keep the woodwork and matting spotlessly clean, a man is far prouder of the possession of a few yards of garden than of the noblest palatial residence without a tree or a shrub.

NOTICE TO SOLDIERS ON HARVEST LEAVE.

Attention is directed to a recent announcement published in the Press by the Military Service Branch, Department of Justice, regarding extensions to be granted to men EXEMPTED AS FARMERS.

It is pointed out that this DOES NOT IN ANY WAY AFFECT MEN WHO HAVE BEEN ORDERED BY THE REGISTRAR TO REPORT TO Depot Battalions and who have thereafter received leave of absence from the Military Authorities.

Once a man has been ordered to report for duty by the Registrar he leaves the jurisdiction of the Registrar and comes under that of the Department of Militia and Defence, and is to be considered as a soldier. This applies to men of the 20 to 22 Class who have been ordered to report by the Registrar in virtue of the cancellation of exemptions by Order-in-Council of the 20th April last, as well as to those ordered to report in the usual way on refusal of claim for exemption, or on expiration of exemption granted.

All men, accordingly, who have been ordered to report, and are therefore SOLDIERS, and who have subsequently been granted harvest leave by the military authorities, MUST, NOTWITHSTANDING THE NOTICE ABOVE REFERRED TO, REPORT ON THE EXPIRATION OF THAT LEAVE, unless they are notified to the contrary by their Commanding Officer or by general notice published by the Department of Militia and Defence.

Mrs. Wm. MacMillan and son of Winchester Springs spent a few days last week with the former's daughter, Mrs. W. T. Holmes.

Mr. R. Bruce is able to be out again after a severe attack of influenza.

Mr. and Mrs. Ruben Pruner received a message on Oct. 23rd, saying that brother-in-law, Mr. Will Laferty of Gouverneur, had died of influenza and pneumonia leaving a wife and two little daughters.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ianous motored to Chrysler on Sunday afternoon to see the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patenaude, also a brother who is very ill.

Mrs. Hamilton Black received word last week that her eldest sister, Nurse Byres, had arrived safely in England.

Mrs. U. L. Steinburgh returned from Ottawa on Friday where she was visited by her daughter Mrs. L. H. Smith, and also her father who is very ill.

Mr. Reuben Pruner was informed on Oct. 28th, that his nephew Corp. W. H. Richmire had been in a shell burst getting his right leg broken in two places, his left leg broken and his right arm badly shattered, also a gun shot through the left shoulder. He expects to be transferred in a few weeks to an hospital in Eng. He enlisted with one of the first Batt. and was trained at Valcartier.

Mr. N. Holmes came back to see his son Willie on Sunday afternoon.

Those from here who were attending Winchester High School returned thence the first of this week.

Next Sunday there will be a special temperance service held in our Sunday School with pledge signing.

Miss Casselman opened school again on Tuesday.

Miss Breta Redmond and brother Donald were guests of Miss Bessie Baxter on Sunday.

Many Deaths.

The Kemptville Advance last week recorded the deaths of Elymer J. Carson aged 23 years son of H. E. Carson and brother of the late Nurse Carson who died a short time ago and who visited here, he was a nephew of Mrs. John McCormick, of Winchester. Mrs. Horace Hutchins, whose maiden name was Minnie J. Martin, died while visiting at Montreal. Mr. Isaac Taylor, son of late Geo. Taylor is also a victim of the flu. Also Mrs. Ed Hunter, Millers Corners. Mrs. Geo. Empson, Oxford, Silas Quinn of Kemptville, and Bessie Potter of Manotick also Mrs. Robt. McConnell of Kemptville.

INKERMAN

The recent warm rains have made the roads worse than has ever been seen by the "oldest inhabitants."

Dr. Lorne Higginson returned to Kingston after his flu patients had well recovered. No new cases are on the list but Mr. D. D. Irvine our popular C. P. R. Agent who was in Winchester last week and was taken with chills and had to be rushed home. He is improving.

Mrs. Silas Baldwin of this village was pained to receive news that her son Mr. J. Harold Robinson died in France the 7th, of Oct. last. He was wounded on the 12th. He was anxious to enlist in the beginning of the war but went to France later reaching there in Feb. last. In May he went to the front. He enlisted from Prince Arthur where he was previously married. He has a brother in Eskine Saak. Mrs. Baldwin and family have the sincere sympathy of the community in their bereavement.

Mrs. Alex Barkley returned home on Friday after a months visit with Mrs. Morrison at Hubert.

Services were resumed in the Methodist church here last Sunday, quite a number came out for the evening and all danger of the epidemic seems now passed. The schools also were opened on Monday.

A son was born last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Guy of Vancamp, and a little daughter at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Brown Inkerman. This is good news in patriotic families in war time.

Halloween passed over with some noise and some noise and some damage. Wagons were left in the street until late and then put into the river causing some trouble to those who had to go after them.

"I know exactly what is the matter with you, Jack. You have lost confidence."

"YOU were getting along fine until you had that nervous breakdown, but since then you have been worried and anxious."

"Now you have got discouraged and down-hearted, and it is no wonder you cannot make sales."

"The salesman must have lots of energy and vigor as well as confidence in himself and what he has to sell."

"But you cannot have confidence in anything so long as your nerves are weak and you spend the nights worrying instead of getting good, refreshing sleep."

"Take my advice, boy, and go straight to the drug store and get half a dozen boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Then make up your mind that while you are using this you will get out into the fresh air all you can and forget to worry."

"Now, you may feel pessimistic after all the treatments you have been taking, but I know what I am talking about."

"My nerves were in a worse condition than yours ever were. I could scarcely get a wink of sleep, and did not care whether I got anything to eat or not."

"Besides, I got so irritable and down-hearted that nothing seemed to go right."

"The experience that I had enables me to sympathize with you now, and also to say that I am certain that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will help you."

"It is entirely different to most medicines used for the nerves, because instead of merely stimulating the tired nerves to over-exertion, it nourishes them back to health and vigor."

"Now, Jack, you must give the Nerve Food a trial, and I know you will consider me your best friend for telling you about it."

Here is an interesting letter from another business man who had a similar experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food:

Mr. W. J. Wilson, Grocer, Perth, Ont., writes: "In fitting up this building for a grocery business I worked very hard, and after putting in my stock I continued plugging away, good and hard, too. I commenced to feel myself going down—my weight went from 180 pounds down to 154 pounds. My appetite began to fail, and, of course, upon retiring I could not get a good night's rest. Sometimes after going to sleep my nerves would twitch, and I would wake up with a start, and then lie awake for hours. I remembered having used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food before, so I started in again, and took a good treatment, using about half a dozen boxes. I soon felt my appetite returning, I could sleep well, and commenced gaining in weight, until I felt like a new man. From the benefits I have received from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I cannot speak too highly of it."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, 6 for $2.75, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Look for the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author, on the box you buy.

ter them. The steps of one citizen's house were demolished, with cost of course to the one who has to replace them. Two little dogs were dipped into paint much to their misery. The bell on the school house was rung while the out house were tipped over and one broken considerably. This is not fun but rowdiness, and some stronger than mere prank-players must have been in the game. A little fun now and then is relished by the best of men but when it comes to loss of property it should be properly punished.

METCALFE.

Miss Gerlie Bouck of Morewood spent the last few weeks visiting friends here.

The schools and churches have been closed by the Health Board for the past month. It is expected the ban will soon be lifted.

Mrs. Pecorde is laid up with an attack of influenza.

Dr. Brown has been confined to his bed last week.

Mrs. Goodwillie received word last week that her only child Corporal Charles was killed in action in France on Oct. 1st. He had been on active service for three years and never was wounded. He had received a military medal for brave and distinguished service. The sympathy of all goes out to the sorrowing.

Mrs. Mullin is visiting relatives in Ottawa.

Messrs J. E. Whiteside, S. S. Latimer L. Siguin, R. McKeown and J. Albert left the first of last week for their annual Deer Hunt at Canonso.

Mrs. S. P. Latimer is convalescing from her recent illness.

Messrs Fred T. Latimer received word last week of the death of his oldest sister Mrs. Bell of influenza. Mrs. Bell has a resident of Illinois U. S.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Waddell of Ottawa, visited the former's parents here last week.

Mr. Harry Craig has purchased Mr. Charlie Stanleys farm here while Mr. Charlie Stanley has purchased Mr. L. Stanleys farm here.

Some Potatoes

R. J. Rimmer of Brower near Cochran grew a remarkable crop of potatoes this summer. One and a half bags yielded ten bags; the ground planted was not over a quarter of an acre. The potatoes were planted the 24th of May, and dug the end of September. The vines grew to a height of two feet, and up to the time of digging they were green. Mr. Rimmer says he did not plow or dig the land, only planted the potatoes in holes. Each hill yielded on an average of 25 potatoes; a few yielded 30. The potatoes grew in the bush, with absolutely no clearance. They are a good size.

Barton and Theodore, aged 36 and 33 years respectively, sons of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Frost, Smiths Falls died on Monday within six hours of each other, both victims of the flu.
