The Morrisburg Leader

LXXXV, NO. 42. MORRISBURG, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 17th, 1947. $2.00 PER YEAR; SINGLE COPIES 5c

Donald S. Becksted To Head Junior Puck Chasers

Junior hockeyists and several citizens interested in junior hockey met in the Forester's Hall under the chairmanship of Lee Deeks, the last season's president. Mr. Deeks was retained in office, but as secretary-treasurer rather than president, which latter office is now filled by Donald S. Becksted. Leslie Presley was chosen as vice president and Harold Epps as coach.

Forming the exectuive committee are Leo Fraser, B. R. Lynch, Bert Casselman, Ed Cornell, Rev. F. L. Howald, Ross Epps. A canvassing committee has also been named.

In what league of the district the club is to enter a team is not yet known. The feeling is fairly strong that only bona fide residents should have a place among the players; that importations should cease.

There is a probability that Morrisburg will also be represented by an intermediate team during the forthcoming season. Harry Tindal is here and in a mood for organization.

Mr. Harold Epps, the new coach of the junior club, has had 24 years of hockey experience. He played for Peterboro in the senior OHA, for the Canadian General Electric team in the Peterboro City League, for Sherbrooke in the Quebec Senior League, and is now set to give Morrisburg the best junior hockey team in the district, and one of the best seen here in years. Mr. Epps has a meeting scheduled for Monday October 20th at 8 o'clock in the Forester's Hall, Barry Block, and all junior players and persons interested in junior hockey are asked to attend.

Ed Note: The above is not an original composition by yours truly. It is published by request.

Caister-Casselman

Heart of France asters and tall lighted tapers decorated St. John's Lutheran Church, Riverside on Saturday, October 11th, for the marriage of Ruth Myrtle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Casselman, Morrisburg Ontario, to Cecil Harold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Caister, Portage la Prairie, Manitoba. Rev. F. L. Howald officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mr. Ralph Casselman was organist and Miss Aileen Casselman, sang during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a street length gown of pigeon grey crepe, grey accessories and long aqua gloves. She carried her aunt's ivory Service Book with a shower of ivory chrysanthemums and wore a silver locket, the gift of the groom, with matching silver jewellery. Miss Mary Casselman, maid of honour for her sister, wore an ice-bluue dressmaker suit, with black accessories and gold jewellery. Her corsage was talisman roses. Little Daphne Casselman, 3-year-old sister of the bride, as flower girl, wore pink silk organza frock, with smocked bodice, matching hair bow and carried a small white basket of ivory chrysanthemums and fern. The groom was attended by Mr. Neale Casselman the bride's brother.

A reception for the immediate families was held at the home of the bride's parents Mrs. Casselman, mother of the bride received the guests. She wore a black crepe dress, off-the-face black hat. American Beauty corsage and matching gloves. Mrs. Caister, mother of the groom, who assisted, wore a brown crepe, two-piece dress, brown hat and accessories, and a corsage of American Beauty roses.

For going away, the bride wore a loganberry red wool suit with black topcoat and matching accessories.

After a short honeymoon in Ottawa the young couple will live in Cardinal Ontario.

NEWLYWEDS HONOURED

A large number of friends gathered in the Robert Hall, Williamsburg, on Friday evening of last week at a reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Parker Locke (nee Elizabeth Lenonx) on the occasion of their recent marriage. During the evening's program of dancing with music furnished by Slim and His Golden Bar Rangers orchestra, time was taken off to make a presentation to the newly wed pair. Gerald Norval read an address expressing the congratulations and best wishes of all for their future happiness and at the same time the presentation of beautiful pieces of silver and other gifts was made by Raymond McIntosh on behalf of the gathering. Mr. Locke very fittingly replied for himself and Mrs. Locke, thanking all for the gifts, the good wishes and the thoughtfulness which prompted it. Lunch was served and dancing was again continued for a time.

THOS. A. ROBINSON

The death occurred suddeny at Morrisburg this week of Mr. Thomas A. Robertson. Funeral was held on Friday afternoon. Mrs. J. R. Coligan of Morrisburg and Miss Jean Robinson of Vancouver are daughters. Fuller obituary in next issue.

Miss Mary E. Barkley

With many relatives and friends in attendance at the funeral of the late Miss Mary Elizabeth Barkley, who came to pay their final tribute of respect to the memory of an aged and highly esteemed resident of Williamsburg, the funeral was held on Monday afternoon from her late residence to St. Peter's Lutheran Church, Williamsburg. The service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. George Innes, who, in his discourse, paid warm trib ute to the memory of Miss Barkley. He preached from the text part of James, 4 : 14. "For what is your life"

Miss Barkley passed away at her home, the home of her nephew, Roy E. Barkley on Saturday forenoon in her 85th year. She had been in poor health for the past two years, but despite her advanced age, she had been about in her home until about three weeks ago, when she became confined to her bed, and passed away on Saturday.

She was born on November 20th, 1862, at the farm homestead where she died in the Sixth Concession of Williamsburg, and had spent her entire life there. She was the oldest daughter of Luther Martin Barkley and his wife, Catherine McIntosh, pioneers of that district. Of an original family of five, three boys and two girls, Miss Barkley has one brother living. Of a retired disposition, Miss Barkley led a quiet life, wholly devoted t oher home. Held in high esteem in the community during her life, she had a wide circle of friends, who learned wtih regret of her death.

Miss Barkley is survived by one brother, Luther C. Barkley of Williamsburg and a large number of nephews and nieces are also left to mourn.

During the service the church choir led in the singing of the hymn "O God Our Help in Ages Past", "When Our Heads are Bowed with Woe" and "Forever With the Lord" with Miss Ethel Gordier at the organ.

The pall bearers were Frank Whitteker, Donald Hess, Henry Barkley, Arthur Baker, Ernie Shannette and Arthur Loucks.

Interment was in the family plot in Williamsburg cemetery.

Many beautiful floral tributes were received testifying to the high esteem in which Miss Barkley was held and the regret felt at her passing.

Among friends from a distance attending the funeral were Mr. Arza McIntosh of Toronto, his sons, Geo McIntosh of Humberston, Ont., and Sheldon of Stirling; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Barkley of South Mountain; Mr. and Mrs. Preston McIntosh and Mr. and Mrs. Walter McIntosh, all of Winchester Springs and Mrs. Lyla Hess of Montreal.

MRS. WILLIAM FETTERLY

The death occurred on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Sam Casselman, of a highly respected resident of Morrisburg, in the person of Alice Rosanna Froats, beloved wife of the late William Fetterly, in her 89th year. The funeral service was held from the home of Mrs. Casselman to St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Morrisburg on Thursday afternoon with interment in St. John's cemetery.

Fuller obituary in next issue.

Mrs. Annie Weaver

Not in the best of health for some time, but in a more serious condition during the past six weeks, Mrs. Annie Weaver, widow of the late Thomas A. Weaver passed away at her farm home near Williamsburg where she had lived since her marriage to Mr. Weaver, on November 20th, 1890. Her death caused sincere regret to many friends throughout the community. Her husband predeceased her on December 25th, 1928. Mrs. Weaver was formerly Miss Annie E. Dunham, born at Port Emsley on March 8th, 1868, a daughter of the late Hamilton and Ann Dunuham. Mrs. Weaver was held in high regard by all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance.

Deepest sympathy is extended to her family who are left to mourn—five sons and two daughters: Mansell, Fred and Miss Etta Weaver at home; Alva and Ray Weaver of Toronto; Rev. J. H. Weaver of Cornwall; Mrs. Arthur Street (Evah) of Belleville and thirteen grandchildren.

The funeral service was conducted at her residence on Saturday at 2 p.m. October 11th, by Rev. James A. Bain, assisted by Rev. W. R. Schanehorn and Rev. H. Keilty. The hymns used during the service were "Abide With Me" and Rock of Ages". Mrs. Edgar Burkholder rendered a solo "Will the Circle be Unbroken".

Interment was in the family plot in Williamsburg cemetery.

The pall bearers were Edwin McIntosh, Aden McIntosh, Ora McIntosh, Irwin McKenzie, Harry Garlough, Howard Tupper. Many relatives and friends and neighbours attended the funeral to pay their final tribute of respect and the numerous beautiful floral tributes placed about the casket reflected the high esteem in which Mrs. Weaver was held. The family received many messages of sympathy.

BAKER—CASSELMAN

A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the Presbyterian Manse, Prescott on September 27th at 4 p.m. when Rev. Hyslop united in marriage. Hazel Luella June, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Casselman, to William Earl Baker, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baker, Morrisburg.

The bride looked charming in a street length dress of powder blue rayon crepe with black accessories. She was attended by Mrs. Lorne Millward, sister of the groom, and Mr. Lorne Millward was groomsman.

After a dainty lunch was served by Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Duval, the happy couple left on a motor trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls. On their return they will reside at Mariatown.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

The Inkerman Rockets Junior Hockey team are holding their first practice of the season at the Ottawa Auditorium tonight (Friday). Mr. L. Laporte, coach and manager of the Rockets invites any district player who is eligible for junior hockey to get in touch with him prior to the opening of the season.

The statue of Our Lady of Fatima, which is being flown from Portugal to New York and thence conveyed by motorcade to Canada, will enter this country at Prescott and is to visit Prescott, Maitland and Brockville in the course of its tour of Canada and the United States. The statue will be crowned with a golden crown at the Basilica in Ottawa by His Grace Archbishop Vachon. The tour of the Americas is expected to last for several years.

A Chicken Supper will be served at 7.00 p.m., Friday, October 24 in the Dundela United Church Hall by the congregations of the Matilda So. charge. Following the dinner a fine musical programme will be presented.

SHORT STORY

Blind Date

By FERN AUBLE

"Rod, dear," Mary Trent paused at the foot of the stairs as the inevitable bang of the front door announced the unmistakable arrival of her 17-year old son.

She turned and came toward him, a surge of pride welling up as it invariably did when she looked at her tall son. The tight, black cap of curls with which he was everlastingly waging battle, was rumpled with the fingers of the brisk wind and his black eyes danced with mischief as he slid to a stop before his mother.

"Hi-ya Toots!" He grinned engagingly and threw an arm around her shoulders, giving her a quick kiss.

"'Tis just me effervescent spirits, ma'am."

"Oh, Red," she said laughing in spite of herself, "you're impossible." ..He struck a pose and sighed heavily. "'Tis just me effervescent spirits, ma'am." ..... ..... ...

Rod followed his mother into the living room, where he sprawled down into a chair, his long legs stretched out before him.

She looked at him speculatively, wondering just how to broach the subject uppermost in her mind right now.

She plunged in. "Rod, dear, your father wants you to ask Mr. Billings' daughter to the Festival Dance."

Rod looked at her unbelievingly and then bolted upright, indignation in every line of his lanky frame.

"What!" he exploded, "That drip!"

"You haven't asked anyone else yet, have you?" his mother asked.

"N-not exactly, but I thought I'd drag Elly. Do I have to, Mom?"

"No, son, you don't have to, but it would be a very friendly gesture. After all, the Billings are fairly new here and Anna Marie probably hasn't made many new friends."

"That I can believe," he muttered darkly, a mental vision of his father's boss in his mind's eye.

He turned to his mother now, despair darkening his face. "Did Dad tell Mr. Billings that I'd take her?"

"I'm afraid he did, Rod. I'm sorry, son, but after all, you haven't asked anyone else and your father would be pleased."

"Nuts!" He shoved his hands deep in his pockets and kicked at the rug disconsolately. "Oh, all right, she's a creep, but tell Dad I'll give my all for the family."

The next three weeks sped by at an alarming rate. Rod, having called Anna Marie under pressure, reflected gloomily as he dressed for the dance.

A half hour later, he was ringing the Billings' doorbell. The door opened and a sweet-faced woman was smiling at him.

"Oh, you must be Rod," she said, opening the door wide. "Come in, won't you? Anna Marie will be down in just a minute."

Rod stepped inside and stood nervously waiting for Anna Marie to come down. He looked up quickly as a faint sound reached him. He literally stopped breathing as he beheld the vision of loveliness descending the steps.

Her skin was as smooth and creamy white as the petals of a newly-opened magnolia. Her hair, caught up in a soft cluster of curls, was like a sheaf of sunbeams caught and held by the gardenias he had sent her, under pressure from his mother. Her blue eyes were like cornflowers laughing at the dazed look on his face.

.."Jeepers! a dream-puss, no less,' Rod breathed. And then, "Ready for the ratrace, beautiful?"

The black lashes flew up and a smile curved the lovely, softly pink mouth.

"Natch," was the retort and, to herself, Anna Marie added, "Glamorpuss."

CHRONICLES OF GINGER FARM

By Gwendoline P Clarke

Seems to me that we middle-agers have got to hand it to the younger generation—they do know how to produce and raise beautifu' babies! If you oubt my world think of the new babies that you know; or of the one-to-three year olds, look at them on the street, and admit it would be hard to imagine healthier or better cared for babies in any generation.

If you agree with me that far then can you offer any explanation? I have thought about it a lot and wondered—wondered because many of us have been in the habit of deploring the freedom of our younger folk, predicting terrible calamities to posterity as a result of the late hours that are more or less habitual with the younger generation; of the running around to heaven knows where for the sake of a dance or a show. Yes, and the drinkink that we have heard about, and the smoking we have seen, and the ever present promiscuity—it all adds up to something we have been sure would produce dire results. With that in mind and by all the laws of reasoning present day babies should be stunted, weakly, aneamic. As you know they are anything but.

Why aren't they—what is the answer?

No doubt you will have your theory just as I have mine. It may be right or it may be wrong. For what it is worth, I think the explanation lies in the matter-of-fact attitude of our young married folk. They are realists. They discuss freely what used to be strickly hush-hush a generation ago. They know the answers. They know what's what and where they are going. After marriage they seem to grow up and when the young wife realises a baby may be on the way she consults her doctor as a matter of course; puts herself in his care, has regular examinations and thus assures the baby the best in prenatal care. There is no false modesty about the young parents-to-be; they lead a normal social life as they know it. Having a baby is just something they take in their stride, at the same time they do seem to get the idea that parentage brings with it responsibility—and in the majority of cases the young folk measure up to that responsibility. Of course there do seem to be more grandmas around these days from what there used to be—and grandmas certainly have their place in the scheme of things and come in very handy at times.

Back in the early days of the war do you remember how horrified we were at the number of medically unfit among the young men who were called up? Why was it? The depression may have had something to do with it but it could be that the mothers of those boys when there babies were born were less enlightened and more prudish than the mothers of today. Their way of living was certainly more temperate; they were definitely more the stay-at-home type—but they had inhibitions which sometimes resulted in a reluctance to consult a doctor at the right ime. Medical science has made tremendous strides but the human factor remains of the utmost importance. The first move is still up to the patient. The modern moher apparently realises this better than her mother and grandmother, consults her doctor early and better babies are a direct result. Maybe in that way the swift moving tempo of our young folk is counter-balanced. Mother Nature usually has a way of evening up the score or the human race, in its ignorance, would have died out long ago.

Yes, there are advantages and disadvantages to almost everything and that applies to more than family affairs. Right now it applies specifically to highway construction. The Department is building a new highway past our farm—and we have reason to know. The work has been going on for some time but further up the line so I thought I would save my comments until the evidence was nearer home. The road is being widened to the width of a three-lane highway by taking seventeen feet off farmland either side of the road. Up until now I don't think any of us realised the work that building a highway involves.

Along this road there are bulldozers, skrapers, graders, tractors, rollers and I don't know know how many dump trucks working on a four-mile stretch of road. Men are hard at it twelve hours a day—including our son Bob. Hills are being levelled, hollows filled in; trees that have taken years to grow toppled over by a few shoves from the bulldozer. On one farm two steam shovels are loading trucks with top soil from the land. Culverts and bridges are being rebuilt; hydro and telephone poles moved back; mail boxes propped up anywhere at all. At night it is quite a sight— there are lights everywhere. It is hard to know sometimes whether things are coming or going as the big machines have headlamps fore and aft the red and green lights on the trucks weaving their way in and out. You will probably hear more about this next week.

Sour Milk Substitute

What do you do when the recipe calls for sour milk and there is none at hand?

Home economists suggest making up substitute by adding acid in the form of lemon juice or vinegar to "sweet" milk. The usual rule is: Add one tablespoon of lemon juice or vinegar to one cup of milk. Stir and let stand about half an hour. Then use as sour milk in biscuits, cornbread, brown bread, cake or other baked products.

... TABLE TALKS ...

On "Regular" List

Here are two timely recipes that you will add to your "regular" list if you try them once. The kidney stew with cereal dumplings makes an ideal dish when steaks and chops are unobtainable. Made with 40% bran flakes they have a flavor well worth remembering.

As for the souffle, well, it turns a simple dinner into a feast. It's a favorite you will serve proudly—easy to prepare yet tasty and full of good, important food values.

Kidney Stew with Cereal Dumplings

1 pound beef, veal, lamb, or pork kidneys
2 tablespoons butter or other fat
4 tablespoons flour
2 cups water
⅛ cup minced onions
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 recipe Cereal Dumplings

Wash kidneys thoroughly. Split in halves lengthwise and remove fat and tubes. Soak in cold salted water ½ to 2 hours; rinse, drain, and dry thoroughly. If kidneys are old or large, cover with cold water, bring slowly to a boil, and drain. Cut kidneys in ¼-inch slices.

Sauté kidney slices in fat 3 minutes. Add flour and cook 3 minutes longer, stirring constantly. Add water, onions, and seasonings and bring to simmering point. Add Cereal Dumplings. Cover and simmer 15 minutes. Serve immediately. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

Cereal Dumplings

½ cup milk
1 tablespoon shortening
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
2½ cups 40% bran flakes, finely crushed
1 tablespoon minced onion

Scald milk and add shortening. Remove from fire. Add salt, pepper, and egg, mixing well. Add flakes and onion, and mix thoroughly. Shape into 1-inch balls. Drop dumplings into simmering Kidney Stew, cover and simmer 15 minutes. Makes 15 dumplings.

Grape-Nuts Flakes Souffle

2 tablespoons butter or other fat
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
3 egg yolks, slightly beaten
¾ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
3 egg whites, stiffly beaten
1 cup Grape-Nuts Flakes

Melt butter in saucepan. Add flour and stir to a smooth paste. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly, and continue cooking and stirring until thickened. Cool slightly; add egg yolks, salt, and pepper and blend. Fold in egg whites and Grape-Nuts Flakes. Turn into greased shallow baking dish. Place in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 40 minutes, or until firm. Serve immediately with cheese, tomato, celery, mushroom, or onion sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Take Spots Out With Cornstarch

Grandmother turned to her pantry shelf in many minor household emergencies and we can do so similarly today. So say textile chemists.

First of all, there's cornstarch and cornmeal. They are exellent for absorbing liquids spilled on rugs, upholstery, or mattresses, when it is not feasible to wash or soak the damaged article. Pour the cornstarch or cornmeal over the stain immediately to keep the liquid from soaking in and spreading. Other spot removers may be used afterwards, if necessary, to take out any remaining traces of stain.

Food and some other stains on upholstery, mattresses and blankets often yield to a thick paste of cornstarch and water. Just let it dry on, then brush off, repeating the process until the spot disappears. A similar paste of cornstarch and cleaning fluid is helpful in removing grease spots, soot, or smoke. Treat soot or smoke marks lightly, shaking on the cornstarch, and then brushing soot and starch off together.

If it's an acid stain that you have to deal with, which may discolor or damage a fabric, treat it promptly with baking soda. This should act as a neutralizer preventing stain damage.

Brains!

The proud father was talking about the intelligence of his son.

"You know, dear," he told his wife, "I think he must have got his brains from me."

"He certainly must have done," retorted his wife. "I've still got mine."

"Sorry, no—he's busy in the garden."

Resourceful Girl Snatches Drowning Boy From Rapids

WINS DOW AWARD

GISÈLE CRÊTE OF MONTREAL

shows coolness and courage in gallant rescue

The waterfall near St. Canut, Que., drops approximately 15 feet and then forms swirling rapids which run into the North River. The little 5-year-old boy had been sitting on a rock part way up the falls and somehow had slipped into the churning waters . . . to be carried downstream immediately by the current.

SEARCH PROVES FRUITLESS

Several men who had been bathing above the dam rushed down to the rapids and organized a search. Expecting to find that the youngster had been hurt on the rocks, they combed the bottom — but with no results.

CHILD CARRIED 1500 FEET

Miraculously, the boy had been carried far downstream without being injured . . . and had managed to grasp a branch as he was being swept by. Gisèle Crête heard his anguished cries from her home and quickly set out in a boat. After rowing about 200 feet, calling out as she rowed for him to hold tight, Gisèle dove into the water and grabbed the boy by the arm just as he was letting go, exhausted and dizzy. With difficulty she finally succeeded in lifting him into the boat . . . then climbed in herself and rowed to shore.

For her quick, brave actions and for her coolness and presence of mind, we are proud to honour 15-year-old Gisèle Crête of Montreal, Que., through the presentation of The Dow Award.

A few yards from the frantic youngster, Gisèle leaped from her boat and swam to the rescue. She found him almost exhausted, clinging to a branch.

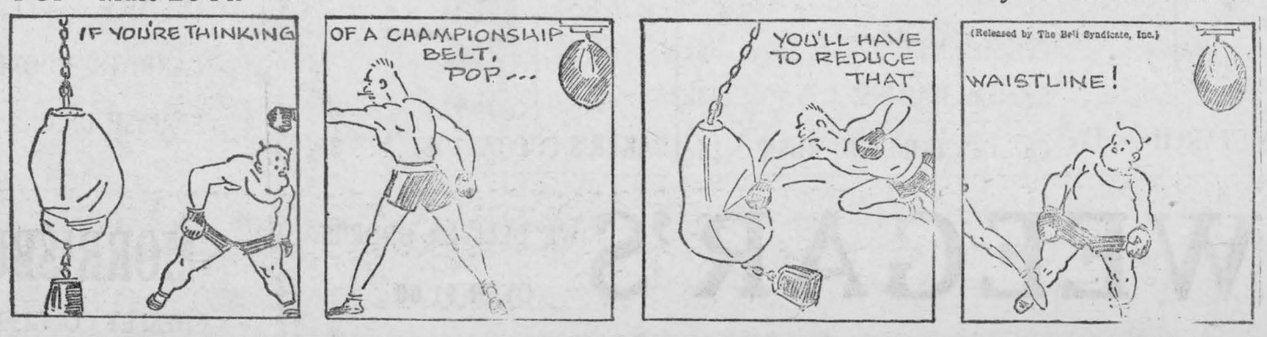

It was no easy task for the 15-year-old girl to drag the boy through the water . . . lift him up into the boat . . . and then climb in herself.

Vince Lunny, columnist and feature writer of the Montreal Standard, in a recent issue, blames the radio for crimes and atrocities committed by the youth of our country. He mentioned the two young men connected with a bank robbery at Pickering with whom we had the pleasure (?) of riding to court, who were sentenced to seven years in Kingston Pen. Mr. Lunny failed to mention that every daily newspaper in the country splashes its front page with the most gruesome stories and pictures it can find and this too, may give the younger set some of the hair-raising ideas they get. However, Mr. Lunny is a member of the Fourth Estate and naturally he has his limitations in his remarks.

Free T-B Tests Great Stuff

Owing to the fact that many towns and villages throughout Ontario will receive the free T-B tests campaign that is currently on the go, we are asking for the co-operation of everyone—especially the teen-agers—to make these campaigns a success. Most of the adults realize how important this free check-up is; but some of the kids, thinking they are in perfect health, just don't bother. This test may be a guarantee that you will have a future—be sure you heed the call when it comes.

Lucky Little Ladies, You!

Two lucky little girls in the news recently were Marjorie Norman of Erindale and Judy Schopf of Owen Sound. Marjorie, who is 15, won the gate prize of a beautiful pony at the Cooksville fall fair a few weeks ago. She will call him Jo-Jo and says that she has wanted a pony of her own since she was a little girl. Judy defeated all contestants in a beauty contest to win the title "Miss Owen Sound". This event was held at the annual fall fair too. Runners up were Owen Sound girls, Jackie Ruck and Doreen Bye. All these girls in their teens are well known in their respective communities and their popnlarity will no doubt leap to greater heights with the recent awards they have won.

Good Listening

Now that fall is well on the way, all the good winter programmes are back on the air. In case you have forgotten, you will catch Phil Harris Sundays at 7.30, Charlie McCarthy at 8, Lux, Monday's at 9; Bob Hope and Red Skelton on Tuesday nights; Bing Crosby on Wednesday and Al Jolson, Wayne and Shuster and Abbot and Costello on Thursdays. Other big-time radio shows will no doubt have made their appearance by now, so see your local paper.

TEEN-TOWN REPORTERS

Parry Sound—Audrey Harris—We have a Friday-Nite Club dance weekly and the majority of the Hi crowd attends. Skating, skiing and sleighing parties are planned for the winter. We had a school track and field meet in late September. The school was divided into four houses, each house with an executive, colours, cheers and cheer leaders. The idea of the house system is to increase competetion and also to make for good sportsmanship. Marg Howe and George Ryder were senior champions and Isobel Makins and Cal Nichols won the intermediate cups, while Betty Sheridan and Jim Darlington carried away junior honours.

Rydal Bank—Gail Martens and Isabel McLeod—We have been appointed correspondents to Teen-Town Topics and will send in reports. We are both students of Bruce Mines Continuation School and are interested in the activities of teen-agers in the district.

Runnymede, "Village Club" — Velma Davis — This is the third year of operation for the Village Club. Last week we held a dance and accomodated 350 people, while dozens were turned away. We are making plans for a larger building. Runnymede Dramatic Society also has big plans. They recently held a social, when the student body enjoyed several plays that were student acted and student directed.

Thanks a Lot, Gang

Many thanks to all you kids out there who have been appointed as correspondents for your town for this column. The letters are starting to roll in and we are trying to answer them all as soon as possible. If we do not answer your requests for a few days after receiving same, please be patient and, in the meantime, send along any news you can think of that would be of interest to teen-age readers.

He Caught It

Puffing and blowing, the cadet just managed to jump into a carriage as the train left the station.

The middle-aged man in the corner eyed him with scorn.

"When I was your age, my lad," he said, "I could run a half mile catch a train by the skin of my teeth, and yet be fresh as a daisy."

"Yes, sir," gasped the young fellow, "but I missed this one at the last station."

Sports – And One Thing or Another

By FRANK MANN HARRIS

("A Sixbit Critic")

The other day a friend, who is not too athletically-minded, asked us why it is that sports stuff coming over the air sounds, as a rule, rather more sickening than matter appearing in print regarding the same subject. As one who has been guilty of a considerable amount of material that has been used in both these forms, the only honest reply we could make was that the reason is exactly the same as the one for the black cows eating more than the white ones—there were far more of them.

What our friend was mainly referring to was the broadcasts of the last World's Series. So we tried to explain to him that the quantity of wordage those slaves of the microphone had to turn out would, if printed, probably fill a whole newspaper. Such being the case, it is surely only natural that the chaff would outbulk the grain by a considerable margin—a far greater margin than if they could boil their matter down to a column or so.

It seems that every sports broadcaster—and we do not know of a single exception—is gripped with a secret fear. He fears that if he leaves even one split-second of silence, all his listeners are liable to take a runout powder on him. And as we have said before, he also appears to be mortally afraid of coming right out and saying that a contest is downright lousy——even if everybody knows it is—but seems to feel it his duty to try and make you feel that you are missing the thrill of your life by not being present.

Why these things should be you will have to ask somebody a lot older—or anyway wiser—than we are. Personally we thought that the World's Series artists did a pretty fair job, only slipping to any painful extent in their incense-spreading at the feet of High-Commissioner Chandler for his "master-mind" innovation of placing the couple of spare umpires down on the foul lines, instead of leaving them on the bench or in the bull pens. However, as the same Mr. Chandler has much to say regarding who is to do the broadcasting, possibly they can be forgiven, human nature being what it is.

Once upon a time there was a Strike Conciliator who got the warring parties together and addressed them something like this. "You both say that you refuse to give in an inch" he said, "so let's imagine that this strike has been going on for six months. You, the workers, have lost a lot of wages and your families are really feeling the pinch. You, the employers, are short a whole heap of sales and profits that are going to be highly embarrassing to account for when your stockholders are expecting their dividends. So now that you have all this firmly in your minds, where do we go from here?" The stirke was settled in half an hour flat; but we had better explain that this is a wholly imaginary case, such peurile tactics being far too direct and simple to be used in the upper reaches of Capital and Labor relations.

Back there a piece we made reference to some of the sports ballyhoo which comes over the air, and hinting that the perpetrators of same—like the dame in the old song—were really more to be pitied than censured too harshly. Now, with the hockey season busting into full bloom, comes the time when the sports writer who is nine-tenths press agent and one tenth reporter is seen at his best—or worst, if you like. And, like his erring brethren of the airwaves, for this type of writer it is also possible to find excuses.

For he, too, has his bucket which must be filled whether or not bossy is brimming over with milk or rapidly running dry. Besides, possibly there are plenty of folk who revel in knowing just what color of eyes their latest hockey hero possesses, and what tinge of talcum he favors; in this business, as in many others, the customer is always right.

So we have hockey stars who look and dress like moving picture leading men, who know exactly which knife to eat their pie with, and who are much more at home at a tea dance than in the back room of Hennessey's Tavern. But make no mistake about it, they still suffer for the cause. That gaudy sports shirt still covers a multitude of abrasions, and plenty of bruises still lurk underneath that flowing, hand-painted cravat.

Still—it must be old age—more and more as we look over the papers we wonder whether we are still on the sports page, or have strayed into the Hollywood jottings by mistake; and more and more we find ourself yearning for the days when lads like Sprague Cleghorn, Bad Joe Hall or Scotty Davidson would spit out a mouthfull of teeth and continue on their way without breaking stride, little caring how their next photograph would look or what effect such marring of their manly beauty would have on the volume of their fan mail. Ho, hum! maybe it's the weather; for even it appears to have gone slightly haywire in this definitely screwball era.

Spray Keeps Fruit Hanging on Trees

Freight trains, jammed to the roof with boxes of B.C. apples are leaving the bustling Okanagan Valley fruit-growing centre every 15 minutes bound for the fresh fruit markets of the Prairies and the United States.

Plagued by a shortage of pickers and fearful that the apples might fall prematurely, many growers for the past few weeks have been experimenting with a hormone spray that may revolutionize the fruit industry.

A. T. Howe, of Vernon, B.C., reputedly the owner of the largest McIntosh orchard in the British Empire, said the spray which is scattered over the trees from a helicopter "apparently is successful" in making apples hang on more tenaciously.

HANDS AT WORK...

LEARNING TO BUILD FURNITURE

ONTARIO'S productive capacity is the measure of her future prosperity. To assure this Province a prominent place in domestic and foreign trade markets, skilled hands are needed. In training schools and ON THE JOB, veterans are being taught how to make furniture—urgently needed for homes that must be built here and abroad. They know that higher wages, job security and better working conditions are within easier reach of those who have mastered individual skills.

Through plans sponsored by the Department of Veterans' Affairs and other agencies, hundreds of veterans have been given basic training in various trades. They will become more proficient with further experience and training ON THE JOB. Taught to use their hands in fashioning wood products and in upholstering and finishing furniture, these craftsmen of the future will have a share in Ontario's progress—an important part to play in her industrial development.

CABINET MAKING

Harold Geddes, 26, of Parry Sound, a veteran of 4 years' service with the Royal Canadian Navy, is shown here sanding the base of a Grandfather's Clock. The quality of workmanship in Canadian Vocational Training Schools is high. Expert instructors check every detail.

Courses in the furniture trade give the student a basic knowledge of period and custom built furniture, wood finishing and upholstering. A thorough study of every type of wood, Canadian and imported, is also included.

Farmers - Attention

WANTED: A number of progressive farmers in Eastern districts who would like to set out a commercial block of Red Raspberries, either for your local trade or for shipping to recommended city dealers. Recent Ontario-Quebec production figures, prices at 40-60c per quart and dealer reports would indicate short supplies everywhere.

To encourage a limited planting of new high yielding patches a well known nursery is sending a special representative of many years' experience in commercial production to personally interview and educate interested farmers in raspberry culture. This should result in higher uunit yields, longer patch life, less hand labour and when translated into dollars at normal prices a relatively high ratio of profit is assured.

Because of the present shortage of good planting material, bookings can only be made for SPRING PLANTING, 1948, limited to one acre.

If genuinely interested in berry growing as a sideline to farming, write Box 457, Campbellford, Ontario, on or before October 31st, giving location of your farm. Our specialist will call later and completely analyze the business, soil requirements and preparation, up-to-date cultural practices, home markets and surplus shipping, cost of planting, estimated yields and profits per acre. Late replies cannot be covered.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER IX: El Cabellero Rojo makes plans to obtain another horse for Juanita. He tells her that there is something she can do to help him which he will explain to her later.

CHAPTER X

He studied her eager face a moment in the light of the candle flame.

"Do you know where the Mission of Corpus Christi is?" he asked her abruptly.

"Si, senor," she said eagerly. "It is at the foot of the range near the Sangre de Cristo Mountains."

"You think you could find it without any trouble—alone?"

"Si, senor," Juanita repeated, puzzled now. "But what—"

Valdez nodded. "Tomorrow, when I go get your horse from your home, I want you to ride there with a package and a message from me. It is most important. But we will rest first."

He gestured her to the pine-bough cot, picked up a blanket from the stump, took El Cielo's reins in the other hand and stalked outside the cave. He heard her call out a remonstrance,, but paid no attention. He had too many times slept with his saddle for a pillow to mind sleeping in the open.

Juanita lay wide awake, thinking. She tried to see through the darkness to where he lay sleeping, but when she could not her thoughts turned in another direction. Every event of the last hours passed through her mind in swift review. There were so many things about El Caballero Rojo that she still could not understand.

And now this! Why should he be interested in the Mission of Corpus Christi—in any mission? He, whom some men called outlaw? Could it be possible—but surely no, no!—that he wanted to find out about it because he was planning to raid it for its plate and ornaments? Did he by any chance covet the treasure said to exist since the days of the Spanish conquistadores? What was the message she was to carry? How would it help him?

Guessing gave her no answers, however, though that last question in her mind was comforting. She could help him—and she scolded herself bitterly for those other vagrant thoughts. She was being disloyal to this man, her one and only amigo. He could do no wrong; he would not. Whatever it was he wanted her to do it would be only to help other people.

It was with that final thought that Juanita at last slept.

When she awoke El Caballero Rojo was making a meal over a little fire he had built in the center of the cave. But he did not look like the Red Cavalier now, for he had discarded his gaudy raiment and wore the charro garb and the black wig in which she had seen him first.

He straightened up from the fire and glanced over toward the pine-bough cot,, and grinned when he saw her dark eyes wide open, looking at him with surprise.

"You see I'm all ready to ride back to the valley and get that horse of yours, just as soon as we have a bite of breakfast. You think anybody's likely to recognize me like this?"

"No, senor," Juanita said softly. "But—".

Then swiftly she arose.

"Let me do that, senor!" she exclaimed. "It is women's work. Since I have drive you from your bed it is well that I do some little thing for you."

She took the coffee pot from his hands and set to work busily. Watching her, Valdez thought he had never seen anyone so deft and so graceful, even in the tattered sheepherder's clothing she still wore. As the firelight gleamed in the ebon of her hair that hung free, and crimsoned the creamy flesh of her arms and throat, he found himself unconsciously wondering what she would look like in the lovely garments of a girl, garments such as she was born to wear.

As quickly he shoved that thought from him. What was he thinking of? El Caballero Rojo had no business with such thoughts.

Juanita had the breakfast all prepared speedily, and they sat down cross-legged on the cave floor to eat it. While they ate she talked gravely about her father and mother and of the life on their little rancho.

Valdez did not give her confidence for confidence by telling her of his own home and youthful days, but listening to her brought it all before his mind's eye poignantly. His lovely Irish mother, with her hair of spun red gold. His father, who might have been one of the conquistadores brought down to this modern day. The hacienda where the doors had always stood open, where the hand of hospitality was always held out. No man was ever turned away from those doors where heartiness and true welcome were the rule.

Cattlemen, prospectors, lawmen, rurales, even outlaws—they came in droves. And meals and a bed were free for the asking at any hour of the day or night. And it had been from some of the men who had come through those hospitable portals that young Michael Valdez had learned how to shoot, how to use his rope, the craft of the woodsman, and a thousand different things that had stood him in good stead when he had himself become a wanderer. Men whose guns were their only shield against a troublous world had taught him uncanny speed with weapons while he was still in his teens, and though he had always had a natural way with horses, he had learned how to handle the most dangerous outlaw from other men to whom horseflesh was life.

But now that seemed ages ago—in another life. For on that day when the young Michael Valdez had opened the door of his home on his tragedy, he had on the instant left behind his devil-may-care life as a young vaquero and become a man—a man who had a rendezvous with destiny.

So deep was Michael Valdez in his own musings that for a moment he had forgotten Juanita, had forgotten that he was not alone, as was his custom. He came to himself with a start when he heard her insistent voice, as if she might have asked a question several times and had no answer.

"When I have done for you this thing you wish me to do, senor," she was saying a little plaintively, "then you will tell me what more I can do for you? We will ride together, no?"

Glimpsing her eager face, he hadn't the heart to tell her the truth—then.

"There will be much riding for both of us, of course, Juanita," he said gently, and then he gave a start and jumped to his feet. "Madre de Dios!" he exclaimed. "The sun is long up, and I must ride for your horse. I told you it was important that you start for the mission today."

Man Tells Why He Lost His Girl

"DEAR ANNE HIRST: Believe me, this won't happen to me again if I should find another girl! The day my girl gave me the air, she told me why. Months have gone by, and I still think about all my mistakes. She claimed that after going with her for a year, I'd changed. I had.

"She was very much in love with me. I didn't appreciate it. I took it for granted. My thoughtlessness caused it all.

"I never told her how pretty she looked. I never offered those little courtesies, like opening a door for her.I never made definite dates except for weekends. I merely barged in, expecting her to greet me with open arms. I bragged about the sharp girls at the office and how I fooled around with them.

TOLD WHITE LIES

"I told her white lies about things I did, places I went . . . though she always found out. I complained about working too hard and being too tired, but I was never too tired when I was with the boys! I didn't want to be kidded about being in love, so I didn't show the world how fortunate I knew I was to have such a wonderful girl.

"I neglected to show her my love and tenderness . . . I could go on and on, but it was my neglect of the little things which mean so much to a woman that caused our breaking up.

"Women are funny. They compile all these little things and visualize married life with such a man.

"Remember, wise guys, if you are in love with a wonderful girl like I was, don't do as I did. I hope you'll benefit by what I've just written.

BOB S."

If I had launched out on one of my frequent prescriptions on how to lose a girl friend, I couldn't have done better than you did.

You had to be the big shot, didn' you? Taking all, giving nothing—reminding the girl, by sins of omission, how lucky she was that you came to see her at all, and bestowed upon her the great gift of your love! You depended on your charm (ana I expect you have plenty) to carry you through. You never realized that to hold a nice girl you had to deserve her.

Girls don't realize that their sweethearts are usually the product of the training former girls have given them. It isn't hard for a smart girl to judge pretty accurately what kind of girls her boy friend has known. This girl you have lost has set your standards of behavior, now, toward all the others you will ever know. If you profit by it, I predict that when you fall in love again you'll sweep the girl off her feet.

All your life you will be gratefu to this girl who told you why you lost out. She sent you away, and she probably broke her heart doing it

To "M.H.": When this column was started over 20 years ago, my office door was always open to anyone who wished to see me. Those happy days vanished though, on account of the increasing number of letters each year. Now it is not possible to give personal interviews, and it is not often that I can find the time to answer problems by mail.

I regret this far more than my readers can. Write me about what is troubling you, and I'll do my best to help.

Our mistakes can often help others to avoid them. Tell Anne Hirst your story and let her pass it on.Write to her at Box A, room 421, 73 Adelaide Street West, Toronto.

How Can I?

Q. How can I remove white stains from furniture?

A. Dip a cloth in kerosene oil and rub the spot well. Then take another cloth, dip it in alcohol and rub quickly. Too much alcohol will destroy the varnish. Then moisten a third cloth in furniture polish and rub thoroughly.

Q. How can I improve the complexion?

A. Eat plenty of fruit, drink milk, and also drink water freely between meals. Massage with almond oil, or a good face cream, and keep regular habits.

Q. How can I make matches waterproof?

A. By dipping them in melted paraffin. Use the paraffin while very hot.

Q. How can I conceal scratches on the wall paper?

A. By moistening a scrap of the paper which has been saved, and then carefully scrapping off the coloring with a sharp knife. Apply this coloring to the scratch, and when dry it will scarcely be noticeable.

Sunday School Lesson

Creative Power of Faith
Hebrews 11:1-10, 39-40; 12:1-2

GOLDEN TEXT—Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen.
—Hebrews 11:1.

There could be no better definition of faith than that given by the author of the Book of Hebrews. It is "the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen."

As such it is the essence and foundation of all religion. But it is more than that. It underlies, and is the motive power of, all creative activity, if not of all life. The poet, the artist, sees his accomplished work first of all in vision, but without faith the idea, the vision, would never be accomplished. So, also, in life. If we had no faith in a tomorrow, there would be little meaning in life today.

It is here that religious faith finds its true significance and meaning. It is the anchorage for souls, when everything seems to be going wrong.

The Hebrews author expounds the meaning of this sort of faith by its great examples, and these in their very nature are impressive and instructive. They have to do with matters that were difficult and doubtful—journeying into a new, far-off, and unknown land, trusting promises that were as yet far from fulfillment, facing suffering, persecution, and death—all that men, in one way or another, have faced, and will face even in an atomic age. And his story is of those who, through faith, were builders and conquerors.

It is, or ought to be, an inspiring story for today. What the world needs above all else is the faith to overcome disaster, and the faith to go on in spite of peril and difficulty.

This is the place of religion, and the world's need of it. The ancient writer said that without faith it is impossible to please God. And it is God's provision for man's life that without faith he cannot work out his own salvation.

Neuritic? PAINS

Next time you feel those nasty twinges of neuritic pain, it's high time you tried Kruschen. The cause of some neuritic pains can often be traced to incomplete and sluggish elimination. In these cases Kruschen usually helps, because Kruschen's balanced blend of saline minerals bring about a complete and thorough (but gentle) elimination and at the same time supply minerals which are often deficient in the daily diet.

Start with Kruschen today, and continue for a month or so by taking a small dose each morning in your coffee, tea or fruit juice. This plan should soon show happy results in the relief of neuritic pains and an improvement in your general health. At all Druggists: 25c and 75c.

Fairtime Highlights

By Your Ful-O-Pep Reporter

Your Full-O-Pep reporter travelled approximately 2,800 miles during the past week, covering the Fairs at Brussels, Burford, Zurich, Beeton, Caledonia, and Marmora.

The attendance at all the Fairs was well up over previous years and as usual, the livestock champions were, as a general rule, raised on Quaker Ful-O-Pep Feeds. The only complaint received by your reporter in all the many miles travelled last week was that Ful-O-Pep feeds are not in sufficient supply. It is still a little difficult at times to secure all the Ful-O-Pep required. The reason for this is that quality has not been sacrificed for quantity, and as a result, Ful-O-Pep feeds are still the best that money can buy.

At Brussels a concert and dance at the Town Hall climaxed an unusually successful Fair, at which the cattle entries were extremely heavy—more than 200 entries in all.

The Beeton Fair featured a bicycle race for children which drew a great crowd. This was a new event this year and added colour to the exhibition. The Fair Grounds at Beeton were in fine condition. It is a toss-up as to whether the freckle contest or the baby show pleased the proud parents the most.

At Zurich, the School Fair was run in conjunction with the Agricultural Fair, and here Mr. W. S. O'Neill, well-known cattle man and Ful-O-Pep feeder, won prominence with his entry.

The attendance at Burford was well above normal, and all entries were substantially up over preceding years. Jumping and saddle classes drew much favourable comment. A $75.00 prize was awarded for a field crop competition.

Caledonia Fair celebrated its Diamond Jubilee with record crowds—well over 15,000 being in attendance during the three days. This is the only Fair in Haldimand County. Caledonia's newly-formed 40-piece concert band was in attendance and helped create a gay and carefree atmosphere which prevailed throughout the Fair.

At Marmora, the attendance was somewhat less than that of Caledonia, but the holiday spirit was every bit as noticeable and invigorating. Fortunately here, too, the weatherman was kind and a thoroughly successful Fair was held. At Marmora, the men who raise the Champions were once again the men who feed Quaker Ful-O-Pep feeds.

IN MEMORIAM

GEGGIE—In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Mrs Elizabeth Geggie, who passed away October 22nd, 1946.
They say time heals all sorrow,
And helps us to forget.
But time so far has only proved
How much we miss you yet
God gave us strength to fight it
And courage to bear the blow,
But what it meant to lose you
No one will ever know.
Mrs. W. H. Knight & Family.

MILLWARD—In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. John Millward, who passed away October 10th, 1936.
We miss her help and kindly ways,
With her we spent our happiest days;
We miss her when we need a friend,
On her we always could depend.
Not what she had or what she gave,
Just what she was "Our Mother"
—Ever remembered by her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Merch Reid.

GOOD CITIZENSHIP
is a lot of little things

KEEP WELL INFORMED ON TODAY'S NEWS

There is only "one world" and that is your world! It is in your own interests to keep abreast of the daily happenings at home and abroad—today's news. Some events will concern you and affect your everyday life. Only by a better understanding of them will you be able to distinguish between conditions that can and should be changed, and those which can't be changed and must be accepted. In this way, you will be better equipped to help your own community and to practice "Good Citizenship".

You can help this public service effort. Make a note of some of the little things which, in your opinion, contribute to Good Citizenship.

"As clear as if you were here!"

THROUGH THE YEARS, neither time, effort nor expense has been spared to give you clearer, better telephone service. Indeed, today's telephones are actually four times as clear and free from noise as those of not so many years ago.

You get more service, too. We're completing unfilled orders — just as fast as we can get the necessary equipment. And as more telephones are added, it means more people whom you can call—more service, clearer service, and always at the lowest possible cost. Altogether, telephone users today get greater value than ever before.
