Pumper Problem Probed; Purchase Possibility Council Counting Costs and Culling Contracts

Members of council, last night, took another long and close look at the fire pumper problem for the town. At conclusion of the meeting they were very close to a decision to buy a new unit.

Bids have been received from four companies to supply fire equipment. The bids have been scaled to give a range of prices to fit the needs of the municipality and seem more in line with the town's pocketbook. Opinion of council is swinging away from the unit that was first considered as it is felt that too much emphasis can be placed on ultra-high pressures with a corresponding inflation of price for the equipment. A salesman present pointed out under direct questioning that the very high pressure units are not being used to any great extent in the average community.

Council still feels the need for a modern tank unit. The problem at hand would apear to be that of deciding how much the town economy should pay each year for a new unit. With the new range of prices under discussion, the figure is arriving close to the mill and a half odd that appears to be the objective for debenture payments for the next ten years. No concrete figure has been arrived at yet, but some quarters feel the purchase of a modern, powerful unit will show enough difference in revised fire insurance rates to make the purchase of new equipment nearly painless to the ratepayers. Aside from dollars and cents, the added efficiency of a new fire pumper with a 500-gal. tank of water aboard will put Chesterville more nearly on a par with other communities in Eastern Ontario in the matter of fire protection. The unit would be a decided boon to the surrounding farm district. Its use would be paid for by the township on an agreed per fire basis.

Council felt the contracts needed further study. The matter will be discussed soon again, possibly at a special meeting. This reporter left the meeting with the conviction that Chesterville will soon order a new fire truck if the present atmosphere towards its purchase prevails.

Earl Gainer is constructing a service station on the lot north of the Hydro sub-station, on Main North. He approached council asking for help in the installation of tile for his entranceway. Council agreed to help ti the extent of supplying 55 feet of 9-inch tile for the 110-foot drive. Mr. Gainer will lay the tile and add the fill at his own expense.

A representative group of the barbers of the town waited on council to discuss the by-law regulating the closing of their shops which passed on their petition last fall. The gentlemen feel some revisions would be appreciated at this time. Council looked it up in the book and decided to give the whole thing the heaveho by means of a repealing by-law. They pointed out to the petitioners that another set of closing rules can be made at any time upon receipt of the necessary petition. The matter was closed with satisfaction felt on both sides. Upon publication of the repeal, the barbers will go back to the original shop hours they enjoyed in the past.

This meeting saw the receipt of the usual thirteenth bill from HEPC which showed a credit to the hydro commission of $1846.60. The HEPC bills the municipality each month on an estimated rate of power to be used throughout the year and makes adjustment at the beginning of each new year. As in the past, the Chesterville billing allows a good credit to be added to the commission's account.

Daylight Saving Time will begin as usual this spring at midnight on the last Saturday n April. The long days will start on Saturday, April 25, and continue until notice by council in the fall.

The new traffic by-laws have been approved and signs will soon appear declaring certain of the streets 'stop' streets and others, 'through streets,' particularly King. Victoria St. and old Main South in front of Community Hall have been overhauled. Mill will now swing around to stop at Victoria which will be extended to Main South at the new bridge approach.

Spring cleaning is in force, and this morning sees the brooms and shovels busy cleaning up the streets as was ordered last night. Certain of the streets with broken surfaces are to receive immediate attention with asphalt patches.

Reeve Chas. McMillan presided at the April meeting with councillors Lannin, McMillan and Turner present. Councillor Page is still confined to his bed through illness.

District Auxiliaries Well Represented At Hospital Meeting

The Winchester and District Memorial Hospital Auxiliary met in the Town Hall, Winchester, on April 2nd for their regular meeting which was very well attended. Cloverdale and Harmony, Chesterville, Melvins, Morewood, Winchester, Mountain, Inkerman and Kenmore units all answered roll call.

These unit auxiliaries are all active and funds have been realized from all sources. The funds added much to the treasury. Miss N. Elliott, treasurer, informed those present that to the $1763.03 had been added enough to make the amount on hand $2067.30.

Mrs. R. D. Ledgerwood summed up the progress made by the committee in the basic plans for the garden party to be held on the hospital grounds on the afternoon and evening of June 27th. Good plans for entertainment, fish pond, decorations, etc. have been made. Representatives from the auxiliary are to talk over the plans with the hospital Board.

Mrs. B. Mulloy, acting superintendent, in her April report gave a very detailed account of all work and donations at the hospital. There were 165 admissions and 156 discharges, 75 for surgery and 573 for laboratory tests. Donations included hampers of fruit from Miss Wilson and Mr. H. Melvin, a cheque of $50.00 from Russel W.I. to replace linens, a cheque of $100.00 from an appreciative former patient and food from Inkerman and Van Camp units.

The special committee, comprised of the executive and directors and one representative of each unit, will meet at the home of Mrs. F. M. Cass, Chesterville, on the evening of April 23rd to make further arrangements for the garden party.

The meeting came to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

General arrangements for the successful event were under the direction of Mrs. Alf Jarvis and Mrs. D. R. Docksteader.

Each window in the hall was cleverly adorned with a basket containing daffodils, shellflowers, tulips and pussywillows. Designed by Mrs. Graham Durant, the charming decorations also included Easter bunnies, fluffy chicks and baskets of eggs, and the lovely colours of golden yellow and royal purple added to the beauty of the theme of Easter and spring. The lace covered tea table was centred with a silver basket of daffodils, snapdragons and iris flanked with yellow tapers in silver holders, and spring flowers in bud vases were placed on the small tea tables.

Preceding the official opening of the bazaar by the Rev. R. A. Mitchell, a delightful programme was presented in which vocal solos were offered by Ann Casselman and Mrs. F. M. SERIES OF ACCIDENTS

Two accidents occurred at the same place on No. 2 Highway, about 4½ miles west of Morrisburg, about 10.45 a.m. Tuesday, the second one arising from the first. One car ended up on its top in the ditch about four feet deep and four occupants got out unhurt except for a shaking up and minor cuts and bruises to one.

A car driven by Marcel LeClerc, Detroit, Mich., was going west following a car driven by Oliver Gallinger, of Gallingertown. LeClerc attempted to pass and the two cars contacted in the south lane. The Gallinger car crossed back to the north side and turned completely over in the steep ditch. Shortly after, Chesley Somerton, of Laval West, Que., driving west, was struck by a small English car, also going west, and driven by Paul Berube, Montreal.

The LeClerc car escaped with slight damage, while the Gallinger car was damaged to the extent of about $700. Somerton's car also escaped with little injury while the Berube car was damaged to the extent of about $1,000.

Dr. C. R. Marcellus, Iroquois, was called and treated those hurt at a nearby house.

Provincial Police officers from Morrisburg had traffic moving without interruption.

I Give and Bequeath

At Somerset House, just off the Strand in London, all the wills in Britain are stored and there BBC reporter Sylvia Gray heard about one known as the Fur Coat Will. This was made by an indecisive man who left a fur coat to twelve different people altogether, altering his will and adding a codicil every time he changed his vacillating mind. Sylvia Gray heard this from Arthur Parish, a member of the Probate Registry who has made a hobby of collecting extracts from some of the more eccentric wills that come his way. There are plenty of them, including one written on an eggshell, a wartime one inscribed on a soldier's identity disc and another with a bullet through the middle of it. The longest runs to three hundred and sixty-six pages, and the shortest, written on the photograph of a soldier's girl friend, simply states, "All for her". One written during a plague in India was sent to the Registry sealed in a bottle and apparently will, plague and all, are still inside.

Mr. Parish's interest lies particularly in the content of the wills and any peculiar statements that catch his eye are jotted down in a notebook that he has kept for nearly fifty years. One thing he has noticed over this period is the way in which husbands make sure of having the last word by attacking their wives in their wills. One commented that he would have left at least four hundred pounds more had it not been for his extravagant wife, and a really vitriolic father wrote of his two children: "How I hate and detest Charles and Ivy, and I die with the hope that they may both meet an early, violent and unnatural death." It was only fair to contrast with these uncharitable wills the many others that showed the happiness of a family. Sylvia Gray was most amused by the curious bequests that testators made, such as the man who left his friend a pair of boxing gloves and a life saver, and the woman who bequeathed her cat, together with the shopping basket in which he slept.

LIFTING AND LEANING

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

THERE are two kinds of people on earth today,
Just two kinds of people, no more, I say.

Not the good and the bad, for 'tis well understood
The good are half bad and the bad are half good.

Not the rich and the poor, for to count a man's wealth,
You must first know the state of his conscience and health.

No! the two kinds of people on earth I mean
Are the people who lift and the people who lean.

In which class are you? Are you easing the load
Of overtaxed lifters who toil down the road?

Or are you a leaner who lets others bear
Your portion of worry and labour and care?

"Pat, what's this I hear about ye joining up with the Communists? Be ye daft man?"

It's the truth, Mike. The doctor told me I had about 10 days to live and 'tis better one o' thim Communists dies than a good Irishman."

Trooping The Colour

Since Her Majesty Queen Eilizabeth II came to the throne she has had 2 birthdays in a year, her own on April 26 and her official one on June 11, which for her brings a day of very hard work. "It is also a day of toil for about a thousand of her Household Brigade. Together the Queen and her guardsmen have to accomplish the spectacular task of Trooping the Colour," said Peter Lawrence in his BBC talk.

Trooping the Colour is the Army's most important parade of the year. "Everybody has heard of it. Comparatively few have seen it," said Lawrence. Nevertheless it is one of the most colourful and impressive of the many ceremonials for which Britain is justly famous. Only about ten thousand spectators who turn up at the Horse Guards Parade get a good view. Those on the fringe of the crowd have to be satisfied with whatglimpses they can get of the arrival of the royal procession, the sound of the massed bands and, at the end, the departure of the mounted Sovereign's Escort of Household Cavalry, the bands, the long line of scarlet-clad Foot Guards and Her Majesty the Queen herself on horseback, a position she occupies with the greatest elegance and distinction.

Lawrence went on to explain the history and tradition of Trooping the Colour which is an elaborate form of Guard Mounting. Until about seventy years ago Colours used to be carried in battle to mark the location of headquarters and serve as rallying points for the regiments until so many men lost their lives in protecting them that the practice was abandoned. In the sixteenth century the Colour was carried past each man to make sure that he recognised it and knew to which standard to rally. After battle the troops marched off to their billets in nearby towns and the Colour was lodged there too; every man paraded to watch the ensign carry the sbtandard into the building where it was to rest for the night and they knew that if an attack came that house was to be their rallying point. As the Colour often carried details of unit battle honours it was decided in the mid-eighteenth century to add this daily ceremony to guard mounting drill. The music which accompanied it was called a Troop and so Lodging the Colour became Trooping the Colour. "Today," said Lawrence, "most regiments Troop their Colours on regimental birthdays." The Trooping on Horse Guards Parade in the presence of the Sovereign has become the Army's biggest annual showpiece, a ceremony which draws the crowds as few others do, a ceremony, too, which has a better chance of good weather than most outdoor occasions, falling, as it does, at the beginning of June. "In the atomic age it is a link between the living British infantry and those soldiers of a long past, more colourful era," said Lawrence. "Yet it still remains a guard-mounting ceremony." After it is all over, the Queen on horseback leads the parade back to Buckingham Palace and this short ride down the newly leafy Mall is the only occasion during the year on which she actually leads her troops. "At all other times when she is with the Army she is a royal visitor," he said.

At the Palace she takes the salute at the final march past and then some of the guardsmen take over the sentry posts. "It has always seemed curious to me," said Lawrence, "that each day these men receive a password which they never get a chance to use, because the police answer all enquiries. Yet the sentries are not just showmen. They have orders to stop anyone climbing over the Palace walls and to report fire, and if the alarm is given they become operational troops, aiding the police in searching the grounds." The sentries do not carry ammunition but stocks of it are kept handy in the guardroom. Their daily password, so Lawrence revealed, is known only by one civilian and that is the Lord Mayor of London. "This rule," he said, "was made by Charles II, who decided that the Lord Mayor was the only Londoner the Sovereign should trust, and the custom has never been changed."

Lace Makers' Difficulties

The men and women making white lace in Britain may end their day's work looking as black as any coal miner, reported the BBC's industrial correspondent, Bertram Mycock, in a London broadcast. He noticed this when recently visiting Nottingham, one of the famous centres of the British lace-making industry, and found the factorines there trying out an experiment to make the job cleaner. Few machines depend so much upon smoothness and accuracy as those for making lace, and where the cotton loom has one shuttle the lace machine may have fifteen hundred, each running in a narrow groove. These grooves all have to be lubricated and as oil would ruin the lace and clog the machines with fluff, graphite is dusted on to the bobbins. The black powder gets over everything, lace and operatives included, and the twist hand or weaver comes off his shift looking and feeling so dirty that young people are disinclined to follow the trade. The black powder has to be scoured off the lace, and the difficulty is aggravated by the fact that about five per cent of the thread used is nylon, which has the property of charging itself with electricity as it runs through the machinery and so picks up all the dirt and fluff that is flying about. Research on the problem of finding a lubricant that is cleaner than graphite is top priority in Nottingham research laboratories and a new [illegible] preparation is already on trial.

Mycock saw curtain lace being made on huge machines that create a piece of fabric twelve yards wide. A feature of them is the great mass of strings, thousands of them in some cases, that come from the machinery high in the roof and pull the warp threads to make the pattern. Another bit of research is going on there, to find a string that will not tighten in wet weather and throw the whole mechanism out of gear. "They think they've solved that problem, too," said Mycock, who came away from the factory with a healthy respect for the ingenious and painstaking workers of Nottingham.

RETURN OF THE PIRATES

Pirates manning motorized junks and armed with machine guns are transforming international waters near Hong Kong into a latter-day Spanish main. More than 20 pirate ships, which usually pose as harmless fishing boats, recently have been terrorizing small vessels plying between Hong Kong and nearby Portugese Macau, on Communist China's mainland.

Weekly Farm Report For Dundas County

With spring upon us most farmers are making ready for their sbpring duties. Now is the time that all tillage machinery should be checked and necessary repairs made. Also all seed and fertilizer requirements should be carefully checked and orders placed. Reports to date from the Plants Products Division seed testing laboratories indicate an unusually high number of musty and low germnating seed samples. This condition is ni doubt a result of unusual harvest weather last fall. Hence anyone purchasing seed would be well advised to check the germinating power of it. We have been advised that in some areas large amounts of peddling of grass and legume seed is taking place. Farmers would be well advised against the purchase of such seed unless the bags are tagged and clearly marked with grade, etc. Since this peddled seed is likely to be weedy, off-grade material, it may be the means of bringing new weeds to your farm.

Before planting legumes one should be sure that they have been inoculated with the proper culture. This is especially true if you are growing new legumes which you have previously not grown on your farm, such as Ladino, soybeans, birdsfoot trefoil. In any case it is a good idea to inoculate all small seeds of the legume type ti insure a proper stand.

In recent figures issued by the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada, Dundas had a membership of 400 in the parent association. This was the second largest in the province, being only beaten by Middlesex, which is a much larger county and had 444 members. This would seem to indicate that Dundas is the Holstein county of Ontario.

Agricultural events of interest coming in the future include the Ottawa Valley Seed Fair, Perth, on April 8, 9, 10. Annual meeting of the Eastern Ontario Cattle Breeders' Association wil be held at the Kemptville Agricultural School on April 10, with the guest speaker being Dr. J. O. Almquist, head of the dairy cattle research centre, Penn. State College. For the fruitmen the annual meeting of the St. Lawrence Valley Fruit Grower's Association will be held in Morrisburg on April 14th with an interesting programme, including prominent Horticulturists.

SKELETONS REVIVE BELIEF

The sea-serpent myth has received an unexpected rejuvination. Dr. R. A. Stirton, University of California paleontologist, has discovered the skeletons of two of them.

The discovery, however, still leaves existence of the sea beast many years in the past. Scientists call Stirton's finds made in Colombia, South America, in 1946, "cretaceous plesiosaurs." The first word refers to the geological age, the second to the kind of reptile.

Study of the fossils may give scientists a picture of the earth's geography at the time. If ancestrally linked to specimens found in California, the sea serpents would give evidence of the seaway 'twixt Colombia and California. If linked to midwestern finds, they would indicate a seaway up the middle of the continent.

Schools Give Generously To Junior Red Cross

The response to the February appeal for funds on behalf of the Junior Red Cross, Ontario Division, from the Public Schools of Dundas County has this year topped all previous records. The schools contributed a total of $724.07 which exceeds last year's total (the best up to that time), by $72.94. Contributions were received from all but three of the sixty-five schools. For the enrollment of approximately 2,400 pupils, contributions averaged better than thirty cents per pupil. This was a magnificent response to the yearly appeal for funds toward the work of the Junior Red Cross, and teachers and pupils are to be commended for their efforts and generosity in making the appeal such a success. The Junior Red Cross does a great work in assisting handicapped children throught the province. Contributions from the schools enable the Junior Red Cross to carry on its work of mercy from year to year.

PLENTY OF TIME

A house with 600 clocks all keeping time has been opened to the public at Denver, Colorado.

Mr. Orville Hagans has been collecting clocks there for forty years, and he has many curiosities. One is shaped like the Eiffel Tower; another, a large grandfather's clock made in the Black Forest, has a set of dolls which march in and out when the hours are struck.

This house of clocks has all the ingenuities of time-keeping and time-recording, from sundials to precision watches which tell the time to a fifth of a second. Mr. Hagans even has watches in his cufflinks—the smallest, he claims, ever to come out of Switzerland.

Factors That Influence Egg Production

Which is more important to the buyer of baby chicks—environment or heredity? Can the poultryman, looking for a flock of high-producing pullets, safely buy his chicks from the breeder or hatchery claiming the highest production records for his particular strain of birds, without considering the conditions under which those records were made?

He can buy heredity but no purchaser of baby chicks can buy the environment under which the parents of those chicks were kept. Obviously, therefore, it depends largely upon how much of the production claimed by the breeder was brought about by the quality of the environment rather than by breeding as to whether these chicks are a good buy or otherwise.

Poultry breeders have stepped up the egg production of their flocks materially in the past 25 or 30 years. (During the 20 years egg-laying contests were conducted on the Experimental Farms, the average egg production per surviving bird increased from 122.5 eggs in the first contest to 201.7 eggs in the last contest, held in 1938-39). How much of this increased production has been due to breeding—the selection and mating together of high-producing individuals —and how much to improved feeding, housing, and management of the flocks?

An experiment conducted by the Poultry Division, Experimental Farms Services, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, indicates that environment plays a very important part, first in the development of the flock and secondly in the number of eggs that flock is likely to produce in a laying season.

An exchange of hatching eggs of Barred Plymouth Rocks, from the particular strain maintained at each Farm, was made between two of the Branch Experimental Farms and the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa. Each supplied the other with an adequate sample of hatching eggs and in return received a sample from each of the others. At any one farm, therefore, there were three different strains under one environment while each strainn was being raised under three different environments.

Differences between strains in any one environment would be largely due to the heredity factor of that strain, whereas differences for any one strain under the three environments would be due to the effect of environment.

Egg production from time of first egg to September 4, and for the full laying year, egg weight, days to first egg, greatest body weight and mortality, were used as a basis to determine whether environment or heredity had the greater effect.

Conclusions from the experiment indicate:

1. Egg production of the three strains tested to September 4, and for laying year, was influenced by environment to a much greater degree than by heredity.
2. "Days of hatching to first egg" for the three strains was also affected by environment to a very great degree and by heredity only to a limited extent.
3. Body weight at first egg was affected by both environment and heredity to a similar degree.
4. Egg weight and maximum body weight were affected by both factors. Heredity, however, was the more potent factor in governing maximum body weight.

The fact that conditions under which the birds in this experiment were raised would be expected to be more nearly uniform than on three privately owned farms similarly separated in location, emphasizes the importance that improvement of environment can play in increasing egg production.

Since this first test was made, further evidence from two controlled experiments has confirmed the importance of environment.

These results indicate that in using egg production records as a standard for evaluating the relative worth of strains of breeding stock, it is necessary to know: fiirst, that the records of the different strains were made under identical conditions as to housing, feeding and management, such as would be found by intermingling birds of all strains in the same pen; and second, that samples of the birds being tested were truly and adequately representative of each of the strains compared.

The Valuable Muskrat

An Ontario Department of Lands and Forests report reveals the lowly muskrat as the most valuable wild fur-bearing animal from the standpoint of revenue from pelts. Called by the Indians "mussuash," and sometimes known as the "beaver's little brother," the muskrat far outdistances all other wild furbearers in numbers taken and total value of marketed pelts.

Muskrats live in water and build themselves houses which are made with grasses, cattails and rushes matted and woven together, but they use little mud for packing as the beaver must do when building their houses to fill in between the twigs and long sticks. Whereas beaver are strict vegetarians, muskrats eat clams, dead fish and other animal matter in addition to grass and cattail roots. They build little platforms or mounds of grasses near their homes on which they store their food until needed. Muskrats have long, scaly tails bare of fur, not so wide and flat as "big brother beaver's" but not round like a rat's. Though he lives most of his life in or under water, Mr. Muskrat always goes ashore to wash his face.

Muskrats are vicious little animals, not a bit like their docile "big brothers," the beaver. They will fight savagely when surprised out of the water. Many instances have been recorded of muskrats making unprovoked attacks on dogs and even people, sometimes on city streets, in apparently senseless rages that give rise to the conclusion that, like "mad dogs," they may have rabies, but this is seldom the case.

The flesh of muskrats has long been eaten by Indians and by white men as well and found very appetizing, but the "rat" part of its name has probably prevented the general use of muskrat meat as a table delicacy by Canadians.

ANDREW COWAN

Andrew Cowan, the CBC's European representative, has a background of experience that reads like a modern fiction novel. Before graduating with first class honours from the University of Glasgow, he worked in a Calgary steel plant. While in Scotland he spent summers on the river Clyde as a purser of a small steamer and later became part of a government commission making a survey of the Highlands. Following a brief stay in London, he won a Commonwealth Fellowship to study in the United States. He joined the CBC in 1940 and after three years in Canada, was on his way overseas again as a war correspondent. His present job requires him to organize and co-ordinate CBC broadcasts originating in Europe.

Moak-McRae

Rev. J. Honeyman officiated at the ceremony in St. Luke's Church, Finch, when Miss Lois Ida Marion McRae repeated nuptial vows with Walter Moak, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Moak, Newington.

For the two o'clock ceremony, the church was decorated with Easter lilies and ferns.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Mrs. Albert Evans, Newington. Bert Zeran, of Newington, was best man and Clare McRae and Orval Moak were the ushers.

For her wedding day, the bride chose a full-length gown of white nylon net and lace over satin fashioned with an Elizabethan collar. A fingertip veil was arranged beneath a small headdress. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations.

A reception was held at Finch Township Hall after which the bridal pair left on a honeymoon trip to Toronto and Western Ontario.

The bride travelled in a blue ensemble with matching accessories.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Moak will live in Newington.

Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. George Kranch, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Nixon, Mr. and Mrs. Fleming Stacey, Frank Stacey, Eileen Bonnell, Joanne Bonnell, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Turney and Ted Due, all of Ottawa; Alec Chisolm, Mrs. Katie McLeod, Mr. and Mrs. William McLeod, D. A. McLeod, of Dunvegan; Mr. and Mrs. C. Moak, Oshawa; Mr. and Mrs. Clare Dunbar, Toronto; Mrs. MacMontroy, Reggie MacMontroy, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Clatcher, Mr. and Mrs. Syd Provost, Cornwall; Rev. Duncan McRae and Mrs. McRae, of Alexandria.

SAYS ASPIRIN EQUALS WONDER DRUGS IN RHEUMATIC FEVER

In the early stage of treatment at least, the new drugs cortisone and ACTH appear to have no advantage over older drugs like ordinary aspirin in relieving symptoms of rheumatic fever, a Texas doctor states.

Dr. Arild E. Hansen, of Galveston, declared "this rather surprising" finding has been made by a team of American and British researchers in the first full-scale comparative test between newer and older weapons against the malady.

Rheumatic fever, a leading cause of heart didease in children, affects 500,000 children between age 5 and 15 at any given time.

Dr. Hansen said it is still unknown whether the newer drugs, or the older "salicylates", such as aspirin, would prove best in the long run by shortening the course of the disease. Indeed, he said, it has yet to be shown that any of these drugs actually have a direct affect on the disease itself, or its duration.

He indicated that the proven role of all these drugs—new and old—in the treatment of rheumatic fever, is still limited to the relief of symptoms as distinguished from actually curing the ailment.

Relief of symptims would include relieving pain, lowering fever, reducing swellings in joints and eliminating heart "murmurs."

Addressing the annual meeting of the American Academy of General Practice, the University of Texas Medical Branch pediatrician told this story:

At six medical centres in the United States, seven in England and one in Canada, alternate patients were given "salicylates," cortisone or ACTH. They were kept on their respective drug for a period of six weeks and then observed for another three weeks without treatment.

"No consistent difference in effectiveness of these agents was found," said Dr. Hansen. The project was jointly sponsored by the American Heart Association and the British Medical Council.

The Fight Against Tuberculosis

"The lowest tuberculosis death rate in our history" has come to be expected annual comment on statistics concerning tuberculosis in Canada, observes the Canadian Tuberculosis Association. Naturally this sustained success against such a death-dealing disease gives deep satisfaction. It is a satisfaction which is justified—as long as it does not blind the public to the fact that there will still be more than 3,400 deaths from tuberculosis last year, which is more than the toll from all other communicable diseases combined.

It would be unfortunate also if the falling death rate masked the fact that TB keeps at least 30,000 Canadians too ill to work, at any given time, with all the unhappiness, inconvenience and loss of wages accompanying enforced idleness of a year, perhaps two years or even longer. Of these more than 18,000 are in sanatoria during any year. Not only these patients but their families are affected by the length of the illness, for absence and restricted income put a strain on family life.

Early diagnosis, prompt treatment, daring surgery and new drugs have all contributed to the steady decline in the death rate from TB, but despite this, it is the leading cause of death in the 15 to 45 age group. The death rate has halved in the lastt 10 years, but until the decline in the appearance of new cases matches the dropping death rate, it is premature for Canadians to think tuberculosis is beaten.

TO SUPERVISE MEAT INSPECTION

The promotion of F. O. Jones and C. K. Hetherington as Associate Chief Veterinarians in the Health of Animals Division (Meat Inspection), Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, is announced.

Dr. F. O. Jones was previously veterinarian in charge of meat inspection for the Department at the plant of the Pacific Meat Co. Ltd., Vancouver, and Dr. Hetherington held a similar position at the plant of Canada Packers Ltd., Toronto.

Transfer of these two officials to Ottawa is designed to co-ordinate more closely the inspection of packing plants and meat products carried out by regional veterinary inspectors, throughout Canada.

Acting primarily as travelling supervisors, their work will lessen the number of matters which must be referred to Ottawa for decision and will bring greater uniformity in interpretation of regulations under the Meat and Canned Foods Act.

"I want you to write me a story," said the Hollywood film producer, "that begins with a earthquake and works up to a climax."

Weed Of The Week

Commencing next week the Chesterville Record will feature the first of a series of twenty-two short articles under the heading "Weed of the Week."

"To control weeds, we must know them, says A. H. Martin, in charge of Weed Administration in Ontario. Weeds might be classified by their length of life as annuals, biennials or perennials, or by their root systems as branch, tap or creeping or by their methods of spreading seeds such as by wind, water, animals and humans.

Some weeds are tall and upright; others are short, prostrate or trailing. Some weeds are poisonous to animals and humans (water hemlock). Many people are allergic to weed pollen (ragweed, goldenrod). Others may cause serious skin irritation (poison ivy).

It is true that distant hillside of blueweed, cumps of black-eyed Susans or fields of ox-eye daisy add beauty to the landscape but for the most part, weeds are unsightly robbers of plant food and moisture and cost millions of dollars annually in loss of crop and in added costs of weed control in lawns, gardens, roadsides, fence rows, railroad rights of way and cultivated fields to say nothing of many thousands spent annually for the relief of hay fever and poison ivy.

Each article will be prepared by a member of the Crops, Seeds and Weeds field staff and wlil be short, concise and practical. One weed will be featured each week giving description, habits of growth and methods of control.

DON'T FOOL YOURSELF

"Ontario highways have been built without tolls being imposed ," a senior government official told a Good Roads convention the other day.

That statement will come as a surprise to most motorists, observes The Financial Post. For years they have been under the impression that they have been paying tolls and steep tolls, too, in the provincial gasoline tax.

"Everytime motorists buy a gallon of gas, one-quarter to one-third of what they pay goes directly to the provincial government in taxes. That means at least half a cent for every mile they travel—a dollar or more for a 200-mile trip. And it doesn't make any difference whether the travelling is done on a super highway or a country lane."

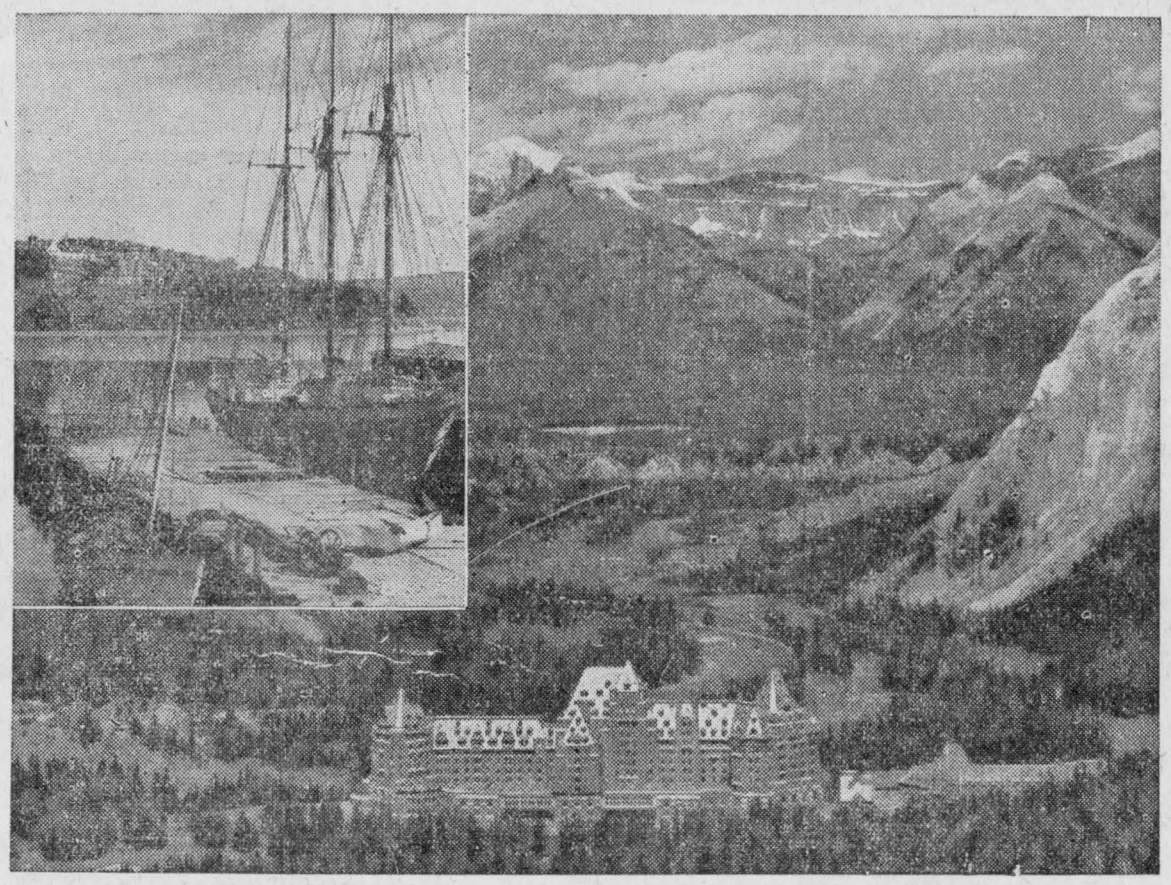
VACATION PARADISE



The seashore or the Rocky Mountains—What is your idea of a summer vacatiin paradise? You name it and Canada can supply it. Golf, swimming, deeep-sea fishing, saling—Canada can fulfil the wants of the most idealistic vacationer. Shown here are two typical Canadian summer scenes depicting two widely separated vacation playgrounds. Mile-high Banff Springs Hotel, cradled in the Bow Valley of the Canadian Rockies is just as near or as far as the idyllic sea-shore setting showing Digby Pines Hotel at Digby, N.S. Summer resorts across Canada are now laying plans to handle thousands of Canadians who subscribe to the theory "See Canada First."

Simplified

Two young men had been invited to dinner by their employer. During the course of the meal the conversation drifted into channels which got the young friends into rather deep water.

"Do you care for Omar Khayyam?" asked the host, at one point during the dinner, thinking to discover the literary tastes of the young men.

"Pretty well," the one addressed repled, "but personally, I prefer Chianti."

The subject was abandoned, but on the way home the other said to his chum:

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN

Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! Some folks dread housecleaning, but there is a built-up urge to refurbish the home weeks before spring-cleaning. Once you begin to work there are sounds that seem to cheer you on to your goal. Listen to the teasing voice of the chamois as you polish the windows, the cheerful tinkle of the glassware as you shine the the contents of the cupboard and the snap-flap of the clothes hung out to dry. So, like a child gathering the first flowers of spring, a homemaker uses all the enthusiasm and beauty she can muster for a housecleaning spree, this assures happy family living.

TAKE A TIP

1. Candlewick bedspreads will not be "detufted" if placed in a large cotton bag when laundered in the washing machine.
2. Iron your bedspread the long way to keep it in shape. However, the chenille and candlewick ones are shaken out and brushed when dry—never ironed.
3. When hanging a coat or dress on the line, use two coat hangers hooked in opposite directions, pin at the collar and then wind will not blow the garment off.
4. To clean a velvet jacket hang it over a big kettle of boiling water for about 10 minutes. Then brush the coat with a piece of velvet till the nap is raised again. Let the steam penetrate cuffs and collar a second time if necessary.
5. Glazed chintz must be ironed on the right side to bring out the lustre. Use as much pressure as possible.
6. Before washing jeans and other garments use a tooth brush (an old one) to dislodge dirt in pocket corners.
7. To remove spots on suede cardtable covers or bags try rubbing with an emery paper or crocus cloth and then steam over a boiling kettle.
8. Wrap evening bags, stoles and other acessories with silver or gold thread in them in aluminum foil and store in boxes.
9. To "dry clean" your non-washable gloves at home try this method: mix 1 cup of fuller's earth and ½ cup powdered alum. Put the gloves on the board, cover with the powder and brush with a stiff brush, then wipe off with a towel and cover gloves with clean cornmeal and brush off. Doeskin and chamois will look quite new.
10. Saturate fresh paint on any clothing with grease or oil then sponge with warm suds or spot cleaner depending on whether material is washable or not.
11. If a white summer garment has turned yellow soak in lukewarm water for 15 minutes then use a bleach, following the directions on the package.
12. Apply colourless lacquer on brass or copper to protect the surface from corrosion.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. K. T. asks: (1) How to remove a stain made by a plant urn from a hardwood floor.

(2) Does it shorten the life of an electric polisher to pull it backwards?

Answer: (1) Sand the portion of stained hardwood floor thoroughly and then bleach with a blotter dipped in oxalic acid solution for 5 or 10 minutes.

(2) An electric polisher will not damage by pulling it backwards. However, let the polisher do the job gradually. It should take 20 to 30 minutes to polish a 10 by 12 foot area.

Mrs. G. W. asks: Is there any way I can prevent the vacuum cleaner attachment from pulling drapery into the nozzle?

Answer: Use one section of the hose and the nozzle on which a piece of cheesecloth is tied. Begin at the top and follow down to the bottom of the drapes.

Miss M. M. says: We cleaned our refrigerator while it was disconnected during the paint-up of the kitchen and food smells of paint. What do we do?

Answer: Try either of these methods: Defrost and wash cabinet and dishes with a baking soda solution then place a fan facing the open door on kitchen stool. Force fresh air into it. (2) Place a casserole of charcoal in the refrigerator.

Amazing Mexico City

Miss Helen Jamieson received a book of views of Mexico City. The city is considered at up-to-date as any European metropolis. The earliest authentic date of history of the city is 1325.

Among the most modern and beautiful buildings is the Palace of Fine Arts. It is built entirely of white Italian marble from Carrara. It is considered the finest theatre in the Americas and seats 4,500.

Mexico City has some of the finest monuments to be found anywhere in the world. One of the city's cathedrals, the Aztec Temple, was started in 1525 and finished in 1573. It is the largest and finest cathedral in America; the height of its towers is 207 feet. Also, the Chapultepec Castle is very grand, built by the earliest Spanish Viceroys.

The Floating Gardens, "The Venice of Mexico," couldn't be looked over in one day. Mexico i s the greatest natural museum in the world, with pyramids, ruins of ancient temples, marvels in sculpture and painting. The caves of Cacahuamilpa, the seventh wonder of the world, the priceless jewels of Monte Alban and many other attractions prove of interest to tourists.

The book was sent by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rae, of Estevan, Sask., who are spending the winter in the South. Mr. Rae is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Rae, of Nation Valley.

George R. Tinkess, 81 Laid To Rest

The community of Avonmore was saddened with the announcement of the death early Saturday evening of George Russell Tinkess, a life-long citizen of the district, who passed away at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Murdoch, two miles east of Avonmore. Mr. Tinkess, who was in his 82nd year, had suffered with pneumonia for the past week and his condition had been serious during that time. His death severs a link with the past in the community.

Born in the Third Concession, of Roxborough, 81 years ago last August 16, he was the son of the late Levi Tinkess and his wife, Lucy Shaver. Mr. Tinkess was particularly well known throughout the district as the expert manufacturer of wooden pumps and the products of his workshop were keenly sought after. He retired 17 years ago.

On January 9, 1901, Mr. Tinkess was married to Miss Alice Walker at her parents' home in North Augusta.

He was an active member of St. James United Church and a member of the session.

Left to mourn his passing, besides his wife, are three daughters—Mrs. J. D. Shaver, (Lena), of Finch; Mrs. John Shaver (Mae), Cornwall; Mrs. G. Campbell Murdoch (Blanche), of Avonmore.

One son, Eldred Tinkess, passed away in 1931.

He also leaves a brother, James Tinkess, Wiarton, Ont.; eight grandchildren and one great grandchild.

The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon from the family residence to St. James United Church, Avonmore, for service at 2 p.m., conducted by the minister, Rev. C. R .Sutherland, B.A., B.D. Interment was made in the family plot in Paul's Hill cemetery.

Hayes-Casselman

Mixed spring flowers, arranged against a background of fern made a pretty setting for the wedding of Norma Delora Casselman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Casselman, of Winchester Springs, to Matthew W. Hayes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Hayes, Williamsburg.

The marriage was solemnized on Monday in the United Church, Winchester Springs, with the Rev. Frederick G. Rice officiating.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. Clarence Thompson and during the signing of the register, a solo was sung by Ronald McIntosh.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Wilfred Boulerice, Ottawa, and the flower girl was Mary Jane Hayes, sister of the bridegroom.

Jack Eldridge, uncle of the bridegroom, was the best man, and the ushers were Denzil Robinson and Terrance Hayes, brother of the bridegroom.

For her wedding, the bride chose a dress of eggshell satin, with an off-the-shoulder effect, with insets of lace and a bertha collar. The bodice was tight-fitting with lily-point sleeves, and the satin skirt had lace insets. The melon cap of satin and lace held the fingertip veil which was caught on the sides with lily of the valley.

A reception for the guests who came from Oshawa, Morrisburg, Williamsburg, Smiths Falls, Brinston and many other points, was held in the church hall. Later Mr. and Mrs. Hayes left on a motor trip to Niagara Falls, Detroit and Flint, Mich., and other western points. For travelling the bride wore a navy check taffeta ensemble with navy and orchid accessories and wore a corsage of red roses.

After the honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Hayes will reside in Smiths Falls.

Laying It On

The beautiful blonde was trying to impress her friend. "There I was, poor little me, locked in a room with eleven men, and each one trying to break down my resistance. But I defied them all, both individually and collectively!"

"Heavens, dear!" her friend exclaimed. "Were you kidnapped,"

"Don't be silly. I was doing jury duty."

"Once and for all I want to know who is boss in this house."

"You'll be so much happier if you don't try to find out," replied his wife, sweetly.

Everyone is eagle-eyed to see another's faults.—Dryden.
