MISS MARY E. GILLESPIE

(Freeholder)

A lady who was held in the highest esteem in Cornwall, where she had lived for many years, Miss Mary E. Gillespie passed away rather suddenly on May 11th. The late Miss Gillespie was born in County Tyronne, Ireland 87 years ago, a daughter of the late James Gillespie and Frances Irvine. Deceased was a life-long member of the Methodist Church, a life-member of the W. M. S., and when health permitted an active worker in both, and her presence will be much missed. For some weeks she had been confined to the house, but her death came suddenly. She leaves to mourn her loss one sister, Mrs. R. A. Gibson of Ottawa, and one brother, W. B. Gillespie of Jackson Minn The funeral took place on May 13th, from her late residence to the Methodist Church and cemetery at Lunenburg. Rev. A. Bishop of Newington, officiating. Among relatives at the funeral from a distance were George and Henry Gibson and Miss Gibson, Mrs. Wm. Wright and T. S. Gillis of Ottawa; Mrs. James Pollock and son of Iroquis, Irwin Hilliard, K.C., and Miss Hilliard, the Misses Jane and Sadie Dillen and Miss Libbie Gillespie of Morrisburg; Rev. G. G. Wright of Wales; Mrs. J. B. Coulthart Mr. and Mrs. David Coulthart, Mr. and Mrs Percy Coulthart and Mrs. Lawrence Coulthart, Monckland.

MR. JAMES STYLES

On April 22nd the township of Williamsburg lost one of its most highly respected citizens in the person of James Styles who on that date departed this life and entered upon the things unspeakable that await all God's faithful soldiers and servants beyond the veil.

The late James Styles was a son of the late Robert Styles, and was born on January 18th 1848. Having spent all his life in the township of Williamsburg, Mr. Styles was well known to the residents generally, and he was considered, by those who knew him best,, an industrious honest, and God-fearing man. He was an exemplary husband and father, and a kind and sympathetic neighbor, always ready and glad to lend a helping hand to those in need. In politics he was a Conservative, and in religion a devout and consistent member of the Church of England. He was a regular worshipper, and a deeply interested member of Trinity Memorial Church in which church his burial service was conducted on Friday April 25th by the Venerable Archdeacon Carson, rector of Morrisburg. The large congregation that assembled to join in the solemn service was an unmistakable evidence of the high regard in which Mr. Styles was held by all members of the community. His wife, who was Alice Pruner, together with three sons, Robert G., Edward R. at home and Walter E. of Nipigon Ont., and one daughter, Mrs. Clarence Castleman of Riverside Williamsburg survive and to them is extended the sincere sympathy of a multitude of friends who, with them, mourn the loss of "a good man."

300,000 PICKEREL FRY PLACED IN ST. LAWRENCE AT MORRISBURG

On Saturday, May 17th, the Morrisburg Fish and Game Club received a consignment of 300,000 pickerel fry. These were forwarded from the Provincial Fish Hatchery at Glenora, and were at once deposited on the Canadian side of the St. Lawrence.

This is the initial step in re-stocking the waters of the St. Lawrence as undertaken by the local club. A consignment of bass fry is expected to arrive shortly.

WATERWAY ADVISORY COMMITTEE TO MEET MAY 11

Hon. George P. Graham, as chairman of the Canadian advisory committee on the St. Lawrence waterway has called an organization meeting of the committee for June 11. Members of the joint engineering board as well as of the departmental committee will be invited to be present.

CHARGE OF ARSON DISMISSED

Rex vs Flynn—This was a charge of arson arising out of the burning of a house in Aultsville the property of Ira J. Cramer, and occupied by German Flynn, as a tenant. At the request of an interested insurance company the Ontario Fire Marshall's department made an inquiry into the fire, which resulted in the laying of a complaint against Flynn, who elected to be tried by a jury, and Police Magistrate Cline of Cornwall, held a preliminary hearing at Fraternity Hall, Aultsville, on Tuesday of this week. The Crown brought forward nearly 20 witnesses. At the conclusion of their testimony His Worship held that the case was not sufficiently strong to warrant him in committing the accused to stand trial, and accordingly dismissed the information.

FIRE AT SOUTH MOUNTAIN

(Mountain Herald)

At seven o'clock last Wednesday morning, a fire broke out in the building occupied by Mr. A. A. McRae and was well under way when noticed by Chas. Keyes who was going to open his store.. The butcher shop next door caught and was soon demolished. Mr H. Cleland's fine brick building caught fire several times but was extinguished, but not before considerable damage was done. The Misses McGinn's home on the west side of the butcher shop was also badly scorched.

$100,000 FIRE AT OGDENSBURG

Believed to have started from sparks from an oil_burning ferry plying between Prescott and Ogdensburg, flames swept through the yacht houses of the Oswegatchie Yacht Club and the yards of the Derochie Coal Company on the waterfront, and burned seven pleasure boats to the water's edge. Firemen estimated the damage at $100,000.

SUMMER SPRAYING AND DUSTING.

It is rank foolishness to plant potatoes unless you are prepared to spray them. The potato disease is a fungus, the minute spores of which float about unseen in the atmosphere during the late spring and summer. These spores alight wherever they can, but whether or not they happen to rest on the potato foliage they can develop only under particular conditions, warmth and moisture each being an essential factor.

The potato plant is the congenial host of these spores, and when they reach the leaves or stems they lie inert until the required conditions prevail, when they immediately develop slender threads which enter the tissues of leaf and stem, and as soon as this happens the fungus has installed itself in a fortified position.

What is necessary is that before the spores have an opportunity to secure themselves, the whole surface of leaf and stem should be covered with a chemical film against which the fungus cannot battle. Therefore, in order to make sure of success, the potato plants must be sprayed several times throughout the season.

In addition to disease there are a number of insects ready to prey upon the potato unless they are held in check. These insects are all of the chewing or eating kind, and we can fight both disease and insects by using a combination mixture, such as lead arsenate and Bordeaux. Spraying first when the plants are six inches high, and continuing at regular intervals of two weeks, we can check disease, also potato bugs and flea beetles.

The commercial grower prepares his own Bordeaux-arsenate mixture at home, but where only a limited quantity is necessary for the home gardener, there are reliable pastes on the market.

SAFEGUARDING THE ONION CROP.

On some soils and in certain seasons the onion crop may come through safely, but on the other hand the plants are liable to be attacked by the onion fly, or if they escape that scourge, a visit from thrip is always to be feared.

To prevent the fly from damaging the crop, mix one cupful of kerosene in a pail of sand and strew it along the young plants, or spray with kerosene emulsion.

The emulsion is prepared by mixing three pints of kerosene and half a pound of soft soap—or whale-oil soap—with one gallon of boiling water, mixing thoroughly by churning with a hand pump, and adding seven gallons of warm water when the onions are young, and six gallons when they are forming bulbs.

The spray should be applied in the form of a dense mist, repeating at intervals of two or three days, and always after heavy rains.

Another method is to dust the plants with lime and flowers of sulphur, mixing one part of the latter in six parts of lime.

Onion thrip may be present among the plants for some time before its presence is discovered. The thrip is such a small microscopical rascal; but in spite of lack of size it can ruin the crop if not checked. The spray used may be either kerosene emulsion or nicotine. Once a week is not too often to spray.

Tomatoes are subject to certain diseases such as blight, represented by the sudden wilting of the plants. Any plant affected in this manner should be dug up and burned. Bordeaux mixture will help to keep the disease in check. Fruit rot as it appears on the blossom end of the tomato fruit is a bacterial disease; sometimes all the fruit on the plant will be affected. To prevent the above and other troubles, it is advisable to spray the plants with Bordeaux just after they are planted, and two more applications thereafter at intervals of ten days.

A DOUBLE-BARRELED WEAPON.

Cucumbers and melons are subject to the wilt disease. Troubled quite extensively at one time with the wilt disease, we now have practically eliminated the disease by regular spraying with Bordeaux. Start with a Bordeaux-arsenate spray as soon as the vines begin to run, repeating at regular ten-day intervals, and it will take care of both insect pests and disease.

Aphis are to be feared when they find lodgment on the melon vines, for as they work on the underside of the leaves they are difficult to get after.

As distinct in their habits from the eating and chewing insects, aphis or green fly suck the juices from the plants and cannot be killed by the same insecticide. To fight these pests we have to use a contact poison such as a liquid nicotine emulsion or kerosene emulsion, and the liquid must envelop them. Tobacco powder may be used.

The corn-ear worm has become a serious pest in some locations. So far the only remedy that has proved fairly successful in the control of the worm is a mixture of equal parts of powdered arsenate of lead and flowers of sulphur. This poison must be maintained throughout the period that the silks are green and succulent. Immediately the silk appears a little pile of poison is placed upon it by means of the tin sifter, repeating at intervals of a few days until three or four applications have been given or until the ears are ready for harvesting.

Cutworms are a serious pest. A quick and certain remedy is found in a poisoned bait, using a quarter pound of Paris green, five pounds of bran, one quart of molasses and three parts of water.

Mix the Paris green with the bran, and in a separate vessel mix the molasses and water. Pour the liquid slowly into the bran-and-Paris-green mixture, stirring continuously until a damp crumbly mass is formed. Small pieces of the bait are placed among the plants in the evening, as the cutworms feed during the night. The bait must not be used where chickens are allowed to run.

Finch Dairy Station Proves Profitable.

The charge often made that a government establishment can not be conducted with profit has been disproved by the success of the dairy station operated by the Dairy Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture at Finch, Ontario. This station is operated as a combined cheese factory, creamery, and milk and cream shipping station. Its milk supply is received from about 120 patrons farming within a few miles of the plant. Last year the factory handled 8,213,531 pounds of milk, of which 107,156 pounds were sold as whole milk. As cream 210,579 pounds of butter fat were disposed of. From the balance of the milk there were manufactured 20,302 pounds of butter and 148,479 pounds of cheese. The station is used not only to demonstrate the handling of these products according to modern methods, but also to conduct experiments and investigations relating to the manufacture of butter and cheese, and, with other things, to study the economics of dairy factory operation. In Pamphlet No. 44 of the Dominion Department of Agriculture reviewing the work of this station it is shown that during the seven years of operation the sum of $93,029.60 was distributed among the patrons over and above what they would have received if paid for at the average price paid for cheese milk in Ontario. This amounts to an average yearly premium to patrons of the station of more than $13,000.

Milking by Machine.

A special circular on the milking machine issued by the Dominion Experimental Farms, states that the experience of an ever-increasing number of practical farmers, coupled with that of a number of the experimental farms and stations, goes to prove that the machines are decidedly advantageous. Three years' experience also shows that the cows do not dry off any more quickly than when milked by hand. Some of the advantages of the machines are: that it is a partial solution of the labor problem; that it takes the place of a hired man; that it is always ready for work; that its work is noted for uniformity; that one man with a machine can do the work of three men at hand milking; that the cost of milking is reduced; that much of the drudgery of the farm is eliminated, and that if the machine is kept clean the milk will be as good, or better, than that produced by hand-milking. Old cows used to hand-milking may object to the machine, but heifers take to it readily. Stripping by hand after taking the machine off is advised. The operator must be quick and quiet, have an eye for details, and know the machine and the cows.

A man's hobby rides him a great deal oftener than he rides it.

POULTRY.

We all agree that green feed for the layers is essential in winter, but I'm afraid we quite forget it is equally necessary in summer. And there comes a time in late summer when vegetation is not so green and plentiful.

Maintaining a crop of green feed all during the summer and early fall not only aids the birds by furnishing them with a constant supply to eat, but it helps to keep from contamination the ground upon which the chickens are running.

Where birds are allowed the run of the farm this problem is not so keen as where they are confined. The birds will get a sufficient supply all summer where there is some damp portion of the farm. There comes a time, however, when the growth becomes woody and not available. This is where the following suggestions for a permanent supply of green feed will fit in.

If possible, some permanent sod should be provided. Alfalfa or clover, especially the former, is desirable. Where it is not possible to maintain such a permanent sod other arrangements may be made. Green feed may be provided by putting in a succession of crops.

To allow the birds to run outside and at the same time provide green feed it is necessary to have a double yarding system. Under such a system one yard is growing a green crop while the birds are feeding in the other; when the green crop is entirely consumed the other should be ready to take its place, and so on.

The following rotation may be used in sections where, in general, the growing season is not very long.

Yard A—April 1, oats and peas; June 1, birds feeding; Aug. 1, soy beans; Oct. 1, birds feeding.

Yard B—April 1, birds feeding on fall-planted crop; June 1, buckwheat; Aug. 1, birds feeding; Oct. 1, wheat and rye.

These dates may vary two weeks either way, depending upon weather conditions and climate, and the crops may vary some with the locality. The main idea is to get something in that will make a fair growth and will supply green feed for the hens. The crops need only be three or four inches high—just so the birds can get some green feed.

Another purpose that green feed serves is the supplying of vitamins, necessary alike to old birds and young.

The question of green feed in the summertime brings up another, namely, the cultivation of the land to rid it of worms.

Whenever these pests pop up it is a good plan to keep the birds confined to the houses, closing them up according to the recommended methods and removing and burning the litter at frequent intervals, at the same time plowing up the land on which the birds are to run later and liming it at the rate of two tons of lime to the acre. The longer the birds can be kept off the land the better, but in the meantime a crop of some sort can be grown on it.

If green feed can be supplied all during the summer to keep the birds in shape and if plowing and liming can be done occasionally to keep the land in shape, good results ought to follow.

Remember this about growing green crops. They keep the birds in good health; they help to maintain egg production; they supply vitamins to the birds; they maintain proper sanitary conditions by keeping the soil from being contaminated.

"A few more flowers strewn on the pathway of life
And fewer on graves at the end of the strife."

When a man feels the reprehension of a friend seconded in his own heart, he is easily heated into resentment.

Pruning the Orchard.

Dealing mainly with the renovation of neglected orchards, the Dominion Horticulturist, in Bulletin No. 79, gives a few general principles that apply to the younger and more vigorous orchards. In pruning, the operator must bear in mind that each tree is in itself a proposition, and that each variety has some general characteristic which must be considered. To prune the King in the same manner as one would prune the Wagener is to court disaster. Pruning wood growth heavily in the spring would induce such a heavy wood growth that matters would be worse than before, while in the case of the Wagener, not being such a vigorous grower, rather heavy pruning in the spring might be advantageous. To a certain extent it is true that in pruning it is desirable to cut out all branches that grow in towards the centre and also all branches that interfere with each other, but if this principle were rigorously followed in the case of the King, there would be little left to bear fruit. The whole matter is a case of judgment and personal experience. It is quite possible to over-do pruning, and it is a good idea to prune no more than you have to. The orchard having once been put in good shape, the removal annually of dead wood and diseased wood, with now and then a healthy branch that is inclined to the obstinate, will suffice. The bulletin quoted is available on application to the Publications Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Potato Inspection and Certification.

Arrangements have been made for the continuation of potato inspection and certification during the coming season, and forms of application have already been forwarded to all potato growers whose fields were inspected last year. These forms are returnable up to July 1st, so that there is still ample time for any other growers who may desire to submit their fields for inspection to write for a form and secure any particulars they may desire in respect to the work. Letters (postage free) should be addressed to the Dominion Botanist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, who will see that every attention is paid to requests for forms and additional information. He will arrange for the carrying out of inspections at the appropriate time during the season.

Two field inspections will as usual be made, the first as near as possible to the blossoming period, and the second one three to four weeks later.

The standard for the field inspection will be the same as that applied last year, and any fields, as the result of the two inspections, found to measure up to this standard, will be considered eligible for certification, subject to an inspection of the tubers after harvest and the grading out of any which may appear undesirable for seed purposes.

Watch for Clogged Oil Holes.

The connecting-rod bearing had burned out and a new one was installed. This burned out almost immediately and though the crank shaft appeared all right a careful examination was made. The shaft was one of the well drilled kind through which the oil is fed under pressure to the bearings by a pump. The hole leading to the bearing causing the trouble was tested by forcing oil under pressure through it. It was found to be clogged with metal from the burned-out bearings. Careful cleaning of this oil hole put a stop to further trouble.

Therefore, in replacing burned-out bearings it is a good plan first to test the oil holes by at least forcing air through them, as it is an easy matter for the melted metal to run in and clog them, causing further trouble.

Handy Built-In Ironing-Board

BY WALTER ANDREWS.

"Every time I want to iron," said my wife one day, "I have to dig the ironing-board out of the closet, put one end on the sink and the other on a chair-back, and then get the electric iron from a drawer that sticks when I try to open it. Next I get a chair, balance myself on it, reach up to the electric-light bulb, unscrew it, screw in the iron attachment, step down and put the chair away. After the ironing is done I have to go through the same unhandy performance in reverse order. Isn't there some way to make things more convenient?"

I put down my newspaper and tried to fix my mind on the tragedy, for such it evidently was—to her. And tragedies in the home give a fellow an uncomfortable feeling that prevents a calm enjoyment of the daily news. Besides, I like to see the little wife happy and singing.

"I'll think it over," I remarked hopefully. Whereupon she looked so comforted that I was intrigued into adding: "And I'll fix things handier for you."

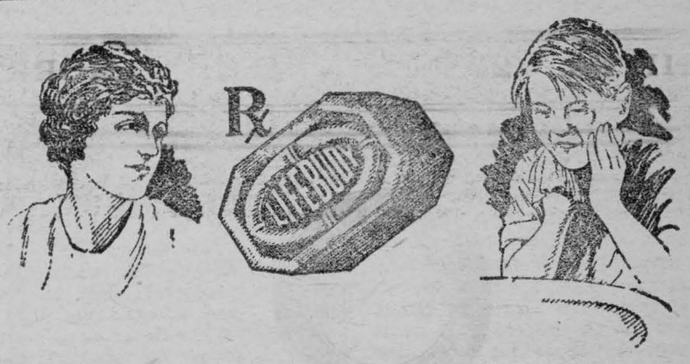

But the more I thought of it the more hopeless I felt. What did I, a mere man, know about the innermost ethics of well-behaved ironing-boards? All of a sudden I remembered a bungalow owned by one of my friends who was always bragging about his wonderful built-in conveniences. Perhaps he might give me a hint. So I dropped over to his house one night, and, luckily, found him at home. Humbly I laid the problem before him.

He laughed. "No problem at all, my dear fellow. Come out in the kitchen and I'll show you." He led the way and I followed. Hope was beginning to bud in my "bussum"—as Hank Peters used to say, when I was a boy on the farm.

"See this long, narrow door in the kitchen wall?" asked my benefactor, whose every-day name is Henry.

I saw it. Also I watched him open it. Inside was a new kind of double-jointed ironing board with a very upright and tiring disposition. He pulled it down easily, a hinged leg dropped into place, and presto! there was the board all ready to use. Then he grabbed an iron from a handy little shelf beneath the board, inserted the plug in an electric socket close by in the same wall—and his benefactions were complete.

With his permission I drew a little sketch of the whole handy contrivance. But don't tell that to my wife, please. She thinks to this day that I am "the most wonderful man." All I did was to go home, look wise, and tell her to be patient for a few days. A carpenter and an electrician did the rest, and the bill wasn't much either. Now I can read my newspaper in peace on ironing-day. I need only add that it would be equally convenient and desirable in any kitchen, even though electric power were not available. The board is a handy thing in itself.

Comparative Yields from High and Low Testing Milk in Cheesemaking.

Investigations carried out by the Dairy Department and the Chemistry Department of the O. A. College with low and high testing milk used in the manufacture of cheese gave results that are interesting to cheese factory patrons. The low testing milk contained 12.01 per cent. solids and 3.41 per cent. fat. The high testing milk contained 12.29 per cent. solids and 3.62 per cent. fat—not very much difference between the two samples. The yield of cheese per 1,000 lbs. of milk was 89.85 pounds from the low testing lots, and 95.84 from the higher testing lots, or nearly six pounds of cheese more per thousand pounds of milk for a very small increase in the percentage of fat and total solids. This is further evidence of the injustice of paying for milk on the basis of weight only and not considering the fat and solids content of milk when dividing money among patrons of cheese factories.

Export of Live Stock and Products.

Exports of cattle from Toronto in March were 3,836 compared with 5,382 in the corresponding month of last year. The cattle export from Canada to the United States in March this year totalled 7,596 compared with 6,356 last year, and to Great Britain 11,386 head compared with 11,373. Calf exports to the United States were 2,381 compared with 1,810 and for the quarter this year 4,168 compared with 3,067 last year. Beef exports to the United States in the first three months of this year were 1,650,100 lbs. compared with 892,500 lbs. last year, and to Great Britain 1,414,100 lbs. compared with 3,645,100 lbs. Bacon exports to Britain were 26,404,000 lbs. compared with 27,074,000 lbs., and to the United States, 118,500 lbs., compared with 48,000 lbs. Pork exports to Great Britain amounted to 1,277,600 lbs., compared with 1,202,000 lbs., and to the United States 351,000 lbs., compared with 248,900 lbs. Mutton exports to the United States were 2,400 lbs., compared with 700 lbs.

I Begin Culling Early.

Does it pay to cull chickens? It certainly pays me. I cull mine for the first time when they start feathering out. All that feather out quickly across the back, with all feathers lying down smooth in the wings, with good shape of head and body, I mark for breeders. The rest I sell at nine weeks of age for broilers. This saves feed and work, gives me more room and more profit. Then what I have saved I watch closely. Whenever I see any that are not developing properly, I cull them out at once. In fact, I cull the year around. Thus I keep fewer chickens and yet get more eggs at less cost of feed. Too many folks keep all the pullets, whether they lay much or not.—L. H.

Once more, speak clearly, if you speak at all; carve every word before you let it fall.—Holmes.

CHEVROLET

Brings your friends close to you

THE isolation and loneliness of the farm have gone. Friends miles apart are now neighbors. Cities once the mecca for holidays and market days only, are now only a few minutes away.

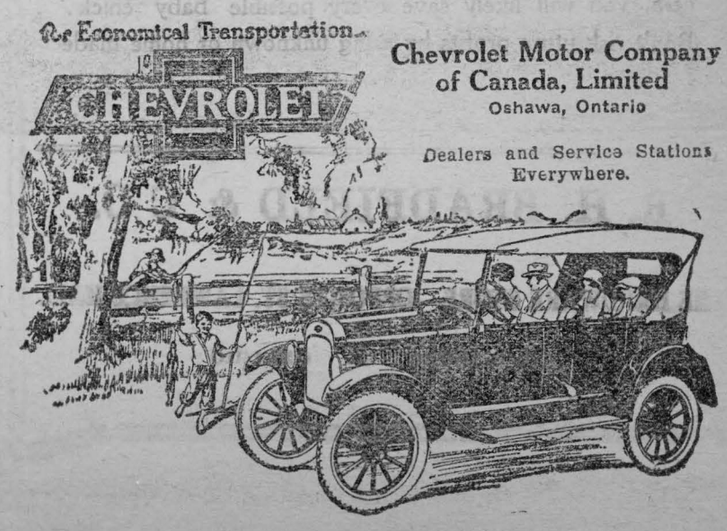

On the other hand, the country places, the beauty spots of nature and the friends in the country are now within easy reach of the city folks.

GRATEFUL PARENTS POUR OUT THANKS TO TANLAC

Five in One Family Are Helped—Mother and Father Give Details.

The value of Tanlac as a family medicine and tonic is again very forcefully demonstrated. This time in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Kaake, 2436 Kirby Ave. West, Detroit, Mich., where father and mother and every member of the family have been benefited by the wholesome and helpful ingredients of the famous preparation.

Recently, in speaking for herself and children, Mrs. Kaake said: "For more than a year our three little ones —John, age 6; Elwyn, 4; and Margarite, 2,—had been so peaked and lifeless that we were seriously worried about them. Their stomachs were upset, appetites poor, the color had left their cheeks, their nights were restless, and during the day they would just mope around, taking no interest in play or anything else.

"They began to eat and sleep better almost from the first dose of Tanlac, and have picked up now until you couldn't find three healthier or more active children in all Detroit. They eat ravenously, the color of health has returned to their cheeks, and they just want to be on the go all the time. I have also taken Tanlac to build me up, and it never seems to fail."

"As to my personal experience with Tanlac," said Mr. Kaake, "I simply can't express in words the great help it gave me. About a year ago I was a victim of boils, actually having fifty-one on me, and was so played out that I couldn't do a bit of work for weeks. My suffering was almost unbearable. I cared little for food, suffered with severe headaches and stomach pains, and got so weak and nervous that I felt discouraged.

"Tanlac corrected my stomach disorders, woke up my appetite, cleansed my blood and toned up my system so that the boils went away, and nothing of the kind has bothered me since. I have gained 28 lbs., and I eat, sleep and feel like a brand-new man. We have given Tanlac a fair trial and found it wonderful, and if anyone doubts our statement they can write personally. We wouldn't think of being without Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 Million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills, for constipation, made and recommended by the manufacturers of TANLAC.

Lions and Leopards Ravage North Rhodesia Farms.

Farmhouses in the bush bordering on the northern Rhodesian frontier have recently been in a state of siege owing to the activities of lions. The animals have come out of the jungle in daylight and attacked the farm animals, carrying off some of them.

In some cases the natives working on the farms have been attacked, and several have been killed. The lions are often joined by leopards and have appeared in such numbers that the settlers are forced to go about only in large groups and to keep a constant guard over their families and stock.

The wife of a railroad employee reports a thrilling adventure in this connection. Mrs. McLean left her home at Garuso on a bicycle to visit neighbors. Reaching a river she found two large lions on the bank. She was so near that she could not retreat and prepared to fight for her life, but at the first shot the animals ran. She then proceeded and shortly came across a big leopard eating an ox. The leopard also made a hasty getaway, but followed Mrs. McLean for some time.

Arriving at the farm she found it had been attacked for several weeks by the animals and many cattle had been lost. Next day she was escorted back to her home by a neighbor and native, who, on leaving Mrs. McLean, found they had been tracked all the way by lions. Mrs. McLean's escape was probably due to the fact that the animals had eaten their fill of oxen.

A SPLENDID LAXATIVE FOR THE BABY

Mothers should constantly be on guard to keep baby's bowels working freely and his stomach sweet, for nine-tenths of the ailments from which little ones suffer are caused by derangements of the stomach and bowels. Baby's Own Tablets are a splendid laxative for the baby. They are mild but thorough; contain neither opiates nor narcotics, and are absolutely guaranteed to be safe and efficient for either the newborn babe or the growing child. By their action on the bowels and stomach they drive out constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers and make the dreaded teething period easy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

How Civilized Are You?

Don't be afraid of the question. It is easy to answer. The finest representatives of civilization are by no means found among the so-called cultivated and educated classes. Civilization depends upon what we call progress for less than many think.

Here's the heart of the matter: What is your attitude toward the various forms of life about you? Men, women, children, the beasts of the field, the birds of the air, the four-footed inmates of the home—these are the things, if I may use the word, your treatment of which will tell how civilized you are, far more than your relation to bonds or banks or books or estates, or even that highly exalted thing men call "society."

The most perfect example of the most perfect civilization was a man who had never been to college, who was ostracized by nearly all the social leaders of his day, who even had no place to lay his head. This man, by his spirit, his life of love, kindness, goodwill, justice, compassion, stands to-day, two thousand years since he came among us, humanity's ideal of what is highest and finest in the only civilization wholly worth the name.

How civilized am I? Nothing answers the question more accurately than my treatment of my fellows, my sympathy or lack of it, with all those lowly forms of life about me with their capacity for pleasure and pain. Just so far as I have achieved my ends at the cost of human kindness, in disregard of the rights of other sentient beings, by so much am I uncivilized and back in those far-off ages when might made right, and force, not love, claimed empire over men.

When May Rides In.

(England)

When May rides in, rejoicing,
The speckled thrushes sing,
The buds burst forth to greet her,
The scented blue-bells ring;
While lower, softer music
Chimes from the pearly bells
Of lilies-of-the-valley,
That haunt the leafy dells.

In many a sheltered hollow,
Pale woodruff stars are sweet,
And blue ground-ivy carpets
The earth beneath her feet,
While silvery willows shiver
By many a shady pool,
And golden king-cups shimmer
Above the waters cool.

When May rides in, rejoicing,
The snowy hawthorn flowers
Breathe incense sweet around her,
And from her verdant bowers
The merry cuckoos' music
Re-echoes all day long,
And in the grove and coppice
We hear the blackbird's song.

—Maud E. Sargent.

Keep Minard's Liniment in the house.

Every child should be given the opportunity to learn something about his relation to the universe in which he lives. It is the responsibility of parents and teachers to see that the minds of our boys and girls are opened to the voices of nature—that their senses are so trained that all the world becomes alive to them. Nature study has a necessary place in child training that nothing else can fill.

A Poem You Ought to Know.

"In the Spring."

The chief literary figure of the Victorian age was Lord Tennyson, Poet Laureate. The following passage from "Locksley Hall" represents the poet at his best:—

In the Spring a fuller crimson comes upon the robin's breast;
In the Spring the wanton lapwing gets himself another crest;
In the Spring a livelier iris changes
on the burnished dove;
In the Spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love.

Then her cheek was pale and thinner than should be for one so young,
And her eyes on all my motions with a mute observance hung.
And I said, "My cousin Amy, speak,
and speak the truth to me,
Trust me, cousin, all the current of my being sets to thee."

On her pallid cheek and forehead
came a color and a light,
As I have seen the rosy red flushing in the northern light.
And she turned—her bosom shaken
with a sudden storm of sighs—
All the spirit deeply dawning in the dark of hazel eyes—
Saying, "I have hid my feelings, fearing they should do me wrong";
Saying, "Dost thou love me, cousin?"
weeping, "I have loved thee long."

Love took up the glass of Time, and turned it in his glowing hands;
Every moment, lightly shaken, ran itself in golden sands.
Love took up the harp of Life, and smote on all the cords with might;
Smote the chord of Self, that, trembling, passed in music out of sight.

GIRLHOOD DANGERS

Can Be Avoided by Keeping the Blood Rich and Pure.

The anaemia of young girls may be inherited, or it may be caused by bad air, unsuitable food, hasty and irregular eating, insufficient out-door exercise and not enough rest and sleep. It comes on gradually, beginning with languor, indisposition to exertion and a feeling of fatigue. Later comes palpitation of the heart and headaches. In the majority of cases constipation is present, and the complexion takes on a greenish-yellow pallor. The treatment is quite easy and simple. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are just the tonic to remedy this wretched state of health. They act directly upon the blood, and as it becomes rich and pure strength and activity returns, the glow of health comes to the cheeks, and soon the trouble will disappear and good health follow. Miss Pearl Parks, R.R. No. 1, Reaboro, Ont., has proved the value of this medicine, and her statement will point the way to health to all other weak girls. She says:—"I was very ill with anaemia. I could not sleep at night; my appetite was poor, my face and lips were very pale and my eyes dull. I got so weak that I could not go upstairs without resting. I took dizzy and fainting spells, had no ambition whatever, and did not care to go about. I was in this condition for nearly a year. I had treatment from two doctors; but did not regain my strength, so my mother, who was very uneasy about me, decided I should try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After using the pills for a while I felt somewhat better, and continued taking them until I had used about a dozen boxes, when I was again well and strong. I can strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the treatment of any suffering from anaemia."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cts. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Willie's Wisdom.

Willie was fishing.

"Willie!"

It was his mother's voice, but he was sheltered from the house by trees, and she could not possibly see him.

So Willie went on fishing.

"Willie!"

Still Willie went on fishing.

"Willie!"

Willie began re-baiting his hook. He had just secured the worm when his friend, Bert, approached.

"Don't you hear your mother callin' you?" said Bert. "That's three times she's shouted. Aren't you going in?"

"No," responded Willie, imperturbably.

"Won't she whip you?" asked his friend.

"No," repeated Willie, disdainfully. "She ain't going to whip nobody. She's got company; so when I go in she'll just say, 'The poor little fellow's been so deaf since he had the measles.' "

STORIES OF WELL-KNOWN PEOPLE

MacDonald's Magic Hat.

"Mr. Ramsay MacDonald's magic top hat will live in story as one of the most potent pieces of headgear ever created—it has sent up the prices of stocks and shares," says the Daily Express.

"Prices began to rise on Tuesday as soon as the fact became known that the new prime minister had donned a top hat when he was summoned to Buckingham Palace.

"They continued to rise on Wednesday and Thursday, and yesterday they were higher than at any time during the week."

The Parson and the Pig.

Famous as the author of "Onward, Christian Soldiers," the late Rev. S. Baring-Gould told a quaint story of an old Cornish woman who was worried about the health of her favorite pig, and asked him to say a prayer over it.

He suggested that it might be as well if she brought a "vet" to the animal, but she had such faith that he went to the pig-sty and thus addressed the porker:

"O pig, if thou livest thou livest; but, O pig, if thou diest thou diest."

The animal got well and strong, and the old lady believed that it was the parson who cured it!

Interpreting Her.

A delightful story, reminiscent possibly of his own schooldays, was told recently by General Sir Ian Hamilton.

It concerned a lady who drove up in a beautifully-appointed motor-car to the entrance of the football field of a certain big public school.

Alighting from her car she called to one of the boys, and said, "Will you tell the Hon. Algernon de Montmorency that his mother, Lady Fitzwater, wishes to see him?"

A moment later the boy was heard shouting, "Stinker, your mater's landed!"

How He Knew This Ship.

Scotsmen tell stories against one another with gusto, but it has been reserved for no less a personage than the Madquess of Aberdeen to start broad casting them.

Here, for instance, is one, and to an Aberdeen audience, too.

An old pilot at a certain port of entry professed to be able to tell the home port of any incoming vessel within a reasonable distance by what seamen still call "the cut of her jib," meaning thereby her general appearance, and did so.

To test his powers still further, however, an onlooker called his attention to one in the far distance.

The pilot gazed long and earnestly, and eventually pronounced her to be an Aberdeen boat.

He proved to be right, and a chorus of surprised voices inquired how he knew.

"No seagulls following her!" was his terse reply.

Harbor Lights.

I rarely glimpse from this far hill
The sapphire band they call the sea,
For my house broods within the wood
And I am held there helplessly.

But I can feel its mighty breath
When all the world is wild with wind;
And I can hear the voice of it
When great ships cry, fog-frightened, blind;

And always in the fine-spun dark
Between the leaves I see its eyes;
The tireless, gleaming, friendly fires
That guide each captain's enterprise.

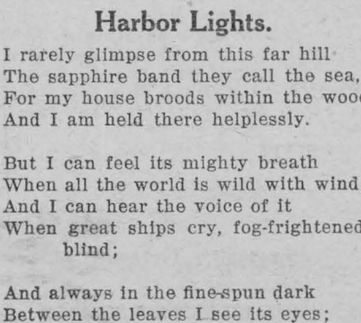

One steadfast light is poised o'er all;
A silver shaft leaps up to it
To fix it there—so they believe—
For none save seamen's benefit.

Yet though my ship's an empty room,
My haven but a visioned thing,
That constant star points out a port
Where I may find an entering.

—Gardner Weeks Wood.

BACK ACHED TERRIBLY

Mrs. McMahon Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chatham, Ont.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a run-down condition after the birth of my baby boy. I had terrible pains and backache, and was tired and weak, not fit to do my work and care for my three little children. One day I received your little book and read it, and gave up taking the medicine I had and began taking the Vegetable Compound. I feel much better now and am not ashamed to tell what it has done for me. I recommend it to any woman I think feels as I do." —Mrs. J. R. McMahon, 153 Harvey St., Chatham, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has for nearly fifty years been restoring sick, ailing women to health and strength. It relieves the troubles which cause such symptoms as backache, painful periods, irregularities, tired, worn-out feelings and nervousness. This is shown again and again by such letters as Mrs. McMahon writes, as well as by one woman telling another. These women know, and are willing to tell others, what it did for them; therefore, it is surely worth your trial.

Women who suffer should write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Cobourg, Ontario, for a free copy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women."

How Does Your Porch Floor Look?

There are two outstanding features about this Porch Floor Paint. One is that it is SPECIALLY made for Porch Floors—and combines a hard durable finish with a clean lustrous appearance. The other is that two pints will go as far as three pints of ordinary or so called cheap paint—assuring the consumer of Best Results and a considerable saving on the cost of material. The reason is to be found in the quality of the ingredients used and the fineness to which they are ground by powerful machinery. It is easily applied, dries quickly, and can be had in six harmonious shades.

In co-operation with the Traders Finance Corporation the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited has also established a fixed price to be paid if a purchaser wishes to purchase on the deferred payment plan.

The purpose in establishing this definite time price is to protect the buyer against excessive charges.

The charge authorized by the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited and charged by the Traders Finance Corporation is absolutely fair to every purchaser who buys Ford products on deferred payments.

This deferred payment plan is a simple business arrangement devised for your convenience—by means of which with a small down payment you may drive your car—paying the balance in small monthly instalments. These rates are as follows:

	Down Payment	Monthly Instalments
Touring		$32.66
Touring [Starter]		37.08
Runabout		30.09
Runabout [Starter]		35.75

The Woman of To-Day

WAGE WAR ON THE MOTH.

Although clothes moths may become destructive in warm rooms at any season of the year, the summer months offer the most favorable conditions and therefore winter clothing stored for the summer becomes most subject to moth infestation. A little care in storing woolen stuffs and furs now or later when winter clothing is laid away may prevent much damage and remove the fear and anxiety of anticipating moth-eaten garments as next winter approaches. Brushing, airing, cleaning and careful and proper storage are the best safeguards against the clothes moth.

Garments to be stored for the summer should be brushed thoroughly and hung out-of-doors for a day exposed to the sun and wind. Be sure to brush under lapels and cuffs, in pockets, and other places where dust may collect. The closet in which the clothes are to be kept should be thoroughly clean. They should then be wrapped carefully in strong brown paper and placed in pasteboard boxes and sealed with gum paper, in paper bags which are sold for storage purposes, or in a cedar chest. Naphthalene flakes sprinkled over the clothing before wrapping offers one of the best protections from moth infestation and this insecticide which evaporates slowly does not harm fabric. A cedar chest provides additional safety since the cedar odor is itself repellant to the clothes moth.

Once a garment becomes infested with the clothes moth immediate measures must be taken to destroy the insect. This may be accomplished by several methods. Immersing in water at a temperature of 140 d. F. for 30 to 45 minutes kills all stages of the insect. Placing the infested clothes in a tight box and sprinkle liberally with naphthalene will kill many of the insects.

DRIVE AWAY THE BOGEY MAN.

It has been said that fear is our friend, but in an abnormal state, it becomes our worst enemy. Especially is this true with children. When a child is possessed of abnormal fear, much of the natural spontanity of child nature, his conception of life, and his self-confidence is fettered.

In this problem, that many mothers have to solve, the old saw, that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure obtains. The child who has the seeds of unwholesome fear planted in his mind by exaggerated and perfidious threats, alarms, and imaginary inhabitants of bogeyland, can not grow up with a childish spontanity of self expression. At all ages, it is best to be sensible and reason with children. The process is slow, but it will have lasting results.

The movie craze of to-day puts before the child terrifying situations, even those untrue to life. On the impressive child mind, these become deep seated. Wise is the mother who sees to it that her children attend only the movies that give the child constructive ideas and impressions and who directs his reading toward wholesome channels that will deepen his insight into life.

To help the child in overcoming any abnormal fear, we must keep his body fit. A healthy body makes for mental as well as physical resistance. Fatigue, malnutrition and physical defects each have their part in weakening the nervous system. Often a warm bath and a glass of milk will prevent the development of acute stages of abnormal fear.

Normal everyday living is undoubtedly an influential agent in expelling morbid fear. If the child is not deceived by bogey men, goblins and ghosts and other monsters, and enjoys the thrill of success in his work and play, he will develop a confidence in himself. Nourish a child's trustfulness in life, and you build a foundation to fortify him against abnormal fear.

JELLY ROLL THAT ROLLS.

Most children like jelly roll, and I find it a good cake to bake, even for company, when one is in a hurry. I formerly had trouble in rolling them, however, for often they would crack, but I have no trouble since I adopted the plan of turning the sheet of cake out on a cloth wrung out of hot water. I also use light brown sugar instead of granulated, using just a bit more, as it is not quite so sweet as the granulated. I often heat some jelly or preserves and stir into it marshmallows cut up into bits, about a half dozen. This makes a nice change in the mixture to spread on the cake before rolling. Instead of the jelly I sometimes use an icing to which shredded cocoanut or finely chopped nut meats are added.—M. M.

SLEEPYLAND SECRETS.

Our little wide-eyed Josephine
Went down the path to play,
And up from out of fairyland
Came trooping elf and fay.
They ran with her and skipped with her;
Then, where the grass was deep,
They snared her into Drowsyland
And left her there asleep.

They tucked her into coverlets
Of tufted grass, and, lo,
We could not find our Josephine,
No matter where we'd go,
Until a dancing butterfly
Came down the winds to tell
About a wee babe sound asleep
Beside a fairy well.

And that was little Josephine,
Our little wide-eyed one,
Who never wants to go to sleep
Though all the day be done.
How did they make her go to sleep?
What was the magic spell
That lulled our baby into dreams—
Can anybody tell.

Minard's Liniment for Dandruff.

STARTING LINEN RIGHT.

During a recent visit to the shop of a linen merchant who does a large importing business, I learned that all new linen which is not intended for immediate use should be thoroughly washed and ironed before being placed in chests or linen closets. Laundering removes the dressing which is found nowadays in even the finest and most expensive linens, and prevents rotting along the creases. Choice linen which is to be laid away for some time should be carefully wrapped in generous folds of dark blue tissue paper in order to preserve its snowy whiteness.

ISSUE No. 20—'24.

Repaying Mrs. Mullaney

BY ELIZABETH GUILFOILE.

PART II.

Ruth felt an odd hesitancy to reintroduce the subject of Mrs. Mullaney's payment. In the week that followed she had much to do. Joe warned her not to overtax her strength. She knotted a little fist that was gaining a brown tinge again and pointed to the tight muscle on her forearm.

"Look at that! I'm young and strong and my muscles are hard. I use my brain and my heart is in my job. But I wonder why I can't accomplish as much as Mrs. Mullaney? She is much older, she looks far frailer and she certainly hasn't the incentives to do her best that I have. Yet she is much surer and swifter in the race than I am."

"I think," said Joe slowly, as if he were feeling his way in his own thought, "that it is because you are carrying a handicap."

She wondered why she did not ask him to explain.

Late Sunday afternoon, as she tugged at a viciously-rooted burdock in the back yard, Joe was milking in the barn. Supper was ready and Ruth had started out to meet him when she observed that bed of burdocks. She attacked it with a kind of fierce energy.

"There just isn't time to do all the things that ought to be done and I haven't the strength to do them! Oh, dear! I wonder what Joe meant by 'a handicap.'"

"Ruth, it's Sunday!" Joe came through the picket gate. "Besides you're exhausting yourself. You look worn out."

She straightened up, flushed and nervous with exertion and started to speak. She would ask him about that handicap. A shout at the gate caused both of them to turn.

"Hullo! Mrs. Hayden, come quick!" the voice was imperative. Dr. Kellar was bringing his car to a halt beside the gate.

"Mullaney's oldest girl is in bad shape. Hurry! I haven't a minute to lose."

"What is the matter with her?"

"Swallowed laudanum."

Ruth turned white with horror. She glanced at Joe.

"Your supper—the milk."

"Go, dear," he said quickly and swung open the door of the car for her. "I'll come later."

In the mile that lay between them and the Mullaney house, the doctor explained more fully. Ruth had seen Mary Mullaney, a shy girl of sixteen, poorly dressed.

"Wanted to go out with her beau," said the doctor, "like any blessed young thing would. They've been keeping it dark from Mullaney. He's too much of a slouch to clean himself up Sundays. He's usually off in the woods, hunting and fishing. That suited Mary very well. He happened along just at the wrong minute this afternoon. She was getting into a machine with a strange young fellow. He ordered her to get out and stay at home. It's bad business to humiliate one's child. Even if he didn't like the looks of things he could have gone about it in a different way."

They drove into the yard. The doctor alighted leaving Ruth to look out for herself. Mullaney met them.

'Quick, Doc! For God's sake! We can't keep her awake much longer."

"Mrs. Mullaney knelt beside a couch, sobbing aloud and beating the hands of the girl who was slipping into stupor.

"Oh, honey, don't go to sleep! Mary, Mary! Mother's darling! Don't leave me! Wake up, Mary! Listen, child, and I'll tell you something wonderful. . . . . Something . . . ."

A little, inarticulate cry of joy and relief fell from her when she saw the doctor. She flung herself into Ruth's arms.

"To think you'd find me like this the first time you came to see me! Oh, my baby! my baby! Oh, what if he can't save her!"

Ruth pressed her gently into a chair.

"Hush, dear," she said tenderly, "we're going to save her. Mary is strong and Dr. Kellar knows."

The doctor gave some quick, low-voiced orders, which Ruth obeyed swiftly. They did what they could but the drug had already got in some of it deadly work. Then they lifted the girl to her feet and began the march against death. Dr. Kellar on one side and Ruth on the other, they half dragged, half carried her back and forth, back and forth, the length of the room. Crouched in a chair, her work-worn hands clutching her shoulders, Mrs. Mullaney watched them and whispered broken prayers. Through the window came the sound of a man's racking sobs. Ruth did not know how long they kept up that walk, with the girl pleading inarticulately to be left alone. Joe came after a while and relieved his wife. The doctor nodded to her. "Better look after the rest of them. Mary is reviving.

Ruth slipped away from them and went to look for Mullaney. She found him crouched against the side of the barn, moaning through his locked hands—a conscience-stricken man.

"I meant her no harm, Mrs. Hayden," he repeated over and over. "I love my children. I'm not much shakes at makin' a nice livin' for them but I'd shield them from danger if I had to walk on fire to do it. I want my girls to be good girls. Mary's young and I didn't know that feller. I done the wrong thing but I'll make it up her."

Ruth sat beside him on the long grass and talked steadily. Her voice gradually released him from his agonized tension. Ruth would never have another such opportunity. She used it and he responded. He would dress up on Sundays and meet Mary's friends. He would buy new dresses for the girls. Yes, he would, he would be a real man, husband and father!

Finally quieted, but spent as if from a life wound, he went back to the house with Ruth. It was past midnight. The doctor said the worst was over.

"I sent Joe home," the doctor said. "He has his own haying to do tomorrow and I think he'll be wanting to lend Mullaney a hand with this week's work. You and I will watch."

At last the heart-shaken family were all in bed. The doctor built a fire in the little grate. Then they prepared a lunch for themselves and ate it beside the fire.

"When you called me I was very tired," said Ruth. "Now after all this I feel strong and fresh. What an experience!"

"My dear lady," said the old doctor, "you have had your first baptism of neighborhood service. I would not have called on you to-night if there had been any other woman near enough. I didn't know you had the courage and the strength—and the love—to do it."

"I am not sure that I had. It seemed to be given to me at the moment. I owe Mrs. Mullaney a great deal. She found time and strength to come to me when I was ill. Not until to-night did I realize the kind of service she rendered me. I had calculated her service in terms of money. I wanted to pay her with a cheque."

"You knew no better," said the doctor gently, "you had not learned the uselessness of trying to measure the value of kindness in coin."

He sat silent for a little watching the flickering fire light. Then he spoke again.

"The great minds that wrestle with financial problems have never tackled the subject of neighborhood credit. In my thirty-five years of practice in this community I have seen hoarded treasure that all the gold in the government vaults could not replace. The goodness and tenderness and mercy of neighbors is the greatest treasury in the world. You can never in anywise repay your neighbor for what he has done for you. Rates of exchange cannot be figured in the country. You can reward your neighbor only in terms of his need. You'll be growing stronger than you have ever been, Mrs. Hayden," he went on. "These are your people, here in this community where you have chosen your husband and your home. You owe Mrs. Mullaney something money cannot pay. In turn, you have made her your debtor to-night. Sympathy and love and understanding are the safest currency in the world."

The old man was very tired. His watching spirit was stronger than his mortal body. His voice began to trail huskily. He nodded once or twice, turned his head on the worn upholstery of the chair and went to sleep. Ruth had much to ponder and she kept the watch until dawn when she tapped softly on Mrs. Mullaney's door and gently shook the doctor. Then she set off to walk through the dew-covered field to her own house. Her heart was leaping with the joy of a great discovery.

She saw Joe coming toward her across the field with a bridle over his arm.

"I was going to hitch up and bring you home," he said. "I knew you would be very tired."

There was a light in her eyes like that of the morning sky as she looked up at him.

"I am not tired, dear! I—I have discovered my handicap!"

"You are looking wonderful."

Smoke was curling up from the chimney.

"You haven't had your breakfast!"

"No, you know I'm not much of a cook. But Al is there fixing things up. He came up three hours early this morning, Ruth," he said slowly at last. "He wants to go back on his bargain. He says he would rather work for less wages. . . This has always been his home."

For answer she squeezed the big, brown hand that held hers. Words are not always needful. They went together into the pretty sitting-room and Ruth took something from the mantle beside the clock. Still holding Joe's hand she went into the kitchen. Al stood beside the stove shaking the coffee pot and grinning sheepishly.

With a smile Ruth handed him the key to his door. Then she lifted the lid of the stove and dropped into the flame a notepad with some figures on it and a long line drawn through the middle of them.

"I've discovered what I left out of my calculations, Joe," she said as she replaced the smoking pancake griddle.

"Breakfast's ready," said Al Grimes. "I reckon'd you'd not feel like gettin' it so I turned to. Your Pa, Joe, used to say my flapjacks were the beatinest! I used to make 'em when your Ma was short-handed. Sit up!"

A CAPACIOUS LAUNDRY BAG.

A good laundry bag that is up out of the way and that will hold as much as a good-sized basket can be made from any stout material by simply sewing up the sides to make a sack, hemming the top edges and running a stick through one hem. That side can then be fastened to the wall of the bathroom or washroom, and the other will hang conveniently open enough for placing articles of any size into it, yet will not spill any of the contents out.

Canada from Coast to Coast

Nelson, B.C.—Approximately 4,000 tons of onions were grown in the Okanagan during the past season, principally around Vernon, Kelowna and Armstrong. The crop was a fair one and the prices paid such as returned a fair profit to the growers.

Grande Prairie, Alta.—Shipments of grain from the Grande Prairie and Peace River districts over the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway during the past season have totalled 2,471,000 bushels of wheat and 1,700,500 bushels of other grains.

Saskatoon, Sask. — Preliminary work has commenced on the construction of the $480,000 provincial sanatorium in Saskatoon. It is anticipated that employment will be provided for upward of 100 men immediately excavation work is completed and the running of concrete commenced.

Winnipeg, Man.—British buyers were satisfied with the shipments of Canadian grain received last year, according to evidence submitted to the Royal Grain Commission here. One witness said that his company had shipped 48,000,000 bushels of wheat to the United Kingdom last year, and not a single complaint had been registered.

Toronto, Ont.—The exportation of Canadian made automobiles during the twelve months ended March, 1924, showed a remarkable increase over the exportation during the twelve months ended March, 1923. During the year ended March, 1924, 54,522 passenger cars valued at $27,246,025 were exported, and during the previous year 45,108 cars, valued at $27,246,025 were exported, and during the previous year 45,108 cars, valued at $25,606,350 were shipped from Canada. The value of automobile parts exported during the compared periods increased from $2,355,066 to $4,162,787. Automobiles used chiefly for freight increased from 3,720 in the year ended March, 1923, to 15,396 in the twelve months ended March, 1924.

Montreal, Que.—The value of boots and shoes exported by Canada during the year ended March, 1924, more than doubled the exports of the preceding year. Last year the exportations were valued at $304,913 and for the previous year at $130,034. The United States was the chief buyer, taking 2,227 pairs, with Japan second, taking 1,628 pairs.

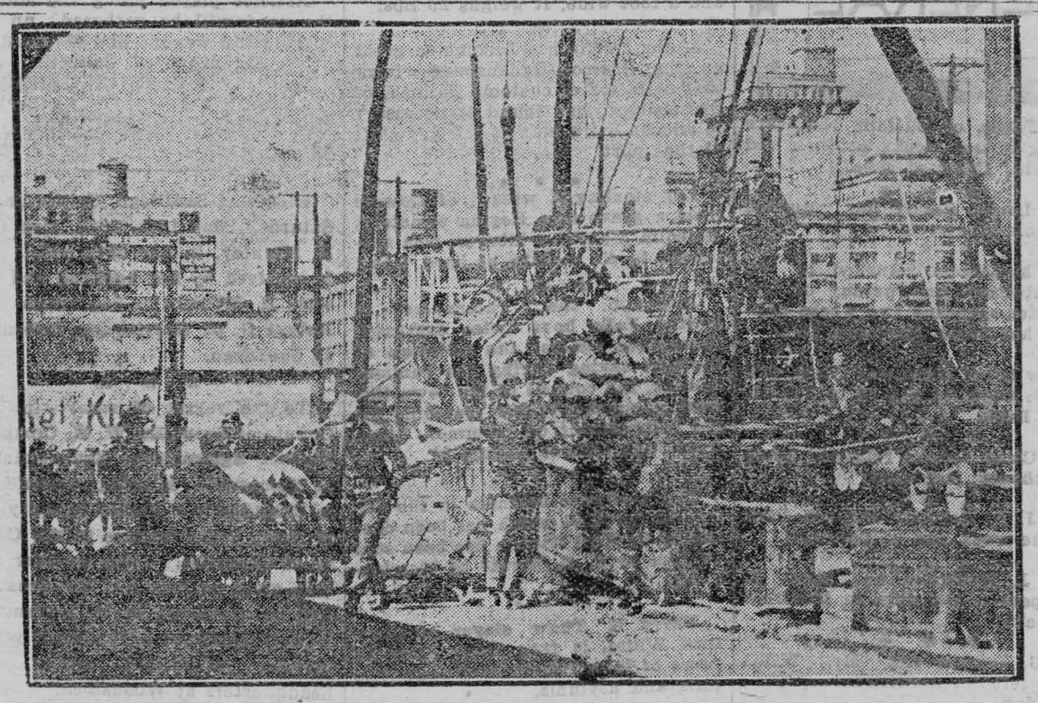

St. John, N.B.—The lumbermen of New Brunswick have seldom had such a remarkable winter for getting logs. Conditions have continued favorable into the present month, and the cut will be much larger than was anticipated in the early winter. Great numbers of small operators, down to the farmer who got out a few thousand feet, have added to the total a large aggregate quantity It is expected that approximately 50,000,000 feet of lumber will be marketed.

Sydney, N.S.—Advices received by the British Empire Steel Corporation offices from their London sales office indicate new ore sales in Europe for the coming season totalling 300,000 tons contracted for up to date, with the probabilities pointing to a grand total of half a million tons, dependent on the result of the Dawes Commission on German reparations.

Medal Goes to Dr. Banting for Benefiting Humanity

A despatch from Chicago says:—Dr. E. D. Burton, president of the University of Chicago, announced on Thursday that the committee on award of the Rosenberger Medal, to be conferred for benefit to humanity, has recommended the name of Dr. F. C. Banting of the University of Toronto, for the discovery of insulin.

The award will be made next month.

Unloading 20,000 bags of sugar on the Toronto waterfront, the biggest shipment of sugar ever received in the city. It was refined in Montreal and brought to Toronto by the water route.

Natural Resources Bulletin.

The Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior at Ottawa says:

One of the most attractive exhibits in the forest products display at the British Empire Exhibition to the business man is a roll of newsprint eighteen feet in length. This paper was made at one of the Northern Ontario mills, and is but a portion of the product of a machine which turns out 800 feet of paper of this width per minute, or a daily output of 200,000 pounds.

When consideration is given to the fact that but one newsprint-making machine is working at this capacity, the output of the many mills with many machines will be appreciated.

The woods to provide the raw material for this industry is taken from our forests. It is therefore self-evident that they deserve all the care we can give them, particularly from fire.

Australian Minister Needs Airplane to Visit Flock

"Sky pilot" as a nickname for a clergyman will soon have more definite significance if the example of the Rev. L. Daniels, formerly a London curate, now in charge of a parish in New South Wales, Australia, is widely followed, says a London despatch. The minister is here to make an appeal for a single-seat airplane to enable him effectively to travel among the members of his congregation, scattered over a parish as large as all of England.

His district, Wilcannia, in the far west corner of the Australian state, has an area of 40,000 square miles. It consists of a number of small townships, many of which are about 200 miles away from his home station. Then, too, there are scattered sheep farms and isolated homesteads.

The Rev. Mr. Daniels will be able to manage his own plane if he gets it, for he was trained as a pilot during the war.

CANADIAN PRODUCTS FAVORED AT WEMBLEY

Government's Million Dollar Investment Will Bring in Substantial Returns.

A despatch from London says:—A recent debate in the House of Commons registered some anxiety concerning the success of the British Empire Exhibition. To make it a financial success the attendance must average 175,000 daily, and so far the average has only been 30,000. As far as the Canadian section is concerned, however, it is already evident that the Government's million dollar investment is going to bring substantial returns. In the way of advertising it is apparent that the exhibition will be of incalculable value, and early as it is, can show a fair total of actual sales. A Canadian show case manufacturer who sent over an unattended exhibit was cabled an order for 150 lots, placed with the Canadian Exhibition authorities by a merchant from Argentina. The firm immediately rushed a representative over to take charge of its stand.

The presence of exhibition visitors has led big London stores to make special displays of Dominion products in their shops. There have been many comments on the high quality of the Canadian cheese, butter, etc., and this is understood to be partly due to the foresight of the Canadian provision trade and the Department of Trade and Commerce last winter in making available in London cold stores a carefully selected supply of these products of the highest quality. It is noteworthy that Canadian butter and cheese also bulk very largely in the supplies used by the exhibition restaurants, while those of New Zealand, despite their admitted quality. have not been stocked at all.

NORTHERN ALBERTA SWEPT BY FOREST FIRES

Parts of Saskatchewan Suffer from Numerous Bush Conflagations.

A despatch from Edmonton says:—Bush fires are raging over wide areas in Northern Alberta. The most serious outbreaks are west of Edmonton, northwest of Athabasca, and in the Peace River country. Six hundred thousand feet of logs, the property of H. Roberts, were burned near Whitecourt, northwest of Edmonton. Telegraphic communication with the Peace River country has been interrupted by the fires burning the poles, bringing the wires down with them. So far no loss of life has been reported.

A despatch from Prince Albert says:—Word reached the city on Thursday that disastrous fire swept large areas in Alingly, North Side and Paddock Wood districts, about 25 miles north of Prince Albert, burning out two homesteads without loss of life to humans or stock. Numerous bush fires were raging early Thursday morning in the district named, but are now petering out. It is rumored another fire is still active on an Indian reserve north of Alingly.

Child Emigration to Dominion Opposed by British Women

A despatch from London says:—Protests against the emigration of children, apart from their relatives, to the Dominions were made by delegates to the National Conference of Labor Women now being held in London. A resolution was passed urging that such emigration should be stopped until completely satisfactory plans were established for ascertaining the children's own inclinations in the matter and for supervising the children after their arrival in the Dominions.

Mrs. Harrison Bell, president of the National Conference of Labor Women, said the Overseas Settlement Committee, on the invitation of the Canadian authorities, was sending a deputation to Canada to investigate the conditions under which immigrant children were maintained there.

Removal of House Tax May Repeople London Area

Repopulation of the City of London proper—a square mile in the centre of the English capital, which hums with commercial activity all day long, but is completely deserted after nightfall—may result from the abolition of the "inhabited house duty" by Chancellor Philip Snowden, the city's Lord Mayor claims.

In future business men may again live over their offices without the house duty being required. Many office dwellings will now be reconverted into dwellings, so as to save the owners the expense of keeping up two establishments, and this probably will lead to the return of the good old days when the City families lived in the City.

Prince of Wales to Visit Rhodesia Next Year

A despatch from Salisbury, Rhodesia, says:—Sir John Chancellor, Governor of Southern Rhodesia, announces that the Prince of Wales will visit Rhodesia early in the summer of 1925, or towards the end of the year.

No More Knights of St. Patrick to be Created

Now that Ireland is no longer a part of his majesty's first domain, the Illustrious Order of St. Patrick—the proud motto of which is "Quis Separabit?"—is to be allowed to lapse.

This noble order, which was founded in 1783 by George III as the Irish sister to the Order of the Garter, has been the highest honor the sovereign could confer on an Irishman. During its existence it has numbered the noblest Irish peers among its knights.

Until the present generation all the male members of the royal family have been Knights of St. Patrick, but the sovereign as grand master and the Duke of Connaught at present are the only royal members. Although the Prince of Wales commonly appears in public wearing the Order's insignia on his breast along with the Garter and the Thistle, he is not technically entitled to do so, as he has never been appointed and enrolled.
