Don't want to stay on farm

"How are you gonna keep them down on the farm after they've seen Paree?" asked a highly popular song just after the end of World War I. Nowadays, states the Ottawa Citizen, there are other influences on the rural scene besides that exercised by the capital of France. Some of these, applying specifically to Canada, are dealt with by a sociologist of the federal Department of Agriculture, Dr Helen C. Abell.

Dr Abell finds that the drift from the farm applies to women as well as men, and that to a large extent it can be traced to the impact of modern schooling. Girls and boys, she suggests, are receiving a better education than formerly—or at least more of them are being exposed to education—and so are able to qualify for city jobs. The city appeals to them, and so if they can they stay there permanently.

One result, according to this sociologist, is to make the "hired girl" on the farm practically extinct, even more so, perhaps than the hired man. This means that a greater load falls on the farmer's wife, daughters and sons. Yet farm families manage some how to carry on. Not only that, but they are producing more food for an expanding population. Mechanization in the field and improved appliances in the home may help explain this fact.

Just the same, the situation is not too reassuring. Fewer and fewer Canadians, evidently, want to live in the country, more and more of them want to live in cities.

Let's go to the Fair

Next week Chesterville Fair will be held at the fair grounds. The big annual display will draw a lot of people into the town from the surrounding district and the second day, Wednesday, September 2, will find the grounds teeming.

This year the directors have a lot to offer. It is the year for the Holstein breeders to hold their Black and White Day here as well as the Eastern Ontario Guernsey Regional Show. The other breeds will be represented and Ayrshires, Jerseys and beef classes will be well filled.

There will be a lot of work to be done on fair day; it is hoped fair directors and others will be on hand to lend a needed hand at the gates and on the grounds. The directors plan to meet at the fair grounds on August 31 to pick up last minute detail. Anyone wishing to help will be more than welcome.

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS

by Lillian Allison

We didn't know where we were going when we left home Sunday morning. Then, when we did make up our minds, we didn't go there.

We've wanted to go to Montreal for a drive this summer. It's a long time since we've been there and Sunday is a fine time to go. The city people have gone to the country which leaves us more room. I've wanted to go to Valleyfield too for a better look ever since we passed through there two years ago on a Holstein Breeders' bus tour. I remembered lots of water, a beautiful park and gorgeous scenery.

We turned east on Highway 43 then ambled off through Apple Hill, Martintown, Williamstown to Lancaster on Highway 2. Now for folks who appreciate quiet, country scenery that drive is hard to beat. The road is good but the traffic isn't heavy which gives the driver a chance to gawk around. From Williamstown on the road curves along the Black River and the view is just a series of coloured pictures.

Highway 2 meant traffic. Cars tore along at terrific speeds as if they hadn't a minute to waste. We tried to keep up. We didn't know yet where we were going. Before it seemed possible we were at the turn to the bridge to Valleyfield. Harry said, "Let's go over there."

I never have trouble finding the way through a strange city as long as I have a street map but I didn't have one for Valleyfield. Before we knew it we were on the road to Montreal but after a mile or two we found a right turn that took us back where we were going.

Now Valleyfield is only a small place—23,000 approximately—but I thought we'd never get out of it. We had decided to go south to Huntingdon, up to Fort Covington, then to Massena to see the seaway and home. But first I wanted to see the park in Valleyfield.

I knew it was sort of out back of the restaurant where we ate in 1957 and that there was water galore behind it. But we couldn't find it. We got mixed up with cars leaving church and traffic was heavy. We drove round and round. We saw a little park where they sold frozen custard but it didn't look right. Finally we decided to look for Highway 3 and get out of there. We missed a turn somewhere and landed up at a prison camp at the edge of town.

Highway 3, when we found it, took us south to a bridge over Beauharnois Canal. A red light there warned us to stop. It's a good thing we did for it was a lift bridge and it was up for a ship to go through. It was an enormous lift bridge — larger than I had seen before. We waited and waited. Finally the ship came in sight. It was the longest ocean liner I have seen on the seaway. It glided past us like a toy boat in a bathtub.

Huntingdon was a pretty, little town with mountains rising a few miles beyond it. It sits straddle of the Chateauguay River which is probably bigger than our Nation. We thought it would be nice to eat our lunch along it so we drove both sides west of the bridge and couldn't find a spot. Just when we'd decided that it was as hard to find a place to eat a picnic lunch as it is to find a good restaurant I spotted a table along the road about two miles east of town.

We took a paved country road west of Huntingdon. It was a lovely drive. The farms are old. Low stone houses of the early settlers seemed to predom[illegible]te. But the farms looked well [illegible]ed for and prosperous.

It was about 2.30 when we went through the customs at Fort Covington and found my uncle one of the officers on duty there. We stopped to say "Hello" to my aunt and in five minutes my uncle arrived home from work. They wouldn't let us go until we'd had supper.

It was nearly seven when we got home to milk the cows. We'd travelled 175 miles (25 I think in trying to get out of Valleyfield) and we didn't see the canal and lock at Massena. We'll have to

4-H Clubs safety-rally well attended

On Thursday evening, August 18, 110 members of Dundas 4-H Clubs met in Winchester Springs at the Orange Hall to hold a meeting on farm safety.

Opening remarks were made by Ray Smith, assistant ag. rep., who explained briefly the Ontario farm accident survey which has been underway since March, 1959. He also covered some facts that have already come from the survey.

The meeting was addressed by Robert Kelly, engineering specialist from Kemptville Agricultural School, who spoke briefly on accidents in the home and then, with the help of coloured film, showed how to drive tractors more safely.

The 4-H'rs then enjoyed the excellent, thought-provoking safety film "Miracle in Paradise Valley" which shows what can happen when people "just don't think."

Towards the close of the meeting the subject was changed when Ray Smith introduced Philip Glassford, one of the four exchange Junior Farmer delegates from England now visiting Ontario. Mr Glassford's schedule called for a six-day stop in Dundas County and, fortunately, he was able to meet the 4-H members. His short but very interesting talk on England and his coloured slides of his home and of England were enjoyed by all.

The meeting, as are all 4-H safety meetings, was designed to make those in attendance more safety conscious in the hope that the shockingly high accident rate among farm boys and girls of 4-H Club age can be somewhat lowered.

SQUARE PEAS

The story comes from Milwaukee that the national canned pea council has issued a solemn call to horticulturalists. Please, fellows, can't somebody develop a square pea?

Why a square pea?

The council, which admits it examined all angles of the problem, has an answer read. Not only would square peas be more seaworthy on the consumer's knife, but they'd pack better.

RESTORE PIANO KEYS

Restore piano keys which have turned yellow. Clean them first of surface dirt with soap or some mild cleanser, then follow this by the careful use of a small amount of a mild bleach material.

One of the common commercial bleaches, properly diluted, or even lemon juice, might prove beneficial. If after cleaning, you leave the piano lid open, so that light can strike the keys, there may be a further whitening effect.

ROBINSON—In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs W. John Robinson, who passed away August 22, 1955.

Of the loss of one we loved so well;
And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep,
Her memory we shall always keep.

Ever remembered by daughters Olive MacMillan and Viola Gallinger.

IN MEMORIAM

MYERS—In loving memory of my dear brother, Stuart Myers, who was accidentally killed two years ago.

There's an open gate
At the end of the road
Through which each must go alone,
And there in a light we cannot see
Our Father claims His own;
Beyond the gate our loved one
Finds happiness and rest
And there is comfort
In the thought
That a loving God knows best.

Ever remembered by Sis (Pearl Link).

Morris–Fulton

The United Church at Brighton was the setting for the wedding on Friday, August 21, of Elizabeth Anne Fulton and John Alfred Howard Morris, both of Kemptville. The bride is the second daughter of Mr and Mrs Austin McLean Fulton, Brighton, and Mr Morris is the elder son of Mr and Mrs J. A. Morris, of Prescott.

Before baskets and standards of vari-coloured gladioli, the bridal couple made their vows to Rev J. M. Taylor, of Colborne, at the one o'clock, double-ring ceremony. Prior to the service, Mr Robert Wood, of Stratford, uncle of the bride, sang "The Lord's Prayer" and during the signing of the register, "Because." Mr J. Houlin, of Brighton, was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of ivory satin and Chantilly lace with scalloped neckline and long sleeves, and with sequin flowers at the neck. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a coronet of seed pearls. Her only jewellery was a string of cultured pearls, the gift of the groom.

Mrs Gail Bell, of Mattawa, was matron of honour, and the bride's two sisters, Miss Joan Fulton and Miss Heather Fulton, were the bridesmaids. Their harem style dresses were deep pink, deep blue and blue crystal charm, and their nosegays were of white 'mums, yellow and pink mottled carnations. Miss Deborah Morris, sister of the groom, as flower girl, wore a tiny harem style dress of pink nylon.

Mr Paul Courtice, Kemptville, was groomsman, and Mr Don Fulton, of Brighton, brother of the bride, and Mr Richard Clarke, of Prescott, were the ushers.

The bride's gift to the groom was a movie camera, while her attendants received crystal necklaces, and the flower girl a gold locket; the groomsman and ushers received engraved steins.

The reception, attended by 50 guests, was held at Woodmere Lodge, Presqu'Ile Point. The toast to the bride was proposed by her uncle, A. G. Fulton, of Toronto, and the Rev Frederick Payne, of Prescott, offered congratulations to the young couple. Mr Paul Courtice, who was master of ceremonies, read a cable from the groom's sister, Mrs Dan F. Clark, and Mr Clark, from Hornbaek, Denmark.

Mrs Fulton wore a gown of navy sheer over taffeta with navy accessories and a corsage of pink and white carnations. Mrs Morris was wearing a beige lace sheath dress, with accessories of moss green. Her corsage also was of pink and white carnations.

On their return they will take up residence in Kemptville where the groom is publisher and editor of The Weekly Advance, and Mrs Morris will resume her teaching duties at the North Grenville High School.

The BIBLE TODAY ...

On top of the Koya-San Mountain in Japan there is a plateau and the area is covered with monasteries of the Shingonshu sect, which was established 1,300 years ago by Koko-Daishi, who had returned to Japan after many years of study in China.

Tow teams of colporteurs of the Japan Bible Society from the Wakayama-Ken prefecture extended their work to cover this Buddhist Monastery group. They visited among the one hundred temples and monasteries, and endeavoured to interest the students of the Buddhist University and high schools in the Scriptures. The town's population is reported to be 10,000 and the surrounding towns and villages are under strong influence from Koya-San Mountain.

It is reported that after the six members of the two teams had spent half a day in prayer they commenced their work. Great difficulties were surmounted, and opposition gave way to co-operation. Fifty copies of the New Testament were asked for by the principal of one of the high schools, who later ordered fifty copies more for lower school pupils.

CLEAN BATS

Mrs John Fiorella, Buffalo, N.Y., thought she had bats in her belfry when she opened her automatic washer the other morning.

But the bats were in the washer—along with the day's wash. Two of the winged things clung to the agitator and blew soap bubbles with each breath, she said. The third was swimming around on top of the clothes.

Mrs Fiorella said she had no idea how they got into the washer.
