Interesting Lecture Given at Mission Band Thankoffering

Illustrated by Lantern Slides, Mrs. Turner's Address Proved Interesting to Morewood Audience.

The Crusaders' Mission Band, of Morewood, held their annual thankoffering in the Hall on Tuesday last, with Miss Lillie Feeley presiding in her most capable manner. Rev. W. D. Turner of Winchester conducted the devotional exercises. The Mission members sang "In Our Dear Lord's Garden," and Miss Margaret E. Nimmo recited, "Little Folks in China Land." Mrs. Turner called two of the young members forward and after a few words Margaret Nimmo presented Isabelle Hunter with a gold seal on her Junior Certificate. Mr. W. D. Turner showed some very fine lantern slides on Japan and the Indian mission schools in Canada. Mrs. Turner's lecture on these pictures was given in her usual interesting manner which proved educative to adults as well as the children.

"The Lord Is My Shepherd" was sung by the girls. On behalf of the Band, the junior president, Miss Mary McLeod moved a hearty vote of thanks to Rev. and Mrs. W. D. Turner for so kindly coming, as this was not the first time they have brought a message to the Morewood Band and the hope was expressed it would not be the last, as they bring the work out so clearly in their most pleasing manner. This was seconded by the secretary, Miss Marion Marcellus. The meeting closed with the Doxology and prayer by Rev. Turner.

The Young People's Society of Trinity United met Monday evening in charge of the Citizenship committee under the leadership of Mr. Eric Casselman. Messrs. Lois Boyd and Yvonne Merkley sang an enjoyable number.

A group of boys staged a play in which the story of the Good Samaritan was acted out. This was to illustrate one important factor in citizenship: "Love thy neighbour." Rev. Mr. Tait commented upon the programme in a most encouraging manner.

Nation Valley Farmer Turned Off Highway and Auto Crashed Into Vehicle—Was Thrown To Ground Suffering Broken Ribs, Bruises.

When the buggy in which he was riding was struck by a car on Sunday afternoon, Grant Gray, well-known Nation Valley farmer, was seriously hurt, the vehicle was smashed and the horse ran away.

Driving south on the Morrisburg highway, Mr. Gray turned left to a side road at Cass Bridge, and the car, driven by Albert Holmes, of Winchester Springs, crashed into the side of the buggy. Mr. Gray suffered two broken ribs, injuries to his hip and other bruises when he was thrown to the ground.

Dr. Peter McLaughlin, of Winchester, was called and rendered first aid No blame was attached to the driver of the car, who was following the buggy, and could not stop in time.

Stock and Produce Sale Successful at Morewood

Fine Sum Realized by Novel Method by Trustees of United Church.—Members of Congregation Give Freely of Farm Products.

On Tuesday last, the Trustees of the United Church in Morewood conducted an auction sale of stock and farm produce contributed by members of the congregation. Among the contributions brought were: a cow, a number of a calves, a sheep, and a number of pigs; also potatoes, apples, pumpkins, seed corn, mixed grains and buckwheat. One of the members brought 100 pounds of honey. Another a hand-made sleigh. Some of the members who did not bring contributions in the nature of stock and produce gave cash contributions. The total realized to date from this sale is $270. It is expected that more contributions will come in. The money realized from this sale is to be used to pay interest on the debt on the church. The trustees expect to have a sale of the same nature every year. Mr. John Currie of Crysler was the auctioneer. After the sale the ladies served a supper which was appreciated by all. While the stock and produce sale was going on in the church sheds the ladies were busy in the church hall holding a bazaar which also was a success.

McMillan---Whittle

The United church parsonage at Iroquois was the scene of a pretty marriage ceremony on Tuesday last at ten a.m. when Rev. Thomas Knowles united in holy matrimony Mary Beatrice, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Whittle, Iroquois, to Joseph Hyndman, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McMillan of Elma. The bride wore a becoming gown of blue crêpe fashioned on long slender lines with a large cape trimmed with blue and white beads, with hat ,shoes, hose and gloves to match. She carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums and maiden-hair fern tied with ivory satin ribbon.

The bride was attended by her sister, Florence G. Whittle, while Hugh McMillan, brother of the groom, acted as best man.

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served at the home of the bride's parents. A beautiful wedding cake adorned the centre of the table.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a sterling silver aqua marine ring, and to the best man, a gold signet ring.

Later the bride and groom left on a honeymoon trip by motor to Niagara Falls and other western points, returning by the United States. The bride travelled in a blue knitted suit of tweed wool with accessories to match.

On their return they will reside on the groom's farm at Elma.

SALE OF GRADED CHEESE ASKED ON HOME MARKETS

STRATFORD.—A step on the path towards better cheese for the home market was taken by the Cheesemakers' Association of Western Ontario at the annual convention of the organization held here Tuesday. The convention authorized the executive to draw up a resolution which will be forwarded to the Provincial Government asking that it be made compulsory to sell only graded cheese on home markets. The sentiment expressed by local consumers is that only cheese which will not measure up to the export grades is saved for home use and as a result the home market has been killed to a great extent.

Corwall Accident Victims Not Likely to Recover

Police Establish Identity of Men But Are Still Confronted With Much Mystery Concerning Accident.—Car Owner Refuses To Talk.

With the body of one man in the morgue in Cornwall, and two other patients in hospital not expected to live more than a few hours, it is thought that the death toll in the highway accident 15 miles west of Cornwall Tuesday will mount to three. Police are still confronted with much mystery in connection with the accident and the reticence of the owner of the automobile to talk leads them to believe that he is witholding information. A guard has been placed at the hospital and upon his discharge the owner of the automobile will be taken into custody.

In answer to a telegram sent Norfolk, Virginia, police, Detective Inspector Petty advised the Cornwall police that one or more of the men have records which are being forwarded by mail.

Communication with Norfolk police yesterday morning somewhat aided in the identification of the men. The dead man has been identified as James Overton, 17, of Norfolk, and the two men who are not expected to survive are Frank Lawless, 17, and Elwin Mark Burns, 21, both of Norfolk.

L. G. Langley, owner of the automobile, is the least injured and when question by police declared that Overton was driving the automobile at the time of the accident. He refused to answer other questions and police are certain he is endeavouring to cover up something.

The fifth occupant of the automobile, Joseph Cushing, 107 Silbert street, Kitchener, is suffering from injuries of a minor nature. He told police that he was walking along the highway when the other men stopped and offered him a ride. A telegram from J. A. Grant, inspector of motorcycle patrol, Toronto, to Highway Traffic Constable Harold Swain contained the information that Cushing had left Toronto hitchhiking to Montreal on Saturday.

Mr. Robert Metcalfe, aged resident of town, suffereod a fractured hip on Saturday when he took a bad fall.

Mrs. Rene Smith was taken to the General Hospital in Brockville on day morning.

Five Unidentified Men In Accident at Cornwall

One Killed, Four Others Rushed to Hospital Where Two Lie in Serious Condition.—Refuse to Give Police Any Information.

Cornwall.—With the body of one man in the morgue here and four other critically injured men in Cornwall General Hospital, the result of an automobile accident about 15 miles west of here Tuesday, police are confronted with a difficult task that night in identifying any of them. Only one of the four in hospital is able to talk and he has so far refused to answer questions put to him by police.

From the meagre information gathered by police, ambulance drivers and hospital authorities, it is believed the dead man is James Overton, of Norfolk, Virginia. Three of the more seriously injured men in the hospital are believed to be Leslie C. Langley, Frank Lawless and Elwin Mark Burns, all of Norfolk, Virginia. The fifth man, who is suffering from a severely lacerated mouth and face, as well as internal injuries, is thought to be Joseph Cushing, of Kitchener, Ont., whom the Virginia party are believed to have picked up on the highway.

No definite information as to the identity of any of the men has been uncovered however, and police are at a loss as to which of the men carry the names given. The revelation that Cushing was a hitch hiker from Kitchener was discounted by a member of the party who told police they had picked no one up on the highway.

At a late hour Tuesday night the morgue officials were awaiting developments and instructions in connection with the disposal of the dead man.

Sergt. R. P. Labelle, head of the local detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police, has wired authorities at Norfolk, Virginia. Uniess possible identificaton of the men reaches the police by morning, the dead man will be fingerprinted and it is hoped identification will be made in this manner. In the meantime, guards have been placed at the hospital and no opportunity to question the injured men will be lost.

The party of five was proceeding east along the Toronto - Montreal highway in a light coach bearing a Virginia license. The car rounded a bend in the road, ran onto the north shoulder and then careened to the opposite side of the pavement and sideswiped a large elm tree. The impact telescoped one side of the automobile and tore off the rear axle. The car plunged about 20 feet farther to run head on into another tree and turn turtle. It was damaged beyond repair.

During the mad plunge of the car one man was thrown clear and the others remained inside. Passing motorists extricated the men and administered first aid until doctors and ambulances arrived from this city. One man was dead when the doctors arrived, but the others were rushed to the hospital and emergency operations performed.

Frank Lawless and Elwin Mark Burns, were reported in a bulletin at the hospital at midnight to be in a very serious condition. Physicians were forced to give Lawless blood transfusions, but he failed to strengthen. Both men were not expected to live until morning. In the report, Cushing's condition was described as still serious but not dangerous.

Norfolk, Virginia, police have not yet replied to the request of local police for information concerning the men.

NEWS AND INFORMATION FOR THE BUSY FARMER

Furnished by the Ontario Department of Agriculture

Cost of Producing Corn Silage.

In a year like the present when hay is scarce and dear, corn silage is of more value than ever in supplying rough hay. At the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, this year the yield of corn averaged 19.3 tons per acre The cost of growing and ensiling this crop amounted to $41.74 per acre, or $2.20 per ton. On the basis of 375 pounds of corn silage being equivalent in feeding value to 100 pounds of hay ,at present prices of hay, silage has a value of over $3.00 per ton. Therefore, this crop produced a large volume of feed at a substantial profit per acre.

Potato Marketing Scheme.

A proposed scheme for the regulation of the marketing of potatoes produced in the five eastern provinces of Canada, and marketed through the channels of the commercial potato trade, has been submitted to the Dominion Marketing Board.

Copies of the scheme are available for distribution and representations, with respect to it by those concerned, should be forwarded to the Secretary, Dominion Marketing Board, Ottawa. As the potato market situation is an urgent one, it is desired that any representations which are made should be forwarded promptly.

Ontario Crops Win.

Seed of excellent quality has been harvested from the field crops in Ontario this year and growers have a wonderful opportunity to surpass the fine records which they have made in the past at Ontario exhibitions and the International Grain and Hay Show held annually in Chicago During the last five years, Ontario farmers have entered a total of 641 exhibits of grain and small seeds at Chicago, for which they have been awarded 382 prizes including seven championships, 4 reserve championships, and 18 first prizes.

Peas, beans, soybeans, red clover, alsike, alfalfa, timothy seed and flint corn are classes in which Ontario has usually made a fine showing

This year's International will be held from December 1st to 8th and in addition to the regular prizes, the Ontario Department of Agriculture is offering special prizes to Ontario exhibitors. All exhibits which are delivered to the Department of Field Husbandry, O.A.C., Guelph, before November 21st will be forwarded to Chicago in one shipment and returned when the show is over. Entries should be made before November 20th direct to the International Grain and Hay Show, Union Stock Yards, Chicago.

Fall Wheat and Rye and Hay.

The total yield of fall wheat in Canada in 1934 is now estimated at 7,022 000 bushels from 425,600 acres, a yield of 16.5 bushels per acre as compared with 14,031,000 bushels from 559.000 acres a yield per acre of 25.1 bushels in 1933. The 1934 production of fall wheat is the lowest in the Dominion Bureau of Statistics records dating from 1908, due chiefly to winter-killing and severe drought conditions in the counties of Ontario where most of the fall wheat is grown.

The production of fall rye in Canada in 1934 is estimated at 5,239,000 bushels, an increase of 1,785,000 bushels as compared with 1933. The increase is largely due to mcreased acreages in the Prairie Provinces.

Winter-killing of hay and clovers meadows in Ontario, and severe drought which has seriously affected all provinces except Quebec and British Columbia, have resulted in the lowest hay crop on record, namely 9,884,000 tons as compared with 11,443,000 tons in 1933. The first cutting of alfalfa yielded only 778,300 tons, as compared with a first cutting of 1,194,000 tons in 1933, this large decrease being also due to the severe winter and lack of moisture.

Entries For The Royal Indicate Confidence in Show

Entries for the forthcoming Royal Winter Fair, which close on Thursday, November 1st, are reaching the Bay street offices in a most gratifying way and average, so far, not merely larger in number but somewhat earlier in date than in previous years according to a statement made by the management. This is looked upon as an indication of confidence among the classes of exhibitors from the owners of blood-horses to the poultryman with a backyard flock.

"It is especially satisfactory to know that the possibility of a feed shortage following last summer's drought has not materialized so far as entries are concerned," says A. P. Westervelt, the manager, "as beef and dairy cattle breeders, as well as those of sheep and swine, promise to be represented as fullv as in former years, both from eastern and western provinces."

Boys' Inter-Club Competitions.

Teams representing 62 Boys' Agricultural Clubs gathered at the Ontario Agricultural College recently to vie for the honour of representing the Province of Ontario in an Inter-Provincial Boys' and Girls' Club Competition, to be conducted at the Royal Winter Fair. Each club competing was represented by two members between the ages of 16 and 20 years inclusive.

In Ontario in 1934, there were 2,482 boys enrolled in 133 Cattle, Swine, and Potato Clubs, supervised by the Ontario Agricultural Representative Branch, under the direction of the Director, R. S Duncan.

The Cattle Club Competition was closely contested by 24 teams and the honour of winning first place was captured by Ronald Bagg, Unionville, and Lorne Petch, Milliken, members of the Markham Dairy Calf Club in York County. J. E Alexander and Arthur Huff, Prince Edward County, finished a close second.

In the Grain Club Competition, Harry Kennedy, Cavan, and John Holmes, Newcastle, of the Durham County Grain Club were successful in winning the highest score in the competition with 16 other teams, while Billy Johnston, Renfrew, and Harry Wilson, Pembroke, finished second

The boys interested in Potato Club work also featured keen competition, and Ralph Rowan, Bethany, and Gordon Fallis, Millbrook, Durham county, were successful in winning first place from Duncan Fletcher, Ilderton, and Winslow Skinner, Strathroy, of Middlesex county, who finished in second place.

First and second places in the Swine Club Competition were taken by representatives of Durham County—Garnet Richard Bowmanville, and Wm. Rowland, Newcastle, being members of the winning team and John Rockard, Newcastle, and George Werry, Hampton, of second place team.

Following the keenly contested competitions, the competitors, coaches and officials were guests at a dinner in the O. A. C cafeteria. Following the announcement of the results, Dr. G I. Christie, President of the College, delivered an inspiring address which climaxed an interesting and enjoyable day for the club members who had gathered from as far as Renfrew in the east and Lambton in the west Another pleasing feature at this function was the presentation of "The Farmer" trophies, by Editor C. H. Hodge, to the teams from York and Durham counties, winners in the cattle and swine competitions respectively.

Gordonville

The community was shocked when it received word of the sudden, though rather expected, passing of James Thompson on Friday, October 26th, at the age of 65. The late Mr. Thompson was a life-long resident of this section and was always willing to aid those who needed help. He passed his 65th birthday on February 16th. He was a noted agriculturist and was one of those instrumental in building the local school. For 24 years he was a valued member of our schoolboard. He was a Liberal in politics. He was a son of the late James Thompson and his wife, Mary Fenton. About 47 years ago he married Jane Arbuthnot of Felton. Besides his widow he leaves seven sons: George E. and William, on the homestead; Campbell R. of Gordonville; Allan of Morewood; Cecil R , North Russell; E. Ray, of Russell, and John. Also 22 grandchildren and one great-grandchild survives besides one brother, William, of Cannamore; two sisters, Mrs. S. Miller, Metcalfe and Mrs. Wm Black of St. Thomas. The funeral service was held at his late residence on Sunday at two p.m., to the Presbyterian church, Morewood, with interment in the Presbyterian cemetery.

The pall bearers were friends of the deceased: Allan Stevens, Robert Stevens, Thomas Coulthart, Wesley Reveler, Stewart Gunn, Ira Barrington. The cortege, largest seen in years, showed the respect with which the late Mr Thompson was held. Relatives and friends noticed were from Cornwall, Northfield, Newington, Avonmore, Hallville, Melvins, Russell, Metcalfe and Ottawa.

Johnston Morrow Bereaved By Death of His Wife

Many Friends and Acquaintances Mourn Passing of Mrs. Morrow at Funeral on Sunday.

The respect and esteem in which Mrs. Johnston W. Morrow, Stittsville, was held by her many friends and acquaintances was demonstrated at her funeral which took place from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Beattie, at Arnprior, Sunday afternoon. Included in the lengthy cortege were many residents of the vicinity, where she and her husband have resided for more than four years. Service was held at the Pentecostal church, with the pastor, Rev Mr. Bullock, in charge, assisted by Rev. J. P. Rice and Rev. T. P. Shaver pastors of Stittsville Presbyterian and United churches.

Special singing was contributed by the male quartette of Stittsville United church: H. Argue, H. R. James, O. James and S. D. Argue, and a solo was sung by Mrs. J. W. Patrick, of Stittsville.

Surviving are her husband; parents, two sisters, Mrs. John Bond and Miss Muriel Beattie; three brothers: W. L Beattie, Cornwall; H. S., Chapleau, and Wilfred, Arnprior. The pallbearers were residents of Arnprior and Stittsville.

Mr. Morrow is a brother of Mr. Ross Morrow the popular Winchester Springs auctioneer.

"Yes, sir," panted the new shepherd, who was strange to country life. "I got all the sheep in, but I had to run hard for those lambs."

"Lambs! Why, I have no lambs. Let's see what you've got," was the reply. Looking into the shed, the astonished owner saw fourteen panting rabbits.

"You have only called one constable," said the man accused of being disorderly; "I want to hear the second constable's evidence"

"There wasn't a second constable present," said the policeman.

"You'll excuse me, but I distinctly saw him," persisted the prisoner.

"Yes; that's why you're here," was the reply.

Township Council Sues Former Board Members

Moneys Alleged Illegally Paid to Former Reeve and Council Members Over Period of Years Involving Large Sums.

The Township of Cambridge took further steps Monday to recover from former members of the township council money which it is alleged was paid to them illegally during their terms of office.

Three additional actions, filed in the local master's office at the court house, Ottawa, Monday morning were the sequel to the judgment given at the last sittings of assize in Ottawa by Mr. Justice Kingstone in favour of the township against J. Alvarez Brisson, former reeve. His Lordship during the case remarked that the practise of giving remuneration to members of council for services rendered was very bad and not the way to do public business.

Ferrier Forget, Philias Blanchard and Matthias Landry are named as defendants in the suits filed by Thos. Charlebois, solicitor for the township.

Mr. Forget is sued for $1,179.65 which it is claimed he received illegally in the years 1917, 1923, 1924, 1925 and 1928 when he was a member of council.

Mr. Blanchard is sued for $560 85 covering the years 1923, 1918 and 1918, while the council seeks the reimbursement of $287.80 from Mr. Landry for 1930 and 1931 when he was reeve.

Arrangements Complete For Veterans' Banquet

Big Time Reported in Store For Veterans at Second Annual Banquet to be Held in Winchester Friday Night.

Plans for the annual re-union banquet of veterans of the three united counties of Dundas, Stormont and Glengarry, to be held in Winchester Friday evening in the town hall were completed at a meeting of the Winchester branch of the Legion, who are sponsoring the affair in the club rooms.

According to the report of the secretary, F. Erle Helmer, the gathering will exceed expectations of the executive, and will be representative of all branches of overseas service. The banquet, which was inaugurated at Berwick last year, is one of the most important events among ex-service men in this district.

NECKLACES ARE SUGGESTED TO IDENTIFY QUINTUPLETS

Callander.—Five months and one week old Sunday, the Dionne quintuplets are growing so much alike that Dr. A. R. Dafoe, their physician, believes necklaces for identification purposes will be necessary. Names of the five daughters of Mrs. Oliva Dionne would be placed on the lockets.

A puzzled expression appeared on the tiny face of one of the girls, the doctor reports, when some snow fell on her cheeks last week. Heavy rain Sunday prevented the daily outing of the quintuplets.

"That is why we are so anxious to get the baby buggies for them," Dr. Dafoe said. "The covering would give them protection from rain and snow."

Toronto "Kid" Star Fails To Agree With Smythe

Maple Leafs' Famed "Kid Line" Appears Badly Busted With Conacher Suspended and Primeau Suffering Broken Thumb.

Toronto, Nov. 5th.—Almost on the eve of the National Hockey League opening, Toronto has lost the power in its celebrated "kid" forward line A few hours after Charlie Conacher, ace right winger and league-leading scorer last season, was suspended for failure to sign a contract, Joe Primeau's thumb was broken in an exhibition game.

Young Pep Kelly, rookie forward, slashed Primeau across the hands tonight in the second period of a practice game here, breaking the thumb on the right hand. The Leaf centre star will be kept on the sidelines for at least two weeks.

Unless Conacher comes to terms in the meantime, the Leafs will open the N.H L. campaign here Thursday night against Boston Bruins with only one "kid-liner," Harvey Jackson, in action. It had not been decided to-night who would make up the balance of Toronto's first-string forward line.

Managing Director Conny Smythe announced to-day he had suspended Conacher after protracted negotiations which brought the two no closer on a salary agreement than when they started. The big right-winger, hockey's most feared marksman, did not even attend to-night's exhibition skirmish.

Smythe refused to comment. He said President Frank Calder of the N H. L. had been notified of Conacher's suspension and that his ace winger would have to discuss terms with the league head before he could be reinstated.

Continent Crossed Once and a Half To Bring Valuable Cat to Royal Fair

REGINA.—There is at least one tortoise male cat in the world in the opinion of A. P .McRae of Chaplin, Sask., who confirmed a report he would enter the cat at the Royal Winter Fair, Toronto.

In order to enter the cat, Mr. McRae will travel across Canada to the Atlantic coast and half-way back because this most unusual tabby is at present in the care of his sister at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island

The cat, Mr. McRae said, was 10 years old. He recalled its breed as a tortoise was humourously referred to by his mother some years ago. Together they read an announcement in a newspaper which offered $5,000 for a cat of that type.

"Mother remarked, at the time: 'Why, there's one right over there.' We laughed at the remark and both forgot all about it. I have since thought it over, however, and decided to enter it at Toronto.'

Mr. McRae said he would make the long journey to Charlottetown and personally escort his entry to the fair.

Prescott Anglers Receive Prizes at Annual Meeting

Anglers Who Captured Largest Small-Mouth Bass and Largest Pike Receive Casting Rods and Reels.

Prescott.—A meeting of the Prescott Protective Fish and Game Association was held on Friday night in the club rooms. The president, J. E. Adams, occupied the chair and a large number of members were present After the regular business of the meeting had been disposed of, Mr. Adams presented the season's prizes to the members who were fortunate enough to register the largest small-mouth black bass, and the largest pike. John L. Reid, secretary of the club, won the prize for the largest black bass: three pounds and one ounce; and Leonard Urquhart won the prize for the largest pike, eight pounds. Both prizes were casting rods and reels.

The secretary announced that the Prescott club now has a membership of 230, which is considered a fine showing owing to the fact that the club is still in its infancy, having been organized only last winter.

Calander, Nov. 6th.—The automobile that has carried Dr. A. R. Dafoe on his daily visits to the famous Dionne quintuplets was stolen during the night, the doctor found to-day when he went to his garage.

The doctor reported the theft to North Bay police who issued instructions to officers to watch for a blue coupe bearing the license plates D-70. Meanwhile the physician to the infants who reached the age of 23 weeks and one day chartered another car and went to the Dafoe Hospital to find two of his charges had moved into new weight classes.

At the same time Cecile gained an ounce and broke into the 10-pound class, going over that figure by one-half ounce.

Device Measures Depths By Echoing Shrill Sounds

Sailors and Navigators Will Be Greatly Aided by Science's New Invention.

Washington.—A sound so shrill it cannot be heard, which measures the depth of a shallow water almost as accurately as a foot rule, is science's new aid to sailors and navigators, announced this week by the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey.

The new device called the "shoal fathometer," is expected to be an important aid to ships navigating in shoal water and in making charts of the bottom in shallow-water areas. It is an adaptation and improvement of the deep-water fathometer ,used by the coast survey in charting coastal waters and by ships generally for about nine years.

The shoal fathometer, like the deep-water type, measures depth by measuring the time taken for a sound to travel from a ship's keel to the sea bottom and to echo back to the ship again. The new device, however, is much more accurate and sensitive than the old, for it measures almost unbelievably brief time intervals, as short as a few thousandths of a second, with an accuracy of four one-hundred thousandth of a second.

HEALTH by Dr. Roberts

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

THE SANATORIUM.

"NOT WHERE he is but what he does will determine whether he gets well," writes one author on the subject of tuberculosis. The same author agrees that the sanatorium is the best place for treatment because it is there that the paient learns best what he should and what he should not do.

Many who become ill cling to their homes and resent the idea of removal from their family and the home surroundings. They are somewhat fearful of an institution, and they have no desire to meet new people or to be under the care of strange doctors and nurses.

There was a time when the location of the sanatorium was considered to be an important point. We know now that climate is of relatively little importance in the treatment of tuberculosis. Some patients do better in one climate than in another, but there is no general rule on this subject. The air should be clear, and free from smoke, dust and odours.

One of the reasons in favour of sanatorium care is that, in sanatorium, the patient finds it easier to form the new habits of life which he must practise if he is to recover and maintain his health, because he is with others who are doing the same thing. The sanatorium staff is composed of individuals who are devoting their lives to the fight against tuberculosis. Naturally ,in the sanatorium, are found the special skills used to combat the disease.

While it is true that the sanatorium regime may be copied in the home, it is impossible to be in the home, even when confined to bed, and escape the worries of the household the advice of visitors, the noise of the streets and the ringing of the telephone bell. Rest—physical and mental—is what is required, and in very few homes is it possible to give the patient that complete physical relaxation and freedom from worry which are required during the early part of his treatment.

There are other advantages in the sanatorium for the patient, and over and above all there is the protection that the patient's stay in sanatorium affords his family. Tuberculosis is spread from the sick to the well. It is believed that no one under sixteen years of age should be allowed to live in the same home with an active case of tuberculosis, because of the danger of infection. The patient in sanatorium is no source of danger to his family. It is this security which decides many fathers and mothers to accept temporary separation from their families in order to protect their children. In sanatorium, too, they will learn how to live so as not to spread the disease when they return to their homes.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT

MISS HELEN LACEY, B. H. Sc.

NEW VEGETABLE RECIPES.

DON'T COOK your carrots and your beets and your onions and your peas in the same way day after day. There are many different methods of cooking vegetables, so let us take advantage of these and thereby add variety and interest to our meals.

In the fall and winter the variety of vegetables to be had is smaller than in the summer, and it is necessary to serve the same vegetables oftener. If the method of preparation is not changed we will tire of them long before the fresh spring vegetables appear on the market.

POTATO BALLS AU GRATIN.

2 cups mashed potatoes
½ cup grated cheese
¼ teaspoon mustard
1½ tablespoons butter
1 egg
Dry breadcrumbs
1 teaspoon salt
Few grains pepper

Combine potatoes, cheese, mustard, melted butter, pepper and salt; shape the mixture into round balls. Roll balls in beaten egg and then in dry crumbs. Place in a buttered pan and brown in a moderate oven. These balls may be cooked in deep fat, instead, if desired.

BAKED SQUASH.

Cut the squash in pieces of suitable size for individual servings. Remove seeds and membrane. Bake in oven till tender; season with salt, pepper and a liberal amount of butter. Serve in the rind.

CAULIFLOWER WITH CHEESE.

Parboil a head of cauliflower 10 minutes without separating. Place in a baking dish Add ½ cup milk, sprinkle with grated cheese, salt and pepper. Cover and bake 15 minutes. Remove cover and allow cheese to brown slightly.

BAKED ONIONS.

Allow onions to simmer 20 minutes in salted water. Drain, arrange in a baking dish. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Cover with boiling water and bake 1 hour. Place in a hot serving dish and pour over them the following sauce:

1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup liquid (Use the water in which the onions were cooked with enough milk to make the correct amount).
2 egg yolks
4 tablespoons cream

Melt butter, blend in flour, add hot liquid gradually. Stir until thick. Remove from heat and add egg yolks beaten with the cream.

BROWNED TURNIPS.

Pare turnips and cut in slices. Boil ½ hour. Drain and place in a pan with melted butter. Add 1 tablespoon sugar. Season with salt and pepper; brown in a moderate oven or on the top of the stove.

CHEESE SQUASH.

To 2 cups of mashed squash, add ¼ cup cream or evaporated milk and ½ tablespoon of melted butter. Mix well and pour into a buttered baking dish. Cover with crumbs and grated cheese Bake in a moderate oven until brown.

VEGETABLE PIE.

This pie is sufficient for a one-dish vegetable, luncheon or supper.

1 cup diced carrots
1 cup cauliflower
1 cup peas or string beans
2 cups white sauce
¼ cup grated cheese

Place vegetables in a casserole in layers or mix together first. Cover with white sauce and grated cheese. This pie may then be covered with a potato or pastry crust. Left-over vegetables may be used to advantage in this recipe A little chili sauce or catsup added to the white sauce will improve the flavour.

CREAM OF CARROT SOUP.

2 cups carrots
4 slices onion
2 cups milk
2 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
Salt and pepper

Cut carrots in small pieces and cook with the onion in sufficient water to cover, until tender. Press through a strainer. (There should be 2 cups of stock.) Melt the butter, blend in the flour, salt and pepper; add hot vegetable stock slowly Cook over direct heat until the flour is cooked, stirring constantly. Add hot milk and serve at once.

Vegetables all supply vitamins, minerals, water and bulk. Some provide carbohydrate in considerable quantities and others furnish protein.

* * * *

Such vegetables as potatoes, parsnips, corn, peas and beans supply carbohydrates.

* * * *

Hors d'oeuvres are side dishes or relishes Usually served at the beginning of a meal as an appetizer.

* * * *

A purée is made by rubbing the ingredients from which it is made through a sieve to make a thick soup; any thick paste such as mashed potatoes is called a purée. Puréed vegetables are very often given to children and to invalids as they are easy to digest. The coarse part and long string fibres are removed in puréeing.

* * * *

If soda is added to the water in which vegetables are boiled they will cook more quickly. It also helps to retain the green colour of vegetables but the vitamins may be more readily destroyed when soda is used Thus the use of soda in cooking vegetables is not to be desired. The vitamins are more important than the colour and if the time for preparing meals is properly managed their should be no need to hasten the cooking of vegetables by the addition of soda. Even cream of tomato soup if made carefully can be done without the addition of soda and still be free from curdled milk.

At a country fête a conjurer was performing the old trick of producing eggs from a pocket handkerchief, when he remarked to a little boy in fun: "Say, my boy, your mother can't get eggs without hens, can she?"

"Of course, she can," replied the boy

"How is that?" asked the conjurer.

"Why, she keeps ducks," replied the boy.

A suburanite espied his neighbour coming down the road with his fishing tackle on his back.

"Catch anything, old boy?" he eagerly asked.

"Yes, two," said his neighbour, but in surprisingly doleful tones

"Good!" said the suburbanite. "What were they?"

"The seven-thirty there and the five-fifteen back," came the unhappy angler's reply.

THE ELDER'S BROTHER ANDRE

IN STORIES of our home life at the old squire's in Maine I have often spoken of Elder Witham—the austere old preacher whom we boys never liked, yet always respected. When farm work was urgent he came frequently to help us, since he did not in the least disdain to labour with his hands. Very efficient hands they were, too, for the elder was an ingenious Yankee as well as a stern Puritan.

But the elder had a brother, Andrew, who was also a Yankee, with the Puritan left out of him. During the first year that we young people were at the old squire's, Andrew was in California and we did not hear much about him. The elder never mentioned his name and looked grave when others did. Once, I remember, Grandmother Ruth referred to him at table, and the elder said with deep feeling:

"Don't mention Andrew to me. I have given him up. I despair of his future"

Queer reports had come back of Brother Andrew's exploits in the golden west; and there had been one or two letters from inquisitive municipal officers inquiring about his antecedents. Elder Witham had received too, a copy of a San Francisco newspaper that contained an account of the financial collapse of a scheme to build a sanatorium that was to be supplied with pure air by means of a pipe, or funnel, a thousand feet high. Andrew Witham, whose name was mentioned in connection with the scheme, was reported to have left California abruptly for Canada.

William and Andrew Witham had grown up together at the old Witham farm, and after the death of their father had carried the place on, although in a rather casual manner. Both were fond of reading and experimenting; they also liked to argue although their disputes often ended in hot quarrels. In fact, they differed constantly, for, whereas William was by nature conscientious, Andrew seemed always to have been tricky

It was about that time that Andrew first got the idea that he later tried to put into use in California. He had been reading about the atmosphere and its component gases and as a result conceived a plan for making the air more healthful to breathe.

When the boys were about eighteen or nineteen, William took a religious turn of mind. He had attended a series of revival meetings and thought, though he was not sure, that he had had a call to preach the gospel. While he was still in a state of painful uncertainty whether to prepare himself for the ministry, his brother set his wits to work to influence William. Andrew thought that if William should leave to become a preacher, he himself would get possession of the farm.

Going out to the cornfield, he pasted on several pumpkins, which were still green, the letters P.G., cut from paper. When the pumpkins had turned yellow he secretly rubbed off the pieces of paper. On each of the pumpkins the letters P.G. were distinctly marked in green.

When William went out with a cart to gather the crop he noticed the mysterious letters and was filled with wonder.

"P. G., plain as can be!" he exclaimed again and again. "P.G, What can that mean?"

Andrew said nothing until they were driving in with their last load; then he remarked casually, "'P.G.,' Bill. I believe that stands for 'Preach the Gospel.' I guess that means you, Bill."

That wily suggestion is said to have had much to do in influencing William to become a preacher and to assign his rights in the farm to Andrew, who engaged to remain at home and care for his mother. She lived only three years longer, however, and immediately after her death Andrew sold the place for three thousand dollars and left for California, where he hoped to launch his long-cherished project.

William was greatly displeased at having the home farm pass into the hands of strangers; and before Andrew left the two brothers had a heated controversy, in the course of which Andrew revealed the origin of the mysterious letters on the pumpkin.

"You got your call, all right, Bill," said he. "But 'twas I that called ye."

After the rumor of Andrew's flight to Canada we heard nothing more of him at home until the date of this chronicle. By that time the little group of us young folks at the old squire's had broken up. Cousin Ellen and I, indeed, were still there; but Addison, Theodora and Halstead had left home. The old squire was not doing so much in the lumber business as formerly. His sawmill on the upper course of Lurvey's Stream was often idle, althought seven or eight French-Canadian families still lived up there.

One day strange tidings reached us from the mill. A mysterious person had appeared in the little settlement and was healing all manner of ailments by immersing the sufferers in a pool among the ledges of the stream bed above the mill.

The unknown healer called his bath the Pool of Siloam; he had long hair and wore a white robe. The charge for his restorative ablution was moderate—twenty-five cents.

Report had it that more than fifty persons were there, being immersed at intervals of two days, and that the pool had advertised itself so effectively that numbers of people from over the border were arriving and camping near the mill.

It was said that the pool mysteriously emptied itself as a bather left it, and that after it filled again the healer would permit no one to enter it until the water "moved," which it did at times with loud gurglings. Then, after certain incantations by the healer, another sufferer stepped into the water.

Convinced hat some charltan was fleecing ignorant people on his property, the old squire hastened up there with Elder Witham, who was working with us that week They found a good many people about the place, and, hitching their horse some distance below the mill, they went round through the woods toward the pool.

Peering through the bushes, they presently caught sight of the white-robed one in the act of immersing a decrepit Frenchwoman. They recognized him instantly. It was the elder's long-absent brother Andrew!

The discovery gave the elder such a shock that he turned white. Out of respect for his feeling, the old squire did not disclose himself; and they came home. That evening, I remember, the elder offered fervent prayer for "those of our own blood who have strayed far from the paths of rectitude."

The following Monday the old squire drove up to the mill again and took a constable with him. They examined the pool and ascertained that the "moving of the waters" was accomplished by means of a cunningly concealed pipe and bellows, which also emptied and filled the pool; the mechanism was worked from a little booth near by to which the healer retired ostensibly to beseech divine aid

When the old squire bade Brother Andrew betake himself and his confidence game off the premises, the other laughed brazenly.

"I see this performance looks bad to you," he said jocosely. "But have you lived seventy years in the world and have not learned yet that one round half of it is working a confidence game on the other half? I haven't done these fool folks any harm; I've done em good—more'n twenty-five cents' worth."

"If I catch you here after to-day, I will have you jailed," the old squire replied sternly and left without further words.

But the next evening, as our family were at supper,—the elder had gone to his home two miles away,—whom should we see at the open door but Brother Andrew—without his white robe. The old squire got up suddenly and went to confront him there, saying, "Well, sir?" in no very friendly tone.

"I wish to speak with you," Brother Andrew remarked gently.

"I cannot imagine why," the old squire replied coldly.

"Just a word—out in the yard," the other pleaded in the same gentle tone.

The old squire regarded him for some moments. "Very good," he said at last. "Speech is free."

We saw them walking out past the garden and afterwards along the cart road that led over to the Aunt Hannah lot. They were out at least an hour, until after dark; and then the old squire came back alone."

"What did that wicked fellow have to say to you?" Grandmother Ruth exclaimed.

"Oh, well, a great many things," he replied noncommittally. After a while he asked me: "What do you know about ozone?"

I did not know much more about it than that it was a form of oxygen.

My information was so indefinite that the old gentleman went past me to the sitting room, lighted a lamp and got down the "O" volume of the encyclopedia; and he was still there, reading, when I went to bed.

Three or four days later Brother Andrew called again and stayed for an hour or two; but apparently the old squire did not have much to say to him. Afterwards, throughout the fall, we heard that Andrew was living with one of the French families up at the mill. The old squire drove up once or twice to make sure that he had discontinued his cures at the pool.

Later, during the cold season, when the sawmill was running, Brother Andrew worked there as a millman and invented several new contrivances that proved practicable in manufacturing lumber. The old squire was much pleased with Brother Andrew's ingenuity.

The fellow was really a genius, brimful of inventions. When he had first gone to California he had tried to form a company to build a sanatorium at Sausalito, near San Francisco, and to erect a great pipe on the summit of Mount Tamalpais. When that scheme failed, he tried to interest people in setting up lofty pipes, first on the summit of Mount Shasta, and afterwards on Mount Rainier, and in building sanatoriums at Tacoma and Seattle and at Portland, Oregon. After those schemes collapsed he fled to Canada.

Apparently he had undertaken most of the knavery that he had resorted to in those years in order to get money for his cherished project, in which he sincerely had faith. After emerging from his long seclusion in Canada, the tall smokestack of the old squire's sawmill up there in the woods had attracted his attention and had suggested a fresh opportunity of putting his idea into practise. It was to raise money for that purpose that he started his ridiculous, not to say impious, Pool of Siloam.

He seems to have been stone-blind, so to speak, on the moral side of his mind. What makes me think so was the utterly unabashed manner in which he turned to the squire after the old gentleman had so sternly rebuked him. It seemed equally strange to many persons that he should actually induce the old squire to help him

The fact is that our old squire himself was always somewhat of a Yankee as well as a Puritan. To the end of his life new inventions captivated him; and often we heard him say that the inventions we had to-day were as nothing to what were coming within the next two centuries. "How I wish I could live to see them!" he exclaimed more than once.

Andrew Witham's idea was, the old squire told me later, that the air as we breathe it close down to the surface of the earth, not only contains a great deal of fine micrscopic dust and germs of disease, but also is lacking in ozone, which is a disinfectant, and which when inhaled in small quantities, is a vital stimulant. He was well aware that when breathed in large quantities, it is, like oxygen, injurious to human life.

His plan was to build a sanatorium and by means of a high-powered engine and a large pipe, erected to a great height, to suck down air impregnated with ozone from the upper regions, which persons residing inside the building could breathe to the great advantage of their health.

"I knew the fellow was a rogue," the old squire said afterwards, "but I thought there might be something in his ozone idea and that good might result from it."

On account of Grandmother Ruth's opposition to such schemes, he said very little about the matter at home

When I went up to the mill in August I found that work was well along on Brother Andrew's project. On the high bluff above the mill a pipe, two feet in diameter and supported by numerous guys and stays, had already been raised to a height of two hundred and fifty feet. That, added to the height of the bluff and the altitude of the region, carried the top of the pipe nearly two thousand feet above sea level.

At the foot of the bluff the pipe turned and continued on for a thousand feet down to the bank of the stream, below the mill. There a branch of the pipe entered a small structure consisting of a single room, sealed up inside with matched boards and having only one window and a single door, both of which could be closed tight. Into this experimenting room air, which, theoretically, contained ozone could be sucked down from aloft by means of a blower set in the pipe and run at high speed by the steam engine in the mill.

The main pipe continued on beyond the branch for a hundred feet; from this lower end the excess of air sucked in at the top could be expelled. When the blower was working there was a small hurricane down there.

Tne blower could be reversed, if desired, so as to discharge air at the top end; and on a hot day, when the air near the surface of the ground was heated a visible cloud, looking like a mist, could be seen at the top. That, of course, resulted from the warm air's condensing into vapour when expelled into the cooler stratum of the atmosphere above.

Brother Andrew declared that with a loftier pipe and greater engine power, he could produce rain at will, and that he could also blow away an impending thundersquall or hailstorm; but the primary object of his contrivance was to suck down ozone from the upper atmosphere, to help sufferers from hay fever, tuberculosis and other pulmonary ills, as well as to improve the general health of all.

What Brother Andrew might have ultimately demonstrated is uncertain, for a week or so after my first trip up there, he was found dead in his experiment room. He had apparently been dead two or three days; there were no signs of his having met death by violence, and we came to the belief that during one of the thunderstorms of which there had been several lately, a lightning stroke, coming down the lofty iron pipe, had killed him. What made the conjecture more probable was that a section from the top of the pipe had fallen, as if it had been knocked down. It is evident that the pipe, rising to a height of six hundred feet above the mill, offered a fine conductor for electricity. The old elder was not present at his brother's funeral, less from resentment, however, than from unrelieved grief. Later the old squire had the pipe taken down; and people began to forget the strange character whose monument it had been. Few people remember him now.

Veteran Pilot Prevents Crack-up of Big 'Plane

Saves Ten From Possible Death As Ambulances and Fire-Trucks Race Alongside. — Retractable Landing Gear Jammed.

Newark, N.J.—The expert hand of Hi Little, veteran pilot, at the controls of a giant transport airplane, aloft with its retractable landing gear disabled Sunday ,averted a crack-up that might have brought injury and possibly death to seven passengers and a crew of three.

With the gear locked midway between its normal landing and flying positions and with airport, fire and police officials looking on and fearing a fatal crash, Little brought the big ship to earth at Newark airport without so much as an unusual bump.

The craft of the United Airlines, took off from the airport at 12 noon bound for Chicago. When he reached an altitude of 1,000 feet, Little pulled the lever operating the landing gear but found the mechanism was faulty, leaving the ship's wheels only halfway up from their landing position. Then began an hour of intense excitement, with Little circling over the field and trying to dislodge the locked gear. He was unable to succeed and in wireless conversation with his company decided to attempt a landing. Ambulances and fire-trucks were summoned.

Little swooped downward at the appointed time and cut off his motors the moment the ship touched the ground. The ambulances, fire trucks and police cars raced alongside the 'plane for a distance of 300 feet where the 'plane halted without damage.

Dust Piles Like Snowbanks In Terrific Alberta Storm

50 Mile-an-Hour Wind Whipped Dust From Farm and Ranch Lands, Turning Day as Dark as Night.

Calgary, Nov. 6th.—Dust piled like snowbanks in fields and along highways in southern Alberta to-day to tell the story of the worst wind storm experienced in the south country in years.

Day was turned into night Monday as a terrific wind, which reached a velocity of 50 miles an hour at Lethbridge, whipped across farm and ranch lands. Summer fallow was badly drifted in many districts, the storm extending, with minor velocity, into Calgary.

To-day there were wrecked buildings, broken power and communication lines, and telegraph poles levelled in the path of the storm, and reported damage to small buildings and grain elevators.

Even with lights on, automobiles were "dust-bound as heavy drifts obstructed highways, and motors stalled.

During the night the wind shifted to the north and the air was clear to-day.
