Newsbriefs

Bridge aid

BERWICK (Staff) - St. Luke's Bridge is on Finch Township's agenda once again. At a meeting Monday night, council decided to request an interview with the provincial minister of transportation and communications to discuss supplementary funding to replace the decaying bridge. Reeve Ralph MacKenzie compared the project to the recently completed McRae bridge on the Finch-Roxborough boundary, which cost about $280,000. The township's request for supplementary funding for the project last year was turned down.

New Year's thefts

LONG SAULT (Staff) - Someone's resolve to quit smoking in the new year broke. On Friday morning, the Treasure Island Inn in Ingleside reported the theft of a cigarette dispensing machine, valued at $800. Also on Friday, a Finch Township resident discovered a chainsaw, worth about $150, was missing. Long Sault police have no suspects in either case.

But 1987 brought good news to one Osnabruck Township resident. On Sunday, police found a snowmobile, apparently undamaged, in a bushy area south of Highway 2 at Ingleside. The snowmobile had been stolen Dec. 22. Police have no suspects in the theft.

Grant application

BERWICK (Staff) - Finch Township will apply for a $4,000-grant to erect an additonal 316 feet of chain link fence at the township landfill site. At a meeting Monday night, council agreed to request the money under the provincial 1982 waste management program, which also offers municipalities will help with the cost of upgrading, coverage, methane and leachate monitoring.

Teamwork

MOREWOOD (Staff) - An addition being built onto the fire hall here is near completion, said Winchester Township Deputy Reeve Claude Cousineau Monday. About 500 hours of work have been donated to the project since it was started, he said.

Trash case

MAPLE RIDGE (Staff) - Township officials will be testing their investigative skills as they try to determine who dumped a pile of garbage along a township road this past week. "If you can identify the source (do it)," said Councillor Jack Durant. "I don't know what council wants to do with it (the garbage)."

"Sometimes that gets embarassing," said Reeve Gerald Holmes.

Designing students

BERWICK (Staff) - The search is on for a logo to represent Finch Township. Students at Berwick Public School and Notre-Dame-du-St-Rosaire at Crysler have been invited to offer their depictions of the township, to be featured on the municipality's letterhead. A prize of $25 will go to the winner and the deadline for submissions is Jan. 31.

Nestle, Kraft exceed limits on waste discharge

CHESTERVILLE (Staff) - An official of the Nestle Division plant here said Tuesday he's confident the plant will solve its pollution problem.

The Nestle plant is one of 98 industrial waste dischargers in Ontario cited for exceeding maximum provincial waste discharge limits, said Gerry McKenna, environmental officer with the Cornwall office of the Ontario Ministry of the Environment.

It was one of two local plants cited in the ministry's 1985 report on industrial and municipal dischargers.

"We are going to solve it," said Nestle official Walter Barker, but added he was surprised that the MOE made the report public. "We were a little surprised concerning it," he said.

The plant's problem concerns the discharge of phosphates into the South Nation River, he said. In 1985, the plant discharged double the amount of phosphate allowed by the ministry. The ministry allows a phosphate discharge of one part per million, Barker said, and the Nestle plant had a discharge ratio of 2 parts per million.

"We don't know where it's coming from," Barker said. "It's a very small amount when you look at the parts per million."

McKenna said he's "optimistic" the company will resolve the problem. The plant has had problems with biochemical oxygen demand (BOD) -- a measure of the oxygen consumed by discharged organic matter -- and suspended solids in the past, he said. But he added the plant has since rectified those problems.

The second local offender in the 1985 report was Kraft Foods Ltd. in Ingleside. The plant didn't meet the BOD requirements, McKenna said, and although there are no requirements for the plant concerning phosphorus or suspended solids, "we know there are problems in both parameters," he said.

Although the plant will be reducing its production, McKenna said, it will probably have to take other measures to solve its discharge problem. Kraft has submitted an application to the MOE for approval of a new aeration process, which will help solve the BOD problem, but he said the ministry's concerned about the plant's phosphate discharges.

"It's fairly firm that there has to be something done," he said and suggested a control order may be imposed on the plant to limit the phosphate discharges. Phosphorus causes weed and algae growth in creeks and rivers, he said.

"We've given them some direction...the ball's in their court," he said.

The dairy foods plant was also cited this summer in the 1984 MOE for releasing phosphorus and oxygen-eating BOD. The report said it dumped 12.2 kgs of phosphorus a day into its waste lagoon and released 60 kgs of BOD -- twice its daily limit.

In a statement released later this summer, Kraft representative Raymond Lowery said the company had since brought its BOD discharges level below the 15 parts per million requirement. He did say though, that the plant had not been successful in lowering its phosphate discharge. Waste discharges from the plant go indirectly into the St. Lawrence River through Hooples Creek. Lowery couldn't be reached for comment Tuesday.

Municipal offenders cited in the report include Winchester Village, Morrisburg and Osnabruck Township. The municipal waste treatment plants were three of 99 in Ontario which failed to meet MOE discharge requirements in 1985, McKenna said.

The Winchester Village plant was "slightly" above the ministry requirements for suspended solids, he said. "The flows (of sewage) are too high", and have exceeded the plants efficiency range, he said.

The problem could be caused by infiltration into the system or it may be that the village treatment plant has reached its capacity, he said. The ministry requirement for suspended solids is 40 parts per litre or less -- Winchester's plant registered 43 parts per litre. "It's not that major," McKenna said.

Osnabruck Township and the village of Morrisburg were also over the limit for suspended solids in 1985, McKenna said. Both the Osnabruck Township and Morrisburg plants are required by the ministry to remove 50 per cent of their suspended solids before discharge. Osnabruck Township managed to remove 45 per cent, he said.

A change of operation methods will probably solve Osnabruck's discharge problem he said, and Morrisburg is presently doing some work on its sewer system. The Osnabruck treatment plant was overloaded in 1985 and should be pumping less sewage but more often he said. The "onus" is on both municipalities to solve the sewage problems, he said.

Two-hour power outage leaves area in the dark

WINCHESTER (Staff) - Half of Dundas and Stormont counties were in the dark for more than two hours Tuesday afternoon, thanks to a burnt-out conductor between Chesterville and Berwick.

"It was pretty widespread," said Dave Armstrong, a line foreman with the Winchester office of Ontario Hydro. The power outage took in all of Winchester, Williamsburg and Finch townships and most of Osnabruck Township.

The lights went off at about 11:45 a.m. and didn't return until 2:20 p.m. In the meantime, linemen were scrambling to find the cause of the outage.

Armstrong said Hydro employees just "stumbled" across the live wire which had burned. "We don't really know what happened," he said, adding that such conductors do burn out occasionally.

About a dozen men worked at the site to restore power, which returned to the village of Winchester at about 1 p.m.

Meanwhile, businesses and schools continued in the dark.

St. Mary's students remained at the school after assurances the power would be off only a couple of hours.

"They carried on pretty well with what they were doing. Most of the rooms were bright enough," said Thelma Sommerville, school secretary.

Students and staff had only begun to feel the chill of the mild winter day when power returned.

Security and completing the day's work before daylight faded were the major concerns at the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Senior operations officer Kathy McMahon said business during the two and a half hours was "quiet". She said many customers were surprised the bank had remained open.

Although transactions couldn't be processed on the electrically-powered terminals, she said the accounts of regular customers could be handled manually through the previous day's records.

Protests greet proposal to move shooting club

MAPLE RIDGE (Staff) - A proposal to locate a skeet club near the South Nation River in Winchester Township may become a mere shot in the dark after receiving opposition here Monday night.

Township resident John Vreman told councillors he couldn't understand how they approved the location of the club when so few people were actually in favor of it. He contended that contrary to council's requests club members didn't poll everyone within a half mile of the club, and did their survey in a "sneaky way".

"You told me they had to have everyone within a half mile approve it)," he told councillors. "I'm getting 57 when spring comes...I'm not against recreation, but that's ridiculous. They're less than 1,000 feet in front of my house."

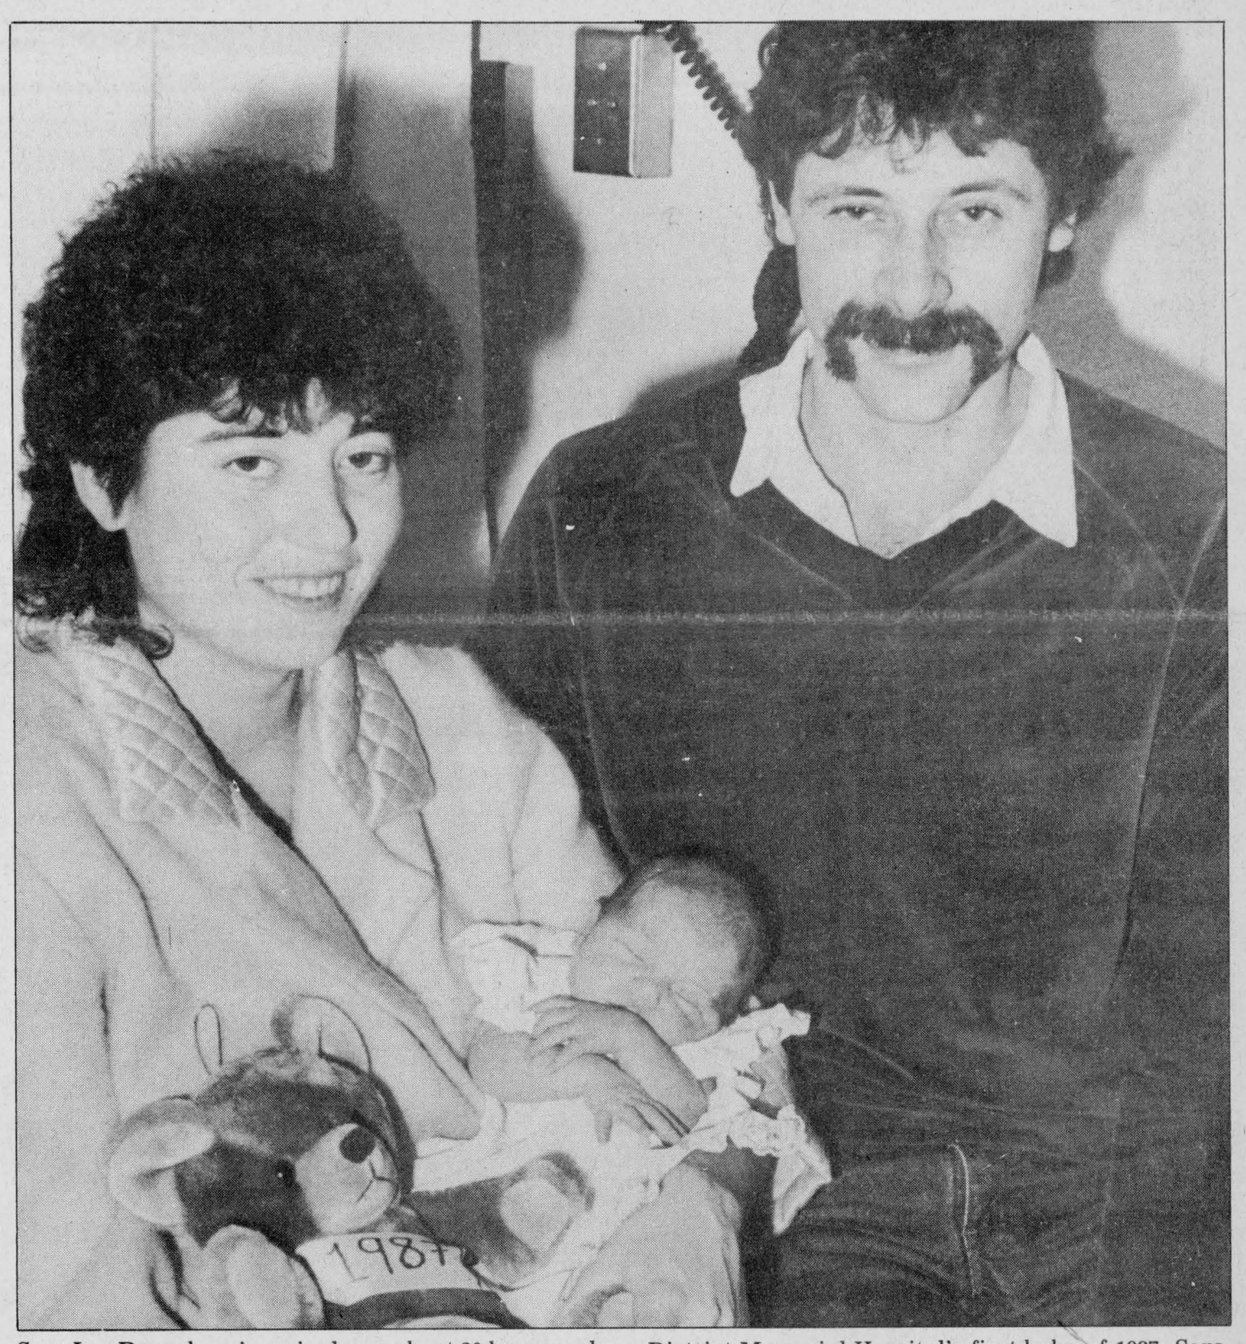
He also presented council with a 29-name petition opposing the club and accused council of ignoring the people who signed it.

But since the land is deemed by the township's official plan as suitable for outdoor recreation, and since council had already given the club permission to proceed, there's little council can do about it, said Reeve Gerald Holmes. The only thing council can do is request the South Nation River Conservation Authority to rezone the land, then township residents can make their objections if they so wish, he said. The club will be leasing the land from the authority.

Vreman and two residents attending the meeting complained there would be noise problems if the club were located at the site. And one of the residents, a farmer owning land adjacent to the property, expressed concern over stray shotgun pellets hitting him or his hired hands. Vreman also said the club may devalue his land and make it hard to sell in the future.

Holmes admitted that "shotguns are noisy" but added council would never get anything done if they stopped for single objection. Council had previously received one objection to the club but decided it wasn't serious enough to warrant the stoppage of the club.

"I don't think we can stop for one objection," he said. "I don't think we have any alternative but to go to a zoning. They won't be using it for 18 months now," he added.



Sara Lee Pynenburg's arrival was about 30 hours and seven minutes into the new year. For parents Cindy and Michael Pynenburg of the Moose Creek area, the birth of their first child meant a drive through blowing snow early Saturday morning. As Winchester District Memorial Hospital's first baby of 1987, Sara Lee received a teddy bear and a new dress. But two days after her birth, at 6 pounds, 7 ounces, the infant seemed oblivious to her fleeting celebrity status.

RIDE nabs eight drivers during past five weeks

LONG SAULT (Staff) - It appears the OPP campaign against drunk driving is working.

In the last five weeks of the Reduce Impaired Driving Everywhere (RIDE) campaign, OPP detachments in Long Sault, Winchester and Morrisburg checked 1,940 vehicles and laid only eight impaired driving charges.

Last year, the detachments also charge eight people, but checked 320 fewer cars.

If charges are down and the number of spotchecks up, Const. Bernie Gadbois of the Long Sault detachment said the campaign is successful.

During the post-Christmas and New Year's holidays, the area patrolled by the Long Sault detachment laid no charges of impaired driving or liquor-related offences during its RIDE spotchecks.

But while RIDE may be turning up few drunk drivers, regular police patrols are. Since the beginning of December, the three detachments have charged 33 people with impaired driving while conducting regular patrols.

The Morrisburg detachment has been the most active of the three in carrying out RIDE spotchecks. Since the beginning of last month, it's stopped 1,058 vehicles and laid six of the eight impaired charges. It also led the three detachments in 12-hour suspensions, handing out 11 of the 21 issued.

Winchester police stopped 286 drivers, laying one impaired driving charge and issuing two 12-hour suspensions.

This year, the campaign peaked during the first and last weeks of December, with more than 540 vehicles stopped during each seven-day period by the three detachments.

While the first week resulted in two impaired charges, the final week, which included New Year's Eve, ended with only one charge being laid.

But in an odd twist, the number of impaired driving charges was highest -- at three -- during the week from Dec. 22 to 28, when the police stopped only 184 vehicles, the lowest weekly tally reported over the five weeks.

This year's RIDE campaign began Nov. 17, about two weeks earlier than the program got underway in 1985. Gadbois said motorists can expect the roadblocks and spotchecks to continue.

Some tavern owners tiring of RIDE

WILLIAMSBURG (Staff) - Dan McGann, owner of the Pioneer Hotel, thought Christmas, 1985 was bad.

But the Williamsburg hotel owner said Monday night the Christmas season this year held no presents for him. Business over the holidays, he said, was "just nothing."

With the OPP campaign against drunk driving in full swing, he said his business has suffered. "It (December) was a good month. It (business) is less than half what it was two years ago."

Late in 1985, the federal government announced increased penalties for drunk driving. On the first conviction for driving while over the legal limit of 80 milligrams of alcohol per 100 millilitres of blood, a driver faces a minimum fine of $300 and a three-month ban on driving.

Because his business is located in a community of only 300 residents, he said he must rely on driving patrons. But the designated driver system, in which a member of a party agrees to drive and drinks only non-alcoholic beverages, hasn't proven popular among his clientele.

But over the entire year, his business has dropped only slightly, "a little bit," he said, "but not enough to complain."

He said the holiday spotchecks and the tougher laws influence only those drinkers with a blood alcohol content at or slightly above the legal limit. For those rating 2.1, he said, "There's nothing going to stop them anyway."

While he hasn't had a chance to compare 1986 figures with the previous year's, Ron Aspeck, owner of the Chesterville Hotel, said his business has probably dropped slightly. The hotel no longer offers entertainment he noted, which may have played a part in any decline.

But the police campaign has also had an effect. "I think it kept them (drinkers) closer to home," he said.

Reflecting on the entire year, he said his losses haven't been great.

He said his patrons are now more conscious of their drinking and he's noticed greater use of designated drivers and buses.

But while he thinks the penalties were needed "in some cases," he said some drinkers can handle alcohol better than others: half a dozen bottles of beer for one person may not match the effects of only two on someone else.

What has been bad for business, he said, is the stationing of police cruisers only a block from the hotel.

He also questioned the practice of stopping all drivers in the search for drunkenness. Instead, he said police should check drivers they've pulled over for other offences or infractions, such as speeding or driving with a burnt-out headlight.

"If they (police) are going to do that, they should have a reason for doing it," he said.

Because the Crysler Hotel traditionally closes on Christmas Eve, Christmas Day, New Year's Eve and New Year's Day, owner Maurice Menard said it's difficult to gauge what effect the laws and police campaign have had on business.

But his patrons' drinking habits have changed. "I think they watch themselves more than usual," he said. "Maybe they're a little slower to have a beer. They probably don't drink as fast."

He's also seen groups of people flip a coin to see who will be the designated driver.

He himself used taxis over the holidays while visiting in Cornwall and Ottawa.

Doggie in the window

Monday afternoon shoppers could be excused for singing How Much is That Doggie in the Window. But the sale price tag of $10 at Curran Carpet Centre didn't apply to either four-year-old Matthew ("You can call me Matt") Coyle or his pup.

Finch Township to improve crossing warnings

BERWICK (Staff) - Finch Township has agreed to improve warning devices at two railway crossings but it wishes the costs of safety weren't so high.

At a meeting Monday night, council said it was basically in favor of installing flashing lights and bells at the Goldfield and McMillan road crossings but balked at its share of the estimated $270,000 cost.

The township would be responsible for 12.5 per cent, or $34,875, of the estimated installation costs. CP Rail would pick up 7.5 per cent and the federal government, the remaining 80 per cent or $223,200.

Annual maintenance costs, estimated at $5,500 per crossing, would be split between the township and the railway.

In a letter to be sent to the railway, the township questioned whether the short arm gates, recommended when Canadian Transport Commission inspectors toured the crossing in the fall, were necessary.

Councillor Armand Gibeault commented that drivers should notice lights and bells. "If you can't see lights you're going to run through the gates anyway," he said.

Gates can also be a nuisance, he said, mentioning times he had been stopped while driving a school bus at tracks north of Chesterville by broken gates that remained down.

But Reeve Ralph MacKenzie said it would take only one death to prove the need for gates.

The township will also request that the safety measures be installed at once but that its own payments be spread over two years. Clerk-treasurer Arnott Empey said he would explain in the letter to the railway the township's roads budget couldn't finance more than one per year.

In its November recommendations, the transport commission also suggested that road approaches within 50 feet of the two crossings be widened to 26 feet and that advance warning signs be erected. The township would be solely responsible for those costs.

The township's crossing expenses may not be over. MacKenzie said the township may also have to pay a share of the costs to improve warning measures at a crossing on its boundary with Roxborough.

In December, a Finch man was killed at the CP crossing when his car struck a moving freight train. The crossing, marked only by unlighted crossbucks, is scheduled for review by the transport committee later this month.

But MacKenzie added the road is currently under study after Roxborough proposed that the United Counties assume it.

St. Joseph's open house

CORNWALL (Staff) - The parents of students interested in attending St. Joseph's next year have a chance to learn what the future may hold.

On Jan. 14, the only Catholic secondary school in Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry will host an open house, when staff and students can explain the school's philosophy and answer any questions.

The annual open house begins at 7:30pm. St. Joseph's Secondary School is located at 1500 Cumberland St., Cornwall.

Blow to free trade

The acceptance of an eleventh hour ultimatum to impose a 15 per cent tax on lumber exports to the United States has dealt another blow to any faith Canadians may have had in free trade negotiations.

The forestry industry estimates the duty will cost Canada thousands of jobs and a share of its American market.

While it must be remembered the comments come from a partisan group, it's improbably the duty could do anything but harm an already troubled industry and region.

The short-term impact of the tariff alone is a blow to the industry. But the long-term impact of the softwood lumber tariff issue is frightening.

Canadians who hope some good will emerge from the free or freer trade talks now have doubts about their negotiators' resolve.

Canada bowed to the U.S. pressure to place a tax on its own exports, apparently agreeing with the American lumber industry's claims it was unfairly subsidizing its industry.

Acceding to the demands of an important trading partner -- and the U.S. is Canada's most important market -- is fair ball on the international trade scene.

But what's particularly galling about the recent agreement is American interference in domestic policy.

Perhaps as a conciliatory move, or merely a reflection of the patronizing attitude taken by the U.S. to its northerly neighbor, Canada was permitted to keep the duty it collects, estimated at $600 million annually.

But Canada had to play by the rules of the game. The U.S. Commerce Secretary and a representative of an American lumber lobby said the money couldn't be plowed back into the forestry industry.

As of last week, there was confusion in Canada as to what exactly the money could be spent on. Pat Carney, Minister of International Trade, said the American comments did not reflect the arrangement to which Canada had agreed and denied the agreement infringed on Canadian sovereignty.

Canada backed down on the lumber dispute and lost considerable ground as a negotiator. Perhaps Canadians should fear free trade talks themselves as much as their possible results: without a fight, Canada has little chance to protect domestic policies that are an integral part of both international trade and the national fabric.

Canada had other options in the lumber dispute. The pressure from the American lumber lobby could have been resisted until a ruling on a petition for a countervail. Canada could have lost and suffered even stiffer penalties.

But on the other hand, a much lower tariff could have been awarded.

It doesn't matter now.

The Farmer's Wife

by Wyn Thompson

A big wind came some time in the night and whistled down the chimney, blowing ashes out on the hearth, rattling window panes and causing the white birch which grows up through the living room eaves to creak and moan like the rigging on a four-masted schooner in full gale.

We stirred in our bed and listened once or twice, were grateful for the warmth and snugness of our home and turned over and went back to sleep.

The next morning I went out to look for ruins - and found only a yard littered with dead branches, and some not so dead.

Compared to the American gastritis of the present administration, non-stop round the world air flights and other urgent, history-making things that are going on elsewhere in the world, life here at Hill House would seem intolerably placid and uneventful to some people. But we do have our excitements. Wood-getting is one of them.

Now wood for a fireplace is different from wood just cut to warm your house. It's great and efficient to have oil for the furnace and I don't knock it, particularly on a bitter morning when I step out of bed onto a warm rug.

But wood for the fireplace warms the spirit and pleasures all the senses, particularly the eyes and nose. A good fire is a whole picture gallery to look at and the fragrance of the different kinds of wood is as subtle and soothing as incense from the Eastern world.

An important part of the satisfaction of a good fine is being involved in the getting of it, being out-of-doors on a bright cold day, listening to the sound of one chain saw, smelling the sharp clean fragrance of sawdust and hefting and hauling the logs. I have just quoted the Farmer.

My satisfaction comes in skiing each afternoon to the woodlot with coffee and a muffin for the wood-chopper. One afternoon was particularly memorable for I arrived to see a venerable old tree felled.

It was a lovely old tree with its soft grey branches, and when the saw bit into its big twisted trunk it had a deep rose heart and a divine smell of cedar...of pencils you used to take to school when pencils were still used, of the water bucket your grandmother used to haul water for the well by the back door, of your Mother's blankets the first cold night in November.

I picked out branches to save because they were pretty and starred with moss like little green stars. I'll hoard the logs, too, rationing them for an evening in which we entertain special company.

My annual cold, the big one, hit me and I decided for once to try to beat it by crawling to bed, drinking plenty of fluid, taking aspirin, and waiting it out.

For some reason this seemed to enrage my cold and bring out the very worst in me. By the third day I was coughing with the repetition and frequency of an ancient bullfrog croaking on a summer night. And my throat and chest hurt.

I found myself wishing for an old-fashioned mustard patch. The Farmer laughed at smelly flannel mustard patches in this day of miracle drugs, suggested I go to the doctor, and left the room to get me another archaic remedy, hot lemonade generously laced with honey and ginger. I enjoyed a broody silence.

Flannel mustard patches weren't as efficient as miracle drugs but when you had one of them on your chest you sure felt something was being done to help you recover. I tried to recall how to make one.

The Farmer returned with the steaming lemon potion. I sipped it slowly. I slept. I dreamed of flannel mustard patches. I awakened to a house dark and silent. The Farmer must still be at the barn.

I coughed fit to kill. Scamp stirred at the foot of the bed. "Better to make a flannel mustard patch and die in the attempt than to do nothing," I told him. He meowed.

I swung my feet out of bed, staggered to the kitchen. I mixed mustard, flour, and soda, added some milk to make a paste and spread it generously on two flannel patches big enough to cover my chest.

I put one in the oven to bake, dug out my old electric fry pan and placed the spare one in it. Soon I had the one from the oven on my chest and the second one simmering in the fry pan by my bed. Now the whole thing was uncomfortable and aromatic enough to assure me that drastic steps were being taken on my behalf.

"If one's good, two'd be better," I informed Scamp reaching for the second one sauteeing in the fry pan, and smacked it into the area between my shoulder blades. Mmmm, good. I slept.

From another world came the words, "What in heaven's name have you done now?" dipped in and out of my subconscious.

"Curing my cough," I muttered, slowly returning to conscious thought.

"Of all stupid...give me those things. Look at you...burned to a crisp. Rub this camphorated oil on your front, I'll do your back," he growled on about stupidity and pig-headedness and a few other things I'd rather not mention.

The rubbing hurt. A million fiery needles pricked my back and front. Through the night I resorted to painkillers, being reminded each time that if I wasn't better in the morning, it would be off to the doctor with me. Eventually I slept the sleep of the dead. Or the badly burned.

Morning saw me with a very loose bronchial cough. My chest still hurt, but this time on the outside. Little blister bumps chased one another over it. "Maybe I'm getting chicken--pox," I informed the Farmer when he brought me breakfast. The comment was evidently not worth a reply.

Scarlet-faced, he turned on his heel and left the room. I was glad I was not a child but still I was being punished as it was. Self-inflicted punishment is the worst kind.

Chesterville's Past

07 From the Record Thurs., Jan. 10, 1907

Mr. A.C. Fetterly, late principal in the public school here, was elected by acclamation to the position of councillor for one of the wards in Cornwall town.

The "At Home" given in the town hall on Friday evening by the Ladies of Chesterville, was a very successful event. The hall was tastefully decorated which presented a very nice appearance and the young ladies spared no pains or expense for the comfort and enjoyment of those attending. While they have no large amount of money to their credit in the bank, still they could be congratulated for the good financing they have done in this event.

Monday was very interesting day in town, especially to many who took a very active part in the contest for the reeveship of the municipality of Chesterville between Wm. Huxtable and Wesley Hamilton. Every available vote was looked keenly after by both parties, and so interesting was the contest that quite an amount of money changed on the result. The following was the vote: Huxtable - 110, Hamilton - 79.

The other morning Bob Harper sailed into town with a string of bells ringing out their merry tones, and so unaccustomed are the people of this district to hear bells that many quickly turned to enquire what it was all about. In some parts of the Province a law is enforced compelling the use of bells on horses attached to sleighs and cutters.

Last night at Chesterville rink Mr. F. Watley of Ottawa, who was here to referee the game between Chesterville and Russell, presented a fine silver cup to Dr. Hutt as one of the trustees, emblematic of the hockey supremacy of the Central Ottawa Valley League, which will be awarded to the winners at the end of the present season. Mr. Watley also put up a cup to be awarded to the cleanest and most effective player in the league at the end of the season.

Three games have been played in the league schedule since last week. Saturday night's game scheduled for Finch and Russell was by mutual agreement held over until Tuesday night when Finch won by 4 to 1 after stopping Chesterville's long string of victories the evening before when they beat the leaders 2 to 1. Last night Chesterville won from Russell on the home ice 4 to 2. Chesterville leads the league with five wins and one loss.

47 From the Record Thurs., Jan. 9, 1947

Appointments of municipal officials, commissions and committees, and the passing of routine bylaws for the borrowing of moneys kept Chesterville's 1947 Council busily engaged at the initial meeting held in the Clerk's office Tuesday evening. J.C. Hummel was re-appointed Clerk-Treasurer at the inaugural meeting Tuesday morning, when the new reeve P.S. Boyd, and councillor Chas. McMillan, Matthew Flynn, John Turner and Glenn Merkley subscribed to the declarations of office.

The Life of Riley

by Wayne Riley

After having my fortune read with playing cards Saturday night -- I will be doing well in the next year if I end up with nothing more than a bad cold -- I became very interested in learning more about what would come to pass in 1987.

Will life be discovered on other planets? Will scientists make major discoveries? Will my daughter wake up toilet trained?

It was while searching for something with the right vibes to make such fortune telling possible that I came across an ordinary glass mixing bowl that when placed upside down on the table produced a strange glow.

"I've never seen it do anything like that before," said my wife, who was helping in the search.

"You wouldn't," I replied. "It only happens one day in January. It's a super bowl."

We centred the glowing bowl on the table and sat down. Waving a rubber spatula over it, we conjured up a half hour preview of the coming year. These are some of the things we saw:

Television

In an effort to bolster ratings, the producers of Dallas admit Bobby dreamed the entire series and that Dallas, in fact, is really Dynasty.

The Japanese introduce a television with a half-inch liquid crystal screen designed for on-the-go consumers who only want to watch a little TV.

Movies

Rambo First Blood Part 2 III and Friday the 13th Part 7 Jason Re-Lives are both hits.

Responding to the threat of cassette videos, filmmakers have all the action in their movies take place on the outer edges of the wide screen.

I take my wife to a movie, her choice. I am prepared with a pillow.

Sports

The Toronto Maple Leafs win the Stanley Cup.
The Toronto Argonauts win the Grey Cup.
The Toronto Blue Jays win the World Series.
I win all my bets.

Science

Scientists, noting that astronomy is not perfect, admit there really was no Halley's Comet last year. The comet is actually due to be seen across our skies this March.

The Surgeon-General warns that stewed tomatoes could be hazardous to your health, something I had long suspected.

Politics

A $1 million research and development grant paid to a Canadian entrepreneur testing the effects of solar radiation on North American skin at a newly-built research condominium in the Bahamas is sharply criticized.

American president Ronald Reagan, relying on his old acting skills, says 1986 was just a dream and that no arms deal was made with Iran.

Prime Minister Brian Mulroney unveils the new Brian Mulroney of 1987 to replace the new Brian Mulroney of 1986, who turned out to be the old Brian Mulroney of 1985.

My wife, sensing democracy is being threatened in late April, imposes marital law for a month.

Weather

Meteorologists cannot explain record high temperatures that completely melt Eastern Ontario's snow in January and February and send people outside in windbreakers. Nor can they explain Florida's coldest weather in decades during the same period. To show I care, I send everyone I know who is vacationing there a snow shovel.

It only rains at night during the summer.

Personal achievements

By concentrating on the fact that Ronald Reagan and my wife share the same birth date, I am able to remember her birthday. Unfortunately, the dozen roses I buy are inadvertently sent to the White House.

I do not lose any of my gloves during the winter.

I find a way, using a combination of snaps and Velcro, to keep my shirts tucked in.

I am able to convince my wife during a conversation in early June that I am indespensible.

Society

More people will learn to live together in 1987, if only because of the spread of apartment buildings.

My children, finally understanding that screaming in public is not socially acceptable, will learn to throw harmless foam bricks to relieve their tension.

Music

Riding on the wave of 1960s nostalgia, Mitch Miller zooms to the top of the charts with a choral version of She Loves You.

Michael Jackson has another hit record, can afford to buy the other glove.

As a contribution to music, I hide my daughter's toy piano.

A housing study recently adopted by Chesterville council projects the village will need an additional 26 private homes and 20 rental units by 1996. The 1985 study, prepared by Larry D. Cotton Associates Ltd. with the help of a $7,500 grant, recommended that the village's first housing objective be the upgrading of about 100 homes rated in only fair or poor condition.

Upgrading of poor and fair housing should be village's first priority: study

CHESTERVILLE (Staff) - Chesterville's first priority in housing should be the upgrading of residences in poor condition, recommends a report recently adopted by council.

The municipal housing statement, prepared by Larry D. Cotton Associates Ltd. more than a year and a half ago, returned to village council in December after its review by the provincial housing industry.

The adoption of a housing study was a prerequisite for the village's eligibility for assistance under some provincial housing programs.

At the time of the study, 14 dwellings in the village – about 3 per cent were rated in poor physical condition and structurally unsound. Ninety houses, about 19 per cent, were in fair condition and needed such repairs as re-roofing, painting or new siding.

Adding to the pressure to upgrade housing was a finding that almost half of the village's dwellings were at least 40 years old.

"Problems of housing affordability for low income non-family and family households are evident. Inadequate or unsuitable housing is shown by the fact that almost one dwelling unit four was in fair or poor condition in the village," the 56-page study concluded.

To fight the problem, planners urged that council encourage property owners to adhere to the minimum property standards bylaw. Late last year, council took another step towards the enforcement of the bylaw, when it appointed three men to hear appeals from property owners who felt they were being unfairly pressured to make repairs.

Since 1976, 28 houses have been improved with the help of more than $135,000 in loans and grants under the Ontario Home Renewal Program.

Seniors' housing

Planners also urged that the village lobby for more rental units designated for senior citizens, especially for "non-family" households composed of two or more unrelated persons.

Between 1971, and 1981, the proportion of such non-family households increased from 21 to 28 per cent. By 1995, they predicted the figure would rise more than 32 per cent.

The size of the average household has also dropped, from 2.8 persons in 1975 to 2.5 eight years later. By 1981, more than half of all the village's households were composed of only one or two persons.

A survey of the village's rental demand in May of 1985 found a need for 37 senior citizen's apartments, with six or be rented at subsidized rates.

But the same survey, distributed to tenants in Chesterville, found little interest in a family housing project. Fewer than 14 per cent of the families contacted returned the survey and only nine were interested in moving into a project that mixed units rented at market value and subsidized rates.

Planners still urged the village to create a municipal non-profit housing corporation, saying its establishment was "of utmost importance". As their sixth and final objective for the village, planners recommended that Chesterville "encourage" the construction of a subsidized family housing project.

By 1991, planners projected Chesterville would need 215 rental units (up to 40 from 1981) and 436 privately owned homes (an increase of 86). By 1996, an additional 43 privately owned homes and 20 rental units are expected to be needed.

The village is well blessed with rental units – about one-third of the total housing stock. "Proportionately speaking, the village has a greater amount of rental accommodation than many communities of a similar size," planners found.

But vacancy rates, they said, are "negligible". "On the private side, conversion of existing commercial, industrial and existing residential structures appears to be the most economical and viable method of producing new rental units," planners found.

The study recommended the vacant lots in the built-up part of the village be developed first.

Construction in Chesterville has picked up since 1982, when permits were issued for residential building valued at only $47,250. Permits valued at almost $1.9 million were issued by the village last year.

But to ease the way for further development, planners emphasized the village must ensure it has adequate water and sewer capacity "to facilitate development proposals at least for the short-term future."

The study identified "deficiencies in municipal services, citing narrow roads, poor subsurface drainage, lack of open drainage, lack of sidewalks on some streets and inadequate storm sewers. It also said the village needed a water source, a community centre hall and an additional ball diamond.

It said Chesterville has updated its sewer system with the addition of a new lagoon and pumping facilities. The village, it said, has also incorporated community improvement policies into its official plan.

Township hopes bylaw will end complaints

BERWICK (Staff) - Finch Township council hopes its new property standards bylaw will end complaints from residents of cars and yards littered with junked vehicles.

At a meeting Monday night, council passed a bylaw, modelled on a standard bylaw prepared by the province, to prescribe standards for the maintenance and occupancy of buildings and property.

The township may consider hiring a bylaw enforcement officer but for now, council will hear complaints and try to negotiate a solution.

Periodic complaints from township residents of neighbors' yards filled with vehicles in disrepair spurred council to take action.

The bylaw specifies that any vehicle, boat, or trailer or part thereof "which is in a wrecked, discarded, dismantled, partly dismantled, or abandoned condition" can't be stored in a yard.

But the bylaw adds that the occupant of the property can keep a vehicle for personal, not commercial, use "while such repair is actively carried on."

The bylaw may have another benefit. Clerk-treasurer Arnott Empey told council many provincial housing assistance programs, such as the Ontario Home Renewal Program (OHRP), demand that municipalities have a property standards bylaw or certify they follow provincial standards.

Among other provisions of the bylaw is the requirement that all yards be free from rubbish and debris or conditions that "might create a health, fire or accident hazard."

The bylaw specifies that foundation walls, basement, cellar or crawl spaces be maintained "in good repair, structurally sound and waterproof." Other sections deal with the exterior of buildings.

Discussion of the property standards bylaw quickly moved on to building permits, after questions as to whether permits had been obtained for recent renovations to exterior additions on two Crysler buildings.

Councillor Floyd Dingwall said many township residents didn't know what projects called for building permits.

But if any doubt exists and a curious ratepayer phones the municipal office, Councillor Armand Gibeault said the answer should be that yes, a permit should be bought.

Building permits can affect the assessment roll. When a permit is issued, it's sent to the assessment office. Improvements to property can thus be noticed before assessors tour the area.

Gibeault said that's one more reason why permits should be required for all substantial home renovations, whether they cost a lot or a little.

Right now, the township doesn't require permits for farm buildings. But Reeve Ralph MacKenzie said permits should be demanded, if only for assessment purposes.

Last year, the township hired a building inspector and raised its permit fees. But MacKenzie said the fees aren't covering the township's increased expenses.

CARD OF THANKS
We wish to express our gratitude and sincere thanks to all our relatives, friends and neighbors, and to all of Janice's friends who assisted us in so many ways at the time of the tragic death of two very special people in our lives; a beloved daughter and grandson; a dear sister and nephew; Janice and Robby. Thank you to all who called at the house, and the funeral home. To all who phoned, sent telegrams, floral tributes, cards, letters and memorial donations; to those who brought food to the house and especially to those who remembered us in their prayers. The presence of so many at the funeral was very comforting and so appreciated. We wish to extend a special thank you to Rev. Ian McAvoy for his spiritual comfort and assistance and to Mrs. McAvoy as well for their help, comfort and support which was extended to us; to the Brownlee Ambulance Service, to Mrs. Lillian Donnelly, the staff of the Brownlee Funeral Home, the bearers, Mrs. Joan McEwan, organist, all members of Unit No. 1, Trinity United Church Women and all of their supporters for the lunch provided at the church hall following the funeral; and last but not least all personnel from the Ontario Provincial Police with whom we have had contact. The compassion and concern shown to us by all personnel who have a very difficult job to do, has been very comforting to us. All these kindnesses have made our loss easier to bear. To everyone who remembered us and assisted us in any way, we pray God's richest blessings will be bestowed upon each and everyone.

Marshall Button new artistic director

MORRISBURG (Special) - The new artistic director of Upper Canada Playhouse is Marshall Button, who appeared in the theatre's final production of the 1986 season.

Button, who grew up in Dalhousie, New Brunswick, played Jacob Mercer in Saltwater Moon last August. As the new artistic director, he succeeds Mark Morton, who had been associated with the playhouse since it re-opened in 1984.

Button received a B.A. in drama from Bishop's University, Lennoxville. In 1981, he co-founded Comedy Asylum in Fredericton and served as its artistic director for four seasons.

He has written Lucien, a one-man show portraying an Acadian millworker from northern New Brunswick. It was performed at Theatre New Brunswick from March to June of 1986 and a tour of western Canada is planned for the fall of 1987.

Following his performance in Salt Water Moon at the playhouse and for the Great Canadian Theatre Company (GCTC), he played the role of Little John in the GCTC's recent production of Robin Hood's Greatest Adventures.

Now living in Moncton, Button plans to move to the Morrisburg area for the 1987 summer season and hopes to produce two of the upcoming's season's plays locally.

Warnings issued on fish consumption

TORONTO (Staff) - The Ontario Ministry of the Environment has issued warnings regarding safe levels of consumption of sport fish.

In the St. Lawrence River, the ministry has tested nine species of fish for levels of silver, and other metals, PCBs, Mirex and pesticides.

Environment Ontario warns that walleye of more than 65 cm in length aren't to be eaten. The consumption of sturgeon more than 45 cm in length and channel catfish of more than 30 cm is limited to no more than two meals weekly or two meals a month for long-term consumers (those who fish on and off during the year for more than three weeks).

Also restricted was the consumption of walleye between 55 and 65 cm, northern pike more than 75 cm in length, and smallmouth bass of between 45 and 55 cm. The ministry advised that consumption be limited to seven meals during a one-week fishing vacation, four meals weekly over two weeks, three meals weekly over three weeks and three meals per month for long-term consumers.

Fewer restrictions were placed on walleye between 45 and 55 cm in length, northern pike (between 55 and 75 cm), yellow perch (between 25 and 30 cm), white sucker (between 45 and 65 cm) and smallmouth bass (between 30 and 45 cm). Consumers were urged to eat no more than 10 meals over one week, five meals during each of two weeks, four meals during each of three weeks, or more than one meal per week for long-term consumers.

No restrictions were placed on the consumption of walleye under 45 cm in length, northern pike under 55 cm, yellow perch under 25 cm, white sucker under 45 cm, pumpkinseed under 20 cm, brown bullhead under 35 cm and smallmouth bass under 30 cm.

The updated provincial guidelines are based on fish samples collected from 54 watercourses.

Fish for which consumption was unrestricted were found to have mercury levels of less than .5 parts per million. Pregnant women and children under the age of 15 were advised to eat only from that category.

A ban was placed on fish for which mercury levels exceeded 1.5 parts per million.

4-H teaching survival style

AVONMORE (Staff) - Local young people can learn how to survive with style.

One-day workshops to train club leaders will be held Jan. 14 at the Avonmore field office of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food and Jan. 16 at Winchester United Church. The program runs from 9:30am to 3:30pm.

To register for the workshop, leaders are asked to contact Kathy Simpson, the rural organization specialist with the Avonmore OMAF office.

Williamsburg pony riding club puts kids in the saddle

WILLIAMSBURG (Staff) - If you're the type of person who likes to go out and horse around you won't have as far to travel in the future, thanks to a new pony riding club near here to be formed this month.

At the present, the closest riding clubs in the area are located in Cornwall and Maxville, said club organizer Lois Wattie Saturday. Because of the long distance to other clubs, she decided this past summer the area needs a local club, she said.

There are 12 kids already interested in the joining, and by the end of the club's information and registration day Jan. 10 she hopes to have a total of 15 to 20 registrants, she said. The combined information-registration session will be held at the Osnabruck Township Hall from 2pm to 4pm. The initiation fee is $20 per child and $12 for a second child in the same family and everyone after.

The club will be open to people from ages 6 to 21 and will teach a number of things other than just riding, she said. "The safety around horses is one of our first major projects we're planning."

There also is a "necessity" for proper health care of a horse, and therefore, basic care of horses will also be taught, she said. Everyone should know how to take care of his or her horse, she explained. Sportsmanship and citizenship are two other things that will be taught, she added.

When asked if she rides at all herself, she replied, "Just a little." "I'm not the bravest," she explained. "I love them (horses), I love working around them. But when I get on them I get scared."

After joining, club members will have to complete quizzes on a regular basis to ensure they're being taught everything they need to know, she said. The quizzes will be provded by the Canadian Pony Club and club members will also receive pins from the organization. For each level a club member passes, he or she will receive a different backing for the pin, Wattie said.

"They have a tough test," those guys," she added.

A person need not own a pony to join the club, she said. "There's lots of ponies in the area if they don't have one." And by joining the club, members will learn what to look for in a pony, and will have an easier time deciding what type to buy. A common problem is parents buying a pony too large for their child, she said.

Parents have to be interested in what their kids do, and she hopes they'll become involved in the club along with their children. Children under the age of six are welcome to the club as long as a parent comes along, she said. That way they'll see what the club's about and will know whether to join when they get older.

"But it's not going to be a babysitting service," she stressed.

Wattie admits that she's not perfect and has made her share of mistakes, but said its just part of the learning process. Hopefully, through her knowledge, she can keep other people from making the same mistakes, she said. "We all learn from our mistakes."

Wattie and her husband, Raymond, own two ponies, the more popular one being a black, seven-year-old named Cricket. The pony has been totally trained by their nine-year-old son Shawn with occasional guidance from her and her husband, Wattie said. When they bought the pony a year-and-a-half ago it couldn't be ridden. The very same pony brought Shawn the high points award for the region this year, she said. He's also started training it for jumping.

Although members will have their share to learn, the club won't be all work and no play, she said. There will be different types of pony riding games organized and a competition among club members will probably be arranged at the end of the year, she said. "Let them have some fun," she said, adding its better that kids learn and have fun at the same time.

The club won't be a money-making organization, she said. Most of the club's income will go to the Canadian Pony Club, which tests the members and supplies the pins, she said.

"Actually I'm going broke starting this thing," she said. "It's not a money-making organization."

Club meetings will be held at different members' homes and will usually be on Saturdays, she said. In the summer they may meet a whole day. About 85 to 90 per cent of Olympic horse riders originally came from a pony club, they said.

Top two still battling

FINCH (Staff) - The top two teams in the Finch Men's Broomball League met on Saturday to determine who would take over first place in the league standings. They're still determining.

Finch's Dan Sullivan scored 30 seconds into the final period to earn Finch a 2-2 tie with Brownlees. The tie leaves both teams in first place with 17 points, one ahead at the Avonmore Animals. Sullivan set up J. Holland for Finch's other goal, while Derek Summers and Rick Tessier replied for Brownlees.

The Animals missed out on an opportunity to move into a tie for first place when they tied D&F Foam 2-2. Scoring for Avonmore were Gilles Gregoire and John Hopmans, while Joe Bakker and Kevin MacDougald added assists. Replying for D&F Foam were Jack Hoogeveen and Noel Lalonde, while Bob Walker chipped in an assist.

In an upset, seventh-place Rush City Raiders triumphed over the slumping Avonmore Rockets 4-2. A win would have moved the Rockets into a first-place tie as well. As it stands now, the Rockets are in fourth place in the tight league standings.

Crysler scores four in the second to notch first win of season

FINCH (Staff) - Four second-period goals lifted Crysler to its first victory of the season (4-1 over Finch) in North Stormont Intermediate Men's Hockey League action Sunday.

In Sunday's other match, Newington outscored Avonmore 3-1 in the final period on its way to a 5-3 triumph. The win moved Newington into a first-place tie have 20 points.

Crysler earned its first victory thanks to some inspired play in Finch's end of the rink. Marcel Courville opened the scoring near the close of the first period on passes from Roger Courville and Paul Farley.

Crysler continued to storm the net in the second frame, testing Finch goalie Garry Peras on numerous occasions. Peras had just made a scintillating save when Roger Courville cashed in the rebound for Crysler's second goal. Marcel Courville and Denis Landry assisted on the marker.

Less than two minutes later, Brent Ouderkirk deflected a shot by Peras to give Crysler a comfortable three-goal margin.

Crysler goalie Pat Brugmans lost his bid for a shutout one minute later when Leo Lafortune blasted the puck by him from the blueline. Finch began to pick up the tempo after that and came close to scoring another one.

Ouderkirk put the game away, however, at the 3:45 mark with his second marker of the game on a screaming slapshot that snuck through a crowd in front of the Finch net.

Terry Gove scored a goal and set up the other two in the second period to lift Newington past Avonmore. Also scoring for Newington were Jim Losey, Daryle Shelp, Grant Simpson and Don Simpson, while Dale Swerdfeger added two assists.

Brent Theede led Avonmore's attack with a goal and two assists, while scoring leader Jeff Johnston added a goal and an assist. John Adams notched Avonmore's other marker.

On Friday, Finch defeated last-place Ingleside 5-1 and Newington and Crysler played to a 2-2 draw.

Two goals by Gordy MacDonell in the first seven minutes were all Finch needed in posting its eighth victory of the season. Finch's other markers were scored by Mike Kuhn, Doug Coleman and Ed De Wit. Danny Cassel chipped in a pair of helpers for the victors, while Coleman, Leo Lafortune, Bill De Wit and Harold McBride each added one apiece.

David Hanson scored an unassisted goal for Ingleside, whose record dropped to a 2-9-2.

Paul Farley's goal and assist helped Crysler earn its seventh tie in 14 games. Brent Ouderkirk scored Crysler's other goal, while Paul Provost and Marc Benoit added assists.

Replaying for Newington were Ed Gove and Jim Losey, who tied the game at 11:40 of the second period.

Strong skating Hawkesbury club beats Midget A Flyers in tournament

WILLIAMSTOWN (Staff) - The Chesterville Midget A Flyers made it to the B Final of the Char-Lan Midget Hockey Tournament held last Tuesday before bowing to a strong-skating and passing club and dominated totally until the third period," says Flyers coach Kevin Mackler.

Scoring for Chesterville in the third period were Ross Giles, on a setup from Jaime Whitteker, and Shannon Frame, unassisted.

"(In the third period) we played quite a bit better and made it respectable," says Mackler.

Jason Smith was selected as Chesterville's Most Valuable Player in the B final.

Earlier, Smith won the "showdown" contest in which each team put in a goalie and two shooters. The shooters got a certain number of chances to score on penalty shots, and Smith scored more goals than any other shooter. Smith was presented with a Timex watch.

The Flyers lost their first game of the tournament 3-1 to Vankleek Hill.

Once again, the Flyers fell behind early, trailing 2-0 after the first period. Jason Smith closed the gap with an unassisted goal 3:21 into the second frame, but 1:33 later Vankleek Hill regained its two-goal advantage and shut out the Flyers the rest of the way.

In the semi-final match, the Flyers scored twice in the second period and hung on to edge Bel-Air 2-1.

Jaime Whitteker and Ross Giles each scored a goal and an assist to account for all of the Flyers' scoring.

On Sunday, the Flyers needed two third-period goals to salvage a 3-3 tie with Rockland in Upper Canada Minor Hockey League action in Chesterville.

Jaime Whitteker's two goals paced the Flyers, while Shannon Frame chipped in a goal and an assist. Also picking up assists were Craig Rodney and Derek Hyndman.

The Flyers next home game is tomorrow night at 7pm against Athens.

Ormond blanks Raiders to stay in first place in Winchester broomball

WINCHESTER (Staff) - The A pool of the Winchester and District Broomball League continued its dominance with four straight victories over B pool opponents in Sunday action.

Ormond upped its record to 14-2 by blanking the Winchester Raiders 7-0. Bill Robinson led the victors with a three-goal, two-assist performance, while league scoring leader Keith Young widened his lead in the scoring race after picking up four more points (two goals). John Veltuis and Doug Sloan completed the scoring.

Prescott Road netted two goals in the final three minutes of overtime to break a 1-1 deadlock and triumph over Crysler.

Scoring for Prescott Road were Bill Veley, Bob Kemp and Glen Petersen, while Veley and Ivan Petersen chipped in assists. Replying for Crysler was Dan McMahon on a setup from Steve Boucher.

Dunbar remains tied for first place with Ormond after whitewashing Newington by a 6-0 count. Lynn Whitteker led the way with a goal and two assists, while single markers were added by Gary Gallinger, Alex McBride, Laurie Blanchard, Denis Ray and Mike Hoogeveen. Wayne Pitt picked up the shutout.

In the other game, two goals early in the second period were all Morewood needed to defeat Toyes Hill 2-0. Scoring for Morewood were John Stewart and Vince Cousineau, while Kevin Weegar and Jim Thompson added assists. Laurie Menard got the shutout. The win leaves Morewood one point behind Dunbar and Ormond.

Finch wins in OT

FINCH (Staff) - A goal by Vicky Shaver with 2:40 remaining in overtime gave Finch a 2-1 victory over Berwick in North Stormont Ladies' Broomball League action Monday.

The victory raised Finch's record to 16 points in nine games, five points better than second-place Berwick.

Janet Hillis scored Finch's other goal at the 15:00 minute mark of the first period on a setup from Sharon McLeod, who also set up the winning goal. Lorna Smith-Gove scored Berwick's lone goal, with an assist going to Tammy Ouderkirk. .

In Monday's other match, Carol Robertson scored the game's only goals to lead Ingleside to a 2-0 victory over winless Osnabruck. Kelly Simpson and Carol Peterson picked up assists on Robertson's markers. The win moved Ingleside to within two points of Berwick.

Tae Kwon Do school stresses fitness

MAPLE RIDGE (Staff) - Some people still think that Tae Kwon Do is used to beat people up, says Maple Ridge Tae Kwon Do instructor Mike Lecuyer.

"We don't allow members picking fights and abusing their skills outside of the (Tae Kwon Do), school," Lecuyer said. "If we find out that this has happened they're kicked out

Lecuyer says the club teaches a great deal more than just how to defend yourself: "Tae Kwon Do helps you learn flexibility, control, coordination; it's great for the cardiovascular system. There's lots of exercise, just like aerobics."

Classes are held every Monday and Wednesday nights, with the junior class going from 7pm to 8pm, and the seniors from 8pm to 9pm.

The juniors train for their white, yellow and orange belts with Lecuyer. As soon as they're ready for their orange belt, they move up to the senior class, which is taught by Dennis Haney.

"Up to the black belt, it's basic training," said Lecuyer. After they (students) get their black (belt), it becomes a lot more intricate. More manoeuvres."

Lecuyer is himself a red belt with a black stripe, one level below black belt. "I'm going for my black belt in the spring. That will be tough. I just hope I can do it."

The Maple Ridge school is an affiliate of Grandmaster Lee's Tae Kwon Do School in Ottawa. "All of our promotion tests are done there,' said Lecuyer. "That's what we prepare them (students) for."

The club's philosophies are self-control, respect, honesty and integrity. "We have a lot of fun," said Lecuyer, "but there's a time for fun and a time to be serious."

"We try to instill the proper attitude in our students. It's important."

There are normally between 75 and 100 members in the club. New members are welcome to join. "There's about 60 (members) out right now. After the holidays, more people will come out."

John Guy's late-game goal salvages 4-4 tie with 86s

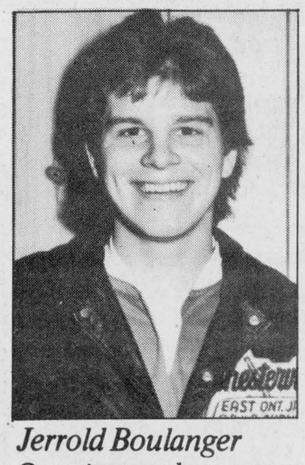
FINCH (Staff) - A goal by John Guy with 1:50 remaining in the game gave the Chesterville Flyers a 4-4 tie with the North Stormont 86s in Eastern Ontario Junior C Hockey action here Sunday afternoon.

Guy's goal came after the 86s had rallied from a 3-1 second-deficit with three unanswered goals. As usual the game was close all of the way, as is usually the case when the teams play each other.

"We've never really had overpowering success against them (North Stormont)," admitted Flyers coach Mike Armstrong on Monday. "We've beat them quite a few times in the past few years but usually they give us a battle."

North Stormont coach Steve McRae had similar praise for his opponent: "They're a good defensive team. I find that the best way to play them is to press them hard in their own end, but it's not always successful. We've (North Stormont) always had trouble scoring against them. They're the only team to shut us out this season."

The Flyers' Jerrold Boulanger opened the scoring midway through the opening frame on passes from John and Mark Guy while North Stormont was shorthanded. As was evident in Chesterville's previous two matches, its power play was effective most of the night.



Jerrold Boulanger Opening goal

North Stormont's Bernard Grady struck paydirt three minutes later on a feed from defenceman Mike Van Delst to draw the clubs even at one apiece.

Neither team could take charge and dominate the game at that point. Both teams were working hard at checking, which has often been the case when these two teams have met.

The Flyers looked like they might put an end to the close checking when they struck for two goals within a 25 second span partway into the second period.

Kevin and Ken Byers combined to set up Darrin Kelly for the go-ahead marker and then Mark Guy potted his ninth goal of the season on a pass from Chris Lynch to give the Flyers a 3-1 advantage.

That advantage didn't last for long. Steve Tait scored a power-play marker 1:50 later to close the gap for North Stormont on a setup from Paul Beehler.

With two minutes left in the second period, Beehler added his second assist on Bernard Grady's second goal of the game, knotting the score at 3-3 heading into the final period.

Greg Mesich gave the 86s their first lead of the game with an unassisted effort at 11:30 of the third.

The 86s kept the checking close and held the Flyers to a minimal amount of scoring opportunities, until John Guy scored in the dying minutes to give Chesterville a tie. Mark Guy and Lynch drew assists on the final marker.

McRae blamed the tying goal on a late line change: "What cost us the game was we got caught in a line change. The forwards couldn't get back in time."

Russell Lions show spark in loss to Flyers

CHESTERVILLE (Staff) - Due to a dismal start, the Russell Lions have not been considered a force in the Eastern Ontario Junior C Hockey League. "Also rans" would be a more appropriate term.

After last Tuesday's game in Chesterville versus the Flyers, however, the Lions showed that they are no longer willing to roll over and play dead.

Buoyed by the addition of a new coach and thus a new system, the Lions have played some inspired hockey of late.

"I'm telling you, before the year's out, they'll win their share of games," said Flyers coach Mike Armstrong after his team had defeated Russell 6-4. "You can tell the difference. Before, they (the Russell players) didn't know what they were doing. Now they have good balance, good offence, good passing. Now they have a system."

Chris Lynch led the Flyers offensively with a two-goal, two-assist effort. Linemate Mike Harper added an assist and a pair of markers, including the game-winner.

Harper's winning goal, at the 8:17 mark of the third period, broke open a tight game and gave Chesterville a two-goal cushion (5-3). Jerrold Boulanger netted the insurance marker four minutes later, unassisted.

Also scoring for Chesterville was Doug Newman. Gary Klein Swormik and Jerrold Boulanger each chipped in a pair of assists while Mary Guy, Ken Byers, and John Guy added single helpers.

Russell outshot Chesterville 26-23 on the game.
