Curtailment of Canned Milk Production Here Possibility due to Surplus Stocks in Industry

Concern Felt by District Dairymen Plant May Divert Milk for Short Period

Rumour has had a field day in the community this week. Like most rumours, there is a little truth and a great deal of supposition in the conclusions that are being batted about.

It all began on Monday afternoon when the word spread like wildfire that the Nestlé plant here was about to be closed down. That in itself would be startling enough but one thing led to another until bread lines were envisaged for most of us within the next few days.

We have a few facts in hand. Perhaps they will serve to set the picture a bit more in perspective.

Condensing milk plants these days are having a troublesome time moving the large stocks of evaporated milk on hand. The condition has arisen, not from a lack of sales of the product, but from conditions that have prevailed in the industry for the past summer. The cattle population in the dairy sections of the province have reached abnormally high levels with the U.S. border closed to shipment of cattle because of the outbreak of foot and mouth disease. Farmers who normally sell their surplus dairy animals to American buyers have had to keep the majority of them on the farms and milk them. The price of milk has remained fairly high, the past summer saw weather that gave an abundance of pasture and feed, and it has not been too difficult to winter the extra stock.

The condenseries have been receiving milk considerably in excess of the estimated quantities for normal conditions. As a result, canned milk is "long" or in oversupply in the warehouses.

The Nestlé plant is in the same position as the other plants in Ontario. They have a large supply of processed milk on hand and are reaching a point where manufacture for the domestic market must be considered carefully

In 1949 a similar condition prevailed locally although it did not reach the degree of surplus on hand as now. At that time the milk was diverted to cheese factories and in a short time the situation was eased.

The immediate past president of the Ontario Concentrated Milk Producers Association, Allison Graham, returned home from Toronto this morning. He spent a large part of yesterday in company with the president of Nestlé (Canada) Limited, Harold Grout. The two men reviewed the situation from the points of view of the producer and the manufacturer. Out of the discussion emerged a little clearer picture.

Upon the completion of the present plant schedule, which is now processing Lactogen powder until the coffee program begins again at the beginning of February, the production of canned milk will depend entirely on orders received for export milk. If they are not forthcoming, there is a large possibility milk will have to be diverted from the plant here to other processing plants for cheese and powder. Association and plant field men are making arrangements with cheese and powder factories in the area to take it if the Nestlé plant has to divert the milk. In the event, arrangements will be worked out with truckers to do the hauling, either in tank trucks from the plant here or by direct pick-up. It must be emphasized that these are only tentative plans. The whole picture is uncertain now and will remain so until the export market is explored thoroughly for a possible outlet for canned milk. The production of canned milk for the domestic market has reached its limit until space is made in the warehouses through sales.

If the diversion of milk proves necessary, a period of some weeks would see the plant not processing canned milk. The coffee program is not affected in any way and the plant will be in production in that department. The shipping of stocks of milk from the plant will not be affected in any way.

Chesterville Public Library Holds Annual Meeting After Year of Progress

The annual meeting of the Chesterville Public Library was held in the office of the clerk-treasurer on the evening of Thursday last. The secretary's report was given as follows: "Four meetings were held during the year. In 1952 a total of 198 new books were added to the shelves, of which 104 were children's books; adult fiction, 64; non-fiction, 30.

The circulation of books showed an increase of 121 and is broken down as follows: Children's, 3,898; Adult fiction, 4,414; non-fiction, 553.

The library we have is inching along, lack of space is a handicap and we still have need of many books, but the selection we have is comparatively up-to-date, ranging from the erudite to simple picture books for the preschool child. During the year the stock of book, application and membersship cards was replenished.

The new and untried venture of the children's party during "Young Canada Book Week" was well received, both by the 86 small children, who were special guests, and interested parents who attended. Other than the teachers of the grades and parents involved, no invitations were issued. The secretary received yeoman assistance in the undertaking from Mrs. Hughson, Mrs. Eric Casselman, Mrs. Keith Graham, Mrs. John Turner, Mrs. Chas. McMillan, Mrs. D. R. Dockstead-er and Mrs. T. D. Ross. Mrs. Francis Moriarty, a member of the board, was unable to be present due to illness.

Mrs. Albert Gillard was in charge of the Public School and the group from the Separate School was in the care of the Rev. Sister Mary Jane Frances. Several of the small guests gave of their talent to add further to the success of the afternoon. On behalf of the Library, each child received a story book as a souvenir of the party.

Many mothers telephoned their appreciation of the effort and expressed the hope that similar ventures on the children's behalf would again be undertaken."

The treasurer's report showed that total expenditures during 1952 were $583.84, of which sum $394.94 was spent for new books and cards. The board dceided to sponsor a library party in the near future when grades 3 and 4 from public and separate schools will be guests.

Reeve Chas. McMillan was re-elected chairman; Mrs. Percy Hewitt was re-engaged as librarian and Mrs. B. W. Campbell will continue as the secretary-treasurer.

The library board is composed of the following persons: Mrs. William Hughson and Mrs. J. F. Moriarty, who represent Seperate School; Eric Casselman, John Turner and Percy Hewitt, who represent Public School interests, and Ronald Lynch, H. Keith Graham and the secretary, who are appointed by Village Council.

The book selection committee is as follows: Mrs. Hughson, Mrs. J. F. Moriarty, Keith Graham, John Turner and Mrs. B. W. Campbell.—S.C.

Holstein Breeders' Club Holds Successful Meeting

Two successful Barn Meetings have been held recently under the sponsorship of the Holstein Breeder's Club. Nearly 200 district breeders gathered at the farm of Harold W. Merkley, Chesterville, to hear Dr. B. W. Lapp, local veterinarian, give a talk on some of the common diseases, in particular, to dairy cattle in this area and also to participate in a judging and grading competition in charge of Mr. G. Smith, Fieldman of the Holstein-Friesian Association.

There was a 4-way tie for first place among the following: Gerald Holmes, Winchester, silage fork donated by the Chesterville and District Co-operative; Gordon Fawcett, Winchester, $5.00 credit note from the Fennell Feed Co., Winchester; Lloyd Spearman, Inkerman, bag of feed donated by Basil Dawley, Winchester; Milton Barkley, Iroquois, a cow halter donated by Fulton Bros., Chesterville. There was also a tie for second place between Frankie Milne, Mountain, and Hugh Coons, Inkerman, who won a stable shovel donated by Geo. Gillard and Son, Chesterville.

The officers and directors of the Dundas Holstein Breeder's Club are particularly proud, and justly so, of the overwhelming success of these various Barn Meetings, which, they believe, create a closer feeling between the farmers who attend them.

Another successful meeting was held at the farm of Mahlon Zeron, Iroquois. This meeting was again well attended with nearly 200 breeders coming to view the fine herd and buildings of Mr. Zeron and also to hear Dr. D. MacLean give a short talk on some of the diseases, particularly to calves, and to advise on the management of housing and the management of dairy calves.

In the judging and grading competition, that was again held in charge of Mr. Grant Smith, the following were winners: 1. Keith Fawcett, a bag of feed donated by Harold Boyd, Dixon's Corners; 2. A tie, with Ronald Timmons, Inkerman, winning a stable shovel donated by C. W. Coons, Brinston, and Gordon Fawcett, Winchester, a bag of feed donated by Hilliard Merkley, Iroquois. 3. A tie with T. Teichman, Winchester Springs, winning a stable broom donated by Art Johnston, Dixon's Corners, and Landon McInnes, Iroquois, a bag of Co-op feed donated by Matilda and District Co-operative; 4. Allison Fawcett, Winchester, a stable fork donated by Brinston Bros., Brinston; 5. a tie, with Lyall Levere, Mountain, winning a bag of Co-op dairy ration donated by Matilda and District Co-operative and Allan Milne a stable fork donated by the club.

Various Club presidents, who were present, were called up and brought greetings from their respective Clubs.

GEORGE ELLIOTT, GRANTLEY INJURED LAST WEEK

District High School Holds Annual Meeting Appoints Officers

Monday evening in the Chesterville High School saw the first meeting of the year of the North Dundas District High School Board. All members were present for the opening session of the year and included three new appointments. Matilda Township is represented on the board for the first time with Dalton Coons, of Toyes Hill, filling the position. Winchester Village appionted Howard Biccum to replace J. K. Ault. James Brannen fills the post for Chesterville Separate School left open when W. J. Carr completed his term. Other members of the board remain the same: Robert Wood, appointee for Winchester Public School, Douglas Johnson for Mountain Township, Lorne Feeley for Winchester Township and Keith Graham for Chesterville Village. Secretary-treasurer George G. Merkley, Chesterville, was reappointed for 1953.

The secretary was acting chairman for the election of officers as the first order of business. Two nominations were received for chairman of the Board, the names of Robert Wood and Keith Graham. Members of the Board voted unanimously that Keith Graham be reappointed; Robert Wood was appointed vice-chairman on an unanimous vote.

The finance committee will consist of Lorne Feeley and Douglas Johnson. Transportation will be in the hands of Howard Biccum and James Brannen. Purchasing for the schools comes under the eyes of four members, James Brannen and Lorne Feeley for Chesterville and Robert Wood and Howard Biccum for Winchester.

The caretakers of the schools were rehired at 1952 salaries and the members of the Board expressed their satisfaction in the work being done in that direction.

At the conclusion of regular business, the Board held a long and interesting discussion on general school problems.

One of the most important items to be solved in the coming year is a more equal distribution of pupil population in the two schools under the control of the District Board. Winchester High School is chronically overcrowded with a resulting overload in all departments of the school. Chesterville pupil-teacher ratio is at the opposite end of the scale with not quite enough pupils attending to provide economical operation. The Board made, as one of the projects of the year, a decision to find some solution. To further this endeavour, members of the Osgoode High School Board are to be invited to sit with the North Dundas group at the next meeting on Tuesday, February 17, at Winchester, to discuss at length problems common to both boards. North Dundas District Board supplies the facilities for education of the Osgoode pupils in the Winchester school.

REV. D. L. GORDON, MOREWOOD SPEAKS ON BURNS AT ROTARY

The Rev. D. L. Gordon addressed the membeds of Chesterville Rotary Club last Monday evening at their regular meeting. He chose as his topic, "The Message of Robert Burns." Introduced by R. C. Dillabough, the speaker was thanked by Jas. Cunningham.

Robert Burns was born at Ayr, Scotland, on January 25, 1759 and died 37 years later. His writings have a universal appeal and are up-to-date even by today's stanards. In his short life he experienced the labours and sufferings of the common man. He saw clearly the injustices imposed by the privileged. His verse became the voice of the free man for an independent mind and for true democracy. Burns has been a definite influence in many countries other than his own and his most lasting cry has been for the brotherhood of man.

Along The Way

By Stylus

"Why Jim, whatever are you lugging around the countryside this early in the morning?"

"Oh, hello Bill!" Jim had a pretty sheepish look, I thought, when he realized our chance meeting, "this isn't anything very much, just a little paint."

"Paint?" I answered with all the surprise I could get into my voice, although I knew very well what it was all about.

"Yes," and Jim went on to explain things as though I were a six-year-old, "paint, you know, the stuff that's used to colour walls and barns or whatever might need colouring."

"Oh," I replied, with all the innocence of a new-born babe. "I thought for a moment it might be some new kind of beauty preparation that the Little Woman needed and could be bought in bulk—cheaper, like."

"Come off it, Bill, you know what I mean well enough. When you were over the other evening for that cribbage game we showed you and Nell what we'd done in the front room."

"Oh yes, of course, I clean forgot, Jim! So that's what the paint is for, that new wall board you had your Uncle Ned so busy at."

"That's it. The missus has finally got me at it. This time of year is a pretty good time for such stuff anyway. Can't very well get to the bush and most of the other chores are well caught up; I wasn't able to find an excuse to get out if it!"

"I see. Well now, Jim, I suppose you know how to go about painting?"

By this time Jim was a little more on the offensive, and the game became a little less one-sided. He came back at me this way: "Why, what do you mean, Bill? I've done a bit in my time. Did over the old car only last summer, don't you mind?"

"Oh yes, I do remember that, Jim. In fact, that's what's on my mind. I don't mean to run down your work at all, or anything like that, old boy, but you have to admit, of course, that there's a difference between the work of an expert and that done by the 'layman', as we might say."

"I suppose there is," answered Jim, "I seem to remember that you did a lot of painting at one time, didn't you?"

"W-e-e-l-l, I suppose you could call it a lot, Jim," I said, beginning to feel a wee bit uncomfortable.

"I always believe there's something more to learn," went on Bill. "Come on up to the house and give us a few lessons."

"Oh I couldn't just now, Bill. I'm on my way to town to get a few things for Nell, and then I've got to go see the bank manager about that note, and—well, I've got a lot of business to do and I couldn't really spare the time."

"Bill, you can't get away with it! You know as well as I do that you're only going to the village to shoot a game or two, and you might as well be gainfully employed as squandering your time about like that!"

He had me and I knew it. We had been neighbours too long not to know each other's habits, so I just had to make the best of it. I felt as sheepish as a dog that's been caught sneakin a bite out of the garbage can, and quite uncomfortable as I followed Jim to the house.

Jim flung open the door and shouted out "I've got the paint, honey, and an expert to boot to put it on for us!" His shout was full of malicious glee.

Doris, Jim's wife, hustled into the kitchen to see the "expert." When she caught sight of me her face lost its questioning look and a slow smile curved her pretty lips with understanding. Doris was like that, pretty quick to catch on to things.

We took off our hats and rubbers. I had my overalls on, of course, so we were soon ready for work. I knew Jim and Doris were very anxious to make a good job of the room. It was bare, except for the stepladder that we would need to paint the upper part of the walls. It was a little the worse for wear, as so many things are around the farm.

I took all this in at a glance, as the novelists say. But my thoughts were interrupted by Jim's voice, "I suppose we start at the top of the wall, Bill?"

I agreed, of course, and was immediately invited to make myself right at home on top of the ladder!

The only thing to do, of course, was to make a big parade of my lack of knowledge. Since I'd opened my mouth wide enough to get my big foot in, as the saying goes, I decided I'd ram it home and perhaps I wouldn't have so much to say another time.

Jim had secured little paddles to stir the paint with, as I discovered when I unwrapped his parcel. There were two new brushes too, so evidently I was taking Doris' place. Gee, but I wish I hadn't been so smart!

However, I had to make the best of it, so I picked up a paddle, pulled a screwdriver out of my pocket, and having opened a can of paint without spilling a drop, got to work stirring it up with the feeling that a good beginning is a good omen (or as the Greeks used to put it, "The beginning is half of all."). How little the Greeks knew!

"Now, Jim," I said, "you do just as I do. The idea is to get all the gunk off the bottom of the can and dissolve it in the watery stuff that floats near the top."

"Oh," said Jim, "You're referring to the resolutive white lead that has to be emulsified each time it settles to the bottom, aren't you?"

My face fell ten feet and minutes seemed to pass before I could get hold of it and put it back into shape. The best I could do was to mutter almost incoherently "Yaa, yaa, I guess so, Bill."

As we paddled away I stole a covert glance at Bill. What technique he had! He seemed to know just how to flick the wrist to get the paint to mix, or emolstify did he call it? I looked down at my own can. It looked just the same as when I opened it, yet Bill's was almost ready for use. There wasn't a drop outside of his can, but there were three blobs on the floor beside mine.

We finally got the paint mixed. I climbed the ladder still trying to look the part I'd first taken but with increasingly less desire to play it. "Now," I said, noting that both Bill and Doris were watching me with gleeful anticpation, "a good painter gets the paint on right side out, while at the same time he leaves no brush marks or brush hairs in his work." I took a brush full of paint and went to work. The paint was of good quality and went on smoothly. Jim followed my example, at a lower level. My confidence began to return, and I asked with some of my original abandonment, "Its pretty easy, Jim, and if there's anything you don't understand just let me know. Practice makes perfect, as they say."

At that moment I shifted my weight a little too hastily, not thinking of the rickety condition of the ladder. The next thing I knew I was sitting on the floor with the paint pot beside me, half of the contents over the room and the other half over me. Jim and Doris couldn't do a thing, they were laughing so hard.

Well, Neighbour, I spent that whole day cleaning up the paint. I was terribly mortified, of course, although Jim and Doris were the kind that took the whole thing in the best of humour. I guess I learned more than I taught—for I've kept my mouth shut tight ever since, and made my eyes and ears work a little overtime.

I found out later, through a mutual friend, that Jim had served his time as a painter long before he ever took up Doris or farming. I guess the old saw's pretty sharp yet, "Open your mouth and show your ignorance." I'm sure keeping mine shut—but tight!

A man rushed into a barbershop, addressed the barber at the first chair, "How many ahead of me?"

"Two haircuts," responded the barber. The man rushed out and didn't come back.

The next Saturday the same performance was repeated.

The third Saturdaythe fellow dashed in with his inquiry. "Three ahead of you!" replied the barber, "say . . ." But the man was gone.

"Follow that fellow and find out who he is," the barber instructed the shine boy. "This is the third Saturday he has run in here, asked how many were ahead of him, then run out and not come back."

A few minutes later the shine boy returned.

"Boss," he said, "Ah doan know who that feller is, but ah sho know where he went!"

"Where?" asked the barber.

"To youah house, suh!"

Municipalities Assured Views to be Heeded On Seaway Problems

The Ontario Hydro Commision has just completed an aerial survey of the Ontario shore of the St. Lawrence river to a depth of six miles from Prescott to Mille Roches, Hon. George H. Challies, MLA, reported in outlining prliminary steps taken by the commision on the St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

"From the photographs taken, mosaics have been prepared as the basis for highly accurate maps at a scale of 1,000 feet to the inch," Mr. Challies added. "These maps will prove very valuable in discussions between the commission and municipalities or individual property owners."

Mr. Challies, who is vice-chairman of Ontario Hydro, addressed the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry, Tuesday, on the St. Lawrence power and seaway project.

"All we need is the naming of our partner (the State of New York) in the power project," he said. "Until the Federal Power Commission acts in this matter, the most Ontario can do is to anticpate problems and prepare to meet them. This we are doing. Already an advisory committee has been established with representatives of Planning and Development, Highways, Agriculture, Education, Lands and Forests and Municipal Affairs. An expert in community planning and a representative of the CNR are also included in the committee."

"One guiding principle which governs the commission's preliminary planning and which will be maintained during the period of automony must be preserved as fully as possible. Guidance and advice, not absolute control, will be brought to bear upon the solution of the problems which are bound to arise."

Mr. Challies emphasized it is the intention of the provincial government and Ontario Hydro that, "the whole area involved in the development will be restored with the improved municipal services achieved through close and friendly co-operation between provincial and municipal agencies."

"Another important principle which will govern the commission's planning and activities is that individual citizens must always be treated fairly with justice and equity," he stressed.

"Did you lose a half-dollar, Mister?" asked the small boy.

"Why yes, I believe I did," the man answered as he put his hand in his pocket. "Have you found it?"

"Oh no, I'm just finding out how many were lost today. Yours is the 34th one so far."

"So you met your wife at a dance. Wasn't that romantic?"

"No, embarrassing. I thought she was home looking after the kids."

Fire Destroys Home At Monklands

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the home of Ovila Rozon, Monklands, on Saturday night. Efficient work by the Apple Hill Volunteer Fire Brigade was credited with preventing the flames from spreading to nearby homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Rozon and two children were away at the time of the outbreak. The fire was discovered by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Leroux, next door neighbours.

Villagers fought the flames until the brigade arrived from nearby Apple Hill. Brigades were also summoned from Maxville and Avonmore, but their equipment wasn't needed.

No damage estimate was available, although it was learned the frame dwelling was covered with a small amount of insurance.

Mrs. Stuart Hart Hostess to North Valley W.A.

The members of the North Valley Woman's Association were entertained at the home of Mrs. Stuart Hart at an all-day quilting bee.

In the afternoon the president held a short meeting. Devotional readings were given by the president, Mrs. C. Gallinger, after which all repeated the Lord's prayer in unison.

The roll call was answered with a New Year's verse. Six visitors were present.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Mac Otto and approved.

The treasurer, Mrs. John Grandaw, gave the report on the past year, which was quite satisfactory.

Mrs. J. T. Flegg gave a New Years reading and Mrs. Clifton Gallinger a reading entitled "Thoughts for the New Year."

Cards of thanks were read by Mrs. E. Zummach for Christmas boxes received by Frank Brownell, Mrs. Isaac Otto and Mrs. Albert Flegg.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction. The next meeting will be held at Mrs. Clifton Gallinger's.

Seguin Sentenced To Five Years For Bank Holdup

Henry Seguin, wanted in Ontario, to face a charge of murdering Leonard Hurd, Maxville taxi-owner last August, was sentenced Saturday at Williams Lake, B.C. to five years imprisonment on three counts arising out of an attempted bank holdup in December.

Seguin, formally charged as Henry James Redford, 34, pleaded guilty to the three charges. The sentences will run concurrently.

Seguin was captured by an RCMP posse in bush country north of William's Lake after bank manager Leonard Hillier was wounded during the attempted holdup of a Bank of Commerce branch.

Hillier was nicked in the thigh by a bullet fired by Seguin as he fled the bank about midnight. Earlier, Seguin had abducted Hillier in his car and driven around town for nearly an hour.

Seguin ran from the bank when two bank employes entered the building to see why the front door had been left open.

He was traced down by footprints in freshly-fallen snow and was wounded in the chest during a gun-battle with the officers.

TRY THIS FOR EASY PARKING

More cuss words have probably split the air in regard to parallel parking than any other driving manoeuver present day motorists have to perform.

Each driver seems to have his own formula for the job. But for those who do it by guess and by gum, the following may prove helpful.

Pull up parallel to the car ahead of the parking space, preferably one foot and not more than two feet away from it. Stop when your rear bumper is even with his.

Then back slowly, swinging the steering wheel as far right as possible. When your front seat is even with the other car's rear bumper, straighten your front wheels, backing slowly.

As your front wheel comes opposite the other car's rear wheels, start turning the steering wheel to the left.

When clear of the car's rear bumper, quickly complete turn of your steering wheel to the left as far as it will go. Back on in.

This should align you properly. If your car is not quite square with the curb, pull up a bit until aligned. Stop in centre space.

Follow the instructions, add a bit of luck, and you'll find yourself right in the centre every time with no damage to curb, rubber, or the fenders on either car.

Powerful

Two moonshiners from the mountains were taking their first train trip. They had heard of soda pop, but neither had ever tasted any, so when the vendor came through the car they each bought a bottle.

The first moonshiner wiped the lip of the bottle with his hand and took a long drink—just as the train entered a tunnel.

"How d'you like it, Jed?" asked his companion in the darkness.

"Don't touch that stuff, Lem. I been struck blind!"

A good politician has to be an acrobat—he has to straddle a fence, keep his fingers on the nation's pulse, point with pride and look to the future while keeping both ears to the ground!

One cold snowy morning an old man was seen,, dressed in his nightgown, vigorously chopping kindling.

His neighbour, amazed at the brevity of the old man's clothing in such severe weather asked, "How come?"

The old man never missed a lick in his chopping as he replied: "For the last 70 years I've dressed by a fire every morning, and I'll be dadgummed if I'm gonna stop now."

Doctor: "Your husband must have absolute quiet. Here's a sleeping pill.

Wife: "When do I give it to him?"

Doctor: "You don't give it to him —you take it."

Patient: "Doctor, I blush so easily that it worries me. When I sit down and think, I blush. How can I stop it?"

Psychologist: "The best way, young lady, is to think about something different."

The clerk intoned The State of Texas versus Willie Johnson."

FOOLING LITTLE PIGS

A firm in England has developed a mechanical sow which promises to greatly increase that country's pork production. The device consists of a long milk-filled case with fourteen artificial teats sticking out of the sides. An infra-red lamp keeps the piglets warm. Purpose of the device is to take over most of a normal sow's eight-week nursing job, saving the mother pig's strength and fat so she can have three litters instead of two a year.

British Sword Cutlers Executing Orders For Coronation

Furnishing and refurbishing ceremonial swords in preparation for the Coronation is keeping British sword cutlers busy. The 180-year-old Wilkinson Sword Co., of Acton, the only company doing this kind of work, has received orders for 2,000 swords.

An order just completed is for swords for the Royal Canadian Navy. The firm is executing an order for cavalry swords for the R.C.M.P., and has in hand an order for sword belts for the Royal Canadian Navy.

Ceremonial swords have not been standard equipment for officers in Britain since before the war, but many officers have pre-war swords and are having these refurbished at an average cost of about $15 each. The cost of a new sword is about $40, the exact price depending on the type.

The new swords are of about a dozen types and are being made for the Household Cavalry, the Yeomen of the Guard and others. The longest are those of the Household Cavalry, 38 inches, compared with the average of a little more than 30 inches. Many swords are being sent to be brought up to date and will bear the Queen's cypher.

A rich uncle died and made the following bequest in his will:

"I leave to my beloved nephew all of the money he owes me."

The daughter was concerned about the amount of money her boy friend was spending on her each time he took her out.

"Mother, what is the best way to stop William from spending too much money on me "

"Marry him!"

FEW SECONDS TO DIG 2,000-FOOT DITCH

Have you any land that needs draining in a hurry?

Then do what William Whalen did on his farm south of Kars, Ont., near Ottawa. He dug a 2,000-ft. ditch through soft, marshy land in a few seconds—not with a shovel, bulldozer or ditching machine—but with dynamite.

The recent ditch-digging event on the Whalen farm was witnessed by 30 students of the Kemptville Agricultural School. Fred Tremblay, technical service representative of the explosives division of C.I.L. showed the students how to place the sticks of ditching dynamite in the ground along the desired course of the ditch, and also how to prime and fire the charge.

When the shots were exploded some 1,700 tons of earth and muck were blown skywards. Tangles of bush and rushes were cleared out, leaving a neat ditch—five feet wide and three feet deep—to drain the runoff water from the Whalen farm into the Rideau River. Within minutes water was coursing the length of the ditch. Within half an hour the low-lying section had dried considerably.

According to farmer Whalen, digging ditches with dynamite not only saves many man-hours of labour—an important consideration during this period of farm labour shortage—but is cheaper than digging by machine, and can be done in soft wet ground where machines would bog down.

"INDESTRUCTABLE" WORK SOCKS

Mrs. Housewife, throw away that pesky darning needle. Present the sock stretchers to Junior so he may use them as boomerangs. Get rid of your darning yarns. With the introduction of the new wool-nylon work socks you're about to be emancipated frm one of the most tedious of household chores—sock darning.

The latest news in working men's "fashion" circles is that Canadian hosiery manufacturers are now making heavy work socks of nylon staple yarn and wool blends. These socks will outlive the ordinary types several times. They are warm, comfortable, non-shrinking, or will shrink but little when being washed—depending on the amount of nylon in the blend. But even with the slightly-shrinking blends, sock stretchers are not required.

There are several nylon-wool blends on the Canadian market today, 10 per cent nylon and 90 per cent wool, 20 per cent nylon and 80 per cent wool, 50 per cent nylon and 50 per cent wool. One Quebec manufacturer is producing a heavy 100 per cent nylon staple yarn for work socks.

Breathes there a man with soul so dead who ne'er hath turned his head and said:

Hmmmmm. Not bad!

CANADIAN PLOWMEN ABROAD

by ROY SHAVER Past President
ONTARIO
PLOWMEN'S ASSOCIATION

Douglas S. Reid

Algie Wallace

Editor's Note:

Roy Shaver of Finch, Ont., past president of Ontario's Plowmen's Association accompanied Douglas S. Reid of Brampton, Ont., and Algie Wallace of North Gower, Ont., Canada's champion plowmen, on their trip to the British Isles, Eire and France. This is the first of a series of five weekly articles he has written as team manager about their experiences and impressions.

PLOWMEN'S NEWSLETTER
By Roy Shaver

It hardly seems possible this is 1953 and it is two months since the three of us took off by air to start another Canadian plowmen's tour of the British Isles and to compete against European plowmen.

By the time we returned we had experienced our first "pea-souper"—the worst fog in London's recent history—visited Canadian war graves in France, seen some of the finest agricultural land in the world and spoken to representatives of almost every nationality you can think of.

However, before I tell you more about the trip, I had better tell you something about us, and how we came to make the journey.

For the past seven years the grand prize of the Ontario Plowmen's Association annual International Plowing Match has been a gold medal and a trip to Europe for the champion horse and tractor plowmen, with all expenses paid by Imperial Oil. The prizes are offered for the winners of a special class known as the Esso Trans Atlantic class.

The winner's at last October's match held at Carp, near Ottawa, were 26-year-old Douglas S. Reid, of Brampton, Ont., in the tractor class, and 35-year-old Algie Wallace, of North Gower, Ont., in the horse class.

Algie's win was a matter of great pride in Eastern Ontario. He was the first plowman to bring a championship to the eastern counties in the 39-year history of the O.P.A.

Each year it is a custom of the O.P.A. to select a team-manager to accompany the plowmen. In addition to acting as manager, he also is the group's official chronicler and reporter. I consider it a great honour to have been chosen. I am a director and past president of the O.P.A., and have been a lifelong dairy farmer at Finch in Ontario's Stormont County.

You are probably wondering why we did not write while we were overseas. There are two reasons.

It has been the practice in past years for the winning plowmen to make their overseas visit in January and February, in time to participate in the Northern Ireland International Match at Belfast. This time the O.P.A. directors decided we should make our trip almost immediately after the International match and compete instead in the British National Ploughing Match at Falkirk, Scotland. During the match there was to be a trial of a set of rules that had been proposed for international plowing competitions. The O.P.A. was anxious for Canadian plowmen to take part in this trial.

Leaving at that time also allowed me to sit in with J. D. Thomas, of Toronto, the O.P.A.'s special delegate, at the 11-nation conference at Stirling, Scotland, which decided to hold the first world plowing match in Canada this fall.

However, the early November departure meant there was little time for preparation of many things, among them arrangements with weekly editors for publication of our letters to you. A quick poll taken among editors of our acquaintance showed they thought it would be better if we related our experiences after our return for publication after the Christmas rush.

So for the next few weeks we will try to recall for you the things that impressed us most and some of the wonderful people we met during the trip.

I think I can say without hesitation that the one thing that impressed us most, and certainly the thing that will live in my memory for a long time, was the amazing spirit of the people of England. Reading newspaper accounts and predictions of approaching national bankruptcy, scarcity of food and high taxes, we had expected to see gloomy, disgruntled people. Though bomb damage still scars acres of London (we saw only one new building), the people we met never once mentioned the war, the high taxes which are even now still paying for that war, or the stringent rationing which is another holdover from those bleak years.. Had we not known better we could have concluded there never had been a war or rationing.

It is easy to be generous when one has plenty, but it quite a different matter to be generous on the meagre rations which Britons have put up with for the past 13 years. I can remember sitting down to tea in the dining room of a quaint oak-beamed house 400 years old. On the table were hot scones dripping with butter. The butter represented some two week's rations for our hosts, but that was a subject that was never discussed.

Don't misunderstand me. It isn't a mood of resignation. It is rather a spirit of "There's no use whining about all this. We went into it with our eyes open, so we'll see it through."

When we remembered some of the complaining and grousing that goes on over here, I think we all felt a little ashamed.

Together with this wonderful spirit was an extreme politeness on the part of the English. We met it throughout England. After the raring, tearing, "let's get through in a hurry" rudeness that, it seems to me, is so general here, it was as refreshing as a summer rain.

On the platform of London's St. Pancras station our tall, white western-style hats, decorated with a maple leaf, revealed us as strangers. Within as many minutes six people approached us, smilingly said "Hello", and asked if there was anything they could do for us. That sort of thing happened to us wherever we went.

Another thing that made a strong impression was the breathtaking beauty of the war graves I visited during a two-day trip we made to France. The cemeteries and graveyards of our soldiers who fell in the two world wars would stand comparison with the finest parks in the world. No monument could better show our gratitude than these acres of green grass, beautiful flowers and simple white crosses, that reveal the most loving and tender care.

I am afraid I have rambled a little in this first letter, but in those that follow I will trace our path through the British Isles and hope that you will get as much enjoyment from the telling as we did from the doing.

OLD TYPE SPINNING "MULE"

Once standard equipment in a cotton mill, the old spinning "mule" has long since gone by the board.

Dominion Textile's manufacturing equipment is now among the most modern in the world. Machinery bought by our 7,239 shareholders (94.7 of them Canadians) help us to turn out top quality goods and provide jobs for the 12;500 Canadians working in our plants.

But equipment improvements, such as replacing the mule, aren't everything. We have our troubles trying to compete with the products of other countries which pay lower wages. In Japan and India, for instance, wages run about 15 cents an hour, while we pay well over a dollar an hour.

MRS. D. W. MacLEOD KIRK HILL RESIDENT DIES AT FINCH

Mrs. Racehl MacLeod, widow of Donald William MacLeod, of Kirk Hill, and one of the most beloved and respected residents of Lochiel Township, died at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Morrison MacLeod, of Finch. Her death followed an illness of two months.

Born in Kenyon Township, April 16, 1877, she was the daughter of John MacSweyn and Isobel MacLeod. On November 16, 1898, she married Donald William MacLeod, of Kirk Hill, who predeceased her Dec. 3, 1945.

Mrs. MacLeod was a lifelong and most devoted member of the Kirk Hill United Church, a life member of the Women's Missionary Society and president of the Dalkeith Auxiliary of the W.M.S. at the time of her death. Her kindness and Christian influence will be sadly missed by residents of the entire district.

To mourn her loss, she leaves six sons and four daughters, Norman Neil Macleod, Ashcroft, B.C.; John Allen, of Wales; Alexander, Kirk Hill; Donald, St. John, N.B.; Allan Morrison MacLeod, Kirk Hill; Dr. Forbes MacLeod, St. John; Isabel, Mrs. Morrison MacLeod, of Finch; Sarah, Mrs. Ian Irvine, Dalkeith; Christena, Mrs. Allan Armstrong, Kemptville; Flora, Mrs. Lloyd Anderson, Winchester.

The funeral, which was held from the old homestead, Kirk Hill, to the Kirk Hill United Church, was attended by a large number of relatives and friends. The service was conducted by Rev. S. A. R. Delve, of Kirk Hill, assisted by Rev. H. M. Beach, minister of Chalmer's United Church, Finch.

Hymns sung were "The Lord is My Shepherd," "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" and "All the Way My Saviour Leads Me." The choir sang, by request, the anthem "Will Your Anchor Hold."

Four nephews and two neighbours acted as pall bearers: Donald H. MacIntosh, John P. MacLeod, Donald MasSweyn, Neil F. MacCrimmon, Donald.

The remains were placed in the Campbell MacDonald and Sidney Macvault of the Kirk Hill United Church cemetery for interment in the spring.

The presence of so many relatives and friends of the deceased and the beautiful floral tributes received were tokens of the affection and esteem in which Mrs. MacLeod was held by all who knew her.

"Mary, arn't you getting too big to play with the boys."

"No, mother, the bigger I get the better I like them."
