RESTORED SIGHT CLAIMED BY MAN AT LOCKE CLINIC

"I can see," was the excited message that W. Charles Randall, 48, Napanee, whispered to his neighbour, George Kemp, at the Locke clinic.

For the first time in three years, Randall claims, he can see, and after five weeks of treatment from Dr. M W. Locke, his sight is returned enough for him to distinguish objects. He said he almost wanted to shout out the good news, but restrained himself.

Blindness had come on, Randall said, in April 1930, as the result of a sudden hemorrhage. Ever since, he has suffered extreme pain at the base of the skull.

It was after his preliminary treatment on Saturday last that Randall's sight began to return. He was having his head manipulated by the nurse when he suddenly said to her: "Is that a wrist watch you are wearing?" She replied that it was.

"I can see it," were his next words. He next distinguished the windows of the driving shed, and told Dr. Locke about it.

"If Dr. Locke never does anything more for me than what he has done now," said Randall, "he has done more than any other man. Nobody except the blind know what it is to see again, even if not in great detail. But I am confident, now, I shall see fully again."

To Gordon Lappin, a young Toronto man, Randall pointed out a sign as he was on the way back to his rooming place.

FARMER FOUND DEAD

The body of John Taggart, well known resident of Spencerville district, was found in his barn late on Monday afternoon, by two Roebuck residents, Joseph Goodwin and Jack Gill, who were hunting in that district. Deceased was 80 years of age, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Taggart, early pioneers. His farm is in a rather isolated place, with no neighbours near, and situated about four miles north of Roebuck.

It is believed that he had been dead for almost a week, as he was last seen Nov. 12, and there were no tracks to the barn from his house

In the barn were eight cows and one horse, making considerable noise due to starvation. Mr. Taggart was very active all his days, in earlier days taking a keen interest in politics, being a staunch Conservative. He was a member of the Loyal Orange Lodge. Coroner MacPherson, of Prescott, examined the body and reported death due to natural causes

His wife, Emma Ragsdale, predeceased him several years ago. Surviving are two sons and two daughters.

MRS. MARY McINTOSH

This district was shocked on Wednesday morning, when news of the death of Mrs. Mary McIntosh, of Spencerville, was received. Mrs. McIntosh had been in her accustomed health, and on Tuesday had motored to Ottawa, with friends, to spend the day. While waiting to meet the party of friends, she was taken suddenly ill, an ambulance was called, and she was immediately taken to the Civic Hospital. There she remained unconscious up to the time of her death, which occurred before three o'clock Wednesday morning.

Mrs. McIntosh was born in Matilda township, where she had resided practically all her life, until the past few years, which she had spent in Spencerville. She was in her 54th year, and the daughter of the late Mr. Elijah Strader and his wife, Eva Hanson. Her husband, Mr. John M. McIntosh, predeceased her a number of years ago, and surviving her are one son, Irvine McIntosh of Watertown, N.Y.; one sister, Mrs. Clinton McIntosh of Toronto, and one brother, B. Strader of Matilda township.

The funeral will be held on Friday at 1 o'clock, at Spencerville, with interment in Williamsburg cemetery.

MRS. GUY CUNNINGHAM

The unexpected and sudden death of Mrs. Ann Jane Cunningham, who died at the home of her son, Mr. Ford Cunningham on Monday last, following a stroke, came as a severe shock to relatives and friends.

The late Mrs. Cunningham, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Armstrong, was born in Mountain Township in 1861, where she remained until 1879, when she was united in marriage to Mr. Guy Cunningham who predeceased her 18 years ago. Following their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham moved to the Melvin Settlement, and later took up residence in Williamsburg Township.

Deceased was an affectionate, loving mother, who will be missed not only by her immediate relatives, but also by a host of friends throughout the community in which she resided.

She is survived by five sons and two daughters: Thos. G. Cunningham of Winchester Springs, James and Fred of Williamsburg, Ford on the homestead, Lorne of Hamilton, Mrs. Esly Pitt, Straders Hill and Mrs. Mahlon Merkley of Williamsburg. She also leaves one sister, Mrs. Jas. Miller of Glen Stewart, and one brother, Henry Armstrong, of Edward Station, Ont.

The funeral was held at her late residence on Wednesday Nov. 15th, Rev. Mr. Adey, of the United Church Williamsburg, conducting the service. The remains were laid to rest in the family plot in Maple Ridge cemetery.

Beautiful floral tributes were received, as follows: Gates Ajar, the family; anchor, the grandchildren; spray, Mrs. Miller; wreath, Mr. Lindsay Keyes, Kemptville.

CELEBRATES 93rd BIRTHDAY

One of the oldest residents of this district, Mr Dawson Beattie of Winchester, quietly celebrated his 93rd birthday last Sunday, Nov. 19th. He is enjoying good health, and spends his time reading, writing, visiting, and doing some work. The past week he cut up a pile of wood with his bucksaw, which he says he can use as well as any one yet.

He attended church on Sunday and enjoyed his dinner at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Earle, Winchester where four generations were present, his little great grandson, Gordon Barkley, being 90 years, 2 1-3 months younger than he is. Other guests present were Mr. and Mrs. H.H. Barkley, Miss Nellie Barkley, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Barkley, all of Morrisburg.

Mr. Beattie received many messages of congratulations from absent members of his family, and friends.

W. M. S. MEETING

On Thursday evening, the W.M.S. of St. John's Lutheran Church assembled for their regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Roy Schell. The roll call was answered by each one reciting a verse from the Bible containing the word "worship". The keynote of the devotions was thanksgiving. Arrangements were made for the Thank-Offering Service, the tentative date of which has been set for the evening of December 10th.

The climax of the evening was reached when the annual presentation of a Life Membership in the W.M.S. of the United Lutheran Church in America was made to Mrs. P.D. Schell. The membership is given each year to the oldest member of the Society. The recipient in each case receives a beautiful gold cross, to be worn daily by the faithful member.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

Yards Should Be Kept Safe

Broken China, Bits of Glass or Anything of That Kind, are Potential Dangers to Your Children

Billy broke a glass on the bathroom floor. Instantly his mother rushed for a dust pan and brush. She not only picked up all the pieces but she went over the floor with a damp cloth afterward so that not a microscopic bit could work into the soles of little feet and cause trouble.

Another glass had a chip out of the edge. Fearful lest one of the children should cut a lip on it, she threw it out.

A box-spring couch in the nursery suddenly threw out a loose wire that snared the unwary as they passed. She did not allow her husband to eat his dinner until he had procured a file and detached the inch of peril from its place.

All over the house she as ever on the alert for danger.

WOUNDS CAUSE TROUBLE.

And she was right because, as we know, troubles often result from little wounds and anything that can cut or scratch should be removed at once.

Now there is, at Billy's house, a nice back yard, part of it lawn, part of it shrubbery and part flower beds. There is also a small service yard next the garage where garbage-can and rubbish-barrel hide their ignominy behind a vine-covered lattice.

In the play part of the yard there is a swing and a swinging bar. The lawn is tramped pretty flat here. The children are supposed to stay away from flower beds, shrubbery and service yard.

"ACCIDENTS WILL HAPPEN."

One very warm day Billy and his sister were allowed to go in their bare feet.

Billy's ball went into a flower bed just beginning to show green. He tiptoed after it and cut his foot on a piece of white china that had not been picked up when the gardener spaded it.

A few days later they were playing "I spy," and Bunny his sister, found a hiding hole behind the rubbish-barrel. She wasn't supposed to be there but she was. She just forgot. She cut her foot on a piece of ink bottle.

CLEAN UP.

Now these two little feet healed up all right in a day or two, but another big boy, a neighbor, got a nail through his shoe when he was trying to get snowballs off the big bush next door. This proved to be serious. Blood poisoning set in.

I heard Billy's mother and father talking about it. Mr. Smith was berating Mrs. Smith for not seeing that the yard was kept as safe as the house. And she in turn told him it was his job. "The children have orders to keep where it's safe," she said. "I do watch their playground."

He scoffed at this. "Orders! Humph! They hop all over the place. Get Tony tomorrow to go over the whole yard and the one next door too. Tell him not to leave even a rusty pin."

We cannot all have Tonies to pick up for us, but we do have hands. Yards should be kept as safe as houses.

I Think We Should be Glad

I think we should be glad no one can buy
The precious pathways of the purple sky,
The little stars that light the magic night,
And the white moon that shines for our delight.

I think we should be glad no one can steal
Our thoughts our dreams the ecstasy we feel
That faith can give us casting fear aside,—
Knowing that God is near, whate'er betide.

Adenoids Prevent Normal Breathing

It is important to teach every child to breathe through his nose. By this means the air is warmed before it reaches the lungs and the risk of trouble there is lessened. A sufficient supply of oxygen to the lungs is assured and development is assisted.

If the nasal passages are not used, the nose becomes pinched, the palate and teeth altered in shape and the child gets a vacant expression.

Even if the child breathes normally, however, adenoids should be considered if ear troubles and frequent colds occur. In these cases the child shows lack of energy; he would just as soon sit about as join in the boisterous games of the healthy child.

As a rule, his sleep is disturbed and, in consequence, he is too tired to pay much attention to what is said to him. For this reason he appears mentally dull.

If necessary adenoids should be removed. With early treatment all the symptoms disappear.

STRANGE ABSENCE
by ALLYN SLOAN

SYNOPSIS.

Jean Graham and her brother Euan stay on the Riviera with Geoffrey Winton and his wife Doreen, who leads Euan on to gamble at the Casino. Jean coaxes him to go to Paris. On the Paris road Jean finds a valuable string of pearls. Euan snatches the case from her and the car crashes. The accident is discovered by Jerry Grant, whom Jean had met the night before with his friend Dan Washburn.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

The young man stood with the limp form of Jean Graham in his arms, wondering what to do. His own face was almost as white as hers and his hands trembled violently.

"Good God!" he muttered stupidly. Then walking a few steps to where there was a level place in the mountain side from which some rock had been quarried, he laid her down flat and taking her handkerchief began to clear the splinters of glass and wood from her face. Her head was bleeding from an ugly cut and in comparison with the red trickle her face was a ghastly ashen hue.

"Jean, Jean," he whispered, as his fingers passed gently over her face. She was so immovable that he began to wonder whether perhaps she was dead. The thought struck him like a blow, and grasping her wrist he sought her pulse. Breathlessly he waited, but he fingers felt no answering beat.

"O God!" he groaned, looking about him frantically. "I know!" Ripping open his watch, he held the inside of the lid in front of her lips. Yes, by jove, it was clouded! A sudden wild joy leaped up in his heart, but almost immediately it passed. She might die—he must get help.

Very gently Grant lifted the unconscious girl and carried her to his car, wrapped the rug around her and put her as flat as possible on to the back seat. She was long for it, but he arranged her head and shoulders as comfortably as possible, then calling Julia, he jumped into the driving seat. It struck him then, however, that she might not have been alone and he leaped out again, ran to the wreckage and made a hasty examination.

Having ascertained that no one else was there, with breathless haste Grant hurried back to his car and drove as fast as he dared down the winding road to Monte Carlo. He felt frozen with fear, and every now and then flung a glance over his shoulder at the girl on the back seat to see that she had not slipped. He tried also to imagine what had happened. Had she forgotten to drive on the right side of the road, or had she been going the other way? It was difficult to tell from the way the wreckage was lying. And where should he take her now? Back to Les Palmiers? He supposed so. Much as he disliked the idea, it was nearer than the hospital.

The back road leading to the villas was not over-smooth, and Grant slowed down as he took the turning. Immediately he saw that a car stood outside the gates of the Villa Marguerite and that Helen herself stood by it talking to someone. With a sensation of immense relief he drew up behind the other car and jumped out, calling:

"Mrs. Gorst!"

"Good morning," Helen smiled, but instantly sobered on seeing his face. "What is it, Jerry?"

"There was an accident. Miss Graham—look!" He nodded towards his car.

"Good heavens!"

"I—I found her about ten miles along the upper road. I was taking her back to Les Palmiers."

The occupant of the other car, who happened to be none other than Geoffrey Winton, joined them.

"I say!" he exclaimed. "You'd better bring her—"

But before he could finish Helen broke in.

"I'll look after her. Jerry, please drive up to the door." Suiting the words, she began to pull wide the iron gates.

"But look here, Helen, she was our guest, you know," Winton objected.

Mrs. Gorst silenced him curtly. She was not going to have Jean taken to Les Palmiers in that condition. She knew Doreen too well for that.

"Nonsense, Geoffrey. I'd love to have her. Come."

"Well, can't I do anything?"

"Yes. Go for Dr. Thomas. My telephone is broken. Bring him back with you."

"Right." Winton turned and drove off.

Never had Jerry Grant been more grateful to anyone than at that moment he was to Helen for her calm efficiency. He had felt so utterly helpless as he drove those ten miles, so tortured with anxiety and doubt as to what he should do. At Helen's request he carried Jean up the stairs into a sunny room and placed her on the bed. Then, obedient to her command, he went down again and waited on the loggia. Gred, the old butler, brought him a whisky and soda, of which he drank gratefully, then lighting a cigaret, he wandered restlessly up and down.

"God, what a business," he thought, fretting because the doctor did not come. How could such a terrible thing have happened? Miss Graham looked as if she would be a steady enough driver. Had some cad run into her and not stopped?

But that reminded him that he should go to the police. He would telephone. . . . No—it was out of order. O well, they must wait. . . . He could not go until he knew how Jean Graham was, not for all the police on earth. Anyway it would just be a formality seeing that the only occupant of the car had been removed, although the wreckage should be cleared, as it was a danger to other motorists. Why didn't that doctor come? He thought of Jean, and shivered in spite of the sun. She had looked too ghastly, in fact, he had not supposed that anyone could look like that and not be dead. Perhaps he ought not to have dragged her about—supposing there had been broken bones? O hell!

Mrs. Gorst did not re-appear, but in due time Geoffrey Winton returned with the doctor and joined Grant on the loggia.

"I wonder if there's anything else I can do?" he asked. "It's after lunch time."

"Lunch?" Grant stared at him disgustedly, then resumed his prowling.

Winton watched him and finally said:

"You'll wear that rug out."

It seemed an eternity before Mrs. Gorst and Doctor Thomas came down, but they did at length and Helen did not fail to notice the tensity of the young man's face as he blurted out:

"Well?"

"Jean will be all right, Jerry," she reassured him with a smile. "She is very cut and bruised, but no bones are broken. Her head will take time to mend, that's all."

"Whew!" Grant took out his handkerchief and ran it over his forehead. "Might I have another drink?" he asked apologetically, as he poured out a second peg.

Helen smiled.

"We'd better all have lunch. Heaven knows what time it is."

"I think I'd better go straight to the police. The smash out to be reported—especially as I have removed the driver."

Suddenly Helen looked at him attentively.

"By the way, wasn't there someone else in the car?"

"No."

"No?" repeated Winton, blinking stupidly.

How peculiar, thought Helen, letting her mind run back over the previous night. Could anything have happened since then to detain Euan? And if so, why had Jean gone off without him, seeing that it was for his sake alone that she was leaving the Riviera.

"Are you sure?"

"Quite. I looked everywhere. I thought someone else might have been injured. Why?"

"Because Jean was supposed to be leaving with her brother."

"O!" Grant frowned. "Her brother?"

"She did leave with him. At least she left our villa with him," Winton asserted.

"Perhaps he had gone to get help?" the younger man suggested.

"Ye—es." It did not sound like Euan, thought Helen. More likely he would lie there and let Jean pick him up if she were able to. But where was he? "It's odd," she murmured.

"I don't think she could have had anyone with her, else they would have pulled Miss Graham out of the wreckage before going off."

"Um-m."

There was a momen't silence, then Grant said: "I'd better go to the police; perhaps they'll know."

"Well, come back and report when you've seen them."

"May I?"

Helen smiled at the eager trembling of his voice. Obviously he was more than eager to return.

"Please do," she said.

"Thanks so much. I'll hurry!" Snatching up his hat Jerry Grant rushed out of the door.

His lunch appointment with Dan Washburn was completely forgotten.

It was nearly three o'clock when Doreen Winton returned to Les Palmiers and found her husband sitting on the terrace.

"Hullo," she called, stepping out of the drawingroom window. "Why are you back so early?"

Winton put down the paper and got up.

"Have you heard about the accident?"

"What accident?"

"Miss Graham—"

"What?" she stared. "What d'you mean?"

"It's rather awful really. They smashed about ten miles above the—"

"Who smashed? What are you talking about, Geoffrey?"

"I told you dear. Graham and his sister."

Slowly her face turned to a strange sickly hue beneath the coating of paint, and she caught her quivering lip between her teeth.

"Are they—?"

"Miss Graham is rather badly hurt, I'm afraid. Thomas says the—"

"But Eu-Euan?" The words caught in her throat and she wet her lips.

"It's funny, but no one seems to know much about him."

"Not know?" Doreen stared.

Suddenly Winton became aware of his wife's agitation and ignoring her remark watched her with a puzzled frown. She was pretty hard, was Doreen, and he knew it. It was the more surprising therefore to see her eyes staring from a blanched face and her hands kneading themselves together.

Motion Pictures Taken in the Dark

London.—For what is claimed to be the first time in history a cinematograph film has been taken practically in darkness by means of the infra-red rays which are invisible to the human eye. This was done at a demonstration arranged by the Kinemeatograph Society here.

A very small amount of red light was used to allow of the rapid exposures of a cinema camera. The film was quickly developed and shown to those present, the result being perfectly clear, but with the color limitations which are familia to those who have worked witl these rays.

Mr. Olaf Bloch, of the researcl department of the Ilford Company who has been responsible for th development of the possibilities o the infra-red rays, said that with a hidden infra-red lamp and camera i would be possible to take photograph of animals or human beings with out their knowledge.

Making Hamburg Steaks Interesting

It is all too easy to slump into a rut when preparing dishes such as hamburg steak. Consequently this nutritious dish is under a handicap in most families. Here are a few seasoning hints that you may not have tried.

Unless the meat is to be used very soon after it is brought from the market, it's a good idea to put to through the food chopper yourself. Chopped meat loses much of its juice and flavor if allowed to stand for some time. After chopping add 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper and ½ cup milk to 1 pound chopped meat. This addition of liquid insures juicy hamburg after cooking. A few drops of onion juice may be added, or an onion, a few sprigs of parsley or a green pepper may be put through the food chopper with the meat. It's the variety in seasoning and sauces that makes Hamburg steak into different dishes.

Broiled Meat Cakes

Prepare meat as suggested and shape in eight flat round cakes. Cook five to eight minutes under the gas flame, turning once or panbroil in a hot, lightly oiled frying pan, turning frequently at first and afterward occasionally, allowing ten to fifteen minutes, depending on whether the cakes are liked "rare" or well done. Put on a hot platter, spread with butter and serve.

Mock Fillet Mignon

Prepare meat as suggested, and shape in four round cakes about an inch thick. Wrap a slice of thinly sliced bacon around each cake and broil under the gas flame eight to ten minutes. Always pre-heat the broiler before broiling any kind of meat.

Savory Meat Cakes

Remove seeds and white pith from a green pepper. Chop flesh and cook three minutes in 2 tablespoons butter. Add to 1 pound chopped meat with 1 teaspoon salt and ¾ cup canned tomatoes, omitting pepper and milk from foundation rule. Shape in flat cakes and pan-broil in hot, oiled frying pan.

Creamed Hamburg

One cup thin cream, 1 cup chopped meat, 1-3 teaspoon salt, few grains pepper, 4 slices toast.

Bring cream to the boiling point. Add meat and cook and stir until meat is lightly colored. Add salt and pepper, pour over toast and serve at once.

The Newest Make-Up

Many tips in new fall feminine make-up were given by Myndall Cain, Minneapolis beautician, who was on the program of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association in annual convention at Chicago. Here are some of them:

Delicate Beauty

The fall ideal in make-up is to copy the delicate fragile beauty of the women of the Victorian era, yet retain the vitality of 1933.

Make-up—rouge, lipstick and powder—is lighter in color this fall.

Beauty patches are back. They are worn to accent the most attractive feature, but generally are placed near the eyes when the hat is small and close to the mouth when the hat is large.

Combs Again

Combs—yes, fancy, jewelled combs and the plain school girl tortoiseshell variety—are back, too.

An illustration of the new hair ribbon vogue was described for evening wear. With a white evening gown, flat tailored white ribbon bows were pictured as worn at the temples.

Finger nails may still be brilliantly colored, but the new fad in application of the polish is to cover the entire nail, leaving no white tip and sometimes no white moon at the base of the nail.

The new bob is longer—two inches below the ear lobe, but—the bob is not worn long. Instead, the hair is dressed up in back and held in place with combs and barrettes.

Successful Pastry Making

A few years ago some dietitians regarded pie crust with much disfavor and proclaimed it as indigestible. Now nutrition specialists tell us that well-baked pastry is as completely digested by the normal healthy individual as any other form of baking.

The ideal pie crust is flaky and tender. In appearance it is a golden brown color around the edge and somewhat lighter brown on the bottom. Its surface is rough, almost blistered rather than smooth and firm. It should be crisp throughout.

Pie fillings seldom give the inexperienced baker as much trouble as the crust. Good pastry is not just luck nor mere guess. Careful methods and accurate measuring are as essential for pie crust as for any other variety of baked foods.

Plain Pastry

There are several kinds of pastry—plain, rich and puff or French. The average pie, however, is made with plain pastry and the woman who masters this branch of pastry making can be well satisfied.

A good bread flour makes a flakier crust than pastry flour Pastry flour makes a crumbly, tender crust. Of course, either variety can be used with satisfactory results.

A good quality of shortening should be used because this largely determines the flavor of the crust. Lard or vegetable fat is used as preferred.

The proportion of fat and flour with the minimum amount of water is of great importance, but the method of mixing the ingredients also must be painstakingly observed. The tendency to overmix the materials is usually the beginner's worst fault. A pastry blender is a decided help to the novice because it prevents the fat from warming and softening.

How to Add Water

The addition of water is another ticklish point. Too much water makes a heavy, tough dough. Toss the mixture lightly, using no pressure and adding water a little at a time until all the particles are dampenel. Water must be added in such a way that it is evenly distributed among all the little flour-coated particles of fat. Then press the dampened edges together to see if they will stick. If they remain apart, sprinkle a few more drops of water through the mixture.

Always work as quickly as possible, reducing both the time and the handling of the dough to a minimum.

Cold ingredients and utensils are also important factors in the making of tender, flaky pie crust.

Use one and one-half cups flour, one-half cup shortening, ½ teaspoon salt and four tablespoons cold water to make one eight-inch double crust pie.

Coaxing the Sick Child's Appetite

To lure the laggard appetite of the sick child back to the borderland of health is often a difficult problem for the worried mother. Eggs, milk, gruels, broths and fruit juices, cereals and custards sound fairly varied, but try serving them over a period of days and see how monotonous they become.

An ill child loves pretty dishes and food attractively served. If, in addition to this, some little surprise which appeals to his imagination is added, it will divert his mind and he will not only eat the food with more relish, but will look forward to its coming.

Egg in a Cabin

The familiar poached egg ceases to be just the regular egg when served in a little log-cabin made from sticks of toast. Put the egg, after poaching, on a hot plate, then pile toast sticks, log-cabin fashion, in a square around the egg. The toast will disappear like magic with the egg.

The egg in a nest is another way to serve eggs that is sure to appeal. To make this toast a piece of bread cut a little thicker than for ordinary toast. From its centre cut a good-sized square, leaving only a thin layer on the bottom. Separate the white from the yolk of an egg. Beat the white until stiff and put it into the hollow square which has been cut out of the toast. Slip the unbroken yolk deep into the white of the egg. Put into the oven until the white of the egg is well browned and the whole is hot throughout. If there is no objection to a small amount of salt in the diet, the egg will be more palatable if lightly seasoned with salt before putting into the oven.

Sunday School Lesson

Lesson IX.—November 26. Paul in Corinth.—1 Cor. 1:10-18; 2:1-5.

GOLDEN TEXT—I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified.—1 Cor. 2: 2.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING.

Time and Place.—Paul's year and a half in Corinth, A.D. 51, 52.

"Now I beseech you, brethren, through the name of our Lord Jesus Christ." Paul does not command, he beseeches. 'The name' means 'all that Jesus Christ is in himself, and stands for to you and me.' "That ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you." By speaking the same thing, Paul means agreeing in spirit. "But that ye be perfected together in the same mind and in the same judgment." The word translated 'perfected' is a term that would be used of putting in place a dislocated limb. 'Mind' here translated 'feeling'; they were to feel and think together. 'The unity which Paul desired was a union in faith and love. Considering the relation in which Christians stand to each other as the members of Christ, dissensions among them are as inconsistent with their character as conflict among the members of the human body."

"For it hath been signified unto me concerning you, my brethren, by them that are of the household of Chloe, that there are contentions among you." We know nothing of Chloe, nor of the occasion which brought members of her household to Ephesus. He insists on Christian brotherhood no matter what differences of opinion may exist.

"Now this I mean." There might be dissensions in regard to doctrine, or in regard to practice, or in regard to persons. Paul implies that the last cause is at the bottom of the troubles in Corinth. "That each one of you saith, I am of Paul; and I of Apollos; and I of Cephas; and I of Christ." Apollos was an eloquent and learned Jew of Alexandria, who became a disciple of John the Baptist. Cephas was the Aramaic name of Peter, both meaning 'a rock.'

"Is Christ divided?" Christ belonged to the whole church. In our country, with its two hundred different Protestant denominations, we need to cultivate Christian fellowship and practise Christian co-operation most zealously, or we shall virtually have two hundred different Christs. "Was Paul crucified for you?" The death of Christ for the sins of all men should be a bond uniting the souls of all Christians and preventing any dissensions. "Or were ye baptized into the name of Paul?" The water of baptism, the same for all, should join them all together.

"I thank God that I baptized none of you, save Crispus and Gaius." Crispus was the former ruler of the synagogue (Acts 18: 8), and Gaius is mentioned in Rom. 16: 23 as Paul's host. It was for some special reason that Paul baptized these.

"Lest any man should say that ye were baptized into my name." Paul counted himself 'less than the least of all saints.'

"And I baptized also the household of Stephanas.' This family is mentioned with special affection and honor at the close of the Epistle, I. Cor. 16: 15, 17. "Besides, I know not whether I baptized any other." Paul had not been keeping account of baptisms.

"For Christ sent me not to baptize, but to preach the gospel. 'So little concern have I with baptizing, that it is not properly part of my mission.' "Not in wisdom of words, lest the cross of Christ should be made void." The cross, the atonement, is Christianity, and it can be made nugatory by pride of human learning.

"For the word of the cross is to them that perish foolishness." The message of the cross is foolishness to the wonder-seeking Jew and the wisdom-seeking Greek. "But unto us who are saved it is the power of God." That which, in point of fact, has made God known is the cross of Christ.

"JESUS CHRIST, AND HIM CRUCIFIED," I. Cor. 1: 26—2: 8.

Spirit and Power.—"And I, brethren, when I came unto you." From his stay in Athens, described in our last lesson. "Came not with excellency of speech or of wisdom." Paul has just said that the Christians are humble folks, who rest entirely on God for their wisdom. "Proclaiming to you the testimony of God." The testimony in regard to God, namely, what he has done in Christ for the salvation of men.

"For I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified. On coming to Corinth, with his failure in Athens fresh in memory, he had resolved that he would never again preach the gospel with wisdom of words, lest the cross of Christ should be made of none effect.

"And I was with you in weakness, and in fear, and in much trembling." St. Paul was physically weak and liable also to nervous weakness and depression (I. Cor. 4: 7-12; Gal. 4: 13; 2 Cor. 10: 1, 10; 12: 7, 10).

"And my speech and my preaching were not in persuasive words of wisdom." He did not attempt to be eloquent or argumentive. "But in demonstration of the Spirit and of power." Demonstration of the truth springing from the Spirit and power of God.

"That your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God." Which is another way of saying that we shall be, each one of us, a relaying station in the plan by which the good news of God is to be made available for all men.

Woman of Philippines Given Right to Vote

Manila,—Suffrage was granted women of the Philippines last week, marking the first extension of the right to vote to the women of an Oriental country.

Enfranchisement came through the action of the Insular Legislature. It passed the suffrage bill on recommendation of Governor-General Frank Murphy, former mayor of Detroit. Women will be placed on the same electoral basis as men.

"Women have given ample proof of their capacity for unerring appraisal and energetic action in the treatment of problems involving personal and human relaitonships," Governor Murphy said.

They proposed that Spain head a movement to utilize Madrid, Seville and Barcelona as three capitals of peace.

The Ups and Downs of Radio Life

Fate has made a football of B. A. Rolfe, veteran band master, hurling him to the heights one day and knocking him out of bounds the next. But through all life's tough plays he manages to score whenever disaster threatens. Again in the ascendancy, Rolfe has succeeded because of holding to Albert Payson Terhune's thought, "Courage consists in hanging on one minute longer". It is Rolfe's guiding principle in life. Incidentally the very B.A. has been a millionaire twice during his career as a director of the foremost bands in the country.

And in the next twelve months, he wrecked twleve buggies and his career as a star salesman at the same time.

Rural Women Noted As World Examples

Hamilton. —"Women of rural Ontario will be held up as an example to women of all parts of the world," G. A. Putnam, superintendent of Women's Institutes for Ontario, said, in addressing the Hamilton area, Women's Institutes annual convention at the Royal Connaught Hotel here last week

"You are on sound ground," he assured his audience, "and are grasping every opportunity for betterment with a determination that speaks well for the future not only of the women of this land, but for the people in general. Ontario Institutes are looked to by the women of this province—and of the world," the speaker said

More Than 30 Victims U.S. Football Death Toll

New York.—Mid-season in American football and the toll of fatalities runs more than 30, all among high school and sand-lot players. No college men have met their deaths on the playing fields. An incomplete list shows that throughout the country 31 young men, mostly between the ages of 16 and 20, have died this fall.

Civic Office for Women

Winnipeg.—"You have to have some courage to run for civic office, I've found that out," Dr. Ellen Douglas, women's party aldermanic candidate told the business and professional women's club here. She qualified her statement by saying "we have to put up with so much razzing."

Beauty Parlors for Dairy Cows

An important step in clean milk production is to clip the udders, hips and flanks of the cows, thus making the daily brushing much easier and more effective. Clipping of the tail, head, neck and shoulders adds to the appearance of the cows, and aids in getting rid of lice which will multiply quickly at this time if not promptly eradicated. A good wet or powder shampoo repeated in ten days time will do the trick.

Taking More Prominent Part In Export to Great Britain

Since September, Canada has commenced to take a place among the more important suppliers of eggs to the British markets. Some 128,000 dozen of eggs were exported during that month. PrPices to Canadian producers have recently improved steadily. Fresh receipts of eggs are somewhat scarce, and continued firmness in price is probable. Those producers who wisely hatched or purchased early chicks, are in a pasition to at least make some profit as a result of adopting firm business methods. Canadian eggs continue to be exported in fair volume. The Toronto and Montreal markets continue very firm.

Honey Exports Increasing Domestic Price is Rising

Indications are for a shortage of honey in Ontario next spring, reported the Ontario Marketing Board recently. Total white honey exports of all grades from the Province are now in excess of 300 tons, which, taken together with the crop variously reported from 40 to 50 p.c less than last year, and with the substantial exports from the Province of Quebec, leaves the entire domestic market cleaned up of all surplus supplies. Prices are rising to producers and few beekeepers are selling bulk lots for less than 8 cents per pound f.o.b. shipping point for top grades. This is an increase of approximately 2 to 3 cents per lb. as compared with 1931.

The British markets is reporting a lively interest in Canadian honey this year, due, somewhat, to the fact tat a world shortage of this crop is reported, except for domestic production, in England. In addition, the benefit of the Imperial Preference Agreements, which give Empire honey a protection of seven shillings per long cwt., are being realized to the maximum for the first time this year since their adoption.

Ontario Fruit Storage

The cold storage warehouse recently erected at Woodstock, Ontario, with its 10,000 barrel capacity, is another unit in a chain of cold storage warehoues that gives Ontario facilities for 200,000 barrels of apples. The warehouse has facilities to handle the storage of all kinds of fruits and vegetables.

Unfinished Hogs

All unfinished hogs offered at stockyards and packing plants, such as do not conform to the requirements of the grading regulations, are graded as feeders, and it is in the interests of the producers to make every effort to hold back hogs of select bacon, and bacon weights, until they are properly finished. Underfinished pigs make soft bacon and poor cuts and roasts.

Juniors Create Interest at Ottawa Winter Fair

Th eJunior Department at the Ottawa Winter Fair again brought out a large number of competitors and keen competition resulted. The various competitions also created a good deal of interest on the ringside. The two-day program included classes open to Calf Club members, showmanship competition and Inter-County competitions in the judging of live stock and seeds.

In the Calf Club competitions, 54 club members exibited their calves. In the Holstein section, the group from Prince Edward County won the high honours against strong competition. In the section open to Ayrshires, the group from the Williamstown Ayrshire Club, Glengarry County, again repeated their win which they made at the Central Canada Exhibition. In the beef section, the group from Renfrew also repeated their win made at the August show.

The Showmanship classes brought out 68 competitors and the officials, H.W. Graham of Kemptville and A. D. Runions of Peterborough, found it difficult to make the awards, so proficient have the young men become in exhibiting their animals.

The Inter-County Judging Competitions also maintained their usual interest. The Inter-County Live Stock Judging Championship for Eastern Ontario was won by Lanark County team.

In the Seed Judging, Renfrew County was victorious.

Other features which attracted a good deal of interest in the live stock department, were the county herds and inter county pens of sheep and hogs. In the former, Lanark County was awarded the premium honours in the Holsteins and in sheep, Carleton County pen was victorious, while in hogs, the honours again went to Lanark County.

Milk Cooling During the Colder Months

Do not attempt to cool milk by setting the cans out-of-doors, even in freeinz weather. It takes far too long for the milk to cool to 50 degrees F., for air is a good insulator but a poor cooling medium. Use a cooling tank with water as cold as possible, and keep the level up to the neck of the cans.

Watch the Seed Fairs

The adaptability of different varieties of grain to different soil and climatic conditions is reflected to no small extent in the degree of development attained by individual kernels. Varieties which consistently win high places at our seed fairs are therefore likely to be at least reasonably well suited to the district from which they come. Moral: Watch the winners at thSeed Fairs!

Too Many Green Apples On British Markets

Arrivals of Canadian apples at the rate of 150,000 to 250,000 barrels a week have knocked the bottom out of the British apple market for the time being, as supplies of this magnitude far exceed the demand in the early part of the season, when English apples have not yet been disposed of.

Green apples, and particularly Ontario Greenings, are in excessive supply on the British markets, says Ondrew Fulton, Overseas Fruit Representative. Where Ontario growers have the advantage of-cold storage facilities, Mr. Fulton considers that it is likely to pay to hold suitable varieties back for shipment after the New Year.

It is colour and not variety that sells Ontario dessert apples in Great Britain, and poor prices are being obtained even for otherwise good fruit that is lacking in colour. Buyers are discriminating against green or partly green fruit, largely because the markets generally ae in a congested state owing to the excessive supplies.

Some specially fine coloured Snow apples sold as high as 22 shillings a barrel, while similar apples with less colour off the same steamer sold from 13 shillings upwards. In the first week in November, choice Ontario Jonathans in barrels, being scarce, made from 22 to 27 shillings a barrel. On the other hand, beautiful No 1 Greenings were selling from 12 to 14 shillings, simply because there will be large quantities of low-priced English cooking apples available until Christmas, and these fix the price level of all cooking apples.

Mr. Fulton adds that there is only one place to store apples, and that is in Ontario. The bulk of the Greenings he had examined this season would not stand cold storage in Great Britain after arrival there, as they all showed indications of some degree of ripeness. It has been his experience that once Greenings have been carried at a warm temperature and have stared to work, cold storage will not retard the ripening process sufficiently to warrant the extra expense involved.

OLD BOYS AND GIRLS ASSN.

Opening a fall and winter season of activity, the Dundas Old Boys' and Old Girls' Association formed in oronto by former residents of the county of Dundas, are planning a social evening, to be held at the King Edward Hotel in oronto, on Tuesday evening, December 5th. It is expected that several hundred former Dundas residents will be present.

The decision to hold the social evening was made at a committee meeting of the Associaion on Thursday evening last. Irwin Hilliard, K.C., former Morrisburg citizen, and now Master of the Supreme Court of Ontario, was in the chair. K.A. Chistie, secretary, presented a report of the progress made by the Association since its organization. Among those present at the meeting was Hon. Geo. H. Challies.

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

An item of interest to the residents of Williamsburg and district, is that Miss Emma McIntosh, a lifelong resident of Matilda Township, quietly celebrated her 90th birthday anniversary at the home of her nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin McIntosh , at Watertown, N.Y., where she had spent a month visiting. Although not receiving formally, the nonagenerian accepted the felicitations from numerous friends and relatives.

Born in Matilda, of United Empire Loyalist stock, Miss McIntosh is one of a family of nine daughters of the late Mr and Mrs. Conrad McIntosh. The grandfather of Miss McIntosh crossed the St. Lawrence river from New York, and settled about a mile and a half north of Williamsburg village. Despite her advanced age, Miss McIntosh is active and enjoys unimpaired mental and physical health, and goes about visiting relatives and friends.

How I Was Freed of Hemorrhoids

after 25 years of suffering

"I had protruding piles or hemorrhoids for over twenty-five years," writes Dr. H. S. Hussell, Graduate Veterinary Surgeon, of Upper Chaslo, N.B. "I bought medicines from all parts of the world and went under the knife twice—at Portland, Maine, and Sherbrooke, Que. I had spent hundreds of dollars and was about to go to the hospital at Campbellton, N.B., for another operation, but was in such a weakened condition that the doctor advised me to wait a few days.

"My wife happened to pick up Dr. Chase's Almanac and read about someone being freed of piles by using Dr. Chase' Ointment. I got a box, was so much better next day that I ordered three more boxes. In one week I was able to resume my practice. It is now four years since I have felt any effect of the piles, so I feel justified in believing the relief permanent."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is the standard, time-proven treatment for piles or hemorrhoids. Dr. Hussell's experience is similar to that of many thousands of people who have been positively freed of piles by this soothing, healing, antiseptic ointment. All dealers or The Dr. A. W. Re-surface old walls and ceilings with Gyproc

HERE is a wallboard that does not burn, made from gypsum rock into sheets 4 to 10 feet long, 4 feet wide and 3/8 of an inch thick. It is used for interior walls, ceilings and partitions.

As well as being fire-resistant, it has structural strength, insulation value and is draught and vermin-proof. Use Gyproc Joint Filler for sealing the joints between the tall, broad sheets of wallboard.

When you are "doing over" any room in the house or adding new ones in the attic or basement, use Gyproc for walls and ceilings because you can nail it directly over the old surface. Gyproc is also an excellent base for Alabastine, Gyptex or wallpaper.

Gyproc is Canada's pioneer non-burning gypsum wallboard. Ask your nearest dealer for full details and a Gyproc direction sheet. Or write us for the FREE booklet, "Building and Remodelling with Gyproc". 374

Grade Crossings

Many years will go by before all our main highways and all our country roads have been freed from grade crossings Nevertheless we have reason to hope that these death-traps will disappear some day. And if this day ever dawns it will undoubtedly be the commencement of the millenium for the motorists. — La Tribune, Sherbrooke.

Want Amid Plenty

It is a terrible confession of the failure of the world's distribution system when corn is burned, coffee dumped into the ocean, cotton ploughed under and hogs massacred to create an artificial shortage of the very things which are required by many people who are destitute.—Niagara Falls Review.

Crop Destruction

John H. Simpson, president of the National Farmers' Union of the United States, says: "It is against the laws of God and nature to plow up cotton, destroy things that could be used for food ,and limit production." The London Advertiser endorses this view as being perfectly right. In a world in which countless millions are underfed, under-clothed and otherwise in want the curtailment of production should be an economic as well as a moral outrage.—Moose Jaw Evening Times.

Burning Coffee

Coffee worth $200,000,000 has been wilfully destroyed by Brazil since July, 1931. No less than 3,050,124,000 pounds have been burned or dumped into the ocean. In recent months the Brazilian Government has intensified its destruction of the coffee. There are some who would do that with Canada's wheat despite the fact that many people do not get all they want to eat. What a shame to witness such wilful waste of food in the twentieth century with all its vaunted civilizaion.—Border Cities Star.

Demands of Criminals

Prisoners in the Eastern Penitentiary, Philadelphia, demand a radio and the daily newspapers for each cell, and doubtless many kind-hearted persons will see nothing unreasonable in the request. They should remember, however, that there are many law-abiding persons who are presently without radios and who would like to be sure of some of the ordinary comforts which the confined criminals enjoy at the public expense The people on the outside should have first consideration.—Montreal Gazette.

Empire Timber

Reports from the lumbering districts in many parts of the Province hold out exceptionally encouraging prospects for employment in the woods this season. Beyond any doubt this new activity is resulting directly from the new Empire trade arrangements, the value of which could not well be overstated.—Halifax Herald.

Two Out of 150

The Graf Zeppelin is in Chicago. It is interesting to recall that with one exception, this dirigible is the sole survivor of scores of airships in the world after seventy-five years of research and experimentation in aircraft of this type. The other is the United States' Macon. Up to the present, one hundred and fifty of these airships have been built by various nations. Every one but the two already named have come to grief. Usually they have been wrecked with heavy loss of life. And they have mainly been lost in weather which to a ship at sea would not be difficult, but which to a huge gas-filled airship has proved catastrophic.—Ottawa Citizen.

Work in Algoma

The change in the employment situation is nothing less than startling, and it came out of a clear sky. New work in the bush, on roads and in the steel plant means that several thousand unemployed people have gone back to work, or are going shortly.

The improvement in conditions is coming about naturally. There has been no wood cut in the bush for two Winters. The increase in the use of newsprint added to the gradual using up of the wood on hand means activity in our lumber camps. The road work is now called for by the small amount previously done this year, and the steel plant activity takes on the look of something permanent.—Sault Ste. Marie Star.

Black Squirrels Increasing

As one walks through the woods at this time attentiion is drawn to the increasing number of black squirrels that are scurrying around the bush. A few years ago very few of these beautiful little animals could be seen, as their numbers were kept down by ruthless hunters. Boys and young men should refrain from testing their skill in marksmanship at these lovely animals with their jet black fur and huge bushy tails. It gives a lover of wild life a thrill to see them gradually increase in numbers and add to the beauty of the woods.—Arthur Enterprise-News.

Church Records

Many of the churches in this older part of Ontario have stories yet to be placed upon permanent record. In operation for decade after decade, they have been rallying-points for the districts in which they are situated, a point of contact for the entire region. Yet in numerous cases very little is now known of their origin. Vital records of marriages, births and deaths have been lost or destroyed to the respair of those who would now verify genealogical information.

It might not be at all a bad idea if each and every congregation established in this district appointed an individual or a committee of individuals to serve as archivists.—Brockville Recorder.

Newspaper Advertising

A speaker here the other night stressed the value of the local newspaper as a means of letting the public know what local merchants have for sale. Newspaper advertising still holds its own as the best known means of displaying merchandise before the public. Newspaper advertising can be seasonable, something obviously impossible with media issued less frequently.—Niagara Falls Review.

THE EMPIRE

The Modern Motor Car

The driver will have less excuse than ever for dangerous driving. The less attention a driver has to give to the mechanism of his vehicle, the more attention should he be able to pay to events on the road; and the more responsive his car is to breaking and acceleration, the easier should it be for him to maintain a wide margin between himself and the risk of accident. The modern motor car is a fine piece of work, a mechanical thoroughbred; if all motorists were worthy of their cars there would be very few accidents.—Leeds Yorkshire Post.

South African Airways

The figures compiled by Union Airways of their activities for the past four years form a very striking tribute to the management. The safety factor reaches 99.96 per cent., while the revenue earned in proportion to subsidy is 51.50 per cent., compared with the 48.33 per cent. of Imperial Airways (also very good), and the 20.83 per cent. of French companies. The subsidy works out at 7d. (about fourteen cents) a mile, compared with the French 5s. 6d. (about $1.30). If these figures are correct, Union Airways must be the cheapest as well as one of the most efficient air lines in the world. In view of the success of the company, it is pretty obviously entitled, with the advent of better times, to an increased subsidy. Could not the Government, in return, require that its machines should be partly built in this country, thereby laying the foundation of what is bound to become in the future a "key industry"? —Cape Argus.

New Zealand Railways

Fof many months after comprehensive efforts to arrest the alarming decline in railway finance had begun—efforts which were increased in intensity after the board assumed full control—improved returns were almost wholly the result of reductions in expenditure, which more than compensated for the accompanying fall of revenue The value of these economies was inestimable, but they must necessarily have their limits. If, with expenses cut to the bone, retrogression had continued, to reduce services drastically or bear the losses were the only alternatives. Fortunately, better revenue returns are now coming to the rescue. If they can be maintained, the outlook for the railways will be much brighter than could possibly have been expected three or four years ago.—Auckland Weekly News.

Better British Toys

Among pleasing signs pointing to the approach of a happier Christmas, the present boom in the British toy trade is distinctly encouraging. Manufacturers are already flooded with orders, for the earliest Christmas overseas mails will soon be leaving. A real British Santa Claus will drive his reindeer team all over the world this year.—London Daily Mail.

Trade and Foreign Exchange

There has been much talk and exultation lately over the improvement that has taken place in trade. Sufficient evidence of a material character is available to justify the belief that there is substance behind the movement, but it would be idle to hope that real progress towards prosperity can ever be made until stability of exchanges has been effected and confidence in the stability secured.—Glasgow Herald.

Wages and Prices

If wages go up, costs go up. If costs go up, prices go up. If prices go up, wages must go up some more. Thus the economic spiral rises with three items like three dogs chasing each other around the track, all after the rabbit that climbs a pole in the middle of the spiral just out of reach of all three. Which one ought to be ahead? If wages are ahead of prices, prices cannot pay the wages. If prices are ahead, wages cannot pay the prices.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Recent Events From Overseas

Prince George to Open Bank

H.R.H. Prince George will open the new head office of the Birmingham Municipal Bank on November 27.

The event will mark the close of another chapter in the bank's remarkable history.

The first of its kind, the Birmingham Municipal Bank was established in 1919, and in the past 10 years its deposits have grown from under £2,000,000 to £14,000,000.

To-day one in every three of Birmingham's population is a depositor in the Municipal Bank, and over 11,000 citizens have purchased their houses with the bank's assistance.

Station-Studded London

There are 600 passenger railway stations within a 10-mile radius of Charing Cross.

All these are shown in a new railway map just issued by the main line railway companies. The object of the map is to show the connections between the main lines and the underground railways.

It is calculated that passengers using the main line termini and those carried by underground number 3,000,000 a day.

Feeds Dog Through Letter-Box

Gravesend.—While their employers were away on holiday two domestic servants, Kathleen and Ellen Allen, of Gravesend, left the house against instructions, and the pets of which they were in charge.

A gardener, looking through a window of the house, saw a dog in a distressed condition. It was fed for three days with biscuits through the letter-box.

A parrot was subsequently found dead from starvation in its cage.

Defendants were each fined £10 and costs at Tonbridge for cruelty to the parrot.

Advised to Punish Wife

Liverpool.—"What you want is a good hiding, and your husband ought to give it to you."

Mr. R. J. Ward, a magistrate, at Liverpool Police Court, made this remark recently to Mrs. Helena Willis, aged 40, who was charged with attempting to commit suicide by jumping into the Mersey.

She was discharged with a caution.

It was stated that Mrs. Willis, while seated on a bench at the landing stage, Liverpool, borrowed a pencil from a man, wrote something on a piece of paper, and then walked to the river wall.

The man became suspicious, and followed her, and was just in time to grab her feet as she was diving into the river.

Mrs. Willis stated that she had a quarrel with her husband and was depressed.

Career of Champ

The career of Champion Redd-Boi of Iwade is one of the greatest romances in the history of dog-breeding.

As an eight-weeks-old ball of fluff he was such a disappointment that his breeder, Mrs. Foster Burgess, offered to sell him to a woman fancier for £5. The prospective buyer thought his nose would grow too big and left him on Mrs. Burgess' hands.

Then he developed so remarkably that he broke all records by becoming a full champion at the early age of ten months.

And now this 8½ lb. of cheeky pride is the most valuable dog the world has ever known.

Redd-Boi has earned that distinction by virtue of an offer made for him by a rich American woman, one of several breeders who have come over during the past month to try to buy up our best Pekinese.

Her offer was in writing, and included a blank cheque on which Redd Boi's owner could write any amount she liked. Mrs. Burgess handed the cheque back!

"No figure was named for Redd-Boi," Mrs. Burgess said, "but I could have had more than £3,000 had I been willing to sell."

The disappointed American visitor, as the next best thing to Redd-Boi, has bought three puppies from the kennel and has been promised a fourth.

"Mistake" Stamps

Glendoick, Perthshire.—Two Nyasaland stamps, a fourpenny and a twopenny, dated 1907, caused a stir in a stamp sale room.

In 1907 a few of the stamps were printed on paper with the wrong watermark. When sent to the British Isles they were sold by a dealer for 10s. each. A few years ago they realized £60.

At Harmer's sale room recently they were sold for £225.

The stamps were in the famous collection formed by Mr. A. W Cox of Glendoick.

Unhealthy Post

Calcutta, India. — Three European magistrates have been murdered at Midnapore. A fourth has just been appointed to this perilous and unenviable post.

He is Mr. P. J. Griffiths, now on leave, who will succeed Mr. B. E. J. Burge as district magistrate.

Mr. Burge was murdered on September 2, just as he was about to take part in a football match at Midnapore.

It is understood that in making another appointment the Government has yielded to the pressure of European officers who have urged that this action must be taken in order to uphold the honor of the British nation and of the Indian Civil Service.

Officers declared that they will stand by their three murdered colleagues even if twenty others are shot.

Mr. Burge's immediate predecessor, Mr. R. Douglas, was murdred in 1932, and Mr. Peddie in 1931.

Already the Government has been warned that the next magistrate will be murdered. The distribution of leaflets stating "Midnapore must remain without a magistrate" is the latest form of terrorist activity in the district.

New Channel Cable

London, Eng.—Twenty-nine miles of telephone cable stowed aboard the Dominia, the largest cable ship in the world, is waiting to be laid across the Straits of Dover, to augment the existing telephone facilities between London and Paris.

The Dominia is lying off St. Margaret's Bay, and, provided the weather is suitable, she will start laying the cable shortly.

You can build a whole winter wardrobe around your fall suit. Get a couple of dressy blouses in addition to your tailored ones and the suit can go to luncheon and tea as well as to the office.

Have one striped velvet blouse to wear to luncheons and one bright corduroy to wear to football games and on week-ends in the country. If the suit has a long or three-quarters coat have on long tunic blouse of lame or metal cloth to wear to bridge parties and informal dinners.

11-Year-Old Girl Lands in Britain

"Hitch-Hiked" Across Canada With Parents, Then Sailed for England..

London.—A girl of 11 who "hitch hiked" across Canada, from Vancouver to Montreal, with her father and mother, then sailed alone for England, reached the home of her aunt at Northwood, Middlesex, recently.

She is Lily Tyler. She arrived in Liverpool on board the White Star liner Laurentic.

"Daddy used to be a gardener," she said in her musical colonial voice.

"Then the depression came. He lost his job.

"So he and mummy and I set out to find him one.

"Each day we got further away from home. People gave daddy odd work to do just to help him along.

"Often we had lifts in motor-cars and lorries from one farm to another. We used to sleep just anywhere we could.

"We did this for three months, and then we reached Montreal. When we got there mummy said I was to come to England to stay with my auntie, Mrs. Clark.

"We walked only about one hundred and forty miles out of the three thousand," Lily related with pride.

"Once we jumped a freight train and were turned off."

Goderich Youth Dies After Football Practice

Goderich.—Shortly after he had finished football practice, Herbert Palmer, 17-year-old collegiate student collapsed on Colborne street, and died before medical aid could reach him. He had just ridden his bicycle, with a fellow-student one the handle bars from Agricultural Park, where football practice was held.

"You know, I shouldn't do this: I have heart trouble" he said, and then collapsed.

He was carried into a nearby home and Dr. W. F. Gallow was called, but the youth had died. He had been receiving treatment for heart trouble for some time and had been warned against participating in strenuous exercise, it is understood.

Jack in Baby's Throat Removed by Doctors

Buffalo, N.Y. — An eight-months old baby, Jerome Weber, with a five pointed "jack" lodged in his throat, was rushed to two Buffalo hospitals before it was removed.

The parents thought the boy dying when they reached Emergency hospital only to learn they would have to go to City hospital, as Emergency had no equipment for the purpose.

A speeding police escort rushed the child, blue in the face before the first hospital had been reached, across the city and waiting surgeons there quickly removed the jack.

The boy swallowed it while older children were playing on the floor of his home. A few hours later he was "sleeping peacefully."

His Wife's "Death" Was Just an Idea

Buffalo, N.Y.—James J. Carroll, 42, according to police confessed he inserted a notice of his wife's "death" in a local newspaper just to keep relatives away from the family. The health department seeing the notice checked to ascertain if a certificate of death had been issued and finding that it had not, called upon police to act.

Carroll was taken into custody but was released after signing a sworn statement.

"I had trouble with my wife's relatives." police quoted Carroll as explaining. "I thought they would see this in the paper and think she was dead, and that would keep them away from us"

New Egg Grading Regulations

The foundation of a more prosperous poultry industry in Canada has been laid in the amendments to the egg grading regulations just announced by the Department of Agriculture. Conditions to-day are vastly different than they were when grading was first established in 1915. Now, because of years of educational effort, our average egg production is of much better quality than then and marketing conditions are entirely different. Therefor, to ensure all producers, both the average farmer and the poultry specialist being paid according to quality, the Department has most carefully worked out the changes now in effect.

The new regulations divide eggs into four grades, A1, A, B and C. A1 is a special grade which may only be packed by producers whose flocks are under government supervision. Grade A1 gives the poultryman who complies with the government regulations an opportunity to secure the premium price to which he is entitled. These regulations require cleanliness, care in feeding and management of the flock designed to ensure eggs of uniform high quality, and consumers purchasing eggs of this grade are thus assured of the highest quality. Grade A1 eggs can only be packed in sealed cartons by the producer or group of producers or marketing organizations as approved by the Department. This grade is divided into three weights, "Large," 24 ounces and up to the dozen, "Medium," 22 to 24 ounces to the dozen, and "Pullet," 20 to 22 ounces to the dozen.

A grade covers the established trade in fresh eggs and is also divided into three weights. "Large," 24 ounces to the dozen, "Medium," 22 to 24 ounces to the dozen, and "Pullet," 18 to 22 ounces to the dozen. Reducing the minimum weight in this grade to 18 ounces entitles the producer to better returns for small eggs of 'A" grade quality. Changing the "Medium" weight minimum to 22 ounces also makes a more uniform spread between weights, the old "First" minimum being 22½ ounces.

Any word or expression denoting freshness can only be used in connection with Grades A1 and A and the word "New Laid" can only be used in conjunction with "Grade A1."

Cold storage eggs can only be sold in Grade B, which is divided into two weights, "Large," or 24 ounces and up to the dozen and "Medium," or 22 to 24 ounces to the dozen. Cold storage eggs smaller than 22 ounces to the dozen are classed in C grade, which comprises all eggs including cracks and soiled eggs not permitted to be graded into grades A and B but which are not unfit for human consumption.

Quality only distinguishable by candling and individual egg weights are stressed as well as the necessity for marking with the true grades all eggs offered for sale.

The new regulations are the result of much study by the Department and are a distinct advantage in the marketing of one of Canada's most valuable agricultural products.

Ne[redacted] the [redacted] bea[redacted] coa[redacted] fro[redacted] mo[redacted] Ita[redacted] wh[redacted]

Genoa, the most important port in Italy, if not on the Mediterranean, is situated midway on this crescent-like shore. It is the centre of the two Rivieras; that on the east being known as the Riviera di Levante and that to the west as the Riviera di Ponente. It is a fine city and was, at one time, one of the Mediterranean ports which dominated the shipping of the world. In the old town the network of narrow streets fascinate the visitor. These quaint and alley-like thoroughfares, although teeming with humanity and lined with business places on either side, are clean as compared with similar streets in Naples and other places.

Genoa claims to be the birthplace of Christopher Columbus and much interest is shown in his memory. In a little square there is to be seen the remains of a house, covered with a creeper, which is said to be all that is left of the birthplace of the great navigator. A huge park scheme is now in progress which will embody this little square in a general series of parks. This programme will abolish the unsightly houses that are in the vicinity and will provide a real memorial to the man whom Genoese people regard as their most prominent native son.

Genoa also possesses the finest monumental cemetery in the world; its close proximity to the marble quarries at Carrara making material for monuments vey cheap. Many Sculptors have devoted their art to the hundreds of pieces and groups of statuary that adorn the corridors of this wonderful place. A visit to the Campo Santo is not relished by everyone but you can see there what is, undoubtedly, the finest collection of memorials and you cannot help being impressed by the various conceptions of art, thought to be suitable, either by the sculptor or his patrons.

Right in the centre of the city, the basin of the River Brisagno cuts a wide ditch and, as it is usually dry, it seems to us to be a waste of valuable land. We were remarking on this to a friend in Genoa, who was accompanying our party to Alassio, and he told us that the river often overflowed, due to the fact that there was no watershed in the vicinity. We felt inclined to doubt his statement but had the proof within half an hour of the time the question was asked. We were held up at a level crossing—in Italy the gates do down when the train is expected to arrive and they remain down even if the train is overdue; somtimes cars will wait at a level crossing for over an hour. While we were waiting, a gentle rain began to fall, shortly afterwards followed by a smart shower and, in a few minutes we saw the miracle of the filling of the huge river bed. Down the sides of the hills came tiny streams, small waterfalls and dashing torrents—it was almost unbelievable. Huge boulders were torn from the hillside, sections of the roadway were washed out and, almost immediately, gangs of men set to work to make temporary repairs. The riverbed, which a short time before was parched, became the receptacle for a rushing body of water, emptying itself into the Mediterranean and changing the color of the water, near the shore, from a brilliant blue to a muddy gray. We were told that the river would soon resume its dry appearance, but that, for occurrences like this, it was a great sluice for controlling what would otherwise be a flood in the city.

It was a strange coincidence, a somewhat awe-inspiring spectacle but, after it was over, we appreciated the opportunity of seeing one of Nature's wonders, enacted, as it seemed, especially for our benefit.

Next week I should like to tell you about the blind geographer of Vichy.

Down on Disease Farm

Most visitors use a farm for the study of health, but now there is to be one for the study of disease. It is the Buckstone Browne Research Farm of the Royal College of Surgeons, for which Sir George Buckstone Browne has provided £100,000, and it is adjacent to the house of Charles Darwin at Downe, Kent, England, presented to the nation by the same donor.

It is intended to make exact studies of normal growth, without which data the understanding of malignant and other abnormal growths seems impossible. For this purpose the farm will breed sheep, cattle, and the usual farm stock, and in a paddock will be a small herd of deer, the growth of whose antlers will be measured with X-rays.

Hen-coops on the well known principle of individual nests, so that it is known which hen laid which egg, will also be installed to provide individually identified and marked eggs for the college's research workers studying the growth of bone through tissue-culture—the cultivation of living cells in a test-tube.

SHE LOST 32 lbs.

New Frocks No Longer Worried Her

"How did she lose that 32 lbs. of fat?" is what you will be asking. Let her tell you herself:—

"About 18 months ago I weighed 178 lbs.—which I can assure you annoyed me very much. Everything seemed a worry to me, especially new clothes. Nothing would fit me comfortably, and walking was unbearable. I was advised by a friend to try Kruschen Salts, and I am very glad I did, too. During the first ten months I lost 28 lbs. of fat. Now, for the last 6 months my weight has been 146 lbs., and I feel much better in health. I have all my yeight tickets to substantiate my statements."—(Mrs.) M. P.

Kruschen contains those six mineral salts, proportionately balanced, found in the waters of those famous European Spas used by generations of fat people to reduce weight.

Kruschen helps blood, nerves, glands and body organs to function properly—you gain new strength and energy—feel years younger—look better, work better.

Candy and Gasoline Mingle in Train Wreck

Dryden, Ont. — Christmas candy destined to fill the stockings of Western children, mingled with gasoline and general merchandise in the railway yards here—aftermath of a freight wreck in which 16 box cars were smashed and 20 more derailed on the C.P.R. line.

A broken axle is believed to have caused the pile-up of the westbound freight, but this was not definitely established. The engine and several cars remained on the track, and no one was injured.

Tank cars loaded with gasoline sent their volatile contents gushing out through huge breaks and pending the arrival of a wrecking crew the fire department stood by to guard against an outbreak. One careening car rammed into the freight shed wall and smashed it down. One car loaded with candy, all of which was strewn over the tracks.

Several cars were reduced to splinters, and rails on the eastbound track were torn up for some distance.

King to Open New Library in London

Over a Million Volumes of Non-Fiction to be Housed

The King and Queen are soon to open a magnificent new library in London.

The new building, the National Central Library in Malet-place, Bloomsbury, will be capable of housing a million volumes.

The library, which was first formed in 1916, has grown to tremendous dimensions. During 1932-33 it supplied no fewer than 61,639 books to borrowers, and received 200 to 400 applications a day.

No Fiction

The National Central Library acts as a lending library for public libraries and University libraries all over England. It also lends books to foreign countries and borrows from them.

The library is a non-fiction one. It received a Royal charter in 1931, and gets a small grant from the Government of £3000 (less a temporary reduction of ten per cent.) in connection with the information department and the compilation of a catalogue.

Among the functions of the library is to supply on loan to a library, or or in exceptional cases to individuals, books for study which cannot be obtained in any other way, also to act as an exchange or clearing house for mutual loan of such books between other libraries, and to act as a bureau of Bibliographical information both for national and international purposes.

The building, which will house this great library, is six storeys high, has an area of 50,000 square feet, and has cost over £50,000 to build.

The money has been provided by the Carnegie United Kingdom Trustees.

Air Space for Fowls

Chickens breathe a pint of air per minute, or 1.2 cubic feet per hour. It is calculated that each bird requires at least 40 cubic feet of air per hour to obviate the deleterious effect of carbon dioxide in the breathed air. The air requirement of a medium fowl weighing about 4.5 pounds seems to be much the same as that of a larger bird weighing 7.5 pounds.

Whales Are Shrinking Norwegians Report

Oslo.—Whales, too, seem to have been hit by the depression. They are decreasing in size, according to the Norwegian whaling journal, "Norsk Hvalfangsttidende."

Measurements made sinse the season 1926-27, it says, show that whales of 70 feet and below, which then represented 22.22 per cent. of all caught, in the season 1931-32 represented no less than 60.50 per cent., while whales longer than 85 feet, which in 1926-27 represented 22.87 per cent. of animals caught, this last season has fallen to a percentage of 7.54.

Long-Legged N.Y. Banker Buys 1919 Model in England

New York.—Aided by one of the most curious vehicles that ever set wheel to the sidewalks of New York, William H. Hamilton, a long-legged banker, has set up a one-man revolt against automotive progress.

Mr. Hamilton, sick and tired of having his hats crushed in modern, low-slung automobiles, with little or no head room, bought himself a London taxicab the last time he was over and it arrived recently.

The appearance of the vehicle, a 1919 model, with a high poop-deck, short wheelbase and rubber bulk horn, brought an outpouring of the populace around Gramercy square.

With his wife and two friends, Mr. Hamilton went barging around the park, luxuriating, no doubt, in the uncommon sensation of watching the meter tick merrily away in shillings and pence and knowing there would be nothing to pay at the end. The cab cost him $37.

Estimate Cut Of Wheat Crop

Storages Are Up—238,180,000 Bushels 1933 Production

Winnipeg.—Indicating a wheat crop of only 238,180,000 bushels in Western Canada, the estimate of the 1933 prairie wheat production made by the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association here is the smallest of current estimates.

The Dominion Government on Sept. 11, placed the western crop at 264,000,000 bushels, while the Searle Grain Co., Ltd., after indicating 269,000,000 bushels on Sept. 1, reduced this figure a week ago to 247,000,000 bushels. Disappointing returns, especially from northern areas of Alberta and Saskatchewan are said to be the reasons for the lower estimates now being made.

The grain dealers' estimate, however, is based on its own acreage figures of 24,055,600 acres, which is 1,000,000 acres less than government figures.

Ottawa.—Canadian wheat in store for the week ended Oct. 27 increased by 4,261,654 bushels as compared with the previous week, it is reported by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The visible supply of wheat was reported at 249,502,238 bushels compared with a revised figure of 245,240,584 bushels for the previous week and 239,434,997 bushels for the corresponding week in 1932. The excess of 1933 visible supplies over those of comparable dates in 1932 has been gradually narrowing during the past few months and is now only about 10,000,000 bushels.

The first interruption in the light and power service since the installation of the Diesel plant, came on Friday evening last, causing considerable inconvenience to the citizens, depriving them of the use of their lights and cooking utensils, just at the time when they were indispensible. The trouble, however, was not due to the new plant, as a limb from a tree on Main street west having fallen across the main line, caused a short circuit, and the service had to be discontinued until the trouble was located. The service was resumed about 6.15 p.m.

Owing to the low water in the river, it was necessary to extend the intake pipe several feet, into the deeper water of the St. Lawrence. For this reason, water was pumped from the canal for a few hours on Thursday, but the supply of water is again being taken from the St. Lawrence River.

ENJOYS READING "LEADER" IN TROPICAL CLIMATE

2629 S.W. 28 Court,
Miami, Florida,
November 11, 1933.

Mr. Leo Laurin,
Editor, "The Leader," Morrisburg, Ontario.

Dear Editor:

No doubt you are unaware of the fact that a copy of your interesting paper, "The Leader," has strayed so far from its home town. Well, I have with me tonight a copy of your July 21, 1933, issue, and it seems to enjoy the tropical climate just as much as your humble servant. It may cause you a certain amount of envy to learn that a copy of your paper is being fanned by the warm, gentle sea breeze of the tropics, while the editor and publisher suffers the cruel November frosts of the Frigid Zone.

I do not wish to make you jealous of the position your paper enjoys, but just imagine how comfortable it is situated to-night, inhaling the sweet odor of the night-blooming jasmine, formed by the invigerating sea breeze, and listening to the swash of the coconut palm, all under the argent moon of a tropical sky.

My name does not appear upon your subscription lists, but I get "The Leader" all the same. Just the way I receive it is more appreciable to me than if I was a subscriber, for they are addressed to me by my dear mother.

To express my appreciation of your valued publication would be out of order in this short letter, but would just like to say that it brings me the news relative to those people with whom I spent my boyhood days. No matter how far one may roam, even into different countries or other zones, the people you meet can never displace those who patted you on the head when you were a child. Those people who remain nearest and dearest to you are those with whom you spent your childhood. Realizing this, I am obliged to admit that your "Leader" appeals to me kindly.

My mind often wanders through the streets of Morrisburg and other places throughout Dundas County, which are so familiar to me. These scenes which remain as fresh in my mind as if they were yesterday, recalling as they do the four years I spent in Morrisburg Collegiate Institute, bring me to the happiest recollection perhaps of all, and that is to know that Mr. J.S. Jamieson, M.A., of whom I am proud to say I was a student, is still alive. I must say, that after so many years, it was a happy event in my life when I was afforded the opportunity of visiting Mr. Jamieson, and also the M.C.I., three years ago.

On the front page of your July 21 issue, appears an article by Dr. J.J. McKendry of Winchester, Ontario, relative to a malady affecting the skin of children in your neighbourhood. I do not wish to be considered rude in giving this information relative to this disease, but owing to the wide error made by the doctor, perhaps it is my duty to give some data upon this subject. We have the same complaint in the tropics, where there is no wild parsnip. This disease was very prominent among the children this summer. This disease is professionally known as "impetigo," but popularly called "summer sores." This parasitic infection appears upon the legs and arms. It can be picked up anywhere by children with bare limbs, and usually makes its appearance with watery blisters, which rapidly turns into sores, and later covers the body with a hard scab. There is a well known remedy for this disease, and should anyone desire to obtain same, they might write the Litmo Laboratories, Box 1259, Orlando, Florida.

In closing, I sincerely hope that this letter conveys my kindest regards to the gentle readers who might be friends or relatives.

Sincerely yours,
GEO. R. DAFOE.

CASSELMAN—WAGNER

A quiet wedding took place on Wednesday afternoon last, at three o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Wagner, Morewood, when their youngest daughter, Doris Pearl, was united in marriage to Mr. Harry Frank Casselman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Casselman of Morrisburg. The rooms were prettily decorated with pink and white streamers and white bells. Rev. A. Nimmo officiated. Mrs. G.H. Smith played the wedding march. The attendants were Miss Nora Scott, of Cornwall, as bridesmaid, and Mr. Ralph Wagner as best man.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was wearing a becoming gown of blue chiffon velvet, and carried a bouquet of roses. The bridesmaid wore a green crepe gown.

The groom's gift to the bride was a wrist watch, to the bridesmaid a necklace, and to the best man a pair of cuff links.

The mother of the bride wore a brown silk gown, while Mrs. Casselman was dressed in black satin. After the ceremony, tea was served to about 35 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Casselman left later on a short honeymoon trip to Syracuse and other points, and on their return will reside at Morisburg.

MATILDA W. I.

The regular monthly meeting of the Matilda Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Robt. Bell on Thursday. The unusual pre-season weather prevented some of the members from attending, but there was a good attendance, and an interesting meeting resulted. Mrs. A. Peterson, president, presided, with Mrs. Chas. Strader secretary. The meeting opened with the Institute creed. Minutes of previous meeting read and approved. Roll call was answered by "An historic place in Dundas." An extremely interesting display of antiques was brought by the members, and curios several hundred years old were viewed with interest by those present. Mrs. W.G.A. Wilson gave a detailed, interesting and instructive report of the recent Institute convention held in the Chateau Laurier, Ottawa. Mrs. Wilson also gave a very interesting paper on historical research. Mesdames Chas Strader and Ed. Collison pleased the meeting with a duet. A vote of thanks was extended Mrs. Wilson for her excellent report and paper, and Mrs. Bell for opening her spacious home for the occasion.

After the National Anthem, a dainty lunch was served by the hostesses for the evening.

IN MEMORIAM

McINTOSH—In fond and loving memory of Lorne Emerson, who died suddenly November 26th, 1931.

Two lonely years ago today,
God took our only son away;
It was His will, He loved him best
And he has gained eternal rest.

The call was sudden, the shock severe
We little thought the end so near—
It is only those who have lost can tell
The sorrow of parting without saying farewell.
