The Morrisburg Leader

LXXXV, NO. 32. MORRISBURG, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, AUGUST 8th, 1947. $2.00 PER YEAR; SINGLE COPIES 5c

Softball News

The girls' softball team came up against the O.C.O.T. of Cornwall on Tuesday nite and lost by a 6—5 score. The play was close throughout the game and the locals died with two runs on base. A large crowd attended the game and by their lusty cheers showed that they thoroughly enjoyed it. Morrisburg girls are now running second in their league and show a good prospect of coming through on top.

The Leopards and the Grease Monkeys met twice this week. Once on Monday nite and the other game on Thursday nite. The Grease Monkeys, supposedly a new team, turned out to be a combination of the best players of the M. C. I., and the Golden Dragons, who were reportedly split up by dissension within their own ranks. Two new men did appear in Monday's game. They were Alex Barkley of Morrisburg and Mac K. Casselman of Williamsburg.. Both of thes men, however, were absent from last nite's game.

In the first encounter the Monkeys defeated the Leopards 5:1 in what the fans declared to be the best game of the season and in last nite's game, the umpire, Tom Parker, called no game when a series of arguments developed in the sixth inning. At this time the Leopards were trailing the Monkeys 3—4, but the Leopards had a potetntial run on base so it's hard to say how the game would have ended had it gone its fulul course of 7 innings. Batteries for Monday's game were Reid pitching and Howie Eamon catching for the Leopards and Lee pitching and Prunner behind the bat for the Monkeys. Last nite Lee and Prunner again went the rouute for the Grease Monkeys, while the Leopards used Reid and Devaul pitching and Devaul and Charlie Eamon catching. The next game has not as yet been decided on. The notice board will be put out on the day of the game. Feeling runs high and the competition is very keen between these two teams, so if you like good softball don't fail to be on hand for the next encounter.

Rapids Prince Freed From Shoal

Early this morning (Friday) the tugs Salvage Prince and Salvage Queen, of the Pyke Salvage Co., of Kingston were successful in towing the C.S.L. ship Rapids Prince from the sandbar where she had run aground near Morrisburg on Wednesday night. The big passenger liner got into difficulty when her rudder shaft was broken while attempting to ascend the Rapides Plat.

In command of Capt. Preston Cherry, she returned to Morrisburg this morning and ascended the canal under her own power. The Rapids Prince operates a rapid shooting excursion three times weekly between Prescott and Montreal.

A rumour that she had run aground again shortly after leaving Morrisburg, proved false.

Memorial Service Held at Brinston

The annual Memorial and Decoration Day service, sponsored by Connaught Lodge, No. 440, I.O.O.F., of Brinston, was held at the Matilda Memorial Cemetery on Sunday afternoon. An estimated attendance of over one thousand was the largest at tendance since the inauguration of th day a few years ago.

At 2.30 o'clock, Morrisburg Silver Band led a large procession of members of the I. O. O. F. of Connaught and surrounding lodges to the central chapel, where Bro. Wilfred Cooper, P. D. D. G. M., and Dist. Sec'y. presided at a programme consisting of hymns, selections by the Morrisburg Band and a coronet solo "The Holy City", by Mr. T. Johnston, leader of the band. The secretary of the Connaught Lodge read the names of departed members since institution in 1913. The guest speaker was Rev. A. F. Fokes of Shawville Que., who delivered a very impressive address, with his usual force, and complimented the Odd Fellows as sponsors of so important a day in memory of the departed, and the Cemetery Board on the beautiful appearance of the cemetery. Incidentally, Rev. Fokes, who was minister of the Matilda pastorate for six years several years ago, met several old associates.

Mr. A. E. Bell, sec'y.-treas. of the cemetery board, gave a report of the financial standing of the board, and thanked the people for donations and collection of approximately $160.

Boyd Family Hold Annual Reunion At Brockville

Organized in 1935, the 11th annual re-union of the Boyd family of Hainsville, Ont., was held Sunday at St. Lawrence Park, Brockville, with the largest attendance on record. Re-union of the group was suspended during 1943 and 1944, but has been resumed since the war. Coincident with the age of its oldest member, Mrs. Marjory J. Boyd, of Hainsville, who observed her 82nd birthday last May, there were exactly 82 relatives and guests present. At the conclusion of the sumptuous meal, served in the spacious dining pavilion of the park, President J. Harvey Johnston of Morrisburg, welcomed all present and paid a special tribute to its oldest member, Mrs. Boyd. He also recalled the names of all those members who had passd away within the past few years and requested the gathering to stand for a minute's silence.

A photographer was on hand to take a picture of the group and a special photograph of the "original" members of the Boyd family, who included Mrs. Marjory Boyd, Hainsville; Perley S. Boyd, Chesterville; Miss Jennie Boyd, South Mountain; Mrs. D. C. Chaumont and R. C. Fader, both of Watertown, N. Y.

Remainder of the afternoon was spent in apleasant series of visits among those from widely separated points, while the younger set enjoyed to the fuull the inviting bathing facilities, slides and swings provided at the park.

With the election of John Renshaw of Watertown, as president for the 1948 re-union, it was tentatively decided that next year the gathering woulud be held at some convenient point immediately south of the border.

Members and guests were present from Watertown, N. Y., Iroquois, Cardinal, Kingston, Chesterville, South Mountain, Dundela, Heckston, Morrisbuurg, Hainsville and Ottawa.

NOTICE

Owing to the heavy demand for advertising space in this issue we are forced to hold over several news items for next week's issue.

Among these is the obituary notice for Mr. Clinton Casselman, a well-known Pembroke businessman, who was found dead at the wheel of his car near Finch.

Funeral service was held at Williamsburg Lutheran Church and was largely attended. Numerous floral offerings received testified to the high esteem in which he was held. A full obituary for Mr. Casselman will appear next week.

SHORT STORY

Home Run

By GROVER HEIMAN

Mary's eyes had been serious as Matt turned to go into the clubhouse and he knew she was going to say something. He didn't want to listen, but he waited.

"I wish you would quit baseball and go into business with Father," she said, twisting her gloves in her long fingers.

"We've talked about this before, darling. Hundreds of times. I thought it was a closed subject."

"I'm reopening it, Matt. I've worried sick night after night."

"We'll talk about it after the game," he said wearily and the old anger grew large in his chest. Why this again!

They had been married less than a year and it had been the same story since spring training. Sure he had been lucky to get her. Or was it lucky to marry a girl with a cool million?

The cheers of the crowd that greeted the Red Legs when the team poured out of the clubhouse was music to his ears.

Here were his people—the fans. Rich and poor, they had one consuming interest and he shared that interest. Baseball was king in this square of grass circled by stands and myriads of faces.

The game rocked along as a pitcher's duel. Matt worked a fast double play in the top of the eighth to nip a Greenie rally and the stands went wild. Matt glanced at Mary, but there was no sign of elation.

The Red Legs needed this win to move into first place, but the outlook was dim when the first two batters swung three times and then came back to the dugout. Matt chose his bat and took his place at the plate.

Mary was still on his mind and he watched the first ball slant in and faintly heard the umpire call a strike. The next pitch was a strike and Matt gave the bill of his cap a jerk and leaned closer. Slow burning anger boiled up then and he was eager for the next throw. He wanted to hit it with everything he had, wanted to hurt the ball because he was hurt. It came and he swung.

The solid crack of the bat told the fans and they rose as one to cheer. Matt looked over his shoulder after touching second and grinned. A home run and the ball game. He noticed the two girls sitting next to Mary, on their feet and cheering.

Mary was waiting for him at the clubhouse. He wanted to hear her say it was a good hit, but her face was clouded in thought. She took his arm and they walked to the gate. A mass of humanity met Matt, and he had to halt. He autographed the ball and then books, tickets and anything else they shoved into his hands.

A tousle haired boy standing on Mary's side turned a freckled nose to the boy standing beside him. "Boy!" he murmured in awe. "Matt Johnson. That's what I want to be—a ball player like Matt."

They ate dinner and conversation was sparse. Matt wasn't happy, not with Mary feeling this way. It looked like a choice—Mary or baseball. He knew it would be Mary, but he loved baseball. The bank job with Mary's father would drive him crazy. If only she could understand!

As he paid the check he heard a man at a nearby table saying to a woman in a turban:

"That's Matt Johnson, one of the greatest second basemen in the game. That guy is a credit to the game and to the country. Really a clean sportsman and the idol of a million kids . . . ."

Matt took Mary's arm and they departed. He didn't want to hear more. In the car he made up his mind. It would be better to break with the game now than later. He knew it because he knew himself.

"Mary . . . about baseball. . ."

She put her finger over his lips and kissed his cheek. "I've been a fool, darling. A selfish fool. I realized it when you hit the home run and when the fans wanted your autograph. And the way they cheered. Those boys by the car, what they said, and the man in the grill. You can't leave baseball, Matt. You are baseball!"

Fair and Circus Time Again—On vacant lots on the outskirts of town and in city parks, fairs, carnivals and circusses are doing a land office business with the younger set, another of summer joys to make the long holidays speed away. Midway operators, an eye to the opening of the Canadian National Exhibition, proclaim this will be their greatest year in Canada.

Australia's Great Barrier Reef Is Vast Showplace

Scientists call it "one of the marine wonders of the globe." Artists describe it as a place where "nature has allowed herself to run riot." The average Australian, less articulate but just as appreciative, simply refers to it as "wonderful." Its official name is the Great Barrier Reef. A formation of multi-colored coral islands, it stretches for 1,200 miles off the Queensland coast of northeastern Australia.

The Great Barrier Reef has always been a mecca for beauty-loving Australians and current suggestions in government circles are that it may be fitted up with enough conveniences to make it the Commonwealth's showplace.

A year-round, warm-weather resort, it draws all types of visitors. Among the most famous was the late novelist Zane Grey, who loved it for the deep-sea fishing it offered. Tourists like the trips in glass-bottomed boats to watch the marine life, including the odd shark. Another novelty is watching the natives ride turtles. After the turtles come up on the beaches to deposite eggs, natives hop on their backs as they slowly jog out into deep water.

The actual reef is not populated. Year-round residents and visitors set themselves up on small islands which lie between the reef and the continent. Most of these atolls are protrusions of sunken land though some are coral. The majority of the islands have small coral reefs which prevent sharks from coming too close to land.

Some of the islands are occupied on 99-year leases by persons who lead lives as lonely as lighthouse keepers. When ships go by, island families turn out to wave tablecloths, clothes, or just their arms in salutation.

Although permanent residents of the Great Barrier Reef district manage to make a bare living, their mode of life is hard. The principal industry, aside from the tourist business, is fishing or hunting for the pearly shell of a clam known as the trochus which is used for button manufacture.

The reef, submerged at high tide, took nature an estimated 1,000,000 years to build. It is still growing —both in size and in importance as one of Australia's natural attractions.

Not All Maniacs

We hear many wails of indignation from the poor pedestrian who is forced to pick his hazardous way through this high-speed age. But the Automobile Legal Association of Boston sends us an urgent plea for justice to the maligned motorist, who in 1946 traveled 249,000,000,000 miles in the United States, yet killed only 9.7 people per 100,000,000 miles of vehicle travel. This disposes, they say, of the fiction that every harmless pedestrian becomes an irresponsible maniac the moment he gets behind the wheel.

Concrete Freight Cars

Cast reinforced concrete freight cars are being made in Germany, it is reported; all parts are case concrete except wheels, springs, and drawbars.

Britain Still Leads In New Shipbuilding

The success of Britain's bid to to regain world ship-building preeminence is in heartening contrast with the difficulties and disappointments the United Kingdom is encountering in other lines in her drive for industrial recovery, observes the Sault Daily Star.

Britain's output of new ship construction in 1946 more than equalled that of the rest of the world combined, for the first time since 1930, it is revealed in Lloyd's Register of Shipping, the authoritative source of the world's shipbuilding figures.

British output for 1946 was 235,000 tons more than in 1945, an increase of 26.2 per cent.

Canada, incidentally, ranked third in figures of tonnage launched outside Britain in 1946 with a total tonnage of 71,800

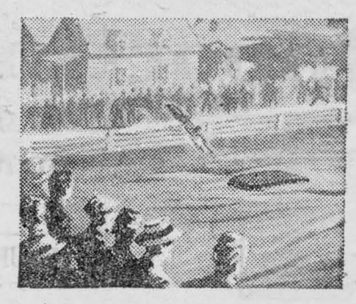
ROCH DANDENAULT

OF COATICOOK, QUE.

braves strong current to enter submerged car

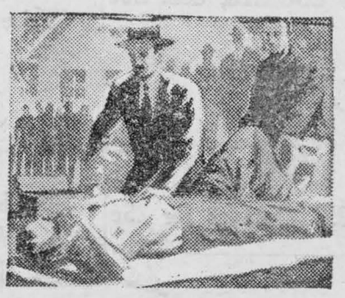


A man's life was at stake! Chief of Police Roch Dandenault did not hesitate. Ripping off his coat, he dove into the river and swam to the car.

The automobile careened crazily and plummeted into the Coaticook River. Only the top showed above the water. Then, as horror-struck spectators thronged the bank, they saw two men break clear, and struggle frantically in the current. In a few moments ropes were brought to their rescue.

But still trapped in the near-submerged automobile was a third occupant . . . only staying alive by pressing his face to the roof of the car, and breathing from a scant one inch air space between the surface of the water and the roof. His strength was failing fast when Chief of Police Roch Dandenault dove into the icy water. On reaching the car Dandenault had a desperate underwater struggle to open the door against the strong current. But finally his heroic efforts were rewarded. He forced his way into the car and dragged the man to safety.

We are proud to pay tribute to the gallantry of Police Chief Roch Dandenault, of Coaticook, Que., through the presentation of the Dow Award.



After his courageous rescue, Chief Dandenault and the three victims were treated by a Coaticook doctor.

THE DOW AWARD is a citation for outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Canada Savings Bond. Winners are selected by the Dow Award Committee, a group of editors of leading Canadian daily newspapers.

Sports – And One Thing or Another

By FRANK MANN HARRIS

("A Sixbit Critic")

Professional basketball has been tried in the city of Toronto—tried, and found wanting in just one vital essential. The advance ballyhoo was ornate and gaudy; press and radio support most generous; players were of the All Star Variety although, at times, they did perform as though they hadn't been properly introduced to one another. Just one thing was lacking—namely, cash customers in sufficiently paying quantities.

Putting it baldly, the whole thing was a promotional flop; and while it's easy to be wise after the event, there were those of us who pointed out to the promoters—or tried to—what a mistake they were making right from the start. They overlooked the fact that, while 1000 customers at $2.50 apiece put just as much dough in the cash-register as 5000 at four-bits, it is by no means the same thing in the matter of building up a following. Instead of making sure that the joint was packed—even with dead-heads — for their first half-dozen games, they acted as if all they had to do was open the doors and have folks come a-crowding, cash in hand. And there's nothing as chilling as a couple of thousand people trying to sound enthusiastic in a place built to hold seven or eight times that many.

DISAPPOINTMENT. There is said to have been great anticipation among the black flies and mosquitoes of Northern Ontario at the news of the eminent Gypsy Rose Lee visiting those parts. Some of them were even rumored as trying to hum Bach's "Air for the G-String" as they honed and stropped their stingers. But, alas, Miss Lee, like a good trouper, keeps professional costume for professional appearances, and so presents no softer target than any average camper.

A reverend gentleman has recently come out with a heated blast against wrestling and wrestlers —one which we think is somewhat unfair. Having been, in our time, mixed up more closely than most folks with the — sport, business, racket, call what you like — of wrestling, we feel in a position to speak by the book. And while we have seen wrestling fans, male and female, stirred by excitement to actions that were hardly either polite or elevating—well, we might say the very same regarding what we have witnessed at, say, a Rev. Billy Sunday Tabernacle.

As for the grapplers personally—take them by and large, the quietest, decentest, best-living bunch you'll find in any line of physical endeavor. Wrestling two, three and four times a week, they haven't the time, even if they had the inclination, for any real Cain-raising outside the ring. If some of their antics verge on the crude—well, as Shakespere said, "the drama's laws the drama's patrons give"; and modern wrestling is all of 90 per cent drama. Anyway, we are proud to count a large number of wrestlers, as well as many Ministers, among our personal friends. And if we don't happen to attend wrestling matches as often as we used to, the same goes for Church service as well.

Looking at some cherries priced at $2.00 per basket not long ago, we overheard an old-timer say to his companion, "I can remember the time when we could buy cherries like those as low as 25c a basket." Then, after a pause, he added, "Yes; and the two-bits was just as hard to get hold of as the two dollars is nowadays."

Swimming from Ireland to Scotland a long-distance swimmer recently covered the 25 miles of turbulent water in slightly over 14 hours. If you have any Scots friends, suggest to them that if he'd swum the other way his eagerness to escape would have probably made him cut the time in half. Then prepare to duck, but fast!

BRICKS AND LUMBER ONLY? It is reported that our Provincial Government has been informing prospective settlers from Britain that, here in our beloved Ontario, they can expect to buy comfortable homes for around $3000 per copy. If such is the case, we do hope they ure, they would probably have to do were also told that, at such a fig- all the nccessary building personally.

Modern Rustlers Travel by Truck

Saskatchewan ranchers' action in posting standing rewards for the arrest and conviction of cattle rustlers provides an interesting reminder that much of Western Canada still is pioneer country, although the old "wild west" is gone, says The Edmonton Journal. Present day rustlers do not face the prospect of being hanged to the nearest tree if caught, but posting standing rewards of $100 indicates ranchers feel the need for vigilance in protecting their stock. The money may bring in information that will assist the police in rounding up the thieves.

Stockmen admit rustling has decreased following the postwar boom in black market beef. But they claim enough livestock still is stolen to warrant the payment of rewards for capture of the thieves.

Stalin Draws Plans For a New Moscow

Prime Minister Joseph Stalin has personally drawn up a plan to rebuild Moscow as a "harmonious architectural creation expressing the noble ideas of Communism," radio Moscow said.

Quoting an article in the Soviet newspaper Izvestia, it said the new city would contain avenues, squares, and parks grouped around the Kremlin, in addition to monumental buildings and "beautiful modern houses" to be built over many square miles of ground.

Nestling around the outskirts of the city would be cottages surrounded by gardens, Mr. Stalin has planned.

Japanese Beetles Tour by Airliner

—The Japanese beetle, since its arrival in New Jersey some 30-odd years ago, has given evidence of being much pleased with what it has seen and eaten of this country in more than a score of states, says the New York Herald Tribune.

The ambitious insect is well aware of the value of air transport in getting around a land so much larger than its original home in the Pacific. Every Summer it makes use of planes, travelling as a stowaway or hitch hiker, and coming aboard clinging boldly to some traveller who may be munching lima bean vines in Ohio a few hours later.

Now the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine has employed five girls to serve as inspectors at La-Guardia Field, with the duty of watching for outbound beetles attached to the back of a gabardine suit or iridescently ornamenting a wash frock.

When your BACK ACHES...

Backache is often caused by lazy kidney action. When kidneys get out of order excess acids and poisons remain in the system. Then backache, headache, rheumatic pain, disturbed rest or that 'tired out' feeling may soon follow. To help keep your kidneys working properly—use Dodd's Kidney Pills. What Science is Doing

Casein Bristles

Hog bristles seem to be fighting a losing battle. Long years ago, such bristles were used in watches until displaced by the hair spring of steel. And for a long time the hog was the undisputed leader in the production of quality bristles for paint brushes, writes W. P. K. in The Christian Science Monitor.

During the war, however, the hog was forced to take a back seat by the appearance of synthetic bristles of various kinds. And now there is a new threat to his former monopoly.

A mixture of casein, obtained from skim milk, and water is extruded through a suitable die and then subjected to finishing operations The resulting bristle is round in cross section and black like horsehair or China pig bristle and can be produced in any length or diameter desired.

The casein bristles are said to be particularly well adapted for use in paint brushes because they are resistant to oils and organic solvents.

In defense of the local hogs it probably should be mentioned that most of the hog bristles used here come from China and Europe. Not, we hasten to add, that our domestic hogs couldn't raise nice bristles. It is just that the local bristles are not long enough, due to the fact that American hog raisers do not, as a rule, keep boars long enough to grow bristles of the desired length.

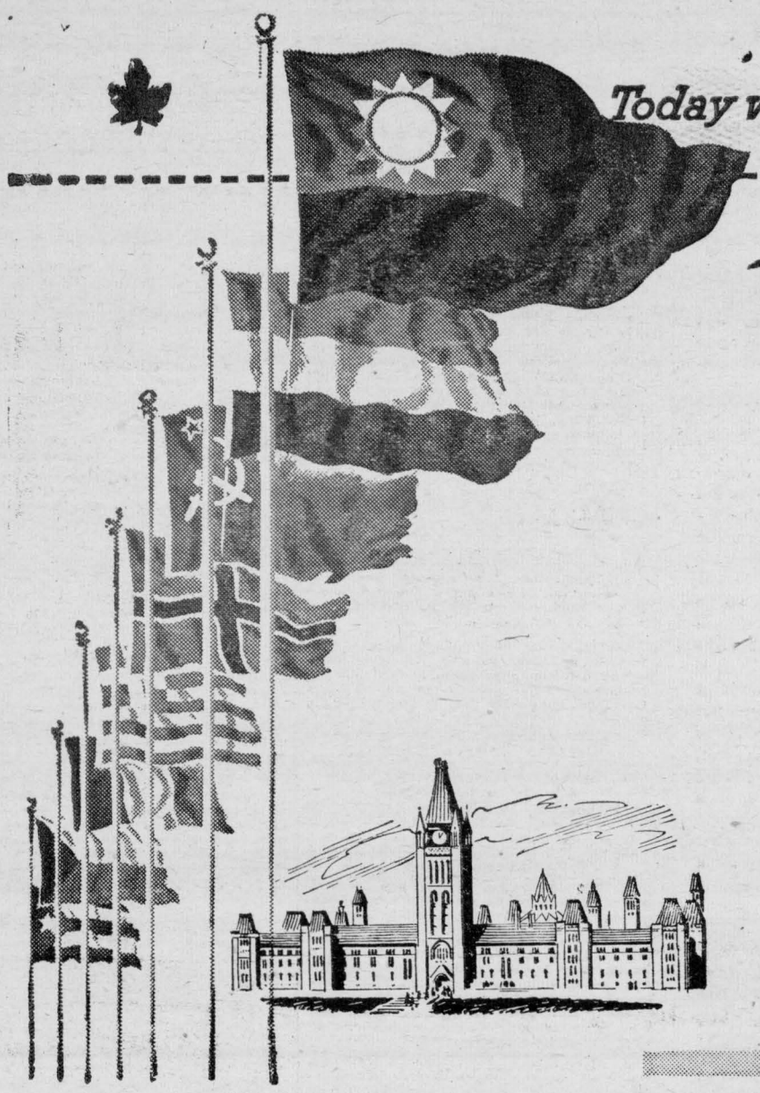
MUTT AND JEFF—Well Jeff Can Tell Girls he Was Once A Life Guard Anyway — By BUD FISHER



Today we Live in a Greater Canada

Foreign Flags over OTTAWA

TELL OF CANADA'S IMPORTANCE IN THE MODERN WORLD

20 years ago there was none . . . ten years ago only four . . . TODAY there are 24 Ambassadors, High Commissioners and Ministers representing their governments at Canada's capital. Striking evidence, that, of Canada's new place among modern nations!

We emerged from the war a far greater country than we ever were in pre-war days. Peacetime accomplishments are maintaining that new greatness today.

In the 80's we had a High Commissioner in London, and an Agent-General in France—but we had little say in our foreign affairs. Canada negotiated with foreign powers through the British Foreign Office, with Empire countries through the British Colonial Office.

In World War I Canada won the right to a separate signature to the Treaty of Versailles. That made 1919 an important date for us. Then, in 1931, we and the other Dominions gained recognition as equal partners with the United Kingdom.

World War II...Canada's achievements in battle overseas and in production at home won us world recognition as a modern power. The great majority of the embassies at Ottawa were established during the war years.

GUY PURSER is a young Canadian who started in 1931 with a gasoline station. Today, as a result of applying his knowledge of motor cars, his energies and talents to the full, he has developed a unique business in automotive service. His success has enabled him to fulfill a long nourished ambition to train and ride his own jumping horses, taking part successfully in open competition, and to turn his dramatic abilities profitably to playing leading roles in motion pictures.

GUY PURSER says: "I'm glad I decided to follow my career in Canada. There were opportunities when I started out. There are much greater ones now. No longer need young Canadians go beyond our borders to follow the road to success. It lies before them in Canada today."

Murder in Plain Sight

by GERALD BROWN

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER XXVIII: Donlevy drives up and brusquely takes over. He herds them all inside the mansion. There they discover that the man in sailor's uniform is Stephen Bigelow. The uniform is a model now obsolete. The black handkerchief is missing from it. Obviously it is the same article that McCale found in the trunk. Victoria arrives, takes in the situation, and collapses.

Chapter XXIX

"I'm all right," McCale said, "but I'm still wet and very, very tired."

"Then you get into dry clothes right away. Rocky, you mix him a highball while I make coffee. While you're getting the liquid inside of you, I want to hear about everything. If you think I'm going to tuck you in and go home before I get the whole story, you are sadly mistaken. If you will go out chasing a murderer all night with a hole in your side, you'll have to take the consequences. I'm going to ask questions if I stay here the rest of the night."

The three of them sat a long time over brandy and hot coffee discussing the case. After a lengthy resume, they grew silent. McCale finally spoke.

"The maddening thing about it all was the motive, you see. Everyone who came under suspicion after Veronica was more or less cleared had a motive. But not different motives—they all had the same one."

"What do you mean?" Ann asked.

"Well, they were all in the plot to get Curt married to Veronica and in charge of the Bigelow millions. Then when it was discovered that he didn't intend to give them a share after all, they all had the same incentive—to keep him from getting control of it. When it was clear that they all wanted him out of the way for the same reason, it became more a matter of seeking out the person with the characteristics most suitable to committing murder."

"Bright lad," Rocky grinned. "It's a wonder you fumbled as long as you did."

McCale scowled. "Oh, I know the old one about everyone being a potential murderer. I had to nose a little closer to the ground than just accusing one right after the other. Some of them had to have a stronger motive than just money.

"Call it jealousy combined with passion. Karen was the 'femme fatale,' of course. I think she knew from the first that Stephen did it. She didn't give him away, though, not until tonight. She'd even thought of helping him to run away again. That's why she drew the $800. But tonight when I asked her if she knew why Sybil hadn't been killed instead of stunned, she didn't answer. However, as I went out the door, she began to play the Lullaby from Joselyn. It was her way of telling me about the mother fixation Stephen had. He could not bring himself to kill her, even though he realized she had gone to the attic to see if his sailor suit was still there—and the gun."

"Oh, that's what she was looking for."

"Of course. Funny. All the way along the line, everything pointed to the sailor angle. It wasn't until I found the black silk square in the attic that I realized what I had missed. It was a kerchief, you know, the kind sailors wear knotted about their necks. When I realized what it was, the whole puzzle fell into focus. There was a sailor lounging near the gate across from the house on the afternoon of the murder. Then Miss Bigelow had told me that Stephen had once run away and joined the navy. He even mentioned the fact himself. Then there was the picture missing from Shari Lynn's wall. The only sailor in all those uniforms. Stephen's photograph, of course. The picture was taken years and years ago—not a very good one—but if I had given it more than a cursory glance the night I saw it at Shari Lynn's, I think I would have recognized him."

"Lord. The whole business was out in the open all the time." This from Rocky.

"Uh uh. That's where he was clever. It was almost too out in the open. Stephen told no lies. He admitted being jealous of Karen. Everything he did was logical, you know, except attacking his mother. He shouldn't have done that, because he couldn't follow through on it. He didn't have the heart to kill her. It showed that the killer had a fondness for Sybil that kept him from destroying her. That definitely put the finger on Stephen."

Rocky said, surprisingly, "He was lucky about the false clues, too, boss. He didn't try to leave any himself—false ones—to point another way, like most murderers do. There was the red wig and everybody being in the same locality at just the right time to come under suspicion. Those things just happened. All the confusion it caused was lucky for him—for a while, anyway."

"That's certainly right. He almost got away with bumping me off, too."

"He'd never been caught if he'd killed you," said Ann.

"Oh, I don't know. Donlevy's smart and he would have plugged away until he got the right line, no doubt."

"Maybe." She sounded skeptical. "Good heavens, It's five o'clock.

Rocky tilted his bulk from his chair, saying, "I'll mosy along, too. Come on, Ann. I'll drop you."

Duke," she ordered. "I hope you're

"You get right into bed now, going to be all right. You aren't running a fever are you?"

She put her hand on his forehead and, bending over suddenly, gave him a long kiss.

"I'm fine," answered McCale happily, "but if you want my temperature to go up, you're certainly doing the right thing."

ANNE HIRST

Your Family Counselor

A Good Daughter Makes Good Wife

"DEAR ANNE HIRST: Must I let my mother pick my boy friends? Anne Hirst"? cries an angry girl of 17. "I'm going steady now with a boy that she won't have in the house! She hasn't even met him, but she heard some gossip about him. He is 20, and a nice boy. She doesn't even trust me."

THIS IS a too-common situation. It is fraught with danger for the girl, apprehension for her mother, and bad feeling all around. The girl may be doubly attracted to the boy because she's been forbidden to see him. She pictures him as the martyred victim of gossip, and is determined to show him that she is a friend who will stand up for him. At 17, she feels old enough to choose her own friends, and she bitterly resents what she calls her mother's interference.

What she does not know is that many a nice-mannered boy is a cad at heart. This one probably assures her she's a "good sport," and she revels in the role. Seldom can a lad with decent instincts respect a girl who defies her parents, even though he gains by it. When he comes to marrying her, he is apt to remember that "a good daughter makes a good wife."

A MOTHER'S DUTY

* It is a sad pity that a young girl doesn't appreciate her parents' protection. They have lived long, they know the world. It is part of their duty to see that the girl goes with nice young men who have a good reputation; if she refuses to listen, how can they guard her against a marriage that might spoil her life?

* A mother does not object to a boy friend of her daughter's just for the fun of it, or to show her authority. How much easier it would be to let the girl go her way! Yet that same girl in trouble will blame her parents for not warning her. Hundreds of such girls cry out to me, when it is too late, "How I wish I'd listened to my mother! But I thought I knew best!"

* A good mother knows that her most precious possession is her daughter. She will brave the girl's resentment and ill-will, rather than let her cultivate the wrong boys. She will agonize through sleepless nights, praying for the girl's safety; she will accept abuse humbly, hoping the child will come to her senses. But she dare not close her eyes nor still her voice against her daughter's dangerous course.

* If this piece today were the last one I write, I would write it about this situation. I would plead with young girls to heed their parents' counsel, to realize it springs only from a greater love than they will ever known again. The pity of it is that if a mother's advice were given by any other older woman, the girls would listen to it!

To "A.L.F.": It is the part of wisdom to seek one's friends among members of his own church. Then neither the lad nor the girl invites the confusion which sometimes attends friendships between two people of different faiths.

Mothers are wiser, and more fair, than perhaps you think. If you are at odds with yours, tell Anne Hirst about it. Write her at Box A, room 421, 73 Adelaide Street, West, Toronto.

Your Handwriting and You

By Alex S. Arnott

Crude, heavy, excessive curls in handwriting is an expression of vulgarity. From the writing, you can picture such writers to be flashy and showy to the extreme. Their clothes may be of loud splashy material with an assortment of contrasting colours, cheap jewelry, and a display of unnecessary trinkets. These indicate lack of good taste and refinement. An example of this writing is illustrated below. Such writers make ungraceful, heavy whirls and loops in all their letters. In many cases, hooks begin and end the words, showing the person to be abnormally materialistic with a love of self-indulgence in eating and drinking. They go beyond the average person in their living habits and become excessive in everything they do. Harmony and spirituality is not part of their character as they do not believe in refinement, good temper, or good judgment.

Writing which appears to stand straight up, as in the first example, shows the nature to be more reserved than the nature in the second example, which indicates the person to be openly vulgar in speech as well as manner.

Sunday School Lesson

Purity of Heart and Life

Proverbs 2: 10-17; 4: 23-27; James 1: 13-15

Golden Text.—Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life.—Proverbs 4: 23.

To the wise men among the ancient Hebrews the heart was not only the center of man's physical being, but it symbolized also the center and source of his moral and spiritual life. He thought not only with his mind, but with his heart. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he"; "Search the heart, for out of it are the issues of life."

Purity of heart, therefore, became the supreme and necessary condition of a good and wholesome life, as much as pure blood is the condition of a healthy body.

What does it mean to be pure in heart? The common tendency is to think of "purity" chiefly, if not altogether, in terms of sex; but purity of heart means a great deal more than avoidance of what Saint Peter (I Peter 2:11) has called the "fleshy lusts that war against the soul."

Purity, too, must be considered on its positive side. It is not enough to resist the temptations of evil; it is necessary to be moved by the impulses of good, and the power of love. Purity means strength, as well as freedom from taint.

Purity relates to much more than sexual conduct, but that does not mean that purity in that regard is any less vital. The Bible, always a book of realism, is very plain and outspoken concerning right relations between man and woman on the one hand, and evil associations on the other. It commends the virtuous woman, who will do her husband "good and not evil all the days of her life," and it warns against the "strange women" in whose lures are the ways of destruction. Ancient counsel still holds good.

TEEN-TOWN TOPICS

By BARRY MURKAR

Well, the summer holidays are half gone and everyone is looking forward to getting back to school—what a laugh! However you may be thinking a little about fall plans and wondering what the football line-up will be like this term. But this is still summer so we'll make the most of it, while we have it.

Can You Top This?

We are in receipt of a letter this week, following a paragraph last issue on pen-pals. Ruth Gillman of Brougham, Ont, says: Thanks for the swell column for teen-agers. I have just finished reading your article, "Correspond—It's Worth It". I have been writing to pen-pals since I was eight years old and after nine years, I write to exactly 452 different people. I write to pen-pals in Japan, China, Cuba, Philipines, Jamaica, Newfoundland, Hawaii, Malta and naturally U.S. and Canada. How about more articles on pen-pals? Also for anyone who is interested, I would be pleased to give them addresses or send their address to some of my pen-pals. Can anyone top my record of pen-pals? I'd be very interested in hearing.—Ruth Gillman, Brougham, Ontario.

Thanks a lot for the interesting letter, Ruth and hope to hear from you again. If any of you kids out there want a real pen-pal,—well here you are.

News of the C. N. E.

Seems like a long time since we pushed our way down the midway at the good old "Ex", but it's here again and they sure have plenty of interesting things for teen-agers. In the automotive building you will find a section for teen-agers only. They have a record bar, fashion show and there will be teen-age broadcasts conducted from there daily. The midway will be bigger and better than ever, and every moment you have can be taken up with seeing something different and something interesting. Boys and girls who have an overdose of freckles can get in the freckle-faced kids competition and maybe win a little green stuff. If interested in any of the competitions you should get your entries in early. Re-placing the nightly pageant which has been a feature of the C.N.E. for years, will be the famous Olsen & Johnson comedy team with the New York cast. Owing to a mishap at the grandstand, the nightly pageant had to be suspended this year.

He Tells 'Em.

A clipping of an editorial appearing in the Moorpark Enterprise of Ventura County, California, came in from a reader the other day. The editorial, headed "What Need of It All?" concerns the present teen-age centres that many municipalities are building, or drawing up plans for, at the present time The writer says, and we quote—Twenty-five or thirty years ago teen-age centres and places of recreation for youth did not exist and the youth of that day grew up as wholesome and well-fitted for honest worthwhile life as the namby-pamby, shiftless and playboy youngsters of the present day—and so on. He says that building such places is only admitting failure to teach and control children, and that the handling of the child is an irkesome job—so let someone else do it. Brother you have something there. (I'll probably hear about this one. Plans are in the making for a centre here and maybe we could have chosen a better time for it—or could we?)

CHRONICLES OF GINGER FARM

By Gwendoline P. Clarke

This is the year I've been waiting for—yes, this is the year—with berries in the bush hanging red and ripe whichever way one looks. We haven't had such good picking for several years as we are having right now. And believe me, I am making the most of it. Everything else is being neglected, or at most reduced to minimum requirements. Any time now I am expecting to hear sounds of exasperation from my menfolk because I am afraid their supply of mended socks must be just about exhausted. Probably they will say—"Darn those socks"—in which case I too, may say "Darn those socks" only not quite with the same meaning.

Of course we are enjoying our usual run of summer guests—and I mean enjoy—but they, too, are being drawn into my scheming toils like helpless flies in a spider's web—my web being the raspberry patch to which they are enticed and given a pail and a pair of overalls I might add they are rising to the occasion magnificently.

Last week my sister-in-law and I made our first visit to the bush. It was more of an inspection trip than anything else as I wasn't at all sure that the berries were ready. So we wandered around in the bush quite a bit, picking here and there, but with no intention of staying very long. At ten-to-six I thought we had better head for home—and that's where the fun began. Do you think I could find my way out of that bush! To make matters worse the sky was overcast so that we couldn't even tell where the sun should be. As looking didn't get us anywhere we started listening. We could hear a tractor going not too far away and then we heard a car, so we headed hopefully towards where we thought the car had passed. Eventually we got out but quite a piece from where our car was parked so that meant a nice little walk for me to get it.

Of course when I related our experiences at supper time the men scoffed at the idea of our being lost; ridiculed the suggestion that we really had trouble in finding our way out of the bush—and in any case thought I was completely crazy. During our wandering I asked my sister-in-law if she were scared and what she would do if we were really lost.

"Nothing at all," she answered, "I would just sit here until someone came to find us. And I certainly was not scared."

Since that trip there have been others. Twice John came with me and I was relieved of all anxiety—also the job of carrying the big berry pail. Today Second Niece and I, along with a neighbour, went picking on our own. And what a great picking we had. It rained nearly all day yesterday and I imagine most people thought the bush would be wet as only once did we hear voices, and they were children voices. The bush wasn't really wet all. I suppose the denseness of the undergrowth keeps the ground from getting soggy.

All this activity has netted me twenty jars of berries—to say nothing of the number we have eaten—and the prospects are very good for still more pickings. The question is which will give out first—the berries, the sugar or my enthusiasm!

- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper

Canning

When canning fruits by the Cold Pack method, for each quart sealer allow: ¾ to 1 cup syrup for such fruits as blueberries and saskatoons; 1 to 1½ cups syrup for such fruits as raspberries, strawberries, gooseberries, cherries and peaches; 1½ to 2 cups syrup for such fruits as apricots, plums, pears, rhubarb. When canning fruit by the Hot Pack method, use the minimum amounts of syrup suggested for Cold Pack.

Herman's Problem

—Said a handsome young weasel named Herman.
Here's a thing I could never determine:
When a gal wears my coat,
She's a lady of note,
But when I wear my coat I'm just vermin.

Sure Protection

More than good general health is needed to ward off the communicable diseases. Doctors say that, although disease is less likely to attack a healthy person than one in poor condition, such protection as inoculation, vaccination and other forms of immunization is essential, particularly for children.

As children go back to school this Fall, medical authorities count on parents ensuring their safety by taking advantage of all the special scientific protective measures.

BUSINESS LIFE STARTS WITH POCKET MONEY

Career-Making Habits Should Begin With Savings Accounts

To your youngster a dollar may mean ten comic books or a dozen odd candy bars. It can also mean a step on the road to success....for it takes only a dollar to open a Savings Account in the Bank of Montreal.

When you encourage your child in the habit of regular saving, you do much more than build a bank account. You help him to achieve stability, purposefulness, patience ..... help him to help himself.

By the time he's ready to begin his full-time career, he will realize the value of a financial reserve that may enable him to ward off misfortune or take advantage of opportunity.

Why not send him around to the B of M to open an account tomorrow? Charles Wood, local branch manager and his staff will be happy to assist your youngster to make his first deposit in a 'success fund'.

DON'T MISS THE BIG SOCIAL AND DANCE ON WEDNESDAY

Anyone who likes a whole day of good clean fun is urged to attend the pie social and dance to be sponsored by St. Mary's Church, Morrisburg on Wednesday next.

In the afternoon there will be a pie social and bingo on the church lawn. There will also be a band concert by the Morrisburg Community Band, a special programme of singing and dancing, refreshment booth, fancy work table, food table, and other attractions.

In the evening, there will be a grand dance in the Arena with the music being supplied by Renez and his complete orchestra from the hotel Standish Hall in Hull, Quebec.

This orchestra features Renez Laflamme as master of ceremonies, Jose, well known marimba and vibra phone virtuoso, and the three Grenez Sisters, in a 30 minute floor show, that is guaranteed to please you.

If you are looking for a whole day of entertainment, keep this date in mind, Wednesday, August 13th.

IN MEMORIAM

This day brings back sad memories
Of a loved one gone on before;
Yet in heaven I hope to meet him
Where we shall part no more.

GOOD CITIZENSHIP
is a lot of little things

CARE WILL PREVENT 7 OUT OF 10 FOREST FIRES

Most forest fires don't just happen . . . they are caused by carelessness on the part of someone . . . don't let it be YOU! Care will prevent 7 out of 10 forest fires, so do your part . . . take all necessary precautions when you're out in the woods, especially with regard to camp fires. Make sure that cigarette is out before you throw it away. Helping to prevent forest fires is one way of showing your "Good Citizenship".

You can help this public service effort. Make a note of some of the little things which, in your opinion, contribute to Good Citizenship.
