A CORRECTION!

We wish to correct an error which appeared in our issue of Sept. 10th under the heading "Metcalfe Fair to be Held Next Week." In that article it was said that the Ottawa Boys' Band would be present, and that this band had won first place in its class at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto.

We have since been informed that such was not the case. The Band winning the honours at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, was the Ottawa Community Boys' Band, an entirely different organization from the Ottawa Boys' Band. Previous to this time we were under the impression that the Ottawa Community Boys' Band and the Ottawa Boys' Band were one organization.

We regret this error exceedingly and trust that it has caused the various organizations concerned, no serious inconvenience.

Increased Grant For Sanatorium

AN ADDITIONAL $15,000 TO BE PAID BY THE ONTARIO GOVERNMENT. WILL START BUILDING SOON.

According to members of a sub-committee of the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry, who interviewed Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn in Toronto on Thursday last, the grant of the Ontario Government towards the proposed St. Lawrence tuberculosis sanatorium will be increased from $85,000 to $100,000. The members of the delegation were delighted at the substantial increase in the grant and at the approval of the Ontario Municipal Board of the United Counties By-Law to raise $100,000 for the work.

Howard H. Nesbitt, ex-warden of the united counties and chairman of the sanatorium committee, issued the following statement on his return to Winchester.

"The sub-committee of the directors of the St. Lawrence sanatorium waited on Premier Hepburn, Hon. Dr. Faulkner, minister of health, and Dr. McGhie, deputy minister of health, to request an additional grant for the sanatorium. The delegation was composed of Mayor Aaron Horowitz of Cornwall, Warden Arthur Flynn of Morrisburg; the architect, Chester Wood, of Toronto, and myself. We were introduced to the government officials by F. B. Brownridge, M.L.A. for Stormont, who arranged the appointment. Warden Arthur Flynn was spokesman for the committee and explained the necessity for the additional grant requested.

"After hearing the committee, the premier spoke of the necessity of removing tuberculosis cases to sanatoriums. He also complimented the committee on the efforts they were making to deal with the situation and expressed the opinion that the action being taken would save the united counties large financial outlay in years to come. The premier concluded by saying that he would grant the full additional sum requested, which was $15,000, making a total grant of $100,000 from the Ontario government.

"The committee was greatly pleased to receive the additional grant and also the assurance of the premier and minister of health that they were greatly interested in the St. Lawrence sanatorium.

"The bylaw of the united counties to raise $100,000 for the sanatorium has been approved by the Municipal Board of Ontario and tenders will be called for the building of the institution as soon as the architect's plans are sufficiently advanced."

Leghorn Hen Is Mothering Kittens

A white Leghorn hen on the farm of Mr. Sherman Ball, Winchester Springs, took on a new set of duties last week, when she appointed herself foster-mother to a pair of small kittens. In spite of protests from the mother cat, the hen has religiously stuck to her proteges.

The adoption of the kittens by the hen took place about a week ago when the family cat gave birth to a new family in one of the nests in the hen house.

Upon going into the hen house last Wednesday night, Mr. Ball discovered a white leghorn sitting on one of the nests and cackling quite contentedly. It not being a hatcher, he investigated and found that she was mothering the kittens who seemed to be quite satisfied with their new home. In company with the hen was the mother cat, who was standing by to feed the kittens whenever the hen left the nest to eat.

Mr. Ball says that the kittens crawl out from under the hen and play around the nest in the daytime, but when night arrives they cuddle up under the hen's wings the same as little chickens would do.

MORRISBURG MAN IS SERIOUSLY INJURED

William Beaupre of Morrisburg is in a Cornwall hospital seriously injured and is also under arrest for the theft of an automobile, Beaupre, after allegedly stealing an automobile belonging to Alvin Henophy of Morrisburg, from the Main street of that town, Tuesday afternoon, picked up Wilfred Beaupre, also of Morrisburg, and drove north on the Ottawa-Morrisburg highway.

Later, driving south near Morrisburg, they struck a car driven by Mrs Alfred Wilcox, of Cleveland, Ohio, inflicting only slight damage to the Ohio machine. But the impact sent the Henophy car into the ditch and crashing into a telephone pole. The car was badly wrecked and both Beaupres were injured seriously, William, driving, being cut deeply over the left eye and injured about the hips, while Wilfred, riding, was deeply cut in the scalp and foot. Provincial Constable Frank Rose of Morrisburg investigated the accident, Dr. W. A. Reddick, also of Morrisburg, attending the injured men. Police believe a third man was in the car but have yet to locate him.

MORRISBURG TO HAVE SUBWAY AT $150,000 COST

At a total cost of nearly $200,000, two projects under the Railway Grade Crossing Fund in the Ottawa district are to commence immediately. A subway at Morrisburg is to cost approximately $150,000, and a highway diversion at Alcove, Que., in the neighborhood of $35,000.

Money for the construction of a subway at Morrisburg was voted out of last year's appropriation of one million dollars to the fund. The contract for the work has been let by the C. N. R., it is understood, and the Board of Railway Commissioners will ask that work be commenced right away.

The subway is at the south end of Highway No. 31, the Ottawa-Morrisburg highway, and runs into Highway No. 2. It is a level crossing of the C. N. R. double track line, at present protected by gates. The contribution of the fund is $105,000, which is 70 per cent. of the total, the province paying the remaining 30 per cent.

Kemptville Man To Stand Trial

Wiliam H. Guest, former clerk and treasurer of the village of Kemptville, pleaded not guilty in magistrate's court on Saturday to a charge of theft of $1,248.89, the property of the village of Kemptville, during the years from January 1st, 1932, to August 8th, 1936.

Following the hearing of evidence by J. H. Allen, reeve of the village of Kemptville, who identified a by-law passed by the council of that village appointing Guest to the position of clerk and treasurer, and regarding an audit conducted by A. Crawley & Company, chartered accountants, Ottawa, represented by Walter Joynt, the accused was remanded in custody to stand trial by a higher court.

Guest was represented by Hugh McGlade, of the firm of Stewart & Stewart, and H. Atkinson, county crown attorney, appeared for the prosecution.

Mr. Joynt, in his evidence, stated that the audit showed that where cheques had been received from the provincial treasurer of Ontario for the government's share of relief by Guest, they had been entered in the cash book of the corporation for a lesser amount than the face value of the cheque. The total apparent shortage in relief moneys was $977.10, the remainder of the $271.79 being a shortage in the tax arrears book of the corporation. Mr. Joynt gave a detailed statement of the shortage each year over the period and at the conclusion Magistrate Wright committed the accused for trial by a higher court.

Metcalfe Fair Was Largely Attended

PROGRAM HAMPERED BY RAIN. MANY LOCAL EXHIBITORS AMONG PRIZE WINNERS.

The 80th annual exhibition of the Metcalfe Agricultural Society was brought to a successful conclusion last night with a concert featuring the Ottawa Boys' Band, under Capt. J. T. Pyke,, won the opening race, while Lady Baldwin, owned and driven by J. H. Proudfoot, of Campbell'c Bay, was the winner of the second race. In the track events, O. Metcalfe Woman Seriously Injured

Picked up unconscious after falling out of the car in which she was riding, Mrs. John Atchison, who lives four miles south of Metcalfe, was admitted tot the Ottawa Civic Hospital on Saturday last.

Mrs. Atchison, accompanied by her husband and two children, had gone to Metcalfe to attend the school fair and were passing through the village about 11 a.m. Mr. Atchison was driving the car at the time and his wife was sitting in the front seat with him while the children were in the back seat of the car. Mrs. Atchison is believed to have turned around in her seat and was attempting to get something from one of the children when the car door, against which she was leaning, opened. She lost her balance and fell out onto the road and landed on her back. She was picked up by her husband and rushed to Dr. J. C. Byers. Seeing the serious condition of the injured woman, Dr. Byers had her taken to the Ottawa Civic Hospital. The full extent of her injuries has not been made known but her condition was reported as satisfactory.

OBITUARY

HOWARD A. McQUAIG

The funeral of the late Howard A. McQuaig was held from the home of his sister, Mrs. Ernest J. Merkley, Main street, west, to the United church, on Monday afternoon and was largely attended. Rev. D. W. Summers, pastor of the Wesleyan Methodist church, conducted the service. He was assisted by Rev. W. S. Atchison, of the United church, and Rev. H. Wood, pastor of the Baptist church. During the service, Fred Johnston sang as a solo, "Yes, There's One," accompanied on the organ by Miss Alice Singleton.

Following the service, interment took place at Maple Ridge cemetery, where the graveside ceremony was conducted by Rev. Mr. Summers.

The pall bearers were: Messrs. Walter Moffatt, W. J. Stewart, Hugh McMaster, Andrew G. Suffel, Ward Summers and Clarence Deeks.

The late Mr. McQuaig was born at Winchester Springs 55 years ago, a son of the late John McQuaig and his wife, Sarah Cooper. In 1912 he went to Western Canada where he resided until 1932, when he came to Winchester to take up residence with his sister. He was married to Miss Keziah Bell in 1902. To this union was born one daughter, Mrs. Hubert Hamilton, of Shawville, Que., who survives. In 1904, his first wife died, and in 1910 he was predeceased by his second wife, the former Miss Gertrude McIntosh.

Although a resident of Winchester for only four years, his friendly manner and kindly disposition made for him a wide circle of friend who were shocked to learn of his untimely death.

Chief mourners and survivors are one daughter, Mrs. Hubert Hamilton, of Shawville, Que.; one sister, Mrs. Ernest J. Merkley, Winchester, and one brother, Burrett McQuaig of Edmonton, Alberta.

Many beautiful floral tributes testified to the high esteem in which the late Mr. McQuaig was held.

There will be no further danger, they say, since the burning coal pile will be separated from the other huge piles in the yards and if it has not stopped in a week will be shovelled into the St. Lawrence. THE BURDEN OF GOVERNMENT

According to reports, the time-worn agitation for the abolition of county councils has been renewed with decided vigour throughout certain sections of Western Ontario. It is emphasized that there is too much overlapping of government in this country, and the remedy lies in abolishing county councils.

The Collingwood Enterprise-Bulletin, in a recent editorial on the question of county councils and their abolition, says:—"In support of the wiping out of these bodies it was argued that there was overlapping and duplication in government, also great expense which could be obviated by the proposed elimination. It was also stated that no such governing bodies exist in four provinces, British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba and all appear to get along very well. Self abnegation is a difficult obstacle in individuals and equally so in public bodies. Reduction in the numbers in the legislatures of the Dominion have occasionally been made, but only after prolonged agitation and the discovery of a leader a little bolder than any other. So with the proposed change respecting county councils. The need is strong leadership, which has not yet been found. In the meantime the county councils go merrily on and on, while the ratepayers endure government upon government and pays, pays, pays."

County Councils have, in the past, served a real purpose, but in recent years the powers of such bodies have been curtailed greatly. Only recently, it was necessary for the Counties' Council of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry to obtain permission from the Ontario Municipal Board before passing a by-law to raise $100,000 for the building of the proposed tubercular sanatorium near Cornwall.

In our humble judgment, however, a great opportunity awaits the Canadian statesman who will turn his attention to the question of reducing membership in the Senate and the House of Commons at Ottawa. Two hundred and forty-five Members draw handsome salaries in the House of Commons while ninety-six Senators are on the public payroll. A reduction of membership in both Houses by one-half would be a step in the right direction, and all that is required is a statesman who is "brave enough to be bold" and who will direct his efforts towards that end.

The Petrolia Advertiser-Topic, in discussing the matter of too much government, goes a step further, when it says:—"With the declaration that there is too much government most people will agree, but in our opinion the proper place to start reforms is with the provinces and reduce our nine provincial governments to five. Then reduce the representation of each."

Hon. George S. Henry, when premier of Ontario, successfully undertook the task of reducing the membership in the Ontario Legislature. We would not be surprised if Hon. Mitchell F. Hepburn followed the course set by his predecessor, and reduced the membership still further.

In any event, the country is over-governed, and any steps taken by political leaders that will lead to a reduction of the costs of government in this country, will receive the unqualified support of the citizens regardless of their political leanings.

THE FREEDOM OF THE PRESS

Premier Aberhart of Alberta is said to have issued a warning to the newspapers of that province that they may be compelled to take out a license in the near future..

The premier is reported to have complained of misleading and false articles concerning himself and his administration in Alberta, and is quoted as saying:—"We license doctors, merchants and lawyers, school teachers and business men and automobile drivers for the protection of the public. Why should not the newspapers be licensed also? They should be required to live up to certain standards of truth with their publications. This is a matter that will receive my immediate attention when I return from the coast, after a little holiday."

One of the principles upon which democracy is based, is freedom of the press, without fear of molestation. This principle has been rigidly upheld in Canada in the past, and no interference should be tolerated at the present time.

Lieutenant-Governor Bruce, in an address delivered at Peterborough recently, touched on the question of the freedom of the press, and his words will be heartily endorsed by every thinking citizen in Canada. He said:—"Once the harsh hand of political censorship or censorship of almost any kind is laid on the press then it may be said in all truth that the evil forces of self-opinionated propaganda are let loose and the voice of the people is silenced. In that silence those who have ears to hear are conscious of the knell of a people's doom already sounding.

"I say this because I don't think that we always sufficiently appreciate what it is to have a free press—a press in which, while occasional misinformation concerning events may be pardonable because human—yet in which deliberate inaccuracy designed for the perversion of the minds of the readers would never be possible.

"And it would not be possible simply because a free-spirited people with all their traditions of freedom would not for a moment allow anything so pernicious and conscienceless. They remain always the authors of their newspapers."

Premier Aberhart will be well advised to think seriously before interfering with the freedom of the press in the province of Alberta.

OUR ECONOMIC SYSTEM

Picton Gazette—When Canada became a Confederation of Provinces, she adopted the parliamentary system of Great Britain. Yet with all its advantages it still has one feature that could be corrected—that of economic permanency which would not change with the change of government. Granted that the government should consist of two or more parties for the sake of opposition to act as a brake on any orgy of wild spending of public funds; there is yet no political permanency, for any one party elected this term is out the next and the good one is nullified by the other for political reasons. With the economic question a paramount one, and all parties opposing each other—whether it be for the country's good or not—why cannot a permanent governmental organization be formed to deal with economic questions and development of trade unswayed by political influences or the changing mind of the electorate.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Prime Minister Mackenzie King is quoted as saying, prior to his departure for Geneva, that "we are in the position of having the good will of all. There is no country with which we are not on the friendliest terms."

Every true Canadian will hope that the Prime Minister is right—but, has Italy forgotten all about those sanctions, which were imposed by this Dominion, in company with other nations, during the Ethiopia war, and lifted only a short time ago?

Chancellor Hitler defies democracies by saying that "they can love or hate Germany, but they can never destroy it." It is just possible that the German dictator may do that job himself—without any outside help!

THE UNITED CHURCH

Rev. H. D. Marr, B.A., who has since June 1st taken up the work of the Bible Society for the Ottawa District, which was so suddenly laid down by Rev. W. F. Crawford when God called him to higher service, gave very interesting messages in Winchester on Sunday.

Rev. W. S. Atchison when introducing him on Sunday morning and welcoming him to his pulpit said he had spent 24 years in the West, and had recently come down from Calgary where he expects to return to his home shortly.

Mr. Marr spoke on the aims and achievements of the Bible Society and also made a brief appeal in its behalf, speaking from the text: "This one thing I do." He said a man with one purpose is sure to win. He concentrated his efforts on a definite goal. 132 years ago there met in the office of a merchant prince in London a representative group of ministers and laymen to make arrangements for sending Bibles to Wales. This was the beginning of the Bible Society. He spoke of the priceless heritage we possess in the Bible. Kagawa says the Bible is the proclamation of hope even to those in the depths of despair. If the homes of Canada would read the Bible daily and practise its precepts the vexing problems of the world would be solved. The Bible Society is indispensable to the growth of the church. There is nothing comparable in all the world to the work being done by this Society. In closing the speaker asked for twenty per cent. increase in this year's givings.

At the Harmony Church a very impressive message was given by Mr. Marr at 3 p.m.

Charles Davidson presided and gave out the hymns for the devotional part of the service. Prayer was offered by Wilburn Coons and passages of Scripture read by Pearl Docksteader and Wm. Helmer.

A challenging message was given by Rev. W. S. Atchison on the text "Launch out." He addressed himself especially to those who had recently made a start in the Christian life. They were urged to have a profound reliance upon the Word of God, and to follow God and be like Him, launching out and undertaking great things for Him.

The choir sang: "Near to the Heart of God," at the morning service, and Mrs. Lindsay sang: "Dear Lord Forgive" in the evening. There are a number of new members in the choir, and this will give new impetus to the singing as well as to the organist, Miss Singleton.

Raly Day will be observed next Sunday.

TORONTO FIRM AWARDED KEMPTVILLE BOND ISSUE

The firm of Gairdner and Company of Toronto was awarded the debenture issue of $21,500, four and one-half per cent. bonds for the Kemptville High school, also the debenture issue of $17,000 for Kemptville Public school, tender being $105.27. Second highest tender was that of Dyment, Anderson and Company, Toronto, at a figure of $104.50.

Twelve tenders were opened by the council at a special meeting called for that purpose. A motion was also passed to exempt Leslie Hall from taxation until Jan. 1, 1937, for high school purposes as the Oddfellows Hall had not proved satisfactory.

SEVEN LODGES AT SOUTH MOUNTAIN I. O. O. F. GATHERING

Travelling to South Mountain on Wednesday of last week, the officials and members of the Morrisburg Oddfellows' Lodge, Zeta Lodge No. 311, were privileged to confer the Initiatory Degree on a class of 21 candidates of that district. Of the 21, 19 joined the South Mountain lodge, and the other two were made members of the lodge at North Gower. Credit for this encouraging gain in membership is laid to the new district deputy Grand Master F. W. Robinson, of district No. 53.

The South Mountain Lodge and district No. 53 are looking forward to a busy time, which will include the following activity: Amity Lodge of Prescott, will confer the First Degree on Tuesday evening, September 15; Kemptville lodge will confer the Second Degree Wednesday, September 23; Regal lodge of Cardinal confers the Third Degree on October 6. The Grand Master will also make his official visit to Harmony and Eastern districts, Nos. 51 and 52, in the Zeta lodgerooms at Morrisburg on the evening of Tuesday, September 29. It is expected that a large number of Oddfellows from the two districts will be present.

BUCKSAW CHAMPION NAMED

Wonder if we have any wood sawing or rail splitting champions in or around Winchester? If you want to compare your ability with some "world champions" their times are given below.

Age triumphed over youth last week at Peterboro in contests staged to determine the bucksaw champion of the world. More than 100 men and boys matched brawn for the prizes.

Thomas Walling, of North Monaghan, 63-year-old farmer, beat all comers when he nicked off three blocks of six-inch maple in the amazing time of 54 seconds time. Gordon McClellan, Peterboro, was second with a total elapsed time of 59 3-4 seconds, while Archie Robb, 30-year-old expert woodsman, placed third with a count of 1.08.

$3,000 DAMAGE CAUSED BY FIRE AT RUSSELL

One barn was totally destroyed and the barn and farmhouse of another farmer were damaged when fire of unknown origin broke out near Russell early Thursday evening last. The fire originated on the farm of A. O. Sullivan, about two miles east of the village, and burning embers carried on a high wind set fire to the barn and farmhouse of Harry York, half a mile away. Only prompt work by a bucket brigade of neighbors prevented the other two buildings being destroyed.

The fire started in Mr. Sullivan's barn while threshing was in progress and it was only by the narrowest of margins that the threshing mill was rolled out of the burning building before the roof collapsed. Mr. Sullivan's entire crop of hay was destroyed and his loss is estimated at $3,000, partly covered by insurance. The damage to Mr. York's farmhouse and barn was slight. No one was injured.

PLANS UNDER WAY TO BUILD COMMUNITY HALL

H. R. Wallace, president of the Matilda Community Association, presided at a meeting of the directorate in Gilson's hall, Brinstons, on Saturday evening last, with C. A. Strader as secretary. Mrs. Doug. Hanson, president of the Matilda Women's Institute, addressed the meeting on the erection of a contemplated new hall on the Community Park grounds in that place.

It was moved by Dr. T. Hamilton, seconded by Mr. O. Wylie, and unnanimously carried, that the Matilda Community Association favors the erection of a hall on the Community Park, and would, in no way, interfere with any activities sponsored by the Women's Institute.

A committee was appointed, consisting of the president, and R. Ennis, P. Locke, Wm. Hanes and Ed. Doddridge, to make arrangements for the rural school fair to be held this month. The committee on repair of the cenotaph reported their work completed, and the Memorial gateway has a much better appearance.

"COST OF MILK" SURVEY BY ONTARIO PRODUCERS

What does it cost to produce milk in Ontario? The milk producers of Ontario aim to have an answer to this question in the very near future. Through the co-operation of the Economics and Dairy Husbandry Department of Agriculture, a research staff is now actively engaged in this study.

It is planned to learn the cost for every section of Ontario and for every type of market. To this task the milk producers' associations interested in cheese, butter, concentrated products and whole milk, in co-operation with the two above-named agencies, have thus far secured the active support of more than 1500 individual milk producers throughout Ontario.

Each co-operator has been supplied with an account book which has been carefully prepared by the Ontario Agricultural College and the Dominion Economics Branch, and approved by the joint committee of the milk producers. During the year, representatives plan to call on each of the farmer producers to provide any desired assistance in connection with the keeping of the records.

For considerable time the milk producers have felt that the accurately determined cost of production would be of great benefit to them in arriving at a satisfactory sale price. With this data at their command, they are convinced they will be placed in a more favourable position. On the other hand, the milk distributor, knowing the most advantageous consumer price and also his distribution cost as the result of his constant contact with consumers, is in an advantageous position in dealing with farmers.

Many factors in addition to price are included in the agreements drawn up as between milk producers and distributors, and it is the prerogative of the Ontario Milk Control Board to exercise authority in connection with agreements made between these two parties.

CURRENT CROP REPORT

Grey County reports its apple crop this year equal to that of 1935, with all fall apples turning out a good average crop and with Duchess nearly double last year's. McIntosh however show a decline of about 30 per cent. Estimated production of Georgian Bay fruit district is between 65,000 and 75,000 barrells. Quality is exceptionally fine. Huron County has a similarly encouraging report in this respect. In Waterloo yields of grain have been very disappointinng. Livestock in Brant is in fair condition, with pastures improving due to recent showers. Lincoln reports peaches as plentiful, but apples are only 5 per cent. of a normal crop. More rain is needed in Welland to prepare a proper seed bed for fall wheat. Sowing of fall wheat is reported general throughout Wentworth. Alfalfa and second growth meadows have helped out the pasture situation in Oxford. Pastures in Middlesex are still very dry, although prospects are better since recent showers. Prince Edward reports that recent rains will greatly benefit corn, potatoes, tomatoes, roots, apples and pastures. Eastern Ontario has also benefited considerably by the downfall of moisture and the countryside is looking well.

SYNOPSIS . . . Silas Spelle, high handed, low-principled cattle baron, is out to smash the local bank and foreclosure on the small ranchers in the Kanab desert country so that he can seize their range lands. He is opposed by Ed. Starbuck, president of the Cattlemen's Bank, and by San Juan Delevan, prominent rancher who has been crippled by a fall from his horse. Tex Whipple and his partner Johnny Clehoe, are cowpunchers employed by San Juan Delevan to fight the rustlers and protect his interests.

The town of Carillion seemed yet asleep despite the climbing sun of a new-born day, when the little cavalcade turned into the single street. Jake Butterfield and Tobe Hansen were the only humans in sight, the former swung wide the doors of his general store while Hansen was lazily heaving up and down to the creaking accompaniment of the rusty pump at the watering trough in front of his stable. Pink Crosby set the brake of the buckboard and skidded the two broncos to a stop at the hitching rail in front of Butterfield's store, hopped out and tethered them. Tex and Johnny dismounted there likewise and tied their mounts.

"Suppose we get right over to the hotel, Miss Ronny," Tex suggested. "It'll give us a chance to get our business over with before Spelle knows what it's all about. If we can it'll save a heap of argument an' trouble."

"Just as you say, Tex," nodded Ronny. She jumped lightly to the ground and divested herself of the duster. "I'm ready."

They crossed the street to the single story, false-fronted hotel, Tex and Ronny in the lead and Johnny and Pink Crosby bringing up the rear. Johnny was chuckling.

"Bright boy, friend Jake is," he snickered.

Pink grinned widely. "Ole Jake means well, but he's done poured molasses so long his brains got the same kind o' movement. Yuh gotta give Jake time. On a snap judgment he can't tell the difference between a can o' corn an' a box o' thirty-thirties, but yuh gotta give him time. I 'member, a Sowegian sheep herder comin' in to Jake's fer snuff one time an' Jake hands him out some flea powder. The sheepherder couldn't read English but the first sniff he took o' that bug killer shore put him on edge. He chased ole Jake about two miles with a single-tree. He'd a got him too, only he got to sneezin' so bad he couldn't see where he was goin'. He fell into a barrel cactus an' got stuck there. When we pulled him out he had other things to think of beside his nose so ole Jake come through the ordeal all in one piece. But he's done figgered it out that it's safer to keep the bug killer on the other end of the shelf from the snuff."

Johnny snorted with glee. "Ain't he a wonder?" he sighed.

They climbed the low steps to the porch of the hotel and entered the dingy hallway just in time to meet a paunchy, spry, important little individual dressed with meticulous care. His low cut tan shoes were polished to a glass-like glow, the creases in his trousers were like knife edges, his tie faultless. He had three chins, a pursy mouth and a tiny blonde mustache. But the eyes behind the heavy rimmed glasses gave the lie to the rest of his appearance. Those orbs had a cold, crafty gleam. The look he bent on Ronny caused the hot blood to flame in Johnny's face and his fists to clench.

"Yuh're the bank examiner, I take it," drawled Tex.

"I am," was the crisp retort. "My name is Lange. But if you have business with me you'll have to wait. I have not breakfasted yet. I'll be at the bank in an hour."

He started to push by Tex bruskly but the old puncher blocked the way.

"Yuh're wrong there, Mister Lange," drawled Tex. "Our business cain't wait. Yuh're goin' down to the bank with us now."

Lange drew himself up to his full height of five feet four.

"Don't be ridiculous, my man," he snapped. "You cannot pull one of your cowcountry bluffs on me. I'll be at the bank at ten o'clock."

"Some gents are shore hard to convince," remarked Johnny casually, stepping close to Lange. "Pink, you get him by the seat o' the pants an' I'll grab his collar. He'll be plumb surprised to find how quick he can get to the bank."

"Why—why," stuttered Lange. "That is ridiculous. Don't you dare lay hands on me."

"Yep," drawled Johnny. "It shore will be re-ediculous. Don't know when a man looks like a bigger fool than when he's gittin' the bum's rush. But yuh're shore slated for it less'n yuh use yore haid."

The bank examiner looked around in some trepidation. He saw no sign of relenting in the faces of his visitors. Even the slender, extremely pretty girl seemed cool and unconcerned.

"I—I—very well, I'll come," he fumed. "But mark my word—you'll pay for this."

In all his ruffled dignity he marched down to the bank and unlocked the door. The others followed him in and Tex went immediately to the business at hand.

"Yuh hold a ten thousand dollar mortgage here against Jim Delevan of the Box D outfit," stated Tex. "We're here to clear it up. Trot it out. It'll be paid in full."

"I—ah—why that is very irregular. In fact it cannot be done," sputtered Lange. "You are too late. Mr. Spelle is taking over all the bank's assets including all outstanding paper. You will have to do your business with him. He will be here shortly. I have an appointment with him here this morning."

"There's the ten thousand," said Tex. "Trot out that mortgage."

"Has he closed the deal?" snapped Tex coldly. "Turned over the money to you an' all the rest of it?"

"Why—er—no, not exactly. But in behalf of the bank's creditors I have agreed to his proposition. I must confer with him before I do anything further."

"Wrong," corrected Tex. "That mortgage is right here in this vault and he hasn't paid a cent on it yet. Well, we're here to pay it in full. Mebbe there might be some picayunish point o' law somewhere in the thing but that'll have to be talked over afterwards."

Tex reached inside his shirt and lifted out a heavily padded money belt. "There's the ten thousand," he asserted. "Trot out that mortgage."

The bank examiner bit his lips and stalled. "Are you James Delevan?"

"No—I'm not. But this young lady is his daughter an' Jim's authorized her to represent him. I'm still waitin' to see that mortgage."

"What proof can you offer that the young lady is James Delevan's daughter?"

"Aw-w," burst in Johnny. "Lemme work on him, Tex. That jasper has been hangin' around Spelle an' the rest of a lyin' outfit so long he don't know the truth when he hears it. He's jest stallin' fer time. Comb his hair with yore gun. That'll get action."

Tex ignored Johnny's outburst. "Jest tell this tin-horn who yuh are Miss Ronny," he said. "An' then if he wants to doubt a lady's word, let him say so."

"I am Ronella Delevan" stated Ronny quietly. "My father, as you no doubt know, is a cripple. He was unable to be present so he sent me in his place."

Tex turned a cold eye on Lange. "Satisfied?" he drawled, his voice dangerously soft.

"Yu-yes," gulped Lange. "Very irregular, as I said before. But I'll get the mortgage. I won't be responsible for what happens over this. She should have her father's power of attorney."

"Don't know what one o' them things," stated Tex. "But her word is good enough fer me."

"Yeh—an' me too," chimed in Pink Crosby.

"That makes it unanimous," declared Johnny.

Lange went reluctantly to the vault and began spinning the dial. He was very much perturbed—very much indeed. His dignity was badly ruffled. He wished devoutly that Spelle would show up. Lange knew the history of the Delevan mortgage, knew it very well indeed. And he knew that was the one piece of paper held by the defunct bank that Spelle wanted to get his hands on above all else. He hated to think what Spelle's outburst would be on finding that his chance to take over the San Juan plateau had slipped between his greedy fingers. But apparently there was nothing further he could do. So presently the vault door swung open and Lange came out with the Delevan mortgage.

Tex opened the money belt and began tossing bundles of big denomination bills on the table.

"Count it," he ordered.

"Interest for three months is also due," stated Lange as he laid aside the last bill.

"How much?" growled Tex, digging into his pocket.

"One hundred and fifty dollars."

Between the three of them Tex and Johnny and Pink Crosby dug up a hundred and forty-five dollars.

It was Ronny who opened her purse and brought to light a final five dollar bill to complete the total. "Correct?" asked Tex. "All right then—stamp it paid. An' sign yore name an' official title as well. We don't want any comebacks on this thing."

Helpless to do otherwise, Lange obeyed. Tex could scarce conceal his eagerness and satisfaction as he picked up the precious mortgage, folded it and stowed it in his pocket. On second thought he took it out and handed it to Ronny.

"It's yores, young 'un," he smiled. "Hang on to it."

Ronny was tremulous as she snapped her purse shut about the paper. "Let's go," she murmured. "I won't feel safe until this is in daddy's hands."

At that moment a low ejaculation caused them to turn. In the doorway stood Silas Spelle.

Spelle glared around the room suspiciously, his features pulled into a hard, nasty scowl. But for the moment he did not speak. It was Tex who assumed immediate mastery of the situation.

"Pink, take Miss Ronny down to Jake Butterfield's," he snapped. "Looks like an argument is goin' to bust around here. The kid an' me'll take care of this end of it. Spread out, Johnny."

Johnny skipped lightly to one side, his eyes unwinkingly upon Spelle. Pink Crosby took Ronny's arm and started for the door. Spelle squared his bulk in the doorway, his scowl deepening.

"What's the rush?" he snarled. "What is this anyway—a hold-up? Nobody leaves this place until I get an explanation."

Pink Crosby's cheeks paled slightly, but his blue eyes grew hard and bright. He stepped ahead of Ronny and advanced on Spelle. His right hand hovered above his gun.

"Tha-so?" he drawled. "Since when? Git outa the way, 'fore I mow yuh down at the hocks."

"Atta' boy, Pink," chimed in Johnny. "Make a phony move Spelle an' I wreck yore belt buckle complete."

"An' what the kids start I finish," added Tex. "Go ahead Miss Ronny, he'll be good."

Ronny was very pale but her little chin was high as she stepped to the door. Spelle wavered. His nerve was slipping. He stepped to one side and Ronny went by him.

"The Delevan mortgage," cackled Lange excitedly. "That girl has—"

The rest of his words were muffled by the hard smack of Johnny's fist. The elegant Mr. Lange went backwards over a chair to light on his shoulders with a crash.

EGG SHIPPERS UNION

Nine farmers' associations have grown up in Eastern Ontario in the last two years for the co-operative shipping and grading of eggs. These groups were formed for the purpose of bringing increased revenue to egg shippers by two means: first, by returning to egg producers the Montreal selling price less handling charges, and, second, by selling the eggs in a Montreal market on the basis of the associations' grading at shipping point.

The first egg co-operative now operating started in business at Oxford Mills in December, 1934. The ninth link in the chain was formed at Casselman last May. The other seven associations have headquarters at Finch, Moose Creek, Kemptville, Maxville, Cobden, Plantagenet and Eganville. The total volume of eggs handled in 18 months was 506,507 dozen with aggregate receipts of $112,870 and a steady increase in receipts has attended the efforts of these groups.

NEWLYWEDS HONORED

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Roach of Hallville who were married in the past month, were the guests of honor at a reception and shower on Wednesday evening last which was held at Hallville by their friends. An address was read by William Brooks, extending the good wishes to the young couple and asking them to accept the gifts which were arranged on a long table in the hall. Mr. and Mrs. Roach expressed their deep appreciation.

THE MOTHER JOB

It really isn't hard to be a mother,
There really isn't much to do.
The days are just exactly like each other
You simply shut your eyes and wander through.

For 6 o'clock is time enough for rising,
And getting all the children washed and dressed,
And breakfast cooked—it really is surprising,
But mothers never seem to need a rest.

The lunches must be placed and jackets rounded,
And everybody soothed and sent to school,
To say that mother rushes is unfounded,
She's nothing more to manage, as a rule.

Unless it is to finish piles of sewing,
And cook and wash and iron and scrub and sweep.
To order food and keep the furnace going,
And then, perhaps to hide herself and weep!

And when at last she's tucked them under covers,
And seen to door that dad's forgot to lock,
Triumphantly, at midnight, she discovers
She's nothing more to do till 6 o'clock.

THE MAN IN OTHER CAR

Have you ever heard the rattle of a dying man's last breath,
Or seen the look of horror in the stare that faces death?
Have you ever heard a person scream with sharp and sudden pain,
And looked down at a mangled arm that will never move again?
Have you ever heard the moaning above the noise and din,
And seen the gory, bloody gap where once an eye had been?

When your car is doing sixty have you ever felt the yen
To let 'er have another notch'n' do another ten?
When a poky guy's ahead of you, have you ever had the thrill
Of swingin' out 'n' passin' him upon a dangerous hill?
Have you ever heard the tires scream, and felt the old bus swerve
As you let er have the limit while you took a sudden curve?

Have you had the keen sensation of a fast car at your bid,
'N' run up to a stop light, 'n' slapped 'em on, 'n' skid?
Did you ever pass a school yard 'n' give the horn a slam,
'N' drive close to a gang of kids 'n' see 'em jump 'n' scram?
Did you ever take a quart of rye 'n' swallow four or five,
'N' take the old bus down the road 'n' show 'em how to drive?

Have you ever seen a little child all crumpled up 'n' still—
Who tried to run across the street when a car came down the hill?
Morbid 'n' gruesome 'n' gory, this I'm sorry, but don't you see,
This was not meant to be read by folks as tender as you and me.
It was meant for the thoughtless, the careless, who kill 'n' mame 'n' mar,
The reckless fool who is to blame—the man in the other car.

FIVE RICHEST MEN IN ENGLAND

England's five richest men are:

Bored Hugh Richard Arthur Grosvenor, second Duke of Westminster—lands.

Shy Sir John Reeves Ellerman—shipping.

Pugnacious Harold Harmsworth, Viscount Rothermere—newspapers.

Practical William Richard Morris, Baron Nuffield—automobiles.

Plain Joseph Rank—flour mills.

Plain Joe Rank, probably the richest of all, is the only one without a title. He has refused one twice, saying: "I'm Joe Rank to everyone. They wouldn't know me as "Sir Joseph." He's probably the least known of all five. Yet his flour mills turn out 173,000 sacks of flour each week—enough to feed one-seventh of the population of Britain.

He is ardently religious.

He has given more than $5,000,000 to the Methodist Church alone. To the poor invalids' fund of his native city, Hull, he wrote out a cheque for $1,500.000.

Has Done Everything

Londoners know the Duke of Westminster as the "Mon Who Owns London." Actually, he owns 600 acres of city property there, worth conservatively $100,000,000.

This land was once a big bog.

He is the kind of aritocrat who appeals to readers of Sunday supplements. He has done everything, been everywhere.

He owns an estate in Scotland, 30,000 acres in Cheshire and Flintshire, two yachts. He has been married 3 times, hunted all over the world, hydroplaned, motor-boated, led a British Polo Team to America, been under fire in the war, gave his wife—his third—a wedding party in four houses.

He is said to be ridden by boredom. His heir died in infancy. A cousin is in line for the title.

Is Rarely Seen

London newspapers like to refer to Sir John Ellerman as the "Man Nobody Ever Knows." He easily outdistanced Greta Garbo and Charles Augustus Linbergh in his passion for seclusion.

He is only 26. He owns four major steamship lines and a miscellaneous fleet of other vessels which are found on every sea.

He is rarely seen at his office or anywhere else. No one knows his home address. When his father died, the British Government took $70,000,000 in death duties.

Is A Dictator

Viscount Rothermere probably is the best known of Britain's quintet of money lords. The brother of the late Lord Northcliff, he is feared and admired in the British newspaper world.

A master of making fortunes from newspapers, Rothermere is described as a lonely man.

Two of his sons were killed. He never got over their deaths.

Rothermere is said to love the good things of life—luxury, travel, entertainment, good company. He hates to be alone. He is fond of dictators and is one himself in his own world.

At 68 he is still vigorous, mentally and physically.

Self-Made Man

Last among the 5 British men of real wealth Lord Nuffield is a great industrialist, versatile, tremendously hard working, shrewd, practical.

He got his start making bicycles. In 1912 he switched to motorcycles. When the war came on he was making automobiles. Today he is the Henry Ford of England.

Outside of golf, work is his life. He regards every failure as the fault of the person who failed.—Perth Courier.

PROLIFIC HOUSE FLY IS CARRIER OF DISEASE

House flies are prolific breeders, and during the summer and early autumn, appear in great numbers wherever the materials in which they breed—manure and garbage—are allowed to accumulate without proper treament.

The species Musca demestica L., is a house fly par excellence, and constitutes over 90 per cent. of the flies found in houses in temperate climates. The problem of the house fly is a serious one, owing to its relation to disease, states C. R. Twinn, Entomological Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture. The flies serve in the contaminative spread of disease, and as alternate hosts of carriers of disease organisms. Among important diseases shown to be transmitted through contamination of food by flies are typhoid tuberculosis, summer diarrhoea, cholera, and bacterial and amoebic dysentry. Flies also feed on mucus, blood, and serum from wounds, exudations from sores and ulcers, and are thus able to transmit diseases of various kinds from infected lesions to the mucous membranes, or broken skin of healthy individuals; anthrax, trichoma purulent ophthalmia and yaws have been proved to be carried by flies among animals, as well as human beings. It is known that flies are the carriers of certain species of roundworms that produce tumors in the stomachs of horses, and of tapeworms which infest poultry.

In considering control measures against the house fly (and incidentally the biting stable flies and blow flies), the disposal or treatment of their breeding places should be given first place, as several hundreds of thousands of flies may emerge from a single ton of manure or garbage. Garbage should preferably be disposed of by burning. Manure should be removed and spread in the fields, where the drying action of the sun and wind will prevent breeding; or if this is not practicable, it should be piled in compact heaps with straight cut sides to promote high temperatures destructable to insects and flies.

The efficiency of cleanliness and the proper disposal of barnyard manure in the control of housefly infestation was very strikingly observed at Llyodminster and Meota, where climatic conditions are very similar. In the one case, flies were exceedingly abundant, while the farmers' wife stated that she almost dreaded the summer months because of the flies.

Avoid the pleasure that holds the penalty of future pain.

A lot of people have no time to bother with their enemies because they're too busy trying to get even with their best friends.

Steen was in charge, with Miss Ellice Smith acting as secretary. The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. A. Carlyle and Mrs. B. Hutchison.

A pie social will be held in the church hall in October with Mrs. Arthur Steinburg and Mrs. Walter Carlyle conveners. Mrs. E. Loucks will supply the church with flowers for September.

Worthless Billion Dollar Invention

Until the time of the invention of the cotton gin it was a full day's work for one person to remove the seeds from a single pound of cotton staple.

Visualizing the terrific increase in production a device for removing seeds from cotton would cause, Eli Whitney set to work on a model. In the surprisingly short time of two weeks he completed the device that had baffled the inventiveness of man for years.

Yet, strange as it seems, he was destined to lose money on the invention that was to mean billions of dollars in labor and time saving for the cotton industry, the device that today makes possible the widespread usage of cotton at a cheap price. Shortly after he had finished the gin, news of its success had leaked out, his workshop was broken into and his model stolen. Before he had an opportunity to duplicate it and get a patent there was so many machines modeled after it that the government refused to grant him a patent.

Finally, after spending a large amount of money in law suits, he was granted his patent but continued infringements cost him so much money in court that he finally dropped the fight. His expenditures far out-totalled the meager profits which he managed to reap and he was forced into the manufacture of fire arms for a living.

Gota Canal

Though the Gota Canal of Sweden covers a total distance of 360 miles, only 56 miles of it are actually canal for it threads its way through hundreds of lakes and natural waterways. In the comparatively short distance of its canals, it has 74 locks, over six times as many as the Panama Canal which is less than 50 miles long.

As the grandmothers arrived, each was presented with a corsage bouquet of mauve and purple asters.

The library books are to be moved to the home of Mrs. B. Loughridge who will act as librarian. The new music sheets were distributed and community singing was enjoyed with Mrs. H. Myers at the organ. Mrs. A. Dillabough was appointed delegate to attend the Ottawa convention on Oct. 13, 14, and 15th. The Institute rally will be held at Morewood on October 25th, at which the eight Institutes will meet. The guests were received by Mrs. Sheppard and Mrs. C. Thompson, while Mrs. A. Gordon; and the grandmother with the largest number of grandchildren, Mrs. L. Fetterly, who has twenty-five grandchildren and seven great grandchildren. Mrs. Beyanson was presented with a bouquet of flowers.

The house was beautifully decorated with mauve flowers and the tea-table, at which six of the oldest grandmothers were seated, was decorated with mauve streamers. Refreshmentst were served, and Mrs. Myers moved a vote of thanks to the hostess, and Mrs. A. B. Allison voiced the sincere thanks on behalf of the grandmothers, to the Institute for the afternoon's entertainment.

Following is a poem read by Mrs. L. Fetterly:

Not Growing Old

They say that I am growing old,
I've heard them tell it times untold,
In language plain and bold—
But I'm NOT growing old.
This frail old shell in which I dwell
Is growing old, I know full well—
But I am not the shell.
What if my hair is turning gray?
Gray hairs are honourable, they say;
What if my eyesight's growing dim?
I still can see to follow Him,
Who sacrificed His life for me
Upon the Cross of Calvary.
What should I care if Time's old plow
Has left its furrows on my brow?
Another house, not made with hands,
Awaits me in the Glory Land.
What tho' I falter in my walk?
What though my tongue refuse to talk?
I still can tread the narrow way,
I still can watch and praise and pray.
My hearing may not be so keen
As in the past it may have been,
Still I can hear my Saviour say
In whispers soft "This is the Way."
The outward man, do what I can
To lengthen out his life's short span,
Shall perish and return to dust,
As everything in Nature must.
The inward man, the Scriptures say,
Is growing stronger every day.
Then how can I be growing old
When safe within my Saviour's fold?
'Ere long my soul shall fly away,
And leave this tenement of clay.
This robe of flesh I'll drop, and rise
To seize the "Everlasting Prize."
I'll meet you on the streets of gold
And prove that I'm not growing old.

FORMER WINCHESTER INDUSTRY MAKING PROGRESS

The following story of the "Beach Foundry, Limited," published in the Ottawa Citizen on Saturday last, is of local interest and we re-publish it for the benefit of our subscribers, who may not have read it in the Citizen:

"Forty-two years ago the first Beach stoves were peddled in and about Winchester and through the counties of Glengarry, Stormont, Dundas, Russell and Grenville. Today, Beach Foundry, Limited, has distributing warehouses for their products in the cities of Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver. From a small local concern it has become an internationally known organization, making regular shipments to South Africa, New Zealand and Australia. They began business with one stove design and two men. Today they employ a staff of three hundred men.

"There is romance indeed in the history of Beach Foundry, Limited, and the men behind it. Mr. B. C. Beach at the beginning was pattern-maker, carpenter and cupola man, and the inspiration behind the steady progress of the business. First to be manufactured was a Longwood box stove, then a cast iron cook stove called the Maple Leaf, that was a marvel to behold, covered with as it was with a fancy raised pattern that was a terror for those particular housewives who insisted on blackleading their stoves every week. Of course, there was bright nickel trimming , as well. They were good performers, however , and many of them are still doing good duty in the surrounding counties. Nothing would please Mr. Beach more than to hear from some of their users.

"In 1893, Mr. Beach, who was something of a genius, invented, made and put on the market an acetylene gas machine that was widely used up and down the Ottawa valley. The firm also made an agricultural furnace, which the farmer used for cooking feed.

New stove designs were added from time to time and in 1902 Beach made its first steel range for coal and wood, its straight lines and plain nickel finish, a forerunner of the highly finished and easily cleaned ranges of fine performance they manufacture today. Two stoves a week were considered a satisfactory output in the beginning. Today, Beach Foundry is making a complete line of coal, wood, gas and electric ranges, heaters, furnaces and air conditioning furnaces, as well as electric and ice refrigerators. The capacity of the plant is 300 stoves complete per day.

"In 1903 the firm was incorporated; the business grew steadily exceeding the capacity of the plant. But Winchester was not ideally situated for such a rapidly expanding business. For a few years Beach Foundry was content to mark time until a better location could be found.

"During that interval, Mr. Beach's energetic temperament took him into the North Country where for four or five years he with his brother, C. A. Beach, of Cornwall, installed an electric light plant in the town of Haileybury and later shared in the electrical development of the Cobalt Power Company, which was the first concern to develop power on the Montreal river. They delivered the first electrical energy to the Cobalt mines. They were burned out in the first great Haileybury fire, but commenced erection of a new plant the next day. These properties are now a part of the Northern Ontario Power Company.

Before war was declared in 1914, Beach Foundry decided to locate in Ottawa and leased the premises of the Butterworth Foundry on Broad street. This served them for only a few years, so that in 1922 they erected the first section of the vast plant that is now necessary for the manufacture of Beach products, and which is located in that part of Ottawa known as Hintonburg.

The new plant is modern in every way, built of concrete, brick and steel. This houses a modern enamelling plant, and an electrical melting furnace, the first used on the continent for the melting of grey iron to be used in stoves, ranges, furnaces, etc., having a capacity of sixty tons per day.

In 1924 Beach Foundy began the manufacture of gas and electric ranges, and in 1934 they added refrigerators, the demand for which has been little short of phenomenal. Air conditioning plants are the latest addition, the result of careful experimentation before being considered ready for the market.

Mr. B. C. Beach, the president, has the unique distinction of being an honorary member of the Chicago Typographical Union, tribute to his experience as a job printer and newspaper owner. Previous to his manufacturing career, Mr. Beach published a newspaper, the St. Lawrence News, and did job printing in Iroquois. Leasing his printing plant to the principal of the high school, he moved to Chicago and followed the art of printing in the Windy City, returning to Canada and locating at Winchester in 1894.

Loyalty to Beach traditions is evident among the men of the staff among whom are men who have been employes of the firm for thirty-five years and more. Among these are Albert Kendrick, now the foreman of the steel department; Alex Larmour, foreman of the plating and polishing department; William Eastman who is still making patterns, and George Larmour in the moulding department."
